11/6/87 C 2720-1

© Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$1.50 a copy; $59 a year

November 2, 1987

NEWSPAPER
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Advertisers hold firm

Ad budgets steady, but concern grows

An Advertising Age roundup

Consumer-product marketers are holding firm on ad budgets following the Oct. 19 "Black Monday" stock market drop, but concerns about consumer confidence are increasing.

Automobiles and financial services have the biggest worries, but Black Monday is having a psychological impact on everything from fast-food to computers sales.

"To use a Los Angeles metaphor, it's an earthquake but we don't know what the damage is yet," said Dick Vaughan, Los Angeles-based corporate director of research for Foote, Cone & Belding Communications.

In trying to assess the damage, a category-by-category survey was taken looking at the current outlook of consumer marketers:

Automobiles

The emerging question for auto marketers is not whether there will be a sales drop but "how deep it will be?"

"I don't think the underlying economic facts should have the industry go off more than 10% at this time," said Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca at his quarterly press conference. But he expressed the widespread industry fear that shaken consumer confidence will lead potential buyers to postpone purchases.

"I don't think anybody in the world knows" how deep a downturn will be, Mr. Iacocca said.

No auto marketers admit they have cut ad budgets yet, but

(Continued on Page 106)

Inside:

- European financial ads take a hit—P. 73
- Agency analysts worry about fourth quarter—P. 107

Consumer worry keeps on rising

Copyright ©1987 by Crain Communications Inc.

Chicago—Consumer pessimism appears to be growing.

An Advertising Age "Consumer Misery Index" measuring the impact of the stock market activity on consumer buying attitudes jumped dramatically last week, well after the Oct. 19 "Black Monday" stock-market plunge (see related chart on Page 106).

Data supplied by Leo J. Shapiro & Associates, a Chicago consumer research company, show that the percent of Americans saying the near-crash was very important to them personally rose from 8% to 15% between the week of Oct. 19 and the week of Oct. 26.

Significantly, the percentage saying they plan to cut back on consumer purchases also increased.

About 24% of 194 families surveyed nationally Oct. 27 and Oct. 28 said they feel like cutting back on spending for food at home, compared with 20% of 502 families surveyed Oct. 20 and Oct. 21.

In the latest survey, 6% say they feel like increasing their purchases, and 70% opted for no change.

There also was an increase in the percentage who are cutting back on eating out, from 22% in the first survey to 30% in the latest survey. Last week 2% said they feel like eating out more, and 69% opted for no change.

The percentage saying they feel like cutting back on gasoline purchases rose from 12% to 19%, with

(Continued on Page 106)

Grant ousted as 'sweeps' begin

CBS faces crucial test

By VERNE GAY
and JAMES P. FORKAN

New York—CBS is under fire again.

The network's top programmer stepped down late last week, just as the network enters the crucial November "sweeps" period. For the first time in more than a decade, CBS is entering the sweeps as the third-ranked network in prime-time ratings.

Even more critical: CBS' faltering schedule could cause a severe advertiser "make-good" crunch in the first quarter. Agency sources said the network has large audience deficits on several nights.

Bud Grant, president of CBS Entertainment and a 15-year company veteran, said Oct. 30 he would leave the company to form his own production company. If the CBS prime-time schedule does not improve, other top CBS executives could also leave.

Rumors have circulated for months about the continued tenure of CBS/Broadcast Group President Gene Jankowski. Messrs. Jankowski and Grant could not be reached at press time.

Kim LeMasters, VP-programs, was named the acting head of CBS Entertainment.

CBS is blaming its plight on ABC's telecasts of the World Series; experts say that is a valid ex-

(Continued on Page 104)

Celebrity wars

The long-awaited Michael Jackson commercial for Pepsi-Cola (bottom) finally hit the airwaves last weekend, and coming up next is Pierce Brosnan's second action-packed commercial for Diet Coke (above). See stories on Page 3.

Last Minute News

Johnson, JWT split on haircare

Racine, Wis.—S.C. Johnson & Son has pulled three haircare brands, worth an estimated $15 million, from J. Walter Thompson USA, Chicago. The Halsa Swedish Botanical Formula account went to Lotas, Minard, Patton, McIver, New York. Agree and L'Envie Parfum shampoos and conditioners will be reassigned, possibly to other Johnson agencies Foote, Cone & Belding and HDM Dawson Johns & Black, both Chicago. The marketer called the split a "mutual decision," reflecting JWT's concerns about conflicts with clients at other offices. JWT still will handle Edge shaving gel and Soft Sense lotion, worth a combined $5 million, and international business.

Esty beefs up for Jeep-Eagle

New York—William Esty Co. will open 20 to 25 field-service offices around North America to serve

(Continued on Page 8)

Ney recruits Bush ad team

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

Washington—Former Young & Rubicam Chairman Edward Ney is recruiting high-caliber ad talent for Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign.

The ad team may resemble the famed Tuesday Team, which propelled Ronald Reagan to a landslide re-election in 1984.

Mr. Ney, now chairman of PaineWebber/Young & Rubicam Ventures, said last week he is talking to agency executives to help shape Bush campaign advertising in 1988.

Roger Ailes, of Ailes Communications, New York, is the vice president's top political media adviser.

"If George Bush is lucky enough to be the party's candidate, how we'd handle campaign advertising is still to be determined," Mr. Ney said. "But I wouldn't

(Continued on Page 104)

Highlights

Taking cholesterol claims to heart 4

High-fiber claims still are hot in food advertising, but low-cholesterol claims may get even hotter. The National Blood Heart & Lung Association's National Cholesterol Education Program is raising consciousness about elevated cholesterol levels. That puts food marketers such as Campbell Soup Co., Procter & Gamble Co. and Quaker Oats Co. in line to profit.

Corporate Closeup: White Castle 6

White Castle System would seem an unlikely threat to rival restaurant chains. After all, its total 1986 sales are matched by the McDonald's Corp. every eight days. Yet the granddaddy of limited-menu, quick-service restaurants has raised the eyebrows of its larger, wealthier and younger competitors.

P&G, Upjohn's hairy deal 12

Procter & Gamble Co. and Upjohn Co. jointly will develop shampoos and other haircare products containing minoxidil, Upjohn's potentially revolutionary anti-baldness treatment. Upjohn said the long-term agreement with P&G will result in easier-to-use and more effective baldness remedies.

JWT hunting up new business 24

James Heekin III's first order of business is finding a new-business director. As the new general manager of J. Walter Thompson USA's New York office, replacing income from the $200 million loss of Burger King Corp. is a priority. Although the office recently added the $4 million Six Flags Great Adventure account, it will take more than that to do the job. The office needs bigger—and national—accounts.

Sears planning more for your life 28

Sears, Roebuck & Co. has been getting its Kenmore washers and refrigerators from Whirlpool Corp. since before World War I. But the marriage that helped make Kenmore powerful may be splintering. Sears is planning to test selling national brand-name products in its appliance department; it also will expand its limited assortment of brands in electronics.

Subaru redo 46

Subaru of America is boosting ad spending and giving a bigger marketing push to its low-price models. The Japanese importer will use a two-pronged marketing strategy, with the $10,000 price level as the dividing line. The 11-year themeline, "Inexpensive and built to stay that way," is being retained only for the entry-level Justy line. The theme "We built our reputation by building a better car" will be used for more expensive models.

INTERNATIONAL

Market crash hits world financial ads 73

The worldwide stock market crash could bring to a halt the European trend of heavily advertising the sale of government-owned companies. The most immediate reaction came from the U.K., where the government canceled the campaign to sell off the rest of British Petroleum. In France, 65 companies are scheduled for "privatization" over the next seven years.

Italian controversy over Fiat TV deal 73

An Italian publishing company controlled by Fiat SpA is ready to take a 50% stake in TV station Telemontecarlo, causing fear among Italian politicians, labor union leaders and mass-media experts. Reason for this is that Fiat, which controls a large share in the Italian press and telecommunications, will have a monopoly on the country's communications industry.

OTHER NEWS

The CBS and NBC television networks are reaching into their news departments for future prime-time series. CBS' "48 Hours," to be anchored weekly by Dan Rather, has been given the go-ahead for a January start. NBC has announced a news/entertainment/-sports series to counterprogram CBS' "60 Minutes." Page 56.

Volkswagen U.S. will try to build a "great-to-drive" marketing platform that will carry the launches of two major new products. With its new advertising strategy, Volkswagen joins the trend to emphasize brand character rather than individual models. Page 94.

Perspectivas

ADVERTISING AGE introduces Perspectivas, a monthly section covering all aspects of marketing to hispanics, including corporate, agency and media activity, new research, market analysis and commentary. This special section investigates the Tampa, Fla., hispanic market, monitors product activity, covers TV station launches and hispanic agency affiliation and assesses the general-market media's impact on hispanic consumers. Page 42.

SPECIAL REPORT

Marketing /Advertising Research

Marketing/Advertising Research*—As an ever-increasing number of candidates—even for state and mayoral races—turn to sophisticated polling techniques, business opportunities for political researchers are proliferating. In addition to profiles of 14 of the leading political pollsters, research methods in China and former Arbitron chief Ted Shaker are profiled. Starts after Page 56.*

REGULAR FEATURES

ACCOUNT CHANGES 38
AD REVIEW 3
ADVERTISING MARKETPLACE 97
BACK PAGES 52
BRADY 60
BRADY'S BUNCH 94
CHRISTOPHER 58
CONLON 62
CON-SID-ERATIONS 16
CORPORATE CLOSEUP 6
CORRECTIONS & CLARIFICATIONS 6
CURRENTS 68
DIRECT MARKETING 76
EDITORIAL 16
FOR THE RECORD 103
FORUM 18
GARFIELD 62
LETTERS 20
McKINNEY 62
MEDIAWORKS 86, 88
NEW PRODUCTS 33
OBITUARIES 38
PARTING SHOT 64
PEOPLEWORKS 78
PHOTO REVIEW 84
PR SOUNDING BOARD 59
PRESSTIME 8
REGIONAL NEWS 82
STREET TALK 74
THE NEXT TREND 60
U.S. NEWSWATCH 4
WORLD NEWS ROUNDUP 3

FIGURES TO FILE

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING INCHES, AUGUST '87-AUGUST '86 80

Vol. 58, No. 47—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. $1.50 a copy, $69 a year, $104 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 (313) 446-0494.

Ayer shuffles to serve BK

By JON LAFAYETTE

N W Ayer is boosting the national authority of its New York executives to improve coordination on its $200 million Burger King Corp. account.

Ayer last week created Ayer USA, which includes all the agency's domestic offices. Many of those offices will be servicing the account.

Jerry Siano, 52, who had been chairman of Ayer's New York office, was named chairman-ceo of Ayer USA, and Patrick Cunningham, 44, was named chief creative officer. Mr. Cunningham had been managing director of creative services for the New York office.

Exec VP David Means, 58, who had been in charge of several of Ayer's offices outside New York and reporting to N W Ayer Chairman Louis Hagopian, now reports to Mr. Siano.

"So much of our business involves multi-office clients that it makes sense to have a U.S. operation bringing all offices together under Jerry," Mr. Hagopian said.

At the same time, Ayer's New York office has been divided into five operating groups, each headed by a managing director of account services, who will report to Mr. Siano, and a managing director of creative services, reporting to Mr. Cunningham.

The reorganization follows a year in which Ayer bought and absorbed Cunningham & Walsh, was discharged by the U.S. Army amid controversy and, on Sept. 28, won the Burger King sweepstakes, taking the account from J. Walter Thompson USA.

Earlier this year, Young & Rubicam, which took over the Army account, similarly divided its New York office into three smaller working groups.

The agencies see this arrangement as a way to have senior people working more closely on client business, rather than administering large departments.

Unlike Y&R's new structure, Ayer left the research and media planning department intact. Y&R incorporates research and media personnel into the working groups.

Ayer's account-services heads will be Exec VPs Dominick Rossi and Warren Albright and Senior VPs David Gantman, Rodger Groves and Charles Meding. The creative heads will be Senior VPs Agi Clark, Keith Gould, Arthur Meranus, Jeffrey Odiorne and John Walsh.

Mr. Rossi is giving up his job as managing director of account services of the whole New York office to manage the BK account. Mr. Gould will head the BK creative team.#

General Mills offers cool holiday treats

By JULIE LIESSE ERICKSON

General Mills this week starts sending out Christmas treats: Betty Crocker brand ice cream novelties with holiday themes.

The five-item line being introduced nationally includes three specially shaped ice cream bars—Frosty Snowmen, Jolly Santas and Merry-Mint Trees—and two ice cream sandwiches—Gingerbread Men and Santa Bears. All packaging carries the Betty Crocker "spoon" logo, the first time General Mills has put that name on an ice cream product.

The novelties are being produced by the marketer's Toledo, Ohio-based Vroman subsidiary, purchased in 1985. Vroman currently makes Gold Rush ice cream bars and Yoplait soft frozen yogurt for General Mills' Yoplait unit.

Although the holiday treats are being marketed during the slowest season for ice cream sales, the new products continue General Mills' effort to give Vroman a greater presence in the $2 billion frozen novelties market.

DDB Needham Worldwide, Chicago, handles advertising for Vroman products, which got $2.7 million in measured-media support in 1986. But a spokeswoman for Minneapolis-based General Mills said there are no plans to advertise the holiday novelties.#

Guccione to buy magazine

'Sat. Review' redux

By PATRICK REILLY

Penthouse Publisher Bob Guccione says he plans to return Saturday Review to its highbrow, cultural past and might call on former editor Norman Cousins for help.

Mr. Guccione said he has yet to finalize the format for a revitalized Saturday Review, which Penthouse International Ltd., New York, said it will purchase from Manhattan Media Corp. However, he said Saturday Review will compete for advertisers with Conde Nast Publications' monthly Vanity Fair.

Mr. Cousins, Saturday Review editor from 1940 to 1971 and again from 1973 to 1977, said he would offer himself as a consultant to Mr. Guccione if he is asked.

Mr. Guccione said he got a congratulatory note from Mr. Cousins on the announcement of the purchase.

"I assumed he wouldn't be interested," Mr. Guccione said.

Saturday Review flourished under Mr. Cousins, reaching a circulation peak of 650,000 in 1961. After he left the magazine for good in 1978, it had several owners and several reincarnations.

Its latest version featured titillating covers of Hollywood starlets and stories on the latest trends in the arts. Its last issue published, in May

(Continued on Page 104)

Newspaper Advertising Inches; August 1987 vs. August 1986 (Standard Advertising Units in the Media Records Conversion System)

AKRON, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Beacon Journal (M)	89,444	—	91,577	—
Beacon Journal (S)	81,116	—	76,074	—
Grand Total	170,560	—	167,651	—

NOTE Beacon Journal changed from evening to morning publication effective July 13, 1987

ALLENTOWN, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Call (M)	155,557	—	149,294	—
Call (S)	95,563	—	102,763	—
Grand Total	251,120	—	252,057	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

ASBURY PARK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Press (E)	193,008	24,024	196,291	25,244
Press (S)	184,756	20,297	168,829	21,009
Grand Total	377,764	44,321	365,120	46,253

ATLANTA, GA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Constitution (M)	164,881	82,306	169,502	69,131
Journal (E)	166,036	78,324	164,203	69,562
Journal & Constitution (S)	150,501	84,810	147,287	84,338
Journal & Constitution (Sat)	59,042	1,824	52,980	—
Grand Total	540,460	247,264	533,972	223,031

NOTE Constitution Morning and Journal Evening published five days a week only

BALTIMORE, MD

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Sun (M)	135,679	10,070	134,209	5,149
Sun (E)	112,829	10,084	102,515	5,144
Sun (S)	175,712	64,774	183,003	62,921
Grand Total	424,220	84,928	419,727	73,214

BERGEN COUNTY, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Record (E)	148,761	20,362	159,102	18,548
Record (S)	173,139	54,711	162,266	50,948
Grand Total	321,900	75,073	321,368	69,496

BOSTON, MA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Herald (M)	85,899	—	79,900	—
Herald (S)	24,010	53,396	21,564	42,229
Globe (M)	135,083	12,254	132,210	12,369
Globe (S)	223,268	45,412	201,438	36,270
Grand Total	468,260	111,062	435,112	90,868

BUFFALO, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (AD)	96,067	33,727	115,701	22,562
News (S)	71,543	41,951	65,252	35,122
Grand Total	167,610	75,678	180,953	57,684

CAMDEN, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Courier-Post (E)	130,599	20,121	125,468	14,476
Courier-Post (S)	80,155	22,743	64,219	19,721
Grand Total	210,754	42,864	189,687	34,197

CHARLOTTE, NC

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Observer (M)	122,618	—	128,639	—
Observer (S)	82,674	—	80,450	—
Grand Total	205,292	—	209,089	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

CHICAGO, IL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
*Tribune (M)	117,399	251,557	121,593	250,907
*Tribune (S)	122,110	99,593	105,314	85,598
Sun-Times (M)	128,937	80,230	135,873	77,058
Sun-Times (S)	51,623	71,706	62,861	44,555
Grand Total	420,069	503,086	425,641	458,118

NOTE Tribune figures supplied by publisher to Media Records. 1987 figures represent advertising for 8/03/87–8/30/87

CINCINNATI, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Enquirer (M)	143,049	13,718	167,491	6,740
Enquirer (S)	163,861	11,800	151,035	18,073
Post (E)	71,627	32,350	74,495	21,959
Grand Total	378,537	57,868	393,021	46,772

CLEVELAND, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Plain Dealer (M)	131,101	33,366	134,093	29,175
Plain Dealer (S)	129,402	6,149	127,626	12,870
Grand Total	260,503	39,515	261,719	42,045

DALLAS, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (M)	277,323	10,997	305,061	10,797
News (S)	190,218	15,605	184,869	17,036
Times-Herald (AD)	201,827	30,986	234,386	39,720
Times-Herald (S)	137,725	26,466	135,253	25,800
Grand Total	807,093	84,054	859,569	93,353

DENVER, CO

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Rocky Mt. News (M)	265,399	21,942	269,429	1,721
Rocky Mt. News (S)	79,854	35,070	104,384	897
Post (M)	163,624	45,875	188,399	13,353
Post (S)	112,074	31,608	131,483	3,842
Grand Total	620,951	134,495	693,695	19,813

DETROIT, MI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Free Press (M)	96,899	51,937	100,127	48,293
Free Press (S)	56,744	48,889	68,177	19,929
News (AD)	161,282	41,535	155,036	38,917
News (S)	110,831	41,941	104,283	41,637
Grand Total	425,756	184,302	427,623	148,776

ESCONDIDO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times-Advocate (E)	96,566	1,688	100,319	2,299
Times-Advocate (S)	53,773	—	55,255	71
Grand Total	150,339	1,688	155,574	2,370

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News & Sun-Sentinel (S)	121,392	—	115,922	—
Sun-Sentinel (M)	254,090	—	270,222	—
Grand Total	375,482	—	386,144	—

NOTE Part run figures not available. Morning figures include the Saturday Edition

FORT WAYNE, IN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Journal Gazette (M)	74,628	—	70,166	—
Journal Gazette (S)	76,596	—	62,280	—
News Sentinel (E)	77,293	—	79,788	—
Grand Total	228,517	—	212,234	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

GREENWICH/STAMFORD, CT

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Time (E)	75,048	13,090	70,824	1,582
Time (S)	75,062	8,643	72,913	—
Advocate (E)	97,404	24,629	96,914	17,854
Advocate (S)	78,540	7,560	68,939	1,032
Grand Total	326,054	53,922	309,590	20,468

HARTFORD, CT

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Courant (M)	143,151	35,744	143,539	27,461
Courant (S)	87,763	159,043	85,922	148,942
Grand Total	230,914	194,787	229,461	176,403

HONOLULU, HI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Advertiser (M)	120,445	—	123,066	—
Star-Bulletin (E)	111,701	—	115,251	—
Star-Bulletin & Advertiser (S)	97,060	—	86,976	—
Grand Total	329,206	—	325,293	—

HOUSTON, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Chronicle (AD)	225,191	36,462	223,176	49,748
Chronicle (S)	144,968	44,292	131,701	49,747
Post (M)	155,190	38,956	150,585	32,736
Post (S)	86,487	38,536	81,409	30,537
Grand Total	611,836	158,246	586,871	162,768

LONG BEACH, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Press Telegram (M)	110,945	52,277	120,719	31,184
Press Telegram (S)	65,099	7,663	62,239	4,438
Grand Total	176,044	59,940	182,958	35,622

LONG ISLAND, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Newsday (E)	100,501	122,930	137,887	99,846
Newsday (S)	82,525	126,521	101,662	122,391
Grand Total	183,026	249,451	239,549	222,237

LOS ANGELES, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times (M)	288,785	291,340	291,664	274,965
Times (S)	193,642	108,616	181,936	109,570
Herald-Examiner (M)	72,349	5,355	60,763	9,933
Herald-Examiner (S)	21,295	8,783	15,477	9,968
Grand Total	576,072	414,094	549,840	404,436

LOS ANGELES/SAN FERNANDO VALLEY, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (M)	188,447	31,606	191,585	39,762
News (S)	100,417	4,973	100,991	1,297
Grand Total	288,864	36,579	292,576	41,059

*LOS ANGELES/TORRANCE, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Breeze (E & S)	227,637	—	222,570	—
Grand Total	227,637	—	222,570	—

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*MEMPHIS, TN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Commercial Appeal (M)	143,365	65,499	133,567	109,898
Commercial Appeal (S)	121,083	17,638	109,047	7,724
Grand Total	264,448	83,137	242,614	117,622

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

MIAMI, FL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Herald (M)	134,481	—	161,925	—
Herald (S)	98,922	—	97,243	—
News (E)	51,919	—	61,163	—
Grand Total	285,322	—	320,331	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

MINNEAPOLIS, MN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Star & Tribune (AD)	104,910	27,144	108,183	19,512
Star & Tribune (S)	176,067	7,556	152,016	5,030
Star & Tribune (Sat)	29,784	—	29,580	—
Grand Total	310,761	34,700	289,779	24,542

*NASHVILLE, TN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Banner (E)	105,180	—	109,344	—
Tennessean (M)	105,821	—	110,905	—
Tennessean (S)	118,005	—	99,383	—
Grand Total	329,006	—	319,632	—

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

NEW BRUNSWICK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Home News (E)	88,076	2,210	88,194	2,684
Home News (S)	94,396	15,828	94,148	7,870
Grand Total	182,472	18,038	182,342	10,554

NEW YORK, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times (M)	141,430	16,454	135,411	14,631
Times (S)	204,884	124,157	189,682	102,332
News (M)	64,107	77,872	60,780	84,581
News (S)	48,630	96,454	38,637	100,067
Post (AD)	69,083	1,336	53,868	1,159
Grand Total	528,134	316,273	478,378	302,770

NEWARK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Star Ledger (M)	206,193	4,626	204,084	5,405
Star Ledger (S)	246,104	37,303	207,489	30,243
Grand Total	452,297	41,929	411,573	35,648

OAKLAND, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Tribune (M)	81,070	81,305	84,526	80,052
Tribune (S)	45,085	59,864	36,763	54,202
Grand Total	126,155	141,169	121,289	134,254

OCEANSIDE, CA
SAN DIEGO COASTAL NORTH COUNTY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Blade-Tribune (E)	88,214	5,884	101,043	4,448
Blade-Tribune (S)	62,915	720	60,570	1,913
Grand Total	151,129	6,604	161,613	6,361

NOTE Blade-Tribune Evening published five days a week only

ORANGE COUNTY, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Register (AD)	321,920	75,942	321,278	80,754
Register (S)	154,937	928	147,192	7,937
Grand Total	476,857	76,870	468,470	88,691

PHILADELPHIA, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Inquirer (M)	141,318	32,548	141,087	36,181
Inquirer (S)	145,798	87,385	137,122	61,335
News (E)	76,472	3,673	77,696	2,396
Grand Total	363,588	123,606	355,905	99,912

*PHOENIX, AZ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Arizona Republic (M)	212,204	15,692	224,747	8,768
Arizona Republic (S)	134,700	—	141,351	—
Gazette (E)	202,761	15,827	216,154	8,972
Grand Total	549,665	31,519	582,252	17,740

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*PROVIDENCE, RI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Journal (M)	87,398	143,313	77,846	81,852
Journal (S)	112,502	48,750	102,400	55,434
Grand Total	199,900	192,063	180,246	137,286

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*ST. LOUIS, MO

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Post Dispatch (M)	109,295	28,975	114,964	30,198
Post Dispatch (S)	151,054	—	146,314	—
Grand Total	260,349	28,975	261,278	30,198

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

ST. PAUL, MN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Pioneer Press Dispatch (AD)	88,060	—	89,273	—
Pioneer Press Dispatch (S)	136,468	—	125,423	—
Grand Total	224,528	—	214,696	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

SAN ANTONIO, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Express-News (AD)	105,281	48,537	117,120	46,182
Express-News (S)	91,066	29,398	88,149	38,656
Express-News (Sat)	42,302	—	44,221	—
Light (AD)	124,839	21,468	146,997	17,091
Light (S)	97,927	7,365	102,835	11,617
Light (Sat)	33,468	1,364	33,160	2,227
Grand Total	494,883	108,132	532,482	115,773

NOTE Express-News All Day and Light All Day published five days a week only

SAN DIEGO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Union (M)	208,164	40,810	210,288	31,762
Union (S)	150,840	879	146,599	—
Tribune (E)	210,617	38,058	214,159	31,300
Grand Total	569,621	79,747	571,046	63,062

SAN FRANCISCO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Chronicle (M)	122,130	62,582	124,124	77,689
Examiner (E)	119,770	64,221	—	—
Examiner & Chronicle (S)	89,883	45,933	81,484	58,274
Grand Total	331,783	172,736	205,608	135,963

NOTE 1986 Examiner Evening figures not available

SAN JOSE, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Mercury News (AD)	284,927	14,417	277,939	22,448
Mercury News (S)	175,384	—	173,681	843
Grand Total	460,311	14,417	451,620	23,291

*STATE COLLEGE, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Centre Times (E)	78,850	4,336	73,639	3,794
Centre Times (S)	44,289	226	44,785	569
Grand Total	123,139	4,562	118,424	4,363

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*TOLEDO, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Blade (E)	100,850	—	117,993	—
Blade (S)	120,667	—	108,805	—
Grand Total	221,517	—	226,798	—

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

WASHINGTON, DC

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Post (M)	246,727	37,904	246,412	35,214
Post (S)	165,510	59,197	170,203	47,389
Grand Total	412,237	97,101	416,615	82,603

WASHINGTON, DC SUBURBAN GROUP

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Montgomery Journal (M)	55,105	227	61,733	699
Fairfax Journal (M)	64,798	1,089	72,877	991
Grand Total	119,903	1,316	134,610	1,690

NOTE Montgomery Journal Morning and Fairfax Journal Morning published five days a week only

WESTCHESTER ROCKLAND, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Reporter Dispatch (E)	87,267	6,387	84,042	10,579
Reporter Dispatch (S)	85,766	33,910	97,929	22,920
Grand Total	173,033	40,297	181,971	33,499

WICHITA, KS

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Eagle-Beacon (M)	104,410	—	126,112	—
Eagle-Beacon (S)	98,832	—	84,508	—
Grand Total	203,242	—	210,620	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

Source: Media Records

This data has been provided by Media Records for exclusive publication in Advertising Age and may not be reprinted or published in any form without explicit permission from Media Records. All newspapers represented are subscribers to Media Records. For those newspapers that subscribe to Media Records National Advertising Reporting Service, Total Advertising data shown has been supplied by the publisher to Media Records and included in this compilation. All publisher supplied figures are converted to MRCS/SAU inches by Media Records. These newspapers are indicated with an asterisk (*).

REPORTING METHODOLOGY

Media Records continues to measure in linage but due to the introduction of the SAU 6 column format Media Records has designed and developed a methodology with the approval of our subscribers, the INAME Measurements Committee, The ANPA/NAB Working Committee, The AAAA Newspaper Committee, and other industry groups.

The approved methodology is titled The Media Records Conversion System (MRCS) and is based upon the printed page area of each product of the newspaper and is a five step approach as follows:

1. Measure Printed Page
   Width and Depth in Inches
2. Determine Square Inches of Page
   Multiply Width by Depth Inches
3. Determine the Number of SAU Inches of Page
   Divide the Square Inches by 2.0625 (SAU Inches)
4. Measure the Total Lines of the Page
   Multiply Column Depth Agate Lines by the Number of Columns on the Page
5. Determine the Factor for Converting Measured Lines to Reported SAU Inches
   Divide the Total Lines of Page by the Number of MRCS/SAU Inches of the Page

SAU* is the registered trademark of the American Newspaper Publishers Association

11/10/87 C2710-1

NEWSPAPER

© Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$1.50 a copy; $59 a year

November 9, 1987

3-DIGIT 200
0201909649 AA00 8745 COMP J82
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Staff photo by Arnold Adler

Don Ohlmeyer, chairman of Ohlmeyer Communications Cos., sits in front of his many awards for television productions.

Ohlmeyer loss

RJR Nabisco takes back $200M in broadcast buying

By VERNE GAY

RJR Nabisco has grabbed its $200 million broadcast-buying account away from Ohlmeyer Communications Cos. and taken it in-house.

RJR Nabisco also pulled from New York-based Ohlmeyer all its golf-related promotion activities and snapped up several top Ohlmeyer executives.

John Martin, former Ohlmeyer president and a longtime associate of Chairman Don Ohlmeyer, joined RJR Nabisco, Atlanta, last week as an exec VP to head up its corporate communications and the sports-promotion functions formerly handled by Ohlmeyer. The corporate board is expected to approve his appointment Nov. 18.

RJR Nabisco owns about 50% of Ohlmeyer, but industry observers say the relationship between the two has soured. RJR has been unhappy with Ohlmeyer's sports-promotion performance, sources say, and Ohlmeyer has been upset with the increasing load of promotional and advertising responsibilities from RJR.

Whether this will lead RJR Nabisco to sell its stake back to Mr. Ohlmeyer or to

(Continued on Page 92)

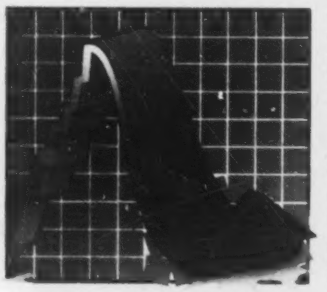
Good news: Consumers bounce back

Copyright ©1987 by Crain Communications Inc.

CHICAGO—Consumer optimism took a dramatic upturn last week, the first time since the stock market's Oct. 19 "Black Monday" plunge.

Also, the first hard numbers showing automobile and retail sales since that day indicate Main Street America's buying habits were not immediately affected.

The only sour note is that Christmas spending may still be off this year, compared with 1986.



The ADVERTISING AGE "Consumer Misery Index," measuring consumer buying attitudes, showed decided drops in the percentage of people who plan to cut back on buying food, eating out, driving, buying gasoline and buying clothes (see chart on Page 91).

Also, few people now feel this is a worse time to buy a home or a new car, purchase air travel or invest in stocks.

The conclusions are based [illegible] interviews with 1,302 adults over five successive surveys, including 200 adults surveyed on Nov. 3 and 4, by Leo J. Shapiro & Associates, a consumer research company here.

"The stock market crash shows its first signs of slipping from the nation's consciousness," the survey concluded.

There is a growing belief the stock market's behavior will not lead to a recessionary economy. The percentage of people who said the near-crash made no difference to them or their families has remained between 75% and 79% through five surveys.

But in terms of how important it is likely to be in their own lives, only 10% gave it a "most important" rating, down from a high of 15%.

On the automotive front, Chrysler Corp., Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. each reported hefty increases in sales of light-duty trucks in October, an indication the market has become "price-sensitive," said Cynthia Certo, analyst with Integrated Automotive Resources, Wayne, Pa. Most light trucks are priced below the average car.

Led by Ford's 15.1% gain, U.S.-based automakers posted a total car sales increase of 1.3% for the Oct. 21-31 period this year, compared with 1986.

"We have seen an expected and normal increase in our car sales as the month progressed," said Louis Lataif, VP-sales operations for Dearborn, Mich.-based Ford's North American Automotive Operations.

Sales of low and mid-range import nameplates generally held their own, too. Toyota sales were up 9.5% and Honda sales were up 4.3% for the entire month.

But luxury-car importers may be the first consumer-product marketers to take a big hit from the stock market dive.

BMW was off 11.2% for October. Jaguar, 20.8%; Mercedes-Benz, 25.7%; Porsche, 30%; and Volvo, 26.8%.

The sluggish sales pace for luxury cars flies in the face of traditional auto-marketing wisdom, which holds that the most af-

(Continued on Page 91)

Last Minute News

Pepsi asks BBDO to pitch Slice

SOMERS, N.Y.—Pepsi-Cola Co. has invited its main agency, BBDO Worldwide, New York, to pitch the estimated $30 million Slice soft-drink account now at J. Walter Thompson USA, sources say (see related JWT story on Page 3). A Pepsi spokesman confirmed the company is looking at new advertising approaches from both BBDO and JWT as the four-flavor line moves from an introductory to an established status. JWT's only other Pepsi business in the U.S. is Jake's, a test product.

Alfa Romeo frees $14 million account

MILAN—Italian automaker Alfa Romeo is seeking a new agency for $14 million in business in seven European countries and eventually may look for one agency to take care of its account on a worldwide basis. The automaker is leaving Lintas:Worldwide, London, because

(Continued on Page 8)

Malone shows off cable power, P. 40.

Toyota to name agency for new upscale unit

Saatchi may get Lexus

By CLEVELAND HORTON

Toyota Motor Sales USA will name an agency this week to handle its estimated $60 million Lexus account, and all indications point to current agency Saatchi & Saatchi DFS' New York office as the winner.

The Torrance, Calif.-based car marketer is scheduled to make its announcement in New York on Nov. 10. That is 23 months before the first car from its new, upscale Lexus division hits the market.

Saatchi & Saatchi DFS in Torrence currently handles Toyota's $230 million account.

Neither Toyota nor Saatchi & Saatchi DFS executives would comment. Sources said, however, that the signs point to Lexus going to New York, where the agency is known as Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton.

Senior agency executives apparently convinced the leading automotive importer in the U.S. that it will be able to service the account as a separate entity.

That separation is important to Toyota because the agency will have to develop an image for Lexus distinct from the regular Toyota line.

Saatchi has experience handling portions of the Toyota account separately. The agency created a retail advertising division 11 years ago to meet the needs of Toyota's dealer associations.

Toyota also realizes there is a relatively small number of agencies able to handle a large car account without facing a conflict.

By naming the Lexus agency almost two years before the division produces its first car, Toyota will give the agency plenty of time to familiarize itself with the account.

"We feel that we only get one

(Continued on Page 91)

Highlights

Soft-drink marketers thirsty for space 4

Smaller soft-drink companies are shifting media ad dollars to in-store merchandising to counter "calendar marketing agreements" between retailers and Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola bottlers. Faced with the tough decision of how to compete, second-tier marketers are questioning the value of advertising as consumers become increasingly influenced by price.

Ad Review: How novel 12

Magazine advertising sure is getting to be fun. There was a time when advertisers were content to combine artwork, headlines and body copy to present a persuasive sales message, but that tired, old strategy is definitely on the wane. What we have now is Reader Involvement, wherein the process of flipping through a magazine becomes an exercise in arts and crafts.

Agencies promote promotion 32

Major ad agencies, faced with declining ad spending and marketers' growing dependence on sales promotion, continue to expand promotional capabilities via acquisition. The search may intensify because current economic conditions could accelerate marketers' use of promotion.

Tuning in on Malone 40

While a spectator at the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles, former ABC Chairman Fred Pierce was handed a letter from John Malone. In it, the president of the nation's largest cable-systems operator informed Mr. Pierce that he would switch off ABC's ESPN at midnight unless Mr. Malone heard from the ABC boss by 5 p.m. End of message. The most powerful executive in cable TV can afford to throw his weight around. Many observers believe he will not stop until he is the most powerful man in television.

Touring the auto ad showroom 78

To cut through the advertising clutter produced by more than 40 U.S. automakers, Advertising Age has traced the recent evolution of advertising by the six biggest auto advertisers. Since the 1988 model year began, some automakers have unveiled new creative advertising approaches, some have repositioned their cars for a different audience, while others are sticking close to last year's strategies.

Rax feasts on all-you-can-eat 87

The "smorgasbord" is making a comeback, and at least one fast-food chain is making it the cornerstone of its market positioning. Rax Restaurants last week began a TV campaign to introduce its Lunch Bar and Dinner Bar, two all-you-can-eat buffets that the chain expects will establish a strong price/-value image. With the uneasy economic outlook, that positioning could be especially important.

INTERNATIONAL

French shops still plan going public 56

Undaunted by the volatile stock market, at least one French agency, Feldman Calleux & Associes, sees going public as a way to finance expansion, and others will probably follow. Other agency names surfacing are BDDP Group, RSC&G and Eurocom's Belier.

Chicken in China 57

The world's first fast-food outlet in China, a 500-person capacity Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant, is thriving since it opened early last month. Though open for a month, the official grand opening is Nov. 12, and a media extravaganza is planned.

OTHER NEWS

While circulation at a trio of "national" newspapers continued to climb, major metropolitan dailies posted mixed results for the six months ended Sept. 30, according to the Audit Bureau of Circulations' latest FAS-FAX report. Page 12.

Nestle Foods Corp. will cultivate consumer tastes for its specialty chocolates with its first retail store in Atlanta. The retail experiment continues Nestle's attempt to market products that appeal to upscale consumers. Page 28.

The agency that wins a $15 million assignment to market U.S. Olympic coins next year will face some major international competition. Page 43.

Saab-Scania hopes to fly past its European sports sedan competitors by linking its cars to its parent company's aircraft division. Page 70.

Now that Kim LeMasters is sitting all alone in the CBS programming hot seat and the November sweeps are upon him, he must set priorities for the rest of the new fall season. Page 80.

The publishers of California Business are starting a new monthly on Los Angeles-area business despite rumors the magazine is on the block. Page 82.

SPECIAL REPORT

Sports Marketing—Everything from football to fat-tire bike racing is getting corporate backing these days as advertisers jump on one of the hottest promotional monsters yet. This year, more than 3,400 companies will spend at least $1.35 billion sponsoring sporting events, compared with an estimated $300 million in 1983. The 1988 Olympics Games alone already have tallied some $370 million in corporate support. Starts after Page 50.*

REGULAR FEATURES

AD REVIEW 12
ADVERTISING MARKETPLACE 83
ADWHIRL 94
AGENCY PEOPLE 67
BRADY 52
BRADY'S BUNCH 80
CON-SID-ERATIONS 16
CORRECTIONS & CLARIFICATIONS 6
DIRECT MARKETING 46
EDITORIAL 16
FOR THE RECORD 89
FORUM 18
GARFIELD 54
GLOBAL GALLERY 58
LETTERS 20
MEDIA PEOPLE 60
MEDIAWORKS 72, 74
OBITUARIES 94
PEOPLEWORKS 62
PHOTO REVIEW 76
PRESSTIME 8
PUBLIC RELATIONS BEAT 87
REGIONAL NEWS 68
STREET TALK 82
STROOCK 54
THE NEXT TREND 52
U.S. NEWSWATCH 4
WORDS 54
WORLD NEWS ROUNDUP 3

Vol. 58, No. 48—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $1.50 a copy, $59 a year, $104 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 (313) 446-0494

U.S. drops Ayer probe

Army issue over?

By JANET MEYERS

The U.S. Attorney has dropped a four-year investigation into N W Ayer's handling of the Army account.

Although the investigation produced only one individual guilty of wrongdoing, it resulted in Ayer losing the $100 million account—at the time its largest—and forced the New York agency into a public battle to protect its honor.

"The U.S. Attorney's decision leaves us with a profound sense of relief that our confidence in the honor and integrity of Ayer is vindicated at last," agency Chairman Louis Hagopian said in a Nov. 6 memo to agency staff.

Mr. Hagopian had fumed late last year when, in the 11th hour of a review of the account Ayer had handled for 19 years, the Army suspended the agency from all government work. The suspension, slated to expire in a few weeks, effectively knocked Ayer out of the review for a five-year, $500 million contract.

Young & Rubicam was awarded the contract in January.

Ayer filed suit in U.S. Claims Court in Washington in January, seeking to overturn the suspension and recoup the $525,000 it spent on its aborted presentation to keep the account. Ayer had served the Army nearly unchallenged for years; it created the successful "Be all you can be" theme.

Mr. Hagopian refused comment on whether Ayer will pursue its suit against the Army.

"We were on the brink of taking steps to reactivate it," said Gerald Norton, partner at Pepper, Hamilton & Scheetz, the Washington law firm handling the suit. The U.S. Attorney's action, he said, "raises a range of questions."

The Department of Defense's Criminal Investigation Service, which was operating a separate investigation in tandem with the U.S. Attorney (southern district of New York), declined to reveal whether it would drop its probe.

The government last year charged Ayer had rigged bids, inflated time cards and was responsible for the conduct of Jack Bidus, the sole person charged in the case. Mr. Bidus, an Ayer VP, was charged with collecting $60,000 over 12 years in kickbacks from Saul Leyton, president of Hurrah Productions, a small production house.

Mr. Bidus, arrested in late 1985, pleaded guilty to the charges in April 1986, a month before the Army announced it would review the contract in the middle of its five-year run. That made the timing of Ayer's November 1986 suspension curious, because the Army easily could have suspended the agency soon after Mr. Bidus' sentencing.

But subsequent papers requested from the Army revealed that the U.S. Attorney also believed it was close to indicting Thomas Donoghue, an Ayer public relations VP.

However, the U.S. Attorney evidently never developed a strong enough case to indict Mr. Donoghue and ceased its investigation of him.

Apparently, the Army's only solid evidence came from Messrs. Bidus and Leyton, who for months supplied information to investigators about alleged schemes in which Ayer creative people supplied low-bid information to favored subcontractors.#

More advertisers jump in

Cable TV ad sales soaring

By WAYNE WALLEY

Cable TV is exploding as major advertisers look for alternatives to the estimated 20% increase in fourth-quarter broadcast network TV prices.

Industry analysts expect from 20% to 40% increases in annual and/or fourth-quarter sales at each cable network as the industry tops the $1 billion ad revenue mark for the first time.

Every major cable network—Arts & Entertainment, Cable News Network, CBN Cable Network, CNN Headline News, ESPN, Lifetime, MTV: Music Television, The Nashville Network, Nickelodeon, Superstation TBS, USA Network and VH-1: Video Hits One—reports scores of new advertisers amid the tightest fourth-quarter marketplace in cable history.

Many observers predict cable will exceed earlier projections that revenues would jump 19% to $1.1 billion this year.

In contrast, the Big 3 broadcast networks expect a 5% to 7% increase, to about $9 billion.

Many advertisers recently have bought cable for the first time. They include Adidas USA, Campbell Soup Co., Dannon Co., Duracell Inc., Eastman Kodak Co., Ford Motor Co.'s Lincoln-Mercury Division, E&J Gallo Winery, Lever Bros., National Dairy Board, Nintendo of America, Perrier Group, Polaroid Corp. and Timex Corp.

"A lot of advertisers may not have come on cable except for the tight network marketplace," said John Barbera, New York-based senior VP-sales for CNN and Headline News. "We needed a breakthrough to convince new advertisers to try us. This is it."

Prime-time programs on A&E have been at near "sold out" levels for four months. CBN sales for the fourth quarter are up 41% compared with last year; TNN's fourth-quarter sales are up 30.6%. CNN's annual ad revenues are up 20% this year; Superstation TBS will pull in 15% to 20% more in ad revenues this year. Nickelodeon's revenues are triple its 1984 results, while its nighttime programming counterpart, Nick at Night, has doubled its 1986 revenues. USA Network

(Continued on Page 92)

FREE

Catalog and Sample Kit

POINT-OF-PURCHASE
EVENT MARKETING
NEW!
CALTRATE Calcium Counter
SALES PROMOTION
AT&T The right choice

Call or write today for your Kit containing:

—Custom Slide-Charts designed for your industry.

—Catalog of successful Slide-Chart programs.

312/665-3333
or 800/323-4433
(outside Illinois)

AMERICAN Slide-Chart

P.O. Box 111
Wheaton, IL 60189

Please send my Free Sample Kit containing the book, 8 STRATEGIES FOR INCREASING SALES, and Slide-Chart Samples for my industry. A representative will call to determine which samples to include. There is no cost or obligation on my part.

Name ______
Title ______
Company ______
Address ______
City ______ State ______ Zip ______
Telephone ______

American Slide-Chart Corp., P.O. Box 111, Wheaton, IL 60189
312/665-3333 or 800/323-4433

AD REVIEW

Don't gimme gimmicks

Novelty ads flood media

By BOB GARFIELD

Last week's Time had a four-page spread for Merit cigarettes; open it up and a sailboat mainsail pops right out at you, with coupon attached. Gosh!

Glamour has tipped-in cards with microencapsulated Poison and Ciara perfumes and a peel 'n' brush blusher sample from Maybelline Co. I didn't try the blusher, but I can say without hesitation that the intermingling of Poison and Ciara smells better than rancid Crisco.

Magazine advertising sure is getting to be fun. There was a time when advertisers were content to combine artwork, headlines and body copy to present a persuasive sales message, but that tired, old strategy is definitely on the wane.

What we have now is Reader Involvement, wherein the process of flipping through a magazine becomes an exercise in arts and crafts.

Honeywell Inc. gave Business Week readers a pop-up of an entire factory/office complex. The importers of Absolut vodka and Canadian Mist liqueur are bringing us holiday music via microchip.

One of these days somebody will attach a blasting cap to a high-gloss gatefold. The reader tugs at it, and . . . KABOOM!

The ultimate attention-getter, eh?

Toyota Motor Sales USA gave Saatchi & Saatchi DFS the go-ahead to include cardboard binoculars in a spread that focuses on its new slogan, "The new dimension in driving."

But the question is, as advertisers grope for ever-niftier novelties in the battle for better Starch INRA Hooper recall scores, once you have reader attention: Then what?

Take Saatchi & Saatchi DFS' brainstorm on behalf of Toyota Motor Sales USA. To point up its "The new dimension in driving" slogan, the automaker tips in detachable cardboard binoculars—yes, binoculars—providing a Viewmaster-like 3-D image of a Toyota Corolla. I believe this ad, featured in Time Inc. books, cost a fortune.

But, boy oh boy, is it ever a grabber! It grabs you right into a conventional four-page spread that is so turgid, ordinary and uncompelling that you'd wonder why anybody would want to call attention to it:

"The depth and beauty of the new 1988 Corolla LE Sedan is not an illusion. It's a reality. Refined chassis engineering plus front-wheel-drive offers the superiority of a quieter ride and . . ." Zzzzzzzz.

Call me an old fogy, but I think the money and energy behind this gimmick would have been expended better on an arresting sales pitch.

That is not, however, to condemn all value-added print advertising. It's simply a call to reason, a suggestion that agencies and clients ask a few questions. To wit: Does my perfume sample get lost in a cloud of competing fragrances? Does my expensive microchip music do anything to increase my ad's memorability? Does the hysteria to produce a more novel novelty ad distract from the business of selling?

Am I, in short, using an Atlas II booster to launch a spitball?#

Editor's note: Philip Morris USA 's Merit ads are handled by Leo Burnett USA, Chicago; Maybelline is handled by the Bloom Agency, Dallas; Honeywell, BBDO Worldwide, Minneapolis; Revlon Group's Ciara, in-house; Christian Dior's Poison, in-house; GrandMet USA's Absolut vodka, TBWA Advertising, New York; Brown-Forman Co.'s Canadian Mist, Ally/Gargano MCA, New York.

National newspapers gain

'USA Today,' 'Journal' post higher circulation

By GARY LEVIN

While circulation at a trio of "national" newspapers continued to climb, major metropolitan dailies posted mixed results for the six months ended Sept. 30, according to the Audit Bureau of Circulations' latest FAS-FAX report (AA, Nov. 2).

Both dailies in Boston suffered circulation losses during the period, compared with year-earlier totals, while the two major papers in Minneapolis and St. Paul had increases as each expanded its marketing area.

In Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles and New York, leading dailies gained at the expense of their No. 2 or No. 3 rivals.

The figures were released as agency, advertiser and media executives prepared to meet this week in San Francisco for the ABC's annual conference.

Average daily sales of Gannett Co.'s USA Today jumped 12.3% to 1,324,223, as the paper celebrated its fifth anniversary. The Wall Street Journal was up 0.5% to 1,961,846, while The New York Times rose 2.1% daily to 1,022,899, and 0.3% Sunday to 1,589,290.

Among remaining New York papers, the Daily News was up 1.2% daily and 1.1% Sunday (see chart). The gains for the Tribune Co. daily appear to have eroded circulation further at the New York Post, which declined 5.6%, or more than 40,000 copies, to 690,915. The Post does not publish a Sunday edition.

Times Mirror Co.'s Newsday, the Long Island-based daily that recently has made gains in Manhattan and elsewhere in the region, jumped 6.3% daily to 641,363, and 2.3% Sunday to 682,018.

In Chicago, the Tribune widened its lead over the Sun-Times, gaining 2.7% daily and 0.5% Sunday. The Sun-Times fell 1.3% and 1.9%, respectively.

The Los Angeles Times continued to dominate that market, gaining 2.5% daily and 2.7% Sunday. The much smaller Herald-Examiner fell 1.1% daily and 2.9% Sunday, while the Daily News gained 3.8% and 6.0%, respectively.

The Orange County Register, in nearby Santa Ana, Calif., posted a 3.1% daily gain, to 317,331, and a 4.2% Sunday increase, to 362,404.

Its Sunday circulation nears the combined total for the No. 2 and No. 3 Los Angeles dailies.

Sales of the Houston Post were down 2.1% daily and 3.7% on Sunday, falling to 301,100, and 347,052, respectively.

The Chronicle's average daily circulation was 406,776, an insignificant gain, and 534,771 on Sunday, up 0.8%.

Detroit dailies, fighting for approval of a joint operating agreement, had mostly bad news in terms of circulation. Knight-Ridder Newspapers' Free Press was down 1.1% daily and 1.9% Sunday; Gannett Co.'s News gained 0.8% daily but lost 0.3% Sunday.

The rechristened Star Tribune, "newspaper of the Twin Cities," and the St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch each had gains averaging 2.6% daily and Sunday as both made inroads into their competitors' turf. The Star Tribune removed Minneapolis from its masthead and began an expanded circulation drive by creating three regional editions.

In Denver, the Rocky Mountain News continues to be the better-selling daily paper, gaining 1.5% to 332,114, while the Post also gained 1.5% to 230,471. On Sunday, however, the Post continues to lead despite a 5% circulation drop to 404,271.

The News' Sunday sales were up 1.6% to 373,206.

In a more lopsided competition, the Washington Post gained 1.8% daily and 1.6% Sunday, while the Washington Times lost 12.2% daily, falling to 91,508, or nearly one-eighth the Post's daily total.

The Times does not publish on Sunday.

Dallas dailies did not report figures because of pending litigation in which the ABC is named as a defendant.#

Newspaper circulation results mixed

Average paid circulation for the six months ended Sept. 30, 1987, for competitive major market newspapers. Because of pending litigation, Dallas newspapers are not included in the FAS-FAX report. Source: Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
BOSTON
Globe	502,521	−2.7	781,407	−2.9
Herald	355,355	−1.2	265,401	−1.3
CHICAGO
Sun-Times	604,862	−1.3	613,940	−1.9
Tribune	765,371	2.7	1,117,275	0.5
DENVER
Post	230,471	1.5	404,271	−5.0
Rocky Mountain News	332,114	1.5	373,206	1.6
DETROIT
Free Press	649,312	−1.1	732,699	−1.9
News	686,787	0.8	837,511	−0.3
HOUSTON
Chronicle	406,776	0	534,771	0.8
Post	301,100	−2.1	347,052	−3.7
LOS ANGELES
Herald-Examiner	238,811	−1.1	195,009	−2.9
Daily News	159,348	3.8	174,767	6.0
Times	1,113,459	2.5	1,384,857	2.7
MINNEAPOLIS/ST. PAUL
Pioneer Press/Dispatch	193,075	3.0	251,484	2.4
Star Tribune	389,410	2.8	629,845	2.2
NEW YORK
Daily News	1,285,869	1.2	1,615,038	1.1
Post	690,915	−5.6	NA	NA
Times	1,022,899	2.1	1,589,290	0.3
WASHINGTON
Post	761,142	1.8	1,096,725	1.6
Times	91,508	−12.2	NA	NA

Special Report

Sports Marketing

a-Cola
AT&T
John Hancock

Dan Hurley

Companies learn to play the game

By Wayne Walley

Athletes won't be the only ones competing for gold at the 1988 Winter and Summer Olympics.

Corporate America, as it did in 1984, is rushing to support the Games in Calgary and Seoul to the tune of at least $370 million. Some predict companies will spend as much as $400 million in sponsorships before the Olympic flame is lit, and $500 million touting the Olympic association.

But this is only a drop in the bucket when it comes to the nation's hottest promotional monster—sports marketing.

Everything from the big three professional sports—football, baseball and basketball—to offbeat events like beach volleyball and fat-tire bike racing are finding eager advertisers ready to pony up cash for an identifiable link.

Lesa Ukman, editor of Chicago-based industry newsletter Special Events Report, estimates more than 3,400 companies will spend at least $1.35 billion this year in fees just to sponsor sports-related events, compared with an estimated $300 million in 1983. And some 400 corporations have formed event-marketing departments with separate budgets. Only 10 existed in 1982.

Bob Dowling, publisher, Sports Marketing News, Westport, Conn., says total sports spending by advertisers will exceed $6 billion this year if the analysis includes athletes' endorsement contracts, commercial time sold within sports telecasts, sporting event sponsorship budgets and other related expenses.

In its original form, sports marketing merely concerned hiring an athlete to endorse a product. Who can forget Joe Namath in pantyhose? And personal endorsements remain a viable option. Arnold Palmer pockets $6 million a year from his contracts with The Hertz Corp., PaineWebber Inc., Pennzoil Co. and others. Jim McMahon has been in more commercials

(Continued on Page S-2)

Top corporate spenders on sports marketing

Company	Sponsorship budget*
1. Philip Morris Cos.	$85
2. RJR Nabisco	58
3. Anheuser-Busch Cos.	50
4. Adolph Coors Co.	12
5. Coca-Cola Co.	10

*$ in millions
includes Miller Brewing and General Foods
Source: Special Events Report, Chicago.

TRUE SPORTS

RED ROOF INNS
Bud
Budweiser
1

Number One on the track . . .

and in Sports Marketing.

Truesports Co.
4601 Lyman Drive
Hilliard, Ohio 43026-9699
614·876·0565
Fax: 614·876·0996
Contact: Carol M. Wilkins
Director of Sports Marketing

Companies learn the game

(Continued from Page S-1)

than football games the past year, picking up an estimated $3 million.

But many companies believe that linking their image to individuals is risky—particularly in light of drug problems among athletes and other image-crippling fiascos—leading them to tie in with events instead. The strategy offers longer-term stability and can help build a stronger image.

The biggest annual sports sponsorship spenders, according to Special Events Report, are Philip Morris Cos., RJR Nabisco and Anheuser-Busch Cos. with annual budgets of $85 million, $58 million and $50 million, respectively. The expenditures are less than 10% of their annual ad budgets.

"These companies aren't spending more each year; it remains pretty constant. But more companies are spending money in the category. That's where the growth is, and it will continue to grow," says Delbert Wilber, president of DelWilber + Associates, McLean, Va., a special events marketing specialist.

The cost of buying TV time is more expensive despite lower ratings, so companies are looking for more efficient options, contributing to the category's growth. Sports often is used for product introductions, to increase name awareness or as a way to compete with a regionally dominant brand.

"Companies also recognize sponsorship can build an affinity or a bond with the consumer," says Mr. Wilber. "More advertisers are starting to create sales promotions in tandem with sponsorship, too. If you have a theme and event exclusivity, you stand out. And if you spend the money on a local sweepstakes tied in with the event, you can see the results."

Volvo North America Corp., Rockleigh, N.J., claims the number of impressions—one person seeing Volvo's name one time—generated from its $3 million tennis sponsorship expenditures last year were worth $25 million in media advertising.

Another example is Frito-Lay, a DelWilber client that wanted to increase sales of Ruffles potato chips in New York. The Plano, Texas-based company signed a two-year agreement to become the "Official snack food of the New York Yankees." Then Frito-Lay started a Memorial Day promotion, "Win with the Yankees in Boston." The results: Sales during the 1987 Memorial Day weekend increased 21.5% over the previous year.

(Continued on Page S-4)

This year, five of our biggest fans were all named Emmy!

Outstanding Edited Sports Series
Outstanding Edited Sports Special Videotape Editing
Individual Achievement
Outstanding Sports Personality–Al Michaels

Once again, ABC's Wide World of Sports, the longest running sports anthology series on television, proves a winner by capturing four Emmys. And Al Michaels proves he's a winner, capturing the Emmy for outstanding sports personality host!

abc
WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS

abc sports

Reaching New Heights!

Many sponsors still on sidelines

By Lori Kesler

As the stakes of big games keep rising, many marketers are taking a cautious stance about becoming involved in minor women's sports. They're waiting for games to emerge as viable partners before deciding to play.

Lori Kesler, ADVERTISING AGE's St. Louis correspondent, covered network TV's involvement in the upcoming 1988 Olympic Games in the July 13, 1987 Sports Marketing Special Report.

"It's such an uncluttered area a sponsor can take a sport that hasn't been exploited and really make it its own," says Lesa Ukman, publisher of Chicago-based Special Events Report, an industry newsletter. "I see a lot of potential in the long run."

Experts agree that women's sports so far haven't generated many lucrative sponsorship deals except in professional tennis and golf. Insiders estimate that women's sports got only $100 million to $150 million of the $1 billion-plus spent overall last year on sports sponsorship. In fact, even the most optimistic boosters admit women's sports never may attract as many dollars as the games men play.

■ Excepting golf, tennis, women's sports failure to draw fans cools marketer interest

For one thing, any spectator sport's popularity—and value to sponsors—depends on its ability to draw crowds and produce superstars, says Ellen Merlo, group director-marketing promotions, Philip Morris USA, New York.

She says few women athletes have reached superstar status in the past because girls' sports haven't gotten much attention at the high school level. "Women are just now starting to aspire to be professional athletes," she says. "They've never before seen this as a realistic way to earn a living."

Another problem, says one expert, is that TV programmers doubt large numbers of women will watch women's sports on TV. "When they try to reach women, they're more likely to use entertainment than sports," says Monica de Hellerman, president of International Sport Summit, New York.

Meanwhile, when sponsors set up local participation events for amateur runners, walkers or cyclists, they tend to favor co-ed events rather than women or men-only affairs.

Doug Pirnie, director-marketing services for International Management Group, Cleveland, argues that the co-ed strategy makes sense because most marketers want to target a dual audience. Because a growing number of men are shopping for such things as

(Continued on Page S-6)

THE HOWARD MARLBORO GROUP

KNOW WHAT SPORTS MARKETING CAN DO FOR YOU?

The HMG Sports and Special Events Consulting Group Can Show You.

When power hitters like USA TODAY, Shulton, Chevrolet, General Foods and the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Organization want to play in the major leagues of sports marketing, they turn to the Howard Marlboro Sports and Special Events Consulting Group.

By first analyzing each of their specific needs, and then exploring the opportunities available in the sports marketplace, we're able to coordinate sponsorships and create special events that really work for our clients. Working with sports organizations such as Major League Baseball, the NBA and the United States Olympic Team, we consistently help our clients achieve a wide range of corporate and sales objectives.

As part of the full-service, international Howard Marlboro Group, the Sports and Special Events Consulting Group offers a full roster of services in sales promotion, manufacturing, ethnic marketing, research and evaluation, merchandising displays and retail space management, and more.

We're anxious to help you get the edge in sports and special events marketing. Call Don Dixon or Mark Rothenberg today at 212-736-2300, and let's talk sports.

USA

Companies learn the game

(Continued from Page S-2)

Ryder System, Miami, merely looked next door to the Doral Hotel & Country Club and its Doral Open, a stop on the Professional Golf Association Tour, as a means of enhancing its image. "We're known for our yellow trucks, but that's only 25% of our business," says Wendell Beard, VP, Ryder. "We thought sponsorship of a golf tournament could help."

Ryder's financial support—about $1.5 million for PR costs, media buys on the telecast and a contribution to the prize money—boosted the tournament's purse to $1 million. The increase helped the Doral Ryder Open draw 59 of the top 60 money winners last year. Attendance increased as did TV ratings.

Ryder estimates its sponsorship provided at least 103 million print media "impressions." That doesn't even count radio and TV exposure or the goodwill generated by wining and dining customers at the event and allowing them to play with the professionals in the pro/am tournament.

Sponsorship of major televised events also can help a company avoid being part of the clutter when it just buys 30-second spots. The networks are now willing to guarantee sponsors logo exposure and other considerations in return for ad buys.

The John Hancock Sun Bowl is a primary example. The Boston-based life insurance company paid $500,000 for rights fees, bought 25% of the commercial inventory for $350,000 and was allowed to place its logo on the 50-yard line.

But that's not all. As the Sugar Bowl sponsor last year, U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty Co., Baltimore, another insurance company, reaped extra rewards from its involvement in the event's festival, which includes a regatta, a national intramural flag football competition and a basketball tournament.

"It helps the agents," says Minor Carter, senior VP, USF&G. "They can entertain clients at the game [in our] hospitality tents. We didn't have much name recognition before, but we know its better now because it's easier for our agents to sell."

Sports tie-ins, however, can flop just as easily. While most companies now use in-house experts or hire consultants to devise sports marketing plans, some still jump in blindly.

The most fabled failure belongs to Chicago-based Beatrice Cos., which signed an estimated $80 million, five-year deal with Mario Andretti. Instead of putting brand names on Mr. Andretti's car, Beatrice used its less recognizable corporate moniker. The company couldn't justify the expense without quantifiable results and pulled out a year later.

The only other dangers, according to Mr. Dowling, exist when advertisers expect more, and events promise more, than sports marketing can deliver. "People have to be realistic or they will become disillusioned," he says. "Especially since more companies are looking to regional events because of their cost-effectiveness. The adver-

(Continued on Page S-6)

How the sports score—1987 sponsorship dollars

(in millions)

Golf
PGA Senior Tour	$24
PGA Tour	85
LPGA Tour	17
Motor sports
CART	75
IHRA	18
IMSA	50
NASCAR	85
NHRA	35
SCCA	13
Running
Marathons, road races	50
Tennis
WITA North American	21
MIPTC North American	28

Source: Special Events Report, Chicago

Sponsors on the sidelines

(Continued from Page S-4)

food and household goods, the marketers of those products don't limit themselves to women anymore, he says.

Certain female-oriented products might reasonably link up to women-only sports events, says Mr. Pirnie, but they also may encounter problems. For example, "it's sometimes hard for a cosmetics company to figure out how to use a hot, sweaty event to sell more mascara and blush," he says.

And some people claim the very mention of some female products can embarrass male sports editors who control coverage of an event. When the Indianapolis-based U.S. Synchronized Swimming sold title sponsorship of its national championships to Tambrands Inc. for its Tampax line, it found newspapers reluctant to include the sponsor's name.

Some editors said they were following their stylebooks. Indeed, earlier this year the Associated Press ruled that corporate names would not be used to identify sporting events unless the events were indistinguishable without them. Others claimed ignorance of the event's proper name. But Betty Watanabe, Synchronized Swimming's executive director, suspects some editors just couldn't bring themselves to print the word Tampax. "Having a condom sponsor probably would have brought us more press," she quips.

Experts agree it may take a few years for sponsors to figure out how to make the most of women's sports. But there's been progress at several levels. In professional sports, women's tennis and golf are "very healthy and getting healthier every year," says Ms. Ukman.

The Ladies Professional Golf Association Tour, for example, will offer a $12 million purse next year, and its stable of big-name sponsors includes Konica U.S.A Corp., MasterCard International, Mazda Motors of America, McDonald's Corp., RJR Nabisco's Nabisco Brands, Nestle Foods Corp. and Sara Lee Corp.

Tennis likewise attracts big money and prestige sponsors—but it hasn't always been so. Philip Morris' Virginia Slims cigarettes began sponsoring women's tennis in 1970 when "women players were getting about one-tenth what men got and they played their matches at off-hours on back courts," says Ms. Merlo.

But pioneer players such as Billie Jean King and Rosie Casals proved they could wow the crowds with an entertaining game. In time, they were able to negotiate better prize money and sponsorships through a more lucrative series of tournaments. The result: The women's tennis purse for 1987 amounts to more than $18 million and the sport has several bona fide superstars.

Virginia Slims, the sport's largest sponsor, underwrites several individual events and the grand finale $1 million-dollar world championship series each November. In return, Virginia Slims gets worldwide publicity, an opportunity to sample adult audiences and to spin off retail promotions.

Ms. Merlo says clutter in traditional media has driven companies to seek more creative marketing vehicles. Sponsorship of the right sporting events, she says, will deliver "the consumer groups you want in a place they choose to be."

Some experts see women's professional bowling as the next hot women's sport. Although it's currently supported mainly by industry sponsors, the sport could offer a consumer product lots of visibility, says John Falzone, president of the Ladies Pro Bowling Tour, Rockford, Ill.

He says 59 million people bowl every year, including 23.[illegible] million women. That generates strong audience interest for the ladies' fall tour, currently airing on ESPN for 90 minutes every Saturday afternoon.

The women pros will take home $835,000 in prizes from 13 events this year; the purse in 1988 is expected to top $1 million. The biggest sponsor lined up for 1988 is Seagram's Coolers, which will underwrite pro bowling's U.S. Open for men and women in April.

Meanwhile, San Francisco-based Major League Volleyball, a women-only sport that made its professional debut last February, is scouting for corporate sponsors for its four-month 1988 season. MLV operates teams in New York, Chicago, Dallas, Minneapolis, San Jose and Los Angeles. (There is no comparable men's league.)

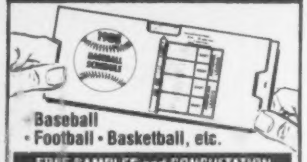
Lee Meade, MLV executive director, says he'd like to sign marketers of women's products such as cosmetics, clothing, microwave cuisine, or wine coolers. Current sponsors include several volleyball equipment manufacturers and Fujitsu America, a computer company.

He's hoping the '88 Olympics will spawn another surge of interest in the sport as well as bring MLV a new crop of players. Viewership of women's volleyball topped all other Olympic events in 1984, he says.

"Volleyball has a strong chance of making it," says Holly Turner, a principal of women's sports marketing consultancy Auchincloss & Turner, San Francisco. However, she acknowledges that team sports for women generally don't garner as much corporate support as the individual sports such as tennis and gymnastics. "There's in-

(Continued on Page S-8)

SPORTS SCHEDULE
CALCULATORS



- Baseball
- Football - Basketball, etc.

FREE SAMPLES and CONSULTATION

THE Flexi Group INC.

P.O. Box 316 Kingsbridge Station
New York, NY 10463 - (212) 543-8699

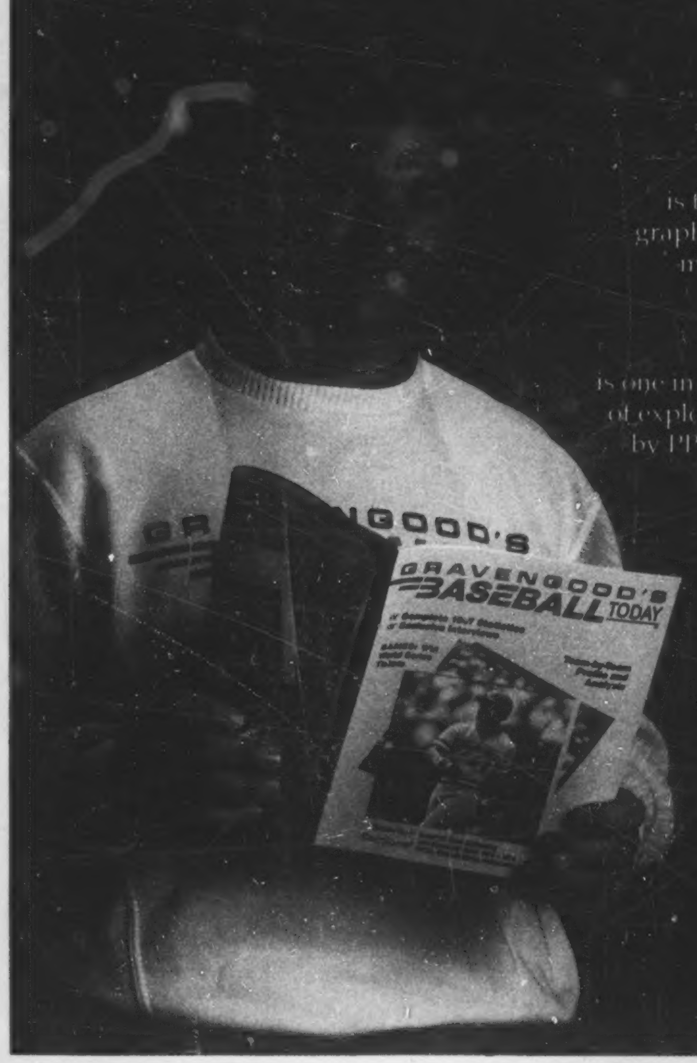
If you're not advertising in Gravengood's BASEBALL TODAY, you're missing an All American Audience.



Cover to cover,
Gravengood's
BASEBALL TODAY is the most powerfully graphic and newsworthy magazine of it's kind.

Gravengood's
BASEBALL TODAY
is one in a nationwide series of explosive sports annuals
by PPG Publications, Inc.

"The Hot Corner"
Gravengood's
BASEBALL TODAY

PPG, Inc.
829 Second Street
Encinitas, CA 92024
(619) 753-4683

Purchasing Power

The bowling market offers a huge potential for products such as beer, liquor, wine, soft drinks, apparel, carpeting and furnishings, financial services and real estate opportunities. BOWLERS JOURNAL can help you reach the purchasing power of the bowling market. Entrepreneurial bowling center owners and hard-core competitive bowlers have subscribed to the BOWLERS JOURNAL for 75 years. And we're the only publication that reaches both of these important market segments worldwide. So meet your media objectives with strategic spending. Buy BOWLERS JOURNAL. Contact us at (312) 266-7171.

75 YEARS
OF WORLD CLASS
BOWLING COVERAGE

BOWLERS
JOURNAL

Companies

(Continued from Page S-4)

tiser has to realize 30,000 things could go wrong."

Ms. Ukman also warns of potential disappointments regionally, but believes company decentralization of overall advertising plans will lead to sponsorship of new types of sports and non-sports events.

Others say some sports, particularly NASCAR racing and golf, have neared the saturation point, forcing agencies and sports marketing companies to seek other alternatives. They say this is why events like skateboarding, fat-tire racing, beach volleyball and sled-dog racing are finding sponsors.

As for other trends, Monica de Hellerman, president, International Sport Summit, New York, believes gambling will create new opportunities for sports marketers.

"Gambling supports soccer in Europe and it could do the same here," she says. "Gambling revenues could provide the funds to help a sport promote itself and become popular. Then it could become more desirable to sponsors."

Because of changes in European broadcasting rules and more use of commercials, Ms. de Hellerman also expects more American companies to use sports to introduce their products in Europe, a marketing strategy Anheuser-Busch already has used with football to introduce its Budweiser beer in England. ■

Grand prix gets jump on affluent fans

By Janice Steinberg

They're lean, they're sleek, they have names like Bodacious Daniel, Eternal Journey and Touch of Class. They are grand prix show jumpers and they are the literal muscle behind one of the fastest growing spectator sports in the U.S.

Long one of Europe's most popular sports, grand prix jumping has been growing steadily in the U.S. since 1978, when the Cleveland-based American Grandprix Association organized its first national tour.

"We had a marketable commodity in the series," says Leonard King, AGA president based at Valley Forge Military Academy in Wayne, Pa. "National sponsors want a national presence. That's what got the ball rolling originally."

The tour started with 16 events and no corporate sponsors. In 1980, under contract with ESPN, the AGA started receiving television coverage and scored its first tour sponsor, Citicorp Diners Club's Carte Blanche credit card. Mercedes-Benz of North America took over tour sponsorship in 1981, an arrangement that continued until 1986.

Then, the 1984 Olympics put grand prix jumping on network TV. An enthusiastic public saw a colorful, lively sport in which riders urged their horses over a series of challenging jumps and were marked on faults—such as balking or knocking down a pole—and speed. And they saw U.S. equestrians take both individual and team gold medals in the event.

"The 1984 Olympic Games, being in the States and getting the television exposure they did, very much increased the interest in horse sports in general and grand prix jumping in particular," says Bill Landsman, New York-based PR director of the U.S. Equestrian Team. "Then, the fact that the U.S. won both the team and individual gold medals didn't hurt at all. I think people like to watch something that we're winners at."

"After ABC's coverage of the equestrian phase of the Olympics, we saw a dramatic increase in spectator attendance and sponsorship interest," says Jim Passant, PR director, AGA.

There are now two major national grand prix tours—the AGA and the Culpeper, Va.-based U.S. Grand Prix League—offering 56 events this year.

■ 'Prestigious, quality imagery' of horse jumping events reins in A-B, Rolex and others

While exact figures aren't available, industry sources estimate corporate sponsorship of grand prix jumping for 1987 totals more than than $1.3 million in the U.S.

Anheuser-Busch Cos. and Rolex Watch USA sponsor the 1987 AGA and USGPL tours, respectively. In addition to tour sponsorships, corporations also sponsor the tours' individual regional events. Current event sponsors include Cadillac division of General Motors Corp., Chrysler Corp., GMC Trucks, RJR Nabisco's Nabisco Brands, Prudential-Bache Securities and United Missouri Banks.

Corporations are sinking $1.3 million into a sport which, although growing, still draws comparatively small audiences for one simple reason: upscale demographics.

The 44,000 members of the New York-based American Horse Show Association, which includes people involved in grand prix, dressage and other events, have average annual household incomes of $77,700, says Kathleen Mitchell, director-communications. Their median age is 35 and a surprising 86.1% are women.

"That's interesting for companies having anything to do with female products. They don't realize [horse events] are a gold mine," says Ms. Mitchell, who is seeking corporations to sign up for three-year sponsorships of all the American Horse Show Association events, including grand prix.

"The equestrian world, like the yachting world, tends to be pretty well-heeled," says a spokesman for New York-based Rolex. In addition to sponsoring the USGPL tour, Rolex is involved with the U.S. Equestrian Team and uses team members in a series of print ads, created in-house, as part of an ongoing campaign that compares sports champions' athletic excellence to that of Rolex watches.

Anheuser-Busch, which attached its Michelob brand name to the AGA tour, encourages local distributors to set up hospitality areas at the grand prix events and occasionally to do in-store promotions with counter cards. St. Louis-based A-B's tour sponsorship costs about $550,000, according to Mr. Passant.

Rolex Watch USA comes along for the ride in print ads supporting horse jumping.

"Horse jumping provides very prestigious, quality imagery, and that is consistent with our Michelob super-premium brand," says Joe Castellano, senior manager-sports marketing.

When it was the AGA tour sponsor, Mercedes suggested that local dealers set up hospitality areas and provide special seating at the events. This year, when Mercedes ended its association with the AGA, the company produced it's own series of three grand prix regional events in affiliation with horse shows in Dallas, Los Angeles and New York.

"We got out [of the AGA sponsorship] because we felt that a 32-event situation just wasn't paying us back. We were only getting worth out of some markets, some events," says Chris Dirato, sports PR manager at Mercedes-Benz, Montvale, N.J.

The first Mercedes Show Jumping Championships were held in Los Angeles on June 28, Dallas on Aug. 8, and New York City on Nov. 7, the latter as part of the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden. Each event carried a purse of $50,000 and a $10,000 bonus for the winning rider.

CBS Sports will broadcast an hour-long program of "The Mercedes Horse Jumping Championship" on Dec. 5. Mercedes pre-bought a set percentage of the program inventory. Specific figures were unavailable, but generally, in order to get its name in a program title, a sponsor buys at least one-third of the commercial time on CBS, says Peter Tortorici, VP-programming, CBS Sports, New York.

"I think [what Mercedes has done] is part of a larger trend," says Lesa Ukman, editor of Chicago-based industry newsletter Special Events Report. "As corporations know what they want and are more and more practiced at sponsorship, they're going to create events for themselves to meet their objectives, rather than buying into somebody else's circuit."

"All the horse sports are getting more interest from sponsors," she adds. "Certainly dressage and steeplechase are as exciting as jumping. The real key with these sports is that if there's an authenticity to the event with a following, it will probably appeal to a corporation."

As for the the sport's future, "I think it will remain very

Janice Steinberg, a San Diego-based free-lance writer, is a frequent contributor to Special Report.

Grand prix jumping shows steady gains

American Grandprix Association growth, 1978-1986

	1978	1980	1982	1984	1986
Number of events	16	17	24	30	32
Total prize money & year-end rewards	$247,000	$385,000	$700,000	$1,255,000	$1,525,000
Average event purse	$15,400	$20,600	$26,250	$34,300	$41,562
Total tour attendance	34,000	68,000	150,000	230,000	275,000
Average event attendance	2,000	4,000	6,250	7,700	8,300
Total sponsorship income	0	$129,600	$486,500	$980,000	$1,285,000
Total print publicity (inch)	3,500	7,000	17,000	25,800	30,000
Total ESPN publicity (minutes)	0	4,320	3,240	3,780	5,000 +

Source: American Grandprix Association

$6,200,000,000...

In 1986 alone, corporations spent $6.2 billion on sports marketing. In the year to come, 6 of every 10 corporations that use sports to sell products plan to increase their sports marketing budgets.

By every measure, sports marketing is big business—and getting bigger. But how can you get the insider's information to take advantage of all the opportunity this burgeoning business offers? By subscribing today to Sports Marketing News!

SMN is the biweekly newspaper for the sports marketing industry. And it's your exclusive source for the latest news, developments, ideas and resources you need to market through sports most effectively.

To subscribe, simply clip and mail the coupon on the SMN ad opposite this page.

Sources: SMN 1987 Subscriber Profile; SMN Projection Based on Compiled Data

SPORTS MARKETING NEWS
INSIDE:
RACE IN TROUBLE
College Grid TV Pact Won't Bother Sponsors
Sponsors Dump $37M Into CART

Sponsors

(Continued from Page S-8)

Lever 2000 Atlanta Stride in late September to build awareness of its new product, Lever 2000, a family deodorant soap currently in test in the Atlanta market.

Lever Bros. decided to put on the striding event, which attracted about 1,000 participants, because "sponsorship of a new activity buys a brand high visibility," says Andrea Gurvitz, senior VP of D-A-Y PR, a division of Ogilvy & Mather Worldwide, New York.

She says the company targeted women by distributing entry flyers through such outlets as women's health clubs and daycare centers.

However, the stride itself much an elitist activity, simply because of how much it costs to do it," says David Wright, president of Intersport Inc., a Greenwich, Conn., company that produces grand prix and other sporting events. He adds that the horses themselves cost $200,000 to $1 million, and that training and transportation costs are also high. "You see a lot of sponsors coming in and going out. They stay for a while and a lot of them become disillusioned. In some cases it's just too upscale an audience; it's a finite group of people."

Mr. Wright sounds the only pessimistic note among sports-marketing professionals involved in show jumping, however. The rest say interest in—and sponsorship of—grand prix will continue to grow, and that its appeal will be not just upscale, but widespread.

"Horse jumping has been a sleeper and I think it will have grand appeal in this country, not just as an elitist sport, because people in rural areas as well as suburban areas are used to seeing horse events," says Monica de Hellerman, president of New York-based International Sport Summit. "When you go to every country fair, one of the key events is a horse pull or a horse skill event." Ms. de Hellerman says another reason grand prix jumping will grow is that it is "uniquely suited to television."

Mr. Landsman says he sees "a broadening of the sponsorship base to [include] mass-market products."

Certainly there's no sign of major sponsors abandoning grand prix in the near future. Anheuser-Busch signed a two-year agreement to sponsor the AGA tour and Mercedes has entered into multiyear agreements with the three horseshows to continue its grand prix events.

Grand prix jumping may prosper even if it continues to be viewed as elitist. "Originally we felt that we had to downplay the upscale image, but as it turned out, the upscale image is what has supported us," says Mr. King.

Signing 3M an Olympian effort

Multimillion, two-tiered deal gets company into major sport sponsorship via '88 Games

By Pat McGeehan

When executives of ISL Marketing decided to approach 3M about being one of the first worldwide sponsors of the Olympic Games, they knew it would be a tough sale.

As the exclusive marketing consultant for The Olympic Programme (see related story), a marketing package created by ISL and the International Olympic Committee, ISL was seeking global marketers and 3M, an $8.6 billion behemoth with operations in 50 countries, certainly fit the bill. But St. Paul, Minn.-based 3M, while a highly visible advertiser on TV sports programming, had never sponsored a major sporting event, and ISL's sponsorship pitch carried a $10 million-plus price tag.

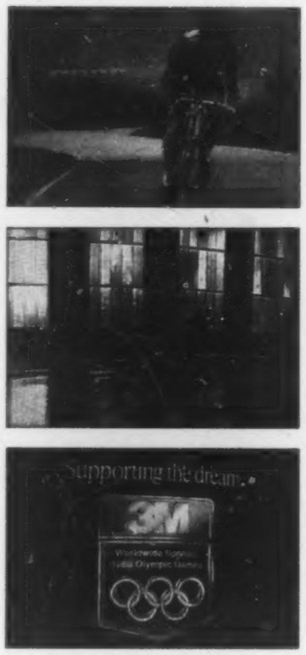
What ISL had in mind was to convince 3M its Scotch brand products should be the "official audio and videotapes of the 1988 Olympic Games," according to Robert Prazmark, VP of ISL Marketing USA, New York, the U.S. division of Lucerne, Switzerland-based ISL Marketing Group.

After the sports marketing company made its pitch to 3M, the conglomerate's executives mulled the offer and decided to take it—and a whole lot more.

They returned a proposal to ISL that would give 12 of 3M's product groups official status—for the price of one. If 3M was going to make the Olympic jump, it might as well expose as many products as possible to the world audience.

"They came at us with a brand concept. What we were interested in was a company concept," says Donn Osmon, VP-marketing and public affairs. The company sought official product status for everything from those ubiquitous, yellow Post-It notes to electrical connectors and cables.

ISL was willing to give 3M more for its money, as long as the original price tag held, Mr. Prazmark says. ISL's primary concern was getting a minimum amount of money for each sponsorship. The company knew there would be few, if any, other takers for 3M's product categories.



Spots for 3M's Olympic sponsorship show a skater and cyclist in training, but emphasize the participant's parental support.

The various Olympic committees, however, were concerned about clutter. "They thought 'the official electrical connectors of the 1988 Olympic Games' was going a little too far," Mr. Prazmark recalls.

So, a two-tier deal was structured. It granted official status to four of 3M's product categories: audio and videotapes, computer discs, tapes and laser discs; Thinsulate clothing insulation and Thintech waterproof fabric; Scotchgard fiber and fabric protectors; and Scotch and 3M adhesive tapes.

Each of those product groups can be promoted and advertised as the official product of its type of the '88 Olympics.

"We chose those [categories] that were much more related to consumer products," says Mr. Osmon.

Eight other product groups may be designated as products of a "worldwide sponsor of the 1988 Olympic Games." They are: Post-It notes; Buf-Puf facial and body sponges; 3M and Scotch scouring pads and materials; Nomad floor mats; Scotch and 3M adhesives, caulking materials and glues; energy-saving and energy-control products; electrical and electronic cables and connectors; and reflective materials. Since that deal was hammered out, 3M has returned for an additional helping. Its professional healthcare products also will carry "official product" designation.

Neither 3M executives nor Mr. Prazmark would disclose the amount 3M is paying for the sponsorship, but it is estimated to be about $12 million.

3M has taken so strongly to the idea of Olympic sponsorship, Mr. Prazmark says, he has come to believe that 3M, rather than standing for Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing, is short for More, More, More.

Charles Eldridge, 3M's VP-corporate marketing services, says the appeal of ISL's offer wasn't the idea of sponsoring a sporting event. Technically, the company's consumer products don't lend themselves well to sports sponsorship in the way cars, trucks and beer do. In fact, only 10% of the company's sales are to consumers; the other 90% go to industry. "We are the first and, I believe, the only company that fits into the business-to-business category to sponsor the Olympic Games," says Mr. Eldridge.

"The sports marketing element is important," he adds, "but the biggest and most important element is the Olympics themselves. 3M operates on a global basis in 50 countries, most of which would be sending some sort of representation to the Summer Games and many of them also to the Winter Games."

Since 3M signed on as a TOP sponsor, it has developed novel ways of promoting the Olympic association. At numerous trade shows around the world, 3M's booths have been built around Olympic themes and filled with memorabilia from past Games that the company dug up in the International Olympic Committee's archives in Switzerland.

Since then, other sponsors have followed suit, according to Mr. Prazmark. "Now, all the sponsors have access to the archives," he says. "3M is pioneering the Olympic association in a way that's never been done before," he says. "They have really thrown their marketing muscle behind this."

(Continued on Page S-12)

Pat McGeehan, a former ADVERTISING AGE reporter, covered the ad market for TV sports programming in the July 13, 1987 Sports Marketing Special Report.

3 STRIKES
presents
TOWEL IN A TUBE

THE QUESTION IS:
☐ IS IT A LOW COST INCENTIVE?
☐ DOES IT PROVIDE HIGH VISIBILITY?
☐ DOES IT TIE IN WITH FITNESS AND HEALTH?
☐ IS IT EASY TO FULFILL?
THE ANSWER IS:
☑ ALL OF THE ABOVE

A LOW COST HIGH VISIBILITY FITNESS PREMIUM

A FITNESS HEALTH EXERCISE TOWEL

Perfect T-Shirt substitute
Great For Bar Towels in Tip Cans
ALSO BEACH TOWELS
AND EMBROIDERED APPAREL

For Info: 3-Strikes Custom Design
130 West 42 Street · Penthouse
NYC NY 10036 · 212-391-0020 was designed to include the whole family—husbands, children, even babies in strollers or backpacks.

Lever contributed a portion of the entry fees to New York-based Women's Sports Foundation, a group dedicated to expanding sports and fitness opportunities for girls and women, with whom it put on the event.

Lever paid WSF a $25,000 honorarium, and charged entrants a $5 fee, of which $3.75 went to recoup the payment to WSF. If Lever 2000 goes into national distribution, the company may take the stride concept to other cities, says Ms. Gurvitz.

"It's a good fit—a family soap sponsoring a stride for women and their families."

—Lori Kesler

. . . And Growing!

Sports marketing is growing by leaps and bounds. In fact, 7 of every 10 corporations that use sports marketing are actively seeking new sports marketing opportunities.

Where do they turn to find them? To Sports Marketing News.

And how can you make sure these companies know about the opportunities your sports marketing vehicle, product or service offers? By advertising in SMN!

Whether you sell sponsorships, ad time, ad space, licenses, signage, or any other sports marketing opportunity, more of your top prospects will see, read and respond to your sales message in SMN than in any other publication, anywhere!

Get your share of the booming sports marketing business by reserving your ad program in SMN now. For more information and a media kit, mail the coupon or call 203-255-9997.

☐ Start my SMN subscription. AA1187
$49 for 26 biweekly issues
☐ Bill me ☐ Payment enclosed
☐ Send me a media kit and complete details on advertising.

Name Title
Company
Address
City/State/Zip
Phone

SPORTS MARKETING NEWS
The Industry Meets Here

1460 Post Road East • Westport, CT 06880 • 203-255-9997

11/16/87 C2710-1

NEWSPAPER

*3-DIGIT 200
0201090949 AA00 8746 COMP F62
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

© Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$1.50 a copy; $59 a year

November 16, 1987

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Brokers go on the attack

By JUDITH GRAHAM

NEW YORK—Three major brokerage houses are breaking aggressive ad campaigns in the wake of last month's stock market plunge.

Each campaign represents a major change in approach.

Black Monday, Oct. 19, "literally changed all the rules governing . . . advertising for our industry," said John Lampe, senior VP-director of advertising and public relations at PaineWebber. "Market conditions required [something] totally new."

E.F. Hutton & Co. has turned to an ad agency for the first time in five years, farming out a chunk of its $20 million-to-$25 million account to Hal Riney & Partners.

Hutton's new campaign breaks tonight with a 60-second teaser on ABC-TV's "Monday Night Football." It will run throughout the week on network TV. The meat of the campaign—four hard-hitting :30s featuring customers talking to brokers—breaks later this month.

Hutton's change of direction is being led by Jerry C. Welsh, senior exec VP-marketing and strategic development since March and former director of worldwide marketing, American Express Travel Related Services.

It was apparent even before the October stock plunge that there had to be a "quantum change" in financial advertising, Mr. Welsh said. "All this soft advertising had to give way to something more jugular."

Tonight's teaser spot is a collage of quick shots of city life accompanied by the inspirational chant from the Oscar-nominated movie "The Mission." After the music crescendos to a climax, the spot closes with the slogan: "A new day has begun. E.F. Hutton. We listen."

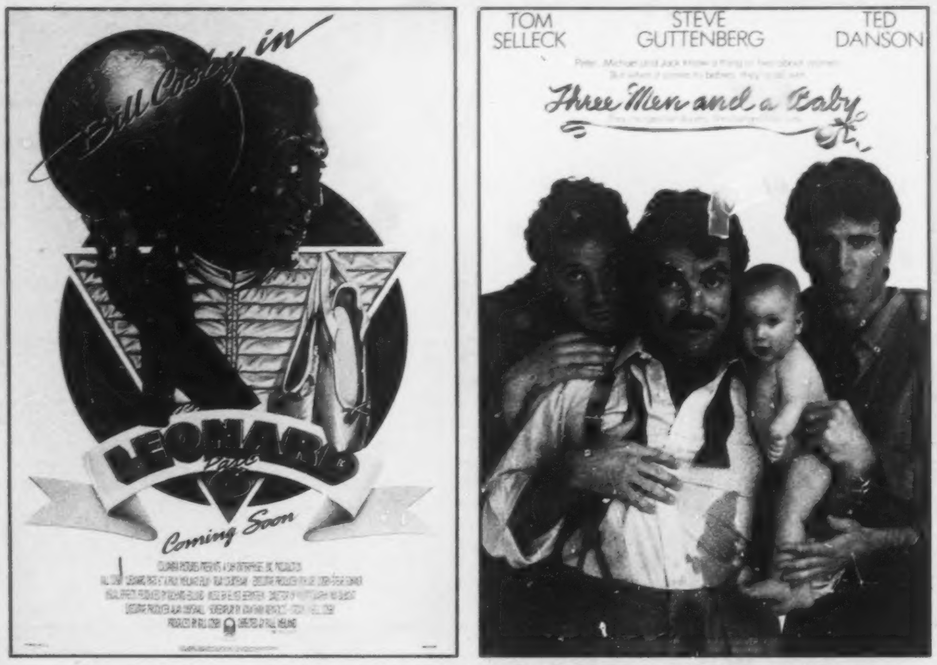
Until 1982, when it went in-house, Hutton's account was handled by Benton & Bowles (now D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles), which created the famous "When E.F. Hutton talks, people listen" campaign in 1972.

Drexel Burnham Lambert, the largest player in the "junk bond" market, last week broke its first major television campaign.

The commercials, from Chiat/Day, target policy-makers and opinion leaders, and are running on cable and broadcast spot in Los Angeles, New York and Washington.

Company executives said the effort was created before the stock market plunge but that its message—the social

(Continued on Page 106)



Hollywood's lure: Bill Cosby and two of TV's other big draws, Tom Selleck and Ted Danson.

'Tis the season

Movies are hot, bubbly's not

HOLIDAY MARKETING

By WAYNE WALLEY

LOS ANGELES—Movie studios are juggling release dates and linking up with Coca-Cola Co., McDonald's Corp. and Sears, Roebuck & Co. in their pursuit of record box-office sales this holiday season.

The trick is to have the product and marketing strategy that will work in an unusually crowded holiday theatrical film marketplace.

At least 24 films are due for release in the five weeks between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day, the most active holiday market in recent memory.

Box office sales could hit $500 million or more,

(Continued on Page 108)

By JENNIFER PENDLETON

LOS ANGELES—E&J Gallo Winery is trying to put the sparkle back into the nation's top-selling sparkling wine, Andre champagne.

Modesto, Calif.-based Gallo today launches its 1987 holiday TV campaign for Andre with a new approach from Hal Riney & Partners, San Francisco.

Gallo will not discuss the campaign, but retail sources expect a breezy, tongue-in-cheek approach in which celebrities make toasts with Andre.

For Gallo's champagne, there has been little to

(Continued on Page 108)

Presidential campaign ads tap into cable

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

WASHINGTON—In a media breakthrough, the presidential campaign of Sen. Robert Dole (R., Kan.) plans to use national cable TV advertising for fund raising, and Vice President George Bush's campaign may not be far behind.

The Dole and Bush moves would be a major step forward in making national cable a permanent part of the political landscape.

First off the mark likely will be Sen. Dole. A 60-to-90-second Dole spot tentatively is planned to break on the Financial News Network probably by Jan. 1.

It will mark the first national use of cable by a presidential candidate, said a spokesman at the Cabletelevision Advertising Bureau, a New York-based industry organization that promotes cable advertising.

The Dole forces also plan to break conventional broadcast advertising by Nov. 30 to try to overtake the GOP front-runner, Vice President Bush.

Although the Dole campaign's main creative work will be handled by Ringe Media, Washington, and its media placement by Multi Media Services, Alexandria, Va., the first Dole cable commercials may contain some excerpts from an 18-minute Dole biographical video produced by Murphy & Castellanos, Alexandria.

"The video gives a pretty good sense of themes for the campaign, and we may just edit that down to broadcast length," David Keene, the Dole campaign's senior political consultant, said.

The Dole biographical video,

(Continued on Page 106)

Last Minute News

Beatrice moves brands to Calif. agencies

FULLERTON, CALIF.—Beatrice Cos.' Hunt-Wesson unit awarded Dailey & Associates, Los Angeles, and Ketchum Advertising, San Francisco, $10 million in business that was resigned last week by J. Walter Thompson USA, Chicago (see related story on Page 8). Dailey will pick up the LaChoy and Swiss Miss brands and an undisclosed Hunt-Wesson new product. Ketchum gets Fisher Nuts and Rosarita Mexican foods.

O'Rielly quits as partner, creative director

NEW YORK—Curvin O'Rielly, 45, resigned as a partner and creative director of O'Rielly O'Brien Clow/RSCG, an agency founded here a year ago by the French agency Roux, Seguela, Cayzac & Goudard. Mr. O'Rielly said he quit because he opposed a plan to expand the agency via acquisitions. Mr. O'Rielly is the former creative chief of McCann-Erickson here and Ogilvy & Mather, Chicago.

(Continued on Page 8)

Ad agencies slash jobs—Page 3

Kennedy has 'paper trail' on ads

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

Judge Anthony M. Kennedy, President Ronald Reagan's latest Supreme Court nominee, is neither good news nor bad news for the advertising industry.

The consensus is that the judge is a judicial centrist on the subject of commercial speech.

In past rulings, Judge Kennedy has held commercial speech is protected by the First Amendment, but that protection is not absolute.

In 1978, Judge Kennedy delivered the decision of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in California, where he has sat since 1975, in a case involving ad claims by Standard Oil of California for a gasoline additive.

In that case, Judge Kennedy upheld the Federal Trade Commission's finding that Standard Oil's TV spots for Chevron gas with F-310 were misleading.

But Judge Kennedy threw out as overly broad the FTC's attempt to prohibit Standard Oil from advertising "any" product that created a misleading impression by use of tests, demonstrations or visual means.

Judge Kennedy's advertising credo seems to rest in his statement that "commercial speech is not exempt from First Amendment protection."

ANTHONY KENNEDY

In a note likely to be pored over by alcoholic beverage and tobacco marketers, Judge Kennedy said "comment on a subject of public interest must not be stifled even when it is presented in an advertising format. However, when discussion of a matter of public concern becomes a vehicle for sale of a product, the representations which bear on the characteristics of the product may take on increased importance in the mind of the public, and it is appropriate for the FTC to consider this factor in determining whether the advertising is misleading or deceptive."

Floyd Abrams, a noted First Amendment lawyer with the New York firm of Cahill Gordon & Reindel, said Judge Kennedy, in the Standard Oil case, "applied the commercial speech doctrine in a sound and appropriate fashion."

In one of the Standard spots, which aired in the first half of 1970, a "dirty engine" auto that emitted black exhaust smoke before receiving Chevron with F-310 subsequently emitted transparent vapor. The issue of public concern raised by the spots was pollution, and Standard's accompanying claim was "Chevron with F-310 turns dirty smoke into good, clean mileage."

Standard argued to the FTC and Judge Kennedy that their claims were true, though Standard, shortly before the FTC complaint, superimposed on the ads a message admitting the black-smoke auto had a "very dirty engine purposely used to provide severe test."

In examining the likelihood that viewers would be deceived into thinking F-310 removed all harmful chemical emissions from auto exhaust, Judge Kennedy showed some indulgence.

He said the public was not so ignorant as to accept "a patently absurd interpretation of an advertisement."

But, for the most part, he sided with the FTC, which, in its com-

(Continued on Page 109)

Highlights

NEWS

12 How pure is pure?
The Florida Citrus Commission and juice marketers are in the midst of a sticky debate on what constitutes 100% pure orange juice.

22 Global setbacks
The much-heralded age of global marketing is suffering a setback as many multinational marketers discover anew the wisdom of tailoring products and marketing to local levels.

28 Advertisers grow restless
Restlessness and confusion among company advertising and marketing executives is growing, according to Agency Watch, ADVERTISING AGE's quarterly survey of agency reputations.

95 NBC taps new ad medium
NBC is hyping its prime-time shows in The Wall Street Journal, the nation's largest financial newspaper, to get viewers to tune in during key ratings periods.

98 Paper costs headline
The soaring cost of newsprint and other grades of paper will mean higher-than-average rate increases for magazine and newspaper advertisers in 1988.

104 Mercedes tugs at emotions
Mercedes-Benz of North America is trying to create emotional craving for its 1988 models to overcome dramatic price increases and the effects of stock-market turmoil on buyers.

International

74 Unilever shampoo tops in Japan
Unilever's Timotei shampoo has risen heads above Kao Corp.'s Merit in Tokyo's $950 million shampoo market.

FEATURES

92 Students, rev your resumes
Between agency mergers, account shifts and economic turmoil, the job market gets tighter and the jobless get tougher. To compete, students need to carefully market themselves.

Arnott's enters U.S. P. 75

Special Report

Sales Promotion:
What makes this marketing medium work, who does the design work and how do different strategies develop? Special Report takes a close look at the anatomy of a sales promotion. Starts after Page 64.

Departments

Currents 70
Editorial 16
Forum 18
Letters 20
MediaWorks 88, 90
PeopleWorks 86
Photo Review 78

Vol. 58, No. 49—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $1.50 a copy, $59 a year, $104 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 (313) 446-0494

Audit Bureau sets agreement on bulk sales

By PATRICK REILLY

SAN FRANCISCO—National newspapers such as USA Today have scored a partial victory in their efforts to get bulk sales figured more prominently in Audit Bureau of Circulations reports.

At a meeting here last week, the ABC membership recommended that bulk sales be given first-page prominence on the Audit Reports and Publisher's Statements that newspapers use to report circulation. Bulk sales officially would be referred to as "third-party sales" and could not be added to the average paid circulation figures.

The recommendation is a compromise between newspapers, such as Rosslyn, Va.-based Gannett Co.'s USA Today, which wants bulk newspaper sales counted with audited paid circulation, and advertisers, such as J.C. Penney Co., New York, that do not want to pay advertising rates for circulation that includes bulk sales.

Bulk sales are copies sold to hotels, restaurants and other institutions for free distribution to guests or patrons.

The institutions pay at least 50% off the cover price.

"For so long, bulk sales has been a dirty word, it's been tainted," said Dan F. Pearson, director of media, RJR Nabisco, Atlanta, and leader of a two-year task force that recommended the format change. "Up to now, ABC has shoved bulk in the back of the report, in essence placing a value judgment on it. By moving up the numbers, we leave the judgment to the buyers."

K.A. Baird, publisher, Kitchener-Waterloo Record, Kitchener, Ontario, called the changes "buyer driven." "It's a significant step for all of us," he said. "It's a change I never thought I'd see in my lifetime."

The changes are considered

(Continued on Page 109)

'No problems'

Ohlmeyer drops Molson deal, denies rift with RJR Nabisco

By VERNE GAY

NEW YORK—Ohlmeyer Communications Co. last week said it was pulling out of a joint venture with Molson Cos. Ltd. Toronto, as part of its restructuring program.

OC (Canada) mainly produces Molson's TV hockey game productions that now will be run by Molson, which owns 51% of the joint venture.

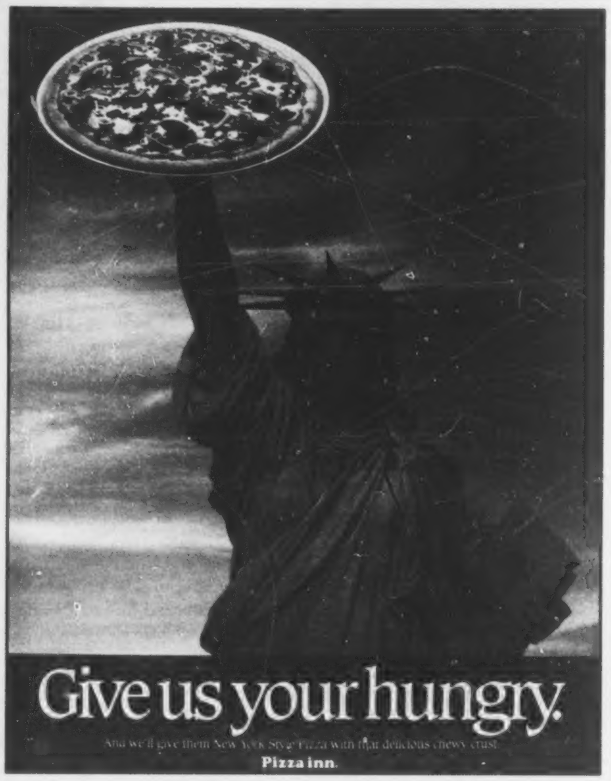
Donald Thompson, senior VP-general manager OC (Canada), said Mr. Ohlmeyer was focussing on TV production in the U.S. Ohlmeyer no longer will share in equity from the Molson joint venture or get fees from RJR Nabisco for promotional and broadcast buying duties.

In addition, Ohlmeyer no longer will handle endorsements for heavyweight boxing champ Mike Tyson. That project now will be handled by Atlanta-based RJR Nabisco.

Mr. Ohlmeyer said the moves were part of his ongoing plan to concentrate on TV and motion picture production in Los Angeles. But industry sources have noted that OCC, with 1987 revenues of approximately $40 million, is giving up several revenue streams as a result of

(Continued on Page 109)

Next week: Second 100 Leading National Advertisers



Give us your hungry.
And we'll give them New York Style Pizza with that delicious chewy crust.
Pizza inn.

A Lady with crust

Pizza Inn today starts testing New York Style Pizza in four markets. Advertising, via Ogilvy & Mather, uses the Statue of Liberty to reinforce the product's New York origins (see story on Page 105).

Healthcare giants pull plug on big ad plans

By JULIE LIESSE ERICKSON

The once-promising notion of developing brand-name healthcare services nationally may be dead, and with it, much of the industry's potential to become a major national advertiser.

Hospital Corp. of America will terminate its 18-month-old relationship with Ogilvy & Mather, New York, as of Dec. 20.

Nashville, Tenn.-based HCA will not seek another national agency of record, returning to a decentralized marketing strategy with individual hospitals contracting advertising services, a spokesman said.

HCA's decision follows by less than two weeks Humana Inc.'s termination of its two-year relationship with Grey Advertising, New York (AA, Nov. 9).

Beber Silverstein & Partners, Miami, takes over Humana's group health products—mostly its health maintenance organizations and insurance plans—and will handle media buying for individual hospitals.

Humana's goal of creating national brand-name advertising (selling the Humana name as well as individual hospitals and their services) is on hold "at least for the present," said a spokesman for the Louisville, Ky.-based company.

Although details have not been completed, the Humana spokesman said individual hospitals will be allowed to hire their own agencies pending corporate approval.

The pullbacks by the nation's two largest hospital chains temper earlier predictions that healthcare advertising could exceed $1 billion by 1990 (AA, March 9).

> "Very quickly we realized that Humana was not poised for dramatic growth but instead was in a retrenching period."
> —Nancy Bachrach
> Grey Advertising

Healthcare remains an attractive growth market for agencies as HMO enrollment and competition both increase and as hospitals diversify and publicize their services.

But with Humana and HCA both shelving national advertising, at least temporarily, the courtship between the hospital industry and national ad agencies appears to have ended.

The industry's advertising likely will grow at a slower rate than some had earlier expected and be carried by local agencies handling smaller acounts.

Problems existed on both sides of the relationship between hospital chains and national agencies, industry observers said.

While agencies generally have been frustrated in making healthcare accounts profitable, hospital chains have been battered financially—by rising insurance premiums, stock price fluctuations and overambitious expansion plans.

The chains also have been discouraged by a lack of immediate payback from increasing their ad spending.

HCA awarded O&M what was then estimated to be an $8 million account in June 1986 after a long-term relationship with Eric Ericson & Associates, Nashville. Total measured-media spending in 1986 was only $200,000, however, according to Leading National Advertisers figures.

Although HCA was satisfied with O&M's work, the spokesman said that "with our company's restructuring, standardized or centralized advertising doesn't seem to make sense."

HCA sold 104 of its hospitals in

(Continued on Page 107)

TV will benefit the most

K mart hacks insert-ad funds

By PATRICIA STRNAD

TROY, MICH.—K mart Corp. will cut an estimated $40 million to $45 million from its in-house newspaper insert ad program next year and channel those funds into other media, primarily TV.

The shift demonstrates the No. 2 retailer's determination to shed its old flashing-blue-light personality by using image-builders such as upscale food and entertainment expert Martha Stewart (AA, Aug. 24).

K mart is betting its traditional customers are more sophisticated and want better lifestyles than in the past, even though their buying power has not changed.

The changes under way at K mart could be as revolutionary as the first K mart store 25 years ago, which launched the retailing idea of a suburban discount supermarket for non-food items, said retail analyst Fred Marx, president of Marx Management Co., Birmingham, Mich.

"I think now K mart's in a position where it will be doing some more trailblazing," Mr. Marx said.

K mart ad agency Ross Roy Inc., Bloomfield Hills, and its New York-based subsidiary, Calet, Hirsch & Spector, together handle less than $65 million, or 12%, of the estimated $540 million spent on advertising for the 2,200-plus K mart retail stores.

An estimated 88%, or $475 mil-

(Continued on Page 106)

World News Roundup

LONDON—Abbey National Bank chose Saatchi & Saatchi for a $15 million account to launch new financial services, including checking accounts, high-interest accounts and a pension plan.

TOKYO—An advertising tax is being considered by the Japanese government's Tax Advisory Committee, sources say. Last year, the Diet, Japan's parliament, forced former Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone to withdraw a proposed ad tax.

LONDON—Samsonite moved its estimated $6 million pan-European account to Grey Advertising from TBWA.

DUESSELDORF—The planned merger between Eggert/DYR and HCM to form HDM (AA, July 20) has been delayed. Both agencies continue to work independently and as competitors as negotiations continue.

LONDON—An anti-fur-coat spot, via TBWA, has been banned from major cinema chains here for being too gory. The 90-second spot

(Continued on Page 75)

Jobs: No layoff relief

By JON LAFAYETTE

Will the big agencies continue to shrink their staffs next year? So far, there are no signs that business pressures squeezing payrolls are letting up.

"We're all looking at how we can get the job done more efficiently," said Roy Bostock, president of D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, New York.

Of the 10 U.S. agencies that employ the largest numbers of advertising workers, seven reported job counts have declined this year.

The total loss for the seven, in the Jan. 1-to-Oct. 1 period, was 1,486 positions. Three agencies reported their staffs had grown by a cumulative total of 573 employees, for a net loss of 913 jobs among the top 10 employers.

The tally, and the ranking of top agency employers, is based on data supplied by the agencies and excludes non-advertising units, such as public relations and TV program

(Continued on Page 92)

Who's tightening up staff

Top ten U.S. advertising agencies—measured by employment—have cut staff by a total 4% since the beginning of the year, when the workforce equalled 22,813. Figures below are total agency employment excluding public relations. Source: The agencies cited.

	Jan. 1, 1987	Oct. 1, 1987	Change
Young & Rubicam[1]	2,900	3,100	+ 6.9%
Ogilvy & Mather	2,840	2,657	− 6.4
Foote, Cone & Belding[2]	3,051	2,636	−13.6
Grey Advertising	2,238	2,440	+ 9.0
J. Walter Thompson	2,200	2,000	− 9.1
Leo Burnett	1,768	1,939	+ 9.7
DMB&B[3]	1,981	1,878	− 5.2
BJK&E	2,066	1,840	−10.9
DDB Needham	1,899	1,705	−10.2
Saatchi & Saatchi DFS	1,870	1,705	− 8.8

[1] Includes wholly owned Wunderman Worldwide and Cato Johnson/Y&R. Excludes joint ventures.

[2] Estimated 200 employees from PR units were subtracted to get these totals; also, yearend '86 figures include employees of Deutsch, Shea & Evans, San Francisco; North Castle Partners, Greenwich, Conn.; and Carl Byoir & Associates, New York. These units were divested at yearend.

[3] Excludes specialty ad units: Medicus International—91 as of Oct 1. (92 as of yearend '86); Direct Inc., 28 (27); Intergroup Marketing & Promotion, 79 (66).

Layered look loses favor

By JENNIFER LAWRENCE

While the nation's top ad agencies are cutting staff, some midsize agencies are re-examining and sometimes eliminating layers of management.

"Some agencies are doing this offensively and others are doing it defensively," said Michael Lesser, chairman-ceo of Lowe Marschalk, New York. "The industry is asking, 'How will the premier agency of the future be structured to be successful?' "

Few agencies are willing to identify specific restructuring because of the sensitivity of employees to possible layoffs.

Many of the midsize agencies have been prodded to rethink their structures because that is what major clients are doing. "We can't walk into an agency pitch with 10 people when the client only has two," said one agency source. "He starts wondering whether he is going to have to pay for all these people."

Robert Bloom, chairman-ceo of the Bloom Cos., Dallas and New York, has come up with a plan for his agency that he said will meet clients' needs and improve his agency's bottom line.

The answer is to reduce—not eliminate—the middle-management layer in account service, creative and media departments, Mr. Bloom said. In this way, the organization would be heavy on the bottom for support functions and heavy on the top at decision-making levels.

Instead of the traditional organization in the shape

(Continued on Page 92)

Cigarette sales expected to drop by 2.5% this year

By JOHN C. MAXWELL JR.

Cigarette sales are expected to reach about 568 billion units this year, a 2.5% decline from 1986.

While 1986 industry shipments declined 2.1% compared with '85, sales were helped by a sizable increase in trade inventory buying during the fourth quarter. This inflated '86 volume and caused weak sales in first-quarter '87.

We continue to believe that the industry's real rate of decline is between 1.5% and 2%. This would make it appear that the consumption downtrend is abating somewhat, though the long-term outlook is one of a decline.

It appears unlikely that the cigarette federal excise tax will increase within the next several months, if at all. Therefore, 1987 industry sales should be unaffected by either inventory swings that would accompany an excise tax hike or by a change in the underlying consumer demand.

Examining market share trends, only three companies are expected to turn in positive performances in 1987. Philip Morris Cos., the market leader since 1983, advanced 1.1 share points. New York-based PM's 37.9% market share will be another record and the highest any cigarette company has attained since the early 1930s.

PM has widened its lead over second-place R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. by more than 5 share points and was the only company to be up in units. Nevertheless, RJR, Winston-Salem, N.C., managed to improve by 0.3 share points, thanks to the rapid growth of its "branded generic" Doral, up 44%.

Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. had a larger decline in 1987 than a year ago and fell 0.9 points. After successfully test-marketing Capri, a stylish, superthin women's cigarette, Louisville, Ky.-based B&W is expanding the brand in a national rollout.

Lorillard, which had maintained share last year, gained a 0.1 point in 1987 due to Newport's 10% volume gain. New York-based Lorillard is the only company without an entry in the price/value segment.

American Brands continued to decrease at the same rate as previously—0.3 points—and Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., Durham, N.C., also had a 0.3 point share decline.

As has been true since 1983, the price/value segment is the industry's most dynamic area. It is expected to achieve 10% of the industry's volume by yearend, up 11% compared with last year.

The branded-generics subsegment, primarily represented by Doral and Cambridge, is responsible for the price/value growth. The b&w generics continued to erode, while the value 25s largely were unchanged.

The largest branded generic, RJR's Doral, had introductions of Ultra Lights and Full Flavor packings in late 1986. The brand achieved a 3% overall market share, which is more than 30% of subsegment sales. RJR has 38.6% of the low-price market overall.

Philip Morris' Cambridge, with two new full-flavor packings launched last June, captured 1.1% of the market. This increased PM's price/value share to 14.9%.

Brown & Williamson, whose generics/private-label brands and Richland 25s entries have stabilized, has a 21.8% subsegment share, down almost 5 share points from last year.

American Brands became a contender with Malibu, a "promotional" brand with a $3-off-carton coupon or a 30¢-off-pack coupon.

Liggett & Myers, whose generic/private-label brands experienced weakness, suffered the largest price/value segment loss.

By contrast, the full-price segment has dipped to 90% of the market. PM led the industry with a gain of 1.2 percentage points in this segment. Marlboro, for the 23rd consecutive year, enjoyed substantial share growth and was ahead by 0.9 points for 1987. The brand hit an all-time high market share of 23.9%. This, coupled with the introduction of new Ultra Lights extensions from Virginia Slims, further improved PM's full-price performance.

RJR's full-price brands—Camel, More, Salem and Winston—each experienced small losses. However, Now, with about a 1% market share, grew slightly.

B&W's flagship Kool brand continued to fall 0.5 points, while its other major brands declined marginally. Although the impact of Capri has yet to be felt, B&W had the largest full-price segment loss of 0.6 points.

Newport, Lorillard's leading brand, was the only other full-price brand to expand sales, with a 0.5 points share advance.

In the top 10 standings, Newport moved to fifth position from eighth and was up 10% in unit volume, one of the fastest-growing cigarettes in the group.

Doral's 44% growth (this may be a conservative estimate) made it the 10th-largest-selling cigarette in the U.S., knocking out American Brands' Pall Mall from that position. Thus, Doral, Marlboro and Newport were the only three cigarettes in the top 10 that were up in absolute volume.#

Mr. Maxwell is with Furman Selz Mager Dietz & Birney, New York.

Shares of cigarette market

	1986	1987*	Change
Philip Morris	36.8	37.9	1.1%
R.J. Reynolds	32.3	32.6	0.3
Brown & Williamson	11.7	10.8	−0.9
Lorillard	8.1	8.2	0.1
American Brands	7.2	6.9	−0.3
Liggett	3.9	3.6	−0.3
Total	100.0	100.0

*Figures estimated. Source: John C. Maxwell Jr.

Cigarettes' top ten

Source: John C. Maxwell Jr.

Company Brand	Units 1986	1987	Per cent 1986	1987
Philip Morris
Marlboro	134.19	135.70	23.0	23.9
Benson & Hedges	25.36	23.70	4.4	4.2
Merit	23.15	22.40	4.0	4.0
Total	182.70	181.80	31.4	32.1
R.J. Reynolds
Winston	65.33	63.12	11.2	11.1
Salem	45.18	44.01	7.8	7.7
Camel	25.10	23.56	4.3	4.2
Vantage	18.73	17.99	3.2	3.2
Doral	12.36	17.75	2.1	3.0
Total	166.70	166.43	28.6	29.2
Brown & Williamson
Kool	37.19	33.84	6.4	5.9
Lorillard
Newport	22.29	24.55	3.8	4.3
Total, top 10	408.88	406.62	70.2	71.5

Syndicated cartoons off to good start

NEW YORK—"Beverly Hills Teens," "Duck Tales," "Real Ghostbusters" and "Visionaries" got off to promising starts in the children's cartoon syndication season, Petry Television says.

Petry's assessment was based on A.C. Nielsen Co. and Arbitron data for 15 metered markets from Sept. 7 to Oct. 2.

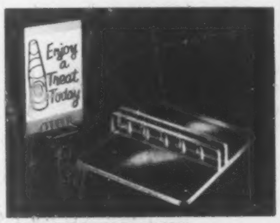
"Teddy Ruxpin" showed mixed results while "Bionic Six," "BraveStarr," "Captain Power," "The Comic Strip," "Dinosaucers," "Kid-Songs," "Saber Rider" and "Spiral Zone" fared poorly.

"BraveStarr," "Captain Power," "Ruxpin," "Spiral Zone" and "Visionaries" are based on toy products.

Separately, New World Television's "Marvel Universe," due in fall 1988 syndication, will add "RoboCop" to the weekday afternoon package. "RoboCop" joins the previously announced "Captain America" and offnet reruns of "Spider-Man" and "Incredible Hulk."#

3 more great ideas from...

Fasteners For Retail



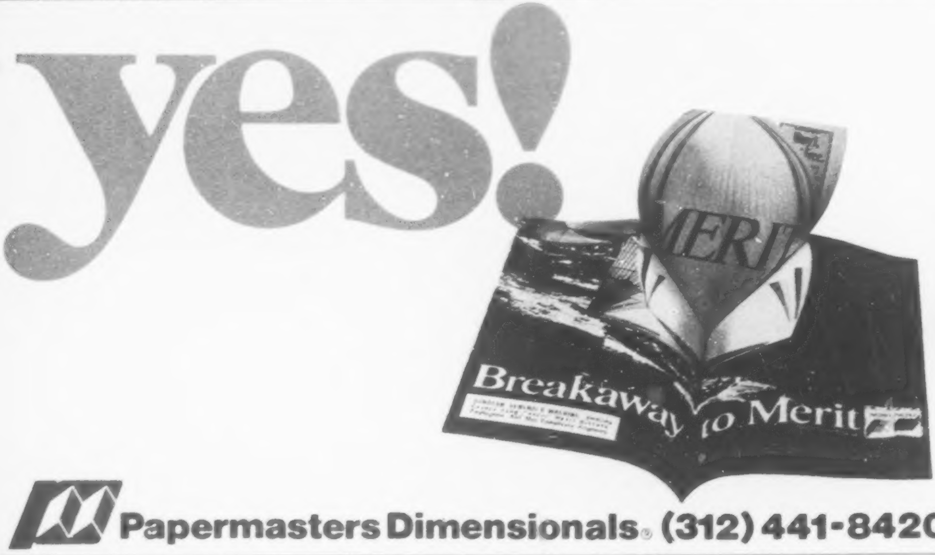
COUNTER/TABLE TOP CARDHOLDER 2230-SU
- Space-saving clear plastic holder
- Less costly than table tents
- Replaces expensive acrylic holders

POP-UP CLEAR LITERATURE BOX KL-84
- Inexpensive • Ships flat
- Fastens to any size price channel with our Spider Clip
- Holds literature folded size up to 3-3/4" wide.
- Available with adhesive for use with display cards.

COUNTER LITERATURE HOLDER GB-86
- Ships flat • Folds up fast
- Holds literature folded size up to 3-3/4" wide.
- Clear plastic • Won't break

Call for FREE Catalog and Samples 800-422-2547

Fasteners For Retail
36 Alpha Park, Cleveland, Ohio 44143
(216) 473-6919



Papermasters Dimensionals® (312) 441-8420

BEST FOODS — CAMPBELL SOUP — DEL MONTE — DOW — GENERAL FOODS
HILLSHIRE FARM — JOHNSON & JOHNSON — KRAFT — MINUTE MAID
ORE IDA — SANDOZ — SCOTT PAPER — WARNER LAMBERT

Used SCA's

HALLOWEEN '87

To Reach Households With Children Age 6–12 Directly Through Our Exclusive "IN-SCHOOL" Fall Marketing Promotion.

Now in its 7th Big Year, our SUPER SAFETY "Trick-or-Treat" Bag™ Program for Halloween offers outstanding Sales Increases, Trade Awareness, and Support through no waste couponing and sampling.

NEW ANNOUNCING OUR SUPER SUMMER SAFETY KIT™ "In-School" Promotion for couponing and/or sample distribution.

Call Steve Kaplan, Executive Vice President, at 312/296-7032 TODAY to reserve your category for our 1988 Pre-Summer or Halloween "In-School" programs — or to ask about custom promotions.

SAMPLING CORPORATION OF AMERICA

"Specialists in reaching households with children age 6–12 through exclusive "In-School" couponing sampling/promotions and coordinated trade events!"

Consumer Magazine Ad Linage

Advertising pages for U.S., Canadian and foreign consumer publications

NOVEMBER

Art & antiques

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Art & Antiques (10X)	77.5	69.3	666.7	517.4
Art News (10X)	150.0	98.0	1,049.9	878.9
Southwest Art	80.2	82.8	948.9	821.1
Total Group	307.7	250.1	2,665.5	2,217.3
% change		23.0%		20.2%

Auto/cycle/rec. vehicles

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
ATV Sports	45.1	46.9	468.2	612.2
Autoweek (52X)	195.3	124.2	1,685.6	1,514.8
Car & Driver	96.2	89.1	1,027.0	952.9
Car Collector & Car Classics	18.5	23.0	191.5	187.2
Car Craft	75.7	68.8	940.7	814.8
Circle Track	69.4	58.1	833.3	667.8
Cycle World	32.4	26.3	533.7	478.1
Dirt Rider	59.1	31.9	401.7	421.7
Dune Buggies & Hot VWs	72.7	81.7	835.6	956.9
Family Motor Coaching	158.6	134.5	1,716.6	1,586.7
4 Wheel & Off-Road	92.0	89.3	979.4	946.4
Four Wheeler	91.0	68.0	952.0	892.0
Hot Rod	73.4	76.0	817.7	685.0
Motorcyclist	28.0	18.0	501.5	478.5
Motor Trend	77.0	80.6	823.5	721.8
Motorhome	81.1	79.1	931.4	995.5
Rider	20.4	24.5	433.5	517.4
Road & Track	102.5	107.4	1,107.7	1,070.4
Trailblazer	48.6	37.1	531.9	422.5
Trailer Life	100.9	101.9	1,152.6	1,214.1
Total Group	1,537.9	1,366.4	16,865.1	16,136.7
% change		12.6%		4.5%

Boating & yachting

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Boating	119.0	113.8	1,663.9	1,501.9
Chesapeake Bay	41.8	36.8	517.1	437.0
Cruising World	110.0	90.0	1,393.6	1,443.8
Lakeland Boating (11X)	—	—	716.1	629.2
Motor Boating & Sailing	147.5	132.9	1,780.2	1,841.7
Sail	80.4	103.5	1,176.7	1,240.8
Small Boat Journal(6X)	—	—	268.0	249.2
Trailer Boats(11X)	40.4	23.1	571.0	446.9
Western Boatman(6X)	30.0	31.0	216.1	226.3
Yachting	143.1	132.8	1,568.2	1,524.6
Total Group	712.1	663.8	9,870.9	9,541.3
% change		7.3%		3.5%

Canadian

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
L'Actualite	123.5	134.0	903.8	932.6
Chatelaine:
English Edition A.	133.9	105.9	928.6	1,020.8
French Edition	102.3	91.8	822.3	875.1
City & Country Home(10X)	71.0	67.9	554.8	550.6
Equinox	57.8	47.5	250.1	236.0
Flare A.	104.0	97.3	959.1	905.5
Macleans (52X) A.	213.0	248.0	1,307.1	1,464.8
Moneywise	55.9	46.3	370.7	390.9
Reader's Digest:
Canadian-English A.	70.6	57.9	566.1	729.5
Canadian-French A.	61.0	52.5	433.3	606.4
Toronto Life	162.7	221.0	1,097.0	1,062.2
Vancouver	109.5	110.1	773.7	843.5
Total Group	1,265.2	1,280.2	8,966.5	9,618.0
% change		-1.2%		-6.8%

Civic/fraternal

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
American Legion	34.8	26.7	375.2	273.7
Elks (10X)	20.6	22.2	196.2	187.9
Kiwanis	18.6	18.8	179.5	181.3
Lion (10X)	7.0	8.0	83.8	64.6
Rotarian	17.5	17.0	165.8	164.2
V.F.W. (11X)	33.4	31.5	320.0	286.6
Total Group	131.9	124.2	1,320.5	1,158.3
% change		6.2%		14.0%

Comics

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Archie Comics Group	5.0	3.0	69.0	43.0
DC Comics	7.0	4.5	71.0	58.5
Marvel Comics Group	9.0	8.0	98.5	78.0
Total Group	21.0	15.5	238.5	179.5
% change		35.5%		32.9%

General

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
American Health (10X)	77.7	64.7	658.1	565.6
American Heritage (7X)	48.2	—	237.0	85.1
American West (6X)	28.7	33.0	213.2	234.2
The Atlantic A.	81.9	75.3	419.1	424.5
Bon Appetit A.	117.0	129.2	906.6	906.2
Changing Times	90.9	81.6	705.0	582.4
Conde Nast's Traveler	45.0	—	158.0	—
Connoisseur	142.4	135.4	893.2	817.2
Consumers Digest (6X)	32.1	23.3	145.3	173.2
Ebony	109.7	101.2	1,022.1	1,024.8
Fifty Plus	39.9	46.6	423.9	402.3
Food & Wine	100.7	91.7	657.2	597.0
Games (6X)	15.2	15.1	91.6	201.4
Golden Years	42.6	37.6	434.5	289.5
Gourmet	182.8	157.1	1,166.3	1,047.3
Harper's A.	33.1	23.9	336.1	247.3
Harrowsmith (6X)	46.0	38.0	289.0	237.0
Let's Live	46.0	56.0	503.0	547.0
Life	63.7	234.7	511.8	735.3
Mature Outlook	53.9	44.5	46.3	44.5
Modern Maturity (6X)	50.6	54.2	228.3	228.5
Money	165.8	155.8	1,417.5	1,344.8
Money Maker	8.0	—	36.8	—
Moneyworth (4X)	—	—	34.2	30.5
Mother Jones (9X)	—	—	118.9	136.1
National Geographic Traveler(4X)	—	—	117.0	106.2
Prevention	63.4	70.2	683.0	682.3
Psychology Today	41.0	40.2	333.0	328.9
Reader's Digest A.	174.9	133.8	1,061.0	1,057.2
Saturday Evening Post (9X)	36.4	40.5	325.8	306.7
Smithsonian	134.1	110.3	961.6	888.6
Sylvia Porter's Personal Finance (10X)	53.1	47.2	447.1	390.8
Town & Country	235.5	233.2	1,520.4	1,464.6
Travel-Holiday	45.2	45.9	576.2	478.3
Travel & Leisure	163.5	124.5	1,126.2	1,160.3
Vanity Fair	104.2	75.2	762.0	519.3
Writer's Digest	33.8	29.8	313.5	278.9
Yankee	104.7	107.4	894.5	859.0
Total Group	2,811.5	2,656.8	20,774.0	19,422.9
% change		5.8%		7.0%

Home

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Americana (6X)	19.0	15.4	126.7	151.8
Architectural Digest A.	232.2	207.0	1,449.7	1,419.7
Better Homes & Gardens	180.2	144.6	1,277.6	1,213.5
Colonial Homes (6X)	59.3	69.4	379.6	391.7
Columbus Monthly-Homes (4X)	—	—	121.1	105.4
Country Home (6X)	356.1	299.6	78.3	63.3
Country Living	108.0	86.7	984.1	814.1
Family Handyman (10X) A.	40.5	45.9	519.5	534.0
Flower & Garden (6X)	—	—	212.0	190.6
Home	59.6	47.4	579.6	545.4
Home Mechanics	60.4	51.3	646.0	636.7
The Homeowner (10X)	30.6	26.0	325.4	282.2
Horticulture	34.3	33.0	398.2	391.8
House Beautiful	97.1	84.2	811.1	793.4
House & Garden	134.3	137.3	1,069.4	1,068.8
Houston Home & Garden	59.8	82.7	769.1	822.6
Metropolis	62.2	54.8	585.6	385.0
Metropolitan Home	105.7	67.4	740.1	632.9
1,001 Home Ideas	65.0	56.9	576.9	511.7
Phoenix Home/Garden	124.8	65.7	833.8	761.5
Practical Homeowner	39.9	38.5	426.1	467.7
Rodale's Organic Gardening	31.2	41.5	519.0	604.8
South Florida Home/Garden	36.5	33.2	340.1	350.3
Southern Accents (6X)	100.9	105.5	601.0	596.7
Southern Living	164.9	171.0	1,348.4	1,545.8
Sunset Magazine A.	162.5	156.4	1,366.1	1,503.7
Workbench (6X)	54.1	43.1	281.7	279.6
Total Group	2,419.1	2,164.4	17,366.1	17,064.7
% change		11.8%		1.8%

In-flight & other passenger

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Alaska Airlines	54.9	60.0	599.7	643.8
America West Airlines	58.4	35.5	558.9	276.8
American Way (24X)	180.3	117.1	1,269.9	1,080.8
Brighton Inflight Group:
Continental	46.2	35.0	500.5	346.5
Hawaiian Air (6X)	17.8	—	100.8	—
East/West Network:
Eastern Review	76.0	103.2	743.8	1,075.5
Northwest	53.8	58.3	522.5	513.2
PSA Magazine	83.3	134.3	913.3	1,025.9
Pan Am Clipper	71.7	44.0	502.8	484.5
Spirit	68.5	95.3	664.4	1,056.6
TWA Ambassador	63.3	64.2	558.7	108.5
Vis 'A Vis	85.8	116.2	669.6	1,058.0
Halsey Publications:
Delta Sky	100.0	95.2	909.2	836.5
US Air	72.3	54.9	586.5	510.7
Piedmont Airlines' Pace	100.0	94.3	1,000.0	917.4
Spirit of Aloha (6X)	34.1	26.4	345.1	301.9
Total Group	1,166.5	1,133.9	10,445.7	10,236.6
% change		2.9%		2.0%

Men's

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Esquire A.	116.8	136.8	1,015.6	1,089.7
Firehouse Magazine	45.9	52.8	506.8	501.9
Gentlemen's Quarterly A.	198.7	182.2	1,741.3	1,749.7
M Magazine	74.8	71.8	832.2	698.9
Muscle & Fitness	131.0	111.3	1,368.4	1,211.1
Penthouse A.	40.3	33.9	447.0	406.3
Playboy A.	72.8	61.8	601.2	659.7
Salute (8X)	34.7	25.6	215.9	116.6
Total Group	715.0	676.2	6,728.3	6,433.8
% change		5.7%		4.6%

Metropolitan

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Aloha (6X)	35.8	33.2	187.2	180.3
Atlanta	81.3	61.5	673.3	586.1
Baltimore	111.9	104.4	860.9	882.1
Boston	211.9	217.9	1,818.3	1,745.0
California	57.9	74.2	677.5	703.1
Chicago	143.6	180.1	1,180.7	1,485.9
Chicago's North Shore	108.1	112.2	950.6	928.2
Cincinnati	71.1	88.2	702.6	721.5
Cleveland	62.5	85.0	749.6	783.3
Coast (39X)	51.4	60.7	2,028.7	2,340.6
Columbus Monthly	76.5	84.2	802.4	780.2
Connecticut	109.7	89.8	1,109.6	1,035.9
D/Magazine, Dallas/Ft. Worth	136.1	130.2	1,232.9	1,341.4
Denver	40.2	40.8	401.0	397.7
Detroit Monthly	197.0	144.4	974.5	880.9
Grand Rapids	56.7	52.3	472.9	444.6
Gulfshore Life (10X)	76.2	75.0	766.0	676.0
Honolulu	191.4	105.6	798.8	707.3
Louisiana Life (6X)	41.7	57.0	238.0	248.9
Madison	61.9	68.0	692.9	667.6
Memphis	85.0	86.5	889.0	821.5
Metropolitan Detroit	158.0	98.5	824.1	841.5
Miami/South Florida	110.7	74.9	634.8	712.4
Mid Atlantic Country	35.1	31.0	383.7	438.2
Milwaukee	83.8	86.0	688.4	733.6
Minneapolis/St. Paul	129.2	135.6	1,155.8	1,105.5
New England Monthly	60.8	54.1	501.0	435.4
New Jersey Monthly	103.9	91.5	1,046.2	884.2
Ohio	70.4	63.2	678.6	680.1
Oregon (6X)	—	—	232.0	—
Orlando	83.0	103.0	1,025.5	1,067.0
Palm Beach Life	83.1	90.8	683.5	658.6
Palm Springs Life	107.0	114.9	1,252.8	1,210.7
Philadelphia	191.4	173.7	1,669.2	1,492.4
Phoenix	72.1	174.2	730.6	1,065.0
Pittsburgh	91.0	92.5	765.2	746.5
St. Louis	61.9	61.1	605.9	543.0
San Diego	185.7	158.6	1,553.0	1,500.0
San Francisco Focus	159.9	126.6	1,119.7	1,059.8
Texas Monthly	135.8	155.8	1,103.9	1,349.7
Twin Cities	79.3	77.3	777.4	618.3
The Virginian (6X)	62.5	53.3	361.1	347.8
Washington (7X)	67.0	62.5	367.0	373.5
The Washingtonian	268.5	210.0	1,752.3	1,703.9
Total Group	4,408.0	4,240.3	38,118.7	37,925.4
% change		4.0%		0.5%

Movie/romance/radio/tv

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Macfadden's Women's Group:
Modern Romances	28.6	27.5	275.6	242.8
Secrets	28.6	27.5	275.6	242.8
True Confessions	28.6	27.5	275.6	242.8
True Experience	28.6	27.5	275.6	242.8
True Love	28.6	27.5	275.6	242.8
True Romance	28.6	27.5	275.6	242.8
Sterling Women's Group:
Daytime TV	25.8	25.5	273.2	280.7
Modern Screen (6X)	—	—	73.5	79.2
Movie Mirror (6X)	—	—	14.5	18.5
Soap Opera Stars (6X)	—	—	82.5	78.6
TV Movie Screen (6X)	—	—	38.5	42.8
TV Picture Life (6X)	5.0	—	34.3	14.2
Total Group	202.2	190.3	2,170.0	1,971.0
% change		6.2%		10.1%

Music/entertainment

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Audio	109.5	98.0	1,118.6	1,043.6
Dance Magazine	51.1	50.2	519.4	452.5
Playbill	56.9	59.5	504.4	505.3
Stereo Review	123.4	120.7	848.6	812.9
Video Magazine	76.3	86.0	755.6	817.0
Total Group	417.2	414.4	3,746.5	3,631.3
% change		0.7%		3.2%

National Sunday magazines

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Parade (52X)	59.3	67.4	558.8	595.1
Total Group	59.3	67.4	558.8	595.1
% change		-12.1%		-6.1%

Outdoor & sport

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Alaska	48.9	42.0	388.9	468.1
The American Handgunner (6X)	59.0	36.0	290.0	229.0
American Hunter	26.2	24.1	277.7	276.2
American Rifleman	23.3	25.6	245.8	236.5
Bass Master (10X) A.	41.3	56.5	584.3	497.5
Bicycling (9X)	—	47.6	817.6	686.9
Ducks Unlimited (6X)	40.6	44.6	217.5	210.6
Field & Stream	80.2	97.0	925.4	996.6
Fishing World (6X)	20.6	25.7	210.8	219.0
Florida Sportsman	93.1	91.3	1,281.3	1,155.7
Golf Digest	85.8	64.0	1,098.7	1,018.1
Golf Magazine	68.8	43.5	817.7	718.7
Gun Dog (6X)	59.0	42.7	242.2	218.0
Guns	49.0	38.0	375.0	350.0
Guns & Ammo	66.5	57.0	556.8	559.4
In-Fisherman (6X)	47.0	43.0	468.0	412.7
Outdoor Life	88.4	75.9	907.2	853.4
Outside Magazine	61.3	68.6	598.6	540.2
Petersen's Hunting	70.8	80.0	610.8	599.0
Runner's World (12X)	44.7	29.3	410.5	339.4
Salt Water Sportsman	78.1	61.3	1,118.6	950.1
Sierra (6X)	46.0	43.0	241.4	256.4
Shooting Times	38.3	41.2	418.8	413.8
Ski (8X) A.	168.3	144.9	793.5	697.1
Skiing (7X) A.	213.0	221.0	831.3	743.6
Skin Diver	106.9	94.1	1,147.8	1,014.8
Southern Outdoors (9X)	50.8	57.8	275.2	398.2
Southern Outdoors Saltwater(8X)	—	—	224.4	—
Sport	43.0	49.3	445.2	415.2
Sports Afield	50.0	63.0	902.6	784.8
Tennis	66.2	55.8	800.6	784.3
Waterski (8X)	48.3	48.3	493.6	395.5
Western Outdoors (10X)	31.5	31.8	414.5	434.7
Wildfowl (6X)	—	—	90.2	77.8
Wing & Shot (6X)	24.5	17.9	99.4	27.9
World Tennis	58.4	18.0	400.9	318.4
Total Group	2,098.2	1,978.7	20,022.9	18,297.2
% change		6.0%		9.4%

Photography

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
American Photographer	—	—	—	—

(X) Represents the number of times published each year; publications are monthly unless otherwise specified.

A. Sectional linage included but prorated to circulation of regional editions. B. Sectional linage included but not prorated to circulation of regional editions. C. Combined unduplicated regional ads.

All figures represented in this chart are supplied by the magazines. ADVERTISING AGE makes no attempt to verify them and, therefore, is not responsible for inconsistencies or errors.

(Continued on Page 82)

(Continued from Page 81)

NOVEMBER

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Petersen's Photographic	44.2	31.1	314.5	284.1
Popular Photography	105.3	81.5	779.5	661.1
Total Group	149.5	112.6	1,094.0	945.2
% change		32.8%		15.7%

— Religious —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Charisma	61.3	54.1	572.0	564.4
Christian Herald (11X)	25.5	28.2	276.4	280.9
Christianity Today (18X)	72.5	69.5	517.9	505.4
Ministries Today (6X)	36.0	43.8	234.7	256.5
Moody Monthly	54.8	49.0	355.3	426.8
Our Sunday Visitor (52X)	18.9	15.1	158.3	126.6
Today's Christian Woman (6X)	39.7	58.0	229.9	203.3
Total Group	308.7	317.8	2,344.5	2,363.9
% change		-2.9%		-0.8%

— Science/electronic /mechanic —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Discover	49.6	59.9	485.0	383.8
Family & Home Office Computing	60.6	63.5	469.9	476.5
Omni	86.7	80.8	671.2	651.5
Personal Computing	267.1	133.2	1,913.9	1,374.6
Popular Mechanics	90.8	89.7	923.6	1,010.9
Popular Science	89.7	68.7	777.5	741.0
Scientific American	72.9	56.3	496.0	391.6
Spectrum	77.7	90.3	725.7	913.6
Total Group	795.0	642.4	6,462.8	5,943.3
% change		23.8%		8.7%

— Woman/fashion/service —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Bride's Magazine (6X) A.	—	—	2,097.8	1,775.4
Cosmopolitan A.	257.1	233.7	2,238.3	2,274.8
Essence	83.7	87.2	854.0	891.0
Family Circle (17X) A.	137.4	147.3	1,455.4	1,592.6
Glamour	212.0	201.8	2,087.6	2,008.6
Good Housekeeping A.	172.6	218.5	1,547.8	1,780.2
Harper's Bazaar	165.5	167.0	1,512.4	1,597.6
Health	50.0	49.2	522.2	446.6
Ladies' Home Journal	147.9	145.5	1,159.1	1,233.3
Mademoiselle	184.0	165.6	1,668.4	1,496.4
McCall's	124.1	123.4	1,043.3	1,032.6
Military Lifestyle	68.6	69.2	509.7	522.2
Modern Bride (6X)	177.0	185.7	1,721.5	1,534.7
Ms.	42.5	41.2	473.9	432.9
New Woman	80.4	81.3	887.1	811.3
Parents Magazine A.	176.7	148.9	1,250.5	1,104.3
Redbook	121.9	137.9	1,120.1	1,066.6
Savvy	40.3	44.0	350.8	327.4
Self	132.9	152.2	1,133.8	1,094.5
Seventeen	122.0	116.3	1,378.8	1,295.4
Shape	73.1	67.5	805.5	791.9
Soap Opera Digest (26X)	17.6	19.9	210.6	200.9
'Teen Magazine	59.7	45.7	658.9	576.7
True Story A.	61.1	56.6	546.4	529.9
Vogue	306.5	330.2	3,078.9	2,989.9
W Magazine	156.4	119.2	1,425.1	1,287.4
Woman (9X)	40.0	—	290.0	161.5
Weight Watchers	32.5	38.2	350.3	372.8
Woman's Day (16X) A.	163.8	148.6	1,554.9	1,504.4
Women's Sports & Fitness	—	—	—	—
Workbasket	37.7	34.5	328.4	350.1
Working Mother	129.1	123.6	918.7	834.7
Working Woman	141.0	194.5	1,075.9	1,207.8
Total Group	3,715.0	3,694.1	36,256.0	35,126.6
% change		0.6%		3.2%

— Youth —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Boys' Life	22.7	16.0	190.3	180.9
Campus Life (10X)	41.3	41.0	413.3	396.7
Total Group	64.0	57.0	603.5	577.6
% change		12.2%		4.5%

OCTOBER

— Business/national —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Barron's	248.1	215.4	2,114.3	1,873.4
Black Enterprise	70.9	66.8	696.9	728.8
Business Week (52X) A.	596.3	395.8	3,588.4	3,072.2
Business Month	—	—	—	—
Financial World (26X)	56.5	47.6	593.6	548.4
Forbes (26X)	504.5	459.1	2,867.7	2,708.0
Fortune (26X)	467.8	362.1	2,469.3	2,307.3
Frequent Flyer	60.0	67.2	576.3	605.4
Futures	98.2	46.3	615.7	486.3
Inc. Magazine A.	—	—	—	—
Income Opportunities	93.1	65.7	687.1	535.5
Industry Week (25X) A.	91.6	102.9	803.4	949.7
Nation's Business (12X) A.	46.2	41.6	334.7	342.3
Personal Investor (6X)	—	—	—	—
Venture	76.5	82.4	642.4	695.5
Total Group	2,409.7	1,953.0	15,989.7	14,852.8
% change		23.4%		7.7%

— Business/regional —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Advantage-Nashville's Bus. Mo.	—	—	—	—
Arizona Bus. Gazette (52X)	57.1	40.6	379.3	324.8
Baltimore Bus. Journal	106.0	92.8	889.1	665.4
Boston Bus. Journal (52X)	142.6	141.7	1,392.8	1,334.0
Business Atlanta	94.8	114.5	641.9	688.4
Business First of Buffalo	—	—	—	—
Business First of Columbus	151.3	81.2	1,100.4	826.2
Business Journal-Milwaukee	132.0	128.5	1,271.0	1,057.1
Business Journal-Sacramento	60.1	66.7	658.7	473.6
Business North Carolina	50.5	49.3	453.5	433.5
Capital Dist. Bus. Review (52X)	78.7	—	793.7	—
Cincinnati Business Courier	128.5	113.6	1,111.6	800.1
Corporate Report Kansas City	27.4	31.2	235.2	275.3
Corporate Report Minnesota	79.0	78.0	758.0	788.0
Crain's Chicago Bus. (52X)	212.1	182.8	1,517.8	1,636.0
Crain's Cleveland Bus. (52X)	81.1	101.4	634.0	648.8
Crain's Detroit Bus. (52X)	94.4	97.3	782.0	655.4
Crain's New York Bus. (52X)	62.8	59.2	390.2	358.9
Florida Trend (13X)	—	—	—	—
Georgia Trend	71.7	69.1	676.9	546.7
Grand Rapids Bus. Journal	47.1	33.9	469.0	357.3
Hawaii Business	38.5	43.5	463.6	470.4
Houston Bus. Journal (52X)	88.8	62.8	692.0	832.0
Indianapolis Bus. Journal (52X)	—	—	—	—
Kansas City Bus. Journal	—	—	—	—
Los Angeles Bus. Journal(55X)	90.1	47.9	787.7	362.3
Manhattan Inc.	98.2	94.2	749.4	705.0
New England Bus. (20X) A.	57.8	108.4	634.6	811.3
New Orleans City Business	—	—	—	—
Pacific Bus. News (52X)	111.3	111.0	1,159.3	1,172.7
Philadelphia Bus. Journal (52X)	172.9	155.0	1,385.7	1,274.4
Pittsburgh Bus. Times (52X)	140.3	124.6	1,233.9	1,102.8
Providence Business News	75.0	43.0	693.7	235.2
Regardie's/Washington	174.0	167.0	1,442.0	1,289.0
San Diego Bus. Journal (52X)	36.8	48.9	321.5	351.5
San Jose Bus. Journal	—	—	—	—
South Florida Bus. Journal	91.5	91.3	1,032.9	1,121.3
St. Louis Bus. Journal (52X)	148.4	143.0	1,289.6	1,395.8
Texas Business	40.3	56.3	344.3	573.1
Warfields Monthly Baltimore	75.7	394.4	664.6	78.6
Total Group	3,116.7	3,173.0	27,050.0	23,644.8
% change		-1.8%		14.4%

— National Sunday magazines —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Parade (52X)	53.3	60.9	499.5	527.7
USA Weekend (52X)	41.2	48.0	391.7	497.5
Total Group	94.5	108.9	891.2	1,025.2
% change		-13.2%		-13.1%

— Newspaper Sunday magazines —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Boston Globe	186.4	195.5	1,809.2	1,824.1
Chicago Tribune	166.9	89.6	1,091.9	871.9
Cleveland Plain Dealer	76.9	66.0	621.7	535.8
Columbus Dispatch	23.9	78.6	339.5	432.4
Detroit News	87.0	78.0	713.0	753.0
L.A. Times	77.5	68.2	609.1	677.3
Louisville Courier-Journal	52.0	67.0	528.0	599.0
Miami Herald	51.0	75.2	375.0	465.2
New York Times Magazine	411.1	421.6	3,314.0	3,286.7
Philadelphia Inquirer	120.7	73.5	755.7	660.5
Seattle Times	100.0	89.0	620.0	593.0
St. Louis Post Dispatch	87.3	54.1	731.3	561.4
Toledo Blade Magazine	34.6	38.1	388.1	452.7
Washington Post	136.1	154.6	1,247.9	1,260.2
Total Group	1,611.4	1,549.0	13,144.4	12,973.2
% change		4.0%		1.3%

— Weeklies/bi-weeklies —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
The Advocate (26X)	130.8	107.7	1,371.3	1,279.3
Army Times Military Group:
Air Force Times (52X)	180.3	172.1	1,648.7	1,764.5
Army Times (52X)	177.0	163.5	1,604.4	1,654.9
Navy Times (52X)	196.7	189.0	1,790.5	1,852.6
The Blood-Horse (52X)	267.3	467.6	3,313.3	3,788.4
Capper's (26X)	19.2	33.7	265.2	274.1
Commonweal (22X)	6.6	9.7	76.1	66.3
Golf World (43X)	79.5	35.3	970.5	823.4
Grit (52X) A.	28.0	28.9	271.3	246.7
National Journal (50X)	110.3	99.8	665.8	591.4
National Review (25X)	—	—	—	—
New Republic (48X)	56.3	41.5	399.5	354.0
New York Magazine (50X)	320.3	291.9	2,457.5	2,445.1
New Yorker	292.5	322.5	1,895.0	2,036.9
Newsweek (52X) A.	275.9	266.0	2,039.0	1,972.4
People (52X)	316.9	302.7	2,759.8	2,910.8
Rolling Stone (25X)	132.1	144.9	1,335.6	1,110.4
Sporting News (52X)	63.3	51.2	522.5	507.3
Sports Illustrated (52X) A.	264.5	248.5	2,099.8	2,165.3
Time (52X) A.	242.8	275.1	1,869.7	2,035.8
Travelhost (52X) C.	3,518.5	3,195.0	32,064.0	32,200.0
TV Guide (52X) A.	394.3	311.5	3,039.0	2,869.4
TV Update (52X) C.	—	—	—	—
Us Magazine (26X)	51.6	44.3	463.9	401.6
U.S. News & World Report (52X) A.	167.3	129.2	1,274.8	1,247.3
Total Group	7,291.9	6,931.7	64,197.3	64,597.9
% change		5.2%		-0.6%

— Foreign —

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Business Week Int'l (52X)	201.7	164.0	1,188.1	1,304.2
De Armas Publications:
Geomundo:
Argentina	7.0	4.0	38.0	15.0
Central America	9.0	6.0	61.0	40.0
Chile	6.0	7.0	47.0	45.0
Colombia	14.0	14.0	126.5	82.8
Ecuador	7.5	7.0	55.5	36.0
Mexico	8.7	14.0	82.2	88.2
Peru	5.0	5.0	49.0	30.0
Puerto Rico	8.0	3.0	56.0	28.5
U.S.	7.0	5.7	45.7	48.3
Venezuela	21.5	10.5	174.5	126.5
Hombre De Mundo:
Central America	9.0	5.0	57.0	49.3
Chile	8.0	4.0	54.0	49.3
Colombia	32.0	16.0	138.3	142.0
Ecuador	7.0	4.0	50.0	42.3
Mexico	25.0	31.7	107.0	161.7
Peru	4.0	3.0	34.0	29.3
Puerto Rico	9.5	3.0	61.5	40.3
U.S.	8.3	14.0	124.5	98.7
Venezuela	26.5	16.5	174.0	180.8
Ideas Para Su Hogar:
Argentina	4.0	6.3	21.7	18.2
Colombia	16.2	21.0	123.8	113.2
Ecuador	3.0	4.0	24.5	21.0
Mexico	13.0	19.3	96.3	85.8
Peru	2.0	2.0	53.5	29.0
Puerto Rico	—	—	—	0.2
U.S.	2.0	4.0	45.5	43.0
Venezuela	18.5	5.0	111.5	86.7
Mecanica Popular:
Argentina	12.3	7.7	78.8	47.3
Central America	12.7	12.3	89.7	88.3
Chile	7.7	7.0	46.3	45.3
Colombia	23.0	22.3	184.7	151.3
Mexico	27.0	23.7	181.7	124.0
Peru	15.3	14.8	128.2	111.7
Puerto Rico	10.3	10.0	75.5	67.5
U.S.	3.2	5.2	39.2	57.7
Venezuela	18.3	22.0	144.0	116.2
Vanidades Continental:
Argentina	13.2	3.0	155.5	76.8
Central America	32.3	20.0	180.7	172.3
Chile	6.7	5.7	50.8	40.7
Colombia	122.2	129.8	718.5	799.3
Ecuador	16.0	23.5	172.5	187.2
Mexico	104.0	99.5	757.3	776.0
Peru	29.3	15.8	206.2	153.8
Puerto Rico	35.7	34.8	343.7	309.3
U.S.	52.5	54.2	476.7	441.0
Venezuela	70.7	56.5	424.7	384.0
Hearst International:
Buenhogar:
Central America	5.0	3.0	12.0	13.0
Chile	3.0	2.0	11.0	13.0
Colombia	53.7	48.3	327.5	324.3
Ecuador	8.0	13.5	94.0	111.0
Mexico	55.8	70.5	325.5	335.0
Peru	22.0	23.5	133.5	94.0
Puerto Rico	16.2	12.5	53.0	92.5
U.S.	11.3	19.7	185.3	200.2
Venezuela	63.5	45.2	259.5	211.0
Cosmopolitan en Espanol:
Central America	17.3	13.0	63.8	46.7
Colombia	45.8	35.3	201.8	161.3
Ecuador	2.0	2.0	20.0	2.0
Mexico	66.3	65.8	410.3	410.7
Peru	3.0	1.0	6.0	1.0
Puerto Rico	23.3	13.0	146.5	104.3
U.S.(Spanish language)	20.0	24.7	241.7	248.7
Venezuela	34.8	28.3	184.3	147.0
Cosmopolitan Foreign:
Australia	94.0	92.4	606.6	660.3
Brazil	67.0	81.9	614.6	637.6
China	58.0	55.2	442.0	429.9
France	117.0	154.2	996.6	904.8
Germany	170.0	167.2	1,216.5	1,067.9
Great Britain	162.0	148.0	1,071.0	1,100.5
Greece	52.0	52.0	383.0	402.0
Holland	113.0	114.0	664.0	695.0
Italy	98.3	103.3	729.5	657.7
Japan	51.9	53.9	478.0	482.3
South Africa	97.0	113.0	728.0	785.0
Good Housekeeping Foreign Editions:
Australia	51.0	53.0	352.9	360.7
Great Britain	190.9	182.4	1,311.0	1,247.7
International Management:
English	71.5	56.2	323.3	418.7
Middle East	12.3	16.2	61.3	113.2
Johnston International:
Alam Attijarat	21.8	30.7	231.3	332.4
Far East Business	27.7	58.5	260.1	384.5
Modern Africa (6X)	—	—	64.0	102.8
Latin America Finance (6X)	—	—	93.1	92.5
Newsweek International A.:
Atlantic (52X)	138.4	125.4	759.4	794.5
Latin America (52X)	33.1	35.4	249.6	295.1
Asia (52X)	67.9	75.6	503.4	571.0
Progreso (9X)	9.3	7.6	49.8	71.6
Reader's Digest:
Arabic	7.5	9.5	79.5	70.5
Asian	192.0	239.0	1,554.0	2,040.5
Australian	46.0	52.0	466.5	548.8
Belgian-Flemish	84.0	98.0	479.0	677.6
Belgian-French	48.0	52.0	318.5	395.1
British	81.8	75.0	493.0	471.1
Chinese B.	121.0	133.0	896.9	1,021.8
Danish	43.0	45.5	294.8	321.9
Dutch	69.8	68.8	378.4	377.4
Finnish	42.5	48.3	436.5	445.9
French	34.5	34.3	249.5	151.7
German	118.2	88.5	730.2	611.4
Iberian	—	5.0	2.0	17.5
Indian-English	83.0	94.5	707.0	698.0
Indian-Hindi	5.0	20.0	113.0	97.0
Italian	67.0	45.0	460.5	330.0
Korean	26.0	22.5	343.1	255.8
Latin American:
Argentina	24.0	21.5	125.0	132.5
Brazil	—	—	—	18.0
Central American	4.0	10.0	39.0	70.0
Chile	22.0	26.0	116.0	126.0
Colombia	38.0	27.0	258.0	210.0
Ecuador	4.0	9.0	28.0	61.0
Mexico	75.9	84.1	592.1	566.5
Peru	3.0	10.0	34.0	72.0
Puerto Rico	2.0	3.0	32.0	45.5
U.P.B.	3.0	10.0	31.5	62.0
U.S. Spanish	8.5	11.0	89.0	156.5
Venezuela	3.0	8.5	35.0	63.0
New Zealand	51.3	68.0	480.3	549.3
Norwegian	25.8	8.5	162.6	73.0
Portugal	52.0	39.0	393.5	380.0
South African	112.5	106.0	733.0	782.5
Swedish	8.0	15.5	68.0	130.5
Swiss-French	41.0	32.0	235.5	218.3
Swiss-German	65.0	39.0	335.0	278.0
Time International:
Time-Asia	109.9	84.8	545.1	679.2
Time-Atlantic	161.2	138.8	849.2	924.9
Time-Canada	216.9	235.4	1,454.6	1,716.2
Time-Latin America	43.0	43.1	311.4	426.8
Visao (52X)	148.2	229.0	1,083.7	1,408.7
Vision/Latin America (24X) A.	40.0	39.8	259.6	273.7
Total Group	5,592.5	5,593.8	38,813.2	40,263.9
% change		0.0%		-3.6%

How to join the ad world

Students learn the right pitch to land a job in tight market

An Advertising Age roundup

Between agency mergers, huge account shifts and economic turmoil, the jobs get fewer and the jobless get tougher.

With increasing numbers of agency veterans competing for jobs, the prospect for students of advertising dims.

The job market is the tightest it has ever been, said Richard Wilde, media arts department chairman of the School of Visual Arts, New York.

"Students sense that something's up, that the business is going through a transition," said Gerry Contreras, communications design department chairman and professor, Pratt Institute, New York.

The industry mergers have "affected even the entry-level jobs. They are simply harder to get because there are fewer of them," Mr. Wilde said.

Even with entry-level positions, agencies "want people with training," said Sumner Wyman, instructor of the InterAd course at American Graduate School of International Management, Glendale, Ariz., and president of Scottsdale-based Wyman Associates, a marketing consultancy. "Agencies do not want neophytes."

To compete for those jobs, students are looking carefully at how they will market themselves.

"My teachers have stressed over and over that we have to position ourselves, that we have to use creative strategies and targeted self-promotion," said Tom Lunt, a copywriting student at the Portfolio Center, Atlanta.

Portfolio Center students have "done a lot of research about where we'd like to work. We look at not just the agency structure but also at the types of products they work with, then position ourselves to them," Mr. Lunt said.

Portfolios

The students' biggest tool in selling themselves is their portfolios.

Most of the homework assignments at the Portfolio Center are designed to spice up a student's portfolio, said Norm Grey, creative director of Gillis, Townsend, Bowes, Hanlon and a Portfolio Center instructor. "We try really hard to avoid a cookie-cutter portfolio.

"When people come in for a job interview, so many of their portfolios look alike. . . . I have my students go pick out store brands that aren't advertised . . . and have them do ads and TV commercials for it."

The School of Visual Arts places greater emphasis on campaigns in portfolios instead of just single ads.

Problems arise when students develop portfolios based not on their own personalities, but on what they believe will get them a job, said Bryan Birch, instructor at the Art Center College of Design, Pasadena, Calif., and senior VP-creative director for BBDO Worldwide, Los Angeles. "Chances are, if an agency does not like your portfolio, it won't like you."

Rather, he tells students to find ads they like. "They will discover that all of those ads were probably created by two or three agencies" and should apply at those shops, he said.

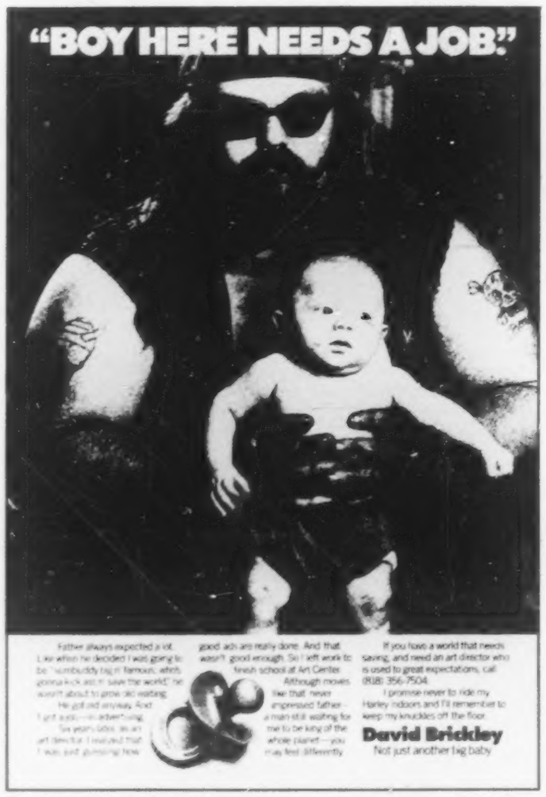
David Brickley, a recent Art Center graduate, did just that. He developed a self-promotion piece that eventually landed him the position of free-lance art director with San Francisco-based Hal Riney & Partners. The mailer featured a large photograph of a rough-looking biker holding a baby. It was headlined "Boy here needs a job." Mr. Brickley said Riney was looking for "someone who could think."

Agency exposure

Teachers advise students to get as much exposure to agencies as possible, including portfolio reviews attended by agency executives and interviewing. Most of the schools employ agency executives to teach classes; some even hold classes in their shops' offices.

Many of Pratt's 44 faculty members are from New York ad agencies, Mr. Contreras said. The 100 faculty members at the School of Visual Arts represent such agencies as DDB Needham Worldwide; Della Femina, Travisano & Partners; and Scali, McCabe, Sloves. Portfolio Center instructors all work full time in the ad business.

Carole Jankowski, a copywriter at Young & Rubicam, and Art Harris, an art director there, gave their Pratt class a project that gave the professionals trouble, a campaign for a Johnson & Johnson sunblock lotion endorsed by pediatricians.



"BOY HERE NEEDS A JOB."
David Brickley
Not just another big baby

It takes imagination to sell yourself to ad agencies these days—especially if you're fresh out of school. David Brickley, a graduate from the Art Center College of Design, Pasadena, Calif., used this piece to land a job with Hal Riney & Partners, San Francisco.

"It was a challenging kind of real scenario. You got to question, 'Can I cut it in the real world?' " said Maureen Volpe, a student in the class.

Some schools simulate not only professional advertising experience but also agency structure. In American Graduate School's InterAd course, four teams of six students become mock agencies and develop an international advertising and marketing campaign for a client.

To give his students the edge, Mr. Wilde of the School of Visual Arts schedules a portfolio review and luncheon a week after commencement for his graduates, 50 top art directors and personnel from the best agencies.

"I've started the networking [for the students] to meet these people and to get criticism and a sense of the real world," Mr. Wilde said.

The Portfolio Center also hosts a review for its students. In addition, the students face a quarterly critique in which a panel must approve their work before they can sign up for the next quarter.

Job interviewing also gives students exposure to agencies.

One of American Graduate School's recent alumni, David Burnett, an assistant account executive at Grey Direct, New York, found interviewing to be an encouraging experience.

"Even if the interviewer did not have a position available in his area, if he liked you he would try to get you into the organization through another channel," he said.

Smaller agencies, markets

Because larger markets are especially crowded with experienced professionals, some students are looking to smaller markets and lower-profile shops to break into the industry.

"Five years ago students were totally geared to the Top 15 to 20 consumer advertising agencies; now they are open to any agency," said the School of Visual Arts' Mr. Wilde.

Any agency in New York, that is. The industry "is seeing marvelous stuff from Minneapolis, Texas, etc., but my gut feeling is . . . New York is still the capital of advertising," and students want to stay there, he said.

Boutique agencies are "absolutely a viable alternative if [students] do a tutelage with a top principal," Mr. Wilde said.

Kevin Brown, who is majoring in art direction and graphic design at Pratt, last summer landed a job in a small graphics design company, learning the basics from the company's president. But his main interest is advertising, and his goal is to land a job with an agency in the U.S. or abroad.

Mr. Brown sees one advantage to a smaller agency. "The largest agencies are restricted a lot more—they're not as free to do advertising that's experimental. They're restricted by their clients," he said.

Related fields

Another option for students unable to crack the advertising industry is to pursue a job in a related field. For example, Portfolio Center students are advised to look for jobs at design studios, direct-marketing companies, in-house client departments and other advertising-related companies.

While most of the advertising students at the School of Visual Arts are not looking to related fields, graphic design majors are targeting those areas, Mr. Wilde said. His advertising students still are "interested in the science of persuasion, not just promotion."

Another valuable asset is internship. Students at the School of Visual Arts are given a chance to intern at a major agency. Of 60 seniors, 20 are chosen. One-third of the 20 eventually are hired by the agency, Mr. Wilde said. If the students are not paid, they get class credit.

Despite the tightened job market, students remain optimistic.

"I tell my students, 'Don't get panicky, there is always room at the bottom,' " said American Graduate School's Mr. Wyman.

The Art Center's Mr. Birch agreed. "Agencies are looking for sparks wherever they can find them."#

Betsy Spethmann in Chicago wrote this story from reports by Laura Loro in Philadelphia; Jo Beth McDaniel in Atlanta; and Marie Spadoni in Phoenix, Ariz.

Agency layoffs

(Continued from Page 3)

production divisions.

Many of the agencies posting job declines in 1987 also spent 1986 reducing their staffs.

JWT Group, before its takeover this year by WPP Group, pared jobs in 1986 at its J. Walter Thompson USA unit to shore up profits.

For three merger-created agencies—Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt; DDB Needham Worldwide; and DMB&B—1987 also shapes up as a second straight year of staff cutbacks.

During 1986, newly formed DDB Needham, created by the merger of Doyle Dane Bernbach and Needham Harper Worldwide, reduced staff by 325; JWT cut by 126; Saatchi & Saatchi Compton—before its merger with DFS Dorland Worldwide—by 106; DMB&B by 79; and Ogilvy & Mather U.S. by 70.

And if the plunging stock market leads into a recession, a third year of belt tightening probably is in store, many sources believe.

The ebb and flow in job counts among these agencies partially reflects won and lost business.

After winning the $100 million U.S. Army recruiting account this year, Young & Rubicam added about 200 jobs to its staff to service it.

At J. Walter Thompson USA, about 100 jobs disappeared when the $200 million Burger King Corp. account was lost to N W Ayer.

Staff consolidations and agency spin-offs also have accelerated the downward trend in job counts at the top agencies.

Agency managements also are caught in a vise between shareholders' desire for stable and improving profits and client demands for more efficient, less costly services. That has focused more attention on staffing.

Outside the 10 largest U.S. agency employers, the agencies ranked No. 12 and No. 13 in U.S. advertising employment also reported staff declines thus far in 1987.

BBDO Worldwide said that, as of August, it had 1,546 jobs in advertising-related work, down 7.3% from the beginning of the year. Backer Spielvogel Bates, created by the merger this year of Ted Bates Worldwide and Backer & Spielvogel, said its U.S. advertising employment as of Oct. 1 was 1,227, off 2.2% from the beginning of the year.

The No. 11 U.S. agency employer, McCann-Erickson Worldwide, reported its job count was 1,666 on Oct. 1, up only slightly from the 1,661 reported last Jan. 1. Staff numbers had risen by nearly 100 in '86.#

Richard L. Gordon and Gary Levin in Chicago contributed to this story.

Layers

(Continued from Page 3)

of a pyramid, Mr. Bloom envisions an organization in the shape of an hourglass. Positions could be eliminated through attrition, layoffs or reassignments.

"We want to provide more senior time to our clients," he said. "The idea is to cut out layers in the middle, like having five people with note pads looking at a rough cut because the client used to have those layers.

"We are trying to eliminate those layers of approval. You get people who really make a contribution."

Mr. Bloom said he could not offer a formula as to which positions would be eliminated. In some cases it might be a management supervisor and in others the title might be account supervisor, he said.

Agency executives agreed that not all accounts can be handled in this way. Large package-good companies—whose brand management approach helped create the layers—may need agencies with a broad tier of middle management.

They noted, however, that many agencies grew to match client growth. The layers came about because elevating titles became a way of keeping staffers at an agency.

"You have to put titles aside and start to organize along job function lines," Mr. Lesser said.

Howard Davis, chairman-ceo of Dallas-based Tracy-Locke, said he believes agencies still are in for more than middle-management cutbacks.

"The story is not just middle management," he said. "It is more that the industry is paying attention to expense manifestation. Very few agencies are not affected. The good old days will never return. We must do more with less. Clients want senior people, and we have to ask whether or not we are getting value for every person on the payroll."#

NEWSPAPER

11/25/87 C2710-1

© Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$1.50 a copy; $59 a year

November 23, 1987

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

JWT, Discover face uphill fight

Poor agency image

By JON LAFAYETTE

NEW YORK—J. Walter Thompson Co. plans to fight back from massive account losses by aggressively pushing for new business and shoring up its relationship with key clients, sources say.

JWT executives see that approach as the best chance to stem financial losses, boost its image and improve sagging morale among agency staffers.

The agency has lost $458.5 million in business and gained only $163.9 million that can be documented since London-based WPP Group said it would buy JWT Group last June (see chart on Page 65).

Last week JWT's Chicago office lost the $42 million Sears, Roebuck & Co. Discover card account to DDB Needham Worldwide.

That loss came on the heels of other hefty losses, including the New York office's $20 million-to-$25 million Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. account (see story on Page 65) and the $200 million Burger King

(Continued on Page 65)

Card use lagging

By LAURIE FREEMAN

The real market test for Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s Discover card is just dawning.

After two years of introductory ads proclaiming the "dawn of Discover," Sears and new agency DDB Needham Worldwide now must get people to use it.

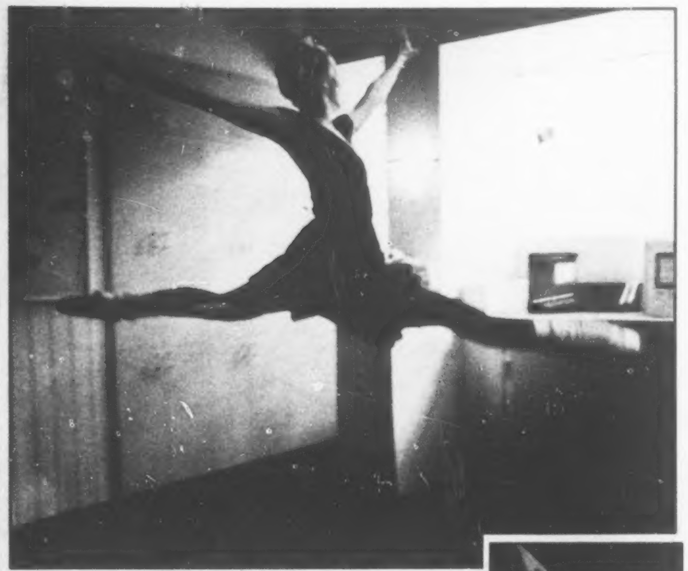
DDB Needham, Chicago, handed the $42 million account last week, appears to face a tougher challenge than former agency J. Walter Thompson USA did in getting consumers to apply for the card.

Although more than 19 million Discover cards have been issued and more than 700,000 retail and service establishments accept it, consumers still are more likely to pull out their MasterCard, Visa or American Express card for major purchases.

The account review—in which Leo Burnett USA was the third participant—was decided on the basis of marketing strategies as much as creative presentation.

Sources said executives at Sears' Dean Witter Fi-

(Continued on Page 65)



TV commercials feature people dunking Fab 1 Shot to the tune of "Sweet Georgia Brown."

Fast break

New Colgate 'pouch' scores with consumers

By LAURIE FREEMAN
and JON LAFAYETTE

Colgate-Palmolive Co.'s new "all-in-one pouch" laundry product is "flying" off store shelves even before the $35 million advertising blitz kicks into high gear this week.

Available at retail only a few weeks, Fab 1 Shot is getting a quick shot at creating—and leading—a new segment of the $3.25 billion laundry-detergent business.

"If these kinds of sales continue, we're going to have problems with out-of-stocks when they [Colgate] kick in" advertising, said a Midwestern retail executive. "Fab has been flying out of here," another retailer said.

Fab 1 Shot, a combination detergent, fabric softener and anti-static ingredient rolled national without test marketing (AA, Aug. 31), is aimed squarely at Procter & Gamble Co.'s similar Tide Multi-Action Sheets, now in test.

Although Colgate's TV spots broke Nov. 19, its marketing plan calls for a Nov. 27 "roadblock" buy of simultaneous commercials on all three major TV networks. Commercials, airing in 15, 30 and 60-second versions, will be supported by a national coupon drop Nov. 29.

Ariel Allen, VP-creative at New York-based Colgate, said the Fab 1 Shot campaign is the "largest

(Continued on Page 67)

Big issue for '88: Compensation

An Advertising Age roundup

Agency compensation looms as 1988's most significant and controversial issue for advertisers and agencies.

A festering problem for several years, compensation now threatens to overshadow creativity as the chief determinant in new-business reviews. Some agencies have turned down new accounts because of disagreements on this subject.

Whether straight commission, fee, commission-plus-fee or sliding-scale arrangements, new action is being taken on payment structures.

The changes have the potential to reshape the rules of the $100 billion-plus ad industry, some observers say.

Also, general economic conditions seem to be exacerbating the problem.

Greg Ostroff, analyst with Goldman, Sachs & Co., New York, said talk of an economic downturn next year has turned "low-key, low-level" discussions on compensation into "high-level, urgent discussions."

Since last year, the list of those arguing over compensation has grown to include some of the nation's top advertisers and agencies:

- Switzerland-based Nestle SA is asking its agencies to submit proposals on the compensation structure, with an eye to ending the company's commission-based system (see stories on Pages 18 and 61). Carnation Co., a Nestle subsidiary, already cut its commissions by more than 10% this year, meaning its agencies are getting 12% or 13% instead of 15%.
- General Foods Corp. was rearranging its compensation structure until a companywide restructuring forced it to put those plans on hold (see story on Page 60).
- Procter & Gamble Co., since acquiring Richardson-Vicks in 1985, has explored changing its compensation structure. Currently, R-V agencies are on a cost-plus-fee formula, while P&G agencies retain the 15% standard.
- Schering-Plough's Scholl USA recently selected DDB Needham Worldwide for its $7 million footwear account through a creative review. But when compensation discussions between the two broke down, DDB Needham bowed out and Della Femina, Travisano & Partners, a finalist in the re-

(Continued on Page 60)

Last Minute News

Rafting probe begins

KAMLOOPS, BRITISH COLUMBIA—Canadian officials have begun investigating the Aug. 1 rafting accident on the Chilko River in British Columbia that killed five U.S. advertising executives.

The investigation could raise important questions about liability involving business entertainment in advertising and other industries, as well as resolve troubling questions surrounding the accident. Those questions may end up the subject of lawsuits.

Coroner Robert Graham told ADVERTISING AGE he expects to issue in early December a "judgment of inquiry" detailing what happened. He also will make recommendations to the Canadian government on rafting procedures.

"We need to know whether the people in the raft were wearing life jackets, the proper head gear, following proper procedure on the river,

(Continued on Page 8)

Hot marketing ideas scarce this holiday retail season—Page 3

Inside: Second 100 Leading National Advertisers

Advertising Age
100

Kidvid tumbles

People meters make ratings dive

By VERNE GAY and JULIE LIESSE ERICKSON

The Big 3 TV networks may owe advertisers an estimated $40 million worth of Saturday morning advertising time as a result of the switch to people meters.

That change in audience measurements has dropped ratings 25% to 30% for children's programming, sources said, leaving the networks with substantial audience shortfalls and "make-good" obligations in the $150 million daypart.

The situation is so serious, TV and agency sources report, that ABC-TV is threatening to program the daypart to appeal to teens, or abandon it altogether. ABC is the third-ranked network on Saturday morning and has seen its key demographic, 2-to-11-year-olds, plummet by 21%.

Most of the inventory paybacks are expected to come from ABC. Agency sources said CBS has emerged in the best shape as its total audience has grown recently after a slow start.

However, the nets as a group have seen children viewing levels drop 29% from the same period last year.

The $40 million in paybacks is expected to represent total losses for the entire broadcast year, extending from the fourth quarter of 1987 through August 1988.

Initial response from several key cereal and toy advertisers was that they recognize the problems of measuring children's viewership but that they also expect the networks to stick to their original agreements and compensate them for the shortfalls.

"We will not renege on our obligations," said Marv Goldsmith, senior VP-national sales for New York-based ABC, who added that the audience fall-off "is a big, huge problem."

The networks and A.C. Nielsen Co. have suggested

(Continued on Page 64)

Highlights

NEWS

12 Changes brewing at Heileman
Bond Corp. Holdings' acquisition of G. Heileman Brewing Co. is not official yet, but the Australian company already is rearranging Heileman executives.

24 Real estate on the rise
Century 21 Real Estate Corp. is boosting its fourth-quarter ad budget, as Prudential Insurance Co. of America enters the real estate brokerage business with a new subsidiary.

44 'Miami Herald' revamps insert
The Miami Herald is updating its Spanish-language insert, renamed El Nuevo Herald.

51 Dairy board targets 'tweens'
To reach "tweens," the National Dairy Promotion & Research is launching a $9.3 million TV campaign aimed at 9 to 15-year-olds.

52 Actmedia buys Shelfvision
Actmedia, the $135 million POP company, reached agreement to buy rival Shelfvision.

56 EPB gains muscle in Philly
Earle Palmer Brown Cos. last week bought Spiro & Associates to strengthen its presence in Philadelphia.

62 Koch has advice for Uncle Sam
New York City Mayor Edward Koch thinks the federal government should underwrite TV commercials touting the benefits of buying products made in the U.S.A.

63 Sears' Disney dreams come true
Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s 10-year marketing contract with Walt Disney Co. indicates the retail giant's efforts to shift from mass merchandiser to specialty retailer.

INTERNATIONAL

42 Danes tune in TV spots
Advertisers are lining up to buy the first TV ad time available in Scandinavia as Denmark phases in the use of TV advertising on a new regional channel.

For fast, fast, fast relief take two tablets.

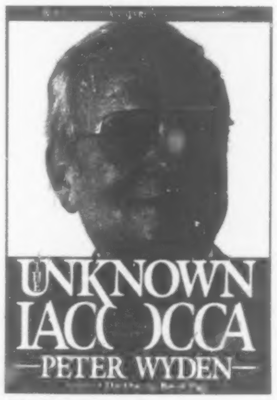
ATHENA winners. P. 50



Features

An excerpt from "The Unknown Iacocca" traces Lee Iacocca's role as Chrysler spokesman. Page 32.

Departments

Ad Review 28
Brady 38
Global Gallery 40
MediaWorks 47
PeopleWorks 46
Photo Review 48
Viewpoint 16, 18, 20

Vol. 58, No. 50—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $1.50 a copy, $59 a year, $104 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 (313) 446-0494

Industry fumes as Florida pols stall on ad tax

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

The advertising industry's war with Florida over an ad tax threatens to flare up again.

What is rankling the three major ad industry associations, as well as media representatives, is the absence of any sign from state leaders that advertising will be exempted from the state's 5% tax on services during a special December session of the state Legislature.

That tax has been on the books since July 1, but intense opposition from the ad industry and others led Gov. Bob Martinez to ask the Legislature to repeal it.

The prospect of no relief this year from the tax "would be like inviting World War IV," said DeWitt Helm Jr., president of the Association of National Advertisers. "I don't know if there are any more meetings and media that can be canceled down there, but if there are . . ."

The passage of the tax bill triggered an all-out ad industry war in Florida, including canceled meetings and ad billings, which has hurt local TV and radio stations.

Already there is talk that Gov. Martinez and legislative leaders will not convene a special December session. An October special session that was to consider changes or repeal ended in chaos.

The lawmakers might wait until April's regularly scheduled legislative session to tackle problems created by the tax.

House Speaker John Mills and Senate President Jon Vogt said their current 13-city Florida tour, aimed at hearing what the public wants to do with the 5% tax, is turning up much support for the tax, especially from individual citizens.

Messrs. Mills and Vogt, both of whom want to amend the existing tax to exclude advertising, said they will not convene the special session until they are certain they have the votes to support them.

All the while, advertisers continue to pay to Florida its 5% tax that

(Continued on Page 66)

Studio snags DDB exec

Universal moving?

West Coast News

By WAYNE WALLEY

Universal Pictures last week hired DDB Needham Worldwide's Los Angeles general manager, and there is talk the $50 million account may follow him out the door.

Simon Kornblit, exec VP-general manager of the agency, becomes Universal's exec VP-marketing, overseeing all activities of the motion-picture marketing group.

Although Mr. Kornblit's shift could strengthen ties between Universal and DDB Needham, high-level executive changes at Hollywood studios often signal a review.

Mr. Kornblit, a 33-year veteran of DDB, said he has no plans to put the account up for review.

DDB Needham/West President Alan O. Pando said Bruce Miller, management supervisor on CIGNA Healthplan, will take over as management supervisor on Universal. No decision has been made on the general manager slot.

Mr. Pando said Mr. Kornblit's move will solidify the shop's relationship with the studio, based on Mr. Kornblit's long ties to both the agency and Mr. Pando.

Still, the move could open the door for other agencies to at least solicit the account.

D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, Los Angeles, wants an entertainment industry account. And Managing Director Jim Helin has a previous working relationship with Mr. Kornblit at DDB. Also, Neil Lemlein, senior VP-director of DMB&B's entertainment group, worked for Mr. Kornblit at DDB. Then Mr. Lemlein subsequently moved to Universal, becoming Mr. Kornblit's client.

Other agencies likely to show interest in Universal are Ogilvy & Mather, which recently lost Columbia Pictures to McCann-Erickson, and Y&R Entertainment, which recently lost $90 million in billings from Walt Disney Co. to Western International Media.

DDB Needham has survived other management upheavals at Universal during its eight years as the studio's agency of record. Those upheavals include the September 1986 change when Thomas Pollock replaced Frank Price as chairman of the MCA Motion Picture Group (AA, Sept. 22, 1986).

Later that year, Edward Roginski replaced Marvin Antonowsky as marketing president.

Sources said Mr. Roginski initiated preliminary discussions with some agencies earlier this year and was considering a review until he became seriously ill.

Some sources speculated Universal convinced Mr. Kornblit to take the job because it wanted to change agencies without losing him.

Other personnel changes at DDB Needham could be significant; a string of senior-level people has left in recent months. The most visible departure was Robert Kuperman, the former exec VP-creative director who moved to Chiat/Day. #

Jennifer Pendleton in Los Angeles contributed to this story.

HBJ buyout boss eyes more

Edgell may add to 110 titles

By PATRICK McGEEHAN

An anticipated resurgence in U.S. heavy industry is prompting Robert Edgell, the leader of last week's $334.1 million management buyout of HBJ Publications, to consider launching new publications to serve that category.

"I think manufacturing is going to come back," Mr. Edgell said last week. But he did not elaborate on any specific plans the company might have for such a launch.

While guiding HBJ Publications from a small division of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich in 1970 to the nation's largest publisher of trade magazines with 110 titles, Mr. Edgell steered clear of publications related to what he calls "metal-bending" industries.

"I flunked drafting in high school, and I've never been interested in machinery," Mr. Edgell said, "so we assiduously avoided getting into those. I think it proved to be right."

Also, the steady decline of heavy manufacturing in the so-called Rust Belt states cut into ad revenues of other business publishers, while HBJ concentrated on service industries, such as healthcare, communications and travel and lodging.

The 65-year-old Mr. Edgell, who has headed the business publishing unit of Orlando, Fla.-based HBJ since 1970, said he had no plans to make other changes in the company, which will be called Edgell Communications Inc. He added he does not intend to sell any of the titles.

R. Edgell

"If I built it over 30-some years, I must like it," he said.

Nor will ECI follow in the footsteps of fellow trade publisher Cahners Publishing Co. and launch or acquire any consumer magazines, Mr. Edgell said.

Among the publications ECI acquired are Beverage Industry, Hotel & Motel Management and Modern Medicine. Along with the 110 titles, Mr. Edgell also acquired 23 trade shows owned by HBJ Publications and HBJ Beckley-Cardy, a school supplies company.

Mr. Edgell also said the new company probably would be looking to make more acquisitions in the first quarter of 1988.

New York investment banker Kidder, Peabody & Co., which provided a loan to help finance the deal, will be the majority owner of ECI. Labovitz Corp., an investment company in Duluth, Minn., and Wicks Communications, New York, also provided financing for what Mr. Edgell called the biggest transaction in trade press history.

The deal "looks pretty good" for the buyers, said J. Kendrick Noble, a media analyst with PaineWebber, New York.

He added that the pairing of the publishing and school supplies divisions is "rather an unusual combination," but the two should serve to balance each other because their businesses have different cycles.

The sale is expected to be completed by yearend.

ECI, which Mr. Edgell said will retain its 1,900 employees will be based in Cleveland.#

HIGH FLYERS

Lawyers travel in style.

National Bank
PASSPORT
United Sta of Amer

JOURNAL
National Subscriber Study

Whether for business or pleasure, ABA JOURNAL readers travel right. And you can sell these high-powered travelers on car rentals, hotel selection and wining and dining in The Lawyer's Magazine, The ABA JOURNAL. Last year JOURNAL readers spent over $46 billion.

Sell the legal market in the JOURNAL.

No other consumer or business magazine delivers this audience. Find out how the JOURNAL surpasses every leading national magazine when it comes to reaching lawyers. Write or call today for our new Media Kit and National Subscriber Study which documents the buying power of the legal market.

Send me your National Subscriber Research.

☐ Also furnish your new Media Kit.
☐ Have a JOURNAL Ad Rep contact me.

Name ____________
Title ____________
Firm ____________
Address ____________
City ____________ State ______ Zip ______
Telephone ____________

Clip and return. ATTN: Associate Publisher AA 11/87

JOURNAL
THE LAWYER'S MAGAZINE
750 N. Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, IL 60611 • 312/988-5993

MPA honors Grune

NEW YORK—The Magazine Publishers of America has named George V. Grune, chairman-ceo of The Reader's Digest Association, "1987 Publisher of the Year" and bestowed upon him the magazine industry's highest honor, the Henry Johnson Fisher Award.

G. Grune

"It's like the time Duke played Pitt—1950 if you care—and I returned a punt 41 yards for the game-winning touchdown," said the delighted publisher. "Wow!"

Paul McPherson, exec VP of McGraw-Hill Publications and MPA chairman, said, "George is a perfect choice for the award."

Mr. Grune joined Reader's Digest in 1960. He held positions as New York ad sales director, marketing director of the U.S. edition, VP-director of international advertising, VP-director of Pacific operations and deputy director of international operations.

In 1976 he was named VP-director of the condensed books, general books and recorded music division. A year later he was elected to the board. He was named publisher in January 1984 and a few months later chairman-ceo.

At a formal dinner Jan. 26, Mr. Grune will receive a representation of the award, a crystal Steuben urn.#

CORRECTIONS & CLARIFICATIONS

- Del Monte USA's holiday promotion to hispanics (AA, Oct. 26, P. 8) is handled by Solem/Loeb & Associates and BCT Communications, both San Francisco.
- Ogilvy & Mather, New York, is the ad agency for Beecham Products' new N'ice throat spray (AA, Oct. 19, P. 70).
- U.S. advertising-related employment at Leo Burnett Co., Chicago, was 1,854 on Oct. 1, up 4.9% from Jan. 1. The larger Oct. 1 job-count number originally supplied by Burnett (AA, Nov. 16, P. 3) reflected budgeted positions, some of which were unfilled.#

November 23, 1987 Special Issue

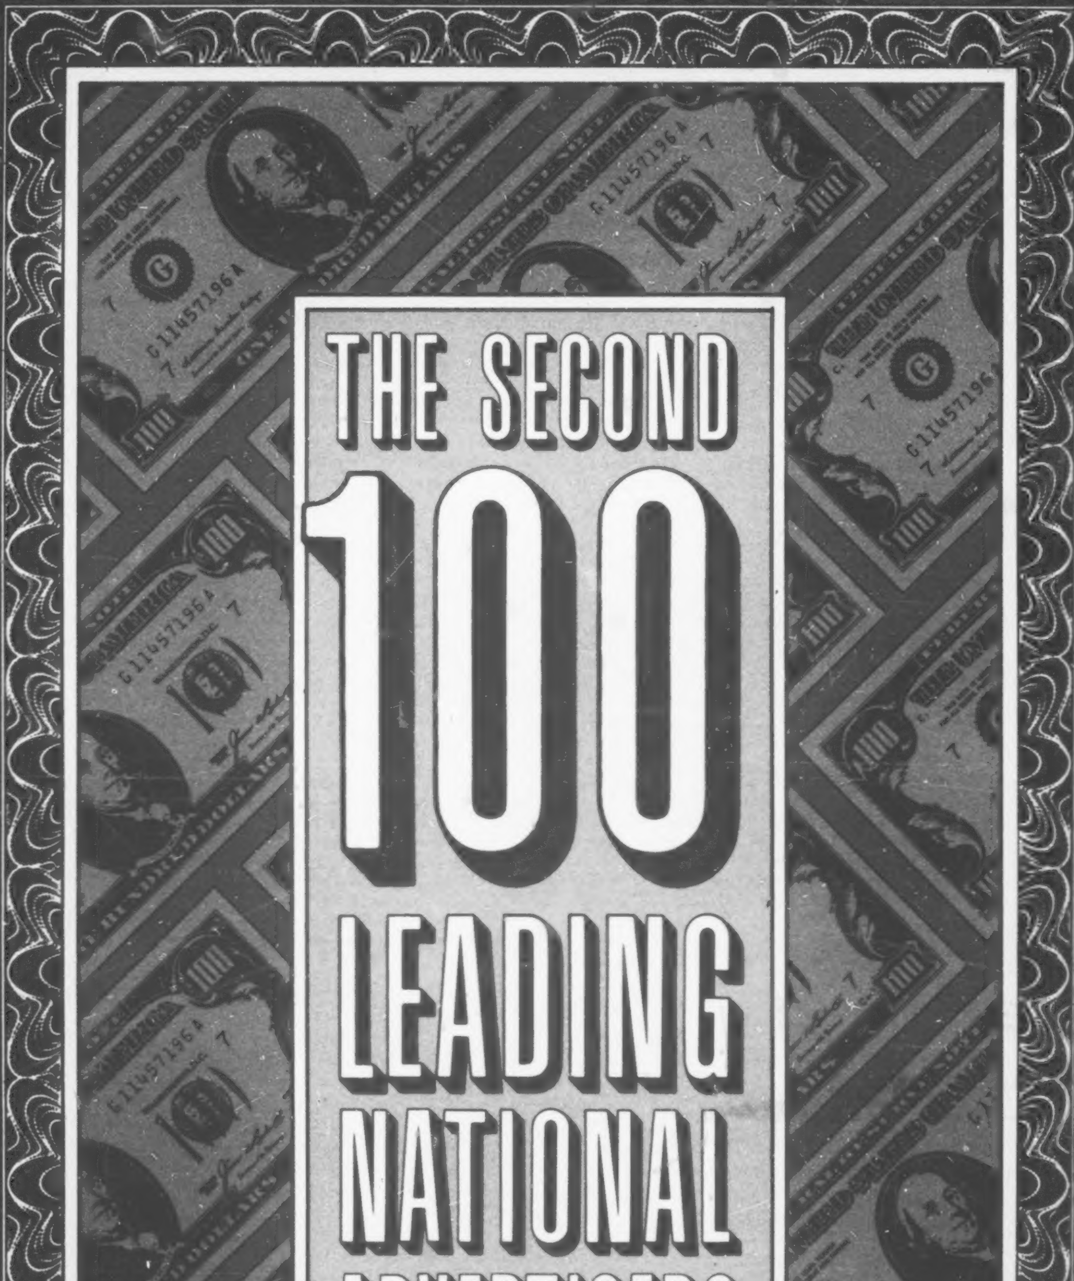
Advertising Age

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing

©Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications, Inc. All rights reserved.



THE SECOND 100 LEADING NATIONAL ADVERTISERS

1987 EDITION

Special Issue

'86 ad spending soars

Copyright ©1987 by Crain Communications Inc. Quotation or reproduction in whole or in part without written permission is expressly prohibited.

By R. CRAIG ENDICOTT

The Second 100 offer innovation: from wristwatch paging systems, digital VCRs, a $4,995 car that runs, a radiator guarantee, Captain Power and the Soldiers of Fortune, to a life-extending AIDS drug.

The nation's Second 100 leading national advertisers revved up their ad spending to $5.51 billion in 1986, 19.9% over the previous year, far above their First 100 competitors, who recorded only marginal spending increases last year.

Companies that qualified for AD AGE's latest Second 100 list demonstrated the tendency among advertisers to increase their ad spending in non-media areas more than in the traditional media categories. Media's percentage of total ad spending by the Second 100 dropped from 65.5% of the total in 1985 to 61% in 1986 as non-media forms of advertising grew 35.7% in dollars to $2.15 billion.

But total media dollars also increased—to $3.36 billion, up 11.7% for the same companies in 1985—as the Second 100 advertisers increased their share of ad dollars spent by all advertisers on network TV, magazines and national newspapers. By comparison, AA's Top 100 advertisers experienced a decline in shares in these media categories.

The elite 100, covered in AA's Sept. 24, 1987 report, recorded a parsimonious 3.4% year-to-year increase in ad spending. And even though their composite spending total of $27.17 billion far outdistanced the Second 100, the composite year-to-year dollar growth of $914 million of the Second 100 surpassed the $894 million increase of the Top 100.

Volatility characterized the composition of the Second 100 chart in this third annual report. There were 39 new entries to the list. Only nine were dropouts from the 100 leaders, having fallen short of the Top 100 ad spending cutoff of $82.7 million. Twelve of the new listings came from among retailer categories, both food and general merchandise, and food marketers.

Borden Inc., New York, surged to the top of the Second 100 chart with total spending of $82 million in 1986, up 43% from the prior year. The Borden total also was 16.1% greater than the chart's 1985 leader, Levi Strauss & Associates, at $70.6 million that year. In fact, 12 advertisers topped this previous high last year.

Borden's spending patterns illustrate the trend by marketers to invest in non-media forms of advertising. Borden spent 73% of its total advertising on what it termed "promotions"—give-aways, samples, cents-off, point-of-sale, etc. Such emphasis on unmeasured advertising is more the rule than the exception today, particularly among financial institutions and food, pharmaceutical and toiletries and cosmetics marketers.

Network TV was the medium that attracted the largest dollar volume among the Second 100. The 10.7% growth brought the group to $1.08 billion. The Top 100 showed 3% growth in network TV to $6.36 billion.

However, the Second 100 network totals moved the group to 12.5% of the $8.6 billion spent by all advertisers in the medium in 1986, from 11.7% in 1985, while the Top 100 dropped as a percentage of total network TV spending to 74% from 74.3% in 1985. Mennen Co., at $33.4 million, was the biggest Second 100 network TV spender. Procter & Gamble, the nation's leading advertiser, invested $456.3 million in network TV last year.

The Second 100 increased its magazine spending by 7.3% to $546 million and built up the group's total percentage of the $5.1 billion spent by all advertisers in the medium in 1986, from 10.3% to 10.7%. At the same time, the 100 leaders increased their spending in magazines 2.7% to $2.34 billion, leaving them with a 45.8% share of total magazine spending, down from 46.3% in 1985. The Second 100's leading magazine spender was Capital Cities/ABC with $30.6 million, or 55.3% of its total media expenditures.

Newspaper advertising for the Second 100 grew 15.8% to $233 million, boosting the group's percentage of the national medium's $3.66 billion total, from 5.5% to 6.4%. The Top 100 spent $950 million in the medium, down 2% in 1986, and cutting their percentage of all newspaper spending to 25.9% from 26.7%. The leading Second 100 newspaper spender was Trans World Airlines with $29.3 million, or 60% of its total media outlay.

In spot TV spending, both the Second 100 and the Top 100 saw share declines in 1986. Despite a 9.1% spending increase in spot TV to $1.01 billion in 1986, the Second 100's share of the $7.79 billion total slipped from 13.2% to 13%; the Top 100 total of $3.26 billion, up 5.4% in dollars, dropped from 43.8% to 41.8% of the total. Imasco Ltd. (Hardee's and Peoples Drug Stores) was the Second 100 leading spot TV spender with $32.8 million, or 95% of its total measured advertising.

Composite totals for the Second 100 disguise the fact that two-thirds of the advertisers propped up the rest, as ad spending levels for 34 on this Second 100 list actually declined last year.

Economic conditions probably contributed to some of the decline, because ad budget cuts are a way to hold down expenses. Fifteen of the 34 experienced a decline in earnings from 1985 to 1986. Three other marketers had lower profits in 1985 over 1984 and may have seen 1986 a catch-up year.

Six of the 15 recording both a decline in advertising and earnings were based abroad. While reasons for their decline in advertising vary among companies, the drop in earnings was often traced to the conversion of a weak dollar into a stronger local currency.

Among 24 foreign marketers on the list, nine suffered sales declines and five others reported a sales growth of 5% or less, returns traced largely to the currency differential. Little wonder the Japanese, who face voluntary import quotas, are building U.S. plants to keep manufacturing costs and sales in the same currency. Among the Second 100, Isuzu, Subaru and Mitsubishi are building such facilities, and the new upstart, Korea-based Hyundai, is contemplating such a move for its autos.

Buyouts, potential or otherwise, affected Safeway Stores, Kenner Parker Toys, Dayton Hudson Corp., Lucky Stores, Levi Strauss & Associates, Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts, Zayre Corp. and American Stores.

Affinity marketing proved popular among the Second 100 as Citicorp and MasterCard offered new bank cardholders either mileage credits or free tickets on airlines; General Motors offered roundtrip tickets on TWA for buyers of the Buick Riviera; VF Corp. (Lee's and Maverick jeans) began pushing American-made Pepsi Apparel America casual clothing.

Next year's advertising and marketing programs for at least seven of the Second 100 will be dominated by the 1988 Winter and Summer Olympics for which they are sponsors, and Capital Cities/ABC sees the sports extravaganza as rejuvenating its ABC network ad sales.

With agency mergers and corporate restructuring activity at a peak, there were wholesale changes in agencies representing the Second 100 companies. If there is an advertising agency with a smile on its face it must surely be AC&R/DHB & BESS. It is now the agency for five Second 100 leaders after being awarded both Hattori-Seiko Co. and Zayre Corp. in the past year.

Second 100 leading national advertisers

Rank	Company	Ad spending
101	Borden Inc.	$81,962.1
102	Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.	79,808.8
103	North American Philips	79,376.9
104	Trans World Airlines	78,782.1
105	Daimler-Benz AG	77,423.0
106	Levi Strauss & Associates	76,754.8
107	Wal-Mart Stores	75,529.4
108	F.W. Woolworth Co.	74,083.2
109	Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.	72,964.3
110	Blue Cross & Blue Shield Assn.	71,518.9
111	Castle & Cooke Inc.	71,318.3
112	Polaroid Corp.	71,248.7
113	Prudential Insurance Co. of America	70,618.0
114	Jerrico Inc.	69,478.1
115	United Biscuits Holdings PLC	69,304.9
116	George A. Hormel & Co.	69,068.1
117	Carter-Wallace Inc.	69,046.1
118	Ameritech	68,954.6
119	Gulf + Western Industries	68,635.4
120	Southwestern Bell Corp.	67,608.5
121	Cotter & Co.	67,269.7
122	Canon Inc.	67,084.9
123	Dayton Hudson Corp.	66,951.3
124	Alberto-Culver Co.	66,724.5
125	MCI Communications Corp.	66,646.3
126	Estee Lauder Inc.	66,630.7
127	American Stores	66,244.4
128	Wellcome PLC	64,899.5
129	First Brands Corp.	64,830.5
130	Capital Cities/ABC	63,117.1
131	Seven-Up Co.	62,821.9
132	A.H. Robins Co.	62,742.3
133	VF Corp.	62,208.8
134	Mennen Co.	61,802.0
135	Whirlpool Corp.	$61,796.0
136	BMW AG	61,545.3
137	Hattori-Seiko Co. Ltd.	60,912.3
138	Cadbury Schweppes PLC	60,271.9
139	Mattel Inc.	59,872.2
140	Southland Corp.	59,657.0
141	Avon Products	59,513.9
142	Ciba-Geigy Ltd.	59,488.3
143	Lucky Stores	58,731.6
144	Fuji Heavy Industries	58,718.1
145	Hallmark Cards	58,366.5
146	Imasco Ltd.	57,633.0
147	Apple Computer	57,596.0
148	SmithKline/Beckman Corp.	56,699.7
149	Royal Crown Cola Cos.	55,565.5
150	Minolta Camera Co. Ltd.	55,505.4
151	Kimberly-Clark Corp.	55,298.3
152	Coleco Industries	54,830.5
153	NWA Inc.	52,882.4
154	Isuzu Ltd.	52,556.9
155	Winn Dixie Stores	52,528.8
156	MasterCard International	52,393.0
157	Zayre Corp.	52,352.6
158	Hyundai Motor Co.	52,330.7
159	Reckitt & Colman PLC	51,923.5
160	Black & Decker Corp.	51,814.7
161	Squibb Corp.	50,884.0
162	Franklin Mint	50,529.6
163	Sandoz Ltd.	50,403.1
164	Safeway Stores	50,111.7
165	NEC Corp.	50,090.3
166	US West	50,032.2
167	Wickes Cos.	49,694.3
168	3M Co.	48,883.2
169	Domino's Pizza	$48,488.5
170	Triangle Publications	48,425.6
171	Tyson Foods	48,264.7
172	Ocean Spray Cranberries	47,328.7
173	Fruit of the Loom	46,409.8
174	Chevron Corp.	45,412.9
175	Tambrands Inc.	44,771.8
176	Van Munching	44,750.3
177	Melville Corp.	43,835.8
178	Tri-Star Pictures	43,476.4
179	Bally Manufacturing Corp.	43,467.6
180	Reynolds Metal Co.	43,416.0
181	News Corp. Ltd.	43,154.1
182	Amoco Corp.	42,914.0
183	Dow Jones & Co.	42,565.7
184	Holiday Corp.	41,532.3
185	Volvo AB	41,358.8
186	Federal Express Corp.	40,258.4
187	Hearst Corp.	39,034.1
188	De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd.	36,385.6
189	Kenner Parker Toys	36,334.6
190	BankAmerica Corp.	36,040.2
191	Faberge Incorporated	35,952.0
192	Visa International	35,444.7
193	Mitsubishi Motors Corp.	34,514.0
194	Citicorp	33,731.0
195	Turner Broadcasting System	33,351.4
196	State Farm Mutual Auto Ins. Co.	32,543.8
197	Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts	32,518.9
198	Canandaigua Wine Co.	31,898.5
199	Thompson Medical Co.	31,635.3
200	Bertelsmann AG	29,217.9

Note: Dollars are in thousands

Index

S-8 Alberto-Culver Co.
S-8 American Stores Co.
S-8 Ameritech
S-9 Amoco Corp.
S-9 Apple Computer
S-9 Avon Products
S-10 Bally Manufacturing Corp.
S-11 BankAmerica Corp.
S-16 Bertelsmann AG
S-16 Black & Decker
S-16 Blue Cross & Blue Shield
S-16 BMW AG
S-17 Borden Inc.
S-18 Cadbury Schweppes PLC
S-18 Canandaigua Wine Co.
S-18 Canon Inc.
S-19 Capital Cities/ABC
S-20 Carter-Wallace Inc.
S-20 Castle & Cooke Inc.
S-20 Chevron Corp.
S-21 Ciba-Geigy Ltd.
S-21 Citicorp
S-22 Coleco Industries
S-22 Cotter & Co.
S-22 Daimler-Benz AG
S-22 Dayton Hudson Corp.
S-23 De Beers Consolidated Mines
S-23 Domino's Pizza
S-26 Dow Jones & Co.
S-26 Faberge Incorporated
S-26 Federal Express Corp.
S-26 First Brands Corp.
S-26 Franklin Mint
S-27 Fruit of the Loom
S-27 Fuji Heavy Industries
S-28 Gulf + Western Industries
S-28 Hallmark Cards
S-28 Hattori-Seiko Co.
S-29 Hearst Corp.
S-29 Holiday Corp.
S-29 George A. Hormel & Co.
S-30 Hyundai Motor Co.
S-30 Imasco Ltd.
S-30 Isuzu Ltd.
S-31 Jerrico Inc.
S-31 Kenner Parker Toys
S-32 Kimberly-Clark Corp.
S-32 Estee Lauder Inc.
S-32 Lucky Stores
S-32 MasterCard International
S-33 Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.
S-33 Mattel Inc.
S-34 MCI Communications
S-34 Melville Corp.
S-34 Mennen Co.
S-34 Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.
S-35 Minolta Camera Co.
S-35 Mitsubishi Motors Corp.
S-36 NEC Corp.
S-36 News Corp. Ltd.
S-36 North American Philips
S-37 NWA Inc.
S-37 Ocean Spray Cranberries
S-37 Polaroid Corp.
S-38 Prudential Insurance Co.
S-38 Reckitt & Colman PLC
S-38 Reynolds Metal Co.
S-39 A.H. Robins Co.
S-39 Royal Crown Cola Cos.
S-40 Safeway Stores
S-40 Sandoz Ltd.
S-40 Seven-Up
S-41 SmithKline/Beckman Corp.
S-41 Southland Corp.
S-42 Southwestern Bell Corp.
S-42 Squibb Corp.
S-42 State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co.
S-43 Levi Strauss & Associates
S-43 Tambrands
S-44 Thompson Medical Co.
S-44 3M Co.
S-44 Trans World Airlines
S-45 Triangle Publications
S-45 Tri-Star Pictures
S-45 Turner Broadcasting System
S-46 Tyson Foods
S-46 United Biscuits Holdings
S-46 US West
S-47 Van Munching
S-47 VF Corp.
S-48 Visa International
S-48 Volvo AB
S-48 Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts
S-48 Wal-Mart Stores
S-49 Wellcome PLC
S-49 Whirlpool Corp.
S-49 Wickes Cos.
S-50 Winn-Dixie Stores
S-50 F.W. Woolworth Co.
S-50 Zayre Corp.

Advertising as percent of sales

Primary business	Rank	Advertiser	U.S. ad spending 1986	U.S. ad spending 1985	U.S. sales 1986	U.S. sales 1985	Adv. % U.S. sales 1986	Adv. % U.S. sales 1985
AIRLINES	153	NWA Inc.	$52,882	$45,970	$3,589,174	$2,655,491	1.5	1.7
	104	Trans World Airlines	78,782	66,900	2,063,867	2,115,317	3.8	3.2
AUTOMOTIVE	136	BMW AG	61,545	49,875	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	105	Daimler-Benz AG	77,423	64,643	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	144	Fuji Heavy Industries	58,718	41,004	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	158	Hyundai Motor Co.	52,331	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	154	Isuzu Ltd.	52,557	26,618	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	193	Mitsubishi Motors Corp.	34,514	33,597	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	185	Volvo AB	41,359	49,213	3,018,500	3,199,600	1.4	1.5
CREDIT CARDS & FINANCIAL	190	BankAmerica Corp.	36,040	26,117	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	194	Citicorp	33,731	61,156	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	156	MasterCard International	52,393	32,233	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	109	Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.	72,964	56,902	19,467,000	18,835,000	0.4	0.3
	113	Prudential Insurance Co. of America	70,618	57,891	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	196	State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co.	32,544	26,059	11,664,000	9,863,000	0.3	0.3
	192	Visa International	35,445	41,668	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
COMPUTERS ELECTRONICS & APPLIANCES	147	Apple Computer	57,596	83,859	2,660,000	1,901,000	2.2	4.4
	160	Black & Decker Corp.	51,815	67,642	1,038,866	1,102,201	5.0	6.1
	102	Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.	79,809	86,055	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	165	NEC Corp.	50,090	32,487	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	103	North American Philips	79,377	67,814	4,325,600	4,216,900	1.8	1.6
	135	Whirlpool Corp.	61,796	62,079	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
ENTERTAINMENT	179	Bally Manufacturing Corp.	43,468	40,257	1,600,000	N/A	2.7	N/A
	119	Gulf +Western Industries	68,635	58,497	3,574,700	3,096,900	1.9	1.9
	178	Tri-Star Pictures	43,476	25,448	210,234	231,736	20.7	11.0
FOOD	101	Borden Inc.	81,962	57,324	4,044,190	3,883,861	2.0	1.5
	111	Castle & Cooke Inc.	71,318	56,481	1,265,000	1,276,000	5.6	4.4
	116	George A. Hormel & Co.	69,068	70,702	1,960,237	1,502,235	3.5	4.7
	172	Ocean Spray Cranberries	47,329	29,311	635,758	541,690	7.4	5.4
	159	Reckitt & Colman PLC	51,924	36,431	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	171	Tyson Foods	48,265	20,288	1,503,719	1,135,712	3.2	1.8
	115	United Biscuits Holdings PLC	69,305	62,427	1,147,000	1,077,300	6.0	5.8
JEWELRY	188	De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd.	36,386	35,597	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	137	Hattori-Seiko Co. Ltd.	60,912	61,162	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
MEDIA	200	Bertelsmann AG	29,218	31,590	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	130	Capital Cities/ABC	63,117	72,183	4,124,400	N/A	1.5	N/A
	183	Dow Jones & Co.	42,566	24,735	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	187	Hearst Corp.	39,034	37,301	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	181	News Corp. Ltd.	43,154	41,476	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	170	Triangle Publications	48,426	48,730	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	195	Turner Broadcasting System	33,351	34,252	556,917	351,891	6.0	9.7
MISCELLANEOUS	110	Blue Cross Blue Shield Assn.	71,519	60,607	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	186	Federal Express Corp.	40,258	50,301	3,178,308	2,573,229	1.3	2.0
	129	First Brands Corp.	64,831	61,977	837,244	N/A	7.7	N/A
	162	Franklin Mint	50,530	46,450	N/A	350,000	N/A	13.3
	145	Hallmark Cards	58,367	41,901	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	184	Holiday Corp.	41,532	29,927	1,647,700	1,804,400	2.5	1.7
	168	3M Co.	48,883	38,469	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
PAPER & FOIL	151	Kimberly-Clark Corp.	55,298	69,541	3,112,700	3,042,200	1.8	2.3
	180	Reynolds Metal Co.	43,416	36,258	3,300,900	3,214,100	1.3	1.1
	175	Tambrands Inc.	44,772	44,004	333,612	312,783	13.4	14.1
PETROLEUM	182	Amoco Corp.	42,914	30,462	16,243,000	23,131,000	0.3	0.1
	174	Chevron Corp.	45,413	45,714	19,886,000	30,253,000	0.2	0.2
PHARMACEUTICALS	117	Carter-Wallace Inc.	69,046	65,796	354,694	323,962	19.5	20.3
	142	Ciba-Geigy Ltd.	59,488	51,842	2,434,000	2,363,000	2.4	2.2
	132	A.H. Robins Co.	62,742	45,332	616,400	566,200	10.2	8.0
	163	Sandoz Ltd.	50,403	55,272	1,327,000	1,240,000	3.8	4.5
	148	SmithKline/Beckman Corp.	56,700	51,718	2,595,900	2,341,500	2.2	2.2
	161	Squibb Corp.	50,884	48,870	1,016,900	812,100	5.0	6.0
	199	Thompson Medical Co.	31,635	40,236	117,000	133,000	27.0	30.3
	128	Wellcome PLC	64,900	51,430	624,400	655,500	10.4	7.8
PHOTOGRAPHY	122	Canon Inc.	67,085	81,201	1,720,000	1,695,441	3.9	4.8
	150	Minolta Camera Co. Ltd.	55,505	56,734	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	112	Polaroid Corp.	71,249	69,555	964,300	779,300	7.4	8.9
RETAIL: FOOD	127	American Stores	66,244	68,168	14,021,484	13,889,528	0.5	0.5
	169	Domino's Pizza	48,489	27,324	1,444,000	1,084,000	3.4	2.5
	146	Imasco Ltd.	57,633	62,390	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	114	Jerrico Inc.	69,478	63,183	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	143	Lucky Stores	58,732	49,775	6,441,000	6,225,000	0.9	0.8
	164	Safeway Stores	50,112	47,318	20,311,480	19,650,542	0.2	0.2
	140	Southland Corp.	59,657	53,929	8,619,681	8,622,397	0.7	0.6
	155	Winn-Dixie Stores	52,529	44,861	8,803,899	8,225,244	0.6	0.5
RETAIL: NON-FOOD	121	Cotter & Co.	67,270	71,670	1,734,398	1,702,167	3.9	4.2
	123	Dayton Hudson Corp.	66,951	67,648	9,259,100	8,255,300	0.7	0.8
	173	Fruit of the Loom	46,410	35,940	692,900	N/A	6.7	N/A
	106	Levi Strauss & Associates	76,755	71,343	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	177	Melville Corp.	43,836	35,570	5,262,364	4,774,860	0.8	0.7
	133	VF Corp.	62,209	59,553	1,544,574	1,481,182	4.0	4.0
	107	Wal-Mart Stores	75,529	40,324	11,909,800	8,451,489	0.6	0.5
	167	Wickes Cos.	49,694	49,741	4,230,956	2,537,347	1.2	2.0
	108	F.W. Woolworth Co.	74,083	64,543	3,876,000	3,650,000	1.9	1.8
	157	Zayre Corp.	52,353	33,880	5,350,000	4,030,000	1.0	0.8
SOFT DRINKS	138	Cadbury Schweppes PLC	60,272	71,597	609,100	525,300	9.9	13.6
	149	Royal Crown Cola Cos.	55,565	62,271	397,100	378,400	14.0	16.5
	131	Seven-Up Co.	62,822	32,714	270,000	290,000	23.3	11.2
TELEPHONE	118	Ameritech	68,955	64,991	9,362,100	9,021,100	0.7	0.7
	125	MCI Communications Corp.	66,646	61,363	3,592,000	2,542,000	1.9	2.4
	120	Southwestern Bell Corp.	67,609	70,000	7,902,400	7,925,000	0.9	0.9
	166	US West	50,032	52,346	8,308,000	7,813,000	0.6	0.7
TOILETRIES & COSMETICS	124	Alberto-Culver Co.	66,725	56,863	341,128	280,359	19.6	20.3
	141	Avon Products	59,514	53,402	1,855,400	1,582,200	3.2	3.4
	191	Faberge Incorporated	35,952	35,864	422,800	482,900	8.5	7.4
	126	Estee Lauder Inc.	66,631	62,965	890,000	750,000	7.5	8.4
	134	Mennen Co.	61,802	50,851	300,000	225,000	20.6	22.6
TOYS	152	Coleco Industries	54,830	72,082	471,087	715,576	11.6	10.1
	189	Kenner Parker Toys	36,335	49,499	355,915	234,869	10.2	21.1
	139	Mattel Inc.	59,872	85,077	623,364	765,010	9.6	11.1
WINE, BEER & LIQUOR	198	Canandaigua Wine Co.	31,899	15,936	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
	197	Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts	32,519	41,226	N/A	1,174,000	N/A	3.5
	176	Van Munching	44,750	93,292	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A

Source: Sales and earnings figures are from public documents and reflect the latest fiscal year. Advertising expenditures are for calendar years only and are Advertising Age estimates.
Notes: Dollars are in thousands. See Where Ad Age got its data, at right.

Where AA got its data

The national advertisers in this 3rd annual ADVERTISING AGE's Second 100 Leading National Advertisers report are selected on the basis of measured ad spending only.

Unmeasured ad estimates then are applied to the leading 200 advertisers to determine rankings. AD AGE published its directory of the 100 leading national advertisers Sept. 24, 1987. Ad expenditures are for U.S. only and reflect calendar years 1986 and 1985.

BAR/LNA reports supplies the bulk of measured media information. Magazine and newspaper supplements are supplied to Leading National Advertisers by Publishers Information Bureau. Outdoor is supplied to LNA by Outdoor Advertising Assn. of America and Institute of Outdoor Advertisers. Network TV, spot TV, network radio and cable TV networks are supplied by Broadcast Advertisers Reports. BAR/LNA's seven-media service also supplies brand and category spending by media. Seven-media totals quoted in corporate profiles throughout this issue include only media listed in this paragraph.

For the first time, Broadcast Advertisers Reports is monitoring ad expenditures on syndicated TV separately from network TV and spot TV buys. These ads are bought nationally with the show, much like network TV buys. According to BAR, total TV syndication ad spending was $558.6 million in 1986. This spending is not included in measured media in this issue.

Other monitored media include newspapers from Media Records, business publications from Rome Reports, farm publications from AGRICOM and spot radio from Radio Expenditures Reports.

PIB monitors 138 consumer magazines and the three publications it defines as newspaper supplements: New York Times Sunday Magazine, Parade, and USA Weekend. BAR monitors ABC, NBC and CBS TV networks; 345 TV stations in 75 top markets with continuous monitoring in the 16 top markets; CBN, CNN, ESPN, MTV, USA and WTBS cable TV networks continuously, and 17 radio networks including seven ABC networks, two CBS networks, three NBC networks, two United Stations networks and the Mutual, Satellite Music and Transtar radio networks.

O.A.A.A. and I.O.A. measure gross sales from more than 200 national poster and paint advertising plants in markets of over 100,000 population. Rome Reports monitors 567 business and trade publications. Media Records tracks 210 daily and Sunday newspapers.

Some measured media expenditures are restated to reflect corporate structure as of Dec. 31, 1986. Companies acquired prior to that date are included in the new parent's ad spending for full calendar 1986 and 1985 totals. Units spun off before the end of calendar 1986 are subtracted unless otherwise noted.

Measured-media services vary in the way they track ad spending. Spot radio totals may not include all subsidiaries because RER does not always report full parent company spending. Also, Rome Reports tracks ad spending by division, rather than parent total. Every effort has been made to give full parent company ad expenditures wherever possible.

Unmeasured advertising figures are estimates and include direct mail, promotion, co-op and couponing to name a few. AD AGE beat reporters and corporate sources assist in providing this total.

Sales and earnings figures are taken from public documents. Where private companies will not divulge this information, an estimate or an "N/A" is used. Conversion rates are stated in the profiles.

In the boxes accompanying each profile, sales credited to U.K.-based companies is their turnover and net income their trading profit attributable to ordinary shareholders. For credit card companies, sales are their total annual volume. These numbers are picked up on the ad-to-sales chart on Page S-4.

—Kevin Brown

Ad spending soars 19.9%

Alberto-Culver Co.

RANK 124

Melrose Park, Ill.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	435	363	19.8
Net income	13	9	49.5
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	341	280	21.7
Operating profits	34	28	23.5
Advertising	67	57	17.3
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Mass market	214	202	6.2
Institutional	84	84	1.1
Other products	141	81	74.7

Alberto-Culver Co., riding the crest of a more aggressive marketing posture, continues to use nimble line extensions to increase its presence in the highly competitive haircare and grocery business.

Alberto and its conservative CEO, Leonard Lavin, continue to proceed with new entries cautiously—using line extension as a means of bolstering new product output with a reduced risk factor.

Throughout 1986 and into 1987 the firm successfully built on its best-known brand names, specifically Alberto and VO5, to build volume.

In February Alberto-Culver went to market with a full line of Alberto-brand hair sculpting items, which included a European sculpting spray, fixing gel and gelee.

Its forays into those line extensions have been fruitful. Alberto Mousse, for instance, remains the top seller in its category, with an estimated 13% of dollar volume. The mousse styling foam maintained its dominance even though measured ad spending fell about 45% to $3.3 million during 1986.

"We have a lot of room to build on our brand names with new products," says P. Douglas McAuley, Alberto-Culver's corporate vp for consumer products. "You will continue to see a string of new introductions."

One of those intros just broke this fall with the launch of Bold Hold, a three-item hairstyling line, supported by a $5 million campaign in print and TV by BBDO Worldwide.

In its household/grocery products group, Alberto-Culver added two new items to the Mrs. Dash salt-free seasoning line: Extra spicy and lemon-and-herb varieties. Measured ad spending for the brand in 1986 jumped to nearly $3.6 million, from just $1.6 million in 1985, according to BAR/LNA.

Static Guard anti-static aerosol spray lent its name to a powdered carpet and room deodorizer. The new product did well in introductory phases, but sales began to drop off shortly after the product achieved broader circulation. The company says sales are rebounding with the help of a lower price tag and a better mix of promotions and advertising.

Alberto-Culver did not totally shy away from building new brands. Last year the firm went to market with a premium shampoo and conditioner line called Natural Silk, considered a moderate success. In mid-1987 the company announced the national introduction of Molly McButter low-calorie, low-cholesterol butter substitute. McButter walked directly into a legal dispute with McDonald's Corp., which claims trademark rights to generic food products with the prefix "Mc."

Perhaps Alberto's biggest disappointment of the year was its unsuccessful bid for haircare competitor Lamaur Inc., a Minneapolis-based company that markets Perma Soft and Textra. Lamaur ultimately accepted a substantially higher $173.8 million bid from Dow Chemical Co.

In 1986 Alberto undertook a major realignment of its ad agencies. In reaction to the merger between Bozell & Jacobs and Kenyon & Eckhardt, it shifted about $20 million in billings from B&J, Chicago, to Grey Chicago. And late in the year the company shifted many of its household products—with billings estimated at $10 million—to BBDO Chicago.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	11	232
Magazines	3,773	3,503
Newsp. supps.	0	28
Bus. pubs	119	41
Network TV	16,974	13,604
Spot TV	3,258	3,452
Spot radio	248	218
Outdoor	17	2
Network cable	1,256	783
Total measured	25,655	21,863
Unmeasured	41,070	35,000
Total	66,725	56,863

ALBERTO-CULVER CO.
2525 Armitage Ave.
Melrose Park, Ill. 60160
(312) 450-3000

Corporate Personnel

P. Douglas McAuley, corp vp, U.S. consumer prods

Marketing Personnel

Ralph Sutherland, vp, domestic toiletries
David Trocker, group prod mgr, domestic toiletries
Thomas J. Guinan, vp, household/grocery prods
Robert London, mktg dir-household/grocery prods
Henry Witteman, vp, adv svcs

Advertising Agencies

Grey Advertising, Chicago—Alberto VO5 hot oil treatment, Alberto VO5 conditioning hair dressing, Alberto VO5 hair spray, Alberto European styling mousse and Gelee styling aids, Alberto VO5 shampoo, Consort hair spray, Consort men's mousse, Tresemme women's hair care prods—Steve Gross, exec vp-acct super.

BBDO Chicago—Baker's Joy, FDS feminine deodorant spray, Molly McButter, Static Guard, SugarTwin—Robert Pingrey, sr vp-mgmt super.

American Stores

RANK 127

Salt Lake City

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	14,021	13,890	1.0
Net income	145	154	(6.4)
U.S.	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	N/A	N/A	N/A
Operating profits	N/A	N/A	N/A
Advertising	66	68	(2.8)

American Stores Co. in the past year decentralized its retail operations to allow greater control at the local level and implemented a poison pill plan involving its stock to ward off unfriendly takeover attempts.

The Second 100 leading national advertisers in 1986 spent $5.5 billion in total U.S. advertising, up 19.9% from 1985. This compares with a 3.4% growth to $27.2 billion for the nation's top 100 advertisers as defined by Ad Age. Of the Second 100 total, $3.36 billion was spent in 11 measured media, up 11.7%.

Decentralization brought about the creation of three regional companies. The largest, American Superstores, had sales of $6.5 billion in fiscal 1987 ended Jan. 31, 1987. Jonathan L. Scott became vice chairman-ceo of the group, which operates 558 retail food units in 13 eastern and midwestern states under the Acme Markets, Jewel Food Stores and Star Markets names. Mr. Scott is former vice-chairman-ceo of Albertson's Inc.

Alpha Beta Stores, changed from Skaggs Cos. this summer, had sales of $4.6 billion in the fiscal year. The group operates 399 retail food stores under the Alpha Beta and Skaggs Alpha Beta banners. Of the total number of stores, which are located in 14 western states, 157 are combination food and drug stores.

America's third and final group is Osco Drug, which had sales of $2.9 billion. Three separate drug chains—Sav-on Drug, Skaggs Drugs and Osco Drug—were combined to form the group, which has 666 units in 30 states coast-to-coast. Units will now bear the Sav-on/Osco name.

A shareholder rights distribution plan in which stock could be redeemed by the company at a set price was passed as a poison pill to repel corporate raiders who Chairman L.S. Skaggs says often use "abusive and unfair tactics." The Skaggs family controls more than 20% of the stock.

The company's advertising division also underwent decentralization, which put about $30 million in broadcast ad accounts up for review in August 1986. In November, Skaggs Alpha Beta division awarded its $6 million account to Bloom Agency, Dallas. The following month, incumbent Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Los Angeles, was renewed for Alpha Beta division's $14 million broadcast account. In December, Grey Advertising, Chicago, garnered the $7 million Jewel Food Stores account. This added to the $6 million Osco Drug chain account the agency was awarded in November.

Total measured ad spending for American Stores in 1986 was $32.2 million, a 1% decrease from 1985. The company reports $160.4 million in advertising expenses in fiscal 1987, up 8% over 1986. Much of this is in local newspaper advertising, a medium not monitored in this issue.

In 1986, $7.2 million of measured advertising went to Alpha Beta Supermarkets, down 9.7%; $6.1 million went to Jewel Food Stores, a 3.3% decrease; Star Markets dropped 30.8% to $1.3 million; Acme Food Stores went to $4.4 million, down 18.2%; and the newly-formed Sav-on/Osco drug stores received $1.2 million.

Capital spending following the year of decentralization and expansion was $195 million. Expansion will continue through this year, with capital spending expected to reach $400 million by fiscal year end. The company plans to open 16 super drug stores, 13 combination food and drug stores and five food stores. Also by the end of 1987, American Stores plans to have remodeled more than 120 food stores and 17 drug stores. Seven super drug stores are scheduled to close.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Network TV	0	17
Spot TV	26,333	27,254
Spot radio	5,719	5,586
Outdoor	180	311
Total measured	32,232	33,168
Unmeasured	34,012	35,000
Total	66,244	68,168

AMERICAN STORES CO.
P.O. Box 27447
Salt Lake City, Utah 84127
(801) 539-0112

Corporate Personnel

L.S. Skaggs, chmn & president

AMERICAN SUPERSTORES

Marketing Personnel

Alan Stewart, president

ACME MARKETS
Philadelphia, Pa.

Marketing Personnel

Robert Neslund, president
Neill Crowley, sr vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

J. Walter Thompson, New York—Paul Krause, acct super.

JEWEL FOOD STORES
Melrose Park, Ill.

Marketing Personnel

Joseph Bugos, president
William Bolton, vp-grocery & bakery mktg
Robert Lutz, adv mgr

Advertising Agency

Grey Advertising, Chicago—Bob Cappelli, exec vp; Brad Beechen, mgmt super; Valerie Sanders, sr acct exec; Ann Morton, acct exec.

STAR MARKETS
Cambridge, Mass.

Marketing Personnel

Henry Nasella, president
William Paul, vp-sales & mktg
Judy Manning, adv mgr

Advertising Agency

Rossin, Greenberg, Seronick & Hill, Boston—Jim Rowean, vp-acct svcs; Karen Claunch, acct exec.

OSCO DRUG
Oakbrook, Ill.

Marketing Personnel

Richard George, president
Ron Grove, vp-mktg
Robert Braden, vp-adv

Advertising Agency

Grey Advertising, Chicago—Ed Holzer, chmn-ceo; Cathy Bergsman, acct exec.

ALPHA BETA STORES

Marketing Personnel

Dennis Eck, president

ALPHA BETA COS.
La Habra, Calif.

Marketing Personnel

Donald Kohler, president
William Wade, sr vp-mktg
Terry Burnside, dir-mktg, No. Calif.
Don Bates, vp-merch

Advertising Agency

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Los Angeles—Dick Hamblin, president; Cindy Stalling, vp.

SKAGGS ALPHA BETA
Salt Lake City, Utah

Marketing Personnel

Al Kara, president, So. region
Ed Agnew, president, No. region
Warren Ivie, vp-adv

Advertising Agency

Bloom Agency, Dallas—Paul MacMahon, chmn-mgmt rep; Sherry Babcock, sr vp-mgmt super; Betty Tapella, vp-acct super; Michelle Pitcher, acct exec.

Ameritech

RANK 118

Chicago

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	9,362	9,021	3.8
Net income	1,138	1,077	5.6
U.S. advertising	69	65	6.1
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Interstate access	1,881	1,792	5.0
Intrastate access	606	628	(3.5)
Toll service	1,098	1,064	3.2
Directory & other	1,249	1,142	9.4

Ameritech, the official telecommunications sponsor of the 1987 Pan American Games, used the event to send a signal to its business customers: It can handle any job, no matter how challenging.

As part of its sponsorship of the summer event, the Chicago-based Bell operating company handled all communications services for the event's organizing committee. Promoting its involvement in the Pan Am Games remained the thrust of Ameritech's advertising and marketing efforts during 1987.

An explosion of TV, radio and print

Guide to corporate boxes

Planetary Paper Products PLC

RANK 150

London

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	10,000	7,000	43.0
Earnings	1,000	700	43.0
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	10,000	7,000	43.0
Operating profits	1,000	700	43.0
Advertising	100	70	43.0
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Heavy stock	5,000	3,500	43.0
Feminine hygiene	1,000	700	43.0
Picnic supplies	1,000	700	43.0
Newsprint	1,000	700	43.0
Office supplies	1,000	700	43.0
Other	1,000	700	43.0

Fictitious Planetary Paper Products PLC is ranked 150th among Leading National Advertisers picked by Ad Age in this issue and based on total U.S. ad spending in 1986, which is reported in this box under Worldwide or U.S. bold headings.

Planetary Paper Products PLC is based in London. The pound to dollar exchange rate is in the profile.

PPP reports on a calendar basis like most of the second 100. However, should a company report on a fiscal basis, the years heading column would read 1987 and 1986, if the fiscal closing occurs before this issue was published.

The advertising figure is a composite of PPP's media spending, both measured and unmeasured, contained in the tabular breakout at the end of the text in each profile. See "Where Ad Age got its data" on Page S-4 for an explanation of the tabular breakout.

Division sales are the business segments as defined by PPP and their sales for comparable years. However, should PPP have too many divisions to fit into the box, the editors combined those segments into "other." In this case, PPP segments for its cigarette rolling papers and gift wrap division—both providing minor contributions to its strong household and industrial paper products divisions—were merged into "other."

ads broke this June, two months prior to the start of the games held in Indianapolis. The ads used a patriotic theme, punctuated with dramatic shots of athletes. They pointed to Ameritech as a key behind-the-scenes player, indicating that Ameritech is prepared to meet all needs of customers.

Ameritech provides phone service to 11 million customers in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. The market has been flat in 1987, with $865.9 million in earnings for the first three quarters of 1987, up 0.6% from the same period in 1986, and revenues of $7.09 billion, up 1.7%.

Ameritech Mobile Communications may be heading for a tougher ride in Chicago, its biggest market. In September, Southwestern Bell became the most powerful cellular telephone company when it secured federal approval of its $1.4 billion buyout of Metromedia Co.'s Cellular One mobile phone service.

Cellular One is Ameritech's sole competitor in the Chicago cellular market and stands to be a tougher competitor than Metromedia, which operated the system on a lame-duck basis for 15 months while it received regulatory approval for the sale.

The fluidity of the phone service industry was illustrated by Ameritech this year when it introduced a time and distance rate plan in Chicago. The move means that local calls are billed using the same criteria as long distance calls.

While analysts say the rate change in Chicago—Ameritech's largest market—caused initial confusion and a slight drop in revenues, service charges have since rebounded strongly.

Illinois Bell, Ameritech's biggest-spending telephone company, dialed up lower ad spending in 1986. Its omnipresent "Just Call" and "Call First" campaigns racked up measured spending of $2.6 million in 1986, versus $3.4 million in 1985.

Spending by Ameritech Publishing, though, more than picked up the slack. In an effort to push its "official" Yellow Pages directory in the wake of competition from upstarts, Ameritech Publishing spent $6.1 million on a promotional campaign. That's almost double what the unit spent last year promoting the Yellow Pages.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	7,532	10,829
Magazines	4,346	3,198
Bus. pubs.	412	368
Spot TV	13,672	11,000
Spot radio	3,620	3,259
Outdoor	1,179	337
Total measured	30,759	28,991
Unmeasured	38,196	36,000
Total	68,955	64,991

AMERITECH
30 S. Wacker Drive
Chicago, Ill. 60606
(312) 750-5000
Marketing Personnel

Gary G. Drook, vp-mktg
John A. Koten, sr vp-corp comm

Advertising Agency

J. Walter Thompson, Chicago—corp adv—John Furr, sr vp-dir acct mgmt; Charles Larson, vp-acct mgr; Janice Kidwell, vp-acct super.

ILLINOIS BELL TELEPHONE CO.
Chicago
Marketing Personnel

Allen J. Cizner, vp-mktg
Raymond G. Lewis, dir-adv

Advertising Agency

N W Ayer, Chicago—Tim Crosh, mgmt super; Sarah Flax, acct super.

INDIANA BELL TELEPHONE CO.
Marketing Personnel

Herbert D. Crane, vp-mktg
James H. Irwin, dist mgr-adv

Advertising Agency

Handley & Miller, Indianapolis—Larry Landis, acct super.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.
Marketing Personnel

Kenneth B. Lange, vp-mktg
Dennis A. White, div mgr-adv

Advertising Agency

Ross Roy Inc., Detroit—Richard Simmons, sr vp-group mgr; George Petroff, vp-acct super.

OHIO BELL TELEPHONE CO.
Marketing Personnel

Robert Hudzik, vp-mktg
John P. Butler, div mgr-adv & planning

Advertising Agency

Lowe-Marschalk, Cleveland—John Willse, sr vp-mgmt svcs dir; Leslie Valdizzi, vp-mgmt super.

WISCONSIN BELL TELEPHONE CO.
Milwaukee, Wis.
Marketing Personnel

Glen Arnold, vp-mktg & sales operations
Carla M. Butenhoff, district mgr-adv

Advertising Agency

Cramer Krasselt, Milwaukee—Bill Faude, sr acct exec; Karen Elsesser, acct exec.

AMERITECH MOBILE COMMUNICATIONS
Chicago
Marketing Personnel

Phillip D. Knell, vp-sales & mktg
Katherine R. Boudas, vp-comm
Ronald Jankowski, mgr-comm svcs

Advertising Agency

Ogilvy & Mather, Chicago—Curt Ippensen, sr vp-mgmt rep; Bob Gustafson, vp-acct super.

AMERITECH PUBLISHING
Troy, Mich
Marketing Personnel

Charles Drouillard, vp-mktg & sales
Sam J. Iaquinta, district mgr-adv & branding

Advertising Agency

Ross Roy Inc., Detroit—James Quigley, sr vp-mgmt super; Susan Parent, acct super.

APPLIED DATA RESEARCH
Princeton, N.J.
Marketing Personnel

Stephen J. Gerrard, vp-prod mktg
Robert G. Gordon, dir-comm

Advertising Agency

Ephron, Raboy, Tsao Advertising, New York—Dick King, acct exec.

RANK 182

Amoco Corp.

Chicago

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	20,231	28,873	(29.9)
Net income	747	1,953	(61.8)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	16,243	23,131	(29.8)
Operating profits	484	1,168	(58.6)
Advertising	43	30	40.9
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Exploration	6,285	10,191	(38.3)
Refining	14,771	21,926	(32.6)
Chemicals	3,059	3,082	(0.7)
Other	140	339	(58.7)

Amoco Corp., the nation's fifth-largest operator of gasoline stations, in 1986 became the first major U.S. gas supplier to discontinue leaded gasolines from its product lineup.

And most of its marketing efforts during the past 18 months have centered around the introduction of two new products—its first new gasolines in about a decade.

During the second quarter of 1986 the firm unveiled Amoco Ultimate Premium Lead Free, a high-octane product that supplanted its leaded high-test. At year end, the $20 billion oil giant added Amoco Silver, a mid-grade gasoline that rounded out its pump offerings.

Along with its regular unleaded, the Amoco array of retail products was promoted in ads as the "Lead-Free Three."

The expansion of pump options and the conversion to an all lead-free assortment led Amoco to increase its measured advertising expenditures for gasoline during 1986 by 65% to $14.5 million. By February of this year, Amoco broke a separate campaign to back up its launch of Amoco Silver. Actor Clayton Moore, better known as TV and screen's Lone Ranger, surfaced as the celebrity spokesman. Four radio and two black-and-white TV ads feature Mr. Moore hailing, "Heigh-ho, Silver, away."

Amoco in 1986 captured an estimated 7.4% of the nation's gas station business on a volume basis, placing it No. 5 among gas retailers but less than two percentage points behind the country's No. 1 gas purveyor, Shell, which boasts an 8.7% share. Chevron is No. 2 at 8.4%, Texaco No. 3 at 8%, Exxon No. 4 at 7.5%, according to National Petroleum News.

But Amoco contends that in its 29-state marketing area, where it operates a total of 12,000 gas stations, it boasts a 13.3% share. That marketing area, though, shrunk in 1986 as Amoco withdrew sales operations from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Louisiana, Texas and parts of Connecticut because of "low profitability and low volume."

Advertising for motor oil, Amoco's other major consumer product, stalled in 1986. Spending for the line of natural and synthetic motor lubes totaled $1 million, about the same as in 1985.

Marketing efforts, however, seem to be gearing up in 1987 as Amoco cements its endorsement pact with the Newman/Haas Racing team and its star member, Mario Andretti. The race car superstar appears in TV ads for Amoco Ultimate Synthetic Oil and outfits his auto with the Amoco torch and oval logo.

Amoco moved to build its presence in Canada with a $3.87 billion bid for Canada's financially troubled Dome Petroleum Ltd.

The buyout, which would be the largest takeover ever in Canada, has been stalled by wrangling with government regulators and Dome lenders. The acquisition would make Amoco Canada's second-largest oil company.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,740	1,433
Magazines	3,027	2,494
Newsp. supps	0	253
Bus. pubs	1,864	1,684
Spot TV	13,917	9,024
Spot radio	6,980	4,725
Outdoor	1,181	1,249
Network cable	106	0
Total measured	28,814	20,862
Unmeasured	14,100	9,600
Total	42,914	30,462

AMOCO CORP.
200 E. Randolph Dr.
Chicago, Ill, 60601
(312) 856-6111
AMOCO OIL CO.
Marketing Personnel

Robert J. Rauscher, vp-mktg
Robert D. McKeehan, genl mgr-mktg
John C. Bergman, mktg vp, East
R.D. McMullen, mktg vp, West
J.A. Stitzell, dir-adv

Advertising Agency

D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, Chicago—Amoco Silver, Amoco Ultimate, Amoco Lead Free, Amoco Motor Oils, Certicare—John Breen, mgmt super; Rick Grant, acct group super; Bob Brinkley, acct super; John Colasanti, sr acct exec; Nancy Lyons, acct exec.

RANK 147

Apple Computer

Cupertino, Calif.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	2,660	1,901	40.0
Net income	217	154	41.0
U.S. advertising	58	84	(31.3)

Buoyed by 17% industry growth and an onslaught of new products, Apple Computer's sales climbed 40% in fiscal 1987. But analysts projected that the company's unit share of the U.S. personal-computer market would fall to 10% by the close of 1987, down from 13% in 1986.

Apple still was expected to maintain its second-place status behind leader IBM Corp. and ahead of Tandy Corp.

Total ad spending fell dramatically in 1986 for the second year in a row. From a high of $134 million in 1984, spending dropped to $57.4 million in 1986. Agency sources estimated that IBM outspent Apple by a ratio of 5-to-1.

The new products Apple introduced in 1986 and 1987 helped strengthen its leading position in the educational market and furthered its inroads into the corporate segment.

In the fiscal year ended Sept. 26, 1986, growing acceptance of higher-end Macintosh computers in the corporate market gave the company a lift. Overall, sales were off 0.9% from 1985 as Mac gains were offset by reduced sales of lower-end Apple IIs.

However, net income shot up 151%, and gross margin improved from 42% of sales in 1985 to 53% in 1986. Cost-cutting maneuvers of President-CEO John Sculley were a boon to profits.

In 1987, the Apple II line has come back strong, led by the October 1986 introduction of the Apple IIGS, featuring enhanced speed and snazzy color graphics. Initial orders of the IIGS were larger than anticipated, causing shipping delays that took a bite out of potential Christmas sales.

Nearly double the price of the Apple IIc, the company's lowest-priced model, the IIGS became the best-selling member of the line in February, helping to fight aggressive competition launched by IBM and Tandy in the kindergarten-through-high school arena.

Introduction of the Macintosh SE and the Macintosh II, which features color graphics and sound for the first time, helped bolster the corporate market's growing acceptance of Apple. In a strategic departure, both the new models offered access to programs used by IBM systems, such as Lotus 1-2-3.

The new Macs also enhanced the company's position in the rapidly growing desktop-publishing market.

Early in 1987, Apple finally made good on a promise to offer "desktop communication," or the sharing of documents and data with other systems. Five new products enabling "connectivity" were introduced.

Ad spending on network TV continued to decline in 1986, following a trend begun the previous year toward more radio and direct mail. Network got only $10.3 million in 1986, down 60%. Apple was off-screen for a year, returning dramatically on NBC's World Series coverage in October 1986 with the first of 11 commercials developed by BBDO Worldwide at a cost of $6 million.

TV spots changed radically, gaining an emotional soft-sell touch under BBDO, which wrested the account from Chiat/Day, Los Angeles, in May 1985.

In a precedent-setting campaign for the computer industry, Apple mailed nearly a million pop-up brochures in April 1987 promoting the Apple IIGS. The expense of the pop-ups, which cost 30% to 40% more than standard mailshots to produce, drove the cost of the mailing to nearly $1 million.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	8,070	8,139
Magazines	6,680	11,916
Newsp. supps	101	246
Bus. pubs	373	1,557
Network TV	10,313	25,863
Spot TV	3,202	356
Network radio	292	254
Spot radio	7,457	5,170
Outdoor	37	69
Network cable	468	289
Total measured	36,991	53,859
Unmeasured	20,605	30,000
Total	57,596	83,859

APPLE COMPUTER
20525 Mariani Ave.
Cupertino, Calif. 95014
(408) 996-1010
Marketing Personnel

Charles Boesenberg, sr vp, group exec-U.S. sales & mktg
Charles Berger, vp-mktg devel
Bruce S. Mowery, dir-mktg comm
Sharon Lack, mgr-adv
George Everhart, dir-business mktg
Lloyd Mahaffey, dir-educational mktg

Advertising Agencies

BBDO Worldwide, New York & Los Angeles—Robert Spofford, sr vp-group mgmt super, Paris; Martha Pease, vp-mgmt super, Los Angeles; Michael Baldwin, Debra Nieman, acct supers.

RANK 141

Avon Products

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,883	2,470	16.7
Net income	159	(60)	364.9
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,855	1,582	17.3
Operating profits	206	155	32.7
Advertising	60	53	11.4
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Cosmetics	1,924	1,728	11.3
Fashion jewelry	310	276	12.4
Health care	432	261	65.4
Direct response	216	205	5.4
Other	1	N/A	N/A

Avon Products continues to build its presence in the retail beauty business—which it entered in 1986 through partnership with Liz Claiborne to market Claiborne fragrance and the introduction of Deneuve fragrance to retail stores—by adding Giorgio and Parfums Stern in 1987.

But the company did not forsake its direct selling operations. Its introduction of Breathless this fall may be its biggest-ever perfume launch, and it is planning a major launch of an extensive makeup line, Avon Color, in 1988.

The company, which in 1986 reported a 17% growth in worldwide sales and $159 million in net income over a loss the previous year, continued to show strength during the first nine months of 1987 with worldwide sales of $2.3 billion, up 14%. Net earnings fell to $86.6 million, down 2% from the corresponding period in 1986, but operating profit rose 12% to $212.5 million.

The company increased measured ad spending 11% in 1986 to $28.3 million. Part of the increase came with the rollout of Deneuve fragrance, backed by $2.3 million, and Fifth Avenue fragrance, backed by $2.7 million. Spending on Avon's multiproduct advertising also rose markedly, BAR/LNA reports.

According to a company spokesman, measured spending should reach $30 million by the end of 1987, partly because of Breathless and Giorgio advertising. For the January to June 1987 period reported by BAR/LNA, Giorgio spending was $1.3 million.

In October Avon announced that it would consolidate its color lines under one name--Avon Color—to streamline operations. The launch of Avon Color in January 1988 through N W Ayer will bring another $5 million-plus in ad spending through TV spots and print ads during the first quarter alone. According to the company, color cosmetics should glean most of the advertising budget in 1988. Avon Color will only be sold through the company's sales reps.

In September Avon announced it would acquire Parfums Stern, New York, for $160 million. The company markets Oscar de la Renta, Perry Ellis and Valentino fragrances. Stern has an in-house agency, and, according to Leon Seaman, VP-advertising, ad spending and plans for Stern are undecided.

Avon also bought Giorgio Inc., Beverly Hills, in May 1987 for $165 million. Giorgio is the single best-selling fragrance in U.S. department stores, with annual revenue of $100 million-plus. While most believe the U.S. market for Giorgio has leveled off, Avon hopes it will be successful overseas. The fragrance will not be sold by catalog. Avon also plans to introduce a suncare line under the Giorgio name.

In July 1987 Avon offered Eli Lilly & Co. $550 million for its Elizabeth Arden subsidiary, a company that would have fit its retail strategy, but the bid was surpassed by Faberge Inc., which paid $700 million for Arden.

In keeping with its strategy to concentrate more on its beauty products, Avon sold Great American Magazines, a direct-mail subscription subsidiary, to its management for $10 million-plus in January 1987. It also announced the planned $151.2-million management buyout of its direct response division, which markets catalog fashions, including Avon Fashions, Brights Creek children's wear and James River Traders casual wear. Completion is expected this month.

The beauty products division, which includes color cosmetics, fragrance, jewelry and gift/decorative items, had worldwide sales in 1986 of $2.23 billion, an 11% increase over 1985. Operating profit was $281.8 million, a 20% increase over the year previous. Its domestic sales increased 8% to $1.2 billion, with operating profit increasing 36% to $129.6 million.

The number of sales representatives has remained at 375,000, and the direct selling divisions began training and marketing programs to back representatives and provide prospects. Avon planned a workplace program for 1987, as workplace selling accounted for 20% of the division's sales in 1986.

Avon continues to use Ayer's campaign developed last year, "Look how good you look now," and it has been adapted to Spanish language in a series of TV spots which aired on Spanish-language TV this October.

In 1986, Avon began selling in retail stores Deneuve fragrance, part of its Parfums Phenix division formed to market the perfume named for actress Catherine Deneuve. It previously was available only by telephone or mail order. According to BAR/LNA, in 1986 Avon spent $2.4 million advertising Deneuve, mostly in magazines.

In January, Avon assigned the Parfums Phenix division to Boulet Dru Dupuy Petit Conseil, Paris. The agency handles all U.S. and international print, radio and TV advertising for Deneuve fragrance. Della Femina, Travisano & Partners, New York, handles U.S. media buying.

In June 1986 Avon embarked on a joint venture with Liz Claiborne's fragrances. The venture is a shared partnership in which Claiborne handles the marketing and advertising while Avon handles development, design and manufacturing.

Avon in November 1986 assigned its minority direct-selling beauty business advertising to UniWorld Group, a category that represents billings of $3 million.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	182	45
Magazines	7,712	6,529
Newsp. supps.	246	105
Bus. pubs.	131	0
Network TV	19,265	18,680
Spot TV	9	38
Network radio	713	0
Spot radio	50	0
Outdoor	0	5
Total measured	28,309	25,402
Unmeasured	31,205	28,000
Total	59,514	53,402

AVON PRODUCTS
9 West 57th St.
New York, N.Y. 10019
(212) 546-6015

Marketing Personnel

Philip C. Crosland, group vp-mktg
Kenneth Wolfe, vp-gifts
Mary Lou Quinlan, director-adv
Kathy Dwyer, group dir-skincare
Donna Krueger, group dir-fragrance
Carol Murray, group dir-makeup
Madeline Accardi, group dir-jewelry

Advertising Agencies

N W Ayer, New York-corp adv-Rich LeFurgy, mgt super; Victoria Squires, acct super.

UniWorld Group, New York-black/hispanic advertising-Miriam Muley, acct super; Glenda Alavarez, acct exec.

RANK 179

Bally Manufacturing

Chicago

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,600	N/A	N/A
Net income	23	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	43	40	8.0

Bally Manufacturing Corp., which began in 1931 with the introduction of Ballyhoo, the first penny-a-play mechanical amusement game, concentrated for years on game-based entertainment. That focus was highly profitable in the late '70s and early '80s, when Bally's video arcades prospered from the videogame craze.

When the craze began to wane, the company broadened its scope by acquiring theme parks. The first acquisition was Six Flags, bought from Penn Central Corp. for $147.4 million in January 1982. Bally followed that up in May 1984, buying the Great America theme park in Gurnee, Ill., from Marriott Corp. for $113.2 million.

The Six Flags unit generated a good cash flow for Bally. In 1986, its pretax operating profits rose 32% to $48.6 million, and revenues rose 4% to $369.4 million. But the parks required large investments, especially for costly new rides. Advertising for the parks—each of which used a separate agency—was budgeted at $17.7 million for 1986. BAR/LNA figures show that $9.9 million of that was spent in measured media, mostly in spot TV.

Despite the cash flow advantages, Bally was carrying some $240 million in Six Flags debt on its balance sheet. So the company announced in April that it was selling the chain to Wesray Capital Corp., a Morristown, N.J.-based investment concern, for $600 million, which Bally Chairman/CEO Robert Mullane said would result in an aftertax profit of about $100 million for his company.

A company spokesman says Bally sold the unit to refocus its efforts on gaming. "Basically, we were the biggest leisure time company in the nation," he says. "We restructured a little bit, retargeted toward being a gaming company. Six Flags was just a little out of synch with that goal.

The Six Flags sale boosted Bally's lagging stock price, driven up even further later in the summer by rumors that the company was ripe for a takeover.

Other rumors circulated that Mr. Mullane was planning to take the company private. That speculation was fueled by Bally's hiring of Salomon Brothers to sell its health and tennis division. Bally in March had announced a plan to take the health division public, but the partial spinoff plan was scrapped before the stock offering was made. Some observers believe Bally hired Salomon because the investment banker was willing to help finance a leveraged buyout. Mr. Mullane has refused to comment on the rumors.

To underscore its focus on gaming, in March Bally paid $440 million for the Golden Nugget Casino Hotel in Atlantic City, N.J. Bally formally re-introduced its acquisition as Bally's Grand in October of this year. A spokesman says all of the Casino Group's advertising is done in-house. Measured media for the group in 1986 was $930,000.

Bally also boosted its emphasis on games, especially new pinball games. "We just keep bringing new ones out on the market all the time," a spokesman says. The latest pinball entry is called "Party Animal."

Also, Bally Midway Manufacturing Corp. joined Flixcorp, a Chicago-based company, in producing Mr. Flix, a videocassette vending machine. The computer-driven device introduced this September can rent or sell videotapes, either for cash or by credit card.

The Mr. Flix kiosks, which can hold up to 384 videotapes, are slated for delivery in the spring of 1988.

Bally Midway is part of the company's Amusement Games & Services Group, which also operates Aladdin's Castle entertainment centers. The group operates more than 300 arcades, making Bally the nation's largest operator in the category.

Bally's Gaming Equipment & Services Group, maker of the world's broadest line

One Word Dramatically Expands Your Design Productivity And Your

Imagine It. Then Image It.

Imagine having time to capture, with high quality comps, all of the ideas that dance through your head for a package design, brochure, annual report or print ad. Imagine instantly making a client's "one or two simple changes" and making one or two new business presentations with the time you save.

The VASTER Design & Imaging System from Du Pont Design Technologies transforms imagination into images, thousands of them, right now, by putting at your fingertips powerful resources that let you explore more creative options while you expand your business opportunities.

Draw From A VASTER Set Of Resources.

With VASTER, you instantly capture color or black and white photos and stats on screen, then manipulate them, along with any other design elements. You add and alter color, create headlines and text, reduce or enlarge images, filter, retouch, remove, size, solarize, greyscale, mirror and rotate automatically. You mix or fade colors by primary components or hue, saturation or value; work with dozens of electronic drawing tools and layout guides; choose from over 700 type fonts; and electronically file all of your designs, logos and photography.

Harness The Power Of VASTER Technology.

VASTER uniquely merges vector and raster technologies, to great benefit. For instance, you

One Word Is A Thousand

Special thanks to the San Francisco Ballet and ChromaSet of reel spinning and video slot machines, also includes Bally Scientific Games, Inc., based in Atlanta. Bally Scientific is the largest designer, producer and marketer of lottery games in this country, and has done business with 24 of the 25 states that currently have lotteries. Bally has handled the startup of every state lottery in the past 11 years, the spokesman says.

The company's Health and Fitness Group includes Bally Health and Tennis Corp., the largest organization of its kind, comprised of more than 300 health clubs with more than 1.5 million members.

The health clubs boast Bally's highest consumer visibility, thanks to a series of TV commercials via J. Walter Thompson, Los Angeles. Bally spent $11.3 million on its various health clubs in 1986, up from $4.5 million in 1985, according to BAR/LNA, which credits virtually all the spending to spot TV.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	70	77
Magazines	1,804	362
Newsp. supps.	92	2
Bus. pubs.	479	70
Spot TV	21,701	21,779
Outdoor	364	808
Network cable	8	159
Total measured . . .	24,468	23,257
Unmeasured	19,000	17,000
Total	43,468	40,257

BALLY MANUFACTURING CORP.
8700 W. Bryn Mawr Ave.
Chicago, IL 60631
(312) 399-1300
Corporate Personnel
Robert E. Mullane, chmn & president-ceo
Advertising Agency
BBDO Worldwide, Chicago—Robert Pingrey, mgmt super.
HEALTH AND FITNESS GROUP
Marketing Personnel
Arthur Quinby, vp-mktg
Advertising Agency
J. Walter Thompson USA, Los Angeles—Mike Marsak, vp-client services; Jeanine Perkel, vp-mgmt super; Paula Dinari, vp-acct super.
AMUSEMENT GAMES & SERVICES GROUP
Marketing Personnel
Steven Blattspieler, vp-mktg
GAMES EQUIPMENT & SERVICES GROUP
Marketing Personnel
Robert Harpling, vp-mktg & sales
CASINO DIVISION
Marketing Personnel
Charles Tannenbaum, sr vp-mtkg
Advertising Agency
(In-house).

RANK

BankAmerica Corp. 190

San Francisco

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	N/A	N/A	N/A
Net income	(518)	(337)	53.7
U.S. advertising	36	26	38.0

Although BankAmerica Corp. continued to show red ink on its 1986 bottom line, the bank holding company boosted its advertising 38%.

Paced by spot TV spending that expanded from $4.6 million in 1985 to $11 million in 1986, overall advertising grew to $36 million. Of the total, unmeasured spending, mostly from direct mail campaigns, was $10 million in 1986.

Despite the year-end loss, a major corporate restructuring plan netted the company a profit in the fourth quarter, and it projects operating profitability for 1987. The restructuring—designed to increase its share of retail and commercial banking on the West Coast and to advance on the world market for financial services—resulted in the sale of significant assets in 1986.

The company sold Banca d'America, the BankAmerica Los Angeles headquarters, and real estate holdings in Tokyo for a total pretax gain of $371 million. It also divested various overseas retail operations. In 1987, BankAmerica dumped Charles Schwab Corp., a discount brokerage, for a pretax gain of $123 million. Other divestitutes are planned.

Behind the strategic planning is a new top management team headed by A.W. Clausen, who was named chairman-ceo. Thomas A. Cooper became president, and Frank N. Newman, vice chairman-cfo.

On the West Coast, where Bank of America is by far the largest bank (one of three California households has some relation with the bank), it rolled out a new campaign in September 1987 created by Grey Advertising with the theme line "Doing the job for more of California than any other bank." Prior to this campaign the firm ran for 18 months the "We want the job" spots created by Allen & Dorward (now part of Mojo MDA).

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	2,050	4,233
Newsp. supps.	274	144
Bus. pubs.	55	197
Network TV	1,113	897
Spot TV	11,502	4,617
Network radio	729	1,316
Spot radio	5,752	4,511
Outdoor	1,128	403
Network cable	3,238	2,500
Total measured . . .	25,840	18,817
Unmeasured	10,200	7,300
Total	36,040	26,117

BANKAMERICA CORP.
555 California St.
San Francisco, Calif. 94104
(415) 622-3456
Marketing Personnel
Jerry Baker, dir-adv & mktg
Michael Green, vp-sr adv dir
Richard Popko, vp-sr adv mgr
David Boyles, sr vp, consumers mkts
Ilze Grace, sr vp, individual financial mkts
Advertising Agency
Grey Advertising, San Francisco—Hank McWhinney, president, mgmt rep; John Greer, sr vp-mgmt super; Tom Banks, vp-mgmt super; Karen Sterling, vp-acct super; Debora Wilhelm, Nancy Risolfi, acct execs.

Your Creative Opportunities, Business Potential. VASTER.™

stack graphic elements to compose the image but retain the ability to edit each one individually. Gone is the irritating "Back to Square One" scenario of other systems.

In fact, gone are most editing restrictions, and many output restrictions as well. That means your designs can be imaged on any number of output options, from four color thermal transfer printers to full color film transparencies.

Make The Accounts And Accountant Happy.

VASTER gives your clients more creative product, more quickly. That puts them closer to market—and you closer to them. And because you spend much less on comp time and materials, that puts a smile on your accountant's face—and your clients'.

Call 1-800-341-1004. And Get The Word.

We've shown that one word, VASTER, is worth a thousand pictures. But the dancers show a larger picture worth at least a thousand words. Because we did more than just compose them with VASTER, we took them digitally through prepress production to plate-ready film.

It's all part of a story from Du Pont Design Technologies that we call The Next Chemistry Of Creative Art. Call us. We'd like to tell you more.

Design Technologies, Inc.
Electronic Imaging Group
3100 Patrick Henry Drive
Santa Clara, CA 95054-1896
TEL 408 980 8000 FAX 408 [illegible]

Worth Pictures.

VASTER is a trademark and The New Chemistry of Creativity [illegible]

Media spending by second 100 leaders

Rank 1986	1985	Advertiser	Headquarters	Total spending	'86-'85 % chg	Unmeasured spending	Total measured	Newspaper	Business publication	Spot radio	Farm publications
101	123	Borden Inc.	New York	$81,962	43.0	$59,486	$22,476	$2,352	$920	$2,115	0
102	92	Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.	Osaka, Japan	79,809	(7.3)	40,040	39,769	546	3,603	618	0
103	113	North American Philips Cpr.	New York	79,377	17.1	40,968	38,409	276	366	218	0
104	116	Trans World Airlines	New York	78,782	17.8	29,971	48,811	29,329	1,343	3,593	0
105	124	Daimler-Benz AG	Stuttgart, W. Germany	77,423	19.8	20,072	57,351	23,340	547	3,542	0
106	101	Levi Strauss & Associates	San Francisco	76,755	7.6	44,756	31,999	132	4	2,186	$161
107	—	Wal-Mart Stores	Bentonville, Ark.	75,529	87.3	45,000	30,529	0	0	0	0
108	125	F.W. Woolworth Co.	New York	74,083	14.8	45,912	28,171	0	0	2,610	0
109	—	Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.	New York	72,964	28.2	18,900	54,064	2,214	47	263	0
110	138	Blue Cross Blue Shield Association	Chicago	71,519	18.0	35,401	36,118	4,149	24	4,263	0
111	131	Castle & Cooke Inc.	Los Angeles	71,318	26.3	40,406	30,912	225	1,292	1,395	0
112	109	Polaroid Corp.	Cambridge, Mass.	71,249	2.4	40,974	30,274	1,765	1,566	187	0
113	143	Prudential Insurance Co. of America	Newark, N.J.	70,618	22.0	18,298	52,320	2,196	269	1,288	0
114	128	Jerrico Inc.	Lexington, Ky.	69,478	10.0	39,587	29,891	0	0	183	0
115	132	United Biscuits Holdings PLC	London	69,305	11.0	39,967	29,338	4	397	0	0
116	100	George A. Hormel & Co.	Austin, Minn.	69,068	(2.3)	25,351	43,717	960	779	11,684	0
117	119	Carter-Wallace Inc.	New York	69,046	4.9	43,025	26,021	7	152	100	0
118	122	Ameritech	Chicago	68,955	6.1	38,196	30,759	7,532	412	3,620	0
119	95	Gulf + Western Industries	New York	68,635	17.3	27,300	41,335	2,938	7	395	0
120	108	Southwestern Bell Corp.	St. Louis	67,609	(3.4)	26,078	41,531	7,259	211	10,317	0
121	99	Cotter & Co.	Chicago	67,270	(6.1)	23,465	43,805	0	220	1,265	0
122	97	Canon Inc.	Tokyo	67,085	(17.4)	16,861	50,224	1,753	2,775	1,524	0
123	103	Dayton Hudson Corp.	Minneapolis	66,951	(1.0)	30,937	36,014	0	0	4,128	0
124	145	Alberto-Culver Co.	Melrose Park, Ill.	66,725	17.3	41,070	25,655	11	119	248	0
125	136	MCI Communications Corp.	Washington	66,646	8.6	21,722	44,924	2,276	1,233	564	0
126	130	Estee Lauder Inc.	New York	66,631	5.8	16,845	49,785	3,658	0	607	0
127	114	American Stores	Salt Lake City, Utah	66,244	(2.8)	34,012	32,232	0	0	5,719	0
128	162	Wellcome PLC	London	64,900	26.2	34,655	30,245	0	670	0	0
129	—	First Brands Corp.	Danbury, Conn.	64,831	4.6	30,000	34,831	119	242	0	0
130	98	Capital Cities/ABC	New York	63,117	(12.6)	7,771	55,346	9,989	162	7,982	0
131	—	Seven-Up Co.	Dallas	62,822	92.0	7,441	55,381	1,942	676	2,146	0
132	174	A.H. Robins Co.	Richmond, Va.	62,742	38.4	13,841	48,902	19	916	1,809	349
133	—	VF Corp.	Wyomissing, Pa.	62,209	4.5	36,300	25,909	800	0	0	0
134	159	Mennen Co.	Morristown, N.J.	61,802	21.5	20,661	41,141	0	180	141	0
135	135	Whirlpool Corp.	Benton Harbor, Mich.	61,796	(0.5)	19,909	41,887	4,140	448	0	0
136	163	BMW AG	Munich	61,545	23.4	14,808	46,738	10,924	134	1,767	0
137	144	Hattori-Seiko Co. Ltd.	Tokyo	60,912	(0.4)	22,906	38,006	4,282	118	0	0
138	153	Cadbury Schweppes PLC	London	60,272	(15.8)	20,908	39,364	987	100	393	0
139	93	Mattel Inc.	Hawthorne, Calif.	59,872	(29.6)	14,075	45,797	480	392	642	0
140	150	Southland Corp.	Dallas	59,657	10.6	23,642	36,015	34	217	19,962	0
141	151	Avon Products	New York	59,514	11.4	31,205	28,309	182	131	50	0
142	154	Ciba-Geigy Ltd.	Basel, Switzerland	59,488	14.7	30,982	28,506	35	2,882	2,175	6,622
143	164	Lucky Stores	Dublin, Calif.	58,732	18.0	29,499	29,233	0	0	4,972	0
144	182	Fuji Heavy Industries	Tokyo	58,718	43.2	17,184	41,534	5,211	10	3,253	0
145	179	Hallmark Cards	Kansas City, Mo.	58,367	39.3	23,681	34,686	1,594	37	255	0
146	127	Imasco Ltd.	Montreal	57,633	(7.6)	23,094	34,539	0	0	10	0
147	94	Apple Computer	Cupertino, Calif.	57,596	(31.3)	20,605	36,991	8,070	373	7,457	0
148	157	SmithKline/Beckman Corp.	Philadelphia	56,700	9.6	29,601	27,099	14	486	2	275
149	133	Royal Crown Cola Cos.	Rolling Meadows, Ill.	55,565	(10.8)	28,632	26,934	1,538	45	943	0
150	146	Minolta Camera Co. Ltd	Osaka, Japan	55,505	(2.2)	29,350	26,155	245	801	0	0
151	110	Kimberly-Clark Corp.	Irving, Texas	55,298	(20.5)	11,238	44,061	447	182	37	0
152	142	Coleco Industries	West Hartford, Conn.	54,830	(23.9)	25,102	29,729	480	0	141	0
153	191	NWA Inc.	Eagan, Minn.	52,882	15.0	10,353	42,529	22,219	535	2,672	0
154	—	Isuzu Ltd.	Tokyo	52,557	97.5	12,391	40,166	7,339	573	475	0
155	—	Winn-Dixie Stores	Jacksonville, Fla.	52,529	17.1	29,200	23,329	0	0	834	0
156	185	MasterCard International	New York	52,393	33.5	14,957	37,436	0	983	2,685	0
157	—	Zayre Corp.	Framingham, Mass.	52,353	54.5	27,000	25,353	0	9	8,298	0
158	—	Hyundai Motor Co.	Seoul, S. Korea	52,331	N/A	15,000	37,331	10,396	190	0	0
159	—	Reckitt & Colman PLC	London	51,924	42.5	25,000	26,924	17	686	2,518	0
160	115	Black & Decker Corp.	Towson, Md.	51,815	(23.4)	17,618	34,196	294	153	0	0
161	167	Squibb Corp.	Princeton, N.J.	50,884	4.1	26,030	24,854	1,053	735	58	0
162	171	Franklin Mint	Franklin Center, Pa.	50,530	8.8	10,878	39,651	7,298	25	0	0
163	148	Sandoz Ltd.	Basel, Switzerland	50,403	(8.8)	22,798	27,605	121	708	195	1,519
164	169	Safeway Stores	Oakland, Calif.	50,112	5.9	26,476	23,636	0	0	1,445	0
165	—	NEC Corp.	Tokyo	50,090	54.2	25,000	25,090	2,883	8,912	53	0
166	152	US West	Englewood, Colo.	50,032	(4.4)	23,108	26,925	3,144	539	6,149	0
167	—	Wickes Cos.	Santa Monica, Calif.	49,694	(0.1)	15,000	34,694	0	300	445	0
168	—	3M Co.	St. Paul, Minn.	48,883	27.1	25,000	23,883	0	8,722	0	0
169	—	Domino's Pizza	Ann Arbor, Mich.	48,489	77.5	11,300	37,189	0	0	2,235	0
170	168	Triangle Publications	Radnor, Pa.	48,426	(0.6)	9,938	38,488	1,005	2,018	97	0
171	—	Tyson Foods	Springdale, Ark.	48,265	137.9	25,200	23,065	126	3,528	454	0
172	—	Ocean Spray Cranberries	Plymouth, Mass.	47,329	61.5	23,000	24,329	66	312	155	0
173	—	Fruit of the Loom	Chicago	46,410	29.1	20,000	26,410	353	67	0	0
174	170	Chevron Corp.	San Francisco	45,413	(0.7)	14,901	30,512	3,162	1,450	4,395	914
175	175	Tambrands Inc.	Lake Success, N.Y.	44,772	1.7	14,244	30,528	0	43	321	0
176	89	Van Munching	New York	44,750	(52.0)	17,631	27,119	0	161	18,670	0
177	—	Melville Corp.	Harrison, N.Y.	43,836	23.2	18,000	25,836	0	0	6,407	0
178	—	Tri-Star Pictures	New York	43,476	70.8	17,500	25,976	0	0	87	0
179	—	Bally Manufacturing Corp.	Chicago	43,468	8.0	19,000	24,468	70	429	0	0
180	188	Reynolds Metal Co.	Richmond, Va.	43,416	19.7	17,961	25,455	59	423	626	0
181	—	News Corp. Ltd.	Sydney	43,154	4.0	5,200	37,954	711	275	849	0
182	—	Amoco Corp.	Chicago	42,914	40.9	14,100	28,814	1,740	1,864	6,989	0
183	197	Dow Jones & Co.	New York	42,566	72.1	13,767	28,799	1,259	2,630	2,810	0
184	—	Holiday Corp.	Memphis, Tenn.	41,532	38.8	17,000	24,532	0	566	1,519	0
185	166	Volvo AB	Goteborg, Sweden	41,359	(16.0)	12,606	28,753	5,768	1,025	378	0
186	161	Federal Express Corp.	Memphis, Tenn.	40,258	(20.0)	13,606	26,652	332	301	160	0
187	187	Hearst Corp.	New York	39,034	4.6	9,418	29,616	4,492	3,848	0	0
188	189	De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd.	London	36,386	2.2	6,133	30,253	0	0	0	0
189	—	Kenner Parker Toys	Beverly, Mass.	36,335	(26.6)	10,000	26,335	0	0	0	0
190	—	BankAmerica Corp.	San Francisco	36,040	38.0	10,200	25,840	0	55	5,752	0
191	118	Faberge Incorporated	New York	35,952	0.2	17,000	18,952	0	182	10	0
192	180	Visa International	San Francisco	35,445	(14.9)	10,123	25,322	0	786	4	0
193	194	Mitsubishi Motors Corp.	Tokyo	34,514	2.7	7,191	27,323	5,509	1,954	146	0
194	137	Citicorp	New York	33,731	44.8)	9,837	23,894	0	705	2,305	0
195	—	Turner Broadcasting System	Atlanta	33,351	(2.6)	4,100	29,251	1,455	1,148	0	0
196	—	State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co.	Bloomington, Ill.	32,544	24.9	8,400	24,144	200	218	1,243	0
197	—	Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts	Toronto	32,519	(21.1)	8,200	24,319	1,846	31	0	0
198	—	Canandaigua Wine Co.	Canandaigua, N.Y.	31,899	100.2	8,100	23,799	27	106	2,203	0
199	183	Thompson Medical Co.	New York	31,635	(21.4)	5,504	26,132	6	205	14	0
200	200	Bertelsmann AG	Guetersloh, W. Germany	29,218	(7.5)	6,474	22,744	3,755	27	79	0

Sources: Newspaper from Media Records, business publications from Rome Reports, spot radio from Radio Expenditure Reports and farm publications from Agricultural Marketing Information Services (AGRICOM). See Where Ad Age got its data, Page S-4. Note: Dollars are in thousands.

Media spending by second 100 leaders

Rank 1986	1985	Advertiser	Headquarters	Total spending	Magazine	Newspaper supplement	Network TV	Spot TV	Network radio	Outdoor	Cable TV networks
101	123	Borden Inc.	New York	$81,962	$4,546	$238	$ 3,232	$8,795	0	$77	$ 202
102	92	Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.	Osaka, Japan	79,809	17,522	0	7,025	8,851	$571	238	796
103	113	North American Philips Cpr.	New York	79,377	6,044	416	18,570	10,733	678	1	1,107
104	116	Trans World Airlines	New York	78,782	2,027	179	61	11,857	0	422	0
105	124	Daimler-Benz AG	Stuttgart, W. Germany	77,423	977	102	25,183	3,424	0	84	153
106	101	Levi Strauss & Associates	San Francisco	76,755	5,173	253	17,106	1,274	1,256	72	4,381
107	—	Wal-Mart Stores	Bentonville, Ark.	75,529	85	0	0	30,445	0	0	0
108	125	F.W. Woolworth Co.	New York	74,083	4,690	4,254	370	14,079	0	44	2,124
109	—	Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.	New York	72,964	8,284	52	31,403	9,833	0	148	1,820
110	138	Blue Cross Blue Shield Association	Chicago	71,519	1,113	57	4,952	20,715	0	835	9
111	131	Castle & Cooke Inc.	Los Angeles	71,318	6,065	145	16,130	3,069	2,529	20	41
112	109	Polaroid Corp.	Cambridge, Mass.	71,249	5,730	350	18,439	306	1,735	191	5
113	143	Prudential Insurance Co. of America	Newark, N.J.	70,618	11,097	1,579	28,702	3,574	237	178	3,202
114	128	Jerrico Inc.	Lexington, Ky.	69,478	2	0	2,492	26,803	0	272	139
115	132	United Biscuits Holdings PLC	London	69,305	5,033	0	22,204	1,681	0	18	1
116	100	George A. Hormel & Co.	Austin, Minn.	69,068	8,554	942	5,442	7,350	7,515	319	173
117	119	Carter-Wallace Inc.	New York	69,046	3,382	0	20,139	1,616	0	0	626
118	122	Ameritech	Chicago	68,955	4,346	0	0	13,672	0	1,179	0
119	95	Gulf + Western Industries	New York	68,635	2,640	38	9,405	23,915	214	45	1,738
120	108	Southwestern Bell Corp.	St. Louis	67,609	2,760	0	0	20,887	0	98	0
121	99	Cotter & Co.	Chicago	67,270	6,055	56	12,331	11,562	10,663	64	1,588
122	97	Canon Inc.	Tokyo	67,085	16,117	102	18,269	7,188	0	431	2,065
123	103	Dayton Hudson Corp.	Minneapolis	66,951	163	0	0	31,526	0	197	0
124	145	Alberto-Culver Co.	Melrose Park, Ill.	66,725	3,773	0	16,974	3,258	0	17	1,256
125	136	MCI Communications Corp.	Washington	66,646	6,716	101	12,539	21,308	2	16	170
126	130	Estee Lauder Inc.	New York	66,631	19,121	3,028	0	23,369	0	3	0
127	114	American Stores	Salt Lake City, Utah	66,244	0	0	0	26,333	0	180	0
128	162	Wellcome PLC	London	64,900	2,435	142	26,454	198	0	0	348
129	—	First Brands Corp.	Danbury, Conn.	64,831	251	0	28,510	4,683	587	0	439
130	98	Capital Cities/ABC	New York	63,117	30,555	542	0	4,396	256	795	669
131	—	Seven-Up Co.	Dallas	62,822	80	0	30,643	15,331	0	3,513	1,050
132	174	A.H. Robins Co.	Richmond, Va.	62,742	3,054	54	16,187	26,053	0	0	461
133	—	VF Corp.	Wyomissing, Pa.	62,209	8,124	518	5,982	5,992	2,329	634	1,530
134	159	Mennen Co.	Morristown, N.J.	61,802	2,824	0	33,365	2,085	0	0	2,548
135	135	Whirlpool Corp.	Benton Harbor, Mich.	61,796	12,445	6	13,925	2,638	7,930	13	291
136	163	BMW AG	Munich	61,545	11,902	7	17,656	3,588	0	51	709
137	144	Hattori-Seiko Co. Ltd.	Tokyo	60,912	8,880	178	14,355	9,314	0	138	741
138	153	Cadbury Schweppes PLC	London	60,272	2,727	67	14,951	19,124	570	129	316
139	93	Mattel Inc.	Hawthorne, Calif.	59,872	2,874	282	24,498	14,999	0	178	1,453
140	150	Southland Corp.	Dallas	59,657	168	66	866	11,655	0	2,986	60
141	151	Avon Products	New York	59,514	7,712	246	19,265	9	713	0	0
142	154	Ciba-Geigy Ltd.	Basel, Switzerland	59,488	707	0	10,373	5,343	0	171	198
143	164	Lucky Stores	Dublin, Calif.	58,732	53	0	0	24,135	0	73	0
144	182	Fuji Heavy Industries	Tokyo	58,718	8,680	0	14,072	9,386	0	270	652
145	179	Hallmark Cards	Kansas City, Mo.	58,367	1,512	1,157	27,434	1,913	782	0	0
146	127	Imasco Ltd.	Montreal	57,633	23	0	0	32,761	59	1,687	0
147	94	Apple Computer	Cupertino, Calif.	57,596	6,680	101	10,313	3,202	292	37	468
148	157	SmithKline/Beckman Corp.	Philadelphia	56,700	2,115	479	20,621	1,359	1,289	0	458
149	133	Royal Crown Cola Cos.	Rolling Meadows, Ill.	55,565	66	0	7,169	16,471	299	367	37
150	146	Minolta Camera Co. Ltd.	Osaka, Japan	55,505	6,402	0	11,716	5,635	692	121	545
151	110	Kimberly-Clark Corp.	Irving, Texas	55,298	10,315	0	30,208	2,183	0	95	594
152	142	Coleco Industries	West Hartford, Conn.	54,830	3,015	295	3,764	21,963	0	0	71
153	191	NWA Inc.	Eagan, Minn.	52,882	8,536	144	938	4,712	587	1,555	631
154	—	Isuzu Ltd.	Tokyo	52,557	9,920	0	5,931	15,356	315	5	252
155	—	Winn-Dixie Stores	Jacksonville, Fla.	52,529	0	0	5,098	16,874	0	523	0
156	185	MasterCard International	New York	52,393	5,858	67	21,509	3,647	2,080	0	607
157	—	Zayre Corp.	Framingham, Mass.	52,353	37	0	0	17,000	0	9	0
158	—	Hyundai Motor Co.	Seoul, S. Korea	52,331	4,736	0	4,077	17,914	0	17	0
159	—	Reckitt & Colman PLC	London	51,924	1,785	0	16,741	4,563	0	5	609
160	115	Black & Decker Corp.	Towson, Md.	51,815	7,469	327	23,425	2,234	0	7	289
161	167	Squibb Corp.	Princeton, N.J.	50,884	5,457	606	11,620	3,697	1,629	0	0
162	171	Franklin Mint	Franklin Center, Pa.	50,536	18,674	9,505	3	2,568	0	0	1,578
163	148	Sandoz Ltd.	Basel, Switzerland	50,403	2,421	22	18,679	3,921	13	7	0
164	169	Safeway Stores	Oakland, Calif.	50,112	1,067	0	0	20,930	0	194	0
165	—	NEC Corp.	Tokyo	50,090	12,117	40	423	36	0	186	441
166	152	US West	Englewood, Colo.	50,032	2,475	0	555	13,613	17	427	6
167	—	Wickes Cos.	Santa Monica, Calif.	49,694	2,497	213	13,545	15,258	1,931	221	285
168	—	3M Co.	St. Paul, Minn.	48,883	9,071	0	2,623	3,266	0	9	193
169	—	Domino's Pizza	Ann Arbor, Mich.	48,489	143	0	19,496	14,308	0	643	364
170	168	Triangle Publications	Radnor, Pa.	48,426	0	20	3,429	24,954	6,017	0	947
171	—	Tyson Foods	Springdale, Ark.	48,265	1,581	0	16,690	668	16	0	1
172	—	Ocean Spray Cranberries	Plymouth, Mass.	47,329	2,803	0	7,257	13,456	0	0	280
173	—	Fruit of the Loom	Chicago	46,410	6,198	161	16,890	2,673	0	69	0
174	170	Chevron Corp.	San Francisco	45,413	3,414	120	2,026	14,920	5	28	79
175	175	Tambrands Inc.	Lake Success, N.Y.	44,772	11,784	0	16,108	410	1	0	1,860
176	89	Van Munching	New York	44,750	3,880	221	1,538	2,504	145	0	0
177	—	Melville Corp.	Harrison, N.Y.	43,836	2,163	1,127	0	16,121	0	17	0
178	—	Tri-Star Pictures	New York	43,476	96	0	14,810	10,194	0	0	790
179	—	Bally Manufacturing Corp.	Chicago	43,468	1,804	92	0	21,701	0	364	8
180	188	Reynolds Metal Co.	Richmond, Va.	43,416	2,549	0	1,442	20,216	0	0	139
181	—	News Corp. Ltd.	Sydney	43,154	3,930	169	5,688	25,125	103	110	996
182	—	Amoco Corp.	Chicago	42,914	3,027	0	0	13,917	0	1,181	106
183	197	Dow Jones & Co.	New York	42,566	1,801	29	6,109	3,370	6,708	104	3,978
184	—	Holiday Corp.	Memphis, Tenn.	41,532	5,704	42	6,553	5,478	0	4,555	115
185	166	Volvo AB	Goteborg, Sweden	41,359	11,624	395	3,987	4,937	0	1	637
186	161	Federal Express Corp.	Memphis, Tenn.	40,258	3,055	0	13,679	8,843	0	0	284
187	187	Hearst Corp.	New York	39,034	16,884	0	0	3,788	22	501	81
188	189	De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd.	London	36,386	19,988	75	9,687	487	0	0	16
189	—	Kenner Parker Toys	Beverly, Mass.	36,335	126	0	15,574	10,412	0	0	223
190	—	BankAmerica Corp.	San Francisco	36,040	2,050	274	1,113	11,502	729	1,128	3,238
191	118	Faberge Incorporated	New York	35,952	10,685	111	5,023	1,920	224	17	780
192	180	Visa International	San Francisco	35,445	9,229	0	12,422	2,342	0	6	535
193	194	Mitsubishi Motors Corp.	Tokyo	34,514	6,260	0	3,383	9,677	0	124	270
194	137	Citicorp	New York	33,731	4,906	363	6,027	8,346	140	273	831
195	—	Turner Broadcasting System	Atlanta	33,351	8,932	39	5,407	6,752	867	276	4,378
196	—	State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co.	Bloomington, Ill.	32,544	1,462	0	11,694	1,871	7,036	146	274
197	—	Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts	Toronto	32,519	17,208	235	0	0	0	5,000	0
198	—	Canandaigua Wine Co.	Canandaigua, N.Y.	31,899	292	0	13,536	3,665	301	40	3,629
199	183	Thompson Medical Co.	New York	31,635	1,864	0	15,809	5,652	764	0	1,819
200	200	Bertelsmann AG	Guetersloh, W. Germany	29,218	16,046	1,719	0	84	721	105	207

Sources: All media expenditures on this page from BAR/LNA reports. (see Where Ad Age Got Its Data, Page S-4)
Note: Dollars are in thousands.

RANK

Bertelsmann AG 200

Guertersloh, W. Germany

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	5,100	4,200	21.4
Net income	105	183	(42.6)
U.S. advertising	29	32	(7.5)

Since Bertelsmann's $475-million takeover of Doubleday & Co. last September, the West German company has become the largest U.S. publisher of general-interest books and the fifth largest U.S. book publisher overall.

Consistent with Bertelsmann's international policy of decentralization, Doubleday's assets were divided into four autonomous operating groups: Bantam, Doubleday, Dell Publishing Group, which handles all trade-book publishing operations as well as Dell magazines; Doubleday Book and Music Club Group; Doubleday Bookstore Group; and Doubleday Manufacturing Group, the publishing arm of the operation.

Combining Bantam with Dell created the largest U.S. marketer of trade paperbacks. Before the merger, Bantam was tied with Ballantine Books for first place.

Each of the Doubleday groups has retained its individual publishing traditions under Bertelsmann, and each has its own editorial and marketing departments. The sales forces of Bantam and Dell were combined into one unit with more than 100 North American reps.

Since the restructuring, personnel shifts and changes have been widespread. Among the most notable additions is Nancy Evans, former editor-in-chief of Book-of-the-Month Club, who was appointed president and publisher of the Doubleday Publishing division. Under Ms. Evans, Doubleday's look has become markedly more elegant.

Overall, the publishing industry continued to improve. During 1986 hardcover sales were up 3% to $1 billion for adult hardcover and $290 million for juvenile. Paperback sales amounted to $779 million in 1986.

Rumors persist that Bertelsmann intends to revitalize Dial Press and Anchor Press, both of which folded under Doubleday in 1985. No specific plans have surfaced, however.

Bantam, Doubleday and Dell contributed $660 million to fiscal 1987 worldwide sales of Bertelsmann, which has other U.S. interests. It owns Gruner & Jahr, publishers of the magazines YM (formerly Young Miss), Expecting and Parents. Bertelsmann also bought RCA Records in 1986.

The U.S. activity is one reason the worldwide non-Germany sales of Bertelsmann rose 30.2% to $3.1 billion in fiscal 1987, and this included only half-year results of Doubleday and RCA Records. U.S. figures are based on an exchange rate of DM 1.8095=$1.

Bertelsmann's ad expenditures fell nearly 7.5% from 1985 to 1986. There was no network TV spending in 1986, compared with $525,000 in network spending during 1985. Magazine ad spending rose 4.3% to 16 million. At the same time, spending on business papers and network radio more than doubled.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	3,755	4,342
Magazines	16,046	15,377
Newsp. supps	1,719	2,795
Bus. pubs	27	11
Network TV	0	53
Spot TV	84	893
Network radio	721	334
Spot radio	79	17
Outdoor	105	216
Network cable	207	554
Total measured	22,744	24,590
Unmeasured	6,474	7,000
Total	29,218	31,590

BANTAM DOUBLEDAY DELL
PUBLISHING GROUP
666 Fifth Ave.
New York, N.Y. [illegible]0103
(212) 765-6500

Corporate Personnel

Albert Vitale, president

Marketing Personnel

Matthew Shear, dir-mktg
Jack Hoeft, president, sales & mktg

DOUBLEDAY BOOK & MUSIC CLUB

Marketing Personnel

Peter von Puttkamer, president
Tom Kraemer, dir mktg

DOUBLEDAY BOOK SHOPS

Marketing Personnel

Gary Del Vecchio, president
Sid Gross, merch mgr

GRUNER & JAHR

Marketing Personnel

John Beni, president
Vincent DePierro, adv dir

Advertising Agency

Franklin Spier, New York—Alex Nelson, president; Amanda Mitchell, acct super; Aaron McHugh, acct exec.

RANK

Black & Decker Corp. 160

Towson, Md.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	1,791	1,732	3.4
Net income	6	(158)	104.0
U.S.	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	1,039	1,102	(5.7)
Operating profits	(6)	(111)	95.0
Advertising	52	68	(23.4)
Division sales	1987	1986	% chg
Power tools	740	672	10.1
Accessories	157	169	(7.1)
Outdoor prods.	144	125	15.2
Household prods.	656	668	(1.8)
Service	114	98	16.3

Black & Decker Corp., faced with an uneven retail economy in 1986-87, cut its tool-production capacity and power-tool advertising.

Sales for the company's fiscal 1986, which ended Sept. 28, advanced only 3.4%; earnings rose to $6.3 million following a loss of $158.4 million in 1985. After-tax earnings for the year were $27.5 million before B&D applied $21.2 million against long-term debt.

Revenues have grown 6% to $1.43 billion in the nine-month period ended June 28, 1987, compared with the same period in fiscal 1986. But net earnings for the nine months soared to $40.6 million—76% above the previous year.

During calendar 1986 overall advertising fell 23.4% to $51.8 million, largely because of a sharp falloff in power-tool advertising. This segment dropped from nearly $10 million in 1985 to less than $400,000 in advertising in 1986.

In addition, B&D revamped its product servicing system, picked a new ad agency for tools and made shifts in top management in 1986—all part of a major restructuring begun in 1984.

Nolan D. Archibald, brought over from the Beatrice Cos. in 1985 by B&D chief Laurence J. Farley to be B&D's president-chief operating officer, now holds the three top posts. He replaced Mr. Farley as ceo in March 1986 and as chairman earlier this year.

Another addition to the executive wing in September 1986 was William E. Stevens, executive VP. Formerly with Beatrice Cos. and Chromalloy American Corp., Mr. Stevens replaced Kenneth Kermes, executive VP-finance and corporate development.

New leadership also was added in 1986 to head the company's two main segments. Dennis G. Heiner, formerly with Beatrice Cos., became senior VP-president, Household Products group, and George M. Sherman, former president of rival Skil Division of Emerson Electric, became senior VP-president, Power Tools.

A Black & Decker source says the corporate restructuring plan is about completed and that only fine-tuning remains. The cost so far is $215 million.

The restructuring, which includes work force reductions and plant closures around the world, is part of a strategy that Mr. Archibald calls "cut and build." The "cut" is phase one, including the plant and staff cost reductions. But not all the savings go to gild the earnings column; some go into the "build" phase: sales promotion and more marketing power.

"The thought processes behind what Black & Decker is doing are sound," says David Liebowitz, investment analyst with American Securities, New York. "It remains to be seen if the implementation lives up to the theory."

In the housewares field, the company is faring well, says James Stevens, editor of Dana Chase's Appliance magazine. He notes B&D leads the hand-iron category with a 41% market share, compared to 28% for Sunbeam, 20% for Wear-Ever/Proctor-Silex. B&D is No. 1 in toaster ovens, with 58%, compared to Wear-Ever/Proctor-Silex's 19% and Toastmaster's 16%. It holds a 32% share in hand mixers, while Sunbeam has 28% and Hamilton Beach 14%.

In can openers, the breakdown is Rival 28%, B&D 24%, Sunbeam 9%. In the drip coffee-maker category, it's North American Systems 23%, Norelco 16%, B&D 15%. In toasters, Proctor-Silex has 41%, Toastmaster 32%, B&D 10%.

In a number of these market categories (irons, toasters, mixers, curling irons, can openers) market saturation leaves little room for growth. In response to market realities, B&D is de-emphasizing low-end products such as personal care items (including hair curlers, driers and scales) to give a strong new thrust to advertising higher-end products.

The company plans to use 15-second spots to tout the Dustbuster Power Brush and the Lite Years flashlight powered by a new Kodak-developed 10-year lithium battery.

B&D's most market-active products are its cordless (battery-powered) items, both housewares and power tools. Also hot in B&D's tool box are drill bits and saw blades—especially the carbide-toothed Piranha circular blades. Also prime for promotion are the Inline cordless screwdriver, cordless jigsaw, lawn tools, crosscut miter saw and the Air Station, a 120-volt inflater.

Special marketing treatment is at work for the new Master Series professional power tools, introduced in mid-1987 as the "best of the best." Promotion is by print and field demonstrations, such as sawdust parties where the pros see demonstrations, then use the tools.

Creating this big tool promotion is B&D's new agency for power tools, Leo Burnett, Chicago, which was picked for the $10 million account in August 1987. For the past two years, the power-tool agency suite has been dark. The company did little to promote its traditional product line except assign individual tool projects to Lewis, Gilman & Kynett, Philadelphia, and to its household products shop, McCann-Erickson, New York. Household products represents a $30-million account.

But B&D means to step up marketing, evidenced by the bevy of new products popping up in trade shows.

B&D plans to be more product-specific in its advertising, with greater outlays headed toward TV and print this fall. More TV power-tool promotion also is set for 1988.

While measured media totals were down for the year, spending for certain products rose. The market-leading Automatic Shut-Off iron, for example, received 85% higher backing, with a jump to $9.6 million in 1986, mostly in network TV. Ad backing for cordless appliances rose 7% to $3.9 million, most of it in network TV. Dustbuster hand-held cordless vacuum cleaner spending rose 3% to $6.4 million, mostly in network TV.

B&D places its total 1986 worldwide advertising costs at $168.4 million, off 2% from 1985, yet 42% above 1984 spending levels. These totals include not only ad spending worldwide but marketing expenses such as sales costs and tradeshow participation.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	294	121
Magazines	7,469	8,812
Newsp. supps	327	28
Bus. pubs	153	297
Network TV	23,425	26,135
Spot TV	2,234	8,760
Spot radio	0	110
Outdoor	7	7
Network cable	289	371
Total measured	34,196	44,642
Unmeasured	17,618	23,000
Total	51,815	67,642

BLACK & DECKER CORP.
701 E. Joppa Rd.
Towson, Md. 21204
(301) 583-3900

Corporate Personnel

Nolan D. Archibald, chmn & president-ceo
William E. Stevens, exec vp
George M. Sherman, sr vp, president-power tools group
Dennis G. Heiner, sr vp, president-household prods group

Marketing Personnel

Gary DiCamillo, vp-mktg, power tools group
Kenneth E. Homa, vp-mktg, household prods group
Lynda Chambers, mgr-adv, power tools group
Louise Retzer, mgr-adv & pr, household group

Advertising Agency

Leo Burnett USA, Chicago—power tools group—Peter Metz, acct dir; Ken Fill, acct super; Peter Barber, Karen Garny, Tony Weisman, acct execs.

McCann-Erickson, New York—household group—David Weiss, group dir; Joe Tilli, mgmt rep; Phil Shaw, acct super.

RANK

Blue Cross & Blue Shield Association 110

Chicago

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	N/A	N/A	N/A
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	72	61	18.0

Blue Cross & Blue Shield Association, reacting to growing competition among healthcare insurers and providers, continued to strengthen its advertising efforts in 1986, targeting both individual consumers and corporate decision-makers and increasing its spending on TV by 53.9% over 1985.

With healthcare spending accounting for nearly 11% of the GNP in 1986, the healthcare industry was the third largest economic force in the U.S. That kind of marketplace impact reverberated through the corridors of insurance companies nationwide, including those of this Chicago-based association, which responded by promoting its products more vigorously than ever.

During 1986 Blue Cross & Blue Shield Assn. continued to utilize as its primary national advertising vehicle the "Carry the Caring Card" campaign first introduced in September 1984.

However, beginning this September, the organization started running a new series of TV spots built around the theme "Olympic Moments," a direct result of the Blue Cross & Blue Shield sponsorship of the 1988 Winter Olympics. The creative was done by HDM/Dawson, Johns & Black, Chicago. However, the association dumped that agency this fall for Hal Riney & Partners, Chic[illegible].

Total measur[illegible]ding for Blue Cross & Blue Shiel[illegible]umped dramatically every year since 1[illegible] when the federal government first set[illegible]ced reimbursement levels for Medica[illegible] patients, thereby sparking heavy competition.

In 1983, Blue Cross & Blue Shield Assocation's measured media spending was $10.3 million, a figure that grew to $27.7 million in 1986, according to BAR/LNA, which monitors seven media. The organization's 11-media total hit $36.1 million in 1986.

The association is a federation of 77 local, nonprofit community service organizations throughout the U.S. These autonomous organizations, called Blue Cross & Blue Shield Plans, contract with local hospitals, doctors and healthcare agencies to provide prepaid medical services to people who have subscribed to those plans, either through their employers or on an individual basis.

The nonprofit association is responsible for developing and disseminating, in cooperation with local plans, national advertising such as the "Carry the Caring Card" and the "Olympic Moments" ads. The former campaign was the first cooperative nationwide Blue Cross & Blue Shield ad venture; local plans also create and place their own advertising, primarily TV and radio spots.

In addition to traditional reimbursement-for-expenses insurance, local Blue Cross & Blue Shield Plans offer such healthcare options as HMOs and Preferred Provider Organizations. The association spent $21.9 million in measured media for Blue Cross & Blue Shield Plans in 1986, virtually all in spot TV (70%) and network TV (23%).

The association also spent a measured $4.6 million, mostly in spot TV, promoting only Blue Cross plans. HMOs and PPOs accounted for $705,000, all spot TV.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	4,149	4,792
Magazines	1,113	1,809
Newsp. supps	57	0
Bus. pubs	24	169
Network TV	4,952	4,530
Spot TV	20,715	12,185
Network radio	0	1,265
Spot radio	4,263	5,562
Outdoor	835	296
Network cable	9	0
Total measured	36,118	30,607
Unmeasured	35,401	30,000
Total	71,519	60,607

BLUE CROSS & BLUE SHIELD
ASSOCIATION
676 N. St. Clair St.
Chicago, IL 60611
(312) 440-6000

Marketing Personnel

Leonard E. Wood III, sr vp-mktg
Duane R. Carlson, vp-comm
Thomas Mura, sr consultant-comm

Advertising Agency

Hal Riney & Partners, Chicago—Steve Jackson, acct super.

RANK

136 BMW AG

Munich

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	7,770	8,019	(3.1)
Net income	150	133	12.5
U.S. advertising	62	50	23.4

BMW of North America's car unit sales climbed significantly in 1986 as the American subsidiary of Bayerische Motoren Werke AG shifted some of its focus to the upscale luxury market.

BMW decided to tamper with its reputation as a maker of sporty sedans and challenged fellow German automaker Mercedes-Benz, which previously dominated the upper echelon of the market.

At the same time, BMW maintained stability in the lower end of the upscale market with its popular 3-series. That enabled the automaker to achieve a 7% share of the overall luxury car segment.

With the weakening of the American dollar against the West German mark, BMW was forced to increase its prices on all of its models an average of 11.2% in calendar year 1986, yet the automaker still drove up U.S. unit sales 10% over 1985—to 96,759. Dollar figures appearing in this profile were converted at the average annual exchange rate of 2.254DM=$1.

BMW's 3-series remained its biggest seller in 1986, with unit sales of 61,822, up 14.7% over 1985. Measured ad spending for the 3-series hit $6.3 million, up from only $1.4 million in 1985.

Sales of BMW's 5-series jumped to 25,016 in 1986, a 24% increase. The 5-series got $7.9 million in advertising in 1986, up 69.9%, according to BAR/LNA.

With limited units of BMW's 6-series available, total unit sales of these models dropped significantly to 2,979 units, a 22% decrease. Ad expenditures for this series also dropped in 1986 to $1.9 million, 50% lower than 1985's figures.

Sales of cars in the 7-series dropped to 6,942, compared to 9,938 in 1985, possibly because BMW buyers were anticipating major model changes due in 1987. Ad spending for the 7-series reached $7.1 million, up 1.4% from 1985.

Network TV ad spending by BMW was increased approximately 53% in 1986 to $17.6 million. Spot TV spending dropped 28% to $3.6 million. Newspaper ad spending rose 43.8% to $10.9 million.

BMW of North America is one of 13 foreign subsidiaries of BMW AG, Munich. In terms of unit sales it is the largest subsidiary, almost tripling the sales totals in any other country.

In 1986, BMW introduced the 535is, a sporty version of the 535i model, and the L7, an ultra-luxury version of the flagship 735i sedan. BMW advertising retained its theme line "The ultimate driving machine."

During 1987, BMW of North America introduced seven new models to the American luxury market, three of them priced near $50,000, another debuting at $70,000, the first time BMW had entered such exclusive territory.

New models included the 735i four-door luxury sedan and the new L6 two-door luxury coupe, aimed at taking the lead in the high-performance luxury class. The M6 two-door sports coupe and the M5 four-door sports sedan made by BMW Motorsport, GmbH, debuted in February. BMW also introduced the 325i, 325is and 325i convertible. BMW Motorsport's M3, a high-performance two-door sports sedan, was introduced in June.

BMW's Quality Continuation Plan was offered to dealers in 1986. This is a program that features a limited warranty providing the buyer of a used BMW with protection for a minimum of 12 months or 12,000 miles.

BMW also entered the racing circuit in 1986 and increased the number of regional polo events it sponsored in the North American Polo Series, as well as continuing its patronage of sailing, golf, tennis and selected cultural events.

BMW's 750iL, the automaker's $70,000 entry in the ultra-luxury, high performance market, will be introduced in the U.S. at the end of 1987. This new addition to BMW's 7-series, powered by a new 12-cylinder engine, has won praise from a majority of European automotive publications.

The decline of the dollar has caused BMW of North America to once again increase prices on six of its 1988 models.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	10,924	7,594
Magazines	11,302	10,001
Newsp. supps.	7	7
Bus. pubs.	134	183
Network TV	17,656	11,546
Spot TV	3,588	5,004
Spot radio	1,767	2,891
Outdoor	51	106
Network cable	709	544
Total measured	46,738	37,875
Unmeasured	14,808	12,000
Total	61,545	49,875

BMW OF NORTH AMERICA
Montvale, N.J. 07645
(201) 573-2000
Marketing Personnel

Hans Riedel, vp-mktg group
Carl Flesher, genl mgr-mktg strategies
George Hartley, mktg comm mgr
Steven Woolford, adv mgr

Advertising Agency

Ammirati & Puris, New York—automobiles, motorcycles—Ralph Ammirati, co-chmn-ceo; Martin Puris, co-chmn-ceo; Edward Vick, president-coo; Duncan Pollock, sr vp-group dir; Howard Lesman, vp-mgmt super; Jan Boyle, vp-acct super-natl adv; Robert Heissner, mgmt super-dealer adv; Alyson Henning, sr vp, co-dir promo group; Elliott White, Charlie MacLachlan, Henry Staats, Barry Wood, Harold Kobakof, acct execs.

Borden Inc.

RANK 101

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	5,002	4,716	6.1
Net income	223	194	15.2
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	4,044	3,884	4.1
Operating profits	387	322	20.5
Advertising	82	57	43.0
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Chemical	1,443	1,353	6.7
Dairy	1,331	1,248	6.7
Grocery	1,192	1,134	5.1
Snacks	1,036	981	5.6

Growth was the watchword at Borden Inc. during 1986-87, a time when the producer of foods, consumer products and chemicals increased sales and profits, building its dominance in key markets.

Worldwide sales grew 6.1% and net income increased 15% in 1986; U.S. operating profits soared during the period to $390.2 million, up 20.2%. The company expects 1987 sales of $6.5 billion, a 30% jump over 1986 totals of $5 billion.

Fueling this growth has been a rash of acquisitions, the biggest being the $315 million buyout of Beatrice Dairy, a subsidiary of Chicago-based Beatrice Cos., and renamed Meadow Gold Dairies. According to Borden Chairman-CEO R.J. Ventres, the move built Borden's dairy exposure in the country to 50% of the population across 38 states, up from 35% across 24 states before the acquisition.

The nation's largest marketer of fresh milk, Borden's dairy division posted 1986 sales of just over $1.3 billion. Company officials expect the Meadow Gold line to add $1 billion in dairy sales in 1987.

Early this year, Borden's dairy operation rolled out a brand of calcium-fortified milk called Hi-Calcium; a 12-oz. glass of the lowfat drink contains 100% of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of calcium.

Hungry for growth in other areas as well, Borden has spent $410 million on 16 acquisitions so far in 1987. These include Valley Bell, another dairy; makers of several lines of snacks; three pasta companies; makers of "niche groceries" including three seafood marketers and Soup and Stew Starter brands from Beatrice/Hunt-Wesson; a wallcovering maker and producers of foundry resins.

The pasta acquisitions are part of Borden's plan to dominate a key growth area within the food industry. It is the largest marketer of pasta, having entered the pasta business in 1979 with the purchase of Creamette Co. In a category dominated by regional brands, Borden is pushing Creamette, now its flagship brand, toward national distribution by purchasing regional lines and using them as vehicles for Creamette rollouts.

According to Bill McGuire, an analyst with Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, New York, Borden has increased its share of the pasta category to 32.5% this year, up from 24% last year. Borden plots its worldwide pasta sales at about $500 million.

In the snack category, Borden's strategy mirrors that used for pasta. Describing itself as "the national snack food company with a regional flavor," Borden is attempting national distribution for New York Deli potato chips and [illegible]rals corn snacks, rolling out the products region by region.

With the addition of Laura Scudder's and Snacktime lines in 1987, the company has store-door distribution in 46 states. According to Mr. Ventres, the two lines add about 40% to Borden's sales volume in the category, bringing the figure to about $700 million annually. Borden is the nation's second largest producer of snack foods, behind Frito-Lay.

Because of its regional approach to marketing, Borden's U.S. advertising is difficult to gauge. Measured advertising for 1986 was just under $22.5 million, with emphasis on spot TV. Figures released by Borden, however, indicate a much larger budget of about $285 million for "advertising and promotion worldwide." This figure increased by 6.5% from 1985.

By the company's own estimates, for every dollar placed in advertising worldwide, Borden spends $4 on promotion. That's about $230 million for "promotion" and $55 million for "advertising." According to company officials, "promotion" denotes give-away items, samples and a number of promotional expenses not usually measured as advertising.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	2,352	1,627
Magazines	4,546	5
Newsp. supps.	238	0
Bus. pubs.	920	882
Network TV	3,232	7,307
Spot TV	8,795	60
Spot radio	2,115	3,442
Outdoor	77	0
Network cable	202	0
Total measured	22,476	13,324
Unmeasured	59,486	44,000
Total	81,962	57,324

BORDEN INC.
277 Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10172
(212) 573-4000
Corporate Personnel

R.J. Ventres, chmn & ceo

CHEMICAL DIVISION
DOMESTIC & INTL
Marketing Personnel

A.S. D'Amato, exec vp, president
Joseph M. Saggese, sr vp, resin & chemicals/adhesives, Polyco & Graphics/Canada
John S. Bellecci, group vp, basic chemicals & PVC operations
Benedict Letizia, group vp, intl
H.A. Peed, group vp, industrial resins/Acme Resin

GROCERY & SPECIALTY
PRODUCTS DIVISION
Marketing Personnel

Jon G. Hettinger, exec vp, president

SATELLITE ORBIT
THE MAGAZINE OF THE NEW TELEVISION
Satellite ORBIT is a CommTek Publication

Lee N. Arst, group vp, confection & main meals
Jerry C. Clowdus, group vp, specialty prods
John F. Dix, group vp, desserts & beverages
L. John Westerberg, group vp, pasta
Dale Schulz, vp-sales & mktg, pasta
Marti Yeager, adv mgr, pasta

DAIRY DIVISION
Marketing Personnel

H. Wayne Mosley, exec vp, president
Richard W. Fowlkes, sr group vp, Borden Dairy
Bill Baar, vp-sales & mktg, Borden Dairy
Jay I. Johnson, sr group vp, president, Meadow Gold Dairies
Kenneth W. Beaman, group vp, Borden south east
Robert E. Dawson, group vp, Borden south west
Robert M. Maloney, group vp, Borden northern

SNACKS & INTL CONSUMER PRODUCTS DIVISION
Marketing Personnel

George J. Waydo, exec vp, president
Dan O'Riordan, sr group vp, intl
Peter M. Duggan, group vp-snacks
Chris Abernathy, vp-mktg, snacks

Advertising Agencies

Grant Jacoby, Chicago—Jays snacks—John Willie, sr vp, brand group mgr; Barry Hedden, acct super; Carol Dunn, acct exec; Andrea Murphy, creative dir.

Grey Advertising, New York—Cracker Jack, Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk, Borden processed cheese prods, ReaLemon, grocery non-foods (Elmers prods, car-care prods, Krylon paint)—Stewart Hegleman, exec vp.

Harris & Love, Salt Lake City—Clover Club prods—Kerry Lehtinen, sr vp-acct super; Charlie Seldin, acct exec.

Jordan, McGrath, Case & Taylor, New York—Borden snacks, Wise snacks—Don Weir, sr vp-mgmt rep; Linda Schaler, vp-mgmt super; Shelley Wyker, acct super.

M&H Advertising, Minneapolis—Creamette, Ronco, Luxury, Globe, Anthony's pasta prods—Steve Martin, president.

Sive & Associates, Cincinnati—Kava coffee, Hama, Fisher processed cheese prods—Dave Siegel, Phil Mandel, acct supers; Tom Sagers, Linda Jackson, acct execs.

Tracy-Locke, Dallas—Borden dairy prods—Alan Burks, sr vp; Brian Maysemt, acct super; Mike Sweeney, acct exec.

Venet Advertising, New York—Coco Lopez Cream of Coconut—Chuck Levy, vp-mgmt super.

Cadbury Schweppes PLC

RANK 138

London

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,701	2,750	(1.8)
Net income	95	16	476.2
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	609	525	16.0
Operating profits	9	(8)	207.3
Advertising	60	72	(15.8)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Confectionery	1,236	1,130	9.4
Drinks	1,193	982	21.6
Beverages & foods	272	554	(51.0)
Health & hygiene	N/A	85	N/A

After three years of declining sales and a general weakening of its mainstay candy business, London-based Cadbury Schweppes PLC entered the second half of 1987 with a new position as a leading worldwide soft drink company with revived worldwide sales.

The company's international sales in the first half of 1987 grew 18.5% over the same period in 1986, to $1.4 billion; North American division sales grew 17.9% to $609 million (as much as the North American division generated all of last year)—an indicator, the company says, of a return to profitable ways after the disappointing 1986. Last year's worldwide sales declined about 2%, despite a 16% increase in North American sales.

Figures for both 1986 and 1985 were converted from pound sterling to U.S. dollars at the rate of 1£=$1.4678.

The turnaround, the company says, is a direct result of a corporate restructuring and repositioning in 1986 that led to the development of three operating groups: Drinks (Schweppes, Canada Dry and Sunkist); confections (Cadbury chocolate, Peter Paul Mounds and Almond Joy and York Peppermint Patties), food and beverages (Mott's applesauce, Holland House cocktails and Rose's Lime Juice). Special emphasis has been placed on the development of the soft drink business.

As part of the group restructuring, the corporation also consolidated its U.S. advertising. The company switched several accounts to Wells, Rich, Greene, including Peter Paul Mounds and Almond Joy, previously with DFS Dorland, New York; Sunkist soft drinks, previously with Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago; Canada Dry, previously with Young & Rubicam, and Cadbury chocolates, previously with Ammirati & Puris, New York. In April 1987, Mott's USA also consolidated its advertising account and replaced DFS Dorland and Ammirati & Puris with Ally Gargano/MCA. Ammirati & Puris retained Schweppes USA.

According to ADVERTISING AGE estimates, the company spent $60.2 million on U.S. advertising, including about $39 million in measured media and about $21 million in unmeasured media. The total was up 13% from 1985. However, company estimates put total measured media spending at $35.3 million, down 12.5% from 1985.

The new soft drink group was by far the most active part of the corporation last year with worldwide sales growing 21.6% in 1986. Acquisitions fueled the increases as the company acquired Canada Dry and Sunkist from RJR Nabisco for $230 million and Schweppes purchased a 30% stake in Dr Pepper.

The combined drink operations made the company No. 3 in U.S. soft drink sales with an estimated 8% share of the market, according to company and industry analyst estimates.

The acquisitions also resulted in greatly increased soft drink ad spending. Canada Dry spent $11.6 million in measured media in 1986, split almost evenly between spot and network TV. Sunkist spent $4.8 million, concentrated almost exclusively in spot TV. Schweppes spent about $4.8 million.

Meanwhile, the company's worldwide confectionery sales began to rebound in 1986. Sales rose 23.3%, boosted by the continued growth of its U.K. leader, the Wispa candy bar, and renewed U.S. sales, where key products—Peter Paul Almond Joy and Mounds and York Peppermint Patties—improved sales by 20%, about 12 points ahead of the market average, the company says.

U.S. marketing, however, was caught in the turmoil that followed the series of major agency mergers. Pressure from the company's top U.S. competitor, Mars Inc., forced one of Cadbury's U.S. agencies, DFS Dorland, to resign the Peter Paul accounts. In the U.K., Leo Burnett resigned Cadbury under similar pressure from Mars.

Cadbury spent $5.2 million in the top seven measured media in 1986, down from about $12 million in 1985. Last year, the budget was split almost evenly between spot and network TV, while in 1985, the company spent over $6.7 million in network TV, about $3 million in spot TV and about $1.1 million in magazine ads. In 1987, ad spending is on the rise, according to Brian Falk, VP-marketing, though he would not disclose the amount.

The agency resignations, however, were another boon for Wells, Rich, Greene which received not only the Peter Paul accounts, but also the Cadbury products that had previously been with Ammirati & Puris. Early this year, WRG inaugurated its work on the account with two spots themed "Lean back and enjoy!" for the Cadbury Caramello bar, a longtime Cadbury product being tested in Upstate New York and Minneapolis. WRG also recently completed four spots for York Peppermint Patties.

Though Mott's USA (previously Duffy/Mott and Rose/Holland House) is usually the company's low-profile division, it was one of the most active in new product introductions in 1986 and 1987. In 1986, Mott's took on its biggest competitor, Musselman's, with a single-serving (four oz.) container of applesauce, starting with a gradual rollout in about one-third of the major markets, according to VP-Marketing Frank DeLeo. Mott spent about $1.1 million on spot TV and free-standing inserts in those markets. Creative by Scali, McCabe, Sloves focused on the size and convenience of the packaging and targeted schoolchildren as the prime consumer.

Mott doubled market distribution and ad spending in early 1987, focusing again on spot TV and free-standing inserts. DFS Dorland replaced Scali and introduced the present "I Got The Mott's" campaign, which continues to focus on children as consumers but emphasizes product quality.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	987	298
Magazines	2,727	3,865
Newsp. supps.	67	593
Bus. pubs	100	9
Network TV	14,951	17,724
Spot TV	19,124	22,184
Network radio	570	499
Spot radio	393	993
Outdoor	129	80
Network cable	316	351
Total measured	39,364	46,597
Unmeasured	20,908	25,000
Total	60,272	71,597

CADBURY SCHWEPPES
1200 High Ridge Rd.
Stamford, Conn. 06905
(203) 329-0911

CADBURY BEVERAGES
Marketing Personnel

Steve Wilson, group president
Eddie Merck, president, Canada Dry
John Carson, president, Schweppes

Advertising Agencies

Ammirati & Puris, New York—Schweppes—John Hyes, sr vp-acct group dir; Nancy McNally, vp-acct super; Steve Rothman, acct exec.

Wells, Rich, Greene, New York—Canada Dry, Sunkist—John Costello, exec vp; Fred Refsin, sr vp-mgmt super; Cary Raffle, acct super, Sunkist; Steve Kaufman, acct exec, Sunkist; Karen Flanagan, acct exec, Canada Dry; Maureen Confidne, asst acct exec, Canada Dry.

CADBURY CONFECTIONS
Marketing Personnel

William Seval, president
Brian Falk, vp-mktg
Lisa Kranc, mktg dir
Tom Aaro, sr prod mgr, Mounds, Almond Joy
Mary Bennet, prod mgr, York
Neil Hart, mktg dir, Cadbury brands
Lisa Kremer, sr prod mgr, Caramello, seasonal brands
Rolf Linder, sr prod mgr, Cadbury molded bars
James Nyce, dir-rsch

Advertising Agency

Wells, Rich, Greene, New York—Canada Dry, Sunkist—John Costello, exec vp; Fred Refsin, sr vp-mgmt super; Cary Raffle, acct super, Sunkist; Steve Kaufman, acct exec, Sunkist; Karen Flanagan, acct exec, Canada Dry; Maureen Confidne, asst acct exec, Canada Dry. serberger, acct exec, Peter Paul Mounds, Almond Joy, seasonal prods; Mark Smith, asst acct exec.

MOTT USA
Marketing Personnel

Robert Zapletal, vp-sales & mktg
Frank DeLeo, vp-mktg
James Follett, mktg mgr
David Crist, dir-mktg

Advertising Agency

Ally Gargano/MCA Advertising, New York—all brands including Holland House, Rose's Lime Juice—Steve Brounstein, mgmt super; Dianna Gray, acct super.

Canandaigua Wine Co.

RANK 198

Canandaigua, N.Y.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	195	152	28.0
Net income	11	10	11.6
U.S. advertising	32	16	100.2

Canandaigua Wine Co. finished 1986 with soaring sales and profits due largely to the phenomenal success of its Sun Country Wine Cooler. But its ascent proved bittersweet, as the escalating marketing battle in coolers is negatively affecting its bottom line in 1987.

Canandaigua also expanded its wine holdings in September 1986, when it purchased Widmer Wine Cellars, producer of premium varietal New York State table wines and champagnes. Two months later it added the wine business of Monarch Wine Co., the Brooklyn-based marketer of kosher wines and champagnes including the Manischewitz line.

The acquisitions make Canandaigua the third largest wine producer in the U.S. The company now owns six wineries in New York, California, Virginia and South Carolina. In addition, it markets J. Roget champagnes and Richard's Wild Irish Rose Wine.

Canandaigua was also busy with new product introductions. Its biggest introduction in 1987 was the national rollout of Sun Country Classic, a premium wine cooler. In 1986, new products included several new flavors of Sun Country; Cool Breeze, a flavored dessert wine; Esprit DeVie sparkling fruit juices; Widmer premium table wines and Blanc De Noirs Sparkling wine under the J. Roget label.

But though fiscal 1986 ended Aug. 31 was a banner year—sales increased 28% and net income rose 11.6%—fiscal 1987 has been disappointing. For the nine months ending May 31, 1987, Canandaigua's net income declined 87% to $742,545. The drop was attributed to poor sales and increased marketing expenses of Sun Country; the total includes a third quarter loss of $2.7 million. Revenues for the nine months, however, increased 11.5% to $131.2 million, mainly because of increased sales of Manischewitz and Richard's Wild Irish Rose.

The fortunes of Canandaigua have been tied to the $1.7 billion wine cooler category. In 1986, case sales of Sun Country spiraled to 10.3 million, up 75% over 1985, according to Impact, a New York-based industry trade publication. The line, backed by popular "celebrity bear" ads via Towne, Silverstein, Rotter, New York, accounted for a 14% share of the [illegible] 74 million case market.

But by mid-1987, industry sources say Sun Country's share had dropped to the fourth spot, where it is tied with Stroh's White Mountain with an 11% share. Seagram's Coolers and Gallo's Bartles & Jaymes are reportedly tied at the top spot, each with 25% market shares. Brown-Forman Corp.'s California Cooler is third, its share declining from 17.5% in 1986 to about 16% today.

Retail sources say Sun Country's decline is due to disappointing sales of the Classic brand paired with the increased marketing might of leaders Bartles & Jaymes and Seagram's.

Canandaigua's Sun Country Classic, a premium, slightly drier cooler designed to compete directly with premium Bartles & Jaymes and Seagram's premium Golden cooler, was backed by ads featuring ex-Beatle Ringo Starr. His fee was reported to be in six figures. The $15 million campaign failed to build sales. Canandaigua has since shelved the campaign and has turned to a new music video-like program themed "Join the party." Sun Country's famous "celebrity bear," which hid celebrities in a polar bear suit, makes a cameo appearance in these ads.

In 1986, Canandaigua devoted almost its entire measured ad budget to Sun Country, spending $19.5 million, according to BAR/LNA. In 1985, the brand had about $8 million in spending. In 1987, Sun Country was expected to spend about $40 million. But with sales off, that figure could be lower than projected.

Canandaigua built its marketing reputation on Richard's Wild Irish Rose, an inexpensive sweet brand with 6.1 million case sales according to Impact. It draws little media spending.

This year, Canandaigua broke new TV spots for the brand themed "Pick the winner, pick the rose."

J. Roget sparkling wines has grown 49% to 1.1 million case sales. J. Roget gets minimal advertising.

This year, Canandaigua was appointed exclusive importer for Keller-Geister German wines. It was previously represented by the Munsen Shaw Division of National Distillers. (National was sold earlier this year). The German agreement is the "spearhead" for Canandaigua's program to build an imported wine business in the U.S.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	27	33
Magazines	292	254
Bus. pubs	106	121
Network TV	13,536	6,964
Spot TV	3,665	1,428
Network radio	301	684
Spot radio	2,203	1,892
Outdoor	40	22
Network cable	3,629	538
Total measured	23,799	11,936
Unmeasured	8,100	4,000
Total	31,899	15,936

CANANDAIGUA WINE CO.
116 Buffalo St.
Canandaigua, N.Y. 14424
(716) 394-3630

Marketing Personnel

Marvin Sands, chmn-ceo
Richard Sands, president-coo
Bertram Silk, vp, wine operations
Robert I. Huntington, vp-strategic planning & corp devel
Joseph J. McDonald, vp-adv & corp accts
Howard R. Jacobson, dir-marketing

Advertising Agency

Towne, Silverstein, Rotter, New York—Steven Stetzer, acct super, all brands; Mark Ordover, acct exec, Sun Country; Nelida Willoughby, acct exec, Richards' Wild Irish Rose, Cool Breeze; Holly Sentell, acct exec, Manischewitz.

Canon Inc.

RANK 122

Tokyo

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	5,523	5,936	(7.0)
Net income	67	230	(71.0)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,720	1,695	1.4
Operating profits	N/A	N/A	N/A
Advertising	67	81	(17.4)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Bus. machines	4,094	4,236	(3.4)
Cameras	988	1,225	(19.3)
Optical, other	440	475	(7.4)

Canon Inc., whose main subsidiary is Lake Success, N.Y.-based Canon USA, is hoping for a recovery of the U.S. dollar. Currency instability during 1986 contributed heavily to a drop of 71% in net income at the parent company, which traditionally generates 70% of its sales in overseas markets.

Worldwide, Canon spent $232 million in advertising in 1986, down 25.4% from 1985. In the U.S., advertising dropped 17%, to $67 million in 1986 from 1985.

Although Canon remained No. 1 in worldwide market share for cameras last year, its camera sales dropped 19.4% for the year, largely because of the sharply higher prices on 35mm single lens reflex (SLR) cameras. Cameras accounted for 18% of Canon Inc.'s 1986 consolidated sales. Canon spent $15.8 million in U.S. measured spending in 1986 to support its cameras, video equipment and accessories, virtually no change from 1985, according to BAR/LNA.

To increase demand for SLRs in North America and Europe, where sales fell off in 1986, Canon introduced several new products, such as the high-technology T-90 SLR, an addition to the T-50 and T-70 SLR models, backed by advertising that featured spokesman-sportscaster John Madden.

In February 1987, Canon entered the automatic-focus single lens reflex market, dominated by rival Minolta Corp.'s Maxxum camera line, with its Electronic Optical System (EOS) 650 and EOS 620. Canon is expected to spend about $10 million in advertising support this year for the EOS line. DCA Advertising, New York, is handling the entire campaign, from creative to media. Those duties are usually split between Grey and DCA.

Canon continued to lead the 35mm point-and-shoot camera category—with between 30% and 35% market share—with its popular line of Sure Shot and Snappy compact cameras. In 1986, the company introduced the waterproof Aqua Snappy and Sure Shot Tele, backed by heavy print and point-of-purchase advertising.

Video systems marketing continued to grow, with emphasis on Canon's 8mm VM-E1 compact camcorder. And Canon launched the VM-E2 in North America and Japan earlier this year. The company also markets VHS home VCRs and a line of OES video camera lenses.

In June 1986, Canon introduced the first commercially available Still Video System, geared toward publishers of magazines and newspapers. The new camera records pictures on 2-inch video disks instead of on conventional silver halide film. The camera body alone costs $2,595; the transceiver, which transmits color pictures over telephone lines, costs $19,900; printer costs $6,950; the recorder for instant picture playback on TV sets or monitors runs $2,695. Despite the high price, the pictures produced by the SVS don't have the clarity of 35mm photographs.

Business products contributed 74% of consolidated sales in 1986. The company said sales in the business products group dropped 3.3%, due to a 10.3% decline in copier sales, hard hit by the changing value of the yen. Sales of electronic typewriters and handheld calculators, on which $3.3 million in measured advertising was spent in 1986, dropped as well. However, Canon laser-beam printers (LBPs) and facsimile machine sales, up 7.2% combined, nearly balanced the decline in other business product categories.

This fall the company introduced the Canon Cat, a business-oriented "work processor" that is a cross between a personal computer and an electronic typewriter. A $2 million print campaign, via Grey Advertising, began in September.

Canon retained its market lead in the personal copier category in 1986, with measured advertising spending of $20.6 million. Canon strengthened its hold this year with the introduction of the NP-2000, 3000 and 4000 dual-color copier models.

An estimated $8 million campaign for Personal Cartridge Copiers broke on TV in October 1986, featuring spokesman Jack Klugman and actress Beckie Price showing how the copier line appeals to different types of home office users.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,753	3,279
Magazines	16,117	23,295
Newsp. supps	102	56
Bus. pubs	2,775	3,143
Network TV	18,269	21,400
Spot TV	7,188	5,502
Network radio	0	1,042
Spot radio	1,524	684
Outdoor	431	426
Network cable	2,065	1,967
Total measured	50,224	60,792
Unmeasured	16,861	20,409
Total	67,085	81,201

CANON U.S.A.
1 Canon Plaza
Lake Success, N.Y. 11042
(516) 488-6700

Marketing Personnel

T. Hirasawa, asst dir-prod planning & mktg
E. Yoshinari, dir-adv, video
T. Kikuchi, mgr-adv & sales promo, copiers
H. Iwanami, adv-sales promo mgr, calculators
H. Hirai, dir corp pr

Advertising Agencies

DCA Advertising, New York—print/sales promo, tv for cameras, calculators, copiers, medical prods, micrographics, facsimile machines, tv lenses, semiconductor mfg equipment—Nick Nakahara, vp-mgmt super; Janet Virgil, acct exec; Bob Mitchell, asst acct exec; Satch Takayasu, acct coord.

Grey Advertising, New York—typewriters, personal computers, video equipment, tv ads for cameras—Harvey Goldhersz, group dir.

Capital Cities/ ABC

RANK 130

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	4,124	N/A	N/A
Net income	448	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	63	72	(12.6)

Capital Cities/ABC predicts 1987 will be a turnaround year in earnings for its ABC Network. This prediction is based on a better-than-expected upfront selling season and anticipated spending increases heading into an Olympics and national elections year.

Company officials last month told analysts that fourth-quarter network revenues would increase 8% over a year ago and that 1987 network revenues overall are expected to increase about 2.5% over 1986.

In addition to the negative impact of the National Football League players strike, ABC suffered from low ratings that kept it in third place among networks in 1987.

ABC wasn't the only network to complain. Revenues increased only 3.5% for all three major networks as national package goods companies shifted from media to promotional spending and the networks came under increased competition from independent TV stations and cable outlets. But ABC fared the worst among the three networks; its revenues declined 4% from 1985, to $2.05 billion, and its operating loss of $70 million in 1986 compared with a pro forma profit of $105 million in 1985.

ABC Network accounted for 50% of total sales of Cap Cities/ABC. In addition, Cap Cities/ABC owned-and-operated stations delivered an estimated $322 million in operating profits in 1986. Seven of the eight owned-and-operated stations ranked first in their markets.

Net revenues for the broadcast division,

First in a series of discussions in the M/A/R/C Symposium.

A Candid Discussion About Database Marketing.

Q: What is the difference between database marketing and traditional direct marketing?

A: Database marketing is the next evolution of direct marketing. The primary difference is the ability to communicate more precisely with different market segments and incorporate the consumer response back into the database. Once the response information becomes part of the file it can be used for segmentation purposes in creating the next direct marketing program. The advances in the data processing industry over the last 10 years have made storing of large amounts of information about prospects and customers much more affordable. The real magic is in the analysis of the data and its application to a particular marketing problem.

Q: I currently employ targeting tactics in my media buys. How will this be different in a database marketing environment?

A: It'll give you the ability to communicate more precisely with identified market segments. Analysis of promotion responders can yield strategic marketing direction.

So, the collective intelligence of the database improves with use. By appending the database with additional information from previous promotions or database overlays, targeting can be refined to much higher levels. Each new promotion or database overlay added to your consumer database provides more marketing variables to segment market niches that have a higher propensity to respond to your offer.

Q: What kind of marketing applications should be considered for database marketing?

A: Categories which have a high degree of switching, are mature, or have well-defined niches are excellent candidates. Examples of programs which work well in a database strategy are competitive and continuity promotion programs, frequent traveler and shopper programs, sales lead generation and business-to-business direct marketing programs.

Q: If you had to describe the biggest difference between M/A/R/C Database Marketing and others, what would it be?

A: There is a big difference between just collecting information and knowing what to do with it. The most important difference is our ability to leverage over 25 years of marketing and consumer research experience to design, develop and implement marketing programs that best suit your needs. It becomes a matter of knowing what to ask, and then knowing what to do with the answers. Database marketing allows you to communicate with each customer on an individual basis and create a dialogue that will continually enrich your market intelligence. As an example, we very often uncover information that points to needed changes in the marketing mix. So, the results of the interpretation of the information can optimize strategic marketing programs. M/A/R/C can also identify cross-selling opportunities, either for existing products and services or for new introductions. And, you can use it as a tool to outmaneuver your competition's marketing strategy in as many or as few markets as you choose. With M/A/R/C Database Marketing, pre-emptive planning will become the norm because you will have quantified knowledge of the category consumer base.

Q: Isn't database marketing going to make an already expensive advertising vehicle even more so?

A: The true benefit of database marketing is that it optimizes each marketing program that you run. As mass media costs rise and response to these programs gets harder to quantify, the need for measurable marketing solutions increases. The ability to fine tune your targeting, so you only reach those prospects which have a high probability of responding, can dramatically reduce your costs while improving your volume. M/A/R/C can provide a turnkey test of database marketing with your brand or service for less than $100,000.

Q: I know M/A/R/C has a great reputation in custom research, but I imagine you use a service bureau for database management. Don't you?

A: No. Most direct marketing agencies do use a service bureau. M/A/R/C is unique. Information has long been our business and our state-of-the-art computer capabilities enable us to do everything in-house. We think it is the only way to offer clients a formula for success where one plus one equals four.

M/A/R/C has a long history of proactive client service. We have been dedicated for the past two decades to working with clients to understand and create the best product or service mix to sell in changing market conditions. This expertise and dedication to service are carried forward into our newest service, database marketing. When you think about it, an integrated system customized to meet your individual needs – a system that's capable of revolutionizing your marketing strategy – is a powerful concept.

Q: OK. You've got my attention. How do I find out more about M/A/R/C Database Marketing?

A: Call Ken Orton at 1-800-527-2680 or return the coupon.

☐ Yes, I want to arrange an interview to find out how effective M/A/R/C Database Marketing can be for my company.
☐ I'm interested, but before we meet, call me at my office

Name __________

Company __________ Title __________

Address __________

City, State, Zip __________

Telephone __________

M/A/R/C Inc.
Ken Orton, Vice President
P.O. Box 650083
Dallas, TX 75265-9990

The Artistry of Marketing. It Works.

dominated by the TV stations, reached $1.1 billion in 1986, up 13% over pro forma 1985. Operating earnings increased 42% to $412 million from a pro forma 1985 total of $290 million. Net revenues for the stations increased 11% over pro forma 1985, because of strong local ad revenue growth and significant cost savings instituted by the penurious new owner.

The ABC radio network, the industry's most profitable, also posted sizable gains in 1986. And the company's video division was profitable for the first time.

In addition to management shake-ups and employee layoffs as part of cost containment measures, major changes were made in the ad agency lineup.

In July 1986 McCaffrey & McCall lost the $25 million account for ABC Entertainment's tune-in and general promotion advertising to Grey Entertainment & Media, New York, which ABC already had been using for movie and miniseries ads. McCaffrey & McCall also lost ABC Sports to Lois Pitts Gershon Pon/GGK and ABC News to Bozell, Jacobs.

Cap Cities/ABC's total 1986 advertising spending, estimated at about $63 million, was down 12.6% from 1985. The company continued its move away from print advertising and toward radio, begun in 1985 when the company slashed print expenditures 40% and tripled radio buys. Radio buys again more than tripled in 1986, to $8 million.

The company almost halved its newspaper advertising budget to $10 million in 1986. Magazine advertising dropped 43% to $20 million.

Cap Cities/ABC consolidated national advertising sales representation of the company's TV stations in an expanded in-house entity renamed Capital Cities/ABC National Television Sales, dropping Blair Television, which had represented the Capital Cities stations before the merger.

The company reorganized its radio stations division, splitting the 10 markets into two groups in May 1987, a structure "which positions us for the competitive pressures we expect in the future," says James Arcara, radio division president.

The company's video enterprises had a breakthrough year in 1986, as net revenues increased by 42% over 1985. Cap Cities/ABC owns shares in three cable channels, ESPN, Arts & Entertainment (A&E) and Lifetime. ESPN, the largest of the three, is 80% owned by the company, and offers 24-hour sports programming.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	9,989	18,168
Magazines	30,555	34,860
Newsp. supps	542	407
Bus. pubs	162	216
Spot TV	4,396	4,563
Network radio	256	42
Spot radio	7,982	3,263
Outdoor	795	1,091
Network cable	669	686
Total measured	55,346	63,295
Unmeasured	7,771	8,888
Total	63,117	72,183

CAPITAL CITIES/ABC
1330 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10019
(212) 887-7777

Corporate Personnel

Thomas S. Murphy, chmn & ceo
Daniel B. Burke, president-coo
Joseph P. Dougherty, exec vp
John B. Fairchild, exec vp, chmn & ceo, Fairchild Publications
John B. Sias, exec vp, president, ABC Network Group
Ronald J. Doerfler, sr vp & cfo
Michael P. Mallardi, sr vp, president, Broadcast Group
Phillip J. Meek, sr vp, president, Publishing Group
Stephen A. Weiswasser, sr vp & genl counsel
Allan J. Edelson, vp, controller
Andrew E. Jackson, vp
Gerald Dickler, secretary
David J. Vondrak, vp, treas
David S. Loewith, vp, asst controller
Philip R. Farnsworth, asst secty
Allen S. Bones, asst treasurer

ABC TELEVISION GROUP
Corporate Personnel

John B. Sias, president
Mark H. Cohen, exec vp
Warren D. Schaub, sr vp
Brandon Stoddard, president, ABC Entertainment
Roone Arledge, group president, ABC News & Sports; president, ABC News
David W. Burke, exec vp
Richard C. Wald, sr vp, ABC News
David W. Burke, vp, ABC News
Dennis Swanson, president, ABC Sports
Dennis Lewin, sr vp, ABC Sports
Stephen J. Solomon, sr vp, ABC Sports
Mark Mandala, president, ABC Television Network Group
George H. Newi, sr vp, ABC Television Network Group
James E. Duffy, president, ABC Communications

BROADCAST GROUP
Corporate Personnel

Michael P. Mallardi, president
Lawrence J. Pollock, president, Television Stations—East
Robert C. Niles, vp, Television Stations East
Kenneth M. Johnson, president, Television Stations—West
James E. Masucci, vp, Television Stations West
Herbert A. Granath, president, Video Enterprises
J. William Grimes, president, ESPN
Julius Barnathan, president, Broadcast Operations & Engineering

PUBLISHING GROUP
Corporate Personnel

Phillip J. Meek, president
John B. Fairchild, chmn & ceo, Fairchild Publications
Robert G. Burton, president, ABC Publishing

Advertising Agencies

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York—ABC News—Les Koll, vp-mgmt super.

Grey Entertainment & Media, New York—entertainment—Don Foley, exec vp.

Lois Pitts Gershon Pon/GGK, New York—ABC Sports—George Lois, chmn, creative dir.

Carter-Wallace Inc.

RANK 117

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	451	400	12.7
Net income	32	28	17.2
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	355	324	9.5
Operating profits	70	65	8.4
Advertising	69	66	4.9
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Health care	209	177	18.1
Antiperspirants	117	123	(5.0)
Other products	125	100	25.2

Carter-Wallace Inc. is charging ahead with new products backed with advertising muscle. The expansion is led by its new acquisition, the Trojan condom brand.

The Trojan brand, which Carter-Wallace acquired in September 1985 from Youngs Drug Products Corp., Trenton, N.J., for $25 million, controls 60.3% of all prophylactic units sold, according to A.C. Nielsen data. Last year, the brand was supported with measured spending of only $1.1 million (a growth of 256% over 1985). Carter-Wallace was a major force in getting condom ads on TV and in general interest magazines, media that once considered the topic taboo.

The Carter Product Division also launched Arrid XX Musk Spray and Arrid Wide Oval Solid in 1986. And most recently, Carter-Wallace unleashed another contender in the $1.4 billion category, Arrid Glide On Deodorant. In 1987, during the full rollout, the new items were supported with $7 million in consumer advertising and $5 million in promotional backing, according to the company.

Glide On, a deodorant in gel form aimed at women, during tests received heavy support through newspaper ads, in-store displays and on-pack promotions, including 50¢ coupons. During the initial launch, more than 90 million cents-off coupons were distributed.

Spending on Arrid as a total brand, according to BAR/LNA, jumped 27% in 1986 over 1985. The heaviest push was $8.5 million behind Arrid Extra Dry Solid Deodorant. Arrid Extra Dry brands control 14.4% of all deodorant/antiperspirants, followed by Sure with 13.5%, Secret with 11.8%, Ban with 11.2%, Mennen with 9.2% and Dry Idea with 8%, according to figures based on drug and food store movement.

Advertising spending in the entire condom category surged 300% from the $500,000 mandated by restrictions in 1985, and it is estimated that spending in 1987 will surpass $4 million. By 1990, that figure may climb to $12 million. In the initial markets where condom ads were accepted, sales leaped 50%, according to research from Wayne, N.J.-based IMS Consumer Products Database. This portends even stronger volume for the market now measured at $200 million. The category could hit sales of more than $500 million by 1991, based on conservative 11% growth per year.

Behind Carter-Wallace's 60.3% share in unit sales is Schmid (Ramses, Sheik and Fourex) with 29.9%, National Sanitary Labs (Protex) 4.6%, Ansell (Lifestyles) 4.1%, and relative newcomer, Mentor, which has an 0.4% share in units. "Other" brands command 0.6%.

In 1988 Carter-Wallace will unveil Lady Trojan, a newly packaged offering aimed at women, who now buy 40% to 50% of all condoms, according to some sources. The goal is to get shelf space in the feminine hygiene section as well as in standard condom racks.

Other products under the Carter Products Division umbrella performed well last year. Nair depilatories remain the market leader. Measured spending behind Nair rose 28.5% to $2.1 million. The brand was extended to include a Nair Bikini Kit in 1986.

Carter's suncare products (Sea & Ski, Block Out) account for less than 10% of this market. In 1986, the company launched five new suncare products, most bearing higher SPF factors. Suncare items were supported by $1.3 million in spending, with $1.2 million of that behind Sea & Ski.

Pearl Drops, which racked up measured spending of $3 million, became the leading brand in unit sales in the tooth polish segment. Based on the success of Pearl Drops, a gel formula was introduced nationally last year.

Another new product area for Carter-Wallace in 1987 was its launch of a fish oil called Discovery. Fish oil became the "hot" diet supplement in 1986 with Warner-Lambert, Squibb, Thompson Medical and Carter-Wallace rushing entries into the market. Discovery shook up the market by price-cutting. During its launch, print ads touted a buy one-get one free promotion.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	7	0
Magazines	3,382	3,078
Newsp. supps	0	23
Bus. pubs	152	19
Network TV	20,139	18,075
Spot TV	1,616	2,643
Spot radio	100	309
Network cable	626	649
Total measured	26,021	24,796
Unmeasured	43,025	41,000
Total	69,046	65,796

CARTER-WALLACE INC.
767 Fifth Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10153
(212) 758-4500

Corporate Personnel

John D. Mack, president
David W. McLain, exec vp

Marketing Personnel

Richard D. Kline, vp-mktg, Arrid prods
Stephen H. Friedman, vp-mktg, personal prods
Frank E. Suddoth, vp-mktg, suntan prods
Mark B. Klein, vp-mktg, family prods
Paul Brickman, dir-new prods
Richard C. Deyo, dir-mktg admin
Dolores M. Schimenti, dir-rsch
Anna I. Zgorska, dir-media
Alan B. Sadovnick, dir-sales promo

Advertising Agencies

Avrett, Free & Ginsberg, New York—Pearl Drops & Pearl Drops Smoker's toothpolishes, Nair depilatories, Rigident denture adhesive—Don Bandman, exec vp; Marlene Wheeler, vp-acct super; Melissa Garlanda, Rod Brown, acct execs.

Backer Spielvogel Bates Advertising, New York—Arrid deodorants, antiperspirants, Sea & Ski, Block Out, Tropic Sun prods, Carter's Little Pills, Answer pregnancy tests, Trojan condoms, Mischief body spray—Mark Morris, exec vp; Renee Summer, sr vp-mgmt rep; Robert Desatnick, Melanie Schneider, vps-acct supers; Gaye Sussman, media dir; Sharon Mathews, assoc media dir; Howie Eisen, media super; Rich Anderson, media planner; Christie Jensen, acct exec; Noah Levine, assoc acct exec.

Poppe Tyson, New York—Triple X pedi-culicide—Fergus O'Daly, president; Diane Frattine, acct exec.

INTERNATIONAL
Corporate Personnel

Miguel Fernandez, president
Barrington Shears, vp
George A. Kappler, vp-ethicals & diagnostics
Edward G. Goldenbaum Jr., dir-diagnostics
Darlene M. Chermak, mgr-consumer prods

LAMBERT KAY
Marketing Personnel

Robert A. Cuthbert, president
Thomas Abrams, dir-mktg svcs
Thomas McShane, vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

(In-house)—Fresh 'N Clean pet grooming prods, Linatone food supplements, Theralin vitamins for pets, Avitron vitamins and Avimin minerals for birds, Victory insecticides, shampoos, Lassie line of grooming, health prods—Thomas Abrams, mktg mgr.

WALLACE LABS
Marketing Personnel

Herbert Sosman, president
Thomas G. Gerstmyer, vp-mktg
Thomas Halvorson, group prod mgr
Richard P. Krukowski, dir mktg, planning & devel

Advertising Agencies

Thomas G. Ferguson Associates, Parsippany, N.J.—Organidin, VoSol, VoSol, VoSol HC, Rondomycin, Ryna, Ryna C, Ryna CX, Rynatan, Rynatuss, Tussi-Organidan, Tussi-Organidin DM—John Zweig, sr vp-dir operations; John Szlasa, sr vp-mgmt super; Carole Rains, John Puleo, acct execs.

William Douglas McAdams, New York—Depen, Lufyliin, Lufyllin-GG, Lufyllin-EPG, Soma, Soma Compound, Soma Compound with Codeine, Micrainin, Aquatensen, Diutensen, Diutensen-R—Joseph Carobene, sr vp; Leon Rosenberg, acct super; Lorraine Pastore, asst acct exec.

WAMPOLE LABORATORIES
Cranbury, N.J.
Marketing Personnel

John Bridgen, president
John A. Kraeutler, vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

Simms & McIvor, Bound Brook, N.J.—diagnostic prods—Eugene McLoughlin, acct super; Nancy Masterson, acct exec.

Castle & Cooke Inc.

RANK 111

Los Angeles

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,700	1,681	1.1
Net income	44	46	(4.3)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,265	1,276	(0.9)
Operating profits	N/A	N/A	N/A
Advertising	71	56	26.3
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Flexi-Van	62	153	(59.5)
Castle & Cooke	1,676	1,528	9.7

Castle & Cooke, the world's largest producer and marketer of fruits and vegetables, in 1986 concentrated its efforts on international marketing and the building of its Dole brand, both domestically and worldwide.

C&C also increased U.S. advertising 26.3% to $71.3 million in 1986 over 1985, with most of the increase supporting what became a separate subsidiary in March 1986—Dole Food Co. Dole gained its subsidiary status as part of a corporate restructuring that put new emphasis on international marketing, particularly Asia. Before the reorganization, Dole existed only as a C&C brand.

In another sign of its redirection, Dole re-evaluated its domestic marketing programs and decided to consolidate its $25 million-to-$30 million ad budget at one agency. In April 1986, the company hired William Esty Co., New York, to handle all Dole products, previously split between Allen & Dorward and JWT/West, both San Francisco.

During Esty's handling of the business, Dole signed singer Kenny Rogers, a personal friend of Castle & Cooke Chairman David Murdock, to be spokesman for the company's multi-product advertising campaign. But just as the campaign broke in February 1987 the business was abruptly shifted to Backer Spielvogel Bates, New York, at the personal direction of Mr. Murdock.

Dole, the No. 1 worldwide marketer of pineapples and No. 2 seller of bananas, put its heaviest 1986 ad spending behind its frozen novelties. The national rollout of Fruit & Cream Bars, an extension of its successful Fruit 'n Juice line introduced in 1984, received $8.6 million, almost exclusively in network TV.

Measured spending for Fruit 'n Juice Bars and Fruit Sorbet declined in 1986. Spending for Fruit 'n Juice Bars was down 36%, to $5.4 million. Fruit Sorbet's budget declined 15%, to $6 million. Both brands received heavy network TV support. The $1.6 million that Fruit Sorbet received in spot TV in 1985 was eliminated in 1986.

Ad spending in 1986 for Dole canned pineapple and Dole ready-to-serve and frozen juices remained steady. Measured spending for Dole ready-to-serve and frozen pineapple juices was flat at $2.6 million, while backing for canned pineapple increased a slight 9%, to $3.9 million.

C&C continued pushing the Dole brand through new Dole Breakfast Juices, which it rolled national in early 1987. The pineapple juice-based blends, in cartons and frozen concentrate, compete in the highly segmented juice market with Del Monte USA's Fruit Blends, which were introduced in early 1987 with a $16 million network TV campaign. Dole is testing a line extension it calls Pure 'n Light Breakfast Juices.

Though Mr. Murdock, who took control of C&C when it merged with his New York-based Flexi-Van Inc. in early 1985, is perceived by many as a seller of assets rather than a builder of brands, two acquisitions in 1987 indicate C&C's intention to build Dole for the long-term.

In September 1987 C&C purchased the agricultural properties of Tenneco West, a fresh fruit, nuts and vegetable marketer, and Apache Corp, producer of olives and figs.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	225	0
Magazines	6,065	6,332
Newsp. supps	145	109
Bus. pubs	1,292	0
Network TV	16,130	8,699
Spot TV	3,069	4,678
Network radio	2,529	2,274
Spot radio	1,395	2,383
Outdoor	20	6
Network cable	41	0
Total measured	30,912	24,481
Unmeasured	40,406	32,000
Total	71,318	56,481

CASTLE & COOKE
10900 Wilshire Blvd.
Suite 1500
Los Angeles, Calif. 90024
(213) 824-1500

Marketing Personnel

David Murdock, chmn
Robert Fisher, president, Dole Food Co.
Harold Reed, president, Dole Packaged Foods
David Delorenzo, president, fresh fruit
John Porter, vp-mktg & sales, processed foods
Leo Kreger, vp-mktg, processed foods
Robert Urbain, vp-genl mgr, frozen desserts

Advertising Agency

Backer Spielvogel Bates, New York—Dole packaged foods, Dole frozen desserts, Dole fresh foods, new prods—Sharon Mosse, exec vp; Ed Aroyan, Vicki Mendelson, acct supers; Lynn Hannon, Susan Rudolph, Ira Bahr, acct execs.

Chevron Corp.

RANK 174

San Francisco

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	26,245	43,845	(40.1)
Net income	715	1,547	(53.8)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	19,886	30,253	(34.3)
Operating profits	247	1,404	(82.4)
Advertising	45	46	(0.7)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Petroleum	23,666	41,003	(42.3)
Chemicals	1,998	2,246	(11.0)
Minerals	380	365	4.1

The collapse of crude oil prices and falling revenues for petroleum products called for draconian cost-cutting at Chevron Corp. in 1986. However, its marketing and advertising programs remained almost intact at a spending level of about $45 million.

Chevron management met the revenue shortfall with numerous cutbacks. Planned worldwide capital expenditures were sliced from $5 billion to about $3 billion, about the same level expected for 1987; the work force was cut by 12%; $850 million in assets were sold; the debt from the 1985 merger with Gulf was reduced by $1 billion.

At the end of 1986, the company's total assets were $34.6 billion, and it ranked as the fourth largest U.S. petroleum company, based on revenues, the nation's largest manufacturer of refined products and the largest marketer of jet fuel, diesel fuel, asphalt and natural gas liquids.

At Chevron USA, the company's petroleum products marketing arm, expansion of gasoline-convenience stores remained a priority. The company has started a $600 million consolidation program that will consolidate two or three low-volume stations in a market into a single high-volume outlet.

Most of the company's advertising dollars backed gasolines, both Chevron and Gulf brands, which pulled a combined $10 million in measured media. Chevron motor oil and lubricant products accounted for another $4 million. Since the acquisition of Gulf Oil by Chevron, the company has consolidated many Chevron/Gulf product lines, especially motor oils.

Measured media expenditures for 1986 find spot TV, at $14.9 million, up 25.5% from 1985, once again the dominant media force in Chevron's regional marketing strategy, according to BAR/LNA. Spot radio expenditures at $4.3 million were off 55.2% from 1985.

Chevron unleaded gasoline containing Techroline continues to be used by all four major U.S. auto makers in the EPA's 50,000-mile emission system durability tests, and Chevron's radio advertising still highlights this EPA usage. The patented Chevron gasoline additive is packaged as a concentrate and sold as Techron, and it is now being incorporated into Gulf gasoline grades. Average monthly sales of Techron grew nearly threefold compared with 1985.

Chevron's "Yes, the best" campaign introduced in 1986 for its Techroline gasoline brand rolled on into 1987 emphasizing product quality and its relation to overall auto performance. The campaign concentrates on spot TV. Gulf gasolines continue with the "Unlock the power" campaign for its Techroline grades. Both campaigns have the support of newspapers and radio in key markets.

Chevron in 1986 relied largely on a mix of spot TV and radio to market its products in more than 50 major markets. In 1987 the company has beefed up its spending in print in regional editions of national consumer magazines. In 1986, Chevron spent $3.2 million in newspapers and $3.4 million in magazines. The push for print is in line with the company's increased emphasis on the sale of premium grades. Premium users, it is believed, are not great TV viewers; they can be reached most effectively by specialty magazines.

Chevron Plus Unleaded, a mid-grade gasoline, was rolled out nationally in mid-1987 as sales for leaded gasolines dwindles to extinction. Launched in Southern Florida test markets in August and mid-Atlantic region in September, the unleaded brand is expected to be introduced on a market-by-market basis in 1987-88 with the support of spot TV.

Advertising by Chevron Chemical Co. —the company's best-performing division, representing 7% of corporate sales but 15% of net income—commanded nearly 25% of Chevron's total ad expenditures in 1986. The outlay, mostly for Ortho products, was split between herbicide and pesticide lines. Media usage for advertising ran 70/30 in favor of TV over consumer magazines.

Chevron Chemical used a series of split-30 spots to promote the Ortho line of indoor home pestkillers. Launched in 1987, the spots are scheduled to run in spot markets through 1988, supported by print on a regional basis.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	3,162	2,489
Magazines	3,414	2,468
Newsp. supps	120	84
Bus. pubs	1,450	1,431
Farm pubs	914	1,794
Network TV	2,026	1,439
Spot TV	14,920	11,111
Network radio	5	42
Spot radio	4,395	9,688
Outdoor	28	105
Network cable	79	65
Total measured	30,512	30,714
Unmeasured	14,901	15,000
Total	45,413	45,714

CHEVRON CORP.
225 Bush St.
San Francisco, Calif. 94104
(415) 894-7700
CHEVRON CHEMICAL CO.
San Francisco, Calif.
Marketing Personnel

Bob Dennison, vp-genl mgr, Ortho agricultural chemicals div
Jim Lieto, vp-genl mgr, Ortho consumer prods div
Tom Graham, adv mgr, Ortho consumer prods div (home, lawn & garden chemicals)
Phyllis McCabe, adv specialist, Ortho agricultural chemicals div (pesticides)
Kevin Eikenberry, mktg specialist, Ortho fertilizer div

Advertising Agencies

Livingston & Co., Seattle—Ra-pid-gro plant food, pr—Pat Doody, vp-acct super.

McCann-Erickson, San Francisco—all divs—Tom Dreese, sr vp-acct super, consumer & agricultural prods divs; Jeff Kaiser, vp-acct super, consumer prods.

CHEVRON U.S.A. INC.
San Francisco, Calif.
Marketing Personnel

L.L. Taigen, vp-mktg
D.C. Smith, genl mgr-mktg
Jim Gordon, mgr-adv & promo
Jim Fivarnik, media dir

Advertising Agencies

J. Walter Thompson USA, San Francisco—public affairs—Michael Goefft, acct dir; David Soblin, mgmt super.

Young & Rubicam, San Francisco—Chevron & Gulf brands—Gene Hart, acct mgr; Jack Hamilton, mgmt super; Les Allison, acct super, Chevron brands; Wayne Buder, acct super, Gulf brands.

RANK
142

Ciba-Geigy Ltd.

Basel, Switzerland

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	8,569	9,787	(12.4)
Net income	119	120	(1.1)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,434	2,363	3.0
Operating profits	N/A	N/A	N/A
Advertising	59	52	14.7
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Chemicals	1,268	1,329	(4.6)
Pharmaceuticals	2,755	3,006	(8.3)
Agricultural	2,030	2,733	(25.7)
Plastics	1,913	2,076	(7.8)
Ilford	262	294	(11.1)
Electronic equip.	343	349	(1.8)

In order to offset poor results generated by its agriculture division, the Ardsley, N.Y.-based division of Ciba-Geigy Ltd. is concentrating on developing new high-technology products, especially pharmaceuticals.

Dollar sales of Ciba in North America grew 3%, although that is a decline translated into Swiss francs. The 12.4% decline in the company's worldwide sales shown in the box is credited largely to the weak agricultural economy and to the appreciation of the Swiss franc. The average annual exchange for the franc has grown 20.8% against the dollar from early 1986. Figures for both 1986 and 1985 were converted at the same exchange rate of 1 Swiss franc=$0.5371.

Among the new pharmaceutical products the company launched last year were Estraderm, a transdermal treatment for menopausal problems; Ten-K, a treatment for potassium deficiency; Transderm-Nitro, a heart transdermal product, and Tegretol, a medication controlling involuntary movement.

Ciba-Geigy now holds 3.2% of the nation's pharmaceuticals market, the company reports, and is the second-largest pharmaceuticals company in the world behind Merck, Sharp & Dohme International Ltd. Because ethical drugs are rarely marketed to consumers, Ciba's advertising spending is in less consumer-oriented media.

The company made a substantial commitment to vision care with the acquisition from Alcon Laboratories of Alcon contact lens business in Europe and North America (Alcon retained its lens solution business). This supplements the business brought in by the 1985 purchase of American Optical Corp. Ciba increased its sales in this area by 70%, making it the fifth largest vision-care company in the world. During fiscal 1986, this group was spun-off of the pharmaceutical division to become the Ciba Vision Group. Many expect the company will expand into other related eyecare areas such as cosmetics. Measured spending behind eyecare in 1986 was marginal, down to $500,000 from the $2 million in 1985.

The bulk of consumer ad spending is behind Acutrim fiber supplement, although spending dropped 15.3% to $8.3 million in 1986. An Acutrim commercial that showed a woman devouring everything in sight drew criticism in 1986. The agency, Ally Gargano/MCA, lost the account early this year. Acutrim is generally regarded to be second in the market behind Fibre Trim from Schering-Plough.

A major new item unwrapped in 1986 was Sunkist vitamins. The brand was well-received by the trade, and drew an ad budget of $4.3 million.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	35	135
Magazines	707	1,993
Newsp. supps	0	206
Bus. pubs	2,882	1,242
Farm pubs	6,622	7,040
Network TV	10,373	6,846
Spot TV	5,343	71
Network radio	0	5,707
Spot radio	2,175	1,388
Outdoor	171	112
Network cable	198	104
Total measured	28,506	24,842
Unmeasured	30,982	27,000
Total	59,488	51,842

CIBA-GEIGY CORP.
Saw Mill River Rd.
Ardsley, N.Y. 10502
(914) 478-3131
PHARMACEUTICAL DIVISION
Marketing Personnel

William Sheldon, sr vp-mktg
Bill Hackett, exec dir-adv & sales promo

Advertising Agencies

(In-house) C&G Advertising Agency, Summitt, N.J.—Bill Hackett, president.

Foote, Cone & Belding Communications, Chicago—Joan Bia k, sr vp-group dir; Liz Slattery, vp-acct dir; Tom Hollerback, acct exec.

William Douglas McAdams Advertising, New York—Irving Schwab, acct super.

AGRICULTURAL DIVISION
Marketing Personnel

Leo Bontempo, president
Phil Koch, dir-comm
Larry Spickler, comm mgr

Advertising Agencies

Ketchum Advertising, San Francisco—insecticides, fungicides, herbicides—Jeff Manning, sr vp-group dir; Steve Pickford, vp-mgmt super; Russell Woods, super; Norman Rivera, acct exec.

Martin Williams, Minneapolis—herbicides, fungicides—Gerry Kleckner, vp-mgmt super; Tim Burke, acct super.

RANK
194

Citicorp

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	N/A	N/A	N/A
Net income	1,058	998	6.0
U.S. advertising	34	61	(44.8)

Citicorp, the nation's largest commercial bank with more than $144 billion in assets at the end of 1986, slashed its advertising expenditures last year and decentralized its in-house marketing department in an effort to get closer to its individual markets.

Although it posted major failures with products in its two major market segments —credit cards and consumer banking—analysts say Citicorp is holding its own against stiff competition.

The most striking disappointment for the bank holding company came with its decision to scrap its Choice credit card in August 1987 and transfer it to a Visa card still inscribed with the Choice logo. "There was not enough volume for the card to make it profitable," says Norman Jaffe, bank analyst for Fox-Pitt Kelton Inc., New York. Nonetheless, Citicorp is still the largest issuer of credit cards, with more than 9 million accounts. Bank of America is second with 7 million.

Mr. Jaffe says the bank is using the "affinity method" to gain penetration. For example, Citibank recently inked a deal with American Airlines whereby cardholders get free membership for the card and 5,000 free miles of air travel. Each dollar purchase also translates into an extra mile of travel on American Airlines.

Citicorp's other major push is toward more upscale cards such as preferred or "gold" cards and away from the vanilla type card. Citibank is pushing those cards with a direct mail campaign stressing service; included were more than 100 million bind-ins in various national magazines in 1986.

The company also launched a new spot TV campaign with parallel theme lines, "Not just Visa—Citibank Visa" and "Not just MasterCard—Citibank MasterCard." That campaign will run through 1988, and there is a chance Citibank will NATION'S BEST PACKAGE RATE!!

No size, copy or category restrictions in Albany, N.Y.

Discover New! Lite, Easy... Rosetto Ravioli.

If you love delicious Italian food, care about your figure and operate on a whirl-wind schedule, use this 50¢ coupon to discover Rosetto's new lite and easy ravioli.

Made with thin, delicate pasta and lite, flavorful fillings, Rosetto's new lite and easy ravioli will fill you up without filling you out. Best of all, when you need to fix dinner in no time, it's ready in minutes. Just boil or microwave, then add your favorite sauce or try one of the quick sauce recipes right on the package.

So use the coupon below today and discover delicious flavor, convenience and good nutrition in Rosetto's new, lite and easy ravioli.

ROSETTO COUPON

50¢ off New! Lite Rosetto Ravioli

16 oz. bag. In your grocer's frozen food case

Expires January 31, 1987

THOUSANDS MORE FOOD SHOPPERS DISCOVERED ROSETTO RAVIOLI ... WHEN ROSETTO RAVIOLI DISCOVERED THE ALBANY, N.Y., POWER PACKAGE.

Our Sunday-Tuesday Food Power Package reaches almost 140,000 more principal food shoppers than the best food day alone, over 270,000 in all—at commissionable local rate equivalent!

Food Shopper CPM
Best food day only*................$12.08

Food Shopper CPM
Food Power Package* ....$ 6.53

For details on how to reach more customers for less, call Chris Cunningham, Jr., and ask about the ...

ALBANY, N.Y.
POWER PACKAGE RATE

Phone 518/454-5680

*Based on 20 col. in., black and one color
Source: 1987 Simmons Newspaper Ratings

AD SAT.

NOBODY COVERS NEW YORK'S CAPITAL LIKE
NEW YORK'S CAPITAL NEWSPAPERS
TIMES UNION
Mornings and Sunday
Knickerbocker News
Evenings
HEARST NEWSPAPERS

take it onto network when it completes an evaluation of the campaign's effectiveness.

The bank also plans to coattail on Visa's sponsorship of the Olympics with a special Citibank Visa Olympic card. The hook is a $10 donation to the Olympic Committee for each new account opened.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	4,906	10,538
Newsp. supps	363	391
Bus. pubs	705	1,022
Network TV	6,027	17,174
Spot TV	8,346	10,952
Network radio	140	0
Spot radio	2,305	2,778
Outdoor	273	50
Network cable	831	416
Total measured	23,894	43,321
Unmeasured	9,837	17,835
Total	33,731	61,156

CITICORP

399 Park Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10043
(212) 559-1000

Marketing Personnel

Philemon Hoadley, dir-adv
Elizabeth Heller Allen, dir-mktg, Citicorp Investment Bank
Julian Romeu, dir-adv, Citibank MasterCard & Visa
Karen Foley, dir-mktg, Diners Club
Michael Wien, dir-mktg, Citicorp Savings Illinois
Edward Caso, dir-mktg, Citicorp Savings Florida
Robert Previdi, dir-mktg, Citicorp, Citibank retail

Advertising Agencies

Foote, Cone & Belding Communications, Chicago—Diners Club card U.S., Carte Blanche card, Citicorp traveler's checks, new prods—Bill Melzer, sr vp-group acct dir; Dale Smith, vp-acct dir; Beryl Schnierow, acct exec.

Foote, Cone & Belding/Leber Katz Partners, New York—Citicorp Foreign Currency Center, Diners Club Intl, Citicorp Investment Product unit, Citicorp Choice—Jon Adams, sr exec vp, worldwide acct dir; Connie O'Brien, Katherine Chiles, vp-mng dirs; Linda Lustig, vp-acct dir; Bob Morgan, Greg Maddock, acct execs.

Lowe Marschalk, New York—Citibank Better Bank Card div—Dan O'Donnell, vp-acct super; Patricia Gallagher, acct exec.

N W Ayer, New York—Citicorp natl campaign, Citibank—Philippa Muir, mng super; Linda Stack, Jack Rayher, Anita Stewart, vps-acct supers.

N W Ayer, Chicago—Citicorp Savings of Illinois—John Wells, president; Jim Signorelli, vp-acct super; Sharon Earle, Jim Beall, Don Millsap, acct execs.

Smith-Greenland, New York—Citicorp Investment Bank—Bert Rosenberg, exec vp; Beth Granowitz, acct exec.

Coleco Industries

RANK 152

West Hartford, Conn.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	501	776	(35.5)
Net income	(111)	83	(234.2)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	471	716	(34.2)
Operating profits	(68)	115	(159.0)
Advertising	55	72	(23.9)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Toys	501	720	(30.4)
Cons. electr.	N/A	56	N/A

For the third-largest toy manufacturer, Coleco Industries has an unusually small product base. Known primarily for its Cabbage Patch line of adoptable dolls, the company in 1986 made a concerted effort through new product introductions and acquisitions to lessen its reliance on Cabbage Patch Kids.

The first moves in this direction were accomplished last year despite grim operating results. Coleco in 1986 introduced StarCom action figures, ALF plush characters, electronic play-and-learn toys, Sylvanian Families play figurines and Aurora road racing sets. In addition, the company finalized its acquisition of Selchow & Righter Co., maker of board games such as Scrabble and Trivial Pusuit.

Despite such product expansion, Coleco's financial returns remained tied to the decline of the Cabbage Patch dolls. In 1986, Coleco's sales fell 35% to $501 million; sales of its Cabbage Patch Kids plummeted 62% to $230 million. Cabbage Patch Kids now represent 46% of total sales, compared with 77% in 1985. Since their introduction in 1983, Cabbage Patch Kids have generated sales of $1.2 billion.

With the revenue drop, Coleco only modestly increased its worldwide advertising budget 5.8% last year to $67.9 million. Its domestic budget also increased 5.8% to $61.7 million.

The decline in the fortunes of the Cabbage Patch Kids has resulted in major management and agency changes. Al Kahn, executive VP-worldwide creative development, left the company during February's Toy Fair; he has been replaced by Charles Winterble. Longtime Coleco agency, Richard & Edward's, lost the business and closed shop in early 1987.

Richard & Edward's lost the account in chunks. The $10 million Cabbage Patch Kids account went to Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York, in 1985. BJK&E at that time picked up an additional $10 million in business from Coleco for the Selchow & Righter (formerly at Tonka agency Jordan, McGrath, Case & Taylor, New York), Furskins (formerly at Richard & Edward's), Play & Learn Electronics (formerly at Richard & Edward's), ALF and UBI lines. The Rambo and Wrinkles lines went to Scott Lancaster Mills Atha, Los Angeles. That agency this year was assigned Coleco's Sylvanian Families, StarCom, Aurora, outdoor products and creativity activity toys accounts.

Last month, Coleco introduced Cabbage Patch Talking Kids, with the hope that this new line will invigorate doll sales.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	480	0
Magazines	3,015	5,194
Newsp. supps	295	20
Bus. pubs	0	39
Network TV	3,764	4,910
Spot TV	21,963	28,417
Spot radio	141	0
Outdoor	0	103
Network cable	71	399
Total measured	29,729	39,082
Unmeasured	25,102	33,000
Total	54,830	72,082

COLECO INDUSTRIES

999 Quaker Lane South
West Hartford, Conn. 06110
(203) 725-6000

Corporate Personnel

Arnold Greenberg, chmn-ceo
J. Brian Clarke, president-coo
Morton Handel, exec vp-corp devel
Charles Winterble, exec vp-worldwide creative devel
Barbara Wruck, vp-corp comm

Marketing Personnel

Donald Taylor, exec vp-mktg
Robert Jackman, sr vp-mktg
Alan Fine, sr vp-prod mktg
Sy Gershberg, dir-adv & media
Marilyn Greenwald, mgr-licensor accts

Advertising Agencies

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York—Gary Andrews, sr vp-acct group dir; Tom Stacey, acct super, Selchow & Righter; Carl Titelman, acct super, Coleco; Bill Appelman, exec vp-exec creative dir; Bob Feinberg, exec vp-creative dir.

Scott Lancaster Mills Atha, Los Angeles—David Mills, acct super; Steve Scott, Peggy Lancaster, Steve Jarvis, creative dirs.

Cotter & Co.

RANK 121

Chicago

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,734	1,702	1.9
Net income	71	67	6.8
U.S. advertising	67	72	(6.1)

At a time of great growth in hardlines marketing, Cotter & Co.—the cooperative that includes True Value Hardware Stores and V&S Variety Stores—continues to hold a clear edge in hardware market share, but it is under mounting pressure from many competitors.

What was once an orderly distinction between the neighborhood hardware store and the local building-supply dealer is now a vast assortment of hardware stores that sell lumber, lumberyards that sell hardware, plus a booming new middle ground of hardline supermarkets called home centers.

The National Retail Hardware Assn., Indianapolis, reports combined sales of these three types of do-it-yourself outlets in 1986 was $67.1 billion. The total breaks down into $11.8 billion for retail hardware stores, $30.2 billion for home centers, $25.1 billion for DIY lumberyards.

Cotter's 1986 sales rose just 1.9% as net income grew 6.8%. This compares to 1985 advances of 3% in sales and 15.5% in net income. For the first six months of 1987, Cotter's sales rose to $920.5 million, 4.2% above the same period in 1986. Net earnings were up 11.4%, to $42.9 million.

Cotter's estimated advertising drop of 6.1% in 1986 to $67.3 million "was a calculated decrease," says Edward Lanctot, Cotter's secretary, treasurer and merchandising manager, citing the planned 10.6% cuts in magazines. Television also was down—by 16% for network and 12% for spot, according to BAR/LNA. Mr. Lanctot suggests the monitored figures are high because Cotter often buys network on a regional rather than full national basis. "Our true network buying probably totaled $5 million."

Low-key though Cotter's overall 1986 performance may have been, it still left the Chicago-based hardware house well ahead of its rivals. In the retail hardware-store market, Cotter ranked No. 1 in sales, with a market share of 14.7%. Ace Hardware, Oak Brook, Ill., with 1986 sales of $1.06 billion, was No. 2 with a 9% share.

Cotter did not originate the concept of the member-owned wholesaler cooperative, but it has made it pay off in a big way. The cooperative now includes more than 8,200 True Value hardware stores, including about 940 combination True Values and V&S Variety Stores, plus an additional 1,100 V&S outlets. Fourteen warehouse distribution centers serve these stores, the newest operating in Woodland, Calif., and Hendersonville, N.C., with another being planned for Ocala, Fla., set to open in 1988.

Cotter's biggest sales come from California, with about 8% of the total, followed by Illinois with about 7%, Texas and New York with 6% each.

The company is putting increased emphasis on its own house brands. It manufactures paint, varnish, stains, lawn blowers and snowblowers, garden tillers and other lawn and garden supplies, space heaters and hot plates.

By merchandise category, hardware constituted 40.3% of Cotter's sales in 1986; home and garden maintenance supplies were 31.9%; variety goods 18.8%; appliances 9%. Some True Value stores also are adding new lines such as soft drinks and video rental. For 1986, Cotter's measured ad spending in 11 media was down 6.1% to $43.8 million.

Cotter's Tru-Test paint line, including paint, varnish and stain, received the biggest outlay in 1986 of any individual product line—$1.04 million—far more than in 1985. Cotter's biggest advertised line item is general promotion for True Value Stores, on which it spent $10.7 million in 1986, all in network radio.

Although Cotter announced its intention to energize V&S Variety Store promotion by hinging TV spending to V&S dealers' increased purchases from Cotter warehouses, it did no V&S advertising spending for 1986.

Direct mail continues as a major part of Cotter's promotion efforts. Local dealers circulate about 12 True Value and eight to 19 V&S catalogs annually. They are four-color rotogravure, varying from about 12 to 64 pages each.

Dealers build their own mailing lists, pick the fliers they want to use, then mail them in their local market area. Circulation totals 200 million a year.

These catalogs, like the rest of Cotter's advertising efforts, are the work of the company's in-house agency, Home Products Marketing. Chicago agency Christenson, Barclay & Shaw had been handling Cotter's print and Yellow Page advertising, but on Jan. 1, 1987, everything went in-house.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	6,055	6,752
Newsp. supps	56	0
Bus. pubs	220	59
Network TV	12,331	14,656
Spot TV	11,562	13,126
Network radio	10,663	9,049
Spot radio	1,265	1,491
Outdoor	64	46
Network cable	1,588	1,492
Total measured	43,805	46,670
Unmeasured	23,465	25,000
Total	67,270	71,670

COTTER & CO.

2740 N. Clybourn Ave.
Chicago, Ill. 60614
(312) 975-2700

Corporate Personnel

John M. Cotter, chmn
Daniel A. Cotter, president-ceo

Marketing Personnel

Edward E. Lanctot, secretary, treasurer, merch mgr
Gary Coppinger, retail adv mgr

Advertising Agency

(In-house) Home Products Marketing, Chicago—all prod lines.

Daimler-Benz AG

RANK 105

Stuttgart, W.Germany

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	23,249	29,055	(20.0)
Net income	746	784	(4.8)
U.S. advertising	77	65	19.8

Mercedes-Benz of North America, the U.S. sales and distribution subsidiary of Daimler-Benz A.G., saw a rise in sales in the last few months of 1986, then a dip in the first few months of 1987, attributable to the change in U.S. tax laws that took effect Jan. 1, 1987.

The U.S. marketing arm claims about 66% of the U.S. ultraluxury car market—automobiles with price tags topping $30,000—with 99,314 in unit sales in the U.S in 1986. Total worldwide Mercedes production in 1986 was 594,080 passenger cars, up 9.8%.

Financial figures in the accompanying box were converted from Deutschemarks to dollars at the average annual exchange rate of 1DM=$0.4436, which was applied to both 1986 and 1985 to factor out the DM's year-to-year appreciation of 33% against the dollar. The U.S. sales noted in the box are for Daimler-Benz of North America Holding, New York, and represent a consolidation of North American operations including Mercedes-Benz of North America in Montvale, Mercedes-Benz Credit, Norwalk, Conn., and Freightliner, Portland.

Mercedes' U.S. unit sales were up 14% last year, led by the S-class sedan and coupe models. Although the company expects Americans' demand for imported cars to be somewhat weakened by the currency revaluation of the Deutschemark versus the U.S. dollar, Daimler will step up its passenger car production to more than 600,000 cars in 1987. The Montvale operation produced U.S. sales of $4.18 billion, up 29.7%.

Mercedes switched media strategies in 1986, with a major swing in ad dollars to newspapers, spot radio and network TV. Spending on network TV rose 44%, while newspaper spending increased 29.6% and spot radio rose 90%. Network cable TV buying also rose slightly. Magazine spending dropped 86%; spot TV experienced a 28.2% decline.

In the first six months of 1987, Mercedes returned to magazine spending. BAR/LNA shows a measured $5.9 million spent in that medium. Some $11.4 million has gone into network TV, $3 million into spot TV. The company already has spent $20.8 million on advertising this year. A reported $14.8 million was used to back passenger cars, with the 190, 300 and 560 series automobiles each receiving about $1.8 million in ad dollars in that period.

In July 1987, Daimler named its Deputy Chief Executive Edzard Reuter, to the post of chairman, following the announcement of Werner Breitschwerdt that he would take early retirement.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	23,340	18,008
Magazines	977	7,064
Newsp. supps	102	36
Bus. pubs	547	501
Network TV	25,183	17,422
Spot TV	3,424	4,390
Spot radio	3,542	325
Outdoor	84	23
Network cable	153	115
Total measured	57,351	47,884
Unmeasured	20,072	16,759
Total	77,423	64,643

MERCEDES-BENZ OF NORTH AMERICA

One Mercedes Dr.
Montvale, N.J. 07645
(201) 573-0600

Corporate Personnel

Erich Krampe, president

Marketing Personnel

Hans Jordan, vp-mktg
Kevin Davidson, adv mgr

Advertising Agency

McCaffrey & McCall, New York—all models, Mercedes-Benz automobiles—William Metzger, vp-acct mgmt.

Dayton Hudson Corp.

RANK 123

Minneapolis

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	9,259	8,255	12.2
Net income	255	281	(9.1)
U.S. advertising	67	68	(1.0)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Target	4,355	3,932	10.8
Mervyn's	2,862	2,527	13.3
Department stores	1,566	1,448	8.2
Lechmere	476	349	36.3

A hostile takeover bid and the first earnings decline in 16 years combine to make this a critical time for Dayton Hudson Corp.

While sales grew 12.2% for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, net earnings from continuing operations dropped 9.1%. (Consolidated earnings increased from $283.6 million to $310 million because of a gain from the sale of its B. Dalton Bookseller division.)

In June 1987, the company was further rocked when the Haft-family controlled Dart Group Corp. of Landover, Md., announced its intentions of acquiring Dayton Hudson. Several offers were made and rejected until the Hafts dropped their attempt last month after suffering heavy stock losses related to Black Monday events in the financial markets.

Dayton Hudson is the nation's sixth largest nonfood retailer in sales, operating 475 stores in 34 states. Retail operations are divided into four business segments: Target, Mervyn's, Dayton Hudson Department Store Co. and Lechmere.

The corporation's growth continues to come from Target and Mervyn's, its large-scale discount and value-priced operations. These two companies have contributed 89% of the corporation's growth in revenues over the past five years. Last year they accounted for 78% of revenues and 72% of operating profits, although Target significantly outperformed Mervyn's for the year.

Dayton Hudson's measured media spending—substantially all of it in spot TV—also reflects the importance of Target and Mervyn's. Together, the two companies spent $27.9 million on spot TV in 1986 out of a total TV spending of $31.5 million, according to BAR/LNA. This accounts for 77% of the corporation's $36 million in measured spending.

Target, with its mix of upscale discounting and private label merchandising, is the cornerstone of Dayton Hudson. Now in the midst of a major expansion program, Target recently acquired 54 Gemco stores for $374 million from Lucky Stores, opening major new markets in California. Target revenues rose 11%, and operating profit climbed 12%. By the end of this year, Target will be operating 320 stores.

Since the acquisition of Mervyn's in 1978, its sales have grown annually by 26% and operating profit by 28%, making Mervyn's the strongest contributor to Dayton Hudson's corporate growth rate. In 1986, however, sales and profitability began a downward slide that by the second quarter of 1987 had become, in the words of one analyst, "dismal." Fighting back, Mervyn's underwent major restructuring in 1986. Texas offices were closed, and the company centralized operations in Hayward, Calif. Further headquarters restructuring, redefined product lines, a new store prototype and 27 new store openings were all part of Mervyn's aggressive comeback campaign that produced mixed results. Revenues increased 13% in 1986, but operating profit declined 35%. By the end of 1987, Mervyn's will be operating 199 stores in 13 states.

Dayton Hudson Department Store Co. had a modest sales growth of 8%, but operating profits that rose 36%. The nation's second largest department store division, DHDSC fueled its efforts with a purchase-with-purchase promotion, a strategy that enables customers to buy a gift item if they purchase a certain amount of merchandise.

With the sale of B. Dalton, Dayton Hudson now concentrates its specialty retailing business with Lechmere, a hardline product store focusing on consumer electronics, major appliances, housewares and leisure equipment. Current expansion plans call for Lechmere to be operating 23 stores in eight states by the end of 1987.

Analysts at Paine Webber Mitchell & Hutchins pinpoint Lechmere as Dayton Hudson's fastest-growing division, with annual sales growth of 50% estimated through 1990; that would boost total sales to $2.2 billion by the end of the decade.

Listed as a superspecialty store is Branden's, a home furnishings store being tested in Miami, Jacksonville and Atlanta. The corporation will not release any figures on Branden's, but noted it will open 11 new stores by the end of 1989, with an emphasis on greater Miami. Based on results, Dayton Hudson will decide whether to launch Branden's nationally.

The corporation also tested a TV shopping system that operated for 13 weeks this spring. No figures have been released on the venture, and corporate officials decline to comment on Dayton Hudson's future involvement, if any.

Among several major corporate personnel changes, President-chief operating officer Boake Sells left in September to become chairman-ceo of Revco D.S., the nation's second largest drugstore chain. Bruce Allbright, chairman-ceo of Target, was quickly moved into Mr. Sells' position. Robert Ulrich was promoted from president-chief operating officer of Target to replace Mr. Allbright.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	163	113
Spot TV	31,526	32,903
Spot radio	4,128	2,979
Outdoor	197	394
Total measured	36,014	36,389
Unmeasured	30,937	31,259
Total	66,951	67,648

DAYTON HUDSON CORP.
777 Nicollet Mall
Minneapolis, Minn. 55402
(612) 370-6948
DAYTON HUDSON DEPARTMENT STORE CO.
Minneapolis
Marketing Personnel
John Pellegrene, sr vp-mktg
Daniel Stroman, dir-adv accts
Jack Mugan, dir-adv svcs
Advertising Agency
Campbell-Mithun, Minneapolis—Jeri Schottler, acct super.
LECHMERE
Woburn, Mass.
Marketing Personnel
Warren Feldberg, exec vp-mktg
Howard Benidt, sr vp-sales promo & adv
Janet Tyrrell, dir adv
Phyllis Wasserman, dir sales promo
Advertising Agency
Saffer Advertising, Toronto—Greg Crombie, vp-group dir; Sue Rudy, sr acct dir.
MERVYN'S
Hayward, Calif.
Marketing Personnel
Chuck West, vp-sales promo
Pat Holt, dir-print adv
Ruth Hines, dir-media/broadcast/adv
Ruth Lindley, dir-adv operations/planning
Advertising Agency
(In-house).
TARGET STORES
Minneapolis
Marketing Personnel
Sonja Larsen, sr vp-adv, sales promo & merch
Paul Higham, vp-adv
Karen Singer, dir-sales promo
Advertising Agency
Ruhr/Paragon Advertising—broadcast creative—Chuck Ruhr, president; Rosemary Svenpladsen, acct super.
Media Buying
Haworth Group, Minneapolis—broadcast placement—Tom Siqveland, vp.
BRANDEN'S
Minneapolis
Marketing Personnel
Frank Vincent, dir-adv, sales promo

MCA expands toy interests

MCA Inc. continues to bet on the toy industry. MCA, which owns a large percentage of LJN Toys stock, earlier this year, made an equity investment of $20 million in Coleco, giving it an equivalent 9% of Coleco's common shares.

De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd.

RANK 188

London

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,557	2,150	18.9
Net income	527	474	11.2
U.S. advertising	36	36	2.2

With U.S. diamond jewelry sales rising 10.2% to $9.7 billion in 1986 and worldwide retail sales growing 14% in 1986, DeBeers Consolidated Mines generated much of the activity and capitalized on the largess.

DeBeers marketing arm, London-based Central Selling Organization, markets more than 80% of the world's diamond production.

During the year, DeBeers increased its U.S. advertising spending by 2.2% to $36.4 million, some $30.3 million of that in measured media charted by BAR/LNA. Its unmeasured spending—point-of-sale and trade promotion including co-op programs—held at about $6 million in 1986, roughly the same as in 1985.

About 66% of the marketer's advertising budget continued to be channeled into print. In 1986, consumer magazine spending grew slightly to about $20 million from $19.4 million—the latter figure a $6 million-plus jump from 1984 levels. Network and spot TV spending also inched upward. DeBeers' network allocation hit $9.7 million, up about $100,000 from the preceding year, while spot TV rose even less.

DeBeers' total measured-media spending for diamonds advertising alone topped $27 million in 1986, up 12%. Another $468,000 in magazines backed a DeBeers gold promotion that was not done the previous year.

DeBeers' U.S. agency of 48 years, N W Ayer, says the theme line "A diamond is forever" remains after some 50 years, and the sub-theme "Diamonds are the gift of love" continued into 1986.

Breaking down DeBeers' print spending, Ayer officials say women's diamond jewelry in 1986 got 18% of that budget, while diamond engagement rings received 14% (down from 13% in 1985), diamonds for men 12% (even with 1985), an aspirational print drive 10%, diamond anniversary rings 7% (up from 5%) and "prestige jewelry" 5% (down 10% from 1985, when the category was labeled diamonds of one carat or more).

After aggressively boosting its co-operative ad program for jewelry retailers in 1985 to $5.5 million, the diamond giant last year cut the co-op phase back to $2.7 million; virtually all its co-op spending in both years was in magazines.

The marketer sold $2.56 billion in rough or uncut diamonds in 1986, up 18.9% over 1985. Financial data appearing in the accompanying box for both 1986 and 1985 were converted at the exchange rate of 1 Rand=$0.46. As global demand for its rough diamonds matched the output of its sources for the first time in many years, DeBeers says, it raised prices for rough diamonds twice in 1986, in May and November.

A total of 17.9 million pieces of diamond jewelry were sold in the U.S. during 1986, up from 17.5 million in 1985. The company says it is bullish on the sales outlook for synthetic diamonds coming from its Diamond Research Laboratory and for the sale of diamonds in 1987, particularly in the U.S. and Japan.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	19,988	19,366
Newsp. supps	75	161
Network TV	9,687	9,579
Spot TV	487	460
Network cable	16	32
Total measured	30,253	29,597
Unmeasured	6,133	6,000
Total	36,386	35,597

DEBEERS CONSOLIDATED MINES
c/o N W Ayer
1345 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10105
(212) 708-5000
Advertising Agency/
Marketing Personnel
N W Ayer, New York—George Eversman, exec vp-exec acct dir; Judy Laughren, sr vp-mgmt super; Nancy Robey, sr acct exec-diamond engagement rings/one carat or more, diamond engagement rings; Rachel Treitelman, sr acct exec-diamonds as gifts, men's diamonds; Marc Capra, vp-acct super; Joan Parker, sr vp-dir pr, diamond information center; Caroline Bodie, mgr, diamond information center; Earl Lynch, vp-dir, diamond promo svcs.

Domino's Pizza

RANK 169

Ann Arbor, Mich.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,444	1,084	33.2
Net income	7	149	(95.2)
U.S. advertising	48	27	77.5

Delivery-specialist Domino's Pizza continued its explosive growth in 1986 as sales grew 33.2%, but the cost of financing that growth in the face of growing competition took a big bite out of profits.

Thomas Monaghan, company founder, chairman and president, admitted he was "not entirely satisfied" with 1986 results. But as a privately held company, Domino's was more concerned with market share than immediate profits, he says.

Domino's officials also blamed declining profits on the cost of financing its new $150 million Frank Lloyd Wright-inspired headquarters complex, the rising costs of delivery fleet insurance and the cost of new store openings. Domino's opened 766 outlets during the year, about two-thirds by franchisees, the other one-third corporate stores at a cost of $100,000 each.

Domino's, which had 102 stores in its string at the end of 1976, finished 1986 with 3,605 stores. That included 100 international units—in Canada, Australia, the U.K., Japan, West Germany, Hong Kong and Puerto Rico.

Since its founding in 1960, Mr. Monaghan has built Domino's into the No. 2 pizza chain, behind PepsiCo's Wichita, Kan.-based Pizza Hut, by perfecting the delivery process and concentrating on a simple menu: two or three sizes of pizza, with a maximum of 10 toppings, and one type of soft drink (Coke in corporate stores and most franchised outlets).

By the mid-1980s, Domino's had turned home delivery into the fastest-growing sector of fast food, capitalizing on the growing number of two-income households with the financial ability to eat out but the desire to stay home.

Pizza Hut, which built its empire with sit-down restaurants, joined the delivery fray by opening 450 delivery units by mid-1987.

Domino's established a tough standard for Pizza Hut and other competitors by promising delivery within 30 minutes. The company said that it brought average delivery time below 24 minutes in 1986.

Domino's didn't move into network TV advertising until 1985, and the company more than doubled its network spending in 1986.

The company introduced an animated clay character, the Noid, in its advertising in September 1986. The Noid, a Wiley Coyote-type character, is used to personify consumer fears that delivered pizza often arrives cold, squashed or stuck to the cardboard box. The Noid ruins other delivered pizza but is humorously foiled in Domino's spots.

The Noid registered high recognition, and its popularity among teenagers and pre-teens led Domino's to name a licensing agent, California Merchandising Concepts, North Hollywood, in mid-1987. Lines of dolls, clothes and other merchandise were due out by the end of the year. The Noid was created by Domino's national agency, Group 243, and by Will Vinton Productions, Portland, Ore.

Domino's retained the Noid in its advertising in 1987, upping the ante in September by promising a money-back refund or replacement pizza to any dissatisfied customer, as well as $3 off the price if delivery takes more than 30 minutes.

The company also boosted its TV advertising to $19.7 million in the first six months of 1987, up 47% from the same period in 1986, according to TvB. That made Domino's the eighth-largest TV spender in the restaurant/fast-food category.

Increased competition in the pizza segment also led Domino's to look for new customers by hiring its first hispanic agency, San Antonio, Texas-based Sosa & Associates, in June 1987. In doing so, Domino's was again taking a marketing cue from fast-food leader McDonald's Corp., Oak Brook, Ill. McDonald's cornered the hispanic market for burgers by being the first to target the segment a decade ago.

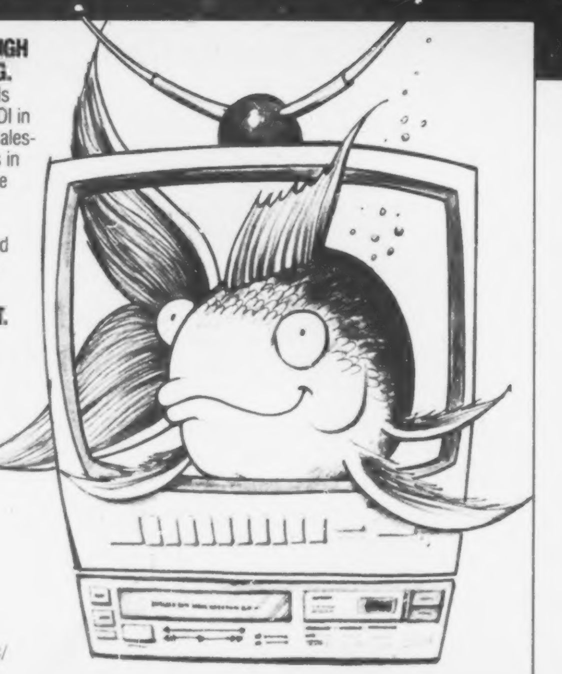
Domino's also owns the Detroit Tigers baseball team, acquired in October 1983 as Mr. Monaghan fulfilled "the biggest worldly goal I ever had."

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	143	0
Network TV	19,496	9,298
Spot TV	14,308	8,286
Spot radio	2,235	1,909
Outdoor	643	829
Network cable	364	1
Total measured	37,189	20,324
Unmeasured	11,300	7,000
Total	48,489	27,324

DOMINO'S PIZZA
Prairie House, Domino's Farms
30 Frank Lloyd Wright Drive
Ann Arbor, Mich. 48105
(313) 668-4000
Marketing Personnel
Sam Fine, div vp-mktg
Mike Raymond, dir-natl mktg
Ron Hingst, natl dir-pr
Margaret Olson-Cox, natl dir-mkt rsch
Advertising Agencies
Group 243, Ann Arbor, Mich.—Janet Muhle-

We track over 25,600 ads every month in 150 business and consumer magazines.
We can tell you where your competition is...what they spend...how much on each brand, by month, by book.
Call: (312) 446-9233.
PATTERSON ADVERTISING REPORTS, INC.
550 Frontage Road • Northfield, IL 60093



WHY BE A LITTLE FISH IN A BIG POND?

LAUREL-HATTIESBURG, MISSISSIPPI

TV, VCR AND TAPE SALES EARN HIGH RATINGS IN LAUREL/HATTIESBURG.
Laurel/Hattiesburg, Mississippi, outspends Buffalo, New York, the 35th-ranked HH ADI in the United States, for TV, VCR and Tape sales-per-household. By 1990, Total Retail Sales in Laurel/Hattiesburg are projected to increase 52%, outspending projected Total Retail Sales increases in Mississippi, the East South Central Region and the entire United States, proving that Laurel/Hattiesburg is truly a video marketer's mecca.

WDAM-TV DOMINATES THE MARKET.
We're the #1 station sign-on to sign-off. We have the facts, figures and programming, including the #1 news in the nation, to help your sales rate higher in the Southeast's picture-perfect market, too.

BE A BIG FISH

BEAM COMMUNICATIONS

WDAM-TV, NBC, Laurel/Hattiesburg, MS
KYEL-TV, NBC, Yuma, AZ/El Centro, CA
WPBN-TV/WTOM-TV, NBC, Traverse City/Cadillac/Cheboygan, MI
WCFT-TV, CBS, Tuscaloosa, AL

Source: 1986 Survey of Buying Power - February 1987, Nielson
© 1987 Beam Communications

Represented by Katz Continental Television

WDAM-TV NBC
LAUREL-HATTIESBURG, MISSISSIPPI

man, president; Bruce Smith, genl mgr.

Sosa & Associates, San Antonio, Texas—hispanic mktg—Lionel Sosa, president; Al Aguilar, acct super.

Dow Jones & Co.

RANK 183

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,135	1,041	9.0
Net income	182	139	31.7
U.S. advertising	43	25	72.1

Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Nat'l publications	757	709	6.8
Community newsp.	195	175	11.3
Info. services	126	102	23.1
Books	57	55	4.8

The current year has become only slightly better for Dow Jones & Co. flagship Wall Street Journal, but an extremely upbeat one for the newsweekly Barron's. The Journal's 1987 linage will finish "up in the neighborhood of 2%," according to Bernie Flanagan, Dow Jones' VP-marketing and a member of the management committee. Barron's linage, however, will grow approximtely 5-6% this year; the publication had an extremely strong third quarter in 1987.

The Journal's circulation is gaining slightly in 1987. For the six months ended Sept. 30, circulation went up 0.4% to 1,961,846, from the same period last year when it was 1,952,283. Barron's' circulation ending June 30 was 295,113 vs. 283,504 during the same period last year for a 4% gain.

Dow Jones had a strong 1986, with revenues increasing 9% and net income up 31.7%. The community newspaper group (Ottaway) had a record revenue year, while the information division saw revenues increase 23% and income increase 134.2%-a major reason for the company's strong performance last year. Ottaway also had a solid boost in profit of 19% to $41.9 million. The average circulation of the dailies during the fourth quarter 1986 was about 562,700.

But a soft national advertising year and increased competition led to a drop in profits in the national newspaper group. Profits declined 1.2%.

The big news at Dow Jones last year was The Journal. The publication had a rare poor year. Ad lineage dropped 1.7% in 1986 and was actually down 7.4% in the first half of the year. 1986 circulation surpassed the 2 million mark (2,039,300) but then fell to under 2 million again this year. But in a weak market the strong get stronger and that's what happened at The Journal. The newspaper increased its shard of market to 38%. The share of market has increased another 2 points this year.

Subscriptions received the largest ad outlay-$17.4 million, 50% of it on network and spot TV, 34% on network radio and 14% on cable. Barron's subscriptions drew $1.7 million in ad spending in virtually the same media. The company's only major ad expenditure was $2 million backing National Business Employment Weekly.

At least two key personnel moves affected the company this year and last: long-time columnist and former editor Vermont Royster retired from DJ's board in April; Mr. Royster served as The Journal's editor from 1958 to 1971. In addition, Donald Macdonald vice-chairman, retired Dec.31. Mr. Macdonald headed the company's sales and marketing operations, among other activities, during his career.

The Journal's year was affected by many factors, but a great unknown is the October stock market crash. The paper's future as far as certain ad categories is concerned is uncertain. The paper had a strong '86-'87 in financial, computer, corporate and bank advertising. But it fell off in areas of general advertising. Automotive in 1987 did not grow over 1986 levels.

Classified advertising has been another area of concern, according to Mr. Flanagan. Because of a drop-off in white collar hiring, the paper's linage has also declined. Classified represents about 28% of the newspaper's total linage.

"Who the hell knows (what will happen) in 1988," says Mr. Flanagan. "If the market holds and everything says the way it was before the crash, it would look good. [Ad budgets] looked good before the crash, so I hestitate to guess."

In addition, sub-regional editions are seen as new growth areas. The paper will be adding a northeast edition in January; Chicago/Milwaukee will be added in March; and Washington/Baltimore will come in June. "These would add about 15% (in linage) by the end of 1988," Mr. Flanagan says.

The Journal continues to add "special reports" on a variety of subjects, such as politics, and the paper signed an agreement with NBC News to produce the early morning 15-minute program "Before Hours."It began in March.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,259	87
Magazines	1,801	2,594
Newsp. supps.	29	87
Bus. pubs.	2,630	2,683
Network TV	6,109	5,213
Spot TV	3,370	656
Network radio	6,708	3,808
Spot radio	2,810	1,607
Outdoor	104	0
Network cable	3,978	0
Total measured	28,799	16,735
Unmeasured	13,767	8,000
Total	42,566	24,735

DOW JONES & CO.
World Financial Center
200 Liberty Street
New York, N.Y. 10281
(212) 416-2000
Marketing Headquarters
420 Lexington Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10170
(212) 808-6600

Marketing Personnel

Bernard Flanagan, vp-mktg
Paul Atkinson, adv dir, Wall Street Journal
John Coston, mktg svcs dir, Dow Jones

Advertising Agencies

Jim Johnston Advertising, New York—James J. Johnston, chmn; Patricia C. Johnston, exec vp.

Fallon McElligott, Minneapolis—Fred Senn, mgmt super, dir-acct svcs; Bob Van Horn, acct super; Angela Weatherly, acct exec; David Sigel, asst acct exec.

Faberge Incorporated

RANK 191

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	423	483	(12.4)
Net income	61	45	37.3
U.S. advertising	36	36	0.2

Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Fragarences	271	236	14.9
Apparel	191	176	8.6
Licensing	12	11	5.3
Other	9	N/A	N/A

Faberge Incorporated in April 1987 became the new name of the McGregor Corp., formerly a subsidiary of Rapid-American Corp., New York. But the company's big news in 1986 came when privately held Faberge picked up the scent of Eli Lilly's Elizabeth Arden unit, winning that fragrance marketer for $700 million.

Ad spending at Faberge bloomed in 1986 and will continue to grow in 1987, according to Chairman Dan Manella. Including a full-year's worth of Arden advertising, 1986 spending totaled an estimated $36 million, with $19 million coming from measured media—virtually the same as in 1985 when merging figures for the two companies.

Pushing ad spending up in 1987 has been the introduction of five new products, handled by Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York. The products, in varying phases of introduction, are the Jose Eber Beverly Hills haircare line and an unnamed women's fragrance and hair regimen. Still under consideration is a deodorant. The fifth product line, McGregor Cologne and Aftershave for Men, was assigned to Smith/Greenland, New York, for a $3 million campaign.

The spending increases predicted by Mr. Manella were in synch with most beauty marketers—including Chesebrough-Pond's Aziza, Maybelline Co., Beecham Cosmetics and Mennen Co.—who raised their ad budgets 20 to 60% in 1986. The market in general improved, prompting both Faberge and its competitors to accelerate new product launches that were postponed a year earlier.

In an unusual move for the cosmetics industry, Faberge is moving toward a regional marketing approach for its Organics line in 1987. Measured spending for the line in 1986 was only $2 million. The company says it will put $10 million in advertising behind its Aqua Net shampoo, up from a projected $7 to $8 million in 1986. In early 1986, the company signed Donna Mills, star of "Knots Landing," to endorse Aqua Net. The TV actress also was named "fashion and beauty director" for the company.

Elizabeth Arden, which billed $5 million under Eli Lilly & Co. ownership, had been handled in-house, but Mr. Manella says it's likely Faberge would look for a full-service agency for Arden. No decision had been reached at presstime.

Faberge, which first hinted in early 1986 it was hunting for a fragrance acquisition, was up against some heavy competition in the bidding for Arden, which had 1986 sales of $398 million and operating profits of $36.2 million. Analysts say Faberge paid 1.7 times 1987 estimated sales in beating out Avon's bid of $550 million and E.M. Warburg Pincus' $600 million. Arden's financial totals are not included in the accompanying box. Arden, which holds an estimated 4.9% of department store share, should bolster Faberge's presence in that market. Estee Lauder leads the department store market with 37%, followed by Cosmair and Revlon. Avon's share is dead on with Arden, analysts say. Arden's recent new product successes include Lip Fix and Fendi, a women's fragrance, and the company has a significant business in its Maine Chance salons.

In 1986, Faberge relaunched its Tigress fragrance with a $1.5 million effort via BJK&E. The company also is said to be readying a relaunch of its Aphrodisia, Kiki and Woodhue fragrances.

In 1986, Faberge's measured total in magazine spending increased to $16 million from $11.3 million in 1985. Spot TV plummeted from $9.5 million in 1985 to $1 million in 1986, mainly due to a drop in spending for Faberge Organics Shampoo and Brut cologne.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	10,685	7,244
Newsp. supps.	110	203
Bus. pubs.	182	136
Network TV	5,023	3,352
Spot TV	1,920	6,590
Network radio	224	158
Spot radio	102	524
Outdoor	17	0
Network cable	780	656
Total measured	18,952	18,864
Unmeasured	17,000	17,000
Total	35,952	35,864

FABERGE INCORPORATED
725 Fifth Ave., 17th Floor
New York, N.Y. 10022
(212) 735-9300

Corporate Personnel

Daniel Manella, chmn-ceo
Henry O. Dow, president, Faberge USA, toiletries div
Mark Goldston, exec vp-mktg, Faberge USA

McGREGOR APPAREL GROUP

Corporate Personnel

Alan Lite, president, Billy the Kid Clothes
Ross Castagne, president, Anvil Knitwear
John Siegel, president, Jody Tottique
Robert Apels, president, Wonderknit Scoreboard
Larry Glazer, president, Tailored Clothing
Bernard Geller, president, Knitwear Group
Robert Fink, president, Gilead Manufacturing

GLOBAL LICENSING INC.

Corporate Personnel

Suzan Rosenholtz, president

Advertising Agencies

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York—McGregor Apparel (Billy the kid, Anvil Knitwear, Botany 500, Wonderknit Scoreboard, Tailored Clothing, Knitwear Group), Fragrances (Brut, Babe, Tigress, Aqua Net, Jose Eber)—Robert Verdugo, vp-acct super; Caley Shaffer, Randy Winter, acct execs.

Smith/Greenland, New York—McGregor Cologne and Aftershave—Bert Rosenberg, exec vp; Susan Zerim, acct super.

Federal Express Corp.

RANK 186

Memphis, Tenn.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	3,178	2,573	23.5
Net income	(66)	132	(149.7)
U.S. advertising	40	50	(20.0)

Federal Express Co. dropped 20% in advertising expenses in 1986 as the company continued to concentrate spending on improving domestic service and expanding its presence overseas.

As competition got tougher, with more express mail services able to deliver anywhere in the U.S., Federal is fighting back by continuing to improve its technology for more reliable and efficient service. Such improvements include expanding its aircraft fleet, increasing package flow at hubs, adding more business centers and drive-through kiosks and using a computer tracking system that locates a package's whereabouts at any time during transfer.

The company is also waiting for final approval from the U.S. Dept. of Transportation giving it exclusive rights to fly aircraft from the U.S. into Japan for package delivery. With this grant, Federal hopes to chip away at DHL—the leading international express mail company, with a 45% share of a market expected to reach $4.5 billion by the end of 1988.

The company has made progress internationally through acquisitions that have given it 100% delivery coverage in the British Isles, expansion throughout Canada and sizable operations in Belgium, France, West Germany, the Netherlands and Switzerland.

Federal suffered a net loss of $66 million for 1986 caused primarily by the discontinuation of its ZapMail facsimile transmission operations.

ZapMail, introduced in 1984, had drained the company of $317 million in operating losses by the time it was scrapped. Fallon McElligott, the agency for the ZapMail account, was preparing for a major ad effort estimated at $10 million just prior to the demise.

Fallon in the meantime had replaced Ally Gargano/MCA Advertising on the estimated $20 million account, ending a 13-year relationship in which Ally played a major role in establishing Federal as the No. 1 express mail service with award-winning commercials directed in the early 1980's by Joseph Sedelmaier.

Advertising for the company is expected to increase substantially for 1988 as Fallon works on a campaign that is expected to be geared against DHL internationally and UPS domestically.

Federal signed on as a major advertiser for the 1988 Winter and Summer Olympics. It will sponsor a "Celebration of Medal Winners" each night of the games.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	332	3,258
Magazines	3,055	4,251
Bus. pubs.	301	660
Network TV	13,679	16,605
Spot TV	8,843	6,432
Spot radio	160	1,916
Network cable	284	179
Total measured	26,652	33,301
Unmeasured	13,606	17,000
Total	40,258	50,301

FEDERAL EXPRESS CORP.
Memphis International Airport
2990 Airways Blvd.
Memphis, Tenn. 38131
(901) 369-3600

Marketing Personnel

Carole A. Presley, sr vp-mktg
Thomas R. Oliver, sr vp-sales & customer svc

Advertising Agencies

Fallon McElligott, Minneapolis—Joe Culligan, mgmt super; Eric Bloch, John Delany, acct supers; Ann Nerland, Mike Buchner, Shelly Sipple, acct execs; John Anderson, asst acct exec.

First Brands Corp.

RANK 129

Danbury, Conn.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	837	N/A	N/A
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	65	62	4.6

Operating in its first year outside the aegis of Union Carbide, First Brands Corp.—marketer of Prestone, STP and Glad Bags—is experimenting with marketing innovations. These include offering a one-year radiator guarantee for customers using its Prestone antifreeze.

First Brands in calendar year 1986 spent an estimated $64.8 million on advertising, up 4.6% from 1985. Of the total, about $35 million was in measured media. The bulk of measured expenditures—some $28.5 million—was spent on network TV. Nearly $5 million went for spot TV.

In its marketing efforts for Prestone and STP, First Brands is appealing to sports fans, mostly male. Starting in July 1986 and scheduled to run through January 1988 is a campaign touting its radiator guarantee. Its Prestone line of antifreeze and coolant gobbled up $9.1 million in advertising in calendar 1986, an increase of 14%.

STP ads feature an actual pit stop at Indianapolis with the STP Indy car and STP's driver, Roberto Guerrero. STP drew $5.5 million in advertising in 1986, down 18% from 1985.

First Brands claims Prestone this year is holding onto its position as the largest-selling antifreeze. The company also cites a 51% share of the market for STP oil additives and 47% for gas treatment at discount department stores.

The company also introduced products this year to treat transmissions and to clean fuel injectors. And its Simoniz line launched a soft wax that requires less elbow grease than the traditional product.

The company's household product line of Glad bags enjoys a 30% share of the $1.4-billion plastic wrap and bag market at food outlets, First Brands says, and its share of the $400 million market at hardware, general merchandise, discount and drugstores is also "significant."

First Brands, which had been the consumer division of Union Carbide until July 1986, concedes that Carbide wanted to reduce the assets that could be attached by the victims of the Bhopal chemical leak. Union Carbide explained it wanted funds from the sale of its lucrative consumer products to fend off a hostile and expensive takeover bid by GAF Corp. Funds were used to buy back its own shares.

Carbide also sold its Eveready battery line to Ralston Purina Co.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	119	538
Magazines	251	843
Bus. pubs.	242	334
Network TV	28,510	20,832
Spot TV	4,683	9,284
Network radio	587	1,032
Network cable	439	1,116
Total measured	34,831	33,977
Unmeasured	30,000	28,000
Total	64,831	61,977

FIRST BRANDS CORP.
39 Old Ridgebury Rd.
Danbury, Conn. 06817
(203) 790-5556

AUTOMOTIVE DIVISION

Marketing Personnel

Robert Cassidy, exec vp
Rick Bowen, vp, dir-mktg
Dave Lundstedt, mktg mgr, Prestone
Paul Nigro, STP, Simoniz
Stuart E. Benedict, dir-adv & promo

GLAD PRODUCTS DIVISION

Marketing Personnel

George Vestal, exec vp
Dave Smith, vp, dir-mktg
Jim Moore, mktg mgr, food prods
Pat O'Brien, mktg mgr, Outdoor Disposer
Dennis Mullen, Indoor Disposer/Handle-Tie Bags

Advertising Agencies

Leo Burnett USA, Chicago—Plastic Wrap, Plastic Bags—Bill Haljun, acct dir; Lenny Novick, acct exec, Glad Lock; Rishad Tabaccawala, Glad indoor/outdoor; Janine Baretta, asst acct exec.

Young & Rubicam, New York—Prestone, STP, Simoniz—Bob Gleckler, mgmt super; Ed Concannon, vp-acct super, Prestone; Kathy Schneider, vp-acct super, STP, Simoniz; Yanna Morale, acct exec, STP, Simoniz; Peter Wenner, acct coord; Bob Cox, group creative dir.

Franklin Mint

RANK 162

Franklin Center, Pa.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	500	N/A	N/A
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	51	46	8.8

Franklin Mint this year embarked on an aggressive advertising campaign, almost all of it direct response, and markedly boosted the sale of its collectibles.

Although this privately held company does not release sales figures, sources close to the Mint estimate 1986 sales approached $500 million.

The Mint pours most of its advertising dollars into upscale magazines. If a pitch works in print, it may then be tried on TV, much of it cable.

John W. Wilkey, director of public relations, says his company has found the formula to make direct marketing work. He says revenue from direct marketing is growing at a rate 10 times that of retail. "The adage that direct response couldn't sell $10 products off the page doesn't work anymore," he says.

Franklin Mint remains a subsidiary of American Protection Industries, a security and luxury products company, based in Los Angeles. Stewart and Lynda Resnick are co-owners of API and chairman and exec VP, respectively, of the Mint.

The Mint is changing from offering simply "collectibles"—including coins and its $120 sterling-plated model of the Rolls-Royce Silver Ghost—to what are called "desirables." These are items, according to Mr. Wilkey, that can be enjoyed today as well as passed on "with pride" to future generations. Included are high-fashion jewelry, upscale home decor, tabletop accessories and porcelain collector dolls.

The company divides its operations into five distinct marketing divisions: female collectibles, male collectibles, functional home decor, jewelry and the Franklin Library.

The Mint reports 1986 advertising expenses of $105 million. The vast majority of it is handled in-house under Thomas Durovsik, a young refugee from the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Group of New York. He has brought some of the new-wave sizzle of Pepsi marketing to the Main Line confines of Franklin Mint. He's been quoted as saying the selling of the Mint's products, focusing solely on the product and not the corporate image, is the "purest form of marketing."

Of the ad cost total, the company spent $39.7 million in measured media. The bulk of the spending—$35.5 million—was in magazines, newspaper supplements and newspapers. The Mint spent $2.6 million on spot TV, another $1.6 million on cable and only a pittance on network TV.

The 1986 BAR/LNA figures, which monitor brand spending by media, show most of the effort—$15.6 million—devoted to selling the porcelain collection. Franklin Mint Collections received $12 million; books got $2.6 million, and nearly $2 million went for jewelry. Total spending in 1986, according to this index, was up 10% over the year before. Local newspaper advertising, particularly in newspaper supplements, is not included in the BAR/LNA figures.

The Mint is not only an advertiser, it's now providing an advertising vehicle for others. Franklin Mint's "Almanac," a bimonthly, 1 million circulation magazine for collectors, takes ads for products that don't compete with what the Mint itself is selling. The 52-page "Almanac" limits advertising space to 12 pages. A color page goes for $25,000.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	7,298	6,960
Magazines	18,674	16,349
Newsp. supps.	9,505	8,741
Bus. pubs	25	55
Network TV	3	13
Spot TV	2,568	2,821
Network cable	1,578	1,511
Total measured	39,651	36,450
Unmeasured	10,878	10,000
Total	50,530	46,450

THE FRANKLIN MINT
U.S. Route 1
Franklin Center, Pa. 19091
(215) 459-6000

Corporate Personnel

Stewart Resnick, chmn

Marketing Personnel

Lynda Resnick, exec vp-mktg
Martin Breisblatt, vp-mktg
Alan Beer, vp-media
Michael Burgess, vp-media mgmt

Advertising Agency

(In-house).

Griffin-Bacal, New York—Mary Sue Robinson, vp-mgmt super; Lenny Leokum, sr vp-creative dir; Maurice Mahler, Lois Sandberg, vps-assoc creative dirs.

Pills pull less ad weight

Carter's Little Pills—which gave birth to Carter-Wallace—continue to record higher sales says the company, but attract little advertising. In 1986, for example, only $150,000 was spent in measured advertising on the laxative, up from $90,100 in 1985, according to BAR/LNA.

Fruit of the Loom

Chicago

RANK 173

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	693	N/A	N/A
Net income	12	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	46	36	29.1

Fruit of the Loom, the nation's largest producer of underwear, remains locked in a head-to-head marketing war with archrival Hanes Knitwear.

The No. 1 and No. 2 players in the $1 billion men's and boy's underwear business during 1986 and 1987 each waged offensives, which included the introductions of improved products, price cutting and comparative advertising. At one point in 1986, the battle of the briefs even landed in federal court, where each side argued the other was using unsubstantiated ad claims.

The competition between Fruit of the Loom and Hanes heated up in the wake of more aggressive marketing tactics by Hanes, a unit of Chicago-based Sara Lee Corp. The two traded shots in advertising, Hanes starting it off claiming its undershirts shrank 38% less than Fruit of the Loom's, following by a Fruit of the Loom claim that its underwear was preferred 2-to-1 over Hanes. Hanes increased its slice of the men's and boy's underwear business in 1986 to 20.3% from 18.3%. During the same period, Fruit of the Loom's share fell to 34.4% from 37.9%. During this time, Fruit of the Loom was in transition. William Farley gained control in a leveraged buyout in 1985 of Northwest Industries, Fruit of the Loom's former parent. Then in 1987 Fruit of the Loom became a publicly held company.

Market share is crucial to the basic underwear business because the market as a whole is relatively flat, growing roughly 2% per year.

Fruit of the Loom's combined measured advertising in 1986 for men's and boy's underwear hit $12.4 million, compared with about $11 million in 1985. A hefty increase is expected for this year. Fruit of the Loom also markets a more expensive underwear under the name BVD. Last year, total net sales of Fruit of the Loom increased 21% to $692.9 million.

Most of that growth has come from newer products, such as women's underwear and T-shirts specially designed for silk screening. Sales of women's and girl's underwear rose 43% to $31.2 million. Fruit of the Loom purchased two hosiery makers in 1986, and this year the firm began to market aggressively a family line of socks. It hopes to become a major player in this fragmented business.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	353	0
Magazines	6,198	3,711
Newsp. supps.	161	349
Bus. pubs	67	0
Network TV	16,890	13,307
Spot TV	2,673	2,477
Outdoor	69	96
Total measured	26,410	19,940
Unmeasured	20,000	16,000
Total	46,410	35,940

FRUIT OF THE LOOM
233 S. Wacker Dr.
6300 Sears Tower
Chicago, Ill. 60606

Corporate Personnel

William Farley, chmn
Jack Albertine, vice chmn

Advertising Agency

Grey Advertising, New York—Steven Dammers, sr vp.

FRUIT OF THE LOOM
Bowling Green, Ky.

Marketing Personnel

David Drescher, exec vp-mktg

Advertising Agencies

Grey Advertising, New York—Fruit of the Loom men's & boy's underwear, Fruit of the Loom Daywear for Women, Fruit of the Loom Hosiery—Steve Dammers, sr vp.

Keller Crescent Co., Evansville, Ind.—Fruit of the Loom Screen Stars, printable T-shirts, Fruit of the Loom Activewear—Dan Minton, acct super.

Warwick Advertising, New York—BVD men's and boy's underwear—Sean Driscoll, group sr vp.

Fuji Heavy Industries

Tokyo

RANK 144

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	4,279	3,742	14.4
Net income	72	83	(13.3)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,939	1,502	29.1
Net income	94	77	21.9
Advertising	59	41	43.2
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Auto	3,639	3,119	16.7
Aircraft	213	202	5.4
Buses	172	161	6.8
Engines	150	146	2.7
Rolling Stock	105	115	(8.7)

Subaru of America, whose niche in the U.S. is the four-wheel-drive market, is seeking to strengthen its leadership position by offering cash incentives to both dealers and buyers for certain models in 1987. The company also is adding four-wheel drive technology in 1988 to its 1987 low-end intro, the Justy.

Subaru is the U.S. distributor for Fuji Heavy Industries, Tokyo, whose fiscal year results are reported in the accompanying box. While sales were up, profits dropped more than 13% in the year; returns were adversely affected by the appreciation of the yen. Figures for both fiscal years were converted at the rate of Y179.6=U.S.$1.

Subaru sold a record 183,242 vehicles in 1986, a 2.8% increase from the previous year's total of 178,175 units, according to Khalad Abdel-Majeed, international auto analyst at Drexel Burnham Lambert.

Subaru continued to spend heavily on network and spot TV, magazine and newspaper advertising. In 1986, these four media accounted for nearly 90% of Subaru's measured expenses. Total advertising expenditures rose 43%, to almost $59 million.

Subaru's share of the total U.S. car market remained the same in 1986, holding at 1.6%. Its share of the total import car market, however, dropped from 6.3% to 5.7%. This places Subaru behind other Japanese importers including Toyota (31.5%), Nissan (22%), Honda (12.4%) and Mazda (11.6%), according to Automotive News 1987 Market Data Guide.

The Pennsauken, N.J.-based company is quick to note that its share of sales in the snow belt and rural areas remains high. According to its figures, Subaru is the top-selling imported passenger car in Maine, Vermont, Alaska and West Virginia, and it has a 17.5% share of the Japanese import market in the New England states. The company also says its share of the total U.S. four-wheel-drive passenger car market is roughly 54%.

During the first nine months of this year, unit sales were slightly behind the 1986 pace. Through September 30, Subaru sold 130,572 vehicles, a 6.9% drop from the same period in 1986.

In an effort to boost sales, Subaru initiated several programs. In February, the company offered Subaru dealers cash incentives ranging from $500 to $1,200 per vehicle on the sale of selected models. And in April, Subaru offered direct cash rebates of up to $1,500 to buyers of certain models.

In January 1987, Subaru introduced the 1.2 liter, three-cylinder Justy, the company's entry into the crowded low-end market. Like the Hyundai Excel from South Korea and VW's Brazilian-made Fox, the Justy is priced at less than $6,000.

The 1987 Subaru sedan and wagon line featured changes in body structure, engine, transmission and drivetrain. New model/trim combinations also were added.

Two 1987½ models were introduced. The white-on-white, three-door coupe limited edition RX model featured full-time four-wheel drive and a turbo-powered engine. The XT received cosmetic and technical changes at mid-year, including a four-speed electronic automatic transmission and full-time four-wheel-drive systems.

Subaru will be able to increase the number of cars it can sell in the U.S when its $500 million manufacturing plant being built in Lafayette, Ind.—a joint venture with Isuzu Motors—begins operating in 1989. The facility initially will have the capacity to assemble 60,000 Isuzu trucks and 60,000 Subaru cars.

In 1986 the company established a U.S. design center adjacent to its technical facility in Garden Grove, Calif.

Subaru entered its second decade as the official car of the U.S. Ski Team.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	5,211	4,321
Magazines	8,680	5,505
Bus. pubs	10	44
Network TV	14,072	10,524
Spot TV	9,386	7,261
Spot radio	3,253	727
Outdoor	270	196
Network cable	652	426
Total measured	41,534	29,004
Unmeasured	17,184	12,000
Total	58,718	41,004

SUBARU OF AMERICA
7040 Central Highway
Pennsauken, N.J. 08109
(609) 488-8500

Corporate Personnel

Marvin Riesenbach, exec vp

Marketing Personnel

Doug Mahin, group vp-sales & mktg
Robert J. Whitehead, group vp, prod engineering
Dave L. Sippel, vp-mktg
Eugene Egan, vp-sales
Paul Utans, vp-govt affairs
Christopher Wackman, dir-adv svcs

Advertising Agency

Levine, Huntley, Schmidt & Beaver, New York—Michael Elkisch, vp-acct mgmt; Terry Bonaccolta, sr vp-group dir; Bernie Lanigan, Jerry Noonan, acct supers; Elaine Romano, acct exec; Cheri Stern, asst acct exec.

Diamond lustre clouds

Unlike the 26% dollar jump in 1984-85 in sales of diamonds for men, 1986 sales stayed even at 1.95 million units at $1.3 billion retail, says DeBeers.

Palm Beach Is A Media Buyer's Paradise.

Sand Dollars – The Palm Beach County MSA features the 9th largest per capita income in the nation.

Fabulous Shopping – From 1979 to 1986, annual retail sales have increased 125%, making Palm Beach County the fastest-growing retail market in the U.S.!

Gorgeous Growth – 200,000 new residents moved to the Palm Beaches over the last 6 years, putting today's adult population over 635,000.

1980 462,000
1990 757,000
2000 1,200,000

The Palm Beach Post has over 408,000 weekday readers, and 426,000 Sunday readers – more than all other area papers combined! If you would like to know more about the Palm Beach MSA, call our marketing department at 305-837-4218 for a free videocassette, "Palm Beach County: Map to the Future," customized research, or answers to any of your media/marketing questions.

Represented Nationally by
Sawyer-Ferguson-Walker Company, Inc.
Miami (305) 573-6768
Atlanta (404) 261-1362
New York (212) 661-6262

The Palm Beach Post

All data are from recognized national and regional sources.

Gulf + Western Industries

RANK 119

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,781	3,321	13.9
Net income	267	248	7.9

U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,575	3,097	15.4
Operating profits	265	238	11.3
Advertising	69	58	17.3

Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Publishing & info	949	798	18.9
Entertainment	1,145	1,063	7.7
Financial services	1,687	1,460	15.6

Gulf + Western's transformation from a highly diversified company into one that focuses on three areas—entertainment, financial services and publishing/information services—proved successful in 1986, with all three areas posting record operating income.

The company's largest advertiser, Paramount Pictures Corp., had a particularly strong year. Its films accounted for 21% of the country's total box office gross, generating $600 million. It also accounted for 73%, or $30 million, of total measured advertising at Gulf + Western.

The company spends heavily on promoting its films. The No. 1 box office success of 1986 was "Top Gun," on which Paramount spent $4.12 million for advertising. Paramount released "Top Gun" on cassette in March 1987, spending $11 million—millions more than any previous promotional spending for a new videocassette. Some of the budget came from Pepsi, which has a Diet Pepsi commercial running before the movie.

Paramount also continued its price reduction strategy, offering "Top Gun" for $26.95.

The company's advertising spending for its 15 feature films in 1986 was about the same as the previous year's, with more money being spent on network TV. Paramount recently moved its marketing headquarters to Los Angeles from New York, eliminating 20 agencies from its roster but leaving at least 25 agencies to handle an estimated $20 million in local business, including media buying and promotions in their markets. Paramount executives deny any future changes would affect the studio's estimated $50 million national buying account handled by AC&R/DHB & BESS in Los Angeles.

Paramount's future in film looks bright thanks to arrangements with key talent such as Eddie Murphy and ownership rights in movie gold mines such as "Star Trek."

Gulf + Western joined the trend among producers to buy movie houses when it acquired three theater chains for $285 million in 1986.

On the television side, Paramount has failed to come up with any new super hits since 1983. The company appears to be backing away from advertising its TV programs in magazines—its prime ad vehicle in 1985—spending only half as much on such advertising in 1986 as the year before.

The Madison Square Garden Corp., part of this division, recently reorganized its operations as part of planned construction of a new sports and entertainment complex in New York.

In the publishing and information division, Gulf + Western is moving its best-seller mill, Simon & Schuster Inc., more into educational publications and information services. As a result, its ad spending is nil. In December 1986, Simon & Schuster acquired Infosearch for an undisclosed price. Infosearch provides document searches and filing services for law firms and financial institutions.

B&D buys growth

S. Duncan Black and Alonzo G. Decker Sr. founded Black & Decker in 1910 as the Black & Decker Manufacturing Co. The company has grown through acquisition, including: De Walt Inc. in 1964, Wisconsin Knife Works in 1971, McCulloch Corp. in 1973 (but divested in 1983), General Electric Co.'s small appliance operations in 1984, and American Emblem Tool Co. in 1987.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	2,938	2,250
Magazines	2,640	2,016
Newsp. supps.	38	36
Bus. pubs.	7	177
Network TV	9,405	2,610
Spot TV	23,915	17,020
Network radio	214	325
Spot radio	395	1,149
Outdoor	45	188
Network cable	1,738	2,143
Total measured	41,335	27,913
Unmeasured	27,300	30,584
Total	68,635	58,497

GULF + WESTERN
One Gulf + Western Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10023-7780
(212) 373-8000

Corporate Personnel

Jerry Sherman, vp-corp comm

ENTERTAINMENT GROUP
PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORP.

Corporate Personnel

Deborah Rosen, vp-corp comm

MOTION PICTURE GROUP

Marketing Personnel

Barry London, president, mktg & domestic distribution
Sidney Ganis, president, worldwide mktg
Mardi Marans, exec vp
Nancy Goliger, exec vp-creative mktg affairs
Thomas Campanella, sr vp-adv
Robert Dorfman, sr vp, publicity & adv
Diana Widom, sr vp-publicity & promo
Ron Hein, vp-admin
Cheryl Boone Isaacs, vp-publicity
Leslie Pound, vp-intl mktg
David S. Rosenbaum, vp-legal affairs
Margaret Young, vp-licensing

TELEVISION GROUP

Marketing Personnel

Mel Harris, president
Lucille Salhany, president, domestic tv & video programming
Steven Goldman, exec vp-sales & mktg
Meryl Cohen, vp-adv & promo
Robert Dahill, vp-adv program sales
Hollace Brown, vp-adv & sales promo, home video
Eric Doctorow, vp-sales & mktg, home video

Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—Cheryl Lodinger, sr vp-acct super; Ernie Shapiro, acct vp; Norman Trell, exec vp-media.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN CORP.

Marketing Personnel

Michael Walker, sr vp-mktg & comm

MSG CENTER

Marketing Personnel

Robert Goldwater, vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

(In-house) MSG Advertising.

MSG NETWORK

Marketing Personnel

Linda Burns, vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

Grey Entertainment & Media, New York—MSG Network—Al Lieberman, president; Ed Ritchkoff, mgmt super; Lee Berke, acct mgr.

PUBLISHING & INFORMATION SERVICES GROUP
SIMON & SCHUSTER

Corporate Personnel

Providence Cicero, dir-corp comm

Marketing Personnel

Strome Lamon, vp, adv dir, Simon & Schuster Trade
Mary Gartland, adv coord, Simon & Schuster Trade
Pat Cool, adv dir, Pocket Books
John Rosen, vp-mktg, Prentice Hall Trade div
Debra Miller, assoc mktg dir, Simon & Schuster Software
Pam Byers, mktg dir, Simon & Schuster Reference div
Ruth Stone, vp-adv & pr, Professional Information Group

Advertising Agencies

Franklin Spier, New York—Simon & Schuster Trade—Alix Nelson, president-creative dir; David Cathirs, acct exec; Kathleen Kelly, asst acct exec.

Jameson Advertising, New York—Pocket Books—Elissa Cohen, acct exec; Sonni Gross, adv promo mgr.

Ogilvy & Mather, New York—Simon & Schuster Software—Liza Gyllenhall, acct exec.

Penchina, Selkowitz, New York—Professional Information Group—Arthur Selkowitz, president.

Sussman & Sugar, New York—Simon & Schuster Reference div—Shelley Himmelstein, asst acct exec.

FINANCIAL SERVICES GROUP
ASSOCIATES CORP. OF NORTH AMERICA

Corporate personnel

Frederick H. Stern, sr vp-corp comm

ASSOCIATES CONSUMER FINANCIAL SERVICES

Marketing Personnel

Michael J. Carney, sr vp-consumer mktg/training
Harry Polly, vp-adv
Dave Mikels, sr vp-devel svcs, mktg /training

ASSOCIATES COMMERCIAL CORP.

Marketing Personnel

John K. Brown, sr vp-commercial mktg
Clifton B. Noble, vp-corp mktg svcs
David F. Edwards, sr vp-transportation mktg
Robert C. Miramonti, sr vp-equipment mktg
Jon Romas, vp-comm mktg
Stephen J. Larkin, vp-fleet leasing mktg
Lee J. Crittenden, vp-corp comm

Advertising Agency

Grant/Jacoby, Chicago—Philip Petrik, acct super; Greg Padovani, acct exec.

Hallmark Cards

RANK 145

Kansas City, Mo.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,000	2,000	0.0
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	58	42	39.3

Hallmark Cards, the company that got its start selling postcards, branched out in the "social expression" field in 1986, then moved into broadcast by purchasing 10 television stations.

Privately owned Hallmark and its Ambassador Cards division control more than 40% of the $3.6 billion greeting card market, followed by American Greetings, Cleveland, with a 30% to 35% share, and Gibson Greetings, Cincinnati, 10% to 12%.

More than 21,000 retail outlets carry Hallmark cards, half of which are gift and stationery shops; the other half are department and drugstores. Hallmark owns 160 of its own outlets.

Ambassador Cards was founded in 1959, and the products are sold through 16,000 chain groceries and other mass-market outlets. A separate staff produces and markets the Ambassador line, which Hallmark describes as the third-biggest greeting card seller with 1986 sales of $310 million.

Total measured spending rose 39% to $34 million from 1985 to 1986, as total advertising rose 41%. Of the measured total, the company spent $20.1 million advertising its card lines, up 19% from 1985.

The greeting card industry is shifting moods from conservative to nontraditional, and Hallmark is no exception. Last year the company introduced its Shoebox Greetings line of 800 contemporary cards to compete against smaller companies such as California Dreamers and Recycled Paper Products. Shoebox Greetings is designed to attract younger consumers.

Hallmark expanded into the children's market this year with the introduction of its Imagination Station art "depot," and branched into the apparel market last summer with the introduction of its Color Gear line. While the line includes several abstract greeting cards, it features backpacks, jewelry, scarves, socks, sunglasses and sweatshirts.

To publicize its outlets, Hallmark last month rolled into 100 markets a local consumer print and radio program it is calling "Reach." The "Reach" program, tested in Columbus, Ohio, and Harrisburg, Pa., consists of ads spotlighting local Hallmark dealers. They are run in the lifestyle sections of daily newspapers and in Sunday magazines. The program, which will include local radio spots, will be especially heavy around holidays throughout 1987 and 1988.

Hallmark, along with First Capital Corp. of Chicago, in 1986 agreed to acquire for $301.5 million five full-power and five low-power TV stations from Spanish International Communications Corp., New York.

The full-power stations include WXTV, Patterson, N.J.; KMEX, Los Angeles; WLTV, Miami; KWEX, San Antonio and KFTV, Fresno, Calif.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,594	558
Magazines	1,512	941
Newsp. supps	1,157	0
Bus. pubs	37	196
Network TV	27,434	22,329
Spot TV	1,913	871
Network radio	782	0
Spot radio	255	5
Outdoor	0	1
Total measured	34,686	24,901
Unmeasured	23,681	17,000
Total	58,367	41,901

HALLMARK CARDS
2501 McGee
P.O. Box 580
Kansas City, Mo. 64141
(816) 274-5111

Corporate Personnel

Donald J. Hall, chmn
David H. Hughes, vice-chmn
Irvine O. Hockaday, president-ceo
Robert L. Stark, exec vp

Marketing Personnel

Thomas H. Johnston, group vp-Hallmark brand
Robert Firnhaber, group vp, Ambassador brand
Lanny Julian, Hallmark vp-sales
Homer Evans, Hallmark vp-greeting cards prods div
Buddy Jones, Hallmark vp-specialty prods
Donald Fletcher, div vp-Ambassador prod devel
Brad Moore, div vp-adv & promo
Ira Stolzer, mgr-natl & retail adv
Jim Welch, mgr, consumer promo

HALLMARK DIVISIONS

Corporate Personnel

Stanley Hamilton, president, Hallmark Intl
Donna Kelly, vp-genl mgr, Hallmark Properties
Charles W. Hucker, div vp, public affairs & comm

Advertising Agencies

Ogilvy & Mather, New York—Hallmark & Ambassador natl adv—Eugene O'Sullivan, exec vp-group dir; Linda Cornelius, sr vp-mgmt super; Harold Sogard, vp-acct super; Victoria VanDyk, Patti Low, acct execs.

Valentine-Radford, Kansas City, Mo.—Hallmark local/retail adv—Charles Curtis, sr vp-client svcs; Greg Kirsch, vp-acct super; Mike Goff, Michael St. Pierre, acct execs.

BINNEY & SMITH
Easton, Pa.

Corporate Personnel

Jack F. Kofoed, chmn
Richard S. Gurin, president-ceo
Steve Yanklowitz, vp-genl mgr, Crayola prods div

Advertising Agency

Avrett, Free & Ginsberg, New York—Stu Cowan, mgmt super; Mariam Cohen, acct super; Dan Rice, acct exec.

CROWN CENTER REDEVELOPMENT CORP.
Kansas City, Mo.

Marketing Personnel

Robert A. Kipp, president
Jim Dawson, vp-mktg
Steve Doyal, mktg svcs dir

GRAPHICS INTERNATIONAL
Kansas City, Mo.

Corporate Personnel

Thomas Johnston, president

LITHO-KROME CO.
Columbus, Ga.

Marketing Personnel

Lamar Powers, president-genl mgr
Bucky Bowles, vp-personnel & svcs
Bob Starks, natl sales mgr

TRIFARI, KRUSSMAN & FISHEL
East Providence, R.I.

Marketing Personnel

James A. Northrop, president-ceo
Nancy Perlman, dir-mktg

Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—Karen Amorelli, acct super; Lorraine Linton, acct exec; Kimberly Johannes, acct coord.

Hattori-Seiko Co. Ltd.

RANK 137

Tokyo

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,600	1,906	36.4
Net income	12	20	(40.6)
U.S. advertising	61	61	(0.4)

Family-owned Hattori-Seiko Co. Ltd. of Japan, parent company of Hattori Corp. of America, suffered a 41% decline in net income in 1986—its first loss in earnings since 1949. The decline largely reflected the yen's rapid appreciation against the dollar, according to Joe Thompson, editor of Modern Jeweler.

In the U.S., the company fought the effects of the strong yen by consolidating its operations. In a major shakeup, Robert Pliskin was named president of the company's timepiece subsidiaries, which market watches under the Seiko, Lassale, Jean Lassale, Pulsar, Jaz and Lorus brand names, as the presidents of all the company's watch and clock divisions left the company. AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York, became the sole agency for all of Hattori's watch and clock lines.

Seiko remains the flagship brand of the company. Measured ad spending in 1986 totaled $14 million, according to BAR/LNA. Seiko reportedly has increased its 1987 ad budget by 20%. Seiko continued to lead comfortably the mid-priced watch category in the U.S., with more than 3 million units sold in 1986, according to Mr. Thompson.

Companion subsidiary Pulsar, which was supported by $7.2 million in media spending, was the second largest-selling watch brand in the segment, with more than 2 million units sold. But No. 3, competitor Citizen (1.5 million watches sold), continued to make strong advances in the category. Bulova ranked fourth at 800,000.

Seiko's clock business was stable, aided by the addition of novelty clocks and new desk models, but the company faced increased competition from private-label distributors.

Future plans call for the use of AT&E receptors in Seiko wristwatches, which enable the wearer to be paged anywhere in the world. Seiko plans to test-market the receptor-equipped watches in 1988.

The high-priced Hattori, Lassale and Jean Lassale watch lines have not made significant inroads into that market dominated by Rolex. The Jean Lassale line was backed by $5 million in measured spending. The line's prices range from $900 to $40,000.

Epson America, the U.S. marketing and distribution arm of Seiko/Epson Corp. of Japan, is the leading independent manufacturer and distributor of personal computer products in the U.S. Epson ranked No. 5 among computer manufacturers in the U.S., according to a company spokesperson. The company also markets and distributes printers, modems, various other peripherals, as well as portable electronic typewriters.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	4,282	5,634
Magazines	8,880	6,928
Newsp. supps	178	102
Bus. pubs	118	63
Network TV	14,355	10,214
Spot TV	9,314	14,201
Spot radio	0	3
Outdoor	138	65
Network cable	741	947
Total measured	38,006	38,162
Unmeasured	22,906	23,000
Total	60,912	61,162

HATTORI CORP. OF AMERICA
640 Fifth Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10019
(212) 977-2800

Corporate Personnel

Robert Pliskin, president

SEIKO TIME CORP.

Corporate Personnel

Robert Pliskin, president

Marketing Personnel

Charles Kriete, sr genl mgr-sales
David Strousse, vp-adv & pr
Robert Stevens, genl mgr-adv & pr

Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—all Seiko prods—Steve Rose, chmn; Constantine Pappas, sr vp-acct super; Lorraine Linton, Tracy Penn, acct execs; Lynn Landau, asst acct exec.

LORUS

Corporate Personnel

Robert Pliskin, president
Dean Sauder, exec vp
Joseph Urda, exec vp

Marketing Personnel

Larry Sussberg, vp-sales
Howard Fischer, genl mgr-mktg

Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—all Lorus prods—Steve Rose, chmn; Steve Bennett, acct super; Barbara Salerno, acct exec.

PULSAR TIME

Corporate Personnel

Robert Pliskin, president
Dean Sauder, exec vp

Marketing Personnel

Larry Sussberg, vp-sales
Lou Moore, natl sales mgr, asst to president
Jonathan Nettelfield, genl mgr-mktg & adv

Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—Steve Bennett, acct super; Barbara Salerno, acct exec.

JAZ

Corporate Personnel

Robert Pliskin, president
Dean Sauder, exec vp

Marketing Personnel

Larry Sussberg, vp-sales
Lou Moore, natl sales mgr, asst to president
Jonathan Nettlefield, genl mgr-mktg & adv

Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS Advertising, New York—all Jaz prods—Steve Rose, chmn; Constantine Pappas, sr vp-acct super; Lynn Landau, asst acct exec.

LASSALE, JEAN LASSALE

Corporate Personnel

Robert Pliskin, president

Marketing Personnel

Larry Sussberg, vp-sales
Charles Kriete, sr genl mgr-sales
David Strouse, vp-adv & pr
Robert Stevens, genl mgr-adv & pr

Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—all Jean Lassale prods—Steve Rose, chmn; Constan-tine Pappas, sr vp-acct super; Lorraine Linton, Tracy Penn, acct execs; Lynn Landau, asst acct exec.

EPSON AMERICA

Marketing Personnel

Jack Whalen, vp-genl mgr

Andrew Leonard, vp-mktg
Scot Edwards, dir-adv & mktg svcs
Bob Armstrong, adv mgr

Advertising Agency

FCB/West, San Francisco—computer prods—Richard Ward, mgmt super; Garrett Lawrence, acct super; Julia Mee, asst acct exec.

Hearst Corp.

RANK 187

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,750	1,604	9.1
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	39	37	4.6

Hearst Corp., founded as a newspaper publishing company in 1887, has beefed up its print stable by purchasing Esquire from Esquire Magazine Associates in December 1986 and the following March, paying $400 million for the independently owned Houston Chronicle—the 16th largest-circulation daily newspaper in the U.S. and the largest in Texas. The Chronicle also is the largest-circulation paper among Hearst's 12 newspaper properties.

Hearst's 1986 ad spending totaled $39 million, up 4.6% from 1985; $9.4 million of that was spent in unmeasured media. The company's marketing budget is divided into many smaller pieces to promote its various media operations.

Company revenues totaled an estimated $1.75 billion, up 9.1% from 1985. In addition to its 13 U.S. magazines and various specialty titles and its 18 newspapers, Hearst owns six TV stations, seven radio stations, cable services in California, Lifetime and Arts & Entertainment cable networks, book and trade magazine publishers, syndicated newspaper services and real estate.

Specialty magazines received the largest chunk of measured media spending in 1986: $6.96 million, up 54.4% from 1985. Other segments receiving substantial measured ad support: Good Housekeeping needlework kits, up 16.7%, to $2.4 million; Cosmopolitan boutique products, up 118.1%, to $2.4 million; and the Lifetime cable network, up 69.1% to $1.2 million.

Hearst spent $1.8 million for corporate ads in magazines; that total was down 32.1% from 1985. Promotion of magazines to the trades got $1.6 million, according to Rome Report; $478,100 of that backed Good Housekeeping.

Among its higher-profile businesses in competitive markets, Hearst spent $1.67 million for the Boston Herald, all in spot TV buys—up 22.3% from 1985—in its fight against the No. 1 Boston Globe.

Meanwhile, the afternoon San Francisco Examiner—Hearst's flagship newspaper, founded in 1887—continued its controversial anti-TV campaign, via Goodby, Berlin & Silverstein, San Francisco. The most-publicized of the ads featured Ken and Barbie dolls with the headline, "These two have all it takes to be award-winning TV news anchors." Spending for the Examiner's spot TV and print campaign totaled $254,000, up 33.7% from 1985.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	4,492	5,446
Magazines	16,884	15,656
Newsp. supps.	0	103
Bus. pubs.	3,848	3,787
Spot TV	3,788	2,281
Network radio	22	198
Outdoor	501	539
Network cable	81	291
Total measured	29,616	28,301
Unmeasured	9,418	9,000
Total	39,034	37,301

HEARST CORP.
959 Eighth Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10019
(212) 262-5700

Corporate Personnel

Frank A. Bennack Jr., president
Gilbert C. Maurer, exec vp
James F. O'Donnell, corp comm dir

Advertising Agency

Laurence, Charles, Free & Lawson, New York—corp adv—Alfred Evans, exec vp; Richard Goldschmidt, sr vp.

HEARST MAGAZINES
Marketing Personnel

Gilbert C. Maurer, president
K. Robert Brink, exec vp
D. Claeys Bahrenburg, exec vp-group publishing dir
George J. Green, exec vp-group publishing dir
Mark F. Miller, exec vp-genl mgr
Mark E. Goldschmidt, mktg & planning dir
Mary Sabolik, assoc dir, pr
Bonnie Maglio Shope, adv & promo dir, Hearst Gold Buy Magazines
Daniel Ambrose, adv mgr, Hearst Gold Buy and Hearst Home Buy

HEARST NEWSPAPERS
Marketing Personnel

Robert J. Danzig, vp-genl mgr
J. Roger Grier, vp-group exec
Lee J. Guittar, vp-group exec
Henry K. Wurzer, mktg devel mgr

HEARST BROADCASTING
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Marketing Personnel

John C. Conomikes, vp-genl mgr, broadcasting
Mickey L. Hooten, vp-genl mgr, television
Jack A.W. Shenkan, sales & mktg dir, broadcasting

HEARST BOOKS/BUSINESS PUBLISHING
Marketing Personnel

Gordon L. Jones Jr., vp-group head, Books/Business Publishing
Lawrence Hughes, president, Hearst Trade Book Group
Susan Halligan, dir-adv & sales promo, William Morrow & Co.
Michael Greenstein, exec vp-acting sales dir, Avon Booknys

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE
Marketing Personnel

Joseph F. D'Angelo, president
Bruce L. Paisner, exec vp
Lawrence T. Olsen, vp-mktg & sales dir

Holiday Corp.

RANK 184

Memphis, Tenn.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,648	1,804	(8.7)
Net income	133	150	(11.1)
U.S. advertising	42	30	38.8

Holiday Corp., the nation's largest hotel company, experienced a drop in revenues and net income in fiscal 1986 (which ended Jan. 2, 1987), traced to a worldwide glut in hotel rooms.

Holiday beefed up its measured advertising in 1986 to $28 million from $18 million in 1985. Total U.S. advertising was $41.5 million in 1986, according to AD AGE estimates. Holiday estimates its 1986 U.S. ad total at $40.7 million, its worldwide ad total at $45.9 million.

Primary contributor to the higher spending was a $6.6-million outlay for network TV in 1986—for Embassy Suites and Holiday Inns—compared with no expenditures in that medium in 1985.

Other major media increases were in spot TV, up 28%, and outdoor, up 18%. Holiday Corp. is among the nation's 25 largest outdoor advertisers.

Fiscal 1986 results from the company's two major divisions—hotels and gaming—showed year-to-year declines. Hotels dropped 27.4% in operating income to $141 million on sales of $952 million, down 9.3%. Gaming operating income fell 5.8% to $113 million on sales of $690 million, up 3.9%.

In 1987 the company took steps to shore up its hotel operations through a recapitalization plan. So far this has included the sale of marginal properties and the distribution of proceeds from sales of assets to stockholders.

In June 1987, the Holiday Inns Hotel division launched advertising that features a crooning Frank Sinatra. The $15 million campaign is directed at the business traveler, who accounts for 73% of the chain's business.

Through June 1987 the company had sold all or part interest in 86 hotels, many of which were older properties, generating $760.3 million in after-tax proceeds. Expansion, however, continues in new markets for Embassy Suites for the high-ticket traveler, Hampton Inns for the low-budget customer, and Residence Inns, apartment units for the "extended-stay" market. The hotel division opened an average three hotels per week in 1986.

In April 1987, Hampton Inns named Walker & Associates, Memphis, to its $1.3-million account, replacing Grey Advertising, New York.

In the gaming division, the company says it has no plans to sell any of its hotel/casino properties in Reno, Las Vegas, Lake Tahoe or Atlantic City.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	5,704	7,387
Newsp. supps.	42	494
Bus. pubs.	566	716
Network TV	6,553	0
Spot TV	5,478	4,267
Network radio	0	1,123
Spot radio	1,519	33
Outdoor	4,555	3,904
Network cable	115	4
Total measured	24,532	17,927
Unmeasured	17,000	12,000
Total	41,532	29,927

HOLIDAY CORP
1023 Cherry Road
Memphis, Tenn. 38117
(901) 762-8600

Corporate Personnel

Michael D. Rose, chmn-ceo
Richard J. Goeglein, president-coo

Marketing Personnel

Andrew Lien, sr vp-worldwide mktg
Ray Lewis, vp-system mktg
Kevin Jeter, dir-natl mktg

Advertising Agency

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Memphis—Gary Andrews, sr vp-group acct dir; David McConnaughey, vp-mgmt super; Carl Teitelman, acct super; Sara Camp, acct exec; Debra Kesey, asst acct exec.

HARRAH'S HOTEL/CASINO
Reno, Nev.
Marketing Personnel

Robert A. Miller, vp-mktg
Seta Dingley, dir-adv

Advertising Agency

(In-house).

EMBASSY SUITE HOTELS
Irving, Texas
Marketing Personnel

Pat Cox, vp-mktg
Karen Von Der Bruegge, adv dir

Advertising Agency

Stern Monroe, Dallas—Lisa Bell, acct rep, natl; Lisa Briggs, acct rep, eastern region; Bee Dowling, acct rep, western region.

HAMPTON INNS
Memphis, Tenn.
Marketing Personnel

Mark Wells, vp-mktg
Lorna Brown-Ray, dir-natl sales
Dave Walker, mgr-field svcs
Jane Innes, mktg dir
Coleen Thomason, mktg mgr

Advertising Agency

Walker & Associates, Memphis—Steve Jones, acct exec.

George A. Hormel & Co.

RANK 116

Austin, Minn.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,960	1,502	30.5
Net income	39	39	1.2
U.S. advertising	69	71	(2.3)

George A. Hormel & Co., strapped with high costs of pork and other raw materials, as well as lingering labor woes, kept advertising spending on the lean side in 1986.

Ad spending rose 1% to $71.4 million for the fiscal year ending Oct. 25, 1986, although calendar year figures—the basis for rankings in this issue—show spending declining about 2.3% to $69.1 million. Static ad spending was a product of shifts in media, says Thomas Purcell, director of marketing and advertising services.

The company more than doubled magazine spending, sliced spot TV spending by 39% and increased overall radio spending by 6.1%. Mr. Purcell says 1987 ad spending will dip slightly before a rebound in 1988, when, he says, Hormel will spend "at incredible rates" in six months. The marketing lull is ironic in light of 134 new products either introduced or in test in the last two years.

Spartan profits (up only 1.2%) and ad spending in 1986 belie a 30.5% surge in sales. Profits were hurt by a strike by Local P-9 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union, which closed Hormel's Austin, Minn., plant.

In late 1986 Hormel bought Jennie-O-Foods, a marketer of turkey products.

Hormel continued its evolution from meat-packer to food processor by introducing an array of "value-added" frozen, fresh, microwavable and shelf-stable products in 1986 and 1987. Further, Hormel is actively marketing deli products and precooked Broiled & Browned beef, chicken, fish and pork entrees to the food-service industry.

Sales should top $2 billion this year if the 10% sales increase predicted by Mr. Purcell materializes. Nine-month sales for the period ending July 25 were $1.57 billion, up 11.7% from the 1986 period. Profits rose to $25.8 million, up 11.9% from a comparable 1986 period.

Spam gobbled up 75% of the $175 million canned luncheon meat segment, Mr. Purcell says. In 1986 it was joined by a new low-salt variety. SAMI/Burke figures show Hormel chili with a 33.5% share of the $259.8 million canned chili segment, and Dinty Moore Beef Stew dominates the canned stew market with a 70% share.

Of these products, Hormel increased seven-media ad budgets only for chili (up 23.3% to $2.98 million). The company cut Dinty Moore spending 38.5% to $1.72 million and reduced measured spending for Spam by 40.5% to $3.2 million.

Total measured spending for 1986 totaled $43.7 million, down 2.3% from 1985. AD AGE estimates unmeasured spending, including promotion and direct-mail, at $25.4 million in 1986.

One beneficiary of Hormel's increased 1988 ad budget, says Mr. Purcell, is Top Shelf, a line of 10 shelf-stable entrees introduced in February 1987 in test markets including Indianapolis and Denver. "This is not hype . . . we cannot keep 'em on the shelf," he says. Top Shelf, which has an 18-month shelf life, faces competition from General Foods' Impromptu shelf-stable entrees. Marketing has expanded from Phoenix to the West Coast.

In October 1987 Hormel, under an agreement with Chi-Chi's Mexican restaurant chain, introduced a line of shelf-stable Mexican foods bearing the Chi-Chi's name. BBDO Worldwide, Minneapolis, prepared the campaign.

Other 1986 and 1987 product introductions include three New Traditions Broiled & Browned microwavable sausage and ham products; Fast 'N Easy precooked bacon; Frank 'N Stuff franks; Hormel meat sticks in four flavors; three varieties of Old Smokehouse sausage; and Gold 'n Lite frozen chicken bites.

One unsuccessful product introduction was Hormel's Old Smokehouse Steak Sauce Plus—an attempt to break Nabisco Brands' A1 and H.J. Heinz Co.'s Heinz 57 stranglehold on the $141 million market. Mr. Purcell says Hormel may have approached the category from the wrong angle. TV and print ads, via BBDO, Minneapolis, pictured sauce slathered on old

PAR
We Can Help Solve Your Ad Budget Problem!
Tracking ad spending for 13 magazine markets, we can tell you what competitors are spending...by brand, by month, by book. Standard and custom reports, as low as $35.
Call PAR: (312) 446-9233.
PATTERSON ADVERTISING REPORTS, INC.
550 Frontage Road • Northfield, IL 60093

THE MARGIN OF VICTORY

A fraction of an inch.
A hundredth of a second.
When the competition is toughest, the difference between winning and losing can be remarkably small.
And in the race for new customers and increased sales, even the smallest advantage can separate the business leader from the business also-ran.
Now the nation's most competitive businesses are turning to Advanced Telemarketing Corporation for that critical, decisive edge. Because no other company helps you realize the potential of telemarketing better.
Capacity. Your calls get through. With more than 600 operator stations and the most advanced telecommunications switch in the industry, ATC puts technology to work for you.
Customized programs. ATC develops specialized inbound and outbound telemarketing strategies that help you find new ways to sell your products.
Caliber of people. Our well educated, highly trained sales force understands and fully communicates the quality of your products.
If you're looking for a new margin of victory, call Advanced Telemarketing Corporation today.
214-830-1800.

ATC
ADVANCED TELEMARKETING CORPORATION
The margin of victory for American business.

shoes and car parts to prove that it "makes anything taste better."

Hormel's budget cutbacks and account shifts pared billings at BBDO and Ruhr/Paragon, both Minneapolis, which handle virtually all of Hormel's advertising.

Hormel consolidated all frozen food division advertising at Ruhr/Paragon in May 1987, taking $2.5 million in billings from BBDO. Ruhr/Paragon also was given BBDO's chunk canned products account.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	960	1,779
Magazines	8,554	4,012
Newsp. supps	942	98
Bus. pubs	779	1,444
Network TV	5,442	6,325
Spot TV	7,350	12,200
Network radio	7,515	7,829
Spot radio	11,684	10,269
Outdoor	319	513
Network cable	173	282
Total measured	43,717	44,751
Unmeasured	25,351	25,951
Total	69,068	70,702

GEO. A. HORMEL & CO.
P.O. Box 800
Austin, Minn. 55912
(507) 437-5611

Corporate Personnel

R.L. Knowlton, chmn & president-ceo
Raymond J. Asp, exec vp-intl & trade relations

Marketing Personnel

T.J. Purcell, dir-mktg & adv svcs

MEAT PRODUCT GROUP

Corporate Personnel

James A. Silbaugh, group vp

Marketing Personnel

Stanley A. Kerber, sr vp-mktg
James DiNicola, vp-sales
Kim Jenkins, group prod mgr, deli prods & direct mktg
Bob Tegt, prod mgr, consumer prods deli group, Light & Lean prods
Gary Esbeck, mktg mgr, frozen foods div
Joe Swedberg, prod mgr, ham, bulk smoked meats
Gary Jones, prod mgr, breakfast meats group
Kurt Mueller, prod mgr, fresh pork
Richard Johnson, prod mgr, food service
Tom Blumhardt, sales mgr, frozen foods div
Mike Grogan, prod mgr, deli group

PREPARED FOODS GROUP

Corporate Personnel

James Hall, group vp
Robert Patterson, vp-grocery prods div

Marketing Personnel

Rick Bross, dir, grocery prod mktg
Eric Brown, dir, grocery prod sales
M.E. Burgstahler, prod mktg mgr, Dinty Moore, Great Beginnings, imported prods
Richard Crane, group prod mktg mgr, Spam
William Husk, mktg mgr, canned hams
Marc Johnson, prod mktg mgr, Mary Kitchen Hash, BBQ Sauce, Private Label
Larry Raskin, prod mktg mgr, chili, tamales, Deviled Spam, spreads, Vienna Sausage
John Vrabel, group prod mgr, chunk prods, short orders, vending, CountrySide Salads, Top Shelf
Marcia David, prod mktg mgr, smoked sausage, Bacon Bits, dry snacks

FDL MARKETING INC.
Dubuque, Iowa

Corporate Personnel

Deryl Arnold, president
Neil House, exec vp

Marketing Personnel

Clyde Maddux, vp-mktg & adv
Steve Dopita, vp-sales

JENNIE-O-FOODS
Willmar, Minn.

Corporate Personnel

Earl B. Olson, president

Marketing Personnel

Jerry Figenskau, vp-mktg & sales

Advertising Agencies

BBDO, Minneapolis—Wm. Weigold, exec vp-genl mgr; Allen Cohn, sr vp-exec creative dir; Jud Smith, David Schutten, creative dirs. Prepared foods: Spam, chili, Mary Kitchen hash, Old Smokehouse, BBQ Sauce, Bacon and flavored bits—Tom Keating, vp-mgmt super; Bill Lozito, Dennis Nustad, Mike Uecker, acct supers. Meat prods: Cure/81 Ham, Light & Lean prods, Little Sizzlers pork sausage, Fast 'N Easy prods, Wranglers prods, Frank 'N Stuff franks, dry sausage/deli, foodservice—Bob Jackson, vp-mgmt super; Wes Crawford, acct super.

Gioia Productions, Glen Head, N.Y.—Italian language adv—Luisa Bianchi, president.

Ruhr/Paragon, Minneapolis—Chunk canned prods, Dinty Moore prods, Farm Fresh catfish, Gold 'n Lite prods, Great Beginnings, New Traditions prods—Chuck Ruhr, chmn; Bob Jones, president; Doug Lew, vp-creative dir; Louise Scroggins, John Murtfeldt, group acct dirs.

Greasing political cogs

Dayton Hudson Corp., Minneapolis, got a special session of the Minnesota legislature to pass a toughened anti-takeover law shortly after the Haft family made overtures to buy the company in June 1987.

RANK

Hyundai Motor Co. 158

Seoul, S. Korea

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	N/A	1,250	N/A
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	52	N/A	N/A

Hyundai Motor America, wholly owned subsidiary and U.S. sales arm of Hyundai Motor Co. of South Korea, has moved from startup position in 1986 to an almost certain No. 4 rank in 1987 among auto importers in this country.

In 1986, Hyundai posted a 10-month U.S. sales total of 168,882 units, a record for any import's first year here, surpassing the 1958 Renault Dauphine by 48,000 cars. The $4,995 Hyundai Excel went on sale Feb. 20, with a network of dealers in 31 states and with a vastly understated sales goal of 100,000 units.

The record-breaking sales effort had the backing of an ad budget estimated at $52.3 million for 10 months of 1986. This initial expenditure was given a substantial boost in 1987 as Hyundai set its sights on sales of 250,000 units by year's end. By Sept. 10, sales had reached the 190,000 mark, and the Korean automaker's goal appeared possible.

Established in 1967, Seoul-based Hyundai Motor Co. (HMC) is a tiny division of a giant Asian manufacturing conglomerate. The company developed and produced the first Korean compact passenger car, dubbed the Pony, in 1974.

Though the company has not published 1986 production or worldwide sales and earnings figures, in 1985 it reported a total 227,000 units for worldwide sales of $1.25 billion and an export value of $522 million. Plant expansion gives the Korean plant a capacity of 600,000 units per year.

Hyundai entered the Canadian market in 1984, selling 25,000 units that year. By the end of 1985, using newspaper ads with the slogan: "Take a Pony for a ride," Hyundai had become Canada's No. 1 importer, and the Pony was Canada's best-selling car. A front-wheel drive Pony Excel was introduced in 1985, essentially the same car brought to the U.S. in 1986.

The Hyundai Excel is a front-wheel-drive, four-cylinder economy subcompact, similar in appearance to the lowest-priced Japanese cars. For 1986, three versions—two-door and four-door hatchbacks and a four-door sedan—were priced from $4,995 to $6,445.

Components supplied by Mitsubishi Motors Corp., Hyundai's Japanese partner, which has a 15% stake in the Korean automaker, still account for almost a quarter of the value of a Hyundai-built car. This year Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America has been selling the Hyundai-manufactured Precis, a subcompact similar to the popular Excel, which it expects to be its best-selling car for 1987.

Industry analysts see the U.S. market for subcompacts, or minicars, undergoing dramatic growth in the next few years, reaching 1.5 million cars by the end of the decade. This low end of the market has been long abandoned by Detroit and, in recent years, by the Japanese, whose import quotas have shifted their emphasis to more expensive lines.

Hyundai's 168,000-plus sales total gave the company quick ranking as the nation's seventh best-selling import in 1986, behind Subaru of America, which sold 183,242 units. If Hyundai meets its sales forecasts of 250,000 units in 1987 and 300,000 in 1988, the company would rank No. 4 among importers, behind Toyota Motor Sales, Nissan Motor Corp. and American Honda Motor Corp.

AD AGE national advertising estimates for Hyundai do not include $6.7 million spending by local dealers, and only the corporate co-op portion of $21.6 million spent by the Hyundai dealers association. Both expenditures were in spot TV, according to BAR/LNA. There were 161 dealers in place by the end of 1986.

Hyundai opened its drive into the U.S. market with a three-week teaser campaign designed to introduce the company as well as its car. The introductory campaign, launched before the Excel went on sale Feb. 15, observed that the shipbuilder and locomotive-manufacturer is the 39th largest corporation in the world, with sales of about $11 billion.

Print ad headlines pointed out, "Its father was a locomotive. Its mother was a ship." Taglines added, "Hyundai. Cars that make sense." Ad copy stressed Hyundai's earlier success in Canada and noted that "Hyundai rhymes with Sunday.

Aiming at a 70%-100% sales increase for 1987, Hyundai increased its ad budget an additional $10 million for the '87 model year.

Hyundai's 1988 lineup was expanded to include a total of 16 models, with prices ranging from the low-end three-door, four-speed manual shift hatchback at $5,295 to the top-of-the-line GLS four-door automatic-shift sedan at $7,895. A full load of factory-installed options can add $2,500, giving the flagship model a $10,400 price tag. Dealers estimate that their average sticker price falls in the $6,500-$7,000 price range.

Two newly announced additions to the '88 line are a sporty Excel GS three-door hatchback and a base Excel four-door sedan.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	10,396	3
Magazines	4,736	0
Bus. pubs	190	161
Network TV	4,077	0
Spot TV	17,914	0
Outdoor	17	0
Total measured	37,331	164
Unmeasured	15,000	N/A
Total	52,331	164

HYUNDAI
MOTOR AMERICA
7373 Hunt Ave.
Garden Grove, Calif. 92642
(714) 890-6000

Corporate Personnel

H.W. Baik, president & ceo
Max Jamiesson, exec vp, coo

Marketing Personnel

Greg Warner, vp-operations
Art Meissner, vp-natl sales mgr
Jack Collins, mktg dir
Joseph Corey, natl adv mgr

Advertising Agency

Backer Spielvogel Bates Worldwide, Huntington Beach, Calif.—all Hyundai autos—Harry Grusche, sr vp-mgmt rep; Howard Sherman, Peter Smaha, vps-acct dirs; Paula Dyba, Lisa Twine, sr acct execs.

RANK

Imasco Ltd. 146

Montreal

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	4,095	3,877	5.6
Net income	155	191	(18.8)
U.S. advertising	58	62	(7.6)
Division sales	1987	1986	% chg
Imperial Tobacco	1,301	1,288	1.0
Imasco USA	1,206	1,098	9.8
People's Drug	1,365	1,333	2.4
Shoppers Drug	105	57	84.7
The UCS Group	155	139	11.6

Declining earnings in fiscal 1987 at Imasco Ltd., a Montreal-based diversified company, were linked to a poor performance by its 831-store Peoples Drug Stores in the U.S. and a cigarette discount war in Canada that affected earnings of its Imperial Tobacco division (Player's and du Maurier brands, among others).

Imasco, which also owns the Hardee's restaurant chain in the U.S., is recovering now that the cigarette price war has ended and Peoples has undergone reorganization. Earnings are on the mend, up 33% to $51 million in the first quarter ended June 30, compared with the same period a year earlier.

Sales and earnings appearing in this profile were converted from Canadian dollars to U.S. dollars at the average annual exchange rate of US$0.728=C$1.

Peoples, based in Alexandria, Va., has undergone a reorganization linking it more closely with the successful Imasco-owned Canadian chain, Shoppers Drug Mart, under the direction of Shoppers' Chairman-CEO David R. Bloom.

Peoples' first quarter sales were off 2% from the comparable previous quarter, and earnings were off 87%, at $1.02 million. But the company called earnings "encouraging" following three quarters of far greater losses. Peoples lost $23 million in fiscal 1987.

Imasco USA, the food-retailing division that's primarily Hardee's, the Rocky Mount, N.C.-based fast food chain, continues to ride Hardee's ballyhooed quarter-pounder burger to success.

Nation's Restaurant News, an industry magazine, in August listed Hardee's as climbing above competitor Wendy's to fourth place in sales volume among the nation's fast-food restaurants. The magazine estimated total Hardee's sales, for both company-owned and franchise restaurants, will be $3.03 billion for fiscal 1988, up 12%.

In addition to Hardee's, Imasco USA includes a food manufacturing and distribution arm, 14 Burger Chef franchises and Grisanti, nine Italian restaurants. Grisanti is buying 17 Casa Lupita restaurants from Ponderosa, then switching them to Italian cuisine. Sales for all company-owned, foodservice divisions of Imasco during the last fiscal year climbed 9.8%, to $1.21 billion.

Hardee's attributes its growth to the quarter-pounder, pushed in its "We're out to win you over" campaign. Conversion to a cooking process that cooks on two sides at once and produces a juicier burger is "98% complete," a spokesman says.

Hardee's advertises heavily, spending 6.5% of sales yearly—$170 million in the past year. But it has increasingly used local rather than national ads, which are the basis of rankings in this issue. An estimated three-quarters of the firm's ad total falls in categories of direct mail, couponing and special events. The company's own breakdown of the remaining $40 million allocates $30 million to spot TV, $8 million to spot radio and $2 million to outdoor.

Imasco spent $31.1 million in national advertising for Hardee's during 1986, according to BAR/LNA, with most of that in spot TV.

The recent addition of eight new company-owned and 44 new franchises gives Hardee's 917 company-owned and 1,867 franchises, for a total of 2,784, primarily in the Southeast, Midwest and mid-Atlantic states.

Ad spending overall is up, with the company earmarking $188.5 million in advertising and promotion for the current year. Newest wrinkle is the literally wrinkled California raisins, who danced that state's raisin industry to national prominence to the tune of "I Heard It Through The Grapevine." By agreement with the California Raisin Board, the raisins are featured in TV spots pushing Hardee's Cinnamon 'N' Raisin breakfast biscuit. The ads began a 45-day run this Oct. 5.

Recently introduced products are prepackaged salads and soft ice cream, aimed primarily at women and kids.

Like Hardee's, Peoples Drug Stores depend heavily on local ads, says Joseph A. Pollard, senior VP-advertising and public relations. The current ad budget is $40 million, he says, noting it is the same as last year.

Imasco's other retail enterprise, the UCS Group, a Canadian chain of retail convenience and tobacco stores, showed a 11.5% growth in sales, to $155 million in fiscal 1987.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	23	32
Network TV	0	8,925
Spot TV	32,761	26,896
Network radio	59	0
Spot radio	10	0
Outdoor	1,687	1,529
Network cable	0	8
Total measured	34,539	37,390
Unmeasured	23,094	25,000
Total	57,633	62,390

IMASCO LTD.
4 Westmount Square
Montreal, Que., Canada H3Z 2S8
(514) 937-9111

Corporate Personnel

Purdy Crawford, chmn & president-ceo

IMASCO USA
Rocky Mount, N.C.

Corporate Personnel

Jack A. Laughery, chmn & president-ceo
John Wilson, sr vp-cfo

HARDEE'S FOOD SYSTEMS
Rocky Mount, N.C.

Marketing Personnel

William E. Prather Jr., president-ceo
Ralph Peterson, exec vp-cfo
Paul R. Lovin Jr., exec vp-operations
Gary L. Langstaff, exec vp-mktg

FAST FOOD MERCHANDISERS
Rocky Mount, N.C.

Marketing Personnel

Hugh Todd, chmn-ceo
F. Winslow Goins, exec vp-distribution svcs

GRISANTI INC.
Louisville, Ky.

Corporate Personnel

Michael J. Grisanti, president-coo

Advertising Agency

Ogilvy & Mather, New York—David Warden, Chuck Hodgekinson, Jerry Hart, acct mgrs.

PEOPLES DRUG STORES
Alexandria, Va.

Marketing Personnel

Frederick Edwards, exec vp
Joseph A. Pollard, sr vp-adv & corp relations

Advertising Agencies

Ehrlich Manes Associates, Washington, D.C.—corp adv—Nella Manes, president.

Fahlgren and Swink, Toledo, Ohio—James Renda, acct super; Liz Winkle, acct coord.

Handley & Miller, Indianapolis—Richard Kreusser, president.

Mel Finkel Associates, Atlanta, Ga.—Mel Finkel, president.

RANK

Isuzu Ltd. 154

Tokyo

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	6,277	6,295	(0.3)
Net income	685	709	(3.4)
U.S. advertising	53	27	97.5

A fast-talking mythical car salesman featured in a series of popular television spots helped American Isuzu Motors, U.S. distributor of passenger cars and trucks for Isuzu Motors Ltd., Japan, realize a 21% increase in total unit sales in 1986. Similar results are likely for 1987.

American Isuzu's total measured ad spending also increased, skyrocketing more than 140%. Spending on spot TV alone more than tripled from the previous year.

Isuzu Motors Ltd., the parent company whose fiscal year is reported in the accompanying box, however, saw its net income drop, largely because of the sharp appreciation of the yen. Figures for both 1986 and 1985 were converted at the rate of Y161.45=U.S.$1. The company does not break out sales and income figures for its U.S. subsidiaries.

General Motors owns 38.6% of Isuzu Motors. The Japanese automaker supplies GM with the Chevrolet Spectrum (Isuzu sells its own version as the I-Mark), a front-wheel-drive subcompact.

In 1986, American Isuzu sold 38,910 cars, a 44.4% increase from the previous year's total of 26,953. Sales of the I-Mark more than doubled, from 12,780 to 26,046 units. Isuzu's share of the U.S. import car market increased as well, from 0.95% to 1.2%.

Isuzu light truck sales grew to 88,720 units from 78,149 in 1985. Despite this increase, Isuzu's share of the U.S. import truck market dropped slightly, from 9.7% to 9.5%. Its share of the total U.S. truck market, however, rose slightly, from 1.8% to 1.9%. By comparison, Suzuki holds a 1% share and Mitsubishi, 0.76%. Leading Isuzu are Mazda at 3.3%, Nissan at 4.8% and Toyota, 8.2%.

Unit sales have continued to increase for Isuzu in 1987. During the first eight months of the year, combined car and truck sales totaled 88,764, a 13.2% increase from the same period in 1986. Of the total, trucks accounted for about 4,000 sales. Isuzu sold 14,107 vehicles in August 1987, the best month in the company's history.

Following the footsteps of other Japanese automakers, Isuzu soon will be manufacturing vehicles in the U.S. under a joint venture agreement with Fuji Heavy Industries, the parent company of Subaru of America. Construction of a $500 million manufacturing facility located in Lafayette, Ind., began in May. Production is scheduled to begin in the fall of 1989. The plant initially will produce 60,000 Subaru cars and 60,000 Isuzu Trooper II vehicles and light trucks. In the future, Isuzu may manufacture cars in the U.S., depending on market conditions, according to Leon Rosen, national marketing services manager.

Isuzu also announced that it will move into the luxury segment of the market by becoming the worldwide distributor (excluding Great Britain, Germany, Austria and Switzerland) for the Bitter Automobile Co. Ltd. of Germany. Bitter will produce two models for U.S. distribution—a two-door convertible and four-door sedan, both of which will emphasize European engineering and styling. Production is anticipated to begin in October 1988 at the Steyr-Daimler-Puch manufacturing facility in Graz, Austria. The convertible will make its American debut in the spring of 1989, with the sedan slated for introduction later in the year. Both will be priced in the mid-$30,000 to low-$40,000 range.

Isuzu "lied" its way to increased sales in 1986 and 1987. Advertising first aired in the summer of 1986 spotlighted a fictitious Joe Isuzu (actor David Leisure), a slick salesman.

Typical of the ads, created by Della Femina, Travisano & Partners, Los Angeles, was one that found Leisure atop a jagged mountain peak, standing beside a Trooper II. "The amazing Isuzu Trooper II. Its four-wheel drive can take you anywhere. In fact, I drove it up here myself," says the presenter as a "He's Lying" subtitle appears on the screen. "It has more seats than the Astrodome," proclaims Leisure. "Almost. It has five," reads the subtitle. "Plus enough cargo space to carry Texas," he adds while the subtitle reads, "79 cubic feet of it." "And Isuzu will accept marbles and sea shells as payment," says Joe Isuzu. "$10,599. Marbles and shells not accepted," reads the final subtitle. "But they're selling fast so you have to come in in five minutes," he concludes, and "you have my word on it."

But not everyone was fond of the "Liar" spots. In September 1987, the Tri-State Isuzu Dealers, representing New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, launched its own $500,000 TV campaign to counter the campaign. Tri-State dealers felt the Joe Isuzu ads were in bad taste and undermined the credibility of car salesmen. Two spots that broke Sept. 1 were picked up by Isuzu dealerships nationwide.

Magazine, newspaper, and network and spot TV expenditures accounted for nearly all of Isuzu's 1986 measured total of $39.7 million. Magazine spending jumped 62% to $9.9 million. Spot TV spending more than tripled to $15.4 million, and network TV rose 9% to $5.9 million.

Mr. Rosen estimates that total advertising expenditures for the 1987 calendar year are running about 12% higher than 1986. A 30% increase is slated for 1988.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	7,339	3,175
Magazines	9,920	6,118
Bus.pubs	573	481
Network TV	5,931	5,378
Spot TV	15,356	4,625
Network radio	315	0
Spot radio	475	0
Outdoor	5	4
Network cable	252	338
Total measured	40,166	20,118
Unmeasured	12,391	6,500
Total	52,557	26,618

AMERICAN ISUZU MOTORS
2300 Pellissier Place
Whittier, Calif. 90601
(213) 949-0611

Corporate Personnel

J.E. Reilly, sr vp-genl mgr

Marketing Personnel

Fritz Kern, vp-mktg
Leon Rosen, natl mktg svcs mgr

Advertising Agency

Della Femina, Travisano & Partners, Los Angeles—Jerry Della Femina, chmn; Louise McNamee, president; Peter Stranger, president, L.A. office; Dennis Remsing, sr vp-mgmt dir; Ann Kalman, sr vp-media dir; Richard Russo, sr vp-creative dir; David Weber, vp-mgmt super; Rick Carpenter, Jaci Sisson, vps-group creative dirs; Sandra Tuttle, vp-dir, broadcast production; Dick Sittig, assoc creative dir; Peter Mooney, acct super; Richard L. Reed, acct super, prod mktg; Charles Koch, Kelley Glaser, acct execs; Jeff Saunders, field acct super; Meg Dennis, field acct exec

---

A woman's best friend

The biggest market for diamonds continues to be "women of the house," says DeBeers Consolidated Mines. Category unit sales were 6.9 million for a retail value of $3.5 billion in 1986, up 300,000 units and $500 million from 1985. The No. 2 category was sales to "single adult women"—4.4 million pieces or $1.5 billion retail, up 900,000 units and $400 million. No. 3 was sales of women's diamond engagement rings.

Jerrico Inc.

RANK 114

Lexington, Ky.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	599	584	2.6
Net income	25	27	(10.3)
U.S. advertising	69	63	10.0
Division sales	1987	1986	% chg
Restaurants	478	455	5.1
Supplies, equip.	107	95	12.6
Royalties	12	12	0.0
Other	2	2	0.0

Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppes, the restaurant chain that accounts for about 75% of total revenues and 80% of operating profits of its parent, Jerrico Inc., is expanding its menu as it builds its network into a national chain.

The 1,421-store chain, which reported sales of $451 million for fiscal year 1987, ended June 30, represents roughly 65% of the "fast-fish" category. While it still is not a truly national chain, LJS is close enough that it has begun buying "regional network" TV time.

By 1990 it intends to have stores in all sectors of the country and to become a full network TV advertiser. No other chain in its category is close to that level of representation.

In addition to LJS, Jerrico owns 34 Jerry's Restaurants, full-service coffee shops, and franchises an additional 28. The company also is testing the waters in the dinnerhouse market: Last year its first Florenz northern Italian restaurant opened in Ohio.

But most of Jerrico's energies are directed to the LJS chain. At the close of the last fiscal year, there were 887 company-owned restaurants and 534 franchised units, compared with 844 company and 544 franchised restaurants a year earlier.

The most recent fiscal year was a tough one for LJS. Like all restaurant chains, LJS has faced tough competition from outside the industry, especially from grocers and from the popularity of microwavable entrees.

LJS suffers from the additional problem of having 25% of its stores in the so-called "Oil Patch," which has been depressed by lower oil prices. For the year, LJS' average unit sales were $526,000, up 2.1% over fiscal 1986 and roughly on a par with the restaurant industry's growth overall.

To spur growth through the 1990s, the company is working to broaden the chain's appeal.

LJS's menu staple long has been deep-fried fish (codfish). Recently that has been augmented by fried chicken entrees. LJS in 1986 rolled systemwide its line of cold seafood salads. These account for 5% of sales—up to 10% when backed by media advertising.

The other 95% of LJS's sales still come from fried fish and chicken. That has been augmented recently with new items—such as fried catfish, Cajun Shrimp and Kitchen Breaded Fish—that have less breading (and less oil retention) than past items.

LJS also has been testing baked codfish in some 60 units over the past two years, but that doesn't seem to be the answer. Consumers want broiled fish, and LJS has committed itself to offering it.

The addition of broiled fish may significantly change LJS's market positioning. The broiled seafood line being tested includes halibut, salmon, shrimp, cod and flounder, served with baked potato or vegetables, salad or coleslaw, and a roll. LJS also remains committed to its "Sounds good to me" umbrella advertising theme, which has been running since Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago, assumed the account in 1985. That advertising has become increasingly product-oriented as the chain has phased out its previous reliance on couponing and special-price deals.

During calendar 1986, Jerrico spent $2.9 million on regional network ads for LJS. Through only the first half of 1987, Jerrico spent $2.8 million on network TV.

Spot TV spending of $26.8 million in 1986 is moving downward, however. Through the first half of 1987, Jerrico's spot TV buying was down 10% to $11.6 million.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	2	0
Network TV	2,492	0
Spot TV	26,803	26,502
Spot radio	183	365
Outdoor	272	317
Network cable	139	0
Total measured	29,891	27,183
Unmeasured	39,587	36,000
Total	69,478	63,183

JERRICO INC.
101 Jerrico Drive
Lexington, Ky. 40511
(606) 268-5211

Marketing Personnel

Donald A. Metznik, vp-natl mktg
Chip Hardy, vp, dir-field mktg
David M. Miller, vp-adv

Advertising Agencies

(In-house) Abbott Advertising, Lexington, Ky.—David M. Miller vp-genl mgr.

Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago—Mitch Engel, sr vp-mgmt super.

Kenner Parker Toys

RANK 189

Beverly, Mass.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	503	340	48.0
Net income	25	(58)	142.8
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	356	235	51.5
Operating profits	30	(34)	188.0
Advertising	36	49	(26.6)

For the first time since its spinoff from General Mills two years ago, Kenner Parker Toys has reported solid earnings.

But the fifth-largest toy manufacturer (behind Mattel, Hasbro, Coleco and Fisher-Price) celebrated its independence in an unusual way: by agreeing in August to be acquired by Tonka Corp., Minnetonka, Minn., for $628 million.

While the company became profitable in 1986—earnings from continuing operations in 1986 were $16 million compared to a loss of $58.2 million in 1985—falloff in demand for established toys such as Care Bears and Star Wars items resulted in a 4.5% decline in sales to $502.8 million. Care Bears plush animals were discontinued in 1987, although they continue to live via home video.

Spending on advertising and promotion worldwide declined 4% to $94.7 million, according to the company, although it does not define advertising and promotion. Of the total, AD AGE estimates Kenner Parker spent $36.3 million in U.S. advertising only, down 26.7% from 1985. Kenner Parker drew 29% of its sales from international operations in 1986, compared with 31% in 1985.

Tonka's friendly takeover bid followed Kenner's rejection of persistent and unsolicited bids from New World Production's Marvel Entertainment division, Los Angeles. Marvel continues to hold an 8.4% stake in Kenner.

Tonka in 1987 spent approximately $25 million on advertising, via Jordan, McGrath, Case & Taylor, New York. Its sales were $293 million in 1986. Tonka will become the third-largest independent U.S. toy company, with Kenner as a wholly owned subsidiary.

Stephen Shank, Tonka president-ceo, will become president-ceo of the combined companies, with Ronald Jackson, Kenner's president-ceo, retaining his title. David Mauer will continue as Kenner Toys' president and Patrick Feely as president, Tonka USA. Tonka cites as benefits the synergy between the two companies' staple products—including Tonka's toy trucks and Kenner's Monopoly, Nerf sponge-balls and games and Play-Doh lines—and Kenner's strong international presence.

New World's interest in Kenner was its need to enter the $12.5 billion toy industry with a company that could produce action figures based on its Marvel comics characters. In turn, New World offered Kenner its animation-production facilities. Neither Tonka nor Kenner have such facilities.

Tonka sees its most promising lines for 1987 as its SuperNatural holographic action figures and Maple Town animal-themed collectibles. Tonka earlier this year entered the video game market when it signed a joint partnership agreement with Sega to market the No. 2 videogame company's products in the U.S. Sega trails by a wide margin Nintendo of America, distributed by Worlds of Wonder. Atari, the originator of video arcade games, is third.

Although Kenner sees some growth in its Real Ghostbusters and SilverHawks lines of licensed action figures, the company hasn't had a strong toy line since it discontinued Care Bears. Mask, a male action figure line rethemed in 1987 to an international motor racing concept, was the best selling line in 1986, although sales were disappointing.

Kenner's Parker Brothers board game division, with 1986 revenues of $100 million, ranked third in the industry behind Hasbro's Milton Bradley and Coleco's Selchow & Righter divisions. The company in 1986 spent $9.4 on Parker Brothers advertising, including $1.1 million spent promoting new videogames such as Clue.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	126	1,736
Network TV	15,574	15,806
Spot TV	10,412	17,639
Network cable	223	1,319
Total measured	26,335	36,499
Unmeasured	10,000	13,000
Total	36,335	49,499

KENNER PARKER TOYS
50 Dunham Rd.
Beverly, Mass. 01915
(617) 927-7500

Marketing Personnel

David Mauer, president, Kenner Products
Bruce Stein, vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

Grey Advertising, New York—Ed Meyer, president-ceo.

HBM/Creamer, Boston—Richard S. Humphrey Jr., chmn.

WHY BE A LITTLE FISH IN A BIG POND?

FOOD STORE SALES ARE BEEFING UP IN TUSCALOOSA.

Tuscaloosa, Alabama outspends Birmingham, the 45th-ranked HH ADI in the United States, for Supermarket, Grocery and Other Food sales-per-person. By as soon as 1990, Effective Buying Income is expected to leap 55%, outperforming Alabama, the East South Central Region, and the entire United States. Total Retail Sales are projected to rise 52%, again beating state, region and national projections and proving that Tuscaloosa is a fat and juicy market that's beefing up even more.

WCFT DOMINATES THE MARKET.

We're the #1-rated station sign-on to sign-off. We've got the facts, figures, programming, including the #1 news, to help make your food store sales #1 in Tuscaloosa.

BE A BIG FISH

BEAM COMMUNICATIONS

WCFT-TV, CBS, Tuscaloosa, AL
WPBN-TV/WTOM-TV, NBC, Traverse City/Cadillac/Cheboygan, MI
KYEL-TV, NBC, Yuma, AZ/El Centro, CA
WDAM-TV, NBC, Laurel/Hattiesburg, MS

Source: 1986 Survey of Buying Power – May 1987, Arbitron
© 1987 Beam Communications

Represented by Katz Continental Television

WCFT-TV
TUSCALOOSA, ALABAMA

TUSCALOOSA, ALABAMA

Kimberly-Clark Corp.

RANK 151

Irving, Texas

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	4,303	4,073	5.7
Net income	269	267	0.9
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,113	3,042	2.3
Operating profits	394	420	(6.2)
Advertising	55	70	(20.5)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Household	3,370	3,172	6.2
Bus. & ind. paper	876	856	2.4
Aircraft services	99	118	(16.5)

Kimberly-Clark Corp. is starting to diversify from its solid base in consumer disposable paper products by finding new uses for non-woven materials, which already are used in the company's category-leading Huggies disposable diapers and feminine hygiene products.

The company in October 1987 began testing two nonwoven-based household cleaning products designed to appeal to consumers interested in convenience: Command, a single-use fabric sheet containing laundry detergent, and Once Overs, disposable bathroom cleaning sheets.

Although K-C's measured media spending continued its two-year decline in 1986, dropping 16% to $45 million, the company says sales and net income in 1986 reached record levels, rising 5.7% and 0.9%, respectively. The company attributed the sales increase to higher product prices rather than volume gains in maturing paper categories.

K-C says its slightly lower U.S. operating profit in 1986 reflected the decline in production capacity for Huggies diapers as the company retooled machines to make diaper improvements.

Although significant sales gains were made in household, professional and feminine care products, the gains in those segments were not enough to overcome the combined drop in newsprint, tobacco-related products and diapers.

K-C's Class I division, which is comprised of tissues, feminine, infant and incontinence care products; hospital and home healthcare products, and other related items, contributed 78% of the company's total sales in 1986, a 2.5% decline from the previous year, due primarily to Huggies production slippage.

In the $3 billion U.S. disposable diaper category, K-C's Huggies market share dropped to a record low 24% share in mid-1986, due to Procter & Gamble Co.'s introduction of Ultra Pampers and Luvs Baby Pants disposable diapers. P&G in April 1986 began nationwide distribution of the new thin, superabsorbent diapers, which contain a synthetic chemical that traps moisture and turns it into a gel. K-C was not able to nationally introduce Huggies Supertrim, its thin, superabsorbent diaper, until the end of 1986.

However, by mid-1987 K-C had recovered much of its market share, holding an estimated 33% share of the category to P&G's combined 49% share for Pampers and Luvs, says Sherman Chao, paper-products analyst with Salomon Bros., New York. Measured media support for Huggies fell 20.4% to $21.5 million, as K-C scaled back spending until it could introduce its superthin diaper.

K-C also began marketing an extra-large sized Huggies disposable diaper for babies 33 lbs. and up.

The company tested another possible expansion of the Huggies line with Kleenex Huggies disposable bibs, which feature an adjustable neckband fastened with one-piece, refastenable tapes. K-C supported the disposable bibs test with $1.56 million in measured media support.

K-C scored a victory against P&G in court, when a federal jury decided K-C did not infringe on an elastic-waistband diaper design patent held by P&G. Still pending is a decision on K-C's countersuit that alleges P&G is "unlawfully monopolizing" the U.S. disposable diaper market.

For feminine hygiene products, K-C in 1986 devoted much of its marketing attention to upgrading the Kotex line, introducing Kotex Profile, an hourglass-shaped maxi pad with more absorbent material in the center, and Kotex Overnight, a nighttime maxi pad with 50% more coverage area than regular maxi pads.

K-C, which holds a 24% share of the $1.2 billion feminine-hygiene industry with its New Freedom and Kotex brands, supported those brands with $3.6 million in measured media support, primarily in women's magazines. Category leader Johnson & Johnson holds an estimated 39% with its Sure & Natural, Assure & Natural, Carefree and Stayfree lines; P&G has a 23.5% share with Always, and Tambrands, 6% with Maxithins.

K-C, which dominates the $1 billion facial tissue category with a 48% to 50% share, introduced a softer, thicker Kleenex facial tissue in August 1986, backed with $8.5 million in measured media support. The tissue was positioned in ads as "the most comforting Kleenex ever." Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago, handles Kleenex and Kleenex's Softique brand, which in 1986 received $1.6 million in measured support, down 79% from measured spending in 1985.

Scott Paper Co.'s Scotties facial tissues hold an estimated 10% share, and P&G's Puffs an estimated 15%, says Salomon Bros.' Mr. Chao.

K-C, which some analysts say holds 50% of the growing $250 million (at retail) adult incontinence category, supported its Depend shields and briefs with $5 million in measured media spending last year, up 4.2% from the previous year.

K-C's business class airline, Midwest Express, began nonstop service from its Milwaukee, Wis., hub to New York's LaGuardia Airport. The company in June 1986 moved advertising for the airline to BBDM/Cunningham & Walsh, Chicago, from in-house.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	447	1,012
Magazines	10,315	6,317
Bus. pubs	182	330
Network TV	30,208	40,727
Spot TV	2,183	6,213
Spot radio	37	164
Outdoor	95	20
Network cable	594	626
Total measured	44,061	55,409
Unmeasured	11,238	14,132
Total	55,298	69,541

KIMBERLY-CLARK CORP.
World Headquarters
Box 619100
DFW Airport Station
Dallas, Texas 75261-9100
(214) 830-1200

Marketing Personnel

R.S. Fountaine, vp-U.S. mktg rsch
G.J. Ker Jr., dir-adv svcs
D.W. Lahey, dir-adv & promo
J.E. Carter, president, Karolton Envelope

INFANT CARE SECTOR
Marketing Personnel

W.R. Sanders, president
R.F. Auchter, vp-infant care

ADULT CARE SECTOR
Marketing Personnel

W.H. Drew, president
T.A. Newby Jr., vp-feminine care
P.S. Geisler, vp-incontinence care
J.S. Sumner Jr., president, Spenco Medical Corp.

HOUSEHOLD PRODUCTS SECTOR
Marketing Personnel

J.D. Bernd, president
R.C. Van Driest, vp-consumer tissue business

HEALTHCARE AND NONWOVENS SECTOR
Marketing Personnel

J.T. McCauley, president
R.D. Carter, vp-medical & nonwoven fabrics
J.S. Metz, vp-professional health care

SERVICE AND INDUSTRIAL SECTOR
Marketing Personnel

G.A. Zins, president

NORTH AMERICAN PULP & PAPER SECTOR
Marketing Personnel

R. Plaut Jr., president, specialty prods
J.S. Rausch, president, technical paper
M.R. Holcomb, president, Neenah paper
R.C. Vanden Heuvel, president, U.S. Pulp & Newsprint

Advertising Agencies

Campbell-Mithun, Minneapolis—Depend incontinence prods—Beth Miller, mgmt super; Steve Ostrander, acct exec; Sherri Smith, asst acct exec.

Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago—Kleenex facial tissues, bathroom tissue, towels—Terry Peigh, vp-acct dir; Kay Gilbertson, acct dir; Jennifer Booth, asst acct exec.

Ogilvy & Mather, New York—Huggies diapers—Cliff Angers, group dir; David Mechlin, mgmt super; Laurel Richie, acct super; Jocelyn Koskinas, acct exec; Amy Cohn, asst acct exec. New Freedom feminine care prods, Kotex feminine care prods—Cliff Anger, group dir; Karen Green, mgmt super; Audrey Shuman, acct super; Ben Kline, acct exec; Kathy Graff, acct coord.

Both ends at play

Levi Strauss ads in 1986 for Special Reserve jeans show Shearson Lehman brothers in suits, and then in jeans: "No matter how well you dress, there's always room for improvement," say ads. VF Corp.'s Wrangler, confident it has the blue-collar at work, in ads seeks the gang at play.

Estee Lauder Inc.

RANK 126

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,300	1,250	4.0
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	890	750	18.7
Operating profits	N/A	N/A	N/A
Advertising	67	63	5.8

Estee Lauder Inc. focused its marketing and promotion efforts in 1986 behind existing products in two increasingly competitive categories: fragrances and skincare preparations.

Analysts, however, say Estee Lauder's established fragrance brands have fatigued in the face of ever-proliferating designer and celebrity scents.

The entire U.S. fragrance category grew a mere 5% in 1986 to $2.3 billion, in spite of splashy, $10 million-plus ad campaigns for such trendy new offerings as Calvin Klein's Obsession and Christian Dior's Poison.

In response to the increased competition, Estee Lauder cut back its overall fragrance ad support and boosted spending for a few select brands. According to BAR/LNA, the company spent more than $16 million advertising its fragrance products in 1986, a drop of 7%.

The company spent nearly $5 million on ads for Beautiful perfume, an increase of 27% over 1985. Spot TV captured 64% of the Beautiful budget. White Linen perfume got the second highest ad support of any individual Estee Lauder brand—$3.6 million, down 28% from 1985. Several Estee Lauder fragrances—Cinnabar, Estee, Devin and JHL—received no measured ad support.

Estee Lauder continued its emphasis on skincare products aimed at maturing, age-conscious baby boomers. According to Allan Mottus, cosmetics industry analyst and president of Mottus & Associates, New York, the company leads department store skincare sales with a 35% share. Estee claims 20% of the $4.2 billion U.S. skincare market (manufacturer's level).

Mr. Mottus estimates that Estee Lauder's Clinique and Prescriptives subsidiaries contributed $360 million and $20 million, respectively, to the company's total volume in 1986.

This fall, Estee Lauder for Men introduced its own entry in the "power potion" category: Metropolis. An extensive ad campaign featuring singer Liza Minelli will run in 1988.

Estee Lauder Eye-zone Repair Gel, made a strong debut this year. Other recent new product introductions include Estee Lauder Oil-free Sun Spray and Estee Lauder Signature Makeup Collection. The company also introduced More Volume and More Shine, two haircare products, and Demi-Matte Makeup and Powder, a new makeup with treatment benefits. This fall, Lauder for Men also added Anti-Wrinkle Defense Formula, a new entry in the $65 million men's skincare product market.

Last year Estee Lauder spent $9.2 million on multi-product advertising—all in spot TV—up 31.4%.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	3,658	3,447
Magazines	19,121	17,452
Newsp. supps	3,028	2,992
Spot TV	23,369	22,469
Spot radio	607	686
Outdoor	3	0
Total measured	49,785	47,047
Unmeasured	16,845	15,919
Total	66,631	62,965

ESTEE LAUDER INC.
767 Fifth Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022
(212) 572-4200

Corporate Personnel

Estee Lauder, chmn
Leonard Lauder, president-ceo
Evelyn Lauder, corp vp
Robert Barnes, president, Estee Lauder U.S.A.
Carol Phillips, chwn, Clinique Laboratories
Robert Nielsen, president, Prescriptives

Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—Estee Lauder Cosmetics and Treatments, Aramis, Clinique, Prescriptives—Alvin Chereskin, vice-chmn; Lida Burpee, acct super, Estee Lauder Cosmetics (all brands); Janie Van Gelder, asst acct exec, Estee Lauder Cosmetics; Barbara Salerno, vp-acct super, Clinique; Sharon Neg, acct exec, Clinique; Rebecca Albergo, vp-acct super, Aramis & Prescriptives.

Lucky Stores

RANK 143

Dublin, Calif.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	6,441	6,225	3.5
Net income	226	87	161.2
U.S. advertising	59	50	18.0
Division sales	1987	1986	% chg
Food stores	N/A	6,225	N/A
Gemco stores	N/A	2,428	N/A
Specialty stores	N/A	721	N/A

Lucky Stores embarked on an aggressive restructuring program in October 1986 to thwart a takeover bid by New York investor Asher Edelman.

The company began a shift in focus from a broadly diversified retailer to a food retailer. That month, Lucky announced the sale of 76 of its 80 Gemco discount department store units to Minneapolis-based Dayton Hudson for $440 million. Dayton Hudson is converting the units to Target stores.

Two months later the company announced the sale of its Checker Auto Parts unit for $155 million to New York-based Northern Pacific Corp., which operates 95 Schuck auto supply stores in the Northwest. Phoenix, Ariz.-based Checker operates 176 Kragen stores in California and Nevada and 202 Checker stores in 12 Western states.

In its continuing effort to fend off Mr. Edelman's takeover bid, early this year Lucky sold its Yellow Front Stores subsidiary for $50 million to a unit of Kenmare Capital Corp., New York. Yellow Front, which is based in Phoenix, operates 104 general merchandise stores in eight Western states.

And in March 1987, Lucky announced the distribution of stock of its Tupelo, Miss.-based Hancock Fabrics.

Lucky's effort to shed all non-grocery operations, combined with its repurchase of nearly 14.4 million shares of common stock at $40 each, proved successful. Mr. Edelman, whose bid reached a high of $37-a-share, or $1.88 billion, signed a standstill agreement with Lucky Stores in March 1987. The pact precludes Mr. Edelman from controlling more than 5% of Lucky stock during the next three years. Lucky Stores also agreed to pay Mr. Edelman $2.8 million for out-of-pocket expenses.

Lucky will recover those costs and more with the transfer this November of the assets of its Midwestern division to a limited partnership in which it will invest $4 million cash for a 40% interest. The partnership includes key Eagle Food Store management and Odyssey Partners, a New York private investment firm. Over the next six years, Lucky's interest in the partnership will increase.

Lucky's overall advertising budget was $58.7 million in 1986, a 17.9% increase from 1985. That included measured spending of $29.2 million, up 17.7% from the previous year. A major share of the budget, 41%, was allocated to spot TV.

In February, Lucky consolidated advertising for all its Western-state supermarket operations—389 units in Arizona, California and Nevada—under one agency. The $30 million account, which includes stores under the Food Basket and Lucky banners, was awarded in April to Grey Advertising, Los Angeles.

Lucky Stores first quarter earnings, for the 13-week period ended May 3, 1987, were $30.2 million, a 50% increase from the same period in 1986.

Sales of the continuing food store operations were $1.75 billion for the quarter, up 12.2%. Net earnings of $52.4 million include after-tax gains on the sale of assets and $5.9 million in net earnings from the sale of Hancock Fabrics. Net earnings were $21.1 million for the corresponding quarter in 1986.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	53	25
Spot TV	24,135	20,007
Spot radio	4,972	4,574
Outdoor	73	169
Total measured	29,233	24,775
Unmeasured	29,499	25,000
Total	58,732	49,775

LUCKY STORES
6300 Clark Ave.
Dublin, Calif. 94568
(415) 833-6000

Corporate Personnel

John M. Lillie, chmn-ceo
Lawrence DelSanto, president-coo

SOUTHERN FOOD DIVISION (LUCKY STORES)
Buena Park, Calif.
Corporate Personnel

William Yingling, president

Marketing Personnel

Dick Frederickson, vp, dir-mktg

NORTHERN FOOD DIVISION (LUCKY STORES)
San Leandro, Calif.
Corporate Personnel

Richard Goodspeed, president

Marketing Personnel

Alan Stec, vp-adv
Bob Hermanns, vp, dir-mktg

FLORIDA FOOD DIVISION (KASH N' KARRY)
Tampa, Fla.
Corporate Personnel

Ronald Floto, president

Marketing Personnel

W.D. Peterson, vp, dir-mktg
Michael Russell, vp-adv

MIDWESTERN FOOD DIVISION (EAGLE)
Rock Island, Ill.
Corporate Personnel

Pasquale Petitti, president

Marketing Personnel

Kenneth Martin, sr vp, dir-mktg
Ray Myers, vp, adv mgr

SOUTHWESTERN FOOD DIVISION (LUCKY STORES)
Corporate Personnel

Jack Hoover, president

Marketing Personnel

Dave Helmsing, adv mgr

Advertising Agency

Grey Advertising, Los Angeles—Jeff Alperin, sr vp-mgmt rep; Jill Baldauf, vp-acct super; Priscilla Wright, acct super; Randy Davis, acct exec.

MasterCard International

RANK 156

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Volume	93,800	73,300	28.0
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	52	39	33.5

Some of the blush was off the rose when MasterCard celebrated its 20th anniversary in 1986. In the past 10 years, MasterCard has lost 20 share points, dropping from a 60% market share to 40%, leaving Visa as the dominant player in the $205 billion bank charge-card business.

MasterCard, which continues to lose share, is now third in annual billings per customer card, even though it is second to Visa in market share of cards outstanding, says H. Spencer Nilson, publisher of "The Nilson Report," the credit-card industry newsletter.

In a new thrust designed to increase the annual billings per customer card, MasterCard has focused on niches. It rolled out the MasterCard BusinessCard which allows member banks to provide products to their corporate clients. MasterCard backed the card with more than $500,000 in media spending. The ID Plus card for clubs and other groups also was rolled out. Introduction of these cards helped influence a growth in business publications advertising to $982,000 from $117,000 in 1985.

In an effort to capture a bigger share of the travel and entertainment market, MasterCard began an affinity marketing program for free airline tickets, hotel stays and rental cars for Gold MasterCard holders. Ad spending for Gold MasterCard jumped by 38.5% to $3.6 million in 1986.

Working for the first time in cooperation with Visa, MasterCard signed up 16 major merchants, including Brooks Brothers and Jordan Marsh, who long resisted accepting bank cards of any kind. MasterCard believes this new market opportunity could be worth about $6 billion.

Overall, MasterCard's ad spending was up 33.7% to $52.4 million in 1986, primarily because of heavier spending in broadcast.

The company sharply curtailed support for its travelers cheques, with 1986 ad spending at $500,000, down significantly from $4 million in 1985.

In its advertising, MasterCard moved from touting status to touting the practical. It dropped its "so worldly, so welcome" theme in favor of a back-to-basics "Master the possibilities" campaign. That campaign, along with agency William Esty Co., New York, was dropped, apparently after complaints from members.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	5,858	4,423
Newsp. supps	67	144
Bus. pubs	983	117
Network TV	21,509	18,617
Spot TV	3,647	3,072
Network radio	2,080	0
Spot radio	2,685	1,262
Network cable	607	398
Total measured	37,436	28,033
Unmeasured	14,957	11,200
Total	52,393	39,233

MASTERCARD INTERNATIONAL
88 Seventh Street
New York, N.Y. 10106
(212) 974-5700
Marketing Personnel

F. Alan Schuitheis, sr vp-mktg & sales
Joanne Black, sr vp-mkg svcs
Susan Burke, vp-adv
Richard Hoipp, vp-BusinessCard
Bonnie MacDonald, dir-universal travel voucher
Walter Rothchild, dir-merch
James Shannahan, vp-consumer card prods
David Chirls, vp-prod devel

Advertising Agency

Lintas: New York—Russ Shaffer, sr vp-mgmt super; Helen Blohm, Robert Nadelman, vp-acct supers; Bob Cilia, acct super; Lois Serota, sr acct exec; Cindy Hewitt, Pamela Perkowski, Barbara Burger, acct execs; Lynn Giordano, exec vp-exec creative dir; Jeane Bice, sr vp-group creative dir; Ralph Palamidessi, vp-assoc creative dir; Bruce Hopman, vp-sr copywriter; Mike Jordan, sr copywriter; Yasmin Gnahremani, copywriter; Peter Nicotra, Bruce Arendash, art dirs; Nicole Meudersheid, Kathy Delaney, asst art dirs; Loretta Volpe, sr vp-group media dir; Jeffery Dunetz, assoc media dir; Jayson Goldberg, asst media dir.

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.

RANK 102

Osaka, Japan

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	28,067	30,998	(9.5)
Net income	1,004	1,512	(33.6)
U.S. advertising	80	86	(7.3)

Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Video equipment	9,220	11,597	(20.5)
Audio equipment	2,400	2,778	(13.6)
Home appliances	4,337	4,488	(3.4)
Communications	5,270	5,400	(2.4)
Kitchen related	1,274	1,183	7.6
Electronics	3,246	3,302	(1.7)
Other	2,321	2,252	3.1

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. is trying to shift its emphasis from consumer to commercial markets. It has placed a priority on developing new products for smaller businesses, retailers and homes, focusing on PC/work stations, word processors and facsimile equipment.

Matsushita, which sells products under the National, Panasonic, Technics and Quasar names, has accelerated a three-year campaign begun in 1984 to innovate its product line and hold down costs.

The rising yen and a critical falloff in its exports cut deeply into fiscal returns for last year. Export sales dropped to 44% of the company's total in the fiscal year ended Nov. 20, 1986, compared with 50% of the total the previous year.

The U.S. market, handled largely by Secaucus, N.J.-based Matsushita Electric Corp. of America, accounted for sales of about $3.7 billion in 1986, a leveling off from 1985. This represented 13% of worldwide sales.

Andy Imura, president-ceo of Matsushita Electric Corp. of America, is seeking to fill the vacant chief operating officer posts at both Panasonic Consumer and Panasonic Industrial divisions. And both subsidiaries are looking for an agency to replace Ted Bates Advertising, whose merger with Backer & Spielvogel to form Backer Spielvogel Bates in the Saatchi & Saatchi empire resulted in a conflict with another client.

The company also is expanding its efforts to increase overseas production to some 25% of output. In 1986 it built VCR plants in U.S. and Europe and began a U.S. car audio plant.

The company changed its fiscal year to a March 31 closing, beginning in 1987. During the abbreviated year running from Nov. 21, 1986 to March 31, 1987, sales were $10.2 billion, with overseas sales of $4.5 billion—44.4% of the total. Net income was $324 million. Results from the truncated year are based on the exchange rate of $1=Y146. In the full-year reporting period in the accompanying box, the exchange rate was $1=Y163.

Corporate spokesman Ken Shimba says the company expects annual double-digit growth in industrial products and single-digit increases in the mature consumer market. However, he cites "more intelligent telephones" and VCRs as still areas for growth.

Ron Tomczyk, spokesman for Panasonic Industrial, says the strong push on semiconductors and the division's 1986 introduction of a new laser printer, letter-quality printer, image scanner and color copier reflect the company's stimulation of its industrial product lines.

Matsushita needs to expand product lines quickly to compete with the top three copier leaders, Canon, Sharp and Xerox, says analyst Bob Sostilio of Dataquest, San Jose, Calif. Panasonic's facsimile transmission product is among the top five sellers in the U.S., along with Ricoh, Pitney Bowes, Xerox and Sharp, he says.

Paul Johnson, VP at L.F. Unterberg Rothschild, New York, says Panasonic ranks No. 8 worldwide and No. 20 in the U.S. in semiconductors. The company also will build its business of industrial robots and parts-mounting machines.

Long-range plans for the Panasonic consumer business involve developing audio-visual systems and home automation systems, high definition and digital TV digital audio systems, tape recorders and VCR systems. Its liquid crystal Panasonic PocketWatch TV is doing fairly well, given the limited U.S. market for the item, says Ken Shimba.

Matsushita holds 50-60% of the VHS full-cassette camcorder market and 20-30% of the smaller VHS-C VCR camcorder market. Still, as a brand name, Panasonic is second to No. 1 RCA. But it is the No. 1 manufacturer and supplier. Matsushita also supplies Eastman Kodak's 8mm video cameras and batteries, but it stopped production of TV sets for General Electric early this year because of rising costs. Matsushita's digital VCR is available only in Japan at present.

Leadership in the CD player segment is a toss-up between Panasonic and Sony, claims a Matsushita official.

The company's Quasar unit is struggling in a soft color TV market. Also, the division has not had an ad agency since December. Less than half of Quasar's sales are color TVs; the division is shifting to appliances, especially air conditioners. Tom Lauterback, communications manager, says September results were "very encouraging," and he is now talking tentatively with several agencies.

Total corporate measured media spending was $39.8 million, down 7.3% from 1985. Matsushita took to the airwaves in 1986, spending $7 million-plus on network TV compared with only $985,000 in 1985. Spot TV spending was increased 27.5% to $8.9 million. However, every other medium lost spending, particularly magazines, which were down 24.4% to $17.5 million.

BAR/LNA measured spending on Panasonic copiers was increased almost fourfold to $4.1 million. Spending on Omnivision products fell 21.8% to $3.3 million, and spending on Panasonic color TV sets rose 10% to $2.8 million.

Growth in Panasonic brand spending remained flat at $24.3 million. Quasar spending was down 80.7% to $1.1 million. Technics brand logged just $1.7 million, down 15%.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	546	4,046
Magazines	17,522	23,176
Newsp. supps	0	26
Bus. pubs	3,603	4,268
Network TV	7,025	985
Spot TV	8,851	6,940
Network radio	571	431
Spot radio	618	1,389
Outdoor	238	432
Network cable	796	1,188
Total measured	39,769	42,881
Unmeasured	40,040	43,174
Total	79,809	86,055

MATSUSHITA ELECTRIC CORP.
OF AMERICA
One Panasonic Way
Secaucus, N.J. 07094
(201) 348-7000
PANASONIC CO.
Marketing Personnel

Ralph Wolfe, sr vp-sales & mktg
Steve Asada, sr vp-planning & merch
Bob Greenberg, genl mgr-comm
Stan Hametz, vp-group mgr, VHS prods
Paul Adams, genl mgr-television
Dick Lovisojo, vp-group genl mgr, audio/home info prods
Bill Kopp, genl mgr, comm prods
Mickey Torimoto, genl mgr, Panasonic car audio
Mike Aguilar, vp-group genl mgr, Technics home/car audio
Maurice Guiheen, vp-group genl mgr, home appliance

Advertising Agency

Grey Advertising, New York—Bill Sandberg, acct super.

PANASONIC INDUSTRIAL CO.
Marketing Personnel

Frank Novak, genl mgr-comm

Advertising Agencies

Grey Advertising, New York—Hugh Esposito, acct super.

Lewis Gilman Kynett, Philadelphia—Bob Schell, vp.

Sommer Inc., New York—Bernie Sommer, president.

QUASAR
Elk Grove Village, Ill.
Marketing Personnel

Jack Pluckhan, president-coo
Keith Nishikana, exec vp
Tom Lauterback, mgr-comm
Wally Fraser, genl mgr-mktg

Mattel Inc.

RANK 139

Hawthorne, Calif.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,059	1,051	0.7
Net income	(1)	79	(101.3)

U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	623	765	(18.5)
Operating profits	6	97	(93.6)
Advertising	60	85	(29.6)

Mattel Inc., which relinquished its No. 1 position in the $12.5-billion toy industry to Hasbro in 1985, recorded sales of $1.06 billion in 1986, only 1% above 1985 levels, and a loss of $1 million. While a generally weak toy-buying market is primarily to blame, Mattel also attributes its static returns to a $250 million decline in U.S. sales of its Masters of the Universe toys and the discontinued Rainbow Brite line.

Total U.S. measured ad spending in 11 measured media dipped to $45.8 million, down 29.6% from 1985. This includes a 34% cut in network TV to $24.5 million in 1986. Mattel reports spending $198.2 million for advertising and promotion worldwide, up 6.7%.

The company has undergone several top-management changes in the past year, spurred by the retirement of Chairman-CEO Arthur Spear last October. To fill the void, Mattel created a three-member executive committee consisting of Thomas Kalinske, Raymond Ferris and John Amerman. While Mattel at the time insisted that this management structure was created to better divide responsibilities between its top executives, it eventually became a contest between the three men, with Mr. Amerman in February winning the chairman-ceo title. He was chosen in recognition of the performance of his international division, which grew 47% in 1986 to $481.7 million. Perhaps dissapointed over not being appointed chairman, Mr. Kalinske left Mattel in June to become president of Matchbox. Ray Ferris became exec VP, strategic planning.

Mattel cut its 1986 ad spending—mostly in spot and network TV—on toys by 29% to $20.6 million, according to BAR/LNA. Its Masters of the Universe action figure line remains a major brand internationally but seems to have lost considerable appeal in the eyes of U.S. youths. With the hope of rejuvenating the line in time for Christmas, the company this summer released a Masters of the Universe live-action motion picture starring Dolph Lungren and Frank Langella.

Although its 25-year-old Barbie doll remains No. 1 on the toy charts and accounts for 35% of the company's sales, Mattel would benefit from an innovative new winner. In 1986, the company spent $21.7 million advertising dolls and doll accessories, down 28% from 1985.

Games drew only $1.7 million in ad spending in 1986, down 45% from 1985.

But it is with a toy/game that Mattel hopes to make a killing in 1987-88: Captain Power and the Soldiers of the Future—a line of interactive action figures. Mattel predicts annual sales of $75 million.

The Captain Power toy line, designed for boys ages 7-12, includes jets and accessories that fire at on-screen enemies from up to 10 feet away and score points each time a target is hit. In turn, the TV "enemies" can return fire and take away points.

The line has met with protest from the watchdog group Action for Children's Television and is under the scrutiny of the Federal Communications Commission because the toy interacts directly with the TV set and virtually makes the Captain Power TV show a "30-minute commercial."

The show is what makes the Captain Power unique. The program features live action combined with computer animation, along with five minutes of interactive footage. The program is being produced by MTS Entertainment, a syndicated TV division the company set up earlier this year. It's headed by John Weems, VP-entertainment.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	480	524
Magazines	2,874	3,736
Newsp. supps	282	0
Bus. pubs	392	401
Network TV	24,498	37,166
Spot TV	14,999	20,805
Spot radio	642	0
Outdoor	178	195
Network cable	1,453	2,252
Total measured	45,797	65,077
Unmeasured	14,075	20,000
Total	59,872	85,077

MATTEL INC.
5150 Rosecrans Ave.
Hawthorne, Calif. 90250
(213) 978-5150
Marketing Personnel

John Amerman, chmn-ceo
Robert Sansone, president, Mattel USA
Joseph Morrison Jr., exec vp-mktg
Rita Fire, sr vp-mktg
George Volanakis, sr vp-mktg

Advertising Agencies

Foote, Cone & Belding—new prod lines—Steve Hayman, genl mgr; David Vipond, mgmt dir; Rob Hudnut, acct dir; Pamela Morris, acct exec.

Ogilvy & Mather, Los Angeles—Freddy Bee, vp-U.S. & intl mgmt super; Susan Chittum, vp-mgmt super, boys toys; Paula Heath, Ginger Sherman, Lisa Elliott, Jean Harfenist, acct supers; Michael Vernon, Noah Manduke,

If getting to the right celebrity has you all turned around,
let us put you straight.
INGELS, INC
(213) 852-0300

Christi Brunig, Tamara Burke, acct execs; Doris Cerneka, intl coord.

RANK

MCI Communications

125

Washington

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,592	2,542	41.3
Net income	(448)	113	(496.5)
U.S. advertising	67	61	8.6

MCI Communications, which boosted ad spending in 1986 to maintain its No. 2 position in long distance service behind AT&T, may be ripe for a merger with No. 3 U.S. Sprint next year, according to market analysts.

Last year's marketing strategy included the shift from consumer to business audiences as the residential rates became more competitive and the equal-access deadline passed. The year also saw the launch of the company's first network TV campaign and the acquisition of IBM's Satellite Business Systems.

What was unforeseen was the December 1986 heart attack, subsequent surgery and long convalescence of Chairman-CEO William McGowan. This caused internal management changes including the creation of a joint management team, with duties split between Mr. McGowan and former President V. Orville Wright, who was made acting ceo in April 1987. The co-ceo plan was announced in September 1987.

Also in September, Wells, Rich, Greene, New York, picked up the $40 million MCI account when D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles resigned over creative differences. In February 1986, MCI had disconnected Ally & Gargano, which had handled its consumer ad account, and consolidated all its creative work at D'Arcy, which previously handled the carrier's business-to-business advertising. Ally, which had been the leading MCI shop since 1979 and was responsible for the spots featuring Joan Rivers and Burt Lancaster, had made an unsuccessful bid to wrest the business-to-business account from Benton & Bowles in 1984.

The main business ad theme for MCI in 1986 was "Communication for the next 100 years," which appeared in all its TV spots and print ads. The corporation spent $12.5 million on network TV aimed at "executive watchers" during major sporting events. The campaign included commercials depicting MCI representatives competing against AT&T in athletic events, using the tagline "Because we compete. You win."

In an effort to expand its audience and remain competitive, the company joined American Express, Amway and Sears, Roebuck & Co. to target residential and small commercial markets. For example, MCI phone charges were billed through American Express cards, and an incentive program was provided Amway's 750,000 sales reps. Based on the successes of last year's tie-ins, MCI says it's seeking new partners to expand its efforts.

MCI holds a 12.5% long-distance share, a distant second to AT&T's 81% dominance. MCI holds a 16.1% share to the business market, says Blair Pleasant, analyst with the Yankee Group, Boston.

MCI Mail and CompuServe Inc. interconnected services in 1986, making it the first such domestic link of competing electronic mail services. The category was dropped from measured advertising spending in 1986.

MCI launched two new products in early 1987: MCI 800 service, an inbound WATS, and Prism Plus, a long distance service with "Dial 1" connections and distance-sensitive pricing for businesses spending $500 to $10,000 annually. In addition, a new hard card for savings when traveling was "restaged" by the company in May 1987.

"As we introduce new services, like 800 service, the initial campaigns will be print and broadcast, and there will be some follow-up with direct mail and telephone solicitations," said Gary Tobin, who was MCI director of corporate communications at the time.

Last year, MCI divested its Airsignal division (all assets and operations of its paging, mobile telephone and cellular telephone businesses) to a subsidiary of McCaw Communications Cos. of Kirkland, Wash.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	2,276	7,782
Magazines	6,716	2,194
Newsp. supps	101	0
Bus. pubs	1,233	271
Network TV	12,539	0
Spot TV	21,308	31,019
Network radio	2	0
Spot radio	564	97
Outdoor	16	0
Network cable	170	0
Total measured	44,924	41,363
Unmeasured	21,722	20,000
Total	66,646	61,363

MCI COMMUNICATIONS
1133 19th St. N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036
(202) 872-1600

Marketing Personnel

Howard Crane, sr vp-corp affairs
Judy Ranzer, vp-adv & sales promo
Karyn Selko, mgr-adv

Advertising Agency

Wells, Rich, Greene, New York—Pat Casa, group dir; Lisa Frankel, assoc dir.

RANK

Melville Corp.

177

Harrison, N.Y.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	5,262	4,775	10.2
Net income	238	211	13.1
U.S. advertising	44	36	23.2

Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Marshalls	1,410	1,324	6.4
Meldisco	1,006	990	1.6
CVS	1,181	1,017	16.1
Kay-Bee	487	401	21.4
Thom McAn	484	482	0.5

Melville Corp., a specialty retail company including Marshalls and Thom McAn, increased its number of stores by 4.6% to 5,833 in the U.S. and Puerto Rico in 1986. The company plans 343 more store openings by the end of 1987, and it is focusing on new market areas.

The company divides its operation into four segments, with apparel claiming 33.4% of sales, footwear 29.1%, drugs 23.7% and toys and household items 13.8%. Measured ad spending rose 40.2% to $25.8 million in 1986.

Marshalls is the largest operation in the apparel division. The off-price retailer, with sales of $1.4 billion, up 6.5% from 1985, brought its store total to 261 in 1986. Institutional TV spots claimed virtually all Marshalls' total measured spending of $10.9 million in 1986, according to BAR/LNA, compared with only a third of the spending in 1985.

Thom McAn footwear had 1,033 stores at the end of 1986. The unit registered $484 million in sales last year, up 0.5%, and spent $2.7 million, in measured media, according to BAR/LNA. Most was in spot TV in 1986, vs. magazines in 1985.

This End Up, a Richmond, Va.-based furniture chain that Melville acquired in 1985, closed the year with a total of 158 outlets. It garnered $54 million in sales in 1986, up 26%. Some $769,000 in advertising was spent on magazines and newspaper supplements.

Kay-Bee, a toy and hobby chain with 639 stores located in shopping malls, rolled up sales of $487 million, a 21% increase over 1985. Kay-Bee spent $1.9 million in measured advertising in spot TV and magazines.

The 629-store CVS drug, health and beauty aids chain, recorded $1.18 billion in sales in 1986, up 16%, and spent $3 million in magazines and spot TV, versus $2 million in 1985, all on spot TV.

The 536-store Chess King, the young men's apparel chain, registered $252 million in sales in 1986, up 22%. Chess King dropped its spending in magazines from $416,000 in 1985 to $164,000 in 1986.

Prints Plus, acquired in 1985, expanded from 36 to 69 stores in 1986. Although it brought in only $18 million in sales, Melville has marked it for future expansion.

Stanley P. Goldstein, Melville president, was named chairman-ceo upon the retirement of Francis C. Rooney Jr. Mr. Goldstein retains the office of president.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	2,163	3,824
Newsp. supps	1,127	84
Network TV	0	146
Spot TV	16,121	14,330
Spot radio	6,407	2,540
Outdoor	17	46
Total measured	25,836	20,970
Unmeasured	18,000	14,600
Total	43,836	35,570

MELVILLE CORP.
3000 Westchester Ave.
Harrison, NY 10528
(914) 253-8000

Corporate Personnel

Stanley P. Goldstein, chmn & president-ceo
Kenneth K. Berland, vice-chmn, admin & financial officer
Robert C. Kuhn, exec vp
Michael Friedheim, exec vp

MARSHALLS INC.
Wakefield, Mass.

Marketing Personnel

Michael Friedheim, president
Larry Finn, sr vp-genl merch mgr

Advertising Agency

(In-house)—John Arruda, vp-adv.

THOM MCAN
Worchester, Mass.

Marketing Personnel

Larry A. McVey, president
Richard Cramer, vp-mktg
Richard Ferraioli, vp-sales
Stephen L. Merriam, dir-adv

Advertising Agency

Pro Media, Wellesley, Mass.—Nancy Greenberg, acct super.

LINENS 'N THINGS
Clifton, N.J.

Marketing Personnel

Robert L. Karan, president
Thomas L. Fraser, vp
Kevin R. Wood, vp

Advertising Agency

Par Communications, New York—Bob Liquori, acct exec.

CHESS KING
New York

Marketing Personnel

Richard C. Ricalde, president
James J. Costello, sr vp
Lucy Monroe, sr vp
Rocky Sullivan, sr vp

WILSONS HOUSE OF SUEDE
Los Angeles

Marketing Personnel

Joel N. Waller, president
Howard Bergman, vp
Roger Chatfield, vp
Carol Lund, vp

MELDISCO
Mahwah, N.J.

Marketing Personnel

Elliott Schwartz, president
Martin Falkoff, sr vp
Ernest Osorowitz, sr vp

OPEN COUNTRY
Worchester, Mass.

Marketing Personnel

Arthur L. Hogge III, president
Louis Rossomando, vp

PIMENTO
Hackensack, N.J.

Marketing Personnel

Harvey M. Schafler, president
Eugene DeCarlo, vp
Martin Diamond, vp

CONSUMER VALUE STORES (CVS)
Woonsocket, R.I.

Marketing Personnel

Harvey Rosenthal, president
J. Kevin Hughes, exec vp
David R. Jonson, exec vp

FREDDY'S
Rochester, N.Y.

Marketing Personnel

Fred R. Silverstein, president
Anthony Dambra, vp
Murray Freeman, vp
William C. Kingsford, vp

KAY-BEE TOYS
Lee, Mass.

Marketing Personnel

Saul Rubenstein, president
R. Michael Cronin, vp
C. William DeMyer, vp
Anthony Palino, vp
Gerald Reed, vp

THIS END UP FURNITURE CO.
Richmond, Va.

Marketing Personnel

Stewart H. Brown Jr., president
Elizabeth R. Brown, exec vp

PRINTS PLUS
Martinez, Calif.

Marketing Personnel

Arthur J. Padovese, exec vp-genl mgr
Jack Brandon, vp
James Kelly, vp

MELVILLE REALITY CO.
Harrison, N.Y.

Corporate Personnel

Daniel B. Katz, president

Talking 'cranness'

"Raspberry juice straight is too strong, too sweet, too heavy. Add cranberry and it's very drinkable"—sampling of what Ocean Spray dubs "cranness" in ads.

RANK

Mennen Co.

134

Morristown, N.J.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	300	225	33.3
Net income	62	51	21.7
U.S. advertising	62	51	21.5

Privately held Mennen Co., riding a wave of new product introductions, recorded a 33% increase in sales last year and increased advertising support for its most important brands. Measured ad spending rose to $41.1 million in 1986, up 21.2% from 1985. Its use of television increased sharply in 1986, with an 18% gain in network, a 73% jump in spot and a 48% rise in cable. At the same time, the company stopped using network radio.

For 1987, the company planned another 20% increase in its ad budget, President Hal Danenberg says.

In the antiperspirant category, Mennen's corporate share of the $1.3 billion market may move into second place by the end of the year, according to Diana Temple, an analyst at Salomon Brothers. She estimates that for the second quarter of 1987, Procter & Gamble had a 24.8% share, followed by Gillette at 16.5%, Mennen at 16.1% and Bristol-Myers with 9.7%. She notes that Mennen's share has risen dramatically from 15.2% in 1986.

During 1986, Mennen put strong ad support behind its leading brands in the category. The company increased spending behind the Speed Stick antiperspirant line by 41% to $8.4 million and Lady Speed Stick antiperspirant by 23% to $6.7 million, according to BAR/LNA. Spending behind Speed Stick regular deodorant slipped 12% to a still-substantial $5.9 million.

Real antiperspirant, introduced nationally in 1986 and backed with measured media of $6.3 million, showed steady sales gains last year, sources say. Lady Speed Dry, another recent entry, went into national distribution this year.

Mennen concentrated its efforts in the men's fragrance category to back its two biggest after-shave brands. Skin Bracer spending was level at $6.8 million, while Afta support dropped 8% to $4 million. Millionaire received no measured spending.

Mennen continues to actively support its Baby Magic line. Baby products, including shampoos and powders, are estimated to represent a $300 million market, and Mennen has been making inroads against Johnson & Johnson, the leader. Now the company is testing Baby Magic Conditioning Shampoo in Cincinnati.

Also being tested is a new laundry detergent, even though Mennen reportedly is moving away from the highly competitive detergent category.

In September, Mennen moved advertising accounts worth an estimated $20 million in billings to Lowe Marschalk from Campbell-Ewald, both New York offices of Interpublic Group-owned agencies. The brands involved included Baby Magic baby toiletries, Skin Bracer and Afta after-shave lotions and Real antiperspirant.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	2,824	2,561
Bus. pubs	180	0
Network TV	33,365	28,284
Spot TV	2,085	1,205
Spot radio	141	78
Network cable	2,548	1,724
Total measured	41,141	33,851
Unmeasured	20,661	17,000
Total	61,802	50,851

MENNEN CO.
Hanover Ave.
Morristown, N.J. 07960
(201) 631-9000

Corporate Personnel

Donald Horne, chmn
Hal Danenberg, president
John R. Huges, president, USA div

Marketing Personnel

Dominic J. La Rosa, vp-mktg
William J. Mathewson, vp-new prods
Richard Zenko, vp-mktg svcs

Advertising Agencies

Lowe Marschalk, New York—Afta after-shave, Mennen skin bracer, Real antiperspirant, Baby Magic line—Jeffery Tarakajian, sr vp-mgmt super; Steven Rosenblum, vp-acct super; James Orr, acct exec.

McCann-Erickson, New York—Speed Stick deodorant, Speed Stick antiperspirant, Lady Speed Stick antiperspirants, Lady Speed Dry roll-on—Gunnar Wilmot, sr vp-group dir; Doug Wise, sr vp-mgmt rep; Kim Corrigan, vp-acct super; Christina Deal, Kevin Scher, acct exec.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

RANK

109

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Total income	19,467	18,835	3.4
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	73	57	28.2

Concentrating its new product development efforts on life and health insurance and investment products, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. boosted ad spending 28.2% in 1986, depite only a 3.4% growth in revenues.

The mutual insurance company is a leader in the development of healthcare cost-containment and managed health insurance plans.

Through its advertising campaign featuring Charles Schulz's "Peanuts" characters and its slogan, "Get Met, it Pays," the insurance company uses a variety of media to promote life insurance and employee benefit products to both general and corporate consumers. The insurer has used the cartoon characters since January 1985 to project an image of security and wholesomeness.

Metropolitan introduced three new life insurance products in 1986. Its multi-funded universal life product, known as "UL II," provides individuals with flexible life insurance premiums, enabling them to allocate premium dollars to several investment options, such as bonds, stocks and money market funds.

Another life insurance product, known as "Group Universal Life Insurance" enables employers to offer the same type of coverage as provided by UL II, but at group premium rates, which often are lower than rates charged to individuals.

In addition, the company introduced "Single Premium Life," marketed through stock brokerage houses as well as by Metropolitan Life's own sales force. Pension and personal life insurance products represented more than $35 billion in sales in 1986, according to the company.

The insurer also introduced a number of group health insurance products in 1986. One is Metropolitan's new "Triple Option" plan, which enables employers to offer their employees traditional group health insurance, a health maintenance organization or preferred provider organization coverage for one discounted premium. Usually, employers purchase each of these health plans separately.

A new Metropolitan healthcare cost-containment product reviews the treatments and procedures performed by physicians. The product, known as ambulatory utilization review, is popular with employee benefit managers.

Group insurance accounted for more than $41 billion in sales in 1986, according to the company.

Some $30 million of Metropolitan's advertising expenditures were for its various insurance and investment products, with the remaining being spent by its subsidiary, Irvine, Calif.-based Century 21 Real Estate. Metropolitan acquired Century 21 from Transworld Corp. of New York for $251.2 million in October 1985.

Metropolitan placed most of its ad dollars in TV and magazines, featuring the Young & Rubicam-inspired Peanuts ads.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	2,214	1,678
Magazines	8,284	6,924
Newsp. supps	52	83
Bus. pubs	47	505
Network TV	31,403	23,900
Spot TV	9,833	8,971
Spot radio	263	143
Outdoor	148	80
Network cable	1,820	19
Total measured	54,064	42,302
Unmeasured	18,900	14,600
Total	72,964	56,902

METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE
One Madison Ave.

New York, N.Y. 10010
(212) 578-2211

Marketing Personnel

Robert B. Weinstein, asst vp-adv
Richard W. Keogin, vp-public affairs
Charles T. Cuneen, sr vp-public affairs & corp comm

Advertising Agency

Young & Rubicam, New York—Richard Jones, vp-mgmt super.

CENTURY 21 REAL ESTATE CORP.

Irvine, Calif.

Marketing Personnel

Bruce Oseland, sr vp-mktg & adv

Advertising Agency

McCann-Erickson, Los Angeles—natl adv—Bob Sutter, vp-acct dir; Colin Schleining, acct super; Lisa Fettner, asst acct exec.

Minolta Camera Co. Ltd.

RANK 150

Osaka, Japan

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	1,815	1,440	26.0
Net income	65	40	62.6
U.S. advertising	56	57	(2.2)

The decline of the U.S. dollar against the Japanese yen helped produce poor results in fiscal 1987 for export-oriented Minolta Camera Co. Ltd. The firm derived 56.7% of its overseas sales from North America in the period, down from 60.8% in the previous year.

Minolta, the No. 1 seller of SLR 35mm cameras in the U.S., also has had to battle competition from Canon, which introduced an autofocus camera system of its own to compete with Minolta's highly successful Maxxum line. It was the introduction of the Maxxum that shot Minolta into the lead in U.S. SLR camera sales.

The 18% increase in the yen's value against the dollar meant that North America's 19% increase in dollar sales actually was a drop of 11.7% in yen. The Osaka-based company derives 77% of its sales from abroad.

Eugene Glazer, technology analyst for DeanWitter Reynolds, says, Minolta had tremendous lead time in the autofocus field because of its Maxxum and made the most of it. Now others are catching up.

Even though other manufacturers have introduced their own autofocus cameras and lenses, the experts say it will take more than matching systems to lure both amateur and professional photographers to buy competitive equipment. The reason? Price. The new equipment will be incompatible with photographers' existing systems.

During 1986, Minolta also expanded its business equipment lines and moved heavily into the office automation market. But the falling dollar forced the company to make cuts. And one of the casualties was the advertising budget. Total advertising expenditures in 1986 dropped 2.1% to an estimated $55.5 million. About half of the total is unmeasured advertising. A company spokesman says the ad estimates basically were in the ballpark.

Minolta is seeking a more specific audience for its advertising. A Minolta source says the company's broadcast advertising of two years ago—when Minolta began making copying machines—did the job of convincing the public that Minolta was not just a camera company. Now, he says, "we want to target more specifically."

With that in mind, ad campaigns have focused on national publications that target business decision-makers. In local markets, advertising has gone to business journals and publications for "highly targeted vertical markets" including lawyers, doctors and other professionals.

In the business equipment area, the company has focused on full-line advertising rather than single-product ads. The company plans to expand its office automation segment, aiming at fully integrated packages that include keyboard-based equipment, such as word processors, and telephone-based equipment, such as facsimiles. North America accounted for 55.9% of Minolta's business machine sales abroad in 1986.

The company also has a strong cooperative advertising program for dealers, which lets them make use of local newspapers and TV. Minolta has established a video studio to produce advertising to help dealers better target local markets.

The company has continued to expand its photography lines, introducing its Minolta 5000 autofocus for less sophisticated users in April 1986, its Freedom Dual lens-shutter compact camera in April 1987 and its Minolta Master Series C-3300 video camera, also in April 1987. But most of its new products came in the business equipment and office automation field.

During the year, it entered the high-volume copier market—after competing mainly in the low and middle volume areas—with the introduction of the 800 series.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	245	335
Magazines	6,402	5,921
Newsp. supps	0	156
Bus. pubs	801	1,002
Network TV	11,716	15,538
Spot TV	5,635	3,229
Network radio	692	0
Outdoor	121	82
Network cable	545	471
Total measured	26,155	26,734
Unmeasured	29,350	30,000
Total	55,505	56,734

MINOLTA CORP.

101 Williams Drive
Ramsey, N.J.
(201) 825-4000

PHOTOGRAPHIC DIVISION

Corporate Personnel

Sam Kusumoto, president
Kaz Umeda, vp

Marketing Personnel

James D. deMerlier, dir-adv & pr
Thomas E. Wardrop, natl adv mgr

Advertising Agency

William Esty Co., New York—SLR cameras, lens shutter cameras, video cameras, videocassette players/recorders, binoculars—Hank Greer, sr vp-acct dir; Philip G. Schwetz, sr vp-mgmt super; Salvatore Colombo, sr acct exec; Rand Pearsall, acct exec; Amanda Sawyer, asst acct exec.

BUSINESS EQUIPMENT DIVISION

Corporate Personnel

Sam Kusumoto, president, Minolta Corp
Al Kusada, vp-genl mgr, business equipment div

Marketing Personnel

John Vacca, dir-mktg comm
Tad Yokota, dir-mktg, document imaging systems

Advertising Agency

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York—business equipment—Al Shapiro, sr vp-acct group dir; Laurene Freehill, sr acct exec; Dale Davis, acct exec, Micrographics—Al Shapiro, sr vp-acct group dir; Jane Spachter, acct super; Donna Krams, acct coord.

Mitsubishi Motors Corp.

RANK 193

Tokyo

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	10,761	10,900	(1.3)
Net income	100	175	(42.8)
U.S. advertising	35	34	2.7

Steady growth has been the pattern for Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America, since the Fountain Valley, Cal.-based subsidiary of Mitsubishi Motors Corp., began marketing cars and trucks in this country in 1982. Advertising in 1986 remained near year-earlier levels, as did car sales, which were restricted by import quotas imposed by the Voluntary Restraint Agreement.

Industry analysts expect steady growth to accelerate into dramatic growth with the start of U.S. auto production next year. Likewise, company plans call for a 20% increase in the ad budget next year.

MMSA is the U.S. sales arm of Mitsubishi Motors Corp., Toyko, Japan. Principal shareholders in MMC include Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Ltd. (65%), Chrysler Corp. (25%) and Mitsubishi Corp. (10%).

Just as Chrysler owns a piece of MMC, Mitsubishi owns a 15% share of Hyundai. MMC designed the engine and supplies the automatic transmission for Hyundai's Excel. The South Korean-built car is being sold as the Precis under the Mitsubishi nameplate at 167 MMSA dealerships in 58 markets across the U.S.

The parent, Mitsubishi Motors Corp., which does not break out sales figures for its U.S. subsidiary, reported a drop in worldwide earnings of 42.8%, and a sales decline of 1.2%. Sales and earnings for both fiscal years were converted from yen to dollars at the exchange rate of 144.85Y=$1.

Unit car sales for calendar 1986 rose 9.4% over 1985 to 84,421—49,436 cars and 34,985 trucks. Prior year sales of 76,473 units were up 35% from 1984.

MMSA fell short of its sales projection of 100,000 cars and trucks for 1986. The company also had projected sales of 140,000-150,000 units for 1987. By mid-1987, U.S. sales stood at 59,635 units—34,147 cars and 25,488 trucks.

In 1986, Mitsubishi sold 14,639 entry-level Mirage models, with prices starting at $5,969 for the two-door. Ad support totaled $1.2 million, according to BAR/LNA. This vehicle was closely followed in popularity by the Galant, a four-door luxury sedan with prices starting at $14,139, which sold 14,363 units and received $3.2 million in measured media spending. Next came the $9,559 four-door Tredia (9,449 units), on the receiving end of $630,000 in media spending; the little advertised Cordia, a two-door sport hatchback priced at $9,859 (4,997 units); and Starion LE turbo coupe priced at $15,649 (5,792 units), which got $4.8 million in measured spending.

Mitsubishi actually sold 298 fewer cars in 1986 than 1985, a decline of 0.6% from the previous year. This also represented a slight decline in its import car market share, to 1.52% from 1.7% in 1985. By contrast, Toyota's share of the imported cars in the U.S. in 1986 stood at 19.7%, followed by 15.1% for Nissan, 14.1% for Honda, 6.8% for Mazda. Mitsubishi ranks sixth among Japanese auto importers and fifth in trucks.

Sales and market share figures are expected to change abruptly once the Mitsubishi production facility gets under way in 1988. The plant in Bloomington-Normal, Ill., operated by Diamond-Star Motors Corp., is a joint venture between MMC and Chrysler Corp. Diamond-Star will produce up to 240,000 cars a year, and the two companies will share in the output. Chrysler has sold Mitsubishi vehicles under Dodge and Plymouth nameplates since 1970.

Compact trucks, a category not restricted by the voluntary import quotas, accounted for about 40% of measured media, or about $7.9 million, the largest share for any Mitsubishi product. Most of that expenditure, according to BAR/LNA, went for spot TV.

Spot TV for all brands represented about 35.4% of the company's measured media expenditures for 1985, down from about 53% in 1985. Other major media shares were magazines, 18.1%; newspapers, 15.9%; network TV, 12.3%; and business publications, 7.1%.

The year also saw the company's first use of network TV for the introduction of a refurbished line of pickup trucks and existing sports/utility vehicles. Network TV in September-October for MMSA and its dealer groups was $15-$17 million for the fall campaign. A substantial portion of the $7.1 million in unmeasured media spending in 1986 was devoted to a cooperative ad program for dealers.

In March 1987, Mitsubishi dealerships began receiving the "car that make sense," the Hyundai-manufactured Precis, a South Korean subcompact similar to Hyundai's popular Excel. The Precis (rhymes with "thesis") is expected to account for 20% of Mitsubishi's 1987 ad budget.

Sales of the Precis, like imported Japanese trucks, are not governed by the quotas in the Japanese Voluntary Restraint Agreement. This permits MMSA dealers to boost sales and profits with these new economy models without cutting imports of its higher-price, and more profitable, Japanese cars. Mitsubishi forecasts sales of 30,000 Precis cars this year, about 37% of a total 80,000 projected car sales for 1987. Between its introduction in March and Sept. 30, Precis sales were 16,047. To Sept. 1, total passenger car sales amounted to 47,480 units, a 32.6% increase over the same period in 1986.

Promotion for Precis uses the term "Imported by Mitsubishi" in ads. The $6 million campaign included two TV spots that began airing in early March in the 31 markets covered by Mitsubishi dealers and ran through mid-April. Dealer associations were expected to spend an additional $2 million during the launch.

For the 1988 car year Mitsubishi reintroduced its top-of-the-line Galant sedan as the Galant Sigma with a new 3-liter, V-6 engine. The front-wheel-drive Sigma, priced at $16,549, is being promoted as a bargain when compared with Toyota's Cressida (which costs more than $20,000) and as offering more for the money than the similarly priced Nissan Maxima. In supporting the upscale Galant Sigma, Mitsubishi also took shots at American Honda; MMSA marketers dubbed the car the "Acura killer."

Sigma was launched with a $5.1-million ad program aimed at affluent professionals. The campaign premiered during the U.S. Open in September. Mitsubishi estimates it will sell 15,000-20,000 Galant Sigmas during the 1988 model year.

Introductory campaign for the entire '88 line was pegged at $12.2 million, with an estimated 50% of that being spent on Sigma, reportedly the largest expenditure ever made by Mitsubishi for the launch of new models. The Mirage, promoted as a family car, had the benefit of $2.8 million of the budget, with another $2.8 million allotted to pickup truck advertising that emphasized price/value advantages.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	5,509	5,362
Magazines	6,260	4,712
Bus. pubs	1,954	1,972
Network TV	3,383	0
Spot TV	9,677	14,210
Spot radio	146	213
Outdoor	124	0
Network cable	270	129
Total measured	27,323	26,597
Unmeasured	7,191	7,000
Total	34,514	33,597

MITSUBISHI MOTOR SALES OF AMERICA

10540 Talbert Ave.
Fountain Valley, Calif. 92708
(714) 963-7677

Marketing Personnel

Garrett J. (Mike) Nash, vp-mktg
Frances Oda, adv mgr
Jeanne Hoover, sales promo mgr
Tim Gallagher, pr mgr

Advertising Agency

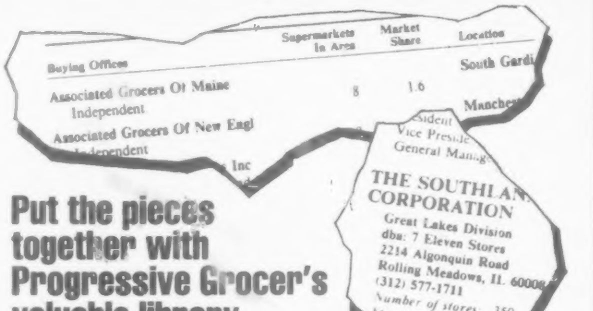
Grey Advertising, Los Angeles—Bruce McRitchie, sr vp-genl mgr; John Miley, vp-group mgmt super.

A BMW marketing 'formula'

In 1986, BMW's zest for racing continued with its two-car entry in the International Motor Sports Assn. GTP Championship racing circuit and with expansion of BMW/Skip Barber Advanced Driving School for auto enthusiasts. The driving school, run by former Formula One drivers, has four locations—Connecticut, California, Florida and Wisconsin.

Ruth Sklar Associates, Inc.
executive search professionals
Specialists in Marketing and Advertising Executives
- Packaged Goods
- Financial Services
- Advertising Agencies

475 Park Avenue South, NY, NY 10016 (212) 213-2929



Put the pieces together with Progressive Grocer's valuable library of directories

Marketing Guidebook profiles over 800 supermarket chains & wholesalers in 55 U.S. & Canadian markets. The "who's who" guide to the supermarket industry offers company level data, key personnel and buyers' name.

Market Scope provides a quantitative look at supermarket distribution. Displaying retail market shares for 2,500 buying offices, within syndicated market areas, it's the "what's what" guide to the supermarket industry.

Directory of Mass Merchandisers profiles nearly 850 discount/variety chains, drug stores, 5¢-10¢ stores, department stores & club-type stores, indicating store data, corporate plans, key personnel & buyers. A one-stop retail overview!

Directory of Convenience Stores profiles 1,200 convenience store companies in 53 U.S. market areas. Its comprehensive store data includes suppliers' names, stores selling gas, franchises, personnel & buyers!

Retail Tenant Directory offers 3,000 chain company profiles, which cover market penetration & expansion plans. It also lists key executives and their titles.

☎ For immediate service, call (203) 325-3500, ext. 547

Progressive Grocer Information Sales
1351 Washington Blvd.
Stamford, CT 06902

PROGRESSIVE GROCER INFORMATION SALES

72A

NEC Corp.

RANK 165

Tokyo

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	16,779	15,991	4.9
Net income	103	186	(44.7)
U.S. advertising	50	32	54.2
Division sales	1987	1986	% chg
Communications	4,794	5,117	(6.3)
Computers	6,932	5,858	18.3
Electron devices	2,856	3,022	(5.5)
Home electronics	1,290	1,226	5.2
Other	908	768	18.2

NEC Corp., Tokyo, dramatically expanded its advertising and marketing efforts in 1986, particularly for consumer electronics products. Overall, the Japanese company, which previously had maintained a low profile, is working to develop a higher visibility and a stronger corporate image in the U.S.

Sluggish demand from developing nations and a worldwide slump in the semiconductor industry helped contribute to the company's slow growth in worldwide sales. So, too, did the strong yen. Sales in NEC's export markets actually dropped 10% in yen. NEC does not break out sales specifically for North America. Figures for both 1987 and 1986 fiscal years in the accompanying box were converted at the rate of Y146=$1.

The company, according to measured media reports, spent $25 million in media advertising in 1986, up 28.2% from 1985. Largely a business-to-business advertiser, NEC spending is dominated by print. Spending in general interest magazines gathered steam in 1986, growing 75% to $12.1 million; campaigns in business papers grew 41.3% to $8.9 million. NEC says its total media budget for the year was $31.8 million.

The company's leading U.S. subsidiary, NEC America, Melville, N.Y., markets communications systems. Other subsidiaries are responsible for computer systems and consumer products, including VCRs and televisions. The subsidiaries handle their own advertising and marketing, with varying levels of guidance from NEC corporate headquarters in Tokyo.

This year, NEC Home Electronics received a major infusion of marketing money, $40 million. The funds are being put into a major TV and print campaign promoting all the company's consumer electronics products. By comparison, during 1986 NEC Home Electronics spent about $5 million in measured media, according to LNA figures, with spending on its color TVs the most, at $1.4 million.

NEC America also launched a major corporate campaign in 1986. Called Famous Persons, the ads use Leonardo da Vinci, Beethoven and Casey Stengel to illustrate how well NEC products work together. Another new campaign, referred to as the Kids ads, are based on real life examples of children visiting NEC facilities. They are designed to give the company "a high touch feeling, not just high tech," says Glenn Crane, director of corporate communication and marketing.

Last year NEC America spent approximately $4 million on advertising and promotion, according LNA figures, almost four times what it spent the year before. Hakuhodo America, New York, handles the NEC America account.

NEC Information Systems broke a major print and TV campaign for its APC personal computer line and the company's highly regarded computer printers, described as the subsidiary's largest campaign ever. The year before, the company had introduced its IBM-compatible computers with a $5 million TV campaign. Boston-based Ingalls, Quinn & Johnson handles the account.

The company recently renewed its $2 million sponsorship contract of the World Series of Golf for another three years.

One element that will run through all NEC advertising is the company's new creative positioning. "Networking—how all our products work together—is the biggest message we will be putting out," says Mr. Crane.

NEC America media usage will continue to be heavy in print. The advertiser placed ads in 181 publications in 1986. Other units also are extensive print users. Much of NEC's broad-audience print advertising—ads in general business publications—are placed from Tokyo, says Mr. Crane.

NEC selectively uses conventional TV and cable TV, particularly CNN and USA Cable networks. Though modest in size, expenditures of $441,000 on cable TV and $423,000 on network TV monitored by BAR/LNA in 1986 will increase dramatically in 1987 because of major new TV campaigns by NEC's Home Electronics and Information Systems subsidiaries.

The company also is initiating better media management to improve coordination of media placement among divisions. The company wants to pressure publications in which it is a frequent advertiser into giving it greater discounts—which may be difficult as long as advertising is loosely coordinated.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	2,883	4,707
Magazines	12,117	6,846
Newsp. supps	40	0
Bus. pubs	8,912	6,338
Network TV	423	204
Spot TV	36	615
Spot radio	53	3
Outdoor	186	247
Network cable	441	526
Total measured	25,090	19,487
Unmeasured	25,000	13,000
Total	50,090	32,487

NEC AMERICA INC.
6 Old Sod Farm Road
Melville, N.Y. 11747
(516) 753-7000

Corporate Personnel

Masami Shinozaki, sr vp-corp mktg
Glenn Crane, dir-mktg comm, corp mktg div

Marketing Personnel

Jeff White, mgr-mktg & planning, broadcast equipment div
Ivan Launer, mgr, adv/conventions, business systems sales div
Chris Nakamoto, mgr, prod support, data comm prods department
Y. Akiyama, mgr, electromechanical devices department
Herbert C. Johnson, dir-mktg, facsimile div
Jack Pelzman, mgr-adv & pr, mobile radio div
Masaru Sakamoto, sr sales admin, new prods department
Sherrie Sullivan, mgr-adv & promo, radio & transmission systems group
Russ Heuer, mgr-mktg comm, switching systems div

Advertising Agencies

Andrews Mautner, Milwaukee, Wis.—CCD cameras, radio & tv transmitters, digital video effects—Kit Vernon, exec vp.

Hakuhodo Advertising America, New York—corp adv—Lou Lehner, sr vp; Robert Schulman, acct dir. Cellular mobile phones, pagers—Brian Ribbey, acct super, L.A.

Kopf & Isaacson, Melville, N.Y.—PBX & key systems, facsimile—Ken Kopf, partner; Lisa Lennard, acct super.

Lemons Communications, Irving, Texas—central office switching systems—Brian Lemons, acct super.

Stackig, Sanderson & White, McLean, Va.—microwave radio, satellite comm, fiber optic network systems, carrier transmission prods—Larry Anderson, Joan Garber, acct supers.

Winston Advertising, San Jose, Calif.—data comm prods including modems and mediaboard—Monica Newman, acct super.

NEC ELECTRONICS INC.

Marketing Personnel

Bruce Hildebrand, dir-corp comm
Denise Iwata, adv mgr

Advertising Agency

(In-house)

NEC HOME ELECTRONICS INC.

Marketing Personnel

Gerald Tangney, vp-corp mktg comm
Grant Schneider, dir-mktg comm
Stan Gray, sr vp-mktg, audio/video div
Keith Schaefer, sr vp, personal computer div
Tom Martin, asst vp-mktg, personal computer div
Jerry Benson, asst vp-mktg, personal computer div

Advertising Agency

DDB Needham, New York—NEC home electronics—Darrell Lindberg, vp, personal computer prods; Alexa Cullman, acct super, personal computer prods; Al Mitchell, Val Gleason, acct execs, audio & video prods.

NEC INFORMATION SYSTEMS INC.

Marketing Personnel

Richard M. Underwood, president
Frank Girard, vp-systems mktg
C. Richard Harrison, vp-peripherals mktg
Richard Bochenek, vp-mktg operations
Peter V. Ferguson, dir-mktg comm

Advertising Agency

Ingalls, Quinn & Johnson, Boston—Jeff Johnson, acct exec, personal computers; Liz Farley, acct exec, peripherals.

Faberge jilted by Notorious

Faberge placed its eggs in the wrong basket when it negotiated with Edison Bros., St. Louis, over the use of Notorious, a trade name under dispute with Cosmair Inc. A district court judge in January 1987 ruled Cosmair owned the name.

News Corp. Ltd.

RANK 181

Sydney

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	2,670	1,900	40.5
Net income	170	74	128.4
U.S. advertising	43	41	4.0

Riding the wave of media acquisitions, News Corp. Ltd. recorded record revenues and income for the fiscal year that ended this June. Rupert Murdoch's empire has doubled its sales and increased profits more than five times in five years as News Corp. continues to expand into virtually all media areas.

Its most recent acquisitions include the purchase of the Herald and Weekly Times Ltd. and associated companies in Australia, the Hong Kong-based South China Morning Post Ltd. and, in the U.S., Harper & Row Publishers Inc., New York.

News Corp. also completed, though with some problems, the $50 million launch of Fox Television Co., a fourth network carried on a majority of the U.S.'s independent television stations. Its prime-time lineup has grown to modest ratings and generally critical approval, while its "Late Show with Joan Rivers" had disastrous ratings, lost its host and is now simply "The Late Show."

The company's base continues to be newspapers on three continents, which provide half of its revenues. News Corp. publishes The Australian, that country's only national newspaper, and London's Times and Sunday Times. In the U.S., Mr. Murdoch may be getting out of the newspaper business, or at least cutting his losses by selling the unprofitable New York Post as well as the now-profitable Boston Herald. Mr. Murdoch told analysts recently he would not seek a permanent waiver of the federal "cross-ownership" rules that prevent multiple ownership of media in the same market. A waiver would allow him to keep his newspaper and TV station properties in both New York and Boston.

News Corp.'s interest of late is in acquiring book publishers. In 1986, the company bought Harper & Row, New York, and most recently, Mr. Murdoch increased to 13.5% his stake in Pearson PLC, owner of London's Financial Times, Penguin Books and the New American Library.

News Corp. says it won't make a full bid for Pearson, but rather work with the British publisher on international publishing ventures. This could include the joint marketing of Penguin and Harper & Row books. Also, analysts say News Corp. could use excess printing capacity at its Hong Kong-based South China Morning Post to print an Asian edition of the Financial Times.

News Corp. laid out $1.3 million in advertising on the seven Fox Television stations for general promotion. The stations, which include WFXT-TV in Boston and WNYW-TV in New York, have a 23.9% coverage of all U.S. TV households and constitute the core of Fox Broadcasting Co.

According to BAR/LNA, the company's largest segment of advertising—20th Century Fox films—decreased its spending 7.2% in 1986 to $19 million, in part because the studio was promoting 10 movies compared with 15 in 1985. Spending on the Star, Mr. Murdoch's weekly supermarket magazine, decreased by 7.8% to $9.7 million. The Star changed from tabloid to magazine and had a rate base increase of 300,000 to 3.5 million copies a week.

Mr. Murdoch also spent less on Elle, one of his fastest-growing titles. The magazine, published jointly with French publisher Hachette, received $450,000 in spending in 1986, down 51%. Elle has grown from about 300,000 monthly circulation in late 1985 to more than 700,000 in mid-1987.

Spending for European Travel & Life, which Mr. Murdoch acquired in March 1986, was $128,000.

In January 1987, the slick travel magazine went from a bi-monthly to ten times a year. For Automobile, a special-interest consumer magazine startup in 1986 with initial circulation of 200,000, Mr. Murdoch spent $326,000 advertising subscriptions.

Another promising magazine launch was Premiere, a monthly movie magazine for the general reader. With a guaranteed rate base of 250,000, Premiere has been a critical success.

Some analysts expect Premiere to go fortnightly to accommodate the quick release and short life span of new movies.

In newspapers, the Post received $990,000 in advertising backing subscriptions and general promotion, a decline of 22%.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	711	113
Magazines	3,930	2,645
Newsp. supps	169	377
Bus. pubs	275	253
Network TV	5,688	6,592
Spot TV	25,125	23,992
Network radio	103	214
Spot radio	849	854
Outdoor	110	310
Network cable	996	1,126
Total measured	37,954	36,476
Unmeasured	5,200	5,000
Total	43,154	41,476

NEWS CORP. LTD.
2 Holt Street
Sydney, Australia N.S.W. 2010
288-3000

Corporate Personnel

Rupert Murdoch, chmn & ceo

NEWS AMERICA PUBLISHING
New York

Marketing Personnel

Martin Singerman, president

MURDOCH MAGAZINES

Marketing Personnel

John Evans, president
Les Hinton, exec vp

TWENTIETH CENTURY-FOX FILM CORP.
Los Angeles

Marketing Personnel

Barry Diller, chmn & ceo
Alan Horn, president-coo
Jonathan Dolgen, sr exec vp

FOX TELEVISION STATIONS
New York

Marketing Personnel

Kenneth Becker, vp, dir-business affairs

HARPER & ROW PUBLISHERS
New York

Marketing Personnel

Norman Pomerance, group vp, genl books div
Edward L. Burlingame, sr vp-publisher, trade div
Neal Sweet, vp-publisher, college div
Nak Young Choung, vp-dir, intl div
M.S. Wyeth Jr., vp-exec editor, trade div

Advertising Agencies

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—Stephen Rose, ceo.

Grey Entertainment & Media, New York—Al Lieberman, president.

Peter Rogers & Associates, New York—Peter Rogers, president.

North American Philips

RANK 103

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	4,532	4,395	3.1
Net income	69	82	(16.0)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	4,326	4,217	2.6
Operating profits	N/A	N/A	N/A
Advertising	79	68	17.1

Competitive imports from the Far East, fierce price competition and the weak U.S. dollar continued to wreak havoc on profit margins of almost every division of North American Philips Corp. in 1986.

NAPC returns remained static as earnings dropped 16.5% on a sales growth of 3.1% in 1986 compared to 1985. These results compare to an earnings decline of 37.4% on a 1.6% growth in sales in the 1985-1984 period.

The company nonetheless continued to introduce new products and boosted its advertising spending 17%, to an estimated $79.4 million.

The company switched agencies on its Norelco and Magnavox product lines last year. The Norelco shift was part of a review of suppliers under new management. Dick Kress, president of the Consumer Products Division, left in November 1986; he was replaced by Winfried van't Hoff from The Netherlands headquarters.

The biggest beneficiaries in measured media were network and spot TV. NAPC increased network spending 35%, to $18.5 million in 1986, and doubled spot TV spending to $10.7 million. Outdoor and business papers were all but eliminated from the media mix.

The big advertising division, NAP Consumer Products, had sales of $2.4 billion, up 3.1% from 1985, and operating income of $32.9 million, down from $72.2 million the prior year. The most troubled segment within the division was the NAP Consumer Electronics Corp. It reported sales of $1.3 billion, up 8%, and an operating loss of $6.4 million, compared to an operating loss of $19.6 million in 1985.

The consumer products division was reorganized in 1986 to coordinate worldwide development, engineering and product planning with NAP's parent company, N.V. Philips of The Netherlands, which owns 58% of its stock.

N.V. Philips and its overseas affiliates also supply NAPC with products equivalent to 20% of NAPC's sales—a problem for NAPC with the dollar at an all-time low. NAPC imports its electric razors, TV and audio products from N.V. Philips.

NAPCEC revenues grew primarily from the division's sales of Magnavox, Philco and Sylvania electronics lines of color TV sets, video cassette recorders and compact disc players, all of which are in rapidly growing markets where pricing is influenced heavily by less-expensive imports from the Far East.

The market for compact disc players, for example, grew by 86% last year, resulting in the sale of 1.8 million units. There are 75 brands and 500 models available in the market.

In 1986, the Magnavox product lines were broadened to include a wide range of high-tech systems such as the Magnavox Videowriter home word processor, billed as "the first complete word-processing system for the home."

The electronics line continued to draw heavy advertising in 1987. In mid-September, Magnavox launched a $20 million print and TV campaign titled "Smart, Very Smart," using Comedians Dick and Tom Smothers.

The campaign, designed to make high-tech changes in the products seem less intimidating, was created by agency Backer Spielvogel Bates, New York, which won the Magnavox account in 1986. Philco/Sylvania advertising is still handled in-house.

The consumer products groups' electical products segment—which includes such operations as North American Philips Lighting Corp., Norelco and Philips Home Products—reported $890 million in sales and $15.9 million in net income in 1986, down from $907 million and $73.5 million, respectively, in 1985. The loss in net income was caused by the high cost of introducing the Philips light bulb line, as well as price competition from low-cost imports, the company says.

The new light bulb line was backed by a $15 million advertising campaign called, "It's time to change your bulb." The light bulb line maintains a 20% share of the $1 billion light bulb market, compared with 60% for General Electric.

Within the electrical consumer products segment, the Norelco Consumer Products subsidiary maintained its lead in the $280 million electric shaver market with a share of 53%, despite price competition.

In 1986, Norelco added five new men's shavers to its line. It also added an automatic shut-off iron, four new coffee makers and a wide array of garment care products.

In the hand iron category, Norelco remains far behind leaders Black & Decker (with a 41% market share) and Wear-Ever/Proctor-Silex (20%), according to Dana Chase's Appliance magazine. In drip coffee makers, Norelco ranked No. 2 with a 16% share compared with No. 1 North American Systems' 23%.

D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, New York, became the new Norelco agency, replacing McCaffrey & McCall, New York.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	276	647
Magazines	6,044	7,445
Newsp. supps.	416	323
Bus. pubs	366	2,259
Network TV	18,570	13,781
Spot TV	10,733	5,311
Network radio	678	570
Spot radio	218	740
Outdoor	1	60
Network cable	1,107	1,680
Total measured	38,409	32,814
Unmeasured	40,968	35,000
Total	79,377	67,814

NORTH AMERICAN PHILIPS
100 East 42nd St.
New York, N.Y. 10017
(212) 697-3600

Corporate Personnel

Cees Bruynes, chmn-president

N.A.P. CONSUMER ELECTRIC CORP.
Knoxville, Tenn.

Corporate Personnel

Donald F. Johnstone, president

Marketing Personnel

William Ulewicz, vp-Magnavox sales
Rick Policicchio, vp-Sylvania/Philco sales
Robert Beasley, vp-NAPCEC mktg
Frans Bastiaanssen, vp-operations
David Rivoira, vp-new business ventures
Dick Whittington, mktg mgr, Philips Home Interactive Systems

Advertising Agencies

Lowe Marschalk, New York—Philips Home Interactive Systems—Karl Maier, vp-mgmt super.

Backer Spielvogel Bates, New York—Magnavox div—Charles Decker, sr vp-mgmt super.

CONSUMER PRODUCTS DIVISION
Stamford, Conn.

Marketing Personnel

Winfried van't Hoff, president
John P. Rohmer, adv mgr

Advertising Agency

D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, New York—Svend Mejdal, acct exec.

N.A.P. LIGHTING CORP.
Somerset, N.J.

Marketing Personnel

Alan K. Hegedus, president-mktg
Charles Stuart, exec vp-sales & mktg
Jerry Preyss, dir-mktg operations

Advertising Agency

Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York—Tom Bohan, mgmt dir; Joe McCarthy, mgmt super; Tom Hay, acct super; Chuck Hirsh, acct exec; Mary Rowe, asst acct exec.

PHILIPS HOME PRODUCTS
Akron, Ohio

Marketing Personnel

John T. Gray, president
Michael Reilly, vp-mktg & sales
Michael Fox, adv mgr

Advertising Agency

W.B. Doner & Co., Cleveland and Detroit—Peter Robinson, acct mgr.

ANCHOR BRUSH CO.
Montgomery, Ill.

Marketing Personnel

B.F. Bouldin, president
B.L. Slaughter, vp-mktg

PHILIPS BUSINESS SYSTEMS
Woodbury, N.Y.

Marketing Personnel

Paul Dentone, president
Timothy Holmes, adv dir

Advertising Agency

Greenstone & Rabasca, Woodbury, N.Y.—Richard D'Amico, vp-acct super.

PHILIPS MEDICAL SYSTEMS
Shelton, Conn.

Marketing Personnel

Dominick M. Protomastro, president
Ross Trimby, vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

Doyle Graf Mabley, New York—Peter Larson, acct super.

NWA Inc.

RANK 153

Eagan, Minn.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,589	2,655	35.2
Net income	77	73	5.2
U.S. advertising	53	46	15.0
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Passenger	2,920	2,154	35.6
Freight	407	328	23.8
Mail	88	80	9.2
Charter/other	78	56	39.3
Other	96	37	163.4

NWA Inc., the Eagan, Minn.-based parent of Northwest Airlines, hit unexpected turbulence in combining its operations with those of Republic Airlines, the Minneapolis-based carrier it acquired for $862 million in October 1986.

Labor disputes resulting from merged workforces caused morale problems and alleged sabotage at Northwest's major hub operations in Detroit, Memphis and Minneapolis/St. Paul. Passenger luggage routing tags, for example, were said to have been deliberately removed by disgruntled employees, and mechanics reportedly stalled plane repairs, causing delays throughout Northwest's route system.

Most of that turmoil has ended, however, and the airline now is trying to position itself as a major national and international carrier—serving 135 cities—in an increasingly confusing deregulated environment.

Worldwide ad spending for NWA in 1986 was $67.4 million, a 48% jump from 1985, due mainly to three months' worth of advertising from newly-acquired Republic, which spent $25 million for the year as a U.S.-only carrier. Of the 1986 Northwest total, $31 million was spent on passenger advertising in the U.S. and another $29 million overseas for trans-Pacific and European routes. Those figures, which included $17.2 million in measured U.S. media spending, will remain essentially the same for 1987. (Spending by Republic prior to Oct. 1, 1986, is not included in the figures, although in the measured totals).

Mainline Travel, a Minnetonka, Minn.-based tour wholesaler known as MLT Vacations, spent approximately $5 million during the year on newspaper ads promoting leisure travel packages to Las Vegas and other cities. The remaining ad budget is spent primarily on cargo and other non-passenger services.

While American, Continental, TWA and other airlines already had routes sprawled across the country, Northwest and Republic's strength mainly was confined to the Midwest and Southeast. "We have the most ground to make up as it relates to national awareness of [Northwest] as a national airline," says John Temple, senior VP-marketing programs at Northwest. But, he says, "the synergy we hoped for in the merger is definitely there. We've increased traffic but decreased capacity."

Northwest Airlines passenger service revenues of $2.92 billion in 1986 accounted for 81% of companywide operating revenues. In the first half of 1987, NWA earned net income of nearly $15.7 million; during the year-ago period, NWA lost $23 million. Operating revenues were $2.48 billion, up 85.3% because of the addition of Republic flights.

Northwest's marketshare in 1986 climbed to 9.9%, compared with 6.9% without Republic in 1985. For the first nine months of 1987, its share of revenue passenger miles was 9.3%, ranking it sixth among U.S. airlines.

Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York (and a service office in Minneapolis), has refined the initial image campaign and focused it more on WorldPerks, the frequent-flyer program the agency handled under Republic's stewardship.

The agency's first image effort for the combined airline, themed "Look to us. Fly with us. Northwest," was replaced in September 1987 by a harder-edged pool of eight 15-second TV spots. These humorously highlight attractive frequent-flyer bonuses, lower fares and convenient schedules to U.S., European and Pacific destinations.

Northwest plans to add off-peak Atlantic and trans-Pacific routes (Manchester, England, and Tokyo) backed with ad support, and will introduce senior-citizen and vacation travel programs jointly with NWA's MLT Vacations unit.

The airline has received Department of Transportation approval to begin service some time in 1988 from Boston to Manchester, England. In April 1987, Northwest began nonstop service to Tokyo from its Detroit hub. Northwest Airlink, a marketing partnership linking four regional commuter carriers to Northwest's main route system, adds 60 small U.S. cities to the network.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	22,219	16,851
Magazines	8,536	3,634
Newsp. supps.	144	0
Bus. pubs	535	71
Network TV	938	0
Spot TV	4,712	12,205
Network radio	587	0
Spot radio	2,672	3,878
Outdoor	1,555	331
Network cable	631	0
Total measured	42,529	36,970
Unmeasured	10,353	9,000
Total	52,882	45,970

NORTHWEST AIRLINES
2700 Lone Oak Parkway
Eagan, Minn. 55121
(612) 726-2111

Marketing Personnel

A.B. "Sky" Magary, exec vp-mktg
W. Thomas Lagow, sr vp-mktg planning
Montie Brewer, sr dir-schedule planning
Raymond Foss, vp-mktg systems
Eric Wilson, sr dir-reservations sales
David Behrends, vp-cargo
Ross Kohlman, sr dir-sales
John Temple, vp-mktg programs
Jean Caselli, sr dir-passenger mktg program
Judith Mitchell, sr dir-mktg comm
Susan Goode, dir-mktg rsch

Advertising Agencies

Kolesar & Hartwell, Minneapolis—industry mktg (trade adv), meetings and incentives, cargo—David Kolesar, president, mgmt super; Doug Sietsema, exec vp; Bob Sievers, acct super; Jill Cole, Sheri Hermanson, acct execs

Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York and Minneapolis—No. American passenger adv, Northwest Airlink regional carrier—Michael Keeshan, mgmt dir (New York); Cody Dalton-Eddy, sr vp-mgmt super (New York); Peter Levitan, sr vp-mgmt super (Minneapolis); David Fishman, acct super (New York); Mark Wilmot, acct exec (New York); Sandra Pursley, acct exec (Minneapolis).

TMP (Telephone Marketing Programs), Minneapolis—Yellow Pages—Alfred Cady, president.

MLT VACATIONS
Minnetonka, Minn.

Marketing Personnel

Edward Neer, president-ceo
Stan Phillips, vp-mktg & sales
Robert Erler, mgr-adv

Advertising Agency

Colle & McVoy, Minneapolis—Deborah Cundy, acct mgr; Ann Herzog, acct exec; Jane Maetzold, asst acct exec.

Ocean Spray Cranberries

RANK 172

Plymouth, Mass.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	636	542	17.4
Net income	197	170	15.9
U.S. advertising	47	29	61.5

Buoyed by the introduction of a wide range of new products, technological innovations in packaging and total advertising that grew 61.5%, Ocean Spray Cranberries Inc. realized substantial gains in both sales and net income in 1986.

The agricultural cooperative also made major agency moves in 1987. In March, it consolidated $25 million in billings for its cranberry-related business at North Castle Partners, Greenwich, Conn., from Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Boston. NCP previously handled Ocean Spray's citrus and fresh fruit business. BJK&E lost $20 million in billings as a result of the move. In May, Ocean Spray awarded its $15 million citrus, guava drink and new products account to Ingalls, Quinn & Johnson, Boston. IQ&J also handles Ocean Spray's food-service products account.

Ocean Spray historically markets 80-85% of the U.S. cranberry crop and the majority of the Canadian crop harvested September through November. Some 70% of the cranberries are processed into juice drinks, 20% into sauce, and 10% as fresh fruit.

Ocean Spray market shares jump considerably in two categories over the past year. In the 52-week period ending in September 1986, the cooperative's share of the fast-growing, shelf-stable concentrate juice and drink market increased from 60.8% to 76.3%. In addition, the company's share of the shelf-stable grapefruit juice market jumped from 20.7% to 24%. The cooperative's shares in the single-strength, shelf-stable juice dropped from 36.7% to 35.2%. In the canned cranberry market, its share declined from 75.1% to 73.8%, according to Selling Areas-Marketing Inc., New York.

A cranberry-blueberry drink and the Mauna La'I Hawaiian guava fruit drink were among new products Ocean Spray introduced in 1986. The cooperative introduced an Ocean Spray fresh grapefruit juice item, and completed the national rollout of Ocean Spray's shelf-stable liquid concentrate line.

Packaging innovations included a 64-oz. plastic bottle and "no-thaw" packaging in plastic cups packed aseptically and sealed with foil, which should boost sales in markets as wide ranging as airlines and hospitals. The cooperative is test-marketing 12- and 17-oz. shelf-stable plastic tubs for sauces. The tubs have resealable lids, like traditional butter tubs. Company officials hope the new containers will take the "seasonality" out of sauce products.

To help handle its growing citrus business, Ocean Spray purchased the Golden River Packing House in Winter Beach, Fla. An $8 million receiving station in Chatsworth, N.J., will go on-line in September 1988. Ocean Spray continues to tout its "Good For You, America" advertising theme. "It's a strategy we call 'cranness'—an attempt to talk to the consumer about what the cranberry does," explains Tom Bullock, vp-operations.

In 1986, network and spot TV spending accounted for slightly more than 85% of the cooperative's total measured advertising. Spot TV spending jumped about 90% to $13.4 million. Network TV spending remained the same at about $7.3 million.

Ocean Spray will continue its support of the Women's Sports Foundation. Roughly two-thirds of the consumers of Ocean Spray products are women, studies show. Ocean Spray underwrote the foundation's Challenge of Champions tennis match, which aired on ABC in April 1987. The cooperative bought title sponsorship by buying 25% of the TV ad time.

Ocean Spray's executive VP Jack Llewellyn will succeed President Harold Thorkilsen upon his retirement in December.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	66	285
Magazines	2,803	375
Bus. pubs	312	299
Network TV	7,257	7,257
Spot TV	13,456	7,056
Spot radio	155	30
Network cable	280	11
Total measured	24,329	15,311
Unmeasured	23,000	14,000
Total	47,329	29,311

OCEAN SPRAY CRANBERRIES INC.
225 Water Street
Plymouth, Mass. 02332
(617) 747-1000

Corporate Personnel

John Llewellyn, exec vp

Marketing Personnel

Tom Bullock, vp-business operations
Jim Kirk, business operations mgr
Kevin Murphy, business operations mgr
Kevin Maguire, business operations mgr

Advertising Agencies

Ingalls, Quinn & Johnson, Boston—Spoonables, new prods, Mauna La'I—Jay Werwilliger, vp-acct mgr; Holly Drorbaugh, acct mgr; Matthew Baker, acct super. Grapefruit—Jay Terwilliger, vp-acct mgr; Mark Richardson, vp-acct super; Nina Gorman, acct mgr. Foodservice prods—Margaret Coughlin, mgmt super; Susan Hiller, acct super; Deborah Messina, acct mgr.

North Castle Partners, Greenwich, Conn.—beverage cranberry prods—Len Ferraguzzi, exec vp; Hap Hoover, mgmt super; Sheila Ewing, acct super, bottled drinks; Jean Shaw, acct super, chilled, paper bottle, liquid concentrate; Suzanne Hopkins, acct exec. Non-beverage cranberry prods—Len Ferraguzzi, exec vp; Kevin Carroll, acct super; Jill Secrist, acct exec, cranberry sauce, fresh cranberries; John Swain, acct exec, ingredients business, new prods.

Polaroid Corp.

RANK 112

Cambridge, Mass.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,629	1,295	25.8
Net income	104	37	180.5
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	964	779	23.7
Operating profits	136	34	303.9
Advertising	71	70	2.4

Polaroid Corp. basked in the warmth of a successful launch of its Spectra instant camera system in 1986, as sales increased and earnings skyrocketed. Besides Spectra's favorable impact, the company benefited from a weakened dollar, from a streamlining of its operations and from the exit of its only competitor in the instant photography market, Eastman Kodak Co. The second quarter of 1987 saw both sales and earnings rise by 13%.

Although amateur photography products still account for 60% of company sales, Polaroid continues to inch toward diversification. Efforts include its magnetic media business and its growth in the commercial/industrial segment—a category that generates high profits for Polaroid and should not be underestimated in terms of growth potential, says Charles K. Ryan, VP-fundamental research with Merrill Lynch Capital Markets. He believes this segment ultimately will account for half of Polaroid's revenues. Significant non-commercial beneficiaries of instant

A new and unique advertising medium.

entertainment '88

OPENED FOR BUSINESS... ALL YEAR LONG!

Over 2 million affluent families open their Entertainment® books more than 100 million times each year to make buying decisions.

Unlike any other type of consumer publication ... Entertainment® books are purchased specifically for their advertising content.

Entertainment® books contain hundreds of get-acquainted discount offers from local restaurants, theatres, sports, concerts, shows, hotels and, in some areas, retail merchandise and services. Books are sold through over 50,000 community and fundraising organizations and reach socially active, upscale consumers.

Now a select few regional and national advertisers can reach our 2 million subscribers in 77 major markets with their own special "Entertainment® members only" message for a full 12 months. Space is limited, so act now!

entertainment.

For a media kit and full information, call or write today:

Mr. Richard E. Golding, Director of Advertising & Marketing Services
Entertainment Publications, Inc. • 1400 N. Woodward Avenue
Birmingham, MI 48011 • (313) 642-8300

photography technology include the medical and scientific fields.

Polaroid's magnetic media business grew in 1986 from the sale of videotape and floppy disks. Currently Polaroid holds close to a 10% share of the videocassette market, an impressive showing considering that Polaroid entered this highly competitive category just three years ago, says Peter Enderlin, photo marketing analyst with Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. Eighty percent of videotape is sold in mass merchandise outlets, where Polaroid has a strong presence. But even though Polaroid has benefited from name recognition in the category, overcrowding and subsequent price cuts have minimized the company's profits in this market, according to Mr. Ryan.

The same situation plagues Polaroid in the diskette category. There, its share is a significantly smaller 1-2%, Mr. Enderlin says. However, this category provides a higher profit margin, and Polaroid has concentrated on the high end of the market. Leading this spectrum of the category are Xidex, with a 35% share, and Kodak's recently acquired Verbatim brand, which holds a 20% share, according to Mr. Ryan.

Also, Polaroid continues to offer a data rescue recovery service, which allows a customer to recover, for free, data which has been lost accidentally. In July 1987, Polaroid bought Media Duplication Services from Control Data for an undisclosed sum.

FreezeFrame, a video image recorder jointly designed and developed with Toshiba Corp., marks Polaroid's entry into the technical and industrial video market. The product delivers high quality instant prints or slides from video pictures. On sale since October 1986, FreezeFrame, which retails for $1,900, has become popular with professionals in such businesses as advertising, television and magazine publishing.

But the big news at Polaroid continues to be Spectra, which cost Polaroid $40 million to promote last year and close to $30 million this year. Of the 4.3 million cameras the company sold in 1986, Spectra accounted for an estimated 600,000, according to Mr. Ryan of Merrill Lynch.

Consumer enthusiasm for a new camera has only about a two-year lifecycle, according to industry observers. Polaroid hopes to extend this with a new fourth quarter 1987 campaign from BBDO Inc. to stimulate sales.

Polaroid also added a higher-end version line extension, the Spectra Onyx, which hit the market in February of this year. Sold through photographic specialty stores, the $280 camera is designed with a transparent top cover, allowing the consumer to view the interior circuitry. A promotional effort in May 1987 attempted to breathe more life into Spectra sales by offering $20 or more for any used camera traded in for a new Spectra.

Industry observers warn that Polaroid needs to have another product in the wings to take Spectra's place. For the short run, the company is introducing the line extensions and redesigning Spectra's film to work in its less expensive cameras.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,765	538
Magazines	5,730	3,565
Newsp. supps	350	0
Bus. pubs	1,566	1,635
Network TV	18,439	20,049
Spot TV	306	2,727
Network radio	1,735	160
Spot radio	187	483
Outdoor	191	14
Network cable	5	383
Total measured	30,274	29,555
Unmeasured	40,974	40,000
Total	71,249	69,555

POLAROID CORP.
549 Technology Square
Cambridge, Mass. 02139
(617) 577-2000

Marketing Personnel

Brian O'Connor, vp-sales & mktg
Peter Eichorn, vp-mktg, N. America
William O'Neill, group vp-consumer photography
Lee C. Brewer, vp-intl mktg operations
Robert M. Delahunt, vp-worldwide industrial mktg
Sheldon Buckl, exec vp, dir-tech & industrial photography
Joseph J. McLaughlin, group vp-worldwide mktg
Adrian Van Dorpe, dir-industrial adv
James Clegg, dir-mktg
Gary Moss, dir-adv, N. America

Advertising Agencies

BBDO, New York—cameras, consumer prods—Gary dePaolo, sr mgmt super; Lonny Strum, mgmt super; Paul Jacobson, acct super; Elizabeth Kelly, acct exec; Valerie Valente, asst acct exec; Erika Waldman, acct coord.

Hill, Holliday, Connors, Cosmopulos, Boston—industrial prods—Kevin Powers, Diana Watts, acct supers; Mark McKenna, acct exec; Virginia Lux, asst acct exec.

Prudential Insurance Co. of America

RANK 113

Newark, N.J.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Total income	27,592	25,933	6.4
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	71	58	22.0

Prudential Insurance Co. of America is going upbeat and all-inclusive under its new Chairman-CEO Robert C. Winters, evidenced by its heavy prime-time TV buying and surrealistic advertising.

Prudential spent more than $44.3 million projecting its updated, upbeat image—aided by such advertising as the "Canyon Rock" creative from Robert Abel Associates, Los Angeles— in U.S. TV and print advertising during 1986, according to a spokeswoman. Of Prudential's total advertising spending (estimated by AD AGE at $70.6 million, up 22% from 1985), the 11 measured media monitored in this issue credit Prudential with spending $52.3 million, up 21.9%.

Prudential, the largest U.S. life insurer, also is the world's largest non-bank corporation, with total consolidated assets of $134 billion in 1986.

During 1986 new business premiums and considerations from sales of individual insurance and annuity products exceeded $2 billion, an increase of about one-third. Mutual fund sales by agents brought in receipts of more than $1 billion, nearly three times the amount sold in 1985. Individual life insurance sales rose by 37%, generating record new business premiums of more than $955 million, with more investment-oriented products accounting for nearly two-thirds of this amount.

Prudential supported its life insurance products with more than $11.7 million in magazine and TV advertising, according to BAR/LNA.

Sales of individual annuities—particularly variable contracts—also were exceptionally strong last year, attracting new deposits of more than $780 million, up 38% over 1985.

A subsidiary receiving major ad support, Prudential-Bache, added a new product to its retail operations during 1986: Quantum Management Portfolio is being offered to select clients by specially trained account executives. With approximately $175 million in assets under management by year-end, representing some 2,200 accounts, Quantum is expanding rapidly.

Prudential-Bache polished its public relations in September by providing seminars for clients on the impact of tort reform. By the end of the year, about 70,000 clients had attended the seminars.

Prudential-Bache was bolstered by more than $9.5 million in advertising expenditures, according to figures supplied by BAR/LNA.

After 40 years in the group life and health insurance market, Prudential is now building an image as a major provider of managed healthcare products. Boosted by 1986 advertising spending exceeding $1.8 million, Prudential's Group Department generated annual sales of more than $1 billion across a range of life and health insurance plans for large groups.

Leading the pack was Prudential's Dental Maintenance Organization, which in one year after introduction climbed to the No. 1 spot in the managed dental care market.

During 1986, Prudential experienced a 52% increase in the number of persons enrolled in its HMOs and other managed medical programs, all of which are integrated into the Prudential Health Care System.

One unique product, PruCare Plus (Prudential Plus in some states), is a "hybrid" plan that combines indemnity, HMO and PPO plans. Marketed to companies with 20 or more employees, enrollment in the program stood at 200,000 as of Aug. 1, 1987. Last year, the insurer armed this PruCare HMO subsidiary with only $112,500 in advertising costs. But this year, it will probably need an injection of additional ad spending as it enters the competitive New York HMO market. Investor-owned HMOs were barred from operating in New York state until last year.

Prudential has temporarily suspended the marketing of its nursing home and home healthcare policies through the American Assn. of Retired Persons after a limited offering in eight states this past summer yielded only 8,000 policies, according to Rich Matthews, manager of public relations.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	2,196	1,081
Magazines	11,097	6,764
Newsp. supps	1,579	0
Bus. pubs	269	164
Network TV	28,702	28,439
Spot TV	3,574	3,649
Network radio	237	755
Spot radio	1,288	584
Outdoor	178	109
Network cable	3,202	1,347
Total measured	52,320	42,891
Unmeasured	18,298	15,000
Total	70,618	57,891

PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE CO. OF AMERICA
Prudential Plaza
Newark, N.J. 07101
(201) 877-6000

Marketing Personnel

Connie Sartian, vp-public affairs
Scott C. Mason, vp-adv
Mary Lou Sack, mgr-adv
Gabrielle K. Shanin, mgr-adv
Vickie J. Snoy, mgr-adv
Anne Bushnell, mgr-adv
Robin Ryerson, assoc mgr-adv

Advertising Agency

Backer Spielvogel Bates, New York—corp. life insurance property & casualty (homeowners & auto), retirement planning, small business, insurance brokerage, Prudential Asset Management Group, Prudential Reinsurance Company, Prudential Realty Group, Prudential Health Care System—Lee Hines, exec vp; Dennis Zolnierzak, mgmt rep; J. Michael McMurphy, vp-acct super; Deborah Radcliff, acct super; Anneke Napp, Harry Tower, acct execs.

Reckitt & Colman PLC

RANK 159

London

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,951	1,860	4.9
Shareholder profit	126	105	19.9
U.S. advertising	52	36	42.5

Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Household	952	858	10.9
Food & wine	625	647	(3.4)
Pharmaceutical	182	176	3.7
Colours	56	49	14.5
Industrial cleaning	96	90	6.2
Fine art & graphics	40	39	3.6

Reckitt & Colman PLC continues to build its North American franchise through strong advertising and acquisitions. R&C's North American sales accounted for 24% of worldwide revenues last year, and North American pretax profits were 15.9% of the total.

The North American division based in Rochester, N.Y., spent an estimated $51.9 million on total measured and unmeasured advertising in the U.S. in 1986, up 42.5% from 1985. About half that, or $26.9 million was in measured media—a sum divided 60% into advertising by Airwick Industries, the household products division, and 40% by Durkee-French Foods Inc., the food products division.

An additional $22 million was spent in unmeasured advertising, predominantly couponing, free-standing inserts and promotional material.

London-based Reckitt & Colman, which produces and markets a diversified line of household items and toiletries, food & wine, crafts and pharmaceutical products worldwide, has made a dynamic entry into the U.S. over the past two years.

Worldwide sales grew 4.9% to $1.95 billion in 1986. North American sales accounted for $473 million in 1986, up 6.6% from 1985. North American pretax profits rose 59% to $34 million. Overall shareholder earnings after taxes grew 19.9% to $125 million. Sales and pretax profits for both 1986 and 1985 were translated at the exchange rate of $1.4678=1£.

In 1986, R&C purchased Durkee Famous Foods, Cleveland; Pure Foods Co. (Herb-Ox), Mamaroneck, N.Y., and Gold Seal household products, Bismarck, N.D. The companies were consolidated with R&C's R.T. French Co., Rochester, to form the current food products division of R&C, NA.

"We will be strengthening all of our major categories, as well as increasing our ad spending on new and existing products," says John Lowrie, VP-marketing, Durkee-French Foods.

A big move in obtaining a strong position in the U.S. was the 1985 purchase of Airwick Industries, Carlstadt, N.J. Airwick was combined with Gold Seal to make up the household products division of R&C, NA. In July 1986, R&C sold Professional Products, Airwick's institutional business, to Economic Labs, Minneapolis.

Sales in 1986 for Airwick household products divisions totaled $179 million, up 21% over 1985—growth credited to the introduction of Magic Mushroom nonaerosol room deodorizer in March 1986. Independent consultant Carey, Ahsler, Kline & Co., Fairfield, N.J., contends that Airwick holds a 20% share of that market, up from 13% in 1985. According to Airwick officials, the Mushroom, which holds an 18% market share, increased Airwick's total share of the $300 million air freshener category to 30%. Airwick only held a 12% share the previous year, when Airwick introduced Stick-Ups.

The Mushroom, with its time-released Scent-O-Meter system, is part of R&C's increased push that knocked S.C. Johnson & Co.'s Glade and Drackett's Renuzit from 25% in 1985 to 20% last year.

The ad budget for Magic Mushroom was an estimated $10 million, with the bulk of the spending in network TV. New scent line extensions were added in 1987.

Airwick also introduced Airwick Breeze, an air freshener in four scents that is sprinkled inside vacuum cleaner bags. An estimated $5 million is being spent on network TV to promote the new product.

Carpet Fresh rug & room deordorizer put $5.6 million of its $6.2 million into network TV in 1986, garnering a 35% market share—the same as Church & Dwight's Arm & Hammer carpet freshener. Lehn & Fink's Love My Carpet has a 20% share.

Bully Toilet Bowl Cleaners, (Automatic, Foamy, Swish), which spent an estimated $3.6 million on network TV and magazines in 1985, dropped ad spending to an estimated $850,000 million 1986 to concentrate on new product introductions. Bristol-Myers Drackett's Vanish still holds the No. 1 spot in the automatic toilet bowl cleaner category, with a 30% share compared to Bully's 12%.

French's spent an estimated $5.2 million in 1986, predominantly on the introduction of French's Pasta Toss, packaged flavorings for pasta, and on French's regular mustard. That figure is up 63% over last year's $3.2 million, spent almost entirely on TV for French's regular mustard.

Sticking with R&C's long-term plan for new product development, French's launched French's Dip 'n Spread Mustard in spring of 1987. Heavy network and spot TV accompanied.

French's mustards (Regular, Bold 'n Spicy Deli, Vive La Dijon and Dip 'n Spread) hold a 42% market share, up 2% over the preceeding year. Closest competitor is Plochman's with a 12% share.

McCormick Co. maintains a 35% share in both spices and gravies/sauces over Durkee-French's 16% in spices and 25% in sauces/gravies.

Sir James Cleminson, chairman of R&C since 1977, retired in May of 1986. He is succeeded by Sir Michael Colman.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	17	242
Magazines	1,785	1,260
Newsp. supps	0	90
Bus. pubs	686	1,099
Network TV	16,741	13,382
Spot TV	4,563	3,359
Spot radio	2,518	0
Outdoor	5	0
Network cable	609	0
Total measured	26,924	19,431
Unmeasured	25,000	17,000
Total	51,924	36,431

RECKITT & COLMAN PLC
One Burlington Lane
London W42RW

Corporate Personnel

Sir Michael J. Colman, chmn

AIRWICK INDUSTRIES
Carlstadt, N.J.

Marketing Personnel

Doug Wegrin, vp-mktg
Bob Kuhn, group category mgr, air fresheners, scouring prods
Bud Drago, group category mgr, rug & room deodorizers, toilet cleaners
John Gerrie, sr category mgr, laundry care prods
Tina LoPonte, group category mgr, bubble bath, Binaca

Advertising Agencies

Bloom Agency, New York—Jeffrey Fine, chmn; Penny Hawkey, president; Stephen McCloskey, sr vp, dir-acct mgmt; Barry Silverstein, acct super; Susan Aminoff, acct exec.

Drossman, Lehmann, Marino, New York—Magic Mushroom, Snowy bleach, Mister Bubble Bath, Carpet Fresh, Chore Boy scouring prods—Neil Drossman, chmn, co-creative dir; Charles Lehmann, president; Dominick Marino, co-creative dir; Carol Good, Susan Wallendahl, mgmt supers.

DURKEE-FRENCH FOODS
Paramus, N.J.

Marketing Personnel

John Lowrie, vp-mktg & foodservice
Bruce Bye, dir-brand mktg
Hugh Schwartz, dir-brnad mktg
Gerry Schuth, dir-mktg planning & svcs
Geoff Hayday, dir-foodservice

Advertising Agencies

Ketchum/Hicks & Griest, New York—all food prods—Jerry Cutler, exec vp.

Noble & Associates, Springfield, Mo.—Jim Magers, acct super; Renee Simmons, acct exec; Sandy Miller, admin asst.

Rumrill-Hoyt, Rochester, N.Y.—French's mustard—Nick Orloff, president; Bob Carlton, vp-sr acct mgr; Tim Cornin, creative dir.

Reynolds Metals Co.

RANK 180

Richmond, Va.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,639	3,416	6.5
Net income	192	(292)	165.8

U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,301	3,214	2.7
Operating profits	204	(163)	225.3
Advertising	43	36	19.7

Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Aluminum	1,861	1,642	13.3
Finished products	3,639	3,416	6.5

Reynolds Metals Co. boosted ad spending 19.7% in 1986 to push its consumer products as its financial situation rebounded. Both revenues and earnings had been depressed since 1983 when the aluminum industry plunged into recession.

The company's consumer product lineup also got a boost in June 1986 with the acquisition of the Cut-Rite wax paper brand from Scott Paper Co. The product is being marketed under the Reynolds brand name.

Reynolds Wrap, the company's best-known consumer product, in 1986 received the largest portion of the company's $25.5 million in measured media spending. Reynolds Wrap expenditures in the seven media measured by BAR/LNA were $9.7 million, up 14.4% from 1985. Most of the Reynolds Wrap spending went to spot TV.

Reynolds Wrap maintained its dominant position in the market with a share exceeding 50% in 1986.

Two other consumer products also received increased advertising expenditures in 1986. Spending on Eskimo Pie Ice Cream Bars more than doubled to $1.6 million. Reynolds owns 80.6% of Richmond-based Eskimo Pie. A Reynolds spokesman says the huge increase in expenditures reflected increased competition. The company's second largest outlay was for Reynolds Plastic Wrap, jumping 84.4% to $8.3 million.

In the fourth quarter of 1986, the company sold its 40% interest in Robertshaw Controls Co. to Siebe PLC for $189.3 million. The sale boosted net income by $85.5 million, bringing annual earnings to $191.8 million, compared with a loss of $291.6 million in 1985.

Revenues for the first half of 1987 were $2 billion, up 5.3% from the prior year period. But net income was down 19.6% to $77 million, although the prior-year figure included a $76.7 million credit for accounting changes. The company predicts revenues will exceed $4 billion this year.

Company officials say they hope to double consumer products sales in the next five years, increasing sales to $1 billion a year through product development or acquisitions.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	59	197
Magazines	2,549	3,796
Bus. pubs	423	258
Network TV	1,442	0
Spot TV	20,216	15,578
Spot radio	626	1,430
Network cable	139	0
Total measured	25,455	21,258
Unmeasured	17,961	15,000
Total	43,416	36,258

REYNOLDS METALS CO.
6601 Broad Street Rd.
Richmond, Va. 23261
(804) 281-2000

CONSUMER DIVISION

Corporate Personnel

Scott D. Wyllie, vp-genl mgr

Marketing Personnel

Paul W. Miltenberger, natl mgr-mktg & sales
J. Douglas Mickle, adv mgr

Advertising Agencies

J. Walter Thompson USA, New York—Reynolds Wrap aluminum foil, Reynolds Plastic Wrap, Reynolds Freezer Paper, Reynolds Redi-Pan aluminum foil ware, Diamond foil, new prods—Janet Kaufman, acct exec.

Tucker Wayne & Co., Atlanta—Reynolds Oven Cooking Bags, Cut-Rite wax paper—J.S. Reeder, sr vp-mgmt super.

REYNOLDS ALUMINUM RECYCLING CO.

Corporate Personnel

Charles W. Rayfield, vp-genl mgr

Marketing Personnel

Andrew H. McCutcheon Jr., vp-natl mktg mgr
Robert W. Jones, adv mgr
Walter K. Amacker, mkt svc mgr

Advertising Agency

Martin Agency, Richmond, Va.—Dale P. Brown, vp-acct super; Daniel C. Bartges, sr acct exec.

CONSTRUCTION PRODUCTS DIVISION

Corporate Personnel

John M. Noonan, vp-genl mgr

Marketing Personnel

John A. Shelhorse, mktg dir

Advertising Agency

Admark, Richmond, Va.—Roxanne Heywood, president.

REYNOLDS METALS CO.

Marketing Personnel

Richard L. Krauss Jr., adv mgr of five divs:
Reynolds Aluminum Supply Co.
Mill Products
Extrusion Division
Electrical Division
Corporate Advertising

FLEXIBLE PACKAGING

Corporate Personnel

Robert L. Waldrop, vp-genl mgr

Marketing Personnel

Thomas P. Christino, natl sales & mktg mgr

Advertising Agency

Lawrence Kaplan Advertising, Richmond, Va.—foodservice and flexible packaging—Lawrence Kaplan; president.

CAN DIVISION

Corporate Personnel

Robert D. O'Donnell, vp-genl mgr

Marketing Personnel

Lee R. Gunton, natl mktg mgr

Advertising Agency

Lawrence Kaplan Advertising, Richmond, Va. —Lawrence Kaplan, president.

A.H. Robins Co.

RANK 132

Richmond, Va.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	790	706	11.9
Net income	82	76	7.9
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	616	566	8.9
Operating profits	161	135	19.4
Advertising	63	45	38.4
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Pharmaceuticals	409	370	10.5
Consumer prods	267	233	14.6

A.H. Robins Co., whose two major products are Robitussin and Dimetagg, pushed forward with strong advertising in 1986 as it sought reorganization through Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings resulting from thousands of claims filed against the company relating to the Dalkon Shield intrauterine birth control device.

The company is currently proceeding with plans to merge with Fort Washington, Pa.-based Rorer Group Inc., whose OTC products are Maalox, an antacid, and Ascriptin, an analgesic. The plan must be approved by the U.S. Bankruptcy court in Robins' hometown, Richmond, Va.

Nevertheless, consumer and pharaceutical products marketed by the company have shown continued growth in sales and advertising. Overall advertising of $62.7 million, was up 38.4% over 1985, a year in which advertising dropped from the prior year. In the 11 measured media increased monitored in this issue, Robins' total of $48.9 million was largely in support of its Dimetapp and Robitussin brand franchises.

Dimetapp allergy and decongestant remedies continued to pull the largest ad dollars. The company spent nearly $14 million advertising Dimetapp Allergy and Decongestant Tablets and Liquid, 50% more than in 1985, the year Dimetapp moved from prescription-only to OTC. Spending, almost all in TV, weighed slightly heavier toward network than spot, according to BAR/LNA. Robins introduced Dimetapp PLUS with non-aspirin pain reliever in mid-October 1987 in a print and TV effort created by Scali, McCabe, Sloves.

Robins' No. 1 cough remedy brand, Robitussin, pulled $12.4 million in advertising, largely TV, for an 18.1% increase over 1985.

Chapstick Lip Balm drew the largest increase in Robins' brand advertising expenditures, up 91% to $4.2 million. The company backed Chapstick Petroleum Jelly Plus with $1.8 million.

In 1986, the company spent about $2.8 million in general company promotion, and in January of that year, its in-house agency spent about $5 million on advertising notifying consumers that Dalkon Shield claims had to be filed by April 30, 1986.

Growth, particularly from Robitussin and Dimetapp usage, which boosted sales 12% and operating earnings 18% to $170.2 million in 1986, continued through the first half of 1987, with sales up 8% to $392 million and operating earnings up 14% to $72.2 million.

Net earnings declined in the second quarter resulting from a $6.1 million after-tax charge from an award against the company in a Dalkon Shield trial in Kansas. Costs associated with the company's Chapter 11 case continued to strain net earnings, reducing them by $6.2 million in the first six months of 1987.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	19	0
Magazines	3,054	3,575
Newsp. supps	54	0
Bus. pubs	916	1,032
Farm pubs	349	205
Network TV	16,187	6,592
Spot TV	26,053	23,712
Spot radio	1,809	0
Network cable	461	217
Total measured	48,902	35,332
Unmeasured	13,841	10,000
Total	62,742	45,332

A.H. ROBINS CO.
1407 Cummings Drive
P.O. Box 26609
Richmond, Va. 23261-6609
(804) 257-2000

CONSUMER PRODUCTS DIVISION

Marketing Personnel

John E. Blutenthal, vp-mktg, healthcare prods
Gary L. James, dir-mktg, healthcare prods
Ronnie L. South, vp-sales & mktg, Pet Care
L. Paul Nelson, group prod mgr, Pet Care

PHARMACEUTICALS DIVISION

Marketing Personnel

Gerald K. Wilburn, vp-mktg
W.H. Selberis, group prod mgr
Frank A. Murawski, group prod mgr

Advertising Agencies

Earle Palmer Brown, Richmond, Va.—Ethical Pharmaceutical div—George Woltz, office president; Dave Livesay, vp-acct super.

Jordan, McGrath, Case & Taylor, New York—Sergeant's pet care prods, Donnegal, Chap Stick Lip Balm, Chap Stick, Petroleum Jelly Plus—Jack Taylor, exec vp-acct exec; Mat McNerney, acct exec.

Mil-Mor Media, Richmond, Va.—agency of record, media planning and purchase, all brands—Carl D. O'Hallanan, president; Mary M. Arnold, vp-media dir.

Scali, McCabe, Sloves, New York—cough and cold remedies—Stuart Epstein, vp-group mgmt rep.

Sweeney & Partners, Montvale, N.J.—professional journal work for Dimetane, Robitussin, Dimetapp and vitamin prods—Tom Sweeney, president; Rita Buedden, vp.

Royal Crown Cola Cos.

RANK 149

Rolling Meadows, Ill.

($ in millions)

U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	397.6	378.4	5.1
Earnings	41.2	39.3	4.8
Advertising	56	62	(10.8)

Chesapeake Financial Corp. is part of a complex web of companies that comprise the empire of financier Victor Posner. All of CFC's measured-media advertising spending is attributed to its two wholly owned consumer-products companies: Atlanta-based Arby's Inc. and Royal Crown Cola Co., headquartered in Rolling Meadows, Ill. AD AGE titled this profile Royal Crown Cola Cos. to reflect its advertising weight at CFC. Sales and earnings in the box are for Royal Crown only.

Total spending for these two companies declined 16% in 1986 to $52 million. Measured-media spending for the Arby's fast-food chain dropped to $14.5 million in 1986, down 13.7% from 1985. For Royal Crown, measured-media ad spending in 1986 was $9.9 million, up 15.1%.

Although operating in different product categories, Arby's and Royal Crown share similar problems in pursuing sales and market share growth. Both are "second tier" companies that are substantially smaller than the major companies that dominate their respective categories.

Another similarity is the variety of different positionings these two companies have taken in recent years in their attempts to separate themselves from those larger competitors and to carve distinct niches.

Arby's, with $890 million in sales from company- and franchisee-owned stores in 1986, is the 16th largest restaurant chain in the U.S., according to trade publication Nation's Restaurant News. It held the same rank in 1985. Its menu mainstay continues to be its line of roast beef sandwiches, which enable it to dominate the fairly small roast beef segment of the restaurant industry. Arby's claims to hold a 54% share of that segment, up from 47% in 1984. Yet, in the total "beef" segment of the industry, Arby's places a distant No. 5, with a 3.3% share in 1986 sales.

Arby's "second tier" position in the fast-food industry is even more evident when advertising expenditures are compared. Arby's $14.5 million measured-media budget for all of 1986 was matched by McDonald's in any given two-week period. Burger King in the first two months of 1986 outspent Arby's annual outlays.

Being outspent by the competition is nothing new for Arby's. For years its marketing strategies have alternated between trying to join the leaders (it tested its own line of hamburgers for a while) and setting itself apart from them. In 1986 and into 1987, Arby's has pursued a separatist policy, with somewhat more success than in the past.

In 1986, Arby's addressed the glut of hamburger restaurants head-on with advertising urging consumers to "Break the burger boredom" by switching to its roast beef sandwiches. In 1987, that approach was augmented with advertising that takes a softer comparative approach, urging consumers to "Taste the difference" at Arby's. Comic Jeff Altman was signed as commercial spokesman.

Arby's has placed most of its advertising focus on its roast beef line and has added new menu options. One, the Philly Beef 'N Swiss sandwich tested in 1986, has become a popular menu staple. In mid-1987, the chain also rolled out the Giant roast beef sandwich, weighing in at 5 oz.

Early in 1987, Arby's made a significant shift in marketing strategy by deciding to end its use of network TV and national sports sponsorships. Last year, it spent $4.3 million on network TV and

800-TELEMARKETING
PLUS
CREATIVE COMPUTER SERVICES
EQUAL
SUCCESSFUL PROMOTIONS

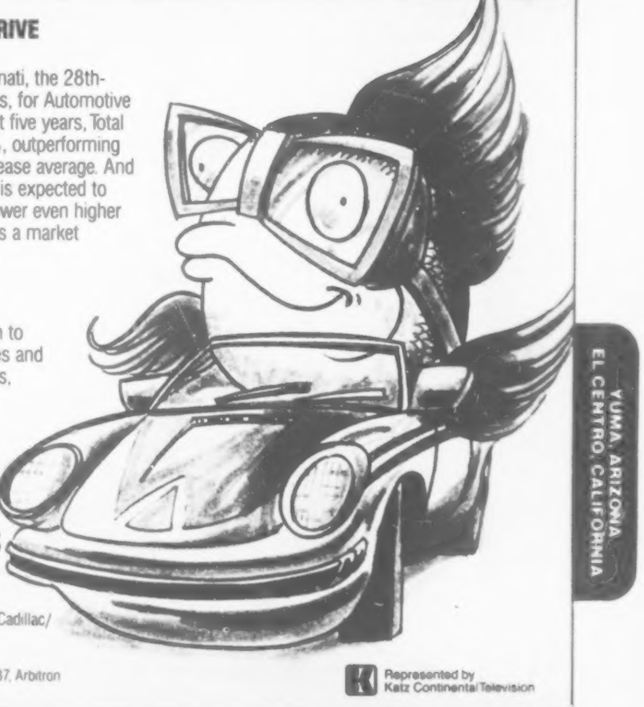
C&C INFORMATION SYSTEMS, INC.
54 Willow Park Center
Farmingdale, New York 11735
1-800-424-7669

- Order/Inquiry Acceptance
- Auto Credit Card Deposits
- C.O.D. Processing
- Custom Computer Analysis
- Fulfillment Services

WHY BE A LITTLE FISH IN A BIG POND?

AUTO SALES ARE IN OVERDRIVE IN YUMA-EL CENTRO.
Yuma-El Centro outspends Cincinnati, the 28th-ranked HH ADI in the United States, for Automotive Dealer sales-per-household. In just five years, Total Retail Sales have zoomed up 49%, outperforming the entire United States sales increase average. And by 1989, Effective Buying Income is expected to increase 63%, boosting buying power even higher and proving that Yuma-El Centro is a market that's revved up and ready to buy.

KYEL TV DOMINATES THE MARKET.
We're the #1-rated station sign-on to sign-off. We've got the facts, figures and programming, including the #1 news, to help drive up your sales in the Southwest's powerful new market.



BE A BIG FISH

BEAM COMMUNICATIONS

KYEL-TV, NBC, Yuma, AZ/El Centro, CA
WDAM-TV, NBC, Laurel/Hattiesburg, MS
WPBN-TV/WTOM-TV, NBC, Traverse City/Cadillac/Cheboygan, MI
WCFT-TV, CBS, Tuscaloosa, AL

Source: 1986 Survey of Buying Power May 1987, Arbitron
© 1987 Beam Communications

Represented by Katz Continental Television

YUMA, ARIZONA EL CENTRO, CALIFORNIA

KYEL-TV NBC
YUMA, ARIZONA-EL CENTRO, CALIFORNIA

$9.6 million on spot TV. This year, Arby's is concentrating TV dollars on local buys and increasing funds for local-store marketing programs. For similar reasons, it terminated its role as an official sponsor of major league baseball.

Arby's lately has been jinxed in its relationships with advertising agencies. In 1985, it lost its national agency, Grey Advertising, New York, to the larger account of General Mills' Red Lobster chain. History repeated itself in 1987 when Backer & Spielvogel (now Backer Spielvogel Bates) resigned in favor of Wendy's $50 million account. Arby's reviewed a number of "mid-size" agencies before assigning its account to W.B. Doner in Baltimore.

Royal Crown Cola Co. is the fifth-largest U.S. soft drink company, although it is in a tier below that of the top two companies.

According to estimates from Montgomery Securities, San Francisco, Royal Crown's 1986 production was 240 million gallons, compared with 2.8 billion gallons for No. 1 Coca-Cola Co. That gives Royal Crown a 3.4% share of the market, behind Coca-Cola's 40.2%, PepsiCo's 29.8%, Seven-Up's 5% and Dr Pepper's 4.5%.

Montgomery Securities estimates that 44.8% of Royal Crown's total gallonage was sold through food stores, 43.4% through other stores, 7.8% through packaged vending and 4% through fountain sales (where other soft-drink companies derive considerably greater percentages of their sales).

Royal Crown's $9.9 million in measured media advertising in 1986 was considerably behind Coca-Cola ($151.8 million) and Pepsi-Cola ($130.1 million), according to BAR/LNA.

Approximately $3 million of Royal Crown's budget went to network TV and $6.7 million to spot TV. Management vowed to increase ad spending in 1987.

Cherry RC Cola, introduced in 1985, and last year's addition of Diet Cherry Cola, have become successful additions to Royal Crown's roster. Montgomery Securities estimates that food store sales for Cherry RC rose to 10.9 million gallons last year from 2.8 million in 1985. Regular RC Cola food store gallonage declined slightly to 66.6 million gallons from 67.6 million in 1985.

Diet Rite Cola represented 22.8% of Royal Crown's food store gallonage total in 1986. Actor Tony Danza replaced Lee Majors as spokesman for the brand in January 1987, and four new flavors of Diet Rite were added this year: tangerine, lemon-lime, pink grapefruit and black cherry. New York Mets pitcher Ron Darling also appeared in some RC Cola advertising, which carries the theme "Some people go out of their way for the taste of RC."

After parting with former agency DFS Dorland (now part of Saatchi & Saatchi DFS), New York, and reviewing its account, Royal Crown moved its business to Hill, Holliday, Connors, Cosmopulos, Boston.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,538	2,811
Magazines	66	528
Bus. pubs	45	0
Network TV	7,169	7,364
Spot TV	16,471	16,910
Network radio	299	0
Spot radio	943	1,038
Outdoor	367	512
Network cable	37	108
Total measured	26,934	29,271
Unmeasured	28,632	33,000
Total	55,565	62,271

CHESAPEAKE FINANCIAL CORP.
P.O. Box Drawer K
Miami Beach, Fla. 33441
(308) 666-7771

ROYAL CROWN COLA COS.
Rolling Meadows, Ill.
Marketing Personnel

J. M. Harrelson, coo
Ronald Conn, vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

Hill, Holliday, Connors, Cosmopulos, Boston—David McPherson, acct super

ARBY'S INC.
Atlanta
Marketing Personnel

Leonard Roberts, president
Frank Bellati, group vp
Lawrence Krueger, sr vp-mktg
Thomas Whitely Jr., vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

W.B. Doner & Co., Baltimore—Mark Westerman, acct super

RANK 164

Safeway Stores

Oakland, Calif.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	20,311	19,651	3.4
Net income	(14)	231	(106.2)
U.S. advertising	50	47	5.9

Safeway Stores was taken private in August 1986 in a $4.2 billion buyout by the New York investment house of Kohlberg, Kravis, Roberts & Co.

The heavily leveraged buyout had a dramatic impact on Safeway's overall earnings picture in 1986, when it reported a net loss of $14.26 million compared with net income of $231.3 million in 1985. Among the factors contributing to the loss were lower operating profits for the domestic operations and interest expenses of $172.3 million that SSI Holding Corp.—the group KKR formed to buy Safeway—owed as a result of the purchase.

The buyout also will have a tremendous impact on the number of operations Safeway will control by the end of 1987, because the company continues to unload assets to pay off the heavy debt incurred in the transaction.

In January 1987, Safeway owned 2,284 supermarkets in the U.S., Canada and the U.K.

To pay off the buyout debt, Safeway this year has sold its Salt Lake division (60 supermarkets), the 131-store Dallas division, the 104-store Liquor Barn operations in California and Arizona and its 7 Save and Pack stores in Florida, and announced agreements to sell its 59-store division in West Texas and New Mexico and its 106-store Oklahoma division. Safeway also disposed of its 132-store U.K. division to the Argyll Group PLC for $900 million.

The company is still opening new stores, however. In 1986 it added 74 superstores in the U.S., compared with 100 new ones in 1985 and 22 to date this year. Unlike conventional stores which average about 26,000 sq. ft., superstores encompass about 42,000 sq. ft., allowing for greater product diversity and specialty departments.

Safeway has lagged behind some competitors in its efforts to enlarge, upgrade and maintain stores. Cincinnati-based Kroger Co. got the jump on Safeway in superstores.

Safeway's public affairs manager, Felicia del Campo, says the company is continuing promotional and marketing efforts for its special food departments including fresh seafood, prepared and take-out foods. The company also is continuing efforts to expand and upgrade its produce departments.

Rather than follow in the footsteps of other competitors—which promote specialized brand meats—Safeway continued its consumer information program for certain meat groups. For example, it prepares consumer information packets and brochures detailing the low-fat method of cooking various meat cuts.

Ron Giglio, VP-ad manager for Safeway, says local divisions will continue to operate fairly autonomously and to develop ad campaigns relative to their markets. However, many of those campaigns hold true to the company's two-year-old national ad theme of "You work an honest day, and you get an honest deal," which was developed by the company's eight-year-old corporate agency, Ketchum Communications, San Francisco.

Safeway's total ad spending in 1986 is estimated to be $50 million, up 5.9% from 1985. That compares with Lucky Stores' spending of $58.7 million in 1986, up 18%. The media mix remained about the same as in 1985. Spot TV accounted for 79% of Safeway's $26.5 million spending in measured media in 1986.

Four ad agencies lost Safeway accounts this past year because of the sale or shuttering of certain assets. That group included Arnold/Foster/Carrithers, Dallas division, Boyd & Farmer Advertising/Marketing, Scottsdale, Ariz., and Mithoff Advertising, El Paso, Tex. Safeway also dropped Phinegan & Agee, Richmond, Va. Mr. Giglio says that work will be taken over by the Bethesda, Md.-based agency, Earle Palmer Brown.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	1,067	1,273
Spot TV	20,930	19,044
Spot radio	1,445	1,325
Outdoor	194	677
Total measured	23,636	22,318
Unmeasured	26,476	25,000
Total	50,112	47,318

SAFEWAY STORES
Fourth & Jackson Sts.
Oakland, Calif. 94660
(415) 891-3000
Marketing Personnel

Donald Smith, vp, dir-mktg
Ronald Giglio, vp-mgr-adv & promo div
Art Patch, vp-mgr-grocery merch div
Rayburn D. Pearce, mgr-meat div
Robert G. Backovich, vp-mgr-produce div
James Whitticom, mgr, variety merch div
Wayne Leader, vp-mgr-specialty foods div
Floyd D. Crowe, vp-mktg mgr-Safeway supply div

Advertising Agencies

Advertising Inc., Oklahoma City, Okla.—Oklahoma div—Todd Van Every, vp-genl mgr; Geri Srite, acct exec; Bill Sammons, adv mgr.

Bernstein-Rein Advertising, Kansas City, Mo.—Kansas City div—Jim George, adv mgr.

DDB Needham, Denver—Denver div—Dave Nusbaum, acct super; Steve Guthrie, adv mgr.

Earle Palmer Brown, Bethesda, Md.—Washington, Richmond divs—Don Zettle, adv mgr; Harry Merrick Jr., Don Ratliff, acct execs.

Frank J. Wills Co., Little Rock, Ark.—Little Rock div—Watty Wills, acct exec; Rex Chaney, adv mgr.

Girvin-Conrad & Girvin, Fremont, Calif.—N. Calif. div—Dwight Becker, adv mgr; Al Neish, Ken Lombardo, acct execs.

Ketchum Communications, San Francisco—corp adv—Diane Snedecker, group dir; Zonda Montgomery, acct super.

Italia Associates, Los Angeles—S. Calif. div—Cal Gunnell, adv mgr; Carmen Italia, acct exec.

Richardson Associates, Portland, Ore.—Portland div—Larry Bohnsack, adv mgr; Shirley Weber, acct & media exec.

Chuck Synder Inc., Seattle—Seattle div—Del Denker, adv mgr; Chuck Suyder, Bob Snyder, acct execs.

Taylor, Brown Barnhill, Houston—Houston div—Kathy May, Candice Goodwin, execs; Barry Linder, adv mgr.

RANK 163

Sandoz Ltd.

Basel, Switzerland

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	5,007	4,025	24.4
Net income	324	252	28.6

U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,327	1,240	7.0
Advertising	50	55	(8.8)

Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Chemicals	1,318	1,003	31.4
Pharmaceuticals	2,322	1,863	24.6
Agri. prods.	410	286	43.4
Seeds	334	339	(1.5)
Nutrition	623	534	16.7

On the financial front in 1986, Sandoz Ltd., maker of Ex-Lax, Gas-X and Ovaltine, had a stagnant year in Swiss francs but a healthy one in dollars, while it ran into hot water on the advertising front.

Sandoz Pharmaceuticals Corp., a U.S. subsidiary, was forced by the FDA to remove consumer advertising for Travist-1 prescription antihistamine addressed to doctors "as an effective alternative for your patients who aren't satisfied with their current allergy medicines."

Though the format of the ads did not violate FDA regulations, the agency asked Sandoz to pull them because of their high visibility. The FDA also raised questions about claims that were made in the ads.

Sandoz's apparent 24.4% jump in total 1986 dollar sales actually is a case of exchange rate legerdemain. In Swiss francs, sales declined 1.1% and net income dropped 2.2%. Swiss francs are converted at the rate of SF2.1 = $1 in 1986 and SF1.67 = $1 in 1985.

The U.S. accounted for approximately 26.5% of Sandoz Ltd.'s total sales during 1986, or about $1.3 billion, down from 30.8% of its total during 1985.

Sandoz's U.S. subsidiaries are divided into four divisions under the umbrella of New York-based Sandoz Corp.: Pharmaceuticals, with 41% of U.S. sales, chemicals 27%, agribusiness 21%, and nutrition 11%. Most consumer products are marketed through the pharmaceutical division's Consumer Health Care Group (including Ex-Lax, Gas-X, and Triaminic cold remedies), and through the Sandoz Nutrition Corp. (Ovaltine).

Last year saw a 9.1% drop in Sandoz's U.S. advertising spending to $50 million. But Sandoz increased measured spending for its Triaminic line 8.2% to $10.9 million, most for cold syrups, the company's most heavily advertised brand, which more than doubled its measured spending to almost $10 million. As in 1985, more than 90% went to network TV.

Spending on Ex-Lax flavored and unflavored laxatives, Sandoz Ltd.'s most heavily advertised brand in 1985, dropped 21.9% to $4.4 million. However, a line extension, Ex-Lax Gentle Nature, received more than $2.3 million in measured spending, mostly on network TV.

Measured spending for Ovaltine, a flavored milk additive that is a mainstay of the Sandoz Nutrition Corp., plunged 76.8% to about $1.2 million in 1986. The drop was particularly acute in network radio; Ovaltine spent more than $1.7 million there in 1985, compared with only $12,500 in 1986. Though spending increases for Ovaltine hot cocoa and Sugar-Free hot cocoa mix were substantial, the dollar ad totals were minor.

In November 1986, Sandoz Consumer Healthcare Group sold its Eclipse line of sunscreen products, which had an estimated 10% share of the sunscreen market, to the Manenti Group, Greenwich, Conn.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	121	0
Magazines	2,421	2,150
Newsp. supps.	22	0
Bus. pubs	708	868
Farm pubs	1,519	1,266
Network TV	18,679	19,853
Spot TV	3,921	3,276
Network radio	13	1,713
Spot radio	195	1,133
Outdoor	7	6
Network cable	0	9
Total measured	27,605	30,272
Unmeasured	22,798	25,000
Total	50,403	55,272

SANDOZ CORP.
608 Fifth Ave
New York, N.Y. 10020
(212) 307-1122
Corporate Personnel

Daniel Wagniere, vice chmn & ceo

SANDOZ PHARMACEUTICALS CORPORATION
East Hanover, N.J.
Corporate Personnel

Fred Hassan, ceo

Marketing Personnel

Tim Rothwell, president, professional business
Archie Coker, vp-mktg operations
Ed Heimers, vp-prod mktg
Anthony Sellner, dir, financial control

Advertising Agencies

Robert A. Becker Inc., New York—mental health and geriatric prods (Mellaril, Hydergine, Restoril, Pamelor)—Edward Maitland, sr vp-mgmt super; Fred Scheel, vp-group super; Len Pepe, vp-acct super.

Hamilton, Carver & Lee, Chicago—Visken, Embolex—James D. Lee, president.

Medical Communications, Woodbridge, N.J.—Parlodel—Tom Rosenwald, sr vp; John Eichert, acct super.

Romann & Tannenholz, New York—Tavist line—Peter Briggs, mgmt super.

Sieber & McIntyre, Morristown, N.J.—Dr. Ian Ferrier, president; Mary Cobb, vp-mgmt super; Joe Lazarich, mgmt super.

SANDOZ CONSUMER HEALTHCARE GROUP
Parsippany, N.J.
Corporate Personnel

Robert Essner, president

Marketing Personnel

Robert G. Donovan, vp-prod mgmt, gastrointestinal
Michael P. Carroll, sr prod mgr
Mary M. Noller, prod mgr
Nancy E. Barnett, dir-prod mgmt, cough/cold
Melanie Lover, prod mgr
Nancy Allison, asst prod mgr
Nancy Hoppe, asst prod mgr
Ernest Haskell, dir-business devel
Rudy Hoeltzel, dir-mktg rsch
R. Louis Schmidt, vp-sales
George L. Varjan, dir-mktg svcs

Advertising Agency

Bloom Agency, New York—Ex-Lax line, Triaminic line—Jeff Fine, chmn; Gail Cerminaro, vp-mgmt super; Paul Magier, vp-sr acct super.

SANDOZ NUTRITION CORPORATION
Minneapolis

Helmut Breuer, president-coo

Marketing Personnel

Neville Pelletier, sr vp
William Rush, vp, clinical nutrition
John Fontana, vp, foodservice
Charles Bohem, vp-consumer sales
David Cooper, mktg dir, new business
Mark Goldberg, prod mgr, snacks
Jim Tierney, prod mgr, beverages

Advertising Agencies

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Minneapolis—Poppycock, Fiddle Faddle, Screaming Yellow Zonkers—Ron Harvieux, vp-mgmt super.

Campbell-Mithun, Minneapolis—Ovaltine, Featherweight—Howard Liszt, Les Mouser, vps-mgmt supers.

NORTHRUP KING CO.
Minneapolis

George Jones, president-ceo

Marketing Personnel

Chase Cornelius, dir-mktg svcs
Winfred Bowen, dir-consumer mktg

Advertising Agencies

dfs/Wegener, New York—agricultural prods—Al Wegener, president; John Martin, mktg mgr; Neil Calari, creative dir.

Miller/Meester, Minneapolis—consumer prods, vegetable seeds intl—Robert V. Miller, president.

MASTER BUILDERS
Cleveland, Ohio

Edd T. Parker, president
Marketing Personnel

Marketing Personnel

Howard A. Golden, vp-sales & mktg
John Jayme III, dir-comm
John T. Gouskos, mgr-creative svcs
J. Pat Borders, dir-mktg, Admixtures
Woody W. Crawley, dir-sales
William M. Rodgers, genl mgr, set construction prods
Lee E. Smith, dir-mktg, construction prods

Advertising Agency

(In-house) Master Builders Communications.

RANK 131

Seven-Up Co.

Dallas

($ in millions)

U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	270	290	(6.9)
Operating profits	6	N/A	N/A
Advertising	63	33	92.0

One year after a change in ownership, Seven-Up Co., Dallas, is on the rebound. When an investment team led by Tom Hicks and Bobby Haas in November 1986 bought Seven-Up from Philip Morris Cos. for $240 million, the lemon-lime soft drink company was losing money and market share. Bottler confidence was at an all-time low. Two of its recent products—Like Cola and Citrus 7—never caught on.

Now the company can boast.

An aggressive new management team expects to see 1987 sales reach $300 million. Seven-Up Co. reported sales of $678 million in 1985 under Philip Morris, but a large percentage of those sales were Seven-Up's international operations which PM sold to Pepsico in 1986. The better news is that the company has gone from a $6 million loss in 1986 to a $30 million operating profit this year.

Led by CEO John Albers, who also is ceo of Dr Pepper Co., and James Harford, Seven-Up president, the company intends to maximize the 7Up trademark through advertising, new soft drink products and licensed merchandise.

To do so, Seven-Up boosted its estimated ad spending in 1986. Seven-Up's estimated advertising of $62.8 million, up 92% over 1985, reflects in part the cancellation of its fourth quarter advertising budget in 1985 because of its impending sale, and low confidence evident among bottlers.

The year's highlight was the successful introduction of Cherry 7Up. The cherry flavored line extension aimed at a younger market also may be Seven-Up's entree to greater play in the fast-food arena. It is being tested in Jack-in-the Box and Burger King locations. Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, continues to handle all Seven-Up advertising.

The company last summer moved its headquarters to Dallas from St. Louis. Certain administrative functions were combined with Dr Pepper Co. to cut costs. Dr Pepper is separately owned but also is under the Hicks & Haas umbrella. Manufacturing for both Seven-Up and Dr Pepper was consolidated at Seven-Up's St. Louis facility—another cost cutting measure. Sales and marketing functions for the two beverage companies remain separate however.

After Mr. Harford was named Seven-Up president, a new marketing team was put in place. Russ Klein, who had supervised the account at Burnett for two years, was named senior VP-marketing. He replaced David Haffner who decided to remain in St. Louis.

Armed with energetic top management, Seven-Up set out to reverse declining market share. The established lemon-lime soft drink leader had begun to feel the effects of Coca-Cola's Sprite and more recently Pepsi-Cola's Slice, a juice-added, lemon-lime soft drink and an overnight success.

For the first time, Sprite nudged out 7Up for the top lemon-lime position in 1986, according to Beverage Industry reports. Sprite posted a 3.6% share of total soft-drink volume compared to 7Up's 3.5% share, for the No. 6 position among the top 10 soft drinks.

But 7Up and Diet 7Up combined share of 5% retained the lead over Sprite and Diet Sprite combined share of 4.3%.

Cherry 7Up's acceptance among teens will improve the company's market position in 1987. Initial projections were based on Cherry 7Up reaching a 1.6% share of total soft-drink volume but company officials believe the share will be in excess of 2%.

Cherry 7Up advertising, themed "Isn't it cool in pink," will double to $25 million in 1988 as part of an overall budget the company says will reach $85 million.

Seven-Up in 1988 will air hispanic commmercials for both its flagship brand and Cherry 7Up. Laura Martinez-Herring, Miss USA 1985, will be hispanic spokeswoman for the products in TV spots and outdoor advertising. Radio will support.

Next year a major licensing program will place the 7Up trademark on clothing, toys and other popular teen and young adult items, a new vending machine design will be introduced, and as many as two 7Up brand products will be introduced. New package designs are scheduled for 1989.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,942	1,920
Magazines	80	157
Newsp. supps	0	1,294
Bus. pubs	676	167
Network TV	30,643	12,312
Spot TV	15,331	6,421
Spot radio	2,146	2,427
Outdoor	3,513	1,487
Network cable	1,050	529
Total measured	55,381	26,714
Unmeasured	7,441	6,000
Total	62,822	32,714

SEVEN-UP CO.
P.O. Box 657777
Dallas, Texas 75265-7777
Marketing Personnel

John Albers, vice chmn-ceo
James Harford, president
Russ Klein, sr vp-mktg
Bill Thompson, vp-brand mgmt
Theron Russell, vp-mktg svcs
Rick Burbank, brand mgr, 7Up/Diet 7Up
Jim Trebilcock, brand mgr, Cherry 7Up/Diet Cherry 7Up
Nick Luciano, mgr-media
Victor Ornelas, mgr-promo

Advertising Agency

Leo Burnett USA, Chicago—John Miller, senior vp-client svc dir; Jack Woods, vp-acct dir; Paula McLeod, acct super.

SmithKline/Beckman Corp.

RANK 148

Philadelphia

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,745	3,257	15.0
Net income	521	514	1.3
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,596	2,342	10.9
Operating profits	532	566	(6.0)
Advertising	57	52	9.6
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Pharmaceuticals	1,896	1,654	14.6
Cons. health care	174	146	19.0
Animal hlth care	251	218	15.1
Eye & skin care	433	315	37.6
Instruments	620	582	6.4
Clinical lab	373	342	9.2

SmithKline/Beckman Corp. in 1986 launched new Contac formulations, introduced tamper-proof packaging for some products, fought off encroachment from competitors targeting its ethical drugs and shored up its own house by completing a stock buyback program.

The company's net earnings in 1986 increased only 1.3% on sales growth of 15%. But for the first six months of 1987, SmithKline reported net earnings of $278.6 million, up 16% from the prior year period.

The company reports that "advertising costs" worldwide increased 34% to $236.5 million in 1986. That total includes media spending, promotion, salaries and marketing overhead.

During 1986, SmithKline increased U.S. measured advertising spending to $27.1 million, up 9.6% from 1985. The majority of its measured spending promoted its Consumer Health Care products group, which only accounts for about 4.7% of total sales.

In June 1986, Contac, a cold treatment, and Teldrin, an allergy treatment, were reintroduced in tamper-resistant forms after both had been pulled from the market because of product tampering. SmithKline spent an additional $40 million in promoting Contac's reintroduction to the market.

Contac continues to be the company's most-advertised product, receiving $17.1 million in measured ad dollars in 1986, up 35.6% from 1985, according to spending totals for seven major media tracked by BAR/LNA.

With its reintroduction, the Contac line was expanded with three new formulations. In two 15-second TV spots created by BBDO, New York, Contac is featured with a box of Sudafed or a box of Actifed; the boxes of the two competitors sneeze, but the Contac box doesn't.

Contac, in capsule and caplet forms, finished the 1986-87 cold season tied for the top spot among cold medicines, according to A.C. Nielsen. During the fall of 1986, Nielsen data showed 4.2 million packages of Contac were sold, giving it an 11.8% market share, tied with Burroughs Wellcome's Actifed. Burroughs Wellcome's Sudafed held 11.3% of market sales; A.H. Robins Co.'s Dimetapp held 8.1%.

Other SmithKline products receiving sizable measured media dollars included: $4.9 million on Sine-Off sinus medicine, up 8.8% from 1985; $1.7 million on the Ecotrin aspirin line, up 96%, and $764,600 on Teldrin allergy tablets, which received no measured advertising in 1985.

SmithKline's pharmaceutical business accounted for 50% of total sales. Pharmaceuticals include products regulated by the FDA and promoted to the medical profession.

Tagamet, SmithKline's anti-ulcer drug, has become the most-prescribed ulcer medicine worldwide. Sales of Tagamet in 1986 were $1.1 billion, up 13% from 1985, accounting for 27% of SmithKline's total sales. For the first six months of 1987, Tagamet's U.S. sales were up 14%, and the company says that growth should continue through yearend.

Currently, Tagamet holds about 49% of the U.S. market for anti-ulcer drugs. Glaxo Holding's Zantac holds 45% of U.S. sales. However, some analysts speculate that Zantac's growth is based on Glaxo's advertising claims that the drug prevents the recurrence of ulcers. According to SmithKline, the FDA has made no decision as to Tagamet's or Zantac's ability to prevent ulcer recurrence.

To counter Zantac's rise, SmithKline signed an agreement with Bristol-Myers Co. in 1987 to co-market a nonprescription form of Tagamet, called Cimetidine. The FDA is expected to approve the OTC version within the next three years, and analysts predict this will bring substantial sales increases for SmithKline.

Dyazide, SmithKline's leading cardiovascular drug used to treat hypertension, has experienced sales growth problems related to the August 1987 approval of the drug's generic form produced by Bolar Pharmaceutical. For the six months of 1987, U.S. Dyazide sales were up only 3%. The company estimates that Dyazide will account for about 20% of SmithKline's 1987 earnings.

In September 1987, SmithKline increased the price of Dyazide by 18%, and analysts agree that despite the generic, SmithKline will be able to maintain dollar sales and profitability. Dyazide's 1986 worldwide sales were $359 million, up 15% from 1985.

SmithKline's largest sales growth of the first half of 1987 was in the Eye and Skin Care Division, which increased sales by 34%. The company's eyecare products should continue to grow at a rapid rate and will likely reach a $1 billion sales mark by 1990, according to Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., a St. Louis-based market research company. SmithKline boosted that division in August 1987 when it acquired International Hydron Corp., a contact lens manufacturer, for $155 million. Hydron sales were $40 million for the first six months of 1987. SmithKline's eyecare products had sales of $243 million for the same period.

In 1987, Allergan Optical introduced a line of preservative-free products for cleaning soft contact lenses.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	14	37
Magazines	2,115	2,543
Newsp. supps	479	339
Bus. pubs	486	402
Farm pubs	275	233
Network TV	20,621	17,683
Spot TV	1,359	2,136
Network radio	1,289	535
Spot radio	2	326
Network cable	458	483
Total measured	27,099	24,718
Unmeasured	29,601	27,000
Total	56,700	51,718

SMITHKLINE/BECKMAN CORP.
One Franklin Plaza
Philadelphia, Pa., 19101
(215) 751-4000
SMITH KLINE & FRENCH LABORATORIES
Corporate Personnel

James H. Cavanaugh PhD., president, SK&F-U.S.
John F. Chappell, president, SK&F-Intl

Marketing Personnel

Roger A. Ross, vp-mktg, U.S.
David P. Wright, vp, gastrointestinal business group, U.S.
F. Richard Hammel Jr., vp-cardiovascular & rheumatologic, immunologic business group, U.S.
Munier Z. Kadrie, vp-anti-infective business group, U.S.
James H. Geddes, vp-natl accts, health affairs, U.S.
John Dillon, II, vp-new business devel, U.S.
William A. Packer, exec vp, intl
Paul Goddard, vp-mkt devel, intl

SMITHKLINE CONSUMER PRODUCTS
Philadelphia, Pa.
Corporate Personnel

William E. Learnard, president

Marketing Personnel

Lawrence D. White, vp-mktg & sales
Greg L. Kearl, vp-sales
Richard E. Arnold, vp, prods & business svcs
Frank E. Downing, vp, finance, admin & internal operations

Advertising Agencies

Ally Gargano/MCA Advertising, New York—Sine-Off, Ecotrin—Steve Brounstein, group acct dir; Dick Mullan, vp-acct dir.

BBDO, New York—Contac, and all Contac line extensions, Teldrin, Aqua Care, Citrus Plus, Vital Eyes, Clear By Design, Ornex—David Seal, mgr-acct rep; Kevin Campaign, acct exec.

Lavey, Wolff & Swift, New York—Feosol—Eric Malter, acct super.

SMITHKLINE BECKMAN ANIMAL HEALTH PRODUCTS
West Chester, Pa.
Marketing Personnel

Norman H. Blanchard, president
Martin F. Braun, vp, SmithKline Animal Health Products, worldwide
Robert L. Murphy, vp, Norden Laboratories, worldwide

SMITHKLINE ANIMAL HEALTH PRODUCTS
West Chester, Pa.
Marketing Personnel

Gerald Myers, dir, sales & mktg, US/Canada

Advertising Agency

Marketing Support Services, St. Joseph, Mo.—Kenneth Shearin, creative mgr, mktg mgr.

NORDEN LABORATORIES
Lincoln, Neb.
Marketing Personnel

Daniel P. Hinnah, president, U.S. & Canada
Beverly Blume, mgr-adv & promo support

Advertising Agency

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Omaha, Neb.—Omar Dye, Wes Newhaus, Kurt Wullschleger, acct execs.

ALLERGAN, INC.
Irvine, Cal.
Corporate Personnel

Gavin S. Herbert, chmn-Allergan, president-eye & skin care group, SmithKline Beckman Corp
William C. Shepherd, president Allergan Inc
W. Richard Ulmer, president, Allergan Pharmaceuticals
Donald Earhart, president, Allergan Optical
Robert C. Bishop Ph.D., president, Allergan Medical Optics
Robert B. Samuels Ph.D., president, Allergan Humphrey
Rex Bright, president, Herbert Laboratories
David Bruns, president, Allergan Intl

Marketing Personnel

B. Norris Battin, sr vp, group mktg & comm
William Faulds, vp-sales, Allergan Pharmaceuticals
Steven Mitchell, dir-mkt planning, Allergan Pharmaceuticals
A. Thomas Bender, sr vp-domestic mktg, Allergan Optical
Jim Fuller, vp-domestic sales, Allergan Optical
Tim Lindsay, mktg & sales mgr, Allergan Medical Plastics
Keith Ignotz, vp-mktg, Allergan Humphrey
Steve Guida, vp, sales & mktg, Allergan Medical Optics
Gary Wertz, dir-sales, Herbert Laboratories
Retha Ott, dir-mktg, Herbert Laboratories
Mike Donohoe, dir-optical mktg, Allergan Intl
Jane Nugent, dir-pharmaceutical mktg, Allergan Intl

SMITHKLINE BIO-SCIENCE LABORATORIES
King of Prussia, Pa.
Corporate Personnel

Harry C. Groome, president

Marketing Personnel

Richard Novak, vp-sales & mktg

BECKMAN INSTRUMENTS
Fullerton, Calif.
Corporate Personnel

Louis T. Rosso, president
John P. Wareham, vp-diagnostic systems group
Thomas E. Waller, vp-bioanalytical system group

Marketing Personnel

James Quirk, div mgr-scientific instruments div
Roger Novesky, mgr-Spinco div
Robert R. Crittendon, mgr-mktg comm

Advertising Agency

Cochrane Chase, Livingston & Co., Irvine, Calif.—Frank Addis, vp-managing dir, med bioscience group; Gary Cunningham, vp-creative dir; Eileen Goodman, acct rep.

Southland Corp.

RANK 140

Dallas

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	8,620	8,622	(0.0)
Net income	200	213	(5.7)
U.S. advertising	60	54	10.6
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Convenience	7,999	8,055	(0.7)
Food processing	572	518	10.5

Southland Corp. will focus on its 7-Eleven convenience retailing business and sell virtually all non-convenience store operations as a result of its definitive merger agreement with JT Acquisition Corp., an affiliate of the Thompson Co.

Thompson Co., which includes members of Southland's founding family, is taking the company private through a $5.1 billion leveraged buyout—a buyout sparked this past summer by acquisition overtures from Canadian corporate raider Samuel Belzberg.

The leveraged buyout was expected to be set this fall. But the financing by issuing junk bonds and selling $1 billion in assets was delayed in November.

Completion of the buyout will place the company, which the Thompsons' late father Joe C. Sr., founded in 1927, wholly under the family's control. The founder's three sons, John, Jere and Joe Jr., are leading the buyout attempt.

Southland is the world's largest convenience store retailer with 8,250 7-Eleven and other convenience stores, such as Quik Mart, Super-7 and High's Dairy Stores. The retail division is supported by Southland's distribution and food centers. Southland is also the nation's largest independent gasoline retailer, and owns a 50% interest in Citgo Petroleum Corp.

Results for both 1986 and 1985 were restated following the sale of Citgo stock to exclude Citgo's sales from Southland's revenues for both years. In the accompanying box, net earnings for 1986 included 100% of Citgo's loss through the first nine months, but in the fourth quarter only Southland's 50% interest in Citgo's earnings was included. In 1985, however, Southland's net earnings included 100% of Citgo's profits for all of that year.

In the second quarter ended June 30, 1987, Southland reported net earnings of $47.5 million, compared with $81.6 million in the same quarter a year ago. Revenues were $2.45 billion, compared with $2.21 billion for the second quarter of 1986.

Southland operated about 7,764 7-Eleven units in the U.S. and Canada as of June 30, which is more than double the total for the industry's No. 2, Circle K, Phoenix. In Southland's downsizing to repay the debt incurred in the buyout, it plans to sell Chief Auto Parts, its dairy unit and Reddy Ice. It also expects to sell 1,000 7-Elevens and most of the 160 acres purchased for its CityPlace development north of downtown Dallas.

In October, Southland sold its 270 Houston-area 7-Eleven stores to competitor National Convenience Stores, Houston, for $80 million. NCS is the operator of the Stop N Go convenience store chain. NCS operates about 900 convenience stores in six Sunbelt states. Earlier this year, NCS sold 42 Stop N Go stores in the Midland-Odessa area to Southland.

In a separate transaction, Southland sold the assets of its MovieQuik rental division to Cevaxs Corp. for about $52 million. British Columbia-based Cevaxs will operate its movie rental system in about 4,500 7-Eleven stores.

Southland's 1987 marketing strategy departed from its traditional marketing strategy in the last year to position the 7-Eleven units as a destination rather than

HIRE GOALS.

When you're in search of the best, there can be no compromises. The Forum Personnel Advertising and Marketing Division is committed to uncompromised goals of excellence. Goals higher than most, which help us provide you with only the most qualified professionals in the business.

· Advertising · Sales Promotion
· Account Management · Public Relations · Media
· Production · Traffic · Graphic Arts
· Marketing · Market Research

For information contact
Karen Katz, VP/Principal

FORUM
PERSONNEL INC

342 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10017 (212) 687-4050

an emergency stop. John Antioco, VP-marketing and retail manager, led the effort.

In May, Southland launched a national TV campaign themed, "Where the good things come easy." The national campaign, via Hill, Holliday, Connors, Cosmopulos, New York, included spot TV, radio, outdoor, print and point of purchase. It was HHCC's first major effort for Southland since replacing Young & Rubicam, New York, last year on the approximately $12 million-plus account.

The national image effort was supplemented by a separate, area-specific campaign from W.B. Doner & Co., Southfield, Mich., airing in Texas and Arizona only.

The company is likely to draw fire from the Baptists this year, a year after making friends with this Dallas establishment by pulling adult magazines off the shelves of 7-Eleven stores. The reason: Southland is pushing for a Texas lottery.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	34	48
Magazines	168	110
Newsp. supps	66	0
Bus. pubs	217	255
Network TV	866	1,297
Spot TV	11,655	11,383
Spot radio	19,962	19,926
Outdoor	2,986	2,908
Network cable	60	3
Total measured	36,015	35,929
Unmeasured	23,642	18,000
Total	59,657	53,929

SOUTHLAND CORP.
P.O. Box 719
Dallas, Tex. 75221
(214) 828-7011

Marketing Personnel

John Thompson, chmn
Jere W. Thompson, president-ceo
S. Richard Dole, exec vp-retail stores
John Antioco, vp-mktg & retail
Fred Bradshaw, adv & comm mgr
Jim Notarnicola, adv mgr
Ken Cason, natl adv mgr
Rod Brehm, natl mktg mgr

Advertising Agencies

Davis, Johnson, Mogul & Colombatto, Los Angeles—specialty retail div—Lee Dick, mgmt super; Linda Ward, acct super.

Hill, Holliday, Connors, Cosmopulos, New York—retail store div—Casey Jones, sr vp; Jim Matthews, vp; Chris Miller, Charlie Decker, exec vps-co mng dirs; Tony Angotti, Joe O'Neill, exec vps-co creative dirs.

Richards Group, Dallas—Southland manufacturing & distributing—Jim McGee, principal; Clark Culbertson, acct super; Pat Kirwan, acct exec.

W.B. Doner & Co., Southfield, Mich.—7-Eleven stores project work—Alan Kalter, exec vp; Jon Katov, account super.

Southwestern Bell Corp.

RANK 120

St. Louis

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	7,902	7,925	(0.3)
Net income	1,023	996	2.7
U.S. advertising	68	70	(3.4)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Local service	3,148	3,036	3.7
Network access	2,797	2,656	5.3
Long distance	893	891	0.2
Directory ads	824	948	(13.1)
Other	240	394	(39.1)

Despite its regional-sounding name, Southwestern Bell Corp. is reaching well beyond its St. Louis-based telephone operation roots in its quest to become a leading communications marketer.

Just two years into the post-American Telephone & Telegraph divestiture phase, Southwestern scored a major coup when it announced an agreement to buy Metromedia's cellular-telephone and paging operations in 21 markets.

The $1.65 billion purchase approved in October 1987 moves Southwestern from No. 11 into the top spot among cellular phone companies. Siblings Bell Atlantic and Pacific Telesis, serving 16.1 million and 15.9 million customers, respectively, ranked No. 1 and 2 before the Southwestern purchase.

The Baby Bell internecine rivalry was fueled even more when Southwestern announced plans to publish Yellow Page directories outside its traditional five-state territory—in Manhattan, Baltimore, Chicago and Washington, D.C.

Further, it is establishing a global foothold via joint ventures for Yellow Pages sales in Australia and part ownership of Israel's Aurec Information and Directory Systems.

Southwestern plans to continue its expansionist strategy in diverse geographic markets to spread the regulatory rate risk and offset regional economic downturns, improve its efficiency in marketing to national customers and gain a competitive edge for national product rollouts.

In April 1987, Southwestern was granted the right to enter the advertising business (i.e. Yellow Pages ad agency) as long as it did not provide advertising services to its affiliates. No action has been taken since the right was granted.

While measured ad expenditures dropped 4% to $67 million in 1986 from 1985, spot TV continued to dominate measured media with a $28.9 million expenditure, up 19% from the previous year. Among "brand" spending monitored by BAR/LNA, general corporate promotions got a 16.3% boost to $9.3 million. Southwestern Bell Publications, the leading brand category, got $11 million, down 27%.

The directory unit at Southwestern posted $824 million in revenues in 1986 a 14% share of the $6 billion directory business. It purchased Gulf Printing Co., a full-service printer with four plants in Houston and Oklahoma City, which publishes 1,100 White Pages, Yellow Pages and special directories in 46 states.

For its Manhattan launch, Southwestern bypassed TV in its introductory campaign that used radio, print and outdoor, touting an "all in one" business-to-business and consumer directory which rival Nynex coined "the clone book" in initial advertising. Southwestern offered a 60% discount to advertisers who bought both business and consumer directories and 40% to those buying single books.

In September 1986, it launched an ad campaign in Chicago with TV and radio spots as well as newspapers featuring people wearing blinders, a reference to the partial information available in other directories (such as Ameritech's). Gardner Advertising handled the creative.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. which contributed 90% of the corporation's revenues in 1986, received $2.8 million in measured advertising. It established a sales and agency network to market products and services via telephone equipment vendors and tested quick-stop service kiosks.

Southwestern Bell Telecom's Freedom Phone division, which received only $28,500 in measured spending in 1986, in September 1986 added the FF 1250, a new pocket-size cordless phone. Direct mail catalogs and retail stores carried the Freedom line which includes answering machines and decorator phones.

Southwestern Bell, the last Baby Bell to restructure, established a four-man office of the chairman in 1986. John E. Hayes Jr. was named ceo and is joined by three vice-chairmen: Gerald Blatherwick, vice-chairman of human resources and corporate communications (formerly VP-pr); Robert G. Pope, vice-chairman of corporate development, and Edward E. Whitacre Jr., vice-chairman-cfo.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	7,259	7,286
Magazines	2,760	2,266
Newsp. supps	0	595
Bus. pubs	211	384
Spot TV	20,887	24,295
Spot radio	10,317	7,977
Outdoor	98	192
Network cable	0	5
Total measured	41,531	43,000
Unmeasured	26,078	27,000
Total	67,609	70,000

SOUTHWESTERN BELL CORP.
One Bell Center
St. Louis, Mo. 63101
(314) 235-9800

Corporate Personnel

Donald Lottmann, vp-corp comm

Advertising Agency

D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, St. Louis—Edward C. Barnidge Jr., sr vp-acct group dir; William Miller, acct super; Michele Fite, acct exec.

SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

Marketing Personnel

John Atterbury III, vp-mktg
Larry Alexander, vp-pr

Advertising Agency

D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, St. Louis—Edward C. Barnidge Jr., sr vp-acct group dir; Gail Foster, vp-mgmt super; Gary Shipper, vp-acct super; Tim Lawlor, acct exec.

SOUTHWESTERN BELL PUBLICATIONS

Marketing Personnel

Al Parsons, president-ceo, Ronald Jennings, exec vp-sales
Robert Seyler, vp-publishing & admin svcs
Marty Berg, asst vp-corp comm
Peter Martin, vp-mktg

Advertising Agency

Gardner Advertising, St. Louis—Yellow Pages—Doug Herrman, acct super; Kevin Reardon, acct exec. Silver pages/corp recruitment—Doug Herrman, acct super; Carol Perry, acct exec.

SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELECOM

Marketing Personnel

Dave Gallemore, vp-mktg
Todd Gurley, vp-pr

Advertising Agency

D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, St. Louis—Edward C. Barnidge Jr., sr vp-acct group dir; William Mund, vp-group super.

SOUTHWESTERN BELL MOBILE SYSTEMS

Marketing Personnel

Steve Millstein, vp-mktg
Lisa Hughes, dir-adv & promo

Advertising Agencies

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Dallas—Dallas mkt—George Landis, vp-mgmt rep; Peter Lempert, acct exec; Jennie Smith, acct super; Anne Byerhof, asst acct exec.

Gardner Advertising, St. Louis—north region—Ray Ward, acct super; Chris Schlarman, acct exec.

Squibb Corp.

RANK 161

Princeton, N.J.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,785	1,404	27.1
Net income	396	227	74.9
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,017	812	25.2
Operating profits	365	237	53.6
Advertising	51	49	4.1
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Pharmaceutical	1,521	1,192	27.6
Medical products	264	212	24.4

With the sales of its personal care product group—Charles of the Ritz Group—to Yves Saint Laurent S.A. on Dec. 31, 1986, Squibb Corp. entered a new calendar year without its biggest advertiser and with a reduced product line encompassing only pharmaceuticals and healthcare products.

Year-to-year figures in the accompanying box do not include returns for Charles of the Ritz. In 1985, the last year the division was included in the Squibb returns, it had operating profit of $50.6 million on sales of $432.2 million.

Advertising expenditures for Squibb's Charles of the Ritz Group historically have accounted for 65% of Squibb's measured advertising. In 1986, Squibb spent $15 million advertising its personal care products, which included Krystle perfume, Opium perfume, Jean Nate toiletries and Bain de Soleil sun products. Total measured advertising spending in 1986 was $24.9 million, according to brand spending in seven major media tracked by BAR/LNA.

Theragran vitamins received the balance of 1986 measured advertising, or $4.9 million, up 23% from 1985, according to BAR/LNA.

The agency also is designing the advertising for Proto-Chol, Squibb's fish-oil capsule that the company introduced in late 1986. Squibb is spending about $10 million to market Proto-Chol with a campaign that stresses that fish-oil capsules are a supplement to cholesterol maintenance, as opposed to being the answer for people who have high cholesterol. Squibb's print ad for Proto-Chol tells consumers to exercise, eat a low-fat diet and regularly visit their physician.

U.S. fish-oil sales reached about $30 million in 1986, and analysts estimate that Squibb holds about 22% of this growing market.

For the six months ended June 30, 1987, Squibb reported net income of $231.7 million, up 28% from the year-earlier period. Total sales for 1987's first six months were $1 billion, up 24% from 1986.

Fueling Squibb's continued growth are ethical drugs marketed directly to physicians. The second quarter 1987 sales of Squibb's pharmaceutical products were $456.5 million, up 27% from the year-earlier period.

In July 1985, the U.S. Food & Drug Administration approved the U.S. sale of Squibb's Capoten (captopril) for treating high blood pressure and congestive heart failure. During June 1986, the "New England Journal of Medicine" published a study that said Capoten provided patients with better quality of life in work performance, well-being and sexual function. The study said that the product was more effective than Merck & Co.'s Aldomet and American Home Product's Inderal. Capoten sales for the first half of 1987 were $353.9 million, up 56% from the first half of 1986.

In February 1987, Squibb penetrated another drug market, monobactam antibiotics, with the introduction of Azactam (aztreonam). Squibb hopes Azactam will become the major drug used to battle hospital infections contracted by many elderly patients. Analysts speculate that Azactam will have annual sales of about $100 million by 1990.

Tests continue with Squibb's pravastatin, a cholesterol synthesis inhibitor, and Squibb will start seeking worldwide regulatory approval to market the anticholesterol drug during the first quarter of 1988.

In April 1986, Squibb divided up its pharmaceutical group into four distinct segments, including prescription drugs, OTC and patent-expired drugs, diagnostic pharmaceuticals and physician computer communications. At the end of 1986, Squibb combined three of its medical electronics units—Advanced Technology Laboratories, Spacelabs Inc., and Squibb Medical Systems—into Westmark International Inc., which is 10% owned by Squibb.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,053	0
Magazines	5,457	5,923
Newsp. supps	606	31
Bus. pubs	735	483
Network TV	11,620	9,000
Spot TV	3,697	6,229
Network radio	1,629	1,837
Spot radio	58	71
Outdoor	0	3
Network cable	0	293
Total measured	24,854	23,870
Unmeasured	26,030	25,000
Total	50,884	48,870

SQUIBB CORP.
P.O. Box 4000
Princeton, N.J. 08543-4000
(609) 921-4000

Corporate Personnel

Richard M. Furland, chmn-ceo
Jan Leschly, exec vp
Charles A. Sanders, MD, exec vp

PHARMACEUTICAL PRODUCTS GROUP
Princeton, N.J.

Marketing Personnel

S.L. Barker, president-ceo, Squibb USA
R.D. Metique, vp-mktg devel, Squibb Intl
J. Weinstein, vp-mktg planning, E.R. Squibb & Sons
D.J. Murphy, dir-mktg svcs, Squibb USA
R.D. Samples, vp-sales, Princeton Pharmaceutical Products
J. Keith, dir-mkt planning, Princeton Pharmaceutical Products
K.F. Anderson, business area dir-consumer prods, Squibb
R.A. Angello, dir, anti-infective mktg, Squibb
R.E. Scott-Edwards, dir, cardiovascular mktg, Squibb
S. Reese, new prods planning dir, Squibb
J.A. McClintic, vp-sales, Squibb

Advertising Agencies

Botto, Roessner, Horne & Messinger, New York—Squibb Diagnostics—Bob Botto, president; Tricia Morgan, acct exec.

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York—Squibb-Novo, Prolixin—Robert Leverte, president;Wes Hostetler, group acct super.

Saatchi & Saatchi DFS, New York—Theragran multivitamin, Proto-Chol fish oil gel caps—Rich Prunder, mgmt dir; Chris Zimmerman, acct super; Christopher Willis, asst acct exec.

Sieber & McIntyre, Morristown, N.J.—anti-infectives—Joe Mastracchio, acct staff.

MEDICAL PRODUCTS GROUP
Princeton, N.J.

Marketing Personnel

J.G. Solari, sr vp-Weck Companies
K.B. Grealey, president, Richard Weck & Co.
R.M. Goffredo, president, Weck Medical Instruments

Advertising Agencies

Gross, Townsend, Frank, Hoffman, New York—Ostomy & specialty prods—Charlene Prounis, acct exec.

Hall Decker McKibben, Englewood, N.J.—Weck Medical—Joe Ryan, vp-acct svcs.

Penchina, Selkowitz, New York—Humanicare—Bob Morgan, acct mgr.

Simms & McIvor, Bound Brook, N.J.—Wound mgmt—Pat Storm, acct exec.

State Farm Mutual Auto Ins. Co.

RANK 196

Bloomington, Ill.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Total income	11,664	9,863	18.3
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	33	26	24.9

Multiple insurance needs for the family market continue to be the "sole purpose" and chief advertising thrust of State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. In 1986 the company pushed its life insurance coverage to compensate for an industry-wide slump in the casualty business. And it continued an aggressive push into the women's market begun in 1985.

Otherwise, the company followed much the same marketing course that for many years has made it the nation's No. 1 automobile and homeowners insurance carrier, as well as a leading carrier in life insurance.

State Farm revenues remained stable in 1986, totaling $11.7 billion in premiums and membership fees, up 18.3% from 1985. Income from all sources was $1 billion after dividends. Total assets at the end of 1986 were $23.7 billion, up 20.2% from 1985.

Using the same ad slogan it has relied on since 1971, as well as the same agency (DDB Needham, Chicago) it has worked with since 1939, State Farm increased its spending in measured media by 32.4% to $24.1 million in 1986. The increase does not indicate a significant change in marketing strategy, says R.S. Bugajski, advertising director. An additional $8.4 million in unmeasured media for 1986 is attributable to the 50-50 program State Farm conducts with its agents for newspaper, TV, radio and billboard ads and direct mail, Mr. Bugajski says.

Along with its longtime theme, "Like a Good Neighbor, State Farm is There," the company continues to use (or refer to) actual State Farm agents in its ads.

In 1986 the biggest share of State Farm's advertising dollars, $15.7 million, went into promoting the company's all-forms coverage—auto, life, home and health insurance. This is a 50% increase over 1985 spending in this category. TV sports and popular women's progams drew much of the spending.

Radio drew $5.5 million of the all-forms budget, some $3.5 million for network, drivetime and the remainder to sponsor statewide sports programming at 37 universities.

In the first quarter of 1986, State Farm conducted a $5.9 million life insurance campaign, timed to coincide with a similar nationwide campaign by local agents. Most of this money, $3.6 million, went into network TV. It was aimed specifically at younger viewers through NCAA basketball coverage. This new marketing strategy continues in 1987. In 1985 State Farm did not separate its advertising for life insurance.

Another new direction, begun in 1987, is the push through newspapers and TV for the 50-plus market.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	200	371
Magazines	1,462	1,451
Bus. pubs	218	32
Network TV	11,694	8,722
Spot TV	1,871	1,892
Network radio	7,036	5,618
Spot radio	1,243	917
Outdoor	146	206
Network cable	274	352
Total measured	24,144	19,559
Unmeasured	8,400	6,500
Total	32,544	26,059

STATE FARM MUTUAL AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE CO.
One State Farm Plaza
Bloomington, Ill. 61710-0001

Marketing Personnel

Daniel McNertney, vp-adv
Don Bittner, adv dir
R.S. Bugajski, adv dir
Robert L. Denny, dir-agency sales & devel promo svcs

Advertising Agency

DDB Needham, Chicago—auto insurance, homeowners insurance, life insurance, health insurance, all forms insurance—Jack Copher, group acct dir; Donald Putzier, mgmt rep; Rick Fobes, acct super; Jack Davidoff, acct exec.

Levi Strauss & Associates

RANK 106

San Francisco

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,600	2,570	1.2
Net income	82	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	77	71	7.6
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Jeans	N/A	1,500	N/A
Sportswear	N/A	512	N/A
Int'l	N/A	558	N/A

Diversified apparel manufacturer, Levi Strauss & Co., now a subsidiary of Levi Strauss & Associates Inc., continues to place heavy emphasis in advertising 501 Blues line, although positioning itself as a broader sportswear purveyor. The company also is experimenting with computerized buying and catalog sales.

Since the company was taken private in a $2 billion leveraged buyout engineered by the founding family last September, Levi Strauss has found its once undisputed position as the leading jeans marketer being challenged.

Serious contention in the $6 billion domestic jeans industry comes from the vastly expanded VF Corp., Wyomissing, Pa., whose purchase of No. 3 Blue Bell Holding Co. last year placed it on equal footing in the marketplace. The purchase gave VF several of Blue Bell's lower-priced jeans brands, including Wrangler and Rustler.

Industry analysts now rank Levi and VF about even in the overall U.S. jeans market, each with about a 25% share, while some give the advantage to VF. Both Levi and VF project sales of $2.7 billion this year, up only slightly from 1986.

Levi leads the measured spending in the seven media monitored by BAR/LNA, with $29.5 million in 1986, with $24.6 million of that spent on jeans and closely related separates, up 16.1%. VF spent $25.1 million on all brands, although most of that was for Lee and Wrangler jeans. Levi also spent $4.8 million on its sportswear lines.

International ad spending adds another $30 million to Levi's total estimated 1986 expenditures, bringing them to about $106 million. This also includes $44.7 million in unmeasured costs. The unmeasured expenditures account for a substantial amount of cooperative advertising with retail distributors. The extent of the company's massive involvement in the co-op effort varies from 50% to as much as 65%.

In its latest reorganization, which resulted in the dismemberment of the unprofitable Battery Street Enterprises, Levi took the women's and men's sportswear operations from that group and placed them in a new division called Levi Strauss Sportswear. The company has singled out the women's market, dominated in recent years by rival VF's Lee Co., as its next big growth area. All women's apparel has been reorganized into a division within Levi Strauss Sportswear.

Levi also divested the end of 1986 its Oxxford Clothes Inc., a maker of hand-tailored men's suits, to a group of executives and investors. Levi also sold sportswear maker, Fashion Portfolio, and women's clothing company, Koret of North America, giving it an estimated $110 million from the three sales.

But Levi surprised some industry analysts in early 1987 when it reversed its corporate pruning in acquiring Brittania jeans, a struggling competitor with about $50 million in annual sales. The deal also opens the way for Levi to import a large quantity of jeans from the Far East, where labor costs are lower. Levi is counting on Asian Pacific to boost its women's wear sales, a potentially lucrative area that lags behind jeans and menswear. Asian Pacific also markets jeans and sportswear under the Brittasport, Pentimento and 2022 labels.

Levi reentered the sportswear arena this year with a new line of casual menswear called Levi's Dockers. The brand rolled into department stores nationally this April.

Designed to be an alternative to jeans, Dockers are aimed for the same consumer base (men ages 25 to 49). The line includes all-cotton, pleated slacks in soft, garment-washed twill and chambray, and knit and woven shirts. Sport coats will be added this fall. Unlike Levi's unprofitable Battery Street venture, Dockers represents an extension of its core jeans business. There are Dockers shops in 45 of the nation's top department stores.

Levi gave the new line strong ad support during its introduction last year and again in 1987. This fall Dockers will be promoted with TV spots produced by the same team from Foote, Cone & Belding, San Francisco, that produced Levi's award-winning 501 Blues commercials.

The 501 Blues spots, aimed at men, women and kids, rolled on in 1986-87. Released each July since 1984, the Levi's 501 campaign is now in its fourth year, with a total budget outlay of $100 million being spent over the four years to market this single apparel product. The message is "Levi's 501 jeans give you a uniquely personal fit." Newest series of 501 Blues ads continues to blend urban street scenes with original music ranging from blues to bluegrass.

Another series of TV spots, also out of FCB, is aimed at kids aged seven to 11 who, the company hopes, are ready to begin a lifelong tradition of Levi's jeans. Internationally, a new pan-European TV and movie house campaign for the 501 five-pocket jeans showed signs of becoming a cult classic. Two 501 spots, with sound tracks by famous '60s pop stars—Sam Cooke singing "Wonderful World" and Marvin Gaye with "I Heard it on the Grapevine"—brought about the re-release of both songs and sparked sales of the Levi's 501s.

On other marketing fronts, Levi teamed up with Designs Inc., a Boston-based retailer selling Levi's apparel exclusively, to test a four-color catalog that also sells only Levi Strauss products. First tested in a small geographic sample mailing in winter 1985, a second catalog was mailed last fall to 1.5 million consumers, followed by a holiday issue of 1 million. Issues track the seasons.

Levi experimented with new selling techniques and technologies. Last fall the company introduced a multifaceted electronic data interchange (EDI) program called Levi-Link, which ties the manufacturer's sales and shipping departments directly to retailers via computer.

In mid-1987, Levi's also inaugurated a video purchase system for electronic shopping, with plans to introduce video kiosks in 10 unidentified retail stores around the country this year. Customers can view the full Levi's line of pants on the video display and order their selections, which are delivered to them within two weeks.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	132	39
Magazines	5,173	5,974
Newsp. supps	253	123
Bus. pubs	4	15
Farm pubs	161	0
Network TV	17,106	11,407
Spot TV	1,274	3,926
Network radio	1,256	734
Spot radio	2,186	2,708
Outdoor	72	68
Network cable	4,381	4,749
Total measured	31,999	29,743
Unmeasured	44,756	41,600
Total	76,755	71,343

LEVI STRAUSS & CO.
Levi's Plaza
1155 Battery St.
P.O. Box 7215
San Francisco, Calif. 94120
(415) 544-6000

THE JEANS CO.

Marketing Personnel

John Ankeny, vp-mktg
Linda Aletto, consumer mktg dir
Maureen Moriarity, consumer mktg dir, men's jeans
Larry Ruff, adv dir
Sandi Sullivan, adv mgr
Julie Klee, adv mgr

LEVI STRAUSS SPORTSWEAR
San Francisco, Calif.

Marketing Personnel

Steve Goldstein, consumer mktg dir, menswear
Jim McCarthy, sr adv mgr, menswear
John Chappell, consumer mktg dir, women's jeans

BRITTANIA SPORTSWEAR LTD.

Marketing Personnel

Jim Criss, vp-mktg & sales

Advertising Agency

Foote, Cone & Belding, San Francisco—Mike Koelker, exec vp; Pat Sherwood, group mgmt super; Barbara Pauley, mgmt super; Alan Jewett, Laurel Hollis, Cathy Kirk, acct supers; Lisa Shenson, acct exec; Leslie Caldwell, sr vp-asst creative dir; Tim Price, group creative dir.

Tambrands Inc.

RANK 175

Lake Success N.Y.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	487	420	15.7
Net income	69	58	19.4
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	334	313	6.7
Operating profits	54	46	17.8
Advertising	45	44	1.7

Tambrands Inc., a marketer of feminine hygiene products, spent a quiet year holding on to its commanding market share for its flagship Tampax product line, bought the manufacturer of two of its most successful new products, and ended its operations in South Africa.

The payoff in the first six months of 1987 was an 8.7% increase in sales to $263 million, and earnings of $40 million, up 11.1%.

During 1986, the Tampax line of tampon products continued to perform well, while Maxithins, an external feminine hygiene product, loosened further its fragile hold in that highly competitive category.

The Tampax tampon product line, which is marketed in some 136 countries, held an impressive 60% share of the $500 million U.S. tampon market in 1986, according to Value Line Investment Survey analyst, Marilyn M. Royce. Through the first quarter of 1987, Tampax tampons continued to lead the category with a 56.5% share, says industry analyst Diana Temple of Salomon Bros., who tracks supermarket sales. By comparison, Beatrice Cos.' Playtex brand holds a 30.3% share, while Kotex from Kimberly-Clark held a 3.7% share during the same period.

Tampax tampons were backed by $13.4 million in measured spending, the company's largest budget for a single product.

The strong showing by Tampax tampons at home was juxtaposed against a less encouraging performance for Maxithins feminine pads, whose share actually declined from 9.1% in the first quarter of 1986, to 6.1% for the same period this year, Ms. Temple says. By contrast, Procter & Gamble's Always brand led the segment with 23.6% of the market, followed by K-C's Kotex and New Freedom entries with a combined 23.3% share, and Johnson & Johnson's 22.2% share for its Stayfree product. Maxithins received $7.5 million in media support last year.

More than $9.3 million in measured spending supported Tambrands First Response brand, including $4.8 million for the ovulation and pregnancy predictor—No.1 in its market segment—and $4.5 million for the pregnancy test, No. 3 in the larger category to market leader e.p.t.-Plus from Warner-Lambert, and Johnson & Johnson's Advance brand, according to Pipeline Research, a service of the IMS Consumer Products Division. Recently, Tambrands won an injunction against Warner-Lambert, prohibiting that competitor from advertising its pregnancy test as the "fastest one-step home pregnancy test ever."

In February 1987, Tambrands acquired the maker of its at-home diagnostic tests, Hygeia Sciences of Newton, Mass., for $46.4 million.

Tambrands plans to introduce a series of kits that diagnose infectious diseases, but because the FDA has not approved the new product line, the kits have been put on the back burner. Tambrands hopes to introduce the products by the end of this year.

Analyst Ms. Royce speculates that Tambrands' surplus cash and lack of debt could lead to a major acquisition as the company continues to diversify. One such diversification was the December 1985 acquisition of the Physicians' Formula line of hypo-allergenic cosmetics, which is being tested in about 10% of the country.

This January, Tambrands ended its investment in South Africa with the sale of its South African tampon subsidiary to local management.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	11,784	7,158
Bus. pubs	43	72
Network TV	16,108	20,371
Spot TV	410	748
Network radio	1	0
Spot radio	321	661
Network cable	1,860	994
Total measured	30,528	30,004
Unmeasured	14,244	14,000
Total	44,772	44,004

TAMBRANDS INC.
One Marcus Ave.
Lake Success, N.Y. 11042
(516)-775-1800

Corporate Personnel

J.F. Bard, exec vp, feminine protection div
M.R. Wadley, vp-feminine protection div
Edward Covell, vp, diagnostics div

Marketing Personnel

Douglas B. Fox, vp-mktg
Harry W. Rowe, vp-sales
Ronald Zwicke, dir-adv svcs
Jan Rock, mktg mgr, diagnostics
Sharon Shaw, mktg mgr, tampons
Cynthia Harvey, mktg mgr, Maxithin pads
Stephen Radcliffe, genl mgr, Physicians' Formula Cosmetics

Advertising Agencies

Ally Gargano/MCA Advertising, Westport, Conn.—Maxithins—Bob Lepre, exec vp; Victor Sandham, vp.

Carrafiello Diehl & Associates, Irvington, N.Y.—First Response home diagnostic tests—Robert Morias, acct super; Patricia Facey, acct exec.

Castor Spanish Intl, New York—domestic hispanic mkts for Tampax, Maxithins—Castor Fernandez, president-creative dir; Jorge Reynardus, vp-genl mgr; Julia Talavera, acct exec; Al Cruz, media mgr.

William Esty Co., New York—Tampax—Geoffrey L. Clarkson, sr vp-mgmt super; Diane Buckley, acct super; Laurine Garrity, acct exec; Donna Bernstock, asst acct exec.

Hyundai 'leans' to Fats

Hyundai matched its price tag ($5,000-plus) with the '50s both in fact and image when it launched its new models Oct. 1, 1986, with a showcase TV spot featuring Fats Domino and his music.

"I told you we should've advertised our cruise in the Register."

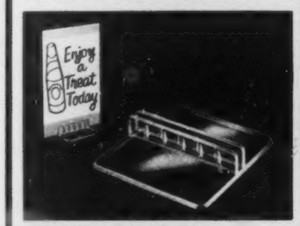
156,000 Orange County residents have taken a cruise during the past three years and The Orange County Register MetroGroup carries more steamship advertising than all but 12 newspapers in the nation. (Scarborough's 1987 Newspaper Ratings Study; Media Records, 1986)

THE ORANGE COUNTY Register METROGROUP

The leading medium in Southern California's richest market. Represented by CWO&O

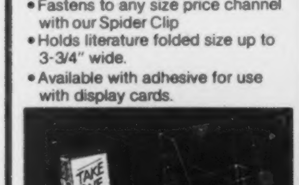
3 more great ideas from...

Fasteners For Retail



COUNTER/TABLE TOP CARDHOLDER 2230-SU
- Space-saving clear plastic holder
- Less costly than table tents
- Replaces expensive acrylic holders

POP-UP CLEAR LITERATURE BOX KL-84
- Inexpensive • Ships flat
- Fastens to any size price channel with our Spider Clip
- Holds literature folded size up to 3-3/4" wide.
- Available with adhesive for use with display cards.



COUNTER LITERATURE HOLDER GB-86
- Ships flat • Folds up fast
- Holds literature folded size up to 3-3/4" wide.
- Clear plastic • Won't break

Call for FREE Catalog and Samples 800-422-2547

Fasteners For Retail
36 Alpha Park, Cleveland, Ohio 44143
(216) 473-6919

Thompson Medical Co.

RANK 199

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	120	137	(12.4)
Net income	7	11	(36.4)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	117	133	(12.0)
Operating profits	12	19	(36.8)
Advertising	32	40	(21.4)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Meal replacements	20	35	(42.9)
Appetite suppres.	53	70	(24.3)
Other healthcare	47	32	46.9

Thompson Medical expanded its product lines into new markets during 1986 and 1987 in the wake of declining market share and sales for its major business line, appetite suppressants.

The company suffered a decline of 12% in sales and 32.1% in net income in 1986 from 1985 as sales of appetite suppressants dropped 24% during the period.

The category at Thompson, which includes Dexatrim and Appedrine, accounts for 44% of the company's net sales, down from 50.8% in 1985. That is a drop in market share to about 49% from 65% (1984), according to the company. Analysts estimate that Dexatrim alone holds about 33% of the market; its primary competitor is Ciba-Geigy's Acutrim, with about 15%.

The loss in appetite suppressants has been somewhat offset by entries into new categories. Thompson recently has added an athlete's foot ointment NP-27, Fiber Full, a fiber dietary supplement, and the analgesic, Ibuprin, all of which combined helped boost sales by $15 million.

New products in fiscal 1987 include Tempo, a chewable antacid acquired from Procter & Gamble earlier this year, Cardi-Omega 3, a fish-oil dietary supplement that may contribute to a reduced risk of heart disease, Tribiotic and Tribiotic Plus, topical antibiotic creams, and Diar-Aid, an anti-diarrheal.

During 1986, Thompson Medical spent $26.1 million in 11 measured media, down 21.4% from the previous year. Spending was down 36% to $11.1 million for Dexatrim, its most heavily advertised brand; the decrease was primarily because of a 38% drop in network TV spending. In 1986, the company changed its ad strategy to emphasize 15-second spots.

Thompson threw $3 million in ad spending behind its Fiber Full high fiber dietary supplement, introduced in fiscal 1986. The company credits Fiber Full sales with a "significant" contribution to its healthcare product sales increase, but says the current market for fiber supplements is "very soft." Fiber Full's main competition is Schering-Plough's Fibre-Trim.

Aspercreme and Sportscreme, Thompson's two entries in the topical analgesic category, together received almost $3 million in ad support in 1986, down 44.7% from 1985. The company introduced two line extensions for Aspercreme: Aspercreme Ice and Aspercreme Hot.

Thompson Medical has overhauled its agency relationships since last year, when Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton handled all of the company's major brands. Laurence, Charles, Free & Lawson now handles most of Thompson's larger brands, including Dexatrim, Aspercreme, Sportscreme, and Fiber Full.

Rosenfeld, Sirowitz, Humphrey & Strauss handles new products, Tribiotic, Ibuprin, Tempo, and Cortizone-5, a topical hydrocortisone cream.

Thompson is starting a personal care division to introduce skincare and fragrance products in 1988. Peter Beatus, formerly of Revlon, has been hired to head the division.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	6	136
Magazines	1,864	4,144
Bus. pubs	205	35
Network TV	15,809	18,378
Spot TV	5,652	4,048
Network radio	764	0
Spot radio	14	0
Network cable	1,819	6,495
Total measured	26,132	33,236
Unmeasured	5,504	7,000
Total	31,635	40,236

THOMPSON MEDICAL CO.
919 Third Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022
(212) 688-4420

Marketing Personnel

S. Daniel Abraham, chmn-ceo
Frank DiPrima, exec vp-coo
Paul Craniotes, vp-creative
Ron Stern, vp-mktg
Harold Verschlieser, dir-sales promo
Joel Appel, exec vp-sales
Dean Siegal, dir-pr

Advertising Agencies

Laurence Charles Free & Lawson, New York—Dexatrim, Aqua-Ban, Cardi-Omega 3, Aspercreme, Sportscreme, Fiber Full, Diar-Aid, Sleepinal, NP-27—Al Magnane, exec vp-mgmt super; Cheryl Rego, Robin Coval, Tom Weiss, acct supers.

Rosenfeld, Sirowitz, Humphrey & Strauss, New York—Cortizone-5, Tribiotic and Tribiotic Plus, Slim Mint, Tempo, Ibuprin—Linda Srere, exec vp-dir acct mgmt; Veronica Heitbrink, vp-mgmt super; Fran Albin, acct exec

3M Co.

RANK 168

St. Paul, Minn.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	8,602	7,846	9.6
Net income	779	664	17.3
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	5,383	5,252	2.5
Operating profits	897	818	9.7
Advertising	49	38	27.1
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Ind. & consumer	3,159	2,848	10.9
Electronic & info	2,322	2,266	2.5
Life sciences	1,707	1,437	18.8
Graphic tech.	1,411	1,292	9.2

Industrial giant 3M Co., which started as a sandpaper marketer in 1902 and has matured to a maker of a diverse lineup of 50,000 industrial and consumer products worldwide in 1986, intends to further expand its international recognition in the coming year as the lone worldwide industrial sponsor of the 1988 Olympics.

Analysts say increased market penetration overseas and growth in healthcare and consumer product lines are key growth areas for 3M.

The marketer of abrasives, adhesives, electronics and healthcare products increased by 27.1% to $48.9 million its total U.S. ad spending in 1986, estimates AD AGE. The company, however, experienced only minor growth in measured media of 2% to $23.9 million. The difference is the unmeasured advertising representing such items as promotion and direct mail. A 3M executive estimates worldwide media spending in 1986 as high as $36 million. AD AGE in this report estimates only U.S. ad activity.

Spending will jump again this year because of the start of 3M's $10 million-plus Olympic campaign, themed "Supporting the dream." The campaign is the first worldwide promotion by 3M.

3M continued to churn out new products in 1986 and early 1987. They include Thintech fabric; Soft-Scour cleaning pans for non-stick pans; Super VHS video tape; 3.5-inch computer disks; factory applied Scotchgard Wood protector; durable pavement markings; a stapler to help set fractured bones; and Tambocor, a drug to control irregular heartbeats.

Expansion abroad boosted 3M's 1986 net income by an estimated $79 million, largely because of favorable exchange rates. International sales surged 23.1% to $3.3 billion, compared to a 2.6% gain in domestic sales.

First-half worldwide sales for the period ending June 30, 1987 totaled $4.59 billion, up 7.9%.

3M has more than 40 divisions—each with its own marketing director—that belong to larger product groups that operate in four main business "sectors."

Sales growth was led by the life sciences sector, which grew 18.8% to $1.7 billion. The industrial and consumer sector continued as the No. 1 sales sector, with a 10.9% increase to $3.2 billion. New industrial and consumer sector products included improved Scotchgard Carpet Protector and a document binding system for businesses.

Electronic and information technologies sector sales rose 2.5% despite the late 1985 transfer of photocopying and facsimile machines to a joint venture with Melbourne, Fla.-based Harris Corp. and low prices for video tape and electronic components.

1986 was the first year of operation for Atlanta-based Harris/3M Document Products Inc. Harris/3M declined to reveal sales figures, but Dataquest, a San Jose, Calif. marketing research firm, estimated that 53,000 Harris/3M photocopying machines were delivered in the U.S. last year.

Scotch brand video cassettes lead the $1 billion-plus consumer blank video tape segment with a 13% market share. Chief competitors are Maxell and TDK. 3M also is marketing improved color print film under private brand names, including K mart's Focal; Boots in the United Kingdom and Target; and Scotch brand at Wal-Mart and other stores.

Official 3M Olympic products are Scotch and 3M brand audio, video and data-recording products; Thinsulate insulation; Thintech fabric and Scotchgard fabric protectors; and 3M adhesive tapes.

Nearly 75% of 3M's 1986 measured ad spending was in magazines or business publications. Virtually all the rest of measured spending was in network or spot TV, with overall measured TV spending dropping 10.8% to $5.9 million in 1986.

TV spending will increase this year after the debut of 3M's introduction of its Olympic TV campaign—the first image TV ads not to feature a 3M product.

3M has 27 ad agencies nationwide, ranks that may decrease because of cost control measures. For example, in 1986 seven divisions of 3M's tape, adhesives & decorative products group were consolidated at Kerker & Associates, Bloomington, Minn. Previously five agencies handled the seven divisions.

The company also expanded services to the cosmetics industry by becoming the first provider of lipstick samples in print ads in February 1987 via its Color Burst process.

Chairman-CEO Lewis W. Lehr retired in 1986. He was replaced by Allen F. Jacobson, previously president of U.S. operations. In February, 1987, James A. Thwaits, president of international operations, retired. Exec VP M.J. Monteiro now oversees international operations.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	9,071	7,781
Newsp. supps.	0	14
Bus. pubs	8,722	8,936
Network TV	2,623	2,389
Spot TV	3,266	4,219
Outdoor	9	8
Network cable	193	123
Total measured	23,883	23,469
Unmeasured	25,000	15,000
Total	48,883	38,469

3M COMPANY
3M Center
St. Paul, Minn. 55144-1000
(612) 733-1110

Corporate Personnel

Allen F. Jacobson, chmn-ceo
L.D. DeSimone, exec vp-industrial and consumer sector
Allan J. Huber, exec vp-electronic and info technologies sector
M.J. Monteiro, exec vp-intl operations
Jerry E. Robertson, exec vp-life sciences sector
Kenneth A. Schoen, exec vp-graphic technologies sector
Stanley W. Thiele, sr vp-admin svcs

INDUSTRIAL AND CONSUMER SECTOR
Corporate Personnel

L.D. DeSimone, exec vp

ELECTRONIC INFORMATION AND TECHNOLOGIES SECTOR
Corporate Personnel

Allan J. Huber, exec vp

LIFE SCIENCES SECTOR
Corporate Personnel

Jerry E. Robertson, exec vp

GRAPHIC TECHNOLOGIES SECTOR
Corporate Personnel

Kenneth A. Schoen, exec vp

Marketing Personnel
(all sectors)

Donald Osmon, vp-mktg & public affairs
C.M. Eldridge, vp-staff mktg svcs
J.R. Kendall, dir-staff mktg, rsch & info systems
Steven Schmaltz, dir-mktg comms & intl mktg
M.A. Tita, dir-planning svcs & mktg devel

Advertising Agencies

Ashley-Wayne Advertising, San Diego—3M/International Tapetronics, broadcasting and related prods div—Nate Kositsky, president & acct super; Alan A. Ames, pr dir.

Associates & Larranaga, Minnetonka, Minn.—Medical & surgical prods—Robert Larranaga, president; Sheila Wood, Kim Clark, acct execs.

Baron Advertising, Cleveland—Associated Electronics/3M—Tom Pope, acct super; Joe Drenik, acct exec.

Baxter, Gurian & Mazzei, Beverly Hills, Calif.—Orthopedic prods & vision care prods—Gail Dearing, acct super; Jennifer Huffer, acct exec.

Beaumont-Bennett, Bloomington, Minn.—Magnetic media—Paul Hines, Dick Wray, exec vps.

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Minneapolis—Ceramic mats, energy control systems, automotive trades, staff mktg systems, audio visual svcs—Terry Gruggen, sr vp-mgmt super; Gordon Simanton, vp-acct super; David Randall, acct exec.

Campbell-Mithun, Minneapolis—Commercial graphics, corp adv, home prods, imaging systems, photo color systems, protective chemical prods—Bruce Sutherland, exec vp; Corp—Joe Carpenter, sr vp-mgmt super. Imaging systems—Dick Moberg, vp-mgmt super. Photo color systems—Dick Moberg, vp-mgmt super; Dick Lynch, vp-acct super. Protective chemicals—Dick Moberg, vp-mgmt super. Home prods—Steve Gordon, sr vp-mgmt super; Larry Buntin, vp-acct super.

Carmichael Lynch, Minneapolis—Leisure time prods—Lisa Meyer, vp-acct super; Karen Casey, acct exec.

Chiat/Day, San Francisco—Magnetic media—Al Moffatt, Matt Crisci, John Martini, acct supers.

Colle & McVoy Advertising, Bloomington, Minn.—Printing & publishing systems, insulation & specialty fabrics, printing & publishing—Tom Engquist, vp-industrial group mgr. Insulation & specialty fabrics—John Hovanec, vp-consumer group dir; Laurie Radmer, acct exec.

Communications Management, Minneapolis—Automotive repair mgmt systems—Jon Fryxell, dir sales & mktg; Jon Swenson, vp.

Corporate Creativity Group, Lake Forest, Calif.—3M-Comtal (image processing computers)—Laer Pearce, president.

Fellers & Gaddis, Austin, Texas—TelComm Prods, test & measurement systems—Greg Wortman, sr vp; Steve Wuertz, acct exec.

Girgenti, Hughes, Butler & McDowell, New York—Riker Laboratories (various pharmaceutical prods)—Bill Butler, exec vp; Steve Girgenti, president.

Kamstra Communications, St. Paul, Minn., and Austin, Texas—Consumer specialties (encapsulated prods), electrical prods, industrial abrasives, microfinishing systems, static control systems, Tartan Tooling Prods/3M, traffic control materials—Don Finlayson, sr vp; Mark Hugunin, vp-acct super; John Warner, sr vp-acct super, Austin Tex.; Tracy Wells, Terry Puckett, acct execs.

Ken Schmidt Co. Milwaukee—Animal care prods—Steve Krog, acct mgr.

Kerker & Associates, Bloomington, Minn.—Adhesives, coatings & sealers, audio visual, automotive industry center/Detroit, automotive specialties, industrial chemical prods, converter specialties, industrial tape, packaging systems, safety & security systems, structural prods, protective chemicals—Chuck Kelley, vp-dir client svcs; Martha Sozansky, Todd Siebell, Bill Pederson, acct execs.

Kolesar & Hartwell, Minneapolis—AVI Inc., health care specialties, medical/surgical prods, occupational health & safety prods (except Thinsulate), AVI, medical/surgical and occupational health & safety prods—Kathy Van Vliet, acct super. Health care specialties—Pam Rusten, acct exec.

Mars Advertising, Southfield, Mich.—Magnetic media—Ken Barnett, exec vp; Sheila Sasser, vp; Don Kurta, sr acct exec; Karen Thomas, acct mgr.

Martin/Williams Advertising, Minneapolis—Commercial office supply, document systems, dental prods, health-care specialties (design of drug-delivery systems), home prods, commercial graphics, commercial office supply, home prods, commercial graphics—Steve Collins, vp-mgmt super; Susan King, acct super; Eric Simon, acct exec. Document systems, dental prods, health care specialties—Ronald Counton, vp-mgmt super; Earl Wilcox, acct super; Julie Bunda, Janet Jones, acct execs.

Miller Meester Advertising, Bloomington, Minn.—Broadcast & related prods, optical recording, equipment svcs & support—Dan Starkey, vp-acct super; Lewis Melamed, acct exec.

J. Patrick Moore & Co., Minneapolis—Aviation safety systems—James Moore, president & acct super; Claire Cunningham, acct exec.

Nationwide Advertising Services, Minneapolis—Recruitment advertising—Julie Valine, regional dir.

The Quest Business Agency, Houston—Textool test & interconnect prods, electronic prods, micro interconnect systems, Associated Electronics/3M, electronic specialties—Alan D. Vera, president-ceo; Jim Shelby, sr vp-mktg svcs; Richard Baron, sr vp-comm dir; Lina Gallardo, sr acct exec.

Seagram & Singer, Ann Arbor, Mich.—Sarns Inc./3M—Linda Bruining, acct exec.

Trunk, Shea & McCaffrey, Clifton, N.J.—Riker Laboratories—Paul Trunk, president; Tom Shea, vp-acct super.

Domino theory: Go upmarket

Domino's Pizza, founded in 1960, concentrated on college towns and military bases before moving in earnest into suburbia and urban markets in the '80s.

Trans World Airlines

RANK 104

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,145	3,725	(15.6)
Net income	(106)	(193)	44.9
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,064	2,115	(2.4)
Operating profits	(76)	(122)	37.5
Advertising	79	67	17.8
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
U.S. routes	2,064	2,115	(2.4)
Foreign routes	1,082	1,610	(32.8)

After two years of losses, Trans World Airlines appears to be headed back toward profitability in 1987. Though it's doubtful the nation's fifth largest air carrier will hit the record profit Chairman Carl C. Icahn predicted midway through the year, TWA is still expected to finish in the black.

That achievement goes a long way toward backing up Mr. Icahn's contention that a lean management team can whip a bloated money-loser into shape by using a less-is-more management approach.

After a first-quarter loss of $54.8 million, TWA came back in 1987 with second quarter net earnings of $52.8 million and a third quarter profit of $57.1 million. For the first nine months, the carrier earned about $55 million. An expected fourth quarter loss will not likely wipe out this headstart toward profitability. The current year could be the first profitable one since 1984 when TWA posted net income of $29.8 million, the first profitable year in several years.

TWA lost a record $193 million in 1985, the year Mr. Icahn began accumulating shares in his unfriendly takeover bid. In 1986, his first year at the helm, the losses were reduced, but remained a staggering $106 million.

TWA says its improved fortunes are linked to labor cost reductions and other costs controls. Among them was the decision to drop all unprofitable routes and to add new destinations. TWA began service to Honolulu and Anchorage, in mid-1986 and significantly increased service to Florida in the fall. The latter dovetailed with the carrier's entry into the Caribbean market two years ago and is part of Mr. Icahn's effort to make TWA less subject to the cyclicality in travel. Wintertime traffic is currently the airline's least profitable period.

To help build its money-losing domestic system which has operated in the red for 15 years, the airline bought Ozark Air Lines for $250 million in 1986 and integrated it into its domestic system during the last quarter of the year. TWA's international activity traditionally has turned a profit.

The airline competes with a number of domestic carriers but sees Pan American World Airways as its main U.S. competition for transAtlantic flights. TWA claimed a 14.3% share of the market in 1986, about even with Pan Am.

Another move to improve profitability was TWA's heavier emphasis on marketing under Mr. Icahn. TWA Marketing Services Inc. began operating the 24-hour Travel Channel on cable TV this February. It offers home-shopping services, as well as entertainment and commercial time to promote discount air fares, tours and travel-related goods and services.

The airline also has been aggressive with traditional tie-ins with other companies. Last winter, General Motors Corp. provided round-trip plane tickets on TWA to its buyers of Buick Riviera models.

Young & Rubicam, which gained the account in 1986, continued to position TWA as a full-service, value-oriented airline. The agency's "Today's TWA" campaign was boosted by a healthy increase in advertising budget. Total spending was estimated at $78.8 million in 1986, up 17.8% from 1985. Measured totals were $48.8 million, up 11.2%.

Of the measured totals, national newspapers continued to claim the lion's share with $29.3 million, up 40%. Of the other major media participants, spot TV grew 25.3%, but spot radio dropped 16.3%.

Also of significance in the past year was Mr. Icahn's unsuccessful attempt to take over US Air Group. The bid ended in March, when Mr. Icahn sold his 15% holding. He also called off his tender offer to take TWA private this October, following the stock market crash. He holds 73% of the carrier's stock.

The market crash made it financially unwise to proceed with the plan to boost his holdings to 90% as the stock dropped from $31.75 to $14 on Black Monday in the financial markets. Mr. Icahn's tender offer was for $45 a share.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	29,329	20,870
Magazines	2,027	7,537
Newsp. supps.	179	732
Bus. pubs.	1,343	685
Network TV	61	0
Spot TV	11,857	9,478
Spot radio	3,593	4,247
Outdoor	422	228
Network cable	0	125
Total measured	48,811	43,902
Unmeasured	29,971	22,998
Total	78,782	66,900

TRANS WORLD AIRLINES
605 Third Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10158-0039
Marketing Personnel

Peter T. McHugh, president, TWA mktg svcs
Tim Brier, vp, passenger mktg
Tracy T. Britton, dir-adv
Lynda Withiam, mgr-adv
Earl Quenzel, sr vp-mktg, TWA mktg svcs
MaryAnn Boyhan, mgr-tour mktg
Kathleen A. Trepper, dir-promos & rsch

Advertising Agency

Young & Rubicam, New York—Robert Donahoe, sr vp-mgmt super.

Triangle Publications

RANK 170

Radnor, Pa.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	730	720	1.4
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	48	49	(0.6)

Triangle Publications concentrated its 1986 advertising on building business for the revived Good Food and keeping TV Guide and Seventeen on an even keel.

In promoting subscription and newsstand sales of its three magazines, Triangle's total ad spending fell 0.6% in 1986, to $48.4 million.

BAR/LNA placed the value of Triangle's 1986 measured consumer-media advertising at $35.4 million, slightly higher than the 1985 figure of $35.2 million. About 94% of that is attributable to advertising aimed at building circulation. With $2.04 million diverted into circulation advertising for Good Food, TV Guide consumer ad media totals dropped 5.2% from 1985, to $33.3 million. That represents the largest consumer ad spending among all magazines monitored by BAR/LNA.

Being the No. 1 advertiser among magazines befits TV Guide, the nation's largest-circulation magazine. In 1987, the weekly's total paid circulation rose 2.4% to 17,281,955—almost evenly divided between subscriptions and single-copy sales, according to Audit Bureau of Circulations' FAS-FAX report for the six months ending June 30. Circulation for No. 2 Reader's Digest, which had held the top slot for five years, fell 2.6%, to 16,849,551.

TV Guide's ad pages, which declined 2.8% in 1986, rose to 2,644 through the first three quarters of 1987 vs. 2,557 for the same period last year.

Of TV Guide's $33.3 million BAR/LNA consumer media advertising, 81.9% was channeled into TV. Publisher Eric Larson says, however, that Triangle does not actually buy most of this TV time, but receives it through trade agreements with local TV stations.

The magazine and its agency, N W Ayer, New York, produce television commercials every week. The current campaign has been executed by Mel Sharpe's Man on the Streets Productions, Berkeley, Calif. The ads feature spontaneous comments from TV Guide readers.

TV Guide supplements its TV spots with direct-response advertising, handled by Ellentuck & Springer, Princeton, N.J.

Mr. Larson says the magazine—with circulation nearly 1 million higher than the current 16.4 million rate base—has curtailed circulation promotion in 1987.

In 1986, Triangle spent an additional $2 million promoting TV Guide in advertising and retail-industry trade publications, according to Rome Reports. Like its occasional newspaper ads, the trade ads alternate between what Mr. Larson calls "image ads promoting our good writing or the fact that we care about TV" and numbers-oriented ads.

Found next to TV Guide at many supermarket checkout counters is the monthly Good Food, re-introduced in February 1986 after a 12-year hiatus. Circulation for Good Food doubled through Triangle's July 1986 acquisition of Great Foods. After shutting down the latter title and merging subscription lists, Good Food claimed a circulation of 946,031, according to ABC's June 30 FAS-FAX report. Group Publisher Frank Wolf says perhaps 15% of Great Foods subscribers were converted to Good Food lists. Of total circulation, 41.4%, is newsstands sales, primarily at supermarket checkout counters.

When Good Food was discontinued in 1974, its circulation averaged 1.3 million. Mr. Wolf says Triangle's goal is a circulation of 1.5 million.

Good Food's $2.04 million consumer ad spending was divided almost equally between network and spot TV. Ads prepared by Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York, use the theme "The indispensible kitchen utensil."

Good Food is in the middle of a three-month flight of spot TV buys aimed at building single-copy sales. During September, October and November—and again during the spring—the magazine runs ads for 10 days at the end of each month in 17 major markets, according to Mr. Wolf. The campaign is put on hold when supermarket sales fall off in winter and summer months.

In September, Good Food hired Direct, Inc., New York, the direct-marketing arm of D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, to handle circulation solicitations previously developed in-house or by outside consultants.

After racking up a disappointing 100.24 ad pages, representing $1.1 million, in 1986, Good Food watched first quarter 1987 ad pages increase 33.4% and ad dollars rise 35.3%. Mr. Wolf expects to end the year with approximately 180 ad pages.

Finally, Triangle spent $19,800 on consumer advertising and $388,810 in trade publications for Seventeen magazine. The monthly's total circulation rose 3.1%, to 1,859,840, according to ABC figures for the first six months of 1987.

Effective Jan. 1, 1988, William Dietch will replace Eric G. Larson and will hold the title of general manager, TV Guide. Robert G. Baumler will replace Thomas McDonough as director of advertising.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,005	1,555
Magazines	0	65
Newsp. supps.	20	18
Bus. pubs.	2,018	1,810
Network TV	3,429	1,535
Spot TV	24,954	24,389
Network radio	6,017	7,523
Spot radio	97	157
Network cable	947	1,678
Total measured	38,488	38,730
Unmeasured	9,938	10,000
Total	48,426	48,730

TRIANGLE PUBLICATIONS
4 Radnor Corp. Center
Radnor, Pa. 19088
(215) 293-8500
Marketing Personnel

Eric G. Larson, publisher, TV Guide
Thomas McDonough, dir-adv, TV Guide
Fred Jervis, promo dir, TV Guide
Frank G. Wolf, group publisher, Good Food, Seventeen
Robert S. Bunge, assoc group publisher, Good Food, Seventeen
Robert Young, publisher, Good Food
Arthur Brenner, mktg dir, Good Food
Carol R. Campbell, adv dir, Good Food
Ira S. Garey, publisher, Seventeen
Barbara Doljack, mktg dir, Seventeen
Lori Zelikow, adv dir, Seventeen
Michael P. Sandler, publisher, Daily Racing Form

Advertising Agencies

N W Ayer, New York—TV Guide—Howard Stoner, acct dir; George Malcomson, mgmt super; Ted Regan, exec creative dir; Jim Murphy, Howard Rieger, group creative dirs; Dave Lemkuhl, group media dir; Debbie-Lisa Brown, assoc media dir, Larry Miller, media super.

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York—Seventeen, Good Food—Ron Benza, sr vp-group acct dir; Gay Wasserman, sr vp-mgmt rep; Celia Visconti, acct super, Seventeen; Fred Morris, acct super, Good Food.

Tri-Star Pictures

RANK 178

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	254	259	(1.7)
Net income	14	2	771.4
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	210	232	(9.3)
Operating profits	N/A	N/A	N/A
Advertising	43	25	70.8

Tri-Star Pictures, whose primary focus until 1986 was the production of motion pictures, began producing and acquiring programming for television, distributing programs for TV syndication and joined the growing trend of film production companies buying movie theaters.

Although only five years old, Tri-Star is among the elite group of studios that can finance 12 to 15 films at a cost of $15 million each, the industry average. With its financial base, the company also has been able to compete in the high-priced world of top creative talent.

In 1986, Tri-Star's line-up included five very successful releases and heavily advertised films—"Peggy Sue Got Married," "About Last Night," "Short Circuit," "Iron Eagle" and "Nothing in Common."

The company spent $25.9 million in measured advertising in 1986, up 74% over 1985. Magazine and network cable spending declined, but network TV hit $14.8 million, up 59%, and spot TV reached $10.2 million, up 122%, for films.

The company is estimated to have spent an additional $17.5 million on unmeasured advertising—promotions, special events, trade publicity, etc.

Tri-Star posted its best year ever in 1986, earning $13.8 million in net income on $254 million in revenues. That compares with net income of $1.58 million on revenues of $258.9 million in 1985. The company showed net losses in 1984 and 1983.

In addition to its feature films—which in 1987 include Bruce Willis' "Blind Date," Sylvester Stallone's sequel to the 1985 blockbuster, "Rambo: First Blood Part II," and Dudley Moore's hit "Like Father, Like Son"—Tri-Star is securing commitments from networks for programming. Tri-Star was able to enter the field of TV production and distribution in 1986 following the sale by CBS Inc. of its interest in the company.

Tri-Star bought the Loews Theaters Corp. for more than $200 million in December 1986.

Coca-Cola Co. and Tri-Star Pictures Inc. in September 1987 negotiated a merger of Coca-Cola Co's Entertainment Business Sector, which includes Columbia Pictures, and Tri-Star Pictures Inc. creating Columbia Pictures Entertainment Inc. Under the proposal subject to approval by the two companies' boards, Coca-Cola Co. will increase its ownership of Tri-Star from 30% to approximately 80%.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	96	110
Network TV	14,810	9,314
Spot TV	10,194	4,611
Spot radio	87	281
Network cable	790	832
Total measured	25,976	15,148
Unmeasured	17,500	10,300
Total	43,476	25,448

TRI-STAR PICTURES INC.
711 Fifth Ave.
New York, N.Y. 10022
(212) 758-3900
Corporate Personnel

Victor Kaufman, chmn-ceo

Marketing Personnel

David Rosenfelt, exec vp-mktg

MOTION PICTURE/ TELEVISION DIVISION
Marketing Personnel

Mark Cristol, vp-adv
Shawna Reininger, sr vp-publicity & promo
Allyson Kossow, vp-publicity
David Lobel, dir-publicity
Ellen Kroner, dir-field promo & publicity

HOME VIDEO DIVISION
Marketing Personnel

Saul Melnick, president

Advertising Agencies

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—media placement—Larry Frieman, vp-acct exec; Ted Cossky, acct exec.

All creative handled in various local agencies as well as other media placement.

Turner Broadcasting System

RANK 195

Atlanta

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	557	352	58.3
Net income	(187)	1	N/A
U.S. advertising	33	34	(2.6)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Broadcasting	204	186	9.8
Cable productions	167	123	36.0
Program synd.	135	10	N/A
Professional sports	24	22	9.6
Real estate	24	8	190.1
Other	3	3	7.1

Even though Turner Broadcasting System Inc. finished 1986 with a loss of more than $185 million and was forced to sell off 35% of the company earlier this year to a group including 26 cable TV operators, its top executives insisted the company was not in trouble.

The person hurt most directly by those losses was R.E. "Ted" Turner, the flamboyant founder, chairman and president.

The 1986 results were dragged down by the dual weight of a disaster with the Turner-sponsored, Olympic-style Goodwill Games held in Moscow last summer and a huge debt left over from the acquisition of the MGM film library.

MGM/UA Entertainment, a TV-motion picture production company, was acquired in March 1986, but the game plan—to sell off all of MGM/UA except the film library

WHY BE A LITTLE FISH IN A BIG POND?

FASHION BUSINESS IS BIG BUSINESS IN TRAVERSE CITY/CADILLAC/ CHEBOYGAN.

Traverse City/Cadillac outspends Nashville, Tennessee, the 31st ranked HH ADI in the United States, for Apparel and Accessory sales-per-household. In just five years, Effective Buying Income has leaped up 78%, outpacing Michigan and the East North Central Region by a midwest mile. Total Retail Sales have jumped up 39%, again beating increases in Michigan and the East North Central Region and proving that apparel and accessory sales are always big sales in Traverse City/Cadillac/Cheboygan.

WPBN-TV/WTOM-TV DELIVERS THE HEART OF THE TRAVERSE CITY/CADILLAC MARKET.

We've got the facts, figures and programming to help your sales dominate the Midwest's fashionable new market.

BE A BIG FISH

BEAM COMMUNICATIONS

WPBN-TV/WTOM-TV, NBC, Traverse City/ Cadillac/Cheboygan, MI
KYEL-TV, NBC, Yuma, AZ/El Centro, CA
WDAM-TV, NBC, Laurel/Hattiesburg, MS
WCFT-TV, CBS, Tuscaloosa, AL

Source: 1986 Survey of Buying Power
© 1987 Beam Communications

Represented by Katz Continental Television

WPBN-TV/ WTOM-TV NBC

TRAVERSE CITY-CADILLAC-CHEBOYGAN, MICHIGAN

TRAVERSE CITY CADILLAC CHEBOYGAN, MICHIGAN

to pay for the acquisition, made by issuing preferred stock and various debt instruments—did not pan out. While TBS has succeeded in selling all but the film library, it has had to pay continuous dividend payments on the company's preferred stock still outstanding by midyear.

To pay for this, Turner sold 562.5 million shares of common stock. This diluted Mr. Turner's personal holdings to just over 50%.

If nothing else, the acquisition of MGM/UA's motion picture production companies—even if only for a short time—boosted the company's total advertising expenditures significantly. Of TBS's total $33.4 million in 1986 advertising expenditures, down 2.6% from 1985, some $16 million was spent on various MGM/UA projects. The largest ticket items included $4.1 million for promotion of the movie "Running Scared" and $3.6 million in advertising for "Poltergeist II." Advertising figures for MGM/UA in 1985 are included in Turner totals in 1985 in order to compare continuing operations from year to year. TBS advertising does not include the $9.24 million in 1986 the company spent in intra-company advertising. TBS logs as an ad expense the $2.8 million CNN advertises on WTBS, the $2.3 million CNN advertises on Headline News, the $2.5 million WTBS places on CNN, and the $1.64 million WTBS advertising on Headline News. The expenditures are book transactions.

TBS produces and places virtually all of its own advertising through its in-house agency, RET Advertising. About $600,000 in 1986 billings went through Atlanta-based Communication Trends Inc., the only outside agency the company uses.

Although, TBS won't be advertising any new movie productions in 1987 after selling off the movie production company, it does have continuing advertising expenses for home video tapes of the film library, which amounted in 1986 to $4.3 million.

The home video library is now under the control of the newly formed Turner Entertainment Co., the division of TBS responsible for the controversial "colorization" of such classic black-and-white movies as "The Maltese Falcon."

TBS reported that the Goodwill Games lost $26 million. To push the games, about $2.8 million was spent on advertising. Undaunted by the experience, the company announced this May that it will go ahead with another round of Goodwill Games in Seattle during the summer of 1990. TBS announced it had commitments to carry the 1990 games from cable systems representing 21.5 million cable households.

Despite its heavy losses, TBS continues to survive through strong cash flow from its base cable television business. WTBS, the Turner "Superstation" continues to be the No. 1 rated cable offering in claiming a 1986 A.C. Nielsen rating of 2.1, or 654,000 households nationwide for a 93% share of cable households and 45% of total TV households. WTBS generated ad revenues of $185.3 million in 1986.

CNN and CNN Headline News combined drew a rating for basic cable services of 0.9 in 1986, which represents 326,000 cable homes. Together, they generated more than $70 million in advertising revenue.

Aside from its film library and cable TV operations, TBS owns two of Atlanta's sports franchises—the Major League Baseball Atlanta Braves and the National Basketball Assn. Atlanta Hawks. Both franchises suffered losses at the gate—the Braves losing $12 million and the Hawks $1.7 million.

As minor portion of its business, Turner also produces some original programming—the occasional Jacques Cousteau specials and a continuing series profiling all 50 states hosted by Hal Holbrook. In addition, some of CNN's original programming is sold to local stations.

During 1986, TBS bought the Omni International complex in Atlanta, including a hotel, two office towers and retail space, and promptly renamed it CNN Center. It moved its Cable News Network into the facility earlier this year.

Mr. Turner has said he would like to start another cable network using the MGM film library as the base programming.

Early in October, published reports speculated that TBS might purchase the science-nature cable television Discovery Channel. Some of the cable service's current owners are among the cable operators given seats on the TBS board of directors as a result of the stock buy-in.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,455	1,805
Magazines	8,932	2,849
Newsp. supps	39	0
Bus. pubs	1,148	1,004
Network TV	5,407	14,130
Spot TV	6,752	6,238
Network radio	867	11
Outdoor	276	86
Network cable	3,378	4,130
Total measured	29,251	30,252
Unmeasured	4,100	4,000
Total	33,351	34,252

TURNER BROADCASTING SYSTEM
One CNN Center
P.O. Box 105366
Atlanta, Ga. 30348-5366
(404) 827-1700

Corporate Personnel

R.E. "Ted" Turner, chmn & president
William C. Bartholomay, vice chmn
Robert Wussler, exec vp
William C. Bevins, Jr., vp-finance & secretary
Henry L. "Hank" Aaron, vp-community relations

Marketing Personnel

Ronald J. Harris, vp-adv & promo

TURNER PROGRAMMING SERVICES

Marketing Personnel

Russ Berry, president
Ken Christensen, vp-adv
John Walden, vp-sales & mktg

TURNER CABLE NETWORK SALES

Marketing Personnel

Terrence F. McGuirk, president
Robert Thalman, dir-mktg

TURNER BROADCASTING SALES

Marketing Personnel

Farrell Reynolds, president
Dave Williams, vp-mktg

TURNER ENTERTAINMENT CO.

Marketing Personnel

Roger L. Mayer, president

ATLANTA NATL LEAGUE BASEBALL CLUB

Marketing Personnel

Stanley H. Kasten, president
Wayne Long, dir-mktg

ATLANTA HAWKS LTD.

Marketing Personnel

Stanley H. Kasten, president & genl mgr
Lee Douglas, vp & dir-mktg

Advertising Agency

(In-house) RET Advertising.

Tyson Foods

RANK 171

Springdale, Ark.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,504	1,136	32.4
Net income	50	35	44.4
U.S. advertising	48	20	137.9

As nutrition-minded Americans opt for more chicken, Tyson Foods is making sure its product has high visibility. It more than doubled its total advertising budget from 1985 to 1986 while experiencing substantial growth in sales and income.

Tyson also is making sure there's a chicken in every pot—or microwave—by increasing its product offerings. Company production potential also was expanded in 1986 through acquisition of two other poultry-related operations.

Tyson is the world's largest fully integrated producer, processor and marketer of poultry-based food products as well as a dominant force in the further-processing of poultry products for both retail and foodservice markets. Further-processing involves deboning, marinating, seasoning and pre-cooking to enhance value. Tyson processes approximately 13 million chickens each week and over 2 billion pounds per year. Tyson has an estimated 15% market share in the frozen poultry category, second to ConAgra's Banquet brand, which leads the $1.05 billion category with a 25% share.

Total measured ad spending in 1986 increased 104% to $23.1 million, and overall advertising rose 138% to $48.3 million. According to BAR/LNA, network TV expenditures in 1986 were almost 2.5 times greater than 1985. Tyson frozen entrees commanded $11 million worth of network time in 1986 compared with no network buys in 1985. Tyson's frozen entrees are upscale prepared meals—such as Chicken Oriental and Chicken Jambalaya—that can be prepared in either conventional or microwave ovens.

This line of premium dinners was increased from six to 12 during 1986, with the original six going into national distribution. British actor Robert Morely, of Christian Broadcasting Network "Celebrity Chef" fame, was tapped as the spokesman for the entrees' network TV and print media campaign, "Your passport to great taste."

New products include Chicken Originals, which hit national store shelves in July 1987. This eight-item line of entrees offers uncooked, prepared frozen chicken—a new concept in the poultry market.

Other products currently in test markets include Tyson Flyers, a five-item line of fully cooked chicken wings similar to the popular "buffalo wings" served in restaurants, and Oven-Roasted Classics, a fully cooked oven-roasted chicken that can be served hot or cold.

Tyson acquisitions in 1986 that helped fuel the company's increased production and sales included Lane Processing Inc., the seventh-largest poultry processor in the country prior to the acquisition.

In the foodservice category, Tyson bills itself as the world's largest supplier of further-processed poultry products with a line that includes 300-plus items.

Current advertising strategies for the company are in limbo after Tyson severed its 10-year ties with Noble & Associates of Springfield, Mo. Tyson said it had outgrown the agency and that there were "ongoing problems involving differences in creative approaches." Noble will continue to handle the estimated $5 million foodservice account.

Tyson's final Noble-run consumer campaign is the $12 million Chicken Originals undertaking, which the Missouri agency will continue until year-end.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	126	0
Magazines	1,581	158
Bus. pubs	3,528	2,142
Network TV	16,690	6,796
Spot TV	668	2,190
Network radio	16	0
Spot radio	454	0
Network cable	1	2
Total measured	23,065	11,288
Unmeasured	25,200	9,000
Total	48,265	20,288

TYSON FOODS
2210 W. Oaklawn Drive
Springdale, Ark. 72764
(501) 756-4000

Marketing Personnel

Donald "Buddy" Wray, sr vp-sales & mktg
Dick Stockland, group vp-retail sales & mktg
Bob Sanks, vp-retail mktg

Advertising Agencies

Noble & Associates, Springfield, Mo.—Jon Baker, president.

Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York—Gary Susenjara, chmn; Ed Wax, president; Eric Weber, exec creative dir; Craig Miller, Terry Gallo, creative dirs.

United Biscuits Holdings PLC

RANK 115

London

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	2,837	2,799	1.3
Shareholder profit	121	104	16.3
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,147	1,077	6.5
Trading profit	65	53	23.4
Advertising	69	62	11.0

United Biscuits Holdings PLC, the U.K.-based conglomerate that is the largest cookie and cracker producer and marketer outside the U.S., is expanding that business line in the U.S. with new entries at subsidiary Keebler Co., including a foray into frozen baked goods.

Total measured media for 1986, was $69.3 million, up 11.1% from 1985. About half the total was unmeasured advertising for both years.

UB Foods US, created in October 1986 and encompassing Keebler Co. and Specialty Brands, had sales of $1.15 billion, up 6.5%. Trading profit grew 23%, to $65.4 million.

However, the U.S. operations were the culprit in UB's overall poor sales performance. In pounds, U.S. sales translated into a loss of 10% to £681.5 million from £757.5 million. The dollar equivalents are based on exchange rates of £1=$1.68 in 1986 and £1=$1.42 in 1985. The two exchange rates, which were used to translate pounds to dollars in the accompanying chart, represent an appreciation of 18% for the pound against the dollar.

Of the UB Foods US total, Keebler, the second biggest U.S. cookie and cracker producer, represented 90.9% of sales and 75% of trading profit. Keebler's share of the U.S. biscuit market rose slightly to 16% from 15% in 1985.

Through July 1987 Keebler Co. reported a trading profit of $29 million, up 20% over the corresponding period in 1986. By concentrating its marketing efforts on its key brands, Keebler's growth rate for traditional cookies was nearly three times the market's 4% growth rate. Keebler introduced a national rollout of E.L. Fudge Sandwich Cookies.

Keebler Co. continues to claim the biggest portion of UB's U.S. advertising expenditures—85.2% of the U.S. measured ad total in 1986, down from 87.6% in 1985, according to BAR/LNA.

In salty snacks, Tato Skins continues to demonstrate satisfactory growth and Cheez 'n Chips, a light texture corn chip, is being introduced.

Specialty Brands had an increase in sales of 60% and trading profit of $16.8 million, up 71% from 1985. These increases were virtually all attributable to the acquisition of the Olive division of Early California Industries during the fourth quarter of 1985. While Spice Islands had an 8% decline in sales, the introduction of a line of twelve new seasonings in the second half of 1987 will improve volume.

In 1986 Shaffer, Clarke & Co., food importers and marketers, rose 14% to $34.7 million in sales, and trading profit fell 9.7% to $2.8 million in 1986. At the end of 1986 Shaffer, Clarke & Co. acquired Trebor Confections, Inc.

Shaffer, Clarke, based in Old Greenwich Conn., is the U.S. importer and distributor of UB Biscuits products from Britain, Wasa Ideal and Finn crisp breads from Scandinavia; Apolinaris mineral water from Germany; KA-ME (ka-may) oriental foods; a line of frozen game meat, and confectionery products from Holland, Britain and Switzerland; Carr's Crackers and Roses Marmalade, orange and lime from England; Bonne Maman jams & preserves from France.

Marking its initial entry into the frozen foods arena, Keebler's broker sales network is launching Elfin Loaves, a line of four individual-serve homestyle frozen bread snacks. National rollout for frozen baked goods will be complete by the end of 1987, the company claims.

Keebler's biggest brand expenditure for 1986 was $9 million for Keebler Cookies, mostly in network TV. Keebler Town House Crackers rose from $1.9 million in 1985 to $4.5 million in 1986, again largely on network TV. Measured ad support for Specialty Brands remained the same as 1985, $2.1 million.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	4	0
Magazines	5,033	3,389
Bus. pubs	397	0
Network TV	22,204	19,822
Spot TV	1,681	3,216
Outdoor	18	0
Network cable	1	0
Total measured	29,338	26,427
Unmeasured	39,967	36,000
Total	69,305	62,427

UNITED BISCUITS (UK) LTD.
P.O. Box 40 Syon Lane
Isleworth, Middlesex TW7 5NN
London
011-44-01-560-3131

KEEBLER CO.
Elmhurst, Ill. 60126
(312) 833-2900

Marketing Personnel

William T. Hanna, sr vp-mktg
Charles L. Shemely, sr vp-dir, warehouse businesses, new prod devel
Roy E. Koeckrits, dir-merch
Robert Dillon, group dir-new prods mktg & mkt rsch
Darrel Splithoff, sr vp-retail sales

Advertising Agency

Leo Burnett USA, Chicago—Keebler cookies, crackers, salty snacks, brokered prods, Elfin Loaves—Joe McGowan, vp-acct dir; Jim McNitt, super, salty snacks, brokered consumer prods, nonbiscuit new prods; Bill Buchanan, super, biscuit prods.

SHAFFER, CLARKE & CO.
Old Greenwich, Conn.

Marketing Personnel

G. Korper, president
Peter Martorano, natl sales mgr
Roy Peterson, mktg mgr

Advertising Agency

(In-house).

SPECIALTY BRANDS
San Francisco

Marketing Personnel

Richard L. Marcantonio, president-ceo
Meade Ames-Klein, vp-mktg
Ed Parker, vp-operations
Mike Pommer, mgr-mktg, Marie Brand
Connie Linehan, mktg mgr-Spice Island brand
Teresa Cooper, mktg mgr-Early Calif. Foods brand

Advertising Agency

Geers Gross Advertising, New York—Chris Ebner, group acct dir.

US West

RANK 166

Englewood, Colo.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	8,308	7,813	6.3
Net income	924	926	(0.2)
U.S. advertising	50	52	(4.4)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Local service	3,259	3,059	6.5
Intrastate	1,108	1,005	10.2
Access charges	2,595	2,590	0.2
Other	1,613	1,591	1.4

The 1986 purchase of the 54-story Mountain Bell Center, believed to be the biggest real estate building transaction in the Rocky Mountain area, may be a fitting symbol of US West's vow to stand head and shoulders above other telecommunications marketers.

But the company pledge to be "procompetitive" may be an uphill struggle as the 1986 revenues increased only a modest 6.3% over the previous year while profits of $924 million were the lowest of any of the seven regional Bell operating companies. Total advertising spending dipped 4.4% to $50 million.

"A sluggish economy in our region and increasing competition in all our markets reminded us that there's no such thing as business as usual," noted the company's letter to its shareholders. Net income was reduced by a one-time $52 million charge because of a "major restructuring" of US West Information Systems, the business communications equipment unit which received $3.1 million in measured spending in 1986, compared to $449,000 in 1985.

While the company decided to cut its losses in Information System's efforts and regrouped to concentrate on its original 14-state territory, US West Cellular purchased a cellular system in San Diego (outside its turf) and its Landmark Publications moved into new areas and acquired 11 companies in its continuing quest for new directory business. It now publishes more than 850 telephone directories in 45 states. US West Direct, which published 300 of those directories, received $3.3 million in measured media spending in 1986—second only to ad spending for Mountain Bell Telephone Co., the locomotive that pulls the US West revenue train.

All three of US West's telephone companies, Mountain Bell, Northwestern Bell and Pacific Northwest Bell, are testing Integrated Services Digital Network, a new technology that lets customers send voice, data, facsimile and video simultaneously over the same line.

In media usage, spot TV and outdoor spending almost doubled in 1986, while newspaper and magazine advertising declined from the previous year.

US West selected Tracy-Locke, Dallas, in mid-October 1987 to be the first agency of record for its long-distance business, which commands an ad budget of about $7 million. The company's operating companies have their own agencies.

US West's Northwestern Bell information technologies division, Minneapolis, a transmitter of electronic data to businesses, moved its estimated $1 million business-to-business advertising account to Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, from Cole & McVoy Advertising, Bloomington, Minn., in early 1986.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	3,144	5,722
Magazines	2,475	3,634
Bus. pubs	539	48
Network TV	555	0

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Spot TV	13,613	12,205
Network radio	17	0
Spot radio	6,149	5,406
Outdoor	427	331
Network cable	6	0
Total measured	26,925	27,346
Unmeasured	23,108	25,000
Total	50,032	52,346

US WEST
7800 East Orchard
Englewood, Colo. 80111
(303) 793-6500
Corporate Personnel
Jack A. MacAllister, president-ceo
Richard D. McCormick, exec vp
John C. Willemssen, vp-strategic planning
Judi Servoss, vp-pr
Sharon Vercimak, dir-adv & events mktg
Advertising Agency

Fallon McElligott, Minneapolis—Fred Senn, mgmt super; Mary Weber, acct super; Kathy Spraitz, acct exec; David Leslie, asst acct exec.

FIRST TELEPHONE COMMUNICATIONS
Englewood, Colo.
Marketing Personnel
James Harrison, vp-mgmt
Steve Lang, dir comm
Mickey Clark, adv mgr

MOUNTAIN BELL
Denver, Colo.
Corporate Personnel
Gary Ames, president
Marketing Personnel
Robert C. Hawk, vp-mktg
Linn A. Wallace, vp-pr & public affairs
S.C. Kanewske, adv mgr
Advertising Agency

Tracy-Locke, Denver—John McLagan, exec vp-dir client svcs; John Putney, vp-mgmt super; Jan Wondera, Megan Miller, acct execs.

NORTHWESTERN BELL
Omaha, Neb.
Corporate Personnel
Sharon Carr, president-ceo
Marketing Personnel
Janice D. Stoney, adv mgr
Advertising Agency

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Minneapolis—Dennis Sullivan, mgmt super; Ray Hathaway, acct exec; Sue Perkins, acct controller.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST BELL
Seattle, Wash.
Corporate Personnel
Andrew V. Smith, president
Marketing Personnel
Mike Breda, mgr-adv
Stan Thompson, mgr-adv
Dennis Stamaris, mgr-adv
Diana Couture, mgr-adv
Jim Moznette, dir-pr
Advertising Agency

Saatchi & Saatchi DFS, San Francisco—Brian Burns, mgmt super; Charles Skuba, acct super; Tom Shymanski, Carol Valentine, acct execs.

Van Munching

RANK 176

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	454	414	9.7
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	45	93	(52.0)

Van Munching & Co. held tight to its position as the nation's top beer importer in 1986, but not without a major fight. Foreign exchange losses influenced a dollar drain of more than 50% from the company's advertising budgets. And increased competition, particularly from Corona, the trendy Mexican lager, threatened to topple Heineken, VM's flagship brand, from its long-standing position as the top imported beer in the U.S.

Despite the pressure, VM manage to increase total beer sales about 11% to 39.6 million cases in 1986 over 1985, according to Market Watch, a beer, wine and liquor industry trade publication. VM's combined sales represented 1.6% of the total domestic and imported beer market and 33% of the imported beer market.

What didn't grow was advertising spending, which dropped from $93 million in 1985 to an estimated $44.6 million last year, according to AD AGE. Of that total, measured spending accounted for $27 million in 1986, down from $56.4 million in 1985.

Corporate spokesman Philip Van Munching blamed reductions "of at least 30%" on weakening of the U.S. dollar in international markets—a trend that continues to influence ad spending this year.

Heineken, which has been the nation's top beer import for more than 10 years, held onto its position and boosted sales to 35.7 million cases from 34.5 million cases in 1985, according to Market Watch. But the increase was one of the smallest in recent history and reduced Heineken's share of the imported beer market to 29% from 31.7%. The No. 2 brand, Corona Extra, imported by Barton Brands, Chicago, multiplied sales eightfold to 26 million cases. It was distributed in only 35 states.

"There's no doubt about it. Corona is hot," Mr. Van Munching says, "and the fact that we had to increase the Heineken case price by $1.25 to account for the exchange rates was no help."

VM decreased network TV spending from $6.5 million in 1985 to only $1.5 million in 1986 and reduced spot TV spending $6.5 million to only $2.5 million. Magazine spending fell from $7.8 million to $3.9 million.

Amstel Light, VM's second largest brand, also posted sales gains—to 3.3 million cases from 2.4 million cases—but saw new competition. Once the only imported light beer, Amstel Light was joined in the category by Canadian import Molson Light, and German import, Dry Beck's Light.

Advertising support for Amstel Light virtually dried up in 1986. VM pulled the brand completely out of network TV, where it had spent over $2 million in 1985, and spent only $142,000 on spot TV in 1986. Magazine spending dropped from about $1.8 million in 1985 to $116,000 in 1986.

Grizzly Canadian Lager, VM's only Canadian import, was the company's biggest problem. Its sales were flat at 600,000 cases, according to Market Watch.

Though Lintas: New York (formerly SSC&B) handles all three brands, VM reportedly is reviewing its beer accounts and is expected to hear presentations from several shops. Sources say VM ordered new creative for Heineken last spring, but no new Lintas ads have been used.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	0	375
Magazines	3,880	7,842
Newsp. supps.	221	338
Bus. pubs.	161	160
Network TV	1,538	6,503
Spot TV	2,504	9,166
Network radio	145	284
Spot radio	18,670	31,724
Total measured	27,119	56,392
Unmeasured	17,631	36,900
Total	44,750	93,292

VAN MUNCHING & CO.
1270 Avenue of the Americas
New York, N.Y. 10020
(212) 265-2685
Corporate Personnel
Leo Van Munching Jr., president
Marketing Personnel
John McAna, vp-natl sales mgr
Alvin Nilson, adv mgr
Philip Van Munching, corp comm
Advertising Agency

Lintas: New York—Heineken, Amstel Light, Grizzly Canadian Lager—John Grogan, exec vp-acct mgr; John van der Kieft, vp-mgmt super; Steve Amos, acct super, Heineken; Brian McCabe, acct exec, Heineken; Tim Franklin, acct super, Amstel, Grizzly; Craig Martin, acct exec, Amstel, Grizzly.

VF Corp.

RANK 133

Wyomissing, Pa.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,545	1,481	4.3
Net income	129	139	(7.2)
U.S. advertising	62	60	4.5

Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Jeanswear	906	942	(3.8)
Sportswear	309	248	24.4
Intimate apparel	261	240	8.8
Other	68	51	34.2

VF Corp., which has diversified through acquisition since 1984—including the $762 million buyout of Greensboro, N.C-based Blue Bell in 1986—recorded its first profit decline in nine years last year, but is on the rebound in 1987.

For the first six months of 1987, earnings have climbed 35.5% from the 1986 period that suffered from a weak performance by its Lee division, a downturn in the jeans' market, costs associated both with the Blue Bell purchase and the closure of Troutman Co., a small maker of casual slacks and shorts.

Strength this year is coming from Wrangler, which is at the forefront of the stone-washed denim trend, and Lee, which has dropped two poorly selling lines and hired agency, Fallon McElligott, Minneapolis, to give its marketing sharper focus.

Last spring, the company broke a $20 million jeans promotion that included a print and TV campaign for Lee Relaxed Rider jeans, shifting emphasis and addressing slightly older customers—women 18-35 years old instead of those 12-24. More sophisticated and understated than past campaigns, the new approach focused on how jeans fit. The campaign also included advertising for men's jeans and Lee's first TV spots for children's jeans.

Another success at VF in 1987 has been Marithe & Francois Girbaud, a division that produces street-styled clothes. VF picked up the brand through Blue Bell. It has succeeded in standing out from the pack with two hot products—torn and destroyed jeans. Retailing for between $52 and $62, torn jeans are simply jeans with holes in them, while destroyed jeans are faded and frayed.

In support of American-made products, VF Corp. began advertising, via BBDO, a new line of Pepsi Apparel America casual clothing carrying the "America" tag to convey that the clothes are American-made. Coca-Cola apparel is made abroad.

VF also is expanding its factory outlets into western states, where it still is a relatively new concept. There are VF outlets in malls in Mesa, Ariz., Draper, Utah, and Tucson, Ariz. Most outlets offer prices 35% to 50% below retail. Other VF mall locations are on the Eastern seaboard.

During the early 1980s jeans accounted for 80% of sales. Diversification has left VF less vulnerable to trends. With Bassett-Walker and Blue Bell non-jeans' lines, jeans now are just 60% of sales.

VF also makes Vanity Fair women's apparel and Bassett-Walker jogging suits and sweatshirts. The company owns H.D. Lee, which makes the nation's third most popular brand of jeans.

The Blue Bell deal provided VF entry into the swimwear and sportswear market through Jantzen and Jansport; and into industrial laundry and occupational apparel products through Red Kap. VF now has four national brands of jeans—its Lee line, Wrangler, Rustler and Sedgefield brands—and about a 25% share of the national blue jeans market, virtually the same as Levi Strauss & Co.

Prior to the Blue Bell purchase, its share was 15%. The purchase also gives VF strength throughout the U.S. Wrangler is strongest in the West. Lee's strength is in the Midwest, Northeast and Southeast. The company expects to increase the combined Lee/Wrangler market share in jeans to 30% in five years.

In building market share in what is regarded as a mature jeans market, VF aimed Lee jeans ads at the overlooked women and children segment and helped move Lee from less 3% of the market in 1981 to more than 13% of the market today.

VF advertising is trying to give the same sort of push to Wrangler jeans. Wranglers have about a 10% share of the jeans market.

U.S advertising expenditures for all VF lines, estimated at $62 million in 1986, were up 9.6% over 1985. Totals include an estimated $6 million in Blue Bell spending.

The Lee jeans brand accounted for some $13 million in measured media spending in 1986, up 23% over a year earlier with most of that in spot TV and magazines. Wrangler jeans also got a needed boost, receiving $4.5 million, up from $457,000 in 1985, according to BAR/LNA. Wrangler sportswear got the lion's share, a substantial $5.8 million.

Lee sportswear, as tracked by BAR/LNA in 1986, recorded a measured outlay of $1.4 million, down from the $5.1 million spent on the brand in 1985. Spot and network TV and magazines represented the principal media used in Lee brand advertising.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	800	255
Magazines	8,124	6,131
Newsp. supps.	518	312
Network TV	5,982	7,993
Spot TV	5,992	5,244
Network radio	2,329	1,637
Spot radio	0	9
Outdoor	634	583
Network cable	1,530	2,089
Total measured	25,909	24,253
Unmeasured	36,300	35,300
Total	62,209	59,553

VF CORP.
1047 North Park Road
Wyomissing, Pa. 19610
(215) 378-1151
Corporate Personnel
Lawrence R. Pugh, chmn & ceo
Robert E. Gregory, president-coo
JEANSWEAR GROUP
LEE APPAREL
Merriam, Kansas
Marketing Personnel
David Lowe, vp-adv
WRANGLER
Greensboro, N.C.
Marketing Personnel
L. Steven Leonard, vp-adv & promo
Bill Green, dir, business devel
GIRBAUD

REBATE
FULFILLMENT
SERVICES?
C & C Information Systems
54 Willow Park Center
Farmingdale, New York 11735
516 - 752-0881
• FAST QUOTES •
• COMPETITIVE FEES •

BE A BIG FISH.

LAUREL-HATTIESBURG, MISSISSIPPI
TUSCALOOSA, ALABAMA
YUMA, ARIZONA
EL CENTRO, CALIFORNIA
TRAVERSE CITY, CADILLAC
CHEBOYGAN, MICHIGAN

If you're not advertising on Beam Communications' TV stations, you're missing a big share of several rich new markets.

It's simple: there are little fish. And there are big fish. Which would you rather be?

BE A BIG FISH

BEAM COMMUNICATIONS

WDAM-TV, NBC, Laurel-Hattiesburg, MS
KYEL-TV, NBC, Yuma, AZ-El Centro, CA
WPBN-TV/WTOM-TV, NBC, Traverse City - Cadillac - Cheboygan, MI
WCFT-TV, CBS, Tuscaloosa, AL

Represented by Katz Continental Television

© 1987 Beam Communications

Greensboro, N.C.
Marketing Personnel
Joni Fiori, adv & pr dir, in-house agency
Advertising Agencies

Fallon McElligott, Minneapolis—Lee Apparel—Steve Sjobold, acct exec.

Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York—Wrangler brands—Susana McDermott, acct exec.

SPORTSWEAR GROUP
Bassett-Walker
Martinsville, Va.
Marketing Personnel
Cecil Robbins, adv dir
JANTZEN
Portland, Ore.
Marketing Personnel
Roger Yost, adv & promo dir, menswear
Bob Wirtz, adv & promo dir, womenswear
JANSPORT
Appleton, Wis.
Marketing Personnel
Skip Yowell, adv dir
Rhonda S. Lewis, asst promo & adv dir
PEPSI APPAREL AMERICA
Merriam, Kansas
Marketing Personnel
Barbara Wells, vp-mktg
Advertising Agencies

Babb-Perry, Charlotte, N.C.—Bassett-Walker—Joe Babb, acct exec.

BBDO, New York—Pepsi Apparel America—Richard Flaskegaard, acct exec.

Elgin Syfert, Seattle, Wash.—Jansport—Skip Yowell, adv & promo dir.

INTIMATE APPAREL GROUP
VANITY FAIR
New York
Marketing Personnel
Carole Stewart, adv super
MODERN GLOBE/LOLLIPOP
North Wilksboro, N.C.
Marketing Personnel
Tom Gorman, vp-mktg.
Advertising Agencies

Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York—Vanity Fair—Gay Wasserman, acct exec.

Price/McNabb, Asheville, N.C.—Modern Globe/Lollipop—Buzz Gikens, acct exec.

OCCUPATIONAL APPAREL GROUP
RED KAP
Nashville, Tenn.
Marketing Personnel
Barbara King, mktg comm dir
Advertising Agency

Bill Hudson & Assoc., Nashville, Tenn.—Susan Andress, Tom Mays, acct execs.

Visa International

RANK
192

San Francisco

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Volume	129,800	110,596	17.4
Net income	N/A	N/A	N/A
U.S. advertising	35	42	(14.9)

In a major push for a share of the business travel and entertainment dollar, Visa, generally used for retail purposes, is butting heads with American Express and going after the competition through sponsorship of the Winter and Summer Olympics in 1988.

Visa USA's head-knocking aggressiveness has shown results: In the first half of 1987 ended June 30, Visa's total U.S. dollar charge volume was $43.66 billion, up 12.6% from the first half of 1986. Its worldwide total in the first quarter (worldwide figures lag by a quarter domestic results) of $35 billion, was up 18.5% from the same period in 1986.

Visa laid out $14.5 million to be the sole financial services sponsor of both 1988 Olympic games and is planning [illegible] million for Olympics-oriented media buys, marketing and promotion. As an encore, Visa, which sees the Olympics as providing a rallying point for its diffuse membership of 19,000 banks, continued the momentum by snapping up sponsorship of the U.S. ski team.

Visa is putting the Olympics logo on credit cards and will use it on T-shirts, tote bags and other items for new card applicants.

Visa's ad campaign by agency BBDO, New York, with the theme "Visa, it's everywhere you want it to be," hit travel and entertainment leader American Express head-on. In a Cleo-winning commercial, couples dine at Rosalie's, a quaint Italian restaurant in Marblehead, Mass., where course after course of food is served. The clincher: "But if you go there, remember, bring a big appetite and bring your Visa card, because at Rosalie's they don't take no for an answer and they don't take American Express."

In one print ad, Visa's "they don't take American Express" campaign for travel checks went too far for American Express' taste. Visa said its name was on four times as many shops as American Express, but later backed down and eliminated the reference to American Express. In a second ad, Visa backed off wording that was perceived to indicate American Express cards would not be accepted in Calgary. Only Visa will be accepted at the games, but other cards will be accepted as usual in other parts of the city.

In a major breakthrough, Visa and MasterCard were successful in breaking into a market estimated at $6 billion by convincing 16 major department store chains such as Bloomingdales to accept their cards.

Visa continues to dominate the U.S. credit card business. As of June 30, 1987, out of 215.15 million cards outstanding, up 14.1% from year-end 1986, Visa held a 47.9% share, MasterCard 34.8%, American Express 8.5%, Discover 7.4% and Citicorp (Diners Club) 1.4%.

Visa has had only minor erosion in its market share in card purchase volume. Out of $212.17 billion in charges in the U.S., as of June 30, 1987, Visa held a leading 42.1% share, MasterCard 28.4%, AmEx 25.9%, Diners Club 1.6%, Discover 1.9%.

Worldwide, Visa held nearly half of the cardholders and 44% of the dollar volume in the payments card business at the end of 1986. In traveler's checks, Visa is second with a 19% share, compared with AmEx's 60%. MasterCard is a distant third with 5%.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	9,229	5,581
Bus. pubs.	786	347
Network TV	12,422	16,549
Spot TV	2,342	1,476
Network radio	0	2,466
Spot radio	4	3,047
Outdoor	6	185
Network cable	535	217
Total measured	25,322	29,768
Unmeasured	10,123	11,900
Total	35,445	41,668

VISA USA
P.O. Box 8999
San Francisco, Calif. 94126
(415) 570-3200
Marketing Personnel
John H. Bennett, sr vp-mktg
Vince La Paglia, vp-paper prods
Jan Soderstrom, vp-adv
David Roberts, mgr-adv
Advertising Agency

BBDO, New York-all prods-Gary DePaolo, vr-sr mgmt dir; Richard Kronengold, acct super; Kevin Roddy, acct exec; Mike Hedge, assoc media dir; Charles Meismer, sr creative dir; Art Millor, creative dir.

Volvo AB

RANK 185

Goteborg, Sweden

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	12,240	12,119	1.0
Net income	577	630	(8.4)
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	3,019	3,200	(5.7)
Operating profits	N/A	N/A	N/A
Advertising	41	49	(16.0)

Volvo North America Corp., the Rockleigh, N.J.-based subsidiary of Sweden's AB Volvo, looks toward the spring 1988 entry of its lower-priced Volvo 480 to continue to build sales in the U.S. By August 1987 sales had dropped 5% compared with the same period in the previous year.

Volvo reported sales of 111,100 cars in the U.S. and 7,500 in Canada in 1986. Total unit sales in North America were up 7.5% from 1985 and represented 28% of Volvo worldwide car sales of 419,500 units.

In the last 10 years, Volvo has more than doubled its share of the U.S. car market, which stood at 1% in 1986.

Volvo is the No. 1 European exporter to the U.S. in the "upscale family-car segment" and is the No. 2 European exporter to the U.S. overall, second only to Volkswagen AG.

Volvo attributes the sales slump so far in 1987 to heavy market competition and problems with supply. The company still expects to finish the year with 110,000-112,000 sales, with the model mix remaining about the same as last year—50% for the 740 model, 38% for the 240, 10% for the 760 and 2% for the 780 coupe.

Volvo predicts it will sell 200,000 units annually in the U.S. by 1995. A great deal of that extra volume will come from the turbocharged, front-wheel-drive 480 ES coupe, built by Volvo Car BV in the Netherlands. U.S. introduction of the 480 has been delayed, mainly because Volvo hasn't been able to produce enough cars to satisfy demand in Europe. Industry observers in Europe add that the weakness of the U.S. dollar has been another cause of the delay.

The 480 should account for 15,000-20,000 unit sales in its first full year beginning next spring. Volvo eventually expects to sell about 50% of the plant's capacity—20,000-25,000 units—annually in the U.S. The 480's price range is $11,000-$15,000.

At the other end of the price spectrum is the Bertone-styled, $38,000 Volvo 780 coupe, which hit dealer showrooms last summer.

Although Volvo officials are close-mouthed about ad budgets, one spokesperson says ad spending for 1988 will be split 40% print, 40% broadcast, 20% other (including outdoor, promotions and other tie-ins). Broadcast will consist mainly of dealer cooperative advertising.

Magazines will continue to get the lion's share of print spending. Print ads by Scali, McCabe, Sloves, New York, Volvo's agency for 20 years, will bear the tagline, "Volvo. A car you can believe in.".

Volvo also will spend roughly $3 million this year on its long-running tennis sponsorship. About half of that will go to professional events—for media advertising, promotion and prize money. The rest will be split between Volvo's collegiate and recreational tennis programs. Volvo also will sponsor the first World Equestrian Games in Stockholm in 1990.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	5,768	8,970
Magazines	11,624	11,099
Newsp. supps.	395	596
Bus. pubs.	1,025	931
Network TV	3,987	436
Spot TV	4,937	7,714
Spot radio	378	3,969
Outdoor	1	20
Network cable	637	478
Total measured	28,753	34,213
Unmeasured	12,606	15,000
Total	41,359	49,213

VOLVO NORTH AMERICA CORP.
1 Volvo Drive
Rockleigh, N.J. 07647
(201) 768-7300
Corporate Personnel
Bjorn Ahlstrom, president-ceo
VOLVO CARS
NORTH AMERICA
Marketing Personnel
William J. Hoover, sr vp-mktg
Milt Gravatt, mgr-mktg svcs
Gerald Dudzik, natl adv mgr
VOLVO AUTOMATED SYSTEMS
Marketing Personnel
Ralph Daulton, vp-genl mgr
VOLVO GM HEAVY TRUCK CORP.
Marketing Personnel
Larry Oliphant, vp-sales & mktg
VOLVO-PENTA OF AMERICA
Marketing Personnel
Alan Revington, president
Advertising Agency

Scali, McCabe, Sloves, New York—John Slaven, sr vp-mgmt super; Gloria Wood, Doug Pease, Dean Beals, acct supers; John Fiscella, acct exec; Tom Stacey, acct super, eastern region; Peter Gottfried, acct super, western region.

Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts

RANK
197

Toronto

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	N/A	3,403	N/A
Net income	N/A	538	N/A
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	N/A	1,174	N/A
Operating profits	N/A	93	N/A
Advertising	33	41	(21.1)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Distilled spirits	N/A	1,516	N/A
Natural resources	N/A	482	N/A
Gas utilities	N/A	1,767	N/A

After an attempted takeover and subsequent court battle, Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts found itself under new leadership last October, split from the holding company, Hiram Walker Resources, whose oil and gas holdings had made it a target for raiders.

Allied-Lyons PLC, London, owns 51% of Hiram with a two-year option to purchase the 49% held by Gulf Canada Corp., Toronto, which took over the gas and oil divisions of Hiram Walker Resources. Gulf Canada itself is 75.6% owned by Olympia & York Developments, Toronto, a real estate company.

Hiram Walker has benefitted from its new relationship with Allied-Lyons. Detroit-based Hiram Walker Inc., the U.S. sales company, picked up U.S. marketing rights to Lyons brands formerly under Heublein. Walker officials expect to market more Lyons brands in the U.S.

Walker also acquired Brooklyn-based Joseph Victori Wines Co. in June 1987. Victori brands include Calvin Cooler and Paradise Springs Seltzer. This purchase marks Walker's entry into the lucrative cooler market, growing with the national movement toward lighter, sweeter drinks. The nation's sixth-ranked cooler, Calvin had 1986 sales of 5.7 million cases or about $116 million, according to Market Watch, a monthly publication on wine and liquor published by M. Shanken Communications Inc.

The company has begun a search for an ad agency for the brand, says Tim Dorr, marketing director for Calvin Cooler. Warwick Advertising, which formerly had the account, resigned it recently.

Accounts for other Walker brands are also up in the air. McCaffrey & McCall, New York, recently resigned Canadian Club, Haagen-Dazs Cream Liqueur and the company's line of cordials and schnapps, estimated at $8-$12 million in business. M&M left after merging with its sister firm, Rumrill Hoyt, New York, in the Saatchi & Saatchi network. Rumrill Hoyt handles Bacardi Imports, Miami.

Canadian Club, Walker's flagship brand, ranked 12th among Canadian whiskies nationwide, with 2.5 million case depletions in 1986. Although this represented an 8% drop, the brand held onto its 13% share of the category, according to Frank Walters, director of research for Impact, a wine and spirits newsletter. Mr. Walker also provided the market information for this article. Measured advertising for the brand fell about 23% in 1986, to just under $6.3 million, according to BAR/LNA.

Although measured advertising for Kahlua liqueur, Walker's second biggest brand, fell 6% to slightly more than $6.9 million, sales were static at 1.7 million case depletions. Kahlua draws 9% of sales in the liqueur category.

Hiram Walker cordials, third-ranked on the company's product list, performed better, increasing sales 3% to 1.65 million case depletions. Walker spent 19% less, or about $1 million, on advertising for the brands, according to BAR/LNA. The cordials have an 8% share of category.

Courvoisier cognac maintained its 7% share of category despite a 4% drop in sales and 17.5% cut in promotional spending to about $6.5 million in 1986. A new print and outdoor campaign began in October.

Now a private company, Hiram Walker no longer releases sales or profit figures.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	1,846	2,430
Magazines	17,208	21,421
Newsp. supps.	235	302
Bus. pubs.	31	0
Outdoor	5,000	7,073
Total measured	24,319	31,226
Unmeasured	8,200	10,000
Total	32,519	41,226

HIRAM WALKER-GOODERHAM
& WORTS LTD.
1 First Canadian Place
P.O. Box 33
Toronto, Ont. M5X 1A9
(416) 864-3300
HIRAM WALKER
P.O. Box 33006
Detroit, Mich. 48232
Corporate Personnel
Michael Jackaman, president-ceo
U.S. DOMESTIC GROUP
Marketing Personnel
James F. Murphy, president, Hiram Walker & Sons
Gerald Simpson, vp, dir-intl mktg
William P. Wilde, vp, dir-mktg
Stephen Eskoff, vp, natl sales mgr
WINE & SPECIALTIES GROUP
Marketing Personnel
Elio L. Marcon, president
Martin W. Gold, president, Fredrick Wildman & Sons
Stephen Nadelberg, president, Hiram Walker-Consolidated Intl Brands
John J. Harcarufka, president, W.A. Taylor & Co.
T. William Samuels Jr., president, Maker's Mark Distillery
Terrence Clancey, president, Callaway Vineyard & Winery
KAHLUA GROUP
Marketing Personnel
Roy W. Stevens, president
Bill Blue, vp, dir-intl mktg
James T. Flaherty, vp-sales, Maidstone Wine & Spirits
David P. Boyle, vp-mktg, Maidstone Wine & Spirits
Advertising Agencies

Advertising to Women, New York—Harvey's ports and sherries—Phillip Garaci, exec vp.

N W Ayer, New York—Ballantine scotch, Canadian Rich & Rare—Stuart Brown, media super.

Eisaman, Johns & Laws, Los Angeles—Maidstone Wine & Spirits, Kahlua—Dean Laws, president, mgmt rep; Andrea Giambrone, sr vp-assoc creative dir; Rick Sale, vp-acct super; Wendy Silver, acct exec.

Lockhart & Pettus, New York—Canadian Club, black adv—Keith Lockhart, president; Theodore D. Pettus, exec vp; Ronn D. Harris, sr vp, dir-client svcs.

Poppe, Tyson, New York—Canadian Club Classic—Phil Moore, sr vp, dir-client svcs; Bill Giacalone, acct super.

Simons Michelson Zeive, Troy, Mich.—Royal Canadian—Dennis Zinzhook, vp-acct super.

J. Walter Thompson, New York—Courvoisier, Drambuie, Tia Maria, Cockburn's Port—Tim Arnold, sr vp-mgmt dir; Doug Foster, vp-sr acct super; Linda Kaplan, sr vp-creative dir.

Waring & LaRosa, New York—Babycham—John Cassano, vp-acct exec.

Wal-Mart Stores

RANK
107

Bentonville, Ark.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	11,910	8,451	40.9
Net income	450	327	37.4
U.S. advertising	76	40	87.3

Wal-Mart Stores Inc., one of the country's fastest growing retailers which by tradition has begrudged its spending on advertising and promotions, nonetheless put that image to rest in 1986 by boosting total advertising 87.3% to $75.5 million.

Charles Self, Wal-Mart vp-finance, says Wal-Mart advertising has always been less than 1% of total sales. Of the total, measured spending was $30.5 million, up from only $16.3 million in 1985.

The largest increases in measured advertising during 1986 were reported in men's apparel, up 365% to $1.4 million; miscellaneous, up 269% to $10.1 million; automotive, up 233% to $1 million; and sport, toy and hobby, up 131% to $6.6 million.

Advertising expenditures still mirror Wal-Mart's reputation for maintaining low overhead, some say the lowest of any mass merchandiser in America. With its well-run, no-nonsense approach, Wal-Mart also is maintaining the competitive heat on other discounters.

Wal-Mart continues to ascend the ranks of America's retail giants. In terms of 1986 sales, it placed No. 2 among mass merchandising discount chains (behind K mart), No. 4 among mass merchandisers and No. 7 among all retailers.

The first two quarters of 1987 ending July 31 demonstrated strong growth. Revenues hit $6.9 billion, up 36% from 1986, and net income, $244.4 million, a rise of 44% over the same period a year earlier.

Wal-Mart, with an extensive presence in the Oil Belt states, is cruising through the region's economic slump in good standing, a fact observers credit to its sales of non-durable goods and discount brand name items.

J.D. Simpson III, VP-corporate finance and research analyst at the Little Rock, Ark., investment firm of Stephens Inc., believes Wal-Mart will maintain 30%-35% annual growth at least into 1990.

The corporation is continuing the strategy of expansion from its mid-Sun Belt base, across the South, Midwest and Southwest—now 24 states all told. A total of 1,050 Wal-Mart stores were operating on July 31, 1987, compared with 915 a year ago.

Wal-Mart continues to enjoy positive feedback from its Middle America constituency for its "Buy America" program instituted in 1986 by founder and chairman Sam M. Walton, who is reported to be the richest man in America. Officials tout the program as being responsible for the purchase of more than $1 billion of domestically produced goods.

Sam's Wholesale Club, a subsidiary, became the largest operation of its kind in the nation during 1986. On July 31, 1987, 73 outlets were generating sales of $615.9 million. That compares with 37 wholesale clubs producing $400.8 million a year ago. Wal-Mart gained the club through its purchase of Super Saver Warehouse Club Inc., Monroe, La., in May 1987. The deal involved 20 wholesale clubs in 12 states.

Within its general merchandise outlets, Wal-Mart added 144 pharmacies in 1986, and plans call for an additional 160 during 1987. Under consideration is the addition of grocery stores to some existing Wal-Mart stores of 100,000 sq. ft.

The corporation has experimented on a limited basis with deep discounting and retail health-and-beauty-aid operations. Officials expect to enter the $240 billion retail food market within a year when the first Hypermart U.S.A. opens in Garland, Texas, as part of a joint venture with Dallas-based Cullum Cos. The hypermart features a one-stop shopping approach in 220,000 sq. ft.—general merchandise, apparel, dry cleaning, shoe repair, fast-food restaurants, financial services and grocery items. Additional hypermarts are planned.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	85	0
Spot TV	30,445	16,322
Outdoor	0	2
Total measured . . .	30,529	16,324
Unmeasured	45,000	24,000
Total	75,529	40,324

WAL-MART STORES
702 S.W. Eighth St.
Bentonville, Ark. 72716
(501) 273-4000
Marketing Personnel
Dwight Carney, vp-adv & sales promo
Bob McCurry, dir-adv
Joe Chappelle, dir-sales promo
Advertising Agency
Bernstein-Rein Advertising, Kansas City, Mo.—Skip Rein, exec vp.

RANK 128

Wellcome PLC

London

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	1,468	1,473	(0.4)
Net income	93	87	7.2
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	624	656	(4.7)
Operating profits	N/A	N/A	N/A
Advertising	65	51	26.2
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Human healthcare	1,231	1,205	2.2
Animal healthcare	237	260	(9.0)

Wellcome PLC, British-based pharmaceuticals manufacturer, in September started selling the only AIDS drug on the market, a drug one analyst predicts will reach $100 million in sales this year.

Even though Retrovir (trade name for azidothymidine or AZT) is considered a palliative—alleviating symptoms and extending life—rather than a cure, "there's nothing else out there," says Hemant Shah, analyst for Normura Securities International in New York.

At a cost to the customer of $11 million to $12,000 per year's supply, Retrovir should overtake Zorivax, the company's treatment for genital herpes that in fiscal 1986 became its top-selling product, says Mr. Shah. (Wellcome sources put customer cost of AZT at $8,000 yearly, with a bottle of 100 tablets selling wholesale for $188.)

Zorivax, which like AZT is advertised to physicians in a campaign run by Rolf Werner Rosenthal of New York, had worldwide sales of $153 million in fiscal 1986. Rumrill-Hoyt, a division of McCaffrey & McCall, advertises Zorivax to consumers, but not by name. They are told to ask their doctor about a prescription drug for herpes. There is no similar consumer advertising for AZT.

Wellcome's FDA application to market Zorivax in the U.S. as a treatment for shingles is pending. Potential competition looms ahead. Bristol-Myers is close to receiving government permission to conduct tests on two AIDS drugs, DDA and DDI. Without competition, Retrovir will be a $150 million-$200 million business next year, says Mr. Shah. The company's U.S. arm, Burroughs Wellcome Co. in Research Triangle Park, N.C., is manufacturer not only of Retrovir and Zorivax but of the company's popular OTC cold remedies, Actifed and Sudafed, and its topical antibiotic Neosporin. Actifed and Sudafed together had 18% of the U.S. market in 1986, estimates Kline & Co., a research firm in Fairfield, N.J. Separately, Actifed accounts for a 9.5% share and Sudafed for 8.5%. This was a slight drop from 1985, when Actifed had 10% and Sudafed 9%, but still the combined share was above Procter & Gamble Co.'s Nyquil (12% share) and SmithKline Beckman Corp.'s Contac (8%).

BAR/LNA service says Wellcome spent $13 million in measured media on Actifed and $8 million on Sudafed in 1986. Actifed spending dropped from $15 million in 1985, and Sudafed expenditures stayed the same. The company advertised Neosporin on network TV for the first time, spending $5.4 million. The three products accounted for 90% of Wellcome advertising as measured by BAR/LNA. Network TV claimed 90%.

Because 43% of sales and 67% of profits come from the U.S., Wellcome has been adversely affected by a steadily declining U.S. dollar.

Despite the dollar's 74.% decline against the pound, Wellcome closed fiscal '87 ending Aug. 30 with sales of $1.79 billion and retained profit of $111 million based on the 1987 average annual exchange rate of 1£=$1.5764.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	2,435	271
Newsp. supps	142	0
Bus. pubs	670	1,388
Network TV	26,454	22,236
Spot TV	198	80
Network cable	348	455
Total measured . . .	30,245	24,430
Unmeasured	34,655	27,000
Total	64,900	51,430

THE WELLCOME FOUNDATION LIMITED
The Wellcome Building
183 Euston Rd.
P.O. Box 129
London, England NW1 2BP, U.K.
44-01-387-4477
BURROUGHS WELLCOME CO.
3030 Cornwallis Rd.
Research Triangle Park, N.C. 27709
(919) 248-3000
Marketing Personnel
Theodore E. Haigler, president-ceo
Peter A. Reckert, vp-mktg & sales
Jerry Arnold, vp-prod mktg, new prods
Ron Wilson, dir-adv & comm
Advertising Agencies

Fones & Mann, New York—Actifed, Alkeran, Cardilate, Cortisporin Ophthalmics, Cortisporin Otics, Cortisporin Topical, Flolan, Imuran, Leukeran, Marezine tablets, Myleran, Neosporin Ophthalmics, Neosporin Topicals, Nix, Polysporin Ophthalmic, Polysporin Topicals, Polytrim, Purinethol, Sudafed, Thioguanine, Tracrium/Anectine, Viroptic, Wellbutrin, WellcovorinWellferon, Pediotic—Doug Wicker, Dave Callahan, acct supers.

Rolf Werner Rosenthal, New York—Retrovir, Zovirax—Howard Reiss, sr vp-mng dir; Carol Krugman, vp-project dir; Donna Moccio, vp-editing & programming dir; Joanne Jablonski, dir-operations & admin.

Rumrill-Hoyt, New York—consumer promo-Actifed prods (otc), Neosporin Topicals (otc), Polysporin Topicals (otc), Sudafed prods (otc) —Herbert Warren, exec vp-mgmt super; James Scanlon, sr vp-mgmt super; Walker Lewis, Doug Heimbigner, John Edwards, acct supers; Connie Gore, acct exec.

Hard sales projected

The Department of Commerce projects total retail hardlines sales to hit $116.1 billion by 1992, with hardware stores at $17.4 billion, home centers $55.3 billion, and DIY lumberyards $43.4 billion. Projections are based on a total hardlines industry compounded annual growth rate of 9.57% for 1986-92. In 1986, growth rate of hardware and home centers was 15.8% vs. 5.2% for all retailers.

RANK 135

Whirlpool Corp.

Benton Harbor, Mich.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	4,009	3,475	15.4
Net income	200	182	9.9
U.S. advertising	62	62	(0.5)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Laundry appliance	1,353	1,301	4.0
Refridg, air cond.	1,391	1,228	13.3
Home appliances	920	690	33.3
Other prods.	344	255	34.9

Whirlpool Corp., building on its market leadership in many appliances, focused on kitchen products while selling its central heating and air-conditioning unit in 1986.

In the process, the company remained a major appliance supplier to Sears, Roebuck & Co., [illegible] provided 37% of its revenue during the [illegible].

Chairman Jack [illegible] Sparks, who retires this year, reported the company realized $156 million cash from the sale of the heating and AC company, Heil-Quaker Corp., to Inter City Gas of Canada.

A major thrust for Whirlpool is the conversion of KitchenAid Inc., which it bought in 1986, to a full-line, high-end supplier targeting trade-up replacement business. The KitchenAid product line was expanded and given a $3.5 million advertising push during the year, most in magazines.

New KitchenAid products include dishwashers, ovens, ranges, microwave ovens, refrigerators, freezers and laundry equipment. Whirlpool already is a market leader in some of these categories. Appliance magazine reported that Whirlpool in 1986 had a commanding 65% of the trash compacter market in unit sales, 54% of gas dryers, 53% of electric dryers, and 50% of washers. Whirlpool also is the leader in freezer unit sales with a 37% share, and holds 28% of the refrigerator market, 20% of dishwashers, 15% of electric ranges, and 2% of microwave ovens.

The 1986 acquisitions of Mastercraft Industries Corp. of Denver and St. Charles Manufacturing Co. of St. Charles, Ill., fit the thrust of the Whirlpool Kitchens Inc. subsidiary formed at the end of 1985. The purchases add various types of cabinets to the line, which Whirlpool Kitchens began marketing this year through company-owned retail operations called "Design Works Kitchen Centers."

Although advertising spending didn't rise in 1986, BAR/LNA monitored substantial shifts in the distribution of the spending—mainly toward brands and away from general promotion. The company gave its biggest push to Whirlpool dishwashers, increasing spending more than 51% to $7.3 million. Whirlpool ranges were given $5.2 million in advertising, up 62%.

The increases for the specific products were largely at the expense of advertising for general promotion, down 59%, and for major appliances, down 55%.

Company sales for the first six months of 1987 were 7.8% higher than the year before. But profits were down 5.4% for the same period, which Mr. Sparks attributed to increased production costs and the expense of making and marketing the KitchenAid line.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Newspapers	4,140	1,750
Magazines	12,445	12,365
Newsp. supps	56	0
Bus. pubs	448	536
Network TV	13,925	14,477
Spot TV	2,638	2,317
Network radio	7,930	6,605
Spot radio	0	2
Outdoor	13	3,721
Network cable	291	306
Total measured . . .	41,887	42,079
Unmeasured	19,909	20,000
Total	61,796	62,079

WHIRLPOOL CORPORATION
Benton Harbor, Mich. 49022
(616) 926-5000
Marketing Personnel
Hank W. Bowman, exec vp-mktg
Robert W. Paul, vp, Whirlpool sales
B. David Allen, div vp-mktg comm
Herbert A. Rose, natl adv mgr
Advertising Agencies

D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.—washers, dryers, refrigerators, dishwashers, conventional cooking prods (ranges, ovens), microwave ovens, vacuum cleaners, corp adv—R.P. Monley, exec vp-mgmt super; Tom Hayden, vp-acct super; J. Ryckman, K. Ayala, acct execs; S. Kopcha, exec vp-exec creative dir; G. Howell, vp-group creative dir.

The Netedu Co., Benton Harbor, Mich.—sales promo, prod literature, contests—Mike Kosinski, vp-acct super; Bill Sherrington, Cyndi Marquardt, Shari Hansel, acct execs.

KITCHENAID INC.
St. Joseph, Mich.
Marketing Personnel
Kenneth W. Kaminski, president
Glenn L. Zerler, div vp-sales
Walter C. Layton, dir-mktg comm
Robert R. Boatman, natl adv mgr
Advertising Agencies

N W Ayer, New York—Mark Bollman, sr vp-mgmt super; Charles Meding, sr vp-exec acct dir; Victoria Squires, vp-acct super; Kate Zobel, acct exec; John Walsh, sr vp-exec creative dir; Jim Murphy, Howard Rieger, sr vps-group creative dirs; Rees Behrendt, vp-creative super; Frank Campana, sr art dir.

Creative Advertising, St. Joseph, Mich.—sales promo, prod literature—Richard J Radke Jr., vp-acct super.

WHIRLPOOL KITCHENS
Englewood, Colo.
Marketing Personnel
Dennis D. Finch, president
Robert C. Russell, sr vp-mktg
Charles "Gus" Gustafson III, vp-contract sales
Steven W. Hammons, vp-retail sales
Timothy Gardner, corp dir-mktg svcs
Colleen Travis, super-adv & promo
Advertising Agency

Karsh & Hagan Advertising, Englewood, Colo.—all company activities—Tom Hagan, co-chmn; Hank Schaller, acct super; Melissa Steinberg, acct exec.

RANK 167

Wickes Cos.

Santa Monica, Calif.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	4,770	2,806	70.0
Net income	84	76	10.0
U.S.	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	4,231	2,537	66.7
Operating profits	207	127	62.3
Advertising	50	50	(0.1)
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Building matls	2,164	1,602	35.1
Wall covering	492	248	98.7
Apparel	915	451	103.0
Auto products	1,199	506	137.0

Wickes Cos., operating in four distinct product categories, is moving to reduce its exposure in its consumer-oriented businesses and concentrate on the industrial and high technology centers of activity.

In late October, Wickes put on the market three of its operating units—Wickes Lumber, Kayser-Roth Apparel and Kayser-Roth hosiery. Wickes is seeking more than $600 million for the units that had cumulative operating earnings of $80 million on sales of $1.8 billion in 1986.

The divestiture follows an acquisition binge in which Wickes spent about $2.5 billion since its emergence from a corporate reorganization under the protection of the Bankruptcy Code in early 1985.

Before it emerged from its Chapter 11 proceedings, Wickes Cos. was primarily a retailing operation. The company has since diversified into manufacturing, especially with the $1.16 billion purchase in late 1986 of Collins & Aikman Corp., a leading commercial and industrial textile manufacturer.

The acquisitions pumped up Wickes Co.'s sales by 70% to $4.77 billion for its fiscal 1986 ended Jan. 31, 1987, compared to $2.81 billion in the previous year. Net profit for the company edges up to 10.1% to $83.8 million.

In the first half of fiscal 1987 ending Aug. 1, Wickes had net sales of $3 billion, up from $2.1 billion in the corresponding period. Operating income was $185.5 million, up 47.2%.

Wickes Cos. spent a total of $150 million on advertising and sales promotion in 1986, according to Michael Sitric, senior VP-corporate communications. The bulk of that money, however, is spent on local newspaper and regional direct mail campaigns. Wickes spent $34.7 million in measured spending in 1986, up 4.2% from the previous year.

About 84% of Wickes measured spending went to TV advertising; $13.5 million in network TV and $5.3 million in spot buys. Wickes spent $2.3 million, or 7% of its total budget, on network and spot radio.

With 1986 fiscal year sales of $2.16 billion for the building materials and home improvement division, Wickes currently ranks as the No. 2 competitor in the home improvement center industry, trailing only Lowe's Inc. Despite its dominant position, Wickes claims only about 3% of the $68 billion industry. However, it is trying to sell the 241-store Wickes Lumber chain.

Wickes Lumber contributes an estimated 50% of the division's sales. About 60% of Wickes Lumber's revenues come from contractors, although the company has taken steps, including boosting consumer-oriented advertising, to lessen its reliance on this professional market.

Don Hunter, publisher of Home Center magazine, Lincolnshire, Ill., described Wickes' plan to sell Wickes Lumber as ironic. "Wickes Lumber is the grandfather of the home center industry," he says. "They were selling to consumers before there was a consumer market (for home improvement products)."

In a highly regionalized industry, Wickes Lumber, operating in 36 states, represents the closest thing to a national chain, Mr. Hunter says.

The sale of Wickes Lumber will leave the company's Builders Emporium chain intact. Wickes boosted that chain's presence with the 1986 acquisitions of Grace Home Centers West and Orchard Supply Hardware from W.R. Grace & Co. for $186.6 million.

The purchases created the largest network of home improvement centers in California.

In early 1987, Wickes decided to merge the advertising efforts of Builders Emporium and all California-based Ole's outlets, picked up in the acquisition.

As the largest of Wickes' four divisions, the building materials and home improvement segment contributed 41% of Wickes sales and 22% of its operating profit. With the acquisitions, the division boosted measured ad spending 65% to $14.9 million in 1986, compared to $9 million in the previous year.

Wickes entered the apparel and hosiery industries in July 1985, when it acquired Kayser-Roth Apparel and Kayser-Roth

THE BLACK CHURCH MAGAZINE
Well Respected!
Well Received!
Well Done!
40,000 each month
Controlled Circulation
We offer you the best advertising Deal in the Nation!
P.O. Box 2216 • Balto., MD 21203
301-539-4101 • 301-539-4102

SCOTT DELIVERS EXCITEMENT!
LETTERS! LOGOS! SIGNS!
MILLONS OF LETTERS IN STOCK:
Plexiglas® • Foam • Gypsum • Vinyl
FREE • 48 PG. FULL COLOR CATALOG!
Call today! 1-800-237-9447
★VISIT OUR NY SHOWROOM/OUTLET
85 FIFTH AVE. MANHATTAN - (212) 741-1000
Headquarters: Sarasota, FL
Scott Plastics Co.® P.O. Box 1047 Tallevast, FL 34270 (813) 355-5171

Hosiery as part of a $1 billion purchase of the Consumer and Industrial Products Group from Gulf + Western Industries. Wickes' apparel and hosiery division contributed 16% of the company's fiscal 1986 sales and 14% of its operating profit.

Kayser-Roth Hosiery ranks No. 2 behind Hanes Hosiery as the leading marketer of hosiery and socks. In the food, drug and mass merchandise stores, K-R's No Nonsense brand of women's hosiery competes primarily against L'eggs, from Hanes. Within the No Nonsense brand, K-R introduced two line extensions in 1986: Sheer & Silky and Light Support. No Nonsense holds about 30% of the $2.5 billion branded hosiery market, compared to Hanes' 40%. Wickes also competes in the hosiery market through department and specialty stores under such licensed brands as Calvin Klein, Liz Claiborne and Leg Looks. Through that distribution channel, Wickes ranks third behind Hanes and Pennaco Hosiery, a subsidiary of International Playtex. In 1986, Wickes introduced the Burlington brand to mass merchants.

About 90% of the Kayser-Roth division's $16.7 million ad spending, or $15.1 million, backed the No Nonsense brand, even outspending rival Hanes in the food, drug and mass merchandise outlets. The remaining $1.6 million supported K-R's apparel and other hosiery brands.

Kayser-Roth Apparel markets clothes under the Cheryl Tiegs, Calvin Klein, Cole of California and Catalina brands.

Sales of Wickes' automotive and industrial products division more than doubled in 1986 to $1.2 billion, and with Wickes' divestiture plans, the division should play an even more important role for the company. While the division's sales represented 27% of Wickes' revenues, the division accounted for 40% of Wickes' operating income. Although primarily a wholesaler, the division includes APS Inc., which operates 100 company-owned and 1,500 independently owned Big A Auto Parts Stores. Wickes spent $1.9 million in 1986 to advertise its Big A stores.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	2,497	2,473
Newsp. supps.	213	156
Bus. pubs.	300	0
Network TV	13,545	14,078
Spot TV	15,258	13,899
Network radio	1,931	2,337
Spot radio	445	397
Outdoor	221	204
Network cable	285	198
Total measured	34,694	33,741
Unmeasured	15,000	16,000
Total	49,694	49,741

WICKES COS. INC.
3340 Ocean Park Blvd., Suite 2000
Santa Monica, Calif. 90405
(213) 452-0161
Corporate Personnel
Sanford C. Sigoloff, chmn & president-ceo
Wilhelm A. Mallory, sr exec vp, cfo
Michael S. Sitric, sr vp-comm
BUILDERS EMPORIUM
Marketing Personnel
Jack Edwards, president-ceo
Dennis Albert, vp-adv
KAYSER-ROTH APPAREL
Marketing Personnel
Charles Gessner, president
Maurice Forman, vp-strategic planning
Harvey B. Hoffman, president, Calvin Klein Underwear, Sleepwear
Robert A. Cordova, president, Catalina
George P. Green, president, Cole of California
KAYSER-ROTH HOSIERY
Marketing Personnel
P. Frederick Kahn, president
Michael C. Proies, president, No Nonsense Fashions
Terry Waltz, vp-mktg, No Nonsense Fashions
Terry L. Johnson, president, ladies hosiery div
Richard L. Hall, president, sock div
LEATH FURNITURE
Corporate Personnel
Robert C. Feuerhaken, chmn
ORCHARD SUPPLY HARDWARE
Marketing Personnel
Maynard Jenkins, president-ceo
Joseph DiRocco, vp-mktg
WICKES FURNITURE
Marketing Personnel
Robert C. Feuerhaken, chmn
John A. Klein, president-ceo
WICKES LUMBER
Marketing Personnel
Leslie L. Hagen, genl mgr
William Hensler, sr vp-genl merch mgr
WICKES MANUFACTURING CO.
Marketing Personnel
Neil J. Feola, president
Susan Williams, mktg dir
APS INC.
Marketing Personnel
Fred Pisciotta, president
YORKTOWNE
Marketing Personnel
Sam Palazzolo, president
John Stephenson, mktg dir
Advertising Agencies

Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago—No Nonsense brands—Malcolm Campbell, Rhonda Shumway, acct execs.

(In-house) Wickes Advertising, Santa Monica, Calif—all adv except No Nonsense brand—Joseph Sollish, vp-mng dir.

Western International Media, Los Angeles—all media buying—Jack Silver, acct exec.

Winn-Dixie Stores

RANK 155

Jacksonville, Fla.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	8,804	8,225	7.0
Net income	112	116	(3.5)
U.S. advertising	53	45	17.1

To counter unyielding competition, Winn-Dixie Stores Inc. is lowering prices, building larger stores and closing smaller ones, increasing its produce offerings by 20% and boosting advertising. W-D is the fourth largest U.S. grocer and the largest supermarket chain in the Sun Belt.

During its fiscal 1987, which ended June 24, Winn-Dixie opened 84 "superstores" (about 37,000 sq. ft. each) and closed 68 stores, averaging 20,800 sq. ft. The company also added one more Table Supply, its warehouse-type, bag-your-own grocery outlet, bringing that division to six stores, averaging 73,000 sq. ft.

Ambitious plans in the next 12 months call for the closing 40 small stores and building the same number of larger ones. The company hopes to increase sales 8% to $9.5 billion in fiscal 1988.

One-third of W-D's 1,260 stores are in Florida; the rest are scattered though 12 states, from Texas to Virginia.

The chain's biggest competitor in Florida is the Publix chain, which has a total of 331 stores, all in Florida. It is slightly more upscale than W-D.

The company faces the toughest competition in the Tampa-Orlando belt. According to Progressive Grocer, the combined Tampa-Orlando area has had a 25% increase in stores since 1980, ranking it the second hottest area of activity in the nation, next to Charlotte, N.C.

Kroger, the nation's largest grocer, opened its Florida Choice division in 1985 and now has 44 stores, most of them in the Tampa-Orlando area.

Earlier this year, Kroger opened two Welcome Super Warehouse stores in Winn-Dixie's backyard, Jacksonville. In August, North Carolina-based Food Lion also opened four stores in Jacksonville. The company plans 20 additional store openings in Florida in the next 12 months.

Last year, however, Winn-Dixie claimed the No. 1 spot in Jacksonville and Orlando, with 30% and 35% market shares, respectively, compared to Publix, 28% and 29%, respectively. However, Publix won with a 27% market share in Tampa to Winn-Dixie's 16%.

The heavy competition has forced W-D to lower prices, which has cut into margins and contributed to W-D's 3.5% earnings decline in fiscal 1987.

Burdensome trucking costs prompted the company to make its first major divestiture in recent years. Sixteen small stores in Nashville, Tenn., were sold in October 1987 to Malone & Hyde, a Memphis food wholesaler.

In addition to competitive pressures, the company has suffered from the depressed economies in the oil producing states of Louisiana and Texas, where it operates 90 and 86 stores, respectively.

W-D spent $52.5 million on advertising in 1986, up 17.1% from 1985, according to AD AGE estimates. The majority of spending fell in spot TV. W-D's most recent theme, was "At Winn-Dixie, we're right for you." The company also touts the epithet, "The Beef People" in most of its ads.

All print advertising is handled in-house in each of its 12 divisional headquarters.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Network TV	5,098	2,199
Spot TV	16,874	17,330
Spot radio	834	196
Outdoor	523	50
Network cable	0	86
Total measured	23,329	19,861
Unmeasured	29,200	25,000
Total	52,529	44,861

WINN-DIXIE STORES
5050 Edgewood Court
Jacksonville, Fla. 32205
(904) 783-5000
Marketing Personnel
G.E. (Mickey) Clerc, adv dir
Advertising Agencies

William Cook Advertising, Jacksonville, Fla.—William W. Cook, chmn; Bernard C. Schramm Jr, prsident; Carson Eddings, exec vp.

Zubi Advertising, Miami—hispanic adv—Maritere Fuarez, acct exec.

F.W. Woolworth Co.

RANK 108

New York

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	6,501	5,958	9.1
Net income	214	177	20.9
U.S.	1987	1986	% chg
Sales	3,876	3,650	6.2
Operating profits	299	283	5.7
Advertising	74	65	14.8
Division sales	1987	1986	% chg
General merch.	1,954	1,938	0.8
Specialty	1,922	1,712	12.3

F.W. Woolworth continued in 1986 what worked so well in '87: Expansion into the specialty retail business. In fiscal 1987 ending Jan. 31, Woolworth's specialty stores contributed slightly more than half of the companies pre-tax operating profit, compared with 39% five years ago.

The company's top brass recently predicted that figure would jump to 65% by 1992. In fact, by the early 1990s, Woolworth's will have become a chain focusing on shoes and children's clothing.

The transformation is taking place rapidly. Woolworth's aggressively expanded into retail marketing five years ago; this year the chain will add 600 specialty units for a total of 5,100 stores, or about 75% of its total number of stores. The expansion in fiscal 1988 will cost the company $225 million.

Specialty stores produce higher sales per square foot and have a higher return on investment than the traditional merchandise store. Woolworth's has about 28 specialty divisions, including Kinney, Foot Locker, Richman Bros., Anderson-Little and Little Folk Shops.

The change is also likely to affect Woolworth's advertising and media expenditures. The company virtually ceased network advertising in 1986, pumping more money into local media, including spot TV and magazines. Woolworth's expansion into specialty units has mostly focused on footwear.

Kinney also continued heavy specialty development last year. Foot Locker added 130 stores, for a total of 765. Lady's Foot Locker added 40 units for a total of 130. Foot Locker began its 1987 marketing program in 1987 via the Super Bowl.

In 1986, non-footwear specialty stores represented 9% of total sales. That is expected to grow to 19% of sales and 23% of profits by 1991.

Woolworth's has pushed most aggressively Afterthoughts, a chain of costume jewelry, handbag and earring boutiques. The company also introduced Face Fantasies last year, a cosmetic and beauty product boutique.

Richman Bros. added eight Anderson-Little and four Richman stores last year, in bringing the total to 319. Targeted at working women, Richman's introduced the Richman Woman apparel line.

Little Folk Shop, which has been a troubled Woolworth division, had a $7 million loss last year on revenues of $131 million.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	4,690	760
Newsp. supps.	4,254	4,422
Network TV	370	2,036
Spot TV	14,079	9,942
Network radio	0	132
Spot radio	2,610	6,194
Outdoor	44	126
Network cable	2,124	931
Total measured	28,171	24,543
Unmeasured	45,912	40,000
Total	74,083	64,543

F.W. WOOLWORTH CO.
233 Broadway
New York, N.Y. 10279
(212) 553-2000
Corporate Personnel
Harold E. Sells, chmn-ceo
Frederick E. Hennig, president-coo
C. Jackson Gray, vp-corp planning & devel
Joseph F. Carroll, vp-public affairs
U.S. WOOLWORTH
New York
Corporate Personnel
Robert L. Jennings, president-ceo
Charles H. Hullhorst, sr exec vp-coo
Marketing Personnel
Gary Fuller, vp-adv
Charles Worley, dir-sales promo & adv
Frank A. Bonacci, vp-sales, adv, visual merch
Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—Donald Patrick, exec vp.

KINNEY SHOE CORP.
New York
Marketing Personnel
Cameron I. Anderson, president
John K. Aneser, vp-comm
Spencer Joyner, vp-intl mktg
Kurt Janke, vp-visual merch
Advertising Agency

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—Donald Patrick, exec vp; William Hallenbeck, sr vp-mgmt super, Footlocker, Lady's Footlocker; Doug Fidoten, sr vp-mgmt super, Kinney Shoes.

RICHMAN BROTHERS CO.
Fall River, Mass.
Marketing Personnel
William H. Gaudreau, president-ceo
Anthony Carosella, vp-sales
Advertising Agency

Harold Cabot & Co., Boston—Mark Grace, acct exec.

ANDERSON-LITTLE CO.
Fall River, Mass.
Marketing Personnel
William H. Gaudreau, president-ceo
Anthony Carosella, vp-sales
Advertising Agency

Harold Cabot & Co., Boston—Mark Grace, acct exec.

Zayre Corp.

RANK 157

Framingham, Mass.

($ in millions)

Worldwide	1986	1985	% chg
Sales	5,350	4,030	32.8
Net income	89	95	(6.0)
U.S. advertising	52	34	54.5
Division sales	1986	1985	% chg
Discount stores	3,040	2,630	15.6
Specialty stores	1,390	1,140	21.9
Warehouse clubs	909	248	266.5

The past year and a half has been a period of turmoil and change at Zayre Corp., culminating in a possible hostile takeover bid and the dissolution of Zayre Discount Department Stores' 18-year relationship with its Boston ad agency.

Zayre's problems are seen in its net income, which dropped 6% in 1986 over the previous year despite a 32.8% increase in sales. The drop is attributed to poor performances by the company's warehouse club and discount department stores divisions, including the disappointing performance of the Louisiana Gaylords stores which were converted to Zayre units. By the end of 1986, Zayre operated 362 discount department stores in 25 states in the eastern half of the country. In 1987, Zayre plans to add 25 more stores.

In mid 1987, Zayre department stores chairman Malcolm Sherman resigned. He has not been replaced. At the same time, Zayre Corp. chairman Maurice Segall announced that Zayre would liquidate dated merchandise and get the stores moving in a new direction, says David Snell, senior VP-marketing for Zayre stores.

By the end of September, the discount store's ad agency of 18 years, Boston-based Ingalls, Quinn & Johnson, was dismissed from the account, which bills about $17 million for major media, according to Mr. Snell. "We wanted to do things differently. We are making major strategic marketing changes," he says. IQ&J will continue to handle Zayre's public relations.

Ironically, the agency's dismissal came shortly after the agency broke what many industry observers consider the best creative Zayre ever showed, although the results were less than expected, concedes Mr. Snell.

After quietly talking with ad agencies throughout the summer, Zayre picked AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York.

As part of the strategic marketing and ad agency change, Zayre will test a new frequent purchaser program similar to the frequent flyer programs operated by the airlines, says Mr. Snell. The program will allow Zayre shoppers to accumulate credits and incentives for future purchases.

A major spot TV advertiser, Zayre runs no network TV and virtually no radio. The company will reduce its already minimal use of magazines. Zayre has used CATV in the past to reach the Hispanic market and is "exploring more uses for cable," says Mr. Snell.

T.J. Maxx, an off-price apparel chain of 226 stores in 35 states, was the star performer for Zayre Corp. in 1986. T.J. is part of the company's specialty store group, along with Hit or Miss and Chadwick's of Boston, a mail-order operation. While sales in this specialty group increased 21.9%, operating income rose 18.2% to $104 million.

T.J. ended 1986 with 226 stores, of which 35 opened during the year. The company expects to open another 35 in 1987.

Hit or Miss ended the year with 461 stores and expects to add 50 stores during 1987, including some penetration into California.

IQ&J continues to handle the T.J. Maxx advertising account, which was not affected by the pullout from the agency of the Zayre department store account.

The specialty stores spend approximately $6.4 million on major media, up 23.1% from the previous year, almost all in spot TV.

The warehouse club group of Zayre is another problem area, running up a $12 million loss for 1986. The warehouse club group is composed of BJ's Wholesale Club and HomeClub, a West Coast home building supplies discounter.

BJ's was operating 15 stores in New England, New York, and Illinois at the end of 1986 and expects to add six stores in 1987. HomeClub, which was acquired in January 1986, operated 28 stores at the end of 1986, and intends to add eight more in 1987. Neither BJ's nor HomeClub are substantial advertisers.

This past October, Zayre was notified by Edward DeBartolo Jr., owner of the San Francisco 49ers football team, that he is increasing his stake in the company and may move to acquire a controlling interest in the company. Zayre executives are preparing to resist it, according to published reports.

ADVERTISING EXPENDITURES

($ in thousands)	1986	1985
Magazines	37	0
Bus. pubs.	9	4
Spot TV	17,000	13,431
Spot radio	8,298	3,400
Outdoor	9	45
Total measured	25,353	16,880
Unmeasured	27,000	17,000
Total	52,353	33,880

ZAYRE CORP.
770 Cochituate Rd.
Framingham, Mass. 01701
(617) 620-5000
Corporate Personnel
Sumner Feldberg, chmn, exec committee
Maurice Segall, chmn & president
ZAYRE DISCOUNT DEPARTMENT STORES
Marketing Personnel
David A. Snell, sr vp-mktg
Advertising Agencies

AC&R/DHB & BESS, New York—Karen Amorelli, vp-mgmt super; Lorraine Linton, acct super.

Burrell Advertising, Chicago—Donald Coleman, sr vp-mgmt super; Robert Jackson, acct super.

T.J. MAXX STORES
Natick, Mass.
Marketing Personnel
Peter Maich, sr vp-genl merch
Gary Stuart, asst vp, mktg mgr
Advertising Agency

Ingalls, Quinn & Johnson, Boston—Carol Trifone, mgmt super; Charlie O'Brien, acct super; Catherine Ferrigno, asst acct mgr; Mimi Donovan, acct coord.

HIT OR MISS SHOPS
Stoughton, Mass.
Marketing Personnel
Glenn Lyon, exec vp, genl merch mgr
Advertising Agency
Under review.
BJ'S WHOLESALE
Natick, Mass.
Marketing Personnel
Robert Dugan, vp-store operations
HOMECLUB
Fullerton, Calif.
Marketing Personnel
Brad Tukey, sr vp, genl merch mgr

© Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved

$1.50 a copy; $59 a year

November 30, 1987

NEWSPAPER

20814

Q2710-1
12/1/87

*3-DIGIT 200
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

DELAYED BECAUSE OF INCORRECT ZIP CODE

Marketing to Hispanics
See Page 58

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Nielsen strikes back

IRI alternative

By VERNE GAY

A.C. Nielsen Co. will announce shortly it is putting a massive consumer and television research project back on the front burner following the collapse of plans to buy Information Resources Inc.

The unnamed project, formerly called the SCANTRACK Household Panel, is huge even by Nielsen standards, with $70 million earmarked for it. By contrast, Nielsen's recent conversion to people meters—another high priority project—has cost an estimated $50 million.

Nielsen had announced formation of the project back in July, when it paid $20 million for a stake in Port Washington, N.Y.-based NPD, the 10th-largest marketing research company in the U.S. (AA, June 15).

Now, the concept is turning into Nielsen's reaction to parent Dun & Bradstreet's withdrawal of its attempted purchase of IRI for $572 million. D&B had planned to merge Chicago-based IRI with its Nielsen Marketing Research unit.

The offer to buy IRI was withdrawn when the Federal Trade Commission decided to seek a court order restraining the deal (AA, Nov. 23).

IRI's program would have formed the basis for Nielsen's foray into single-source consumer research, expected to be the wave of the future in the research business.

In single-source research, advertisers measure TV viewership and product purchase simultaneously and—theoretically—derive an accurate estimate of how much advertising weight stimulates buying habits. Ideally, advertisers then would buy TV time not based solely on a program's ratings, but also on its ability to sell products.

The Nielsen project calls for the placement of audience meters in 15,000 TV households by the end of 1988 along with hand-held computer wand-like scanning devices to record household purchases via Universal Product Code graphics. These households would scan grocery, hardware and other purchases with the wand.

Sources said the new single-source Nielsen project ultimately could outweigh the importance of people meter-TV

(Continued on Page 90)

McDonald's tests in-store kid video

By SCOTT HUME

McDonald's Corp. is testing a new concept called "Video Theater"—a videocassette recorder and TV set that entertains youngsters with animated short features in its restaurants.

The idea, which would give adults the "break" McDonald's advertising once said they deserved, is being tested in a small number of restaurants. If successful, the video-age addition could advance the chain's already dominant position with children in the $60 billion fast-food market.

During initial testing, no commercial messages for McDonald's have been included in the viewing package.

The test comes as McDonald's and other advertisers are battling the TV networks over A.C. Nielsen Co.'s people-meter measurements of Saturday morning audiences, which are as much as 30% below previous set-meter measurements (AA, Nov. 23).

McDonald's spends an estimated $40 million, or 20% of its $200 million annual network TV budget, on children's programming. It remains the only fast-food advertiser during Saturday morning children's network shows.

Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, is McDonald's national agency.

"McDonald's got to be No. 1 by building brand loyalty among children and then keeping them as customers," said a competitor. "I doubt [it] will let that market slip away."

Children 12 or younger accounted for 13.6% of quick-service restaurant saies dollars in 1986, compared to 12.5% in 1982, according to the National Restaurant Association.

"McDonald's knows children love cartoons. What they want to know is whether running cartoons in-store slows table turns. You don't want kids there glued to the set all day," a source said. "By repeating the show every 20 minutes, they've found that

(Continued on Page 94)

CALIFORNIA
RAISINS

Raisin cain "Shorty" the construction worker and the Claymation raisins are back in a new TV commercial airing for the California Raisin Advisory Board, Fresno, Calif., via Foote, Cone & Belding, San Francisco.

Last Minute News

Godfather's sets D-Day for JWT status

OMAHA, NEB.—Godfather's Pizza will decide the status of its $8 million account now at J. Walter Thompson USA, Chicago, on Dec. 15. The client is weighing JWT's counterproposal on the compensation arrangement that has divided the two. Godfather's VP-Marketing Charles Henderson said the account has been discussed with several other agencies "as a contingency."

Drug Emporium taps merged Atlanta shop

WORTHINGTON, OHIO—Drug Emporium named Cargill, Wilson & Acree/Tracy-Locke, Atlanta, to succeed Don Lea & Associates, Toledo, on its estimated $10 million account.

Kodak unwraps holiday TV commercial

ROCHESTER, N.Y.—Eastman Kodak Co. breaks its annual TV holiday spot today via J. Walter Thompson USA, New York. The 30-second commercial, themed "Coming Home," shows an older man opening a letter that includes a snapshot of his just-born grandson who bears a striking resemblance to him.

Chilko investigation keys on guide

KAMLOOPS, BRITISH COLUMBIA—The inquiry into the Aug. 1 Chilko River rafting accident (AA, Nov. 23) that killed five U.S. advertising

(Continued on Page 8)

Christmas off to strong start

Spend, spend, spend

An Advertising Age roundup

Anxious retailers can start to unwind.

A nationwide spot check by ADVERTISING AGE of retail outlets and buyers during the crucial Nov. 27 shopping day indicates that consumer spending is strong, few shoppers are trading down and the Oct. 19 "Black Monday" stock market plunge is a distant memory.

The day after Thanksgiving is traditionally the biggest spending day of the year for Christmas shoppers and a sign of how strong holiday sales are likely to be.

In New York, the post-Thanksgiving Day crowd at the Brooklyn headquarters store of Abraham & Straus was "the biggest I've ever seen it," said spokeswoman Virginia Sanders. "We are definitely going to make our plan, which is ahead of last year's."

The news was similarly cheering at Bloomingdale's, where Senior VP Julian Taub described activity as "very strong . . . as big or bigger than last year."

Bloomingdale's customers seemed to have shaken off the jolt from Wall Street's dive. In the several days before Thanksgiving, the sales pace had picked up, Mr. Taub said, adding "we're optimistic we're going to have a good Christmas."

There was a barrage of Thanksgiving "sale" advertising to prime the pump, but retailers said the level of "off-price" promotions did not appear out of the ordinary.

"Early bird" specials, designed to spread out the post-holiday crush more evenly throughout the day, seemed to click in some markets.

Houston-based Foley's, a unit of Federated Department Stores, opened at 8 a.m.—an hour early—

(Continued on Page 92)

HOLIDAY MARKETING

One tough market, Page 81
Ad folks' gift lists, Page 86
Basic toys are hot, Page 87

New Army spots go for heart

By JANET MEYERS

WASHINGTON—In its first campaign since winning the U.S. Army account, Young & Rubicam will try to shift the campaign's focus from high-tech to "human" values.

Y&R became the Army's first new agency in 19 years when it won the $100 million account from N W Ayer in a controversial review process.

The agency's first campaign will break after Christmas during football games, and is a subtle departure from Ayer's approach.

While Ayer's Army commercials also included people, its last ones emphasized high-tech equipment.

In its Army spots, Y&R goes for the heart, with paratroopers bailing out of planes and a young paratrooper writing home to his father. Both are designed to show that the Army experience teaches qualities like maturity and teamwork.

The new campaign uses a technique first previewed in a special July 4 spot, "Sentry," which airs occasionally for holidays. "Sentry" mixes scenes of a soldier stationed in Germany with cuts to a black screen, where the words "Maturity," "Self-Discipline," "Character" and "Freedom" appear.

The spots close with "Be all you can be. Get an edge on life" (AA, July 6).

A second Y&R spot slated to break in spring is called "Homecoming" and shows a young man visiting home from the Army to provide a role model for his younger brother.

The artillery spot that breaks after Christmas replaces Ayer's "9 a.m." spot that was produced under the aegis of then-Ayer Creative Director Lou DiJoseph, now creative director at Y&R.

In the Ayer spot, as paratroopers secure equipment parachuted to the ground, one soldier says, "We get more done before 9 a.m. than most people do all day."

While the new spots show some sophisticated Army equipment, they are less high-tech than "MLRS," Ayer's last spot for the Army. In "MLRS," named for a weapons system, a tank moves across the desert, rockets flash across the night sky and the target explodes.

The new Y&R spots are "evolutionary rather than revolutionary," an Army spokesman said.

Although Ayer lost the Army account in December 1986, the agency continues to fight for its reputation. Last week Ayer amended a pending lawsuit to protest the Justice Department's request for a six-month extension to the agency's year-old suspension from doing government work (AA, Nov. 23).

In its additional court filings, Ayer asks for damages estimated at more than $50 million—the profit Ayer says it would have realized from the five-year, $500 million contract.

Ayer's suspension automatically will expire if the Justice Department fails to bring civil charges by May.

No more criminal charges will be lodged against Ayer, said Army spokesman Maj. Greg Rixon, signaling the end of investigations by both the Department of Defense Criminal Investigation Service and the U.S. Attorney's office in New York.

"What started years ago as an investigation of isolated business practices has become a vendetta for the government and a bone in their teeth which its lawyers won't let go," Ayer said in a statement.

A spokeswoman refused to say why Justice asked for a suspension extension.

Ayer's suit pending in U.S. Claims Court seeks $500,000 for its abortive bid for the Army contract, while the agency's amended complaint asks the court to assess damages to include profits lost from the $500 million contract. While figures are not mentioned in the complaint, $50 million to $70 million "would not be out of line," said Ayer lawyer Stephen Lawrence.#

Highlights

NEWS

12 GM shops vie for Saturn
General Motors Corp.'s agencies are favored to land the auto giant's Saturn Corp. business.

24 AmEx takes out insurance
American Express Co. is sprucing its benefits with a new insurance service for cardmembers.

26 'Dolly' has a few bumps
As the "Dolly" show begins to slip, networks are re-evaluating the variety format.

30 Grave plots for burial marketing
Good marketers know to sell smooth lawns, not the mower; clear skin, not the soap. How do they sell prepaid burials?

33 Renault keeps ties in U.S.
Renault is keeping a marketing foot in the U.S., although its name is being removed from cars.

68 Honeybee retail buzzing
Honeybee boosted its retail force this year by doubling its number of stores.

80 Agencies zero in on new biz
Agencies are focusing on new business as companies decrease "automatic" ad spending.

82 CBS revamps lineup
To regain the No. 2 spot, CBS has made extensive midseason revisions.

88 Speaking briefly for BVD
Mario Andretti, Milton Berle and other stars prove they are not skittish about their skivvies in spots for Union Underwear Co.'s BVD unit.

INTERNATIONAL

62 Special section: South Korea
The dismantling of barriers to foreign investment is easing the way to equity ventures between U.S. and Korean ad agencies.

64 Canada's decade of change
Rene Levesque's death this month prompted the ad industry to reflect on the vibrancy he brought to Francophone Canada.

MARKETING TO HISPANICS

Perspectivas

ADVERTISING AGE'S monthly section on hispanic marketing takes a look at Miami's Spanish-language radio market and Tatham-Laird & Kudner's affiliation with an hispanic agency, plus account shifts, products entering the market and new data on TV viewing habits. Starts on Page 58.

Special Report

Media Outlook:
Despite fears about the economy, media executives see hope for their markets in 1988, partly because of the Olympics and elections. Major media categories and trends are examined. Starts after Page 48.

Departments

Ad review 36
Brady 50
Currents 56
MediaWorks 72, 74
PeopleWorks 66
Photo Review 70
Viewpoint 16, 18, 20

Vol. 58, No. 51—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $1.50 a copy, $59 a year, $104 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 (313) 446-0494.

ABP MPA ABC

NBC tops Nov. sweeps

CBS creeping up

By JAMES P. FORKAN

NEW YORK—The November TV "sweeps," the first under the new A.C. Nielsen Co. people-meter system, showed NBC staying on top and CBS challenging ABC for second place.

For the sweeps period itself, CBS ended up second. For the season through Nov. 22, CBS was 0.2 ratings points behind ABC.

This was the first time in more than a decade that CBS had entered the sweeps as the No. 3 network, which contributed to the resignation of Bud Grant as CBS Entertainment president late last month (AA, Nov. 2).

He was succeeded by Kim LeMasters.

Despite the sweeps showing, CBS VP-Marketing David Poltrack complained that his network—and the three-network prime-time share levels—declined from last fall because there is a "substantial over-representation" of pay cable households in Nielsen's sample.

The new people-meter system also has puzzled some youngsters, who are not operating the right buttons while viewing Saturday morning cartoons (AA, Nov. 23).

Mr. Poltrack protested that Nielsen is tossing ratings data for all of Saturday viewing in those homes, thus deflating ratings for afternoon sports and prime-time fare.

That may be a factor in CBS' admittedly "big Saturday problem" in make-goods, he said.

Nielsen has not yet responded to his concerns.

CBS' ratings are higher in AGB Television Research data, which are not a major factor in agency buying. But AGB also has an imbalance in its sample with too many pay-cable homes (30% of its sample), Mr. Poltrack said.

CBS is the only network that subscribes to AGB (see related story, Page 3).

At NBC, VP-Research Bill Rubens, not overly concerned about the imbalance, said he will check people-meter data's accuracy not with AGB's but with the Nielsen

(Continued on Page 90)

DDB's McKinney 'retires' to Kresser-Craig venture

LOS ANGELES—DDB Needham/-West Chairman Montgomery McKinney, 77, will retire from the agency at yearend to assume the new post of vice chairman of Kresser-Craig/D.I.K.

The veteran of DDB Needham Worldwide, Chiat/Day and Leo Burnett Co. will join DDB Needham's sister agency in an as-yet-unspecified role, contributing to the "general management" of the agency, said K-C/D.I.K. Chairman Bob Kresser.

"He's a tremendous role model for people in the business," Mr. Kresser said. "He can share his knowledge and expertise. He can be an ambassador to the ad community."

Mr. McKinney was a key figure in negotiations that led to the 1985 formation of the agency, a joint venture between DDB Needham and Dai-Ichi Kikaku, Tokyo, one of Japan's largest agencies. He serves on the K-C/D.I.K. board.

He leaves DDB Needham at a time of heavy turnover.

Two weeks ago, Exec VP-General Manager Simon Kornblit announced he would leave to become VP-marketing at Universal Pictures (AA, Sept. 7).

Earlier, several other key members of the agency departed, most notably Robert Kuperman, exec VP-executive creative director, who joined Chiat/Day in a similar post.

Mr. McKinney's departure from DDB Needham has been rumored for several months, but most observers assumed he would retire.

West Coast News

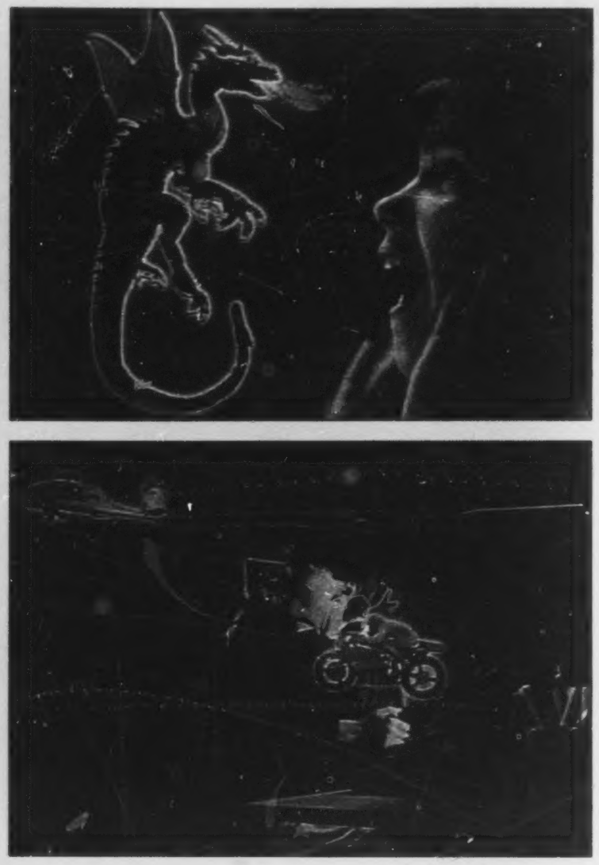
As part of his deal, Mr. McKinney will be able to reduce his responsibilities to include personal time for travel, writing and golf.

Mr. McKinney originally left the agency, known then as Doyle Dane Bernbach, in 1975 when he reached what was the agency's mandatory retirement age of 65.

Rather than retire, he joined C/D as exec VP-client services.

He was appointed chairman a year later.

In 1983, he rejoined DDB in his current post.#



PC's game plan

Commodore Business Machines, West Chester, Pa., has started the $2 million second phase of its two-pronged Christmas effort for the Commodore 64 personal computer. A new TV spot aims to convince children that the PC is the ultimate videogame machine. Griffin Bacal, New York, handles.

Decision time

NBC move crucial to AGB

By VERNE GAY

New York—NBC executives are about to make a crucial decision that could affect the future of AGB Television Research and that company's pioneering people-meter research.

Within the next several weeks, the TV network will decide whether to sign an estimated $3 million-to-$4 million contract with the U.S. subsidiary of British-based AGB Research PLC, the fourth-largest research organization in the world and the leader in TV audience measurement services outside the U.S.

If NBC spurns AGB, the company that single-handedly forced the issue of people meters in the U.S., AGB may find it difficult, if not impossible, to succeed in its battle against archrival A.C. Nielsen Co., Northbrook, Ill.

One reason is symbolism. Without at least two or three networks signed on, AGB will have a hard time being taken seriously.

But the other reason is cash. "If we only have one network going into [1988], it will be very difficult to break even," said AGB President-CEO Michael Poehner.

First-year AGB revenues are an estimated $7 million to $10 million, while operating expenses—high for the start-up company—are $25 million.

Operating expenses are expected to "drop significantly" next year after AGB completes the installation of its 5,000 home panel (there are 2,000 homes in the current panel).

Mr. Poehner said optimistically the company could reach $20 million in revenues next year.

But without NBC, that goal may be wishful thinking.

So far, CBS is the only network to sign with AGB, for an estimated $10 million over three years.

ABC, which is going through an executive change in its research department, is not expected to sign,

(Continued on Page 76)

BBDO gets call to help struggling soft drink

Pepsi slices JWT

By PATRICIA WINTERS

Pepsi-Cola USA plans to juice up its struggling Slice soft-drink line with new creative in February to combat the now-crowded segment it created three years ago.

Somers, N.Y.-based Pepsi last week moved the estimated $30 million account of Slice—a juice-added soft drink—to BBDO Worldwide from J. Walter Thompson USA, both New York, after a creative shoot-out between the two shops.

The Slice loss all but eliminates the beleaguered JWT from Pepsi's active roster and cements BBDO's winning relationship with client Pepsi. JWT, creator of the successful "We got the juice" theme, had Slice since its introduction in 1984.

Pepsi is moving the brand at a time when the once-wildly successful Slice line has seen its share decline to 2.7% of the 10.5 billion-gallon soft-drink market, from 3.8% a year ago. Slice, however, remains the segment leader and a top 10 brand with some $1 billion in annual sales.

Analysts attribute the Slice decline to a slowdown in the juice-added segment, a decline in Pepsi's marketing support and new competition.

"Clearly, the potential for juice-added is not what Pepsi had originally projected," said Emanuel Goldman, analyst with Montgomery Securities, San Francisco. He noted Pepsi had hoped Slice would garner 10% of total market sales.

"Slice went up to a 4 share . . . there's just not that much potential for the segment, but it's hard to tell beforehand," Mr. Goldman said.

The juice-added segment accounts for about 4.5% to

(Continued on Page 93)

AdWatch survey of advertising awareness Top 10 in October

One thousand people were asked: Of all the advertising you have seen, heard or read in the past 30 days, which advertisement first comes to mind? Source: SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb.

Rank		Advertiser	Agency
10/87	9/87
1	3	California Raisins	Foote, Cone & Belding
2	1	McDonald's	Davis, Johnson, Mogul & Columbatto/Leo Burnett USA
3	4	Budweiser/Bud Light	D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles/DDB Needham
4	2	Coca-Cola	McCann-Erickson
5	5	Miller/Miller Lite	J. Walter Thompson USA/Backer Spielvogel Bates
6	—	Chevrolet	Lintas:Campbell-Ewald
7	6	Pepsi-Cola	BBDO Worldwide
8	7	Ford	J. Walter Thompson USA
9	—	Pampers	D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles
10	—	Want ads/classified ads	Various

New idea: Bank mails ads home for preapproval

By SCOTT HUME

The First National Bank of Chicago is testing a marriage of direct-mail and TV advertising that its agency hopes is not consummated.

Several hundred of the bank's customers are getting by mail a color storyboard of a 30-second spot for its First Equity Credit Line home-equity loan program.

The cover letter accompanying the storyboard tells bank customers that First Chicago's marketing department would "like to know what you think of it."

Recipients are asked to answer a series of questions about the eight frames from the commercial, including "Do you think this commercial was easy to understand?"; "On a scale of 1 to 10, how could you rate this commercial?"; and "Why do you like or dislike the commercial?"

The commercial's story line involves a man's house telling him that "I've got equity up to my rafters. Use it!"

Foote, Cone & Belding handles First Chicago's media advertising;

(Continued on Page 94)

Classifieds ring up recall

By SCOTT HUME

The uncertainty about the nation's economy, which had its most dramatic embodiment in the Oct. 19 "Black Monday" stock market plunge, has high-income consumers glued to the want ads.

Ominously claiming the No. 10 slot among October's 10 best-recalled advertisements in Advertising Age's monthly adWatch survey were want ads and classifieds.

These "wanted" listings had better unaided recall than several heavily advertised, discretionary-income products, including Burger King Corp. restaurants and E&J Gallo Winery's Bartles & Jaymes wine coolers. Both were bumped from the list after being among the top 10 campaigns in awareness in September.

Nearly two-thirds of the respondents who said want ads were the first advertisements they recalled were women (63%). Most also were from middle-income households: 63% with income between $20,000 and $40,000, none from households with incomes of $20,000 or less.

The greatest number of those naming want ads were between the ages of 45 and 54, with the 18-to-24-year-old group next. None were from the Northeast; most were in South Central or Western states.

The California Raisin Advisory Board's dancing raisins again claimed the title as best-recalled advertising of the month. The raisins' recall level was aided by a monthlong promotion at Hardee's fast-food restaurants.

Customers who bought the chain's

(Continued on Page 76)

World News Roundup

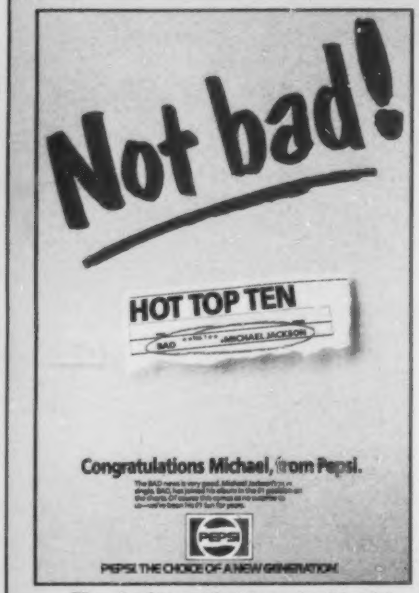
Duesseldorf—Vereinigte Papierwerke, Nuremberg, after a test in Berlin, is going national with its Tempo Sany line of paper tissues impregnated with menthol and other cold remedies. Lowe Marschalk Luerzer here handles a TV campaign.

London—British Airways this week breaks a new 60-second worldwide image commercial here. It features a BA Concorde supersonic jet flying to the moon and then to Mars. The spot, by Saatchi & Saatchi here, will air in the U.S. and other international markets at an undisclosed future date.

Brussels—GB-Inno-BM, a large retailer, is negotiating to buy a significant stake in J.C. Penney Co.'s lagging European operations. If the

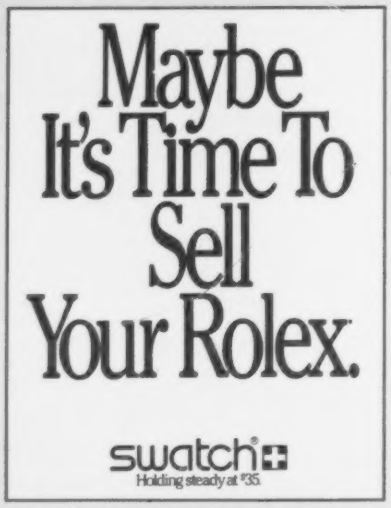
(Continued on Page 64)

BEST OF PRESS



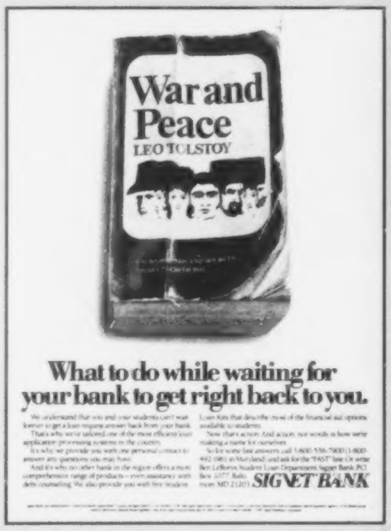
Not bad!
HOT TOP TEN
BAD
MICHAEL JACKSON
Congratulations Michael, from Pepsi.
PEPSI
PEPSI. THE CHOICE OF A NEW GENERATION

They had to act fast to make this claim, because things didn't stay that good for Michael Jackson's "Bad" for long. Credit BBDO Worldwide, New York, though, with being timely. Creative director: Ted Sann; art director: Nick Striga; copywriter: Barry Udoff.



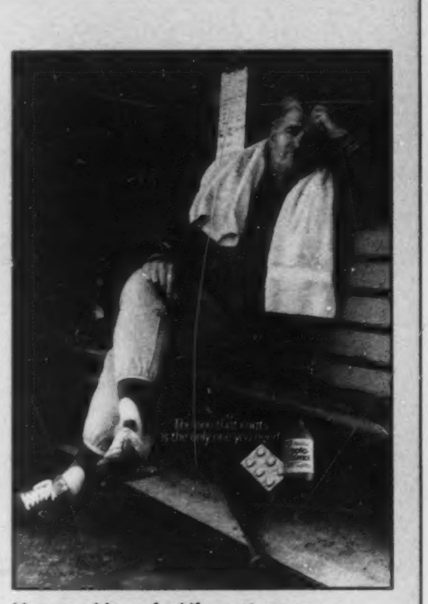
Maybe It's Time To Sell Your Rolex.
swatch
Holding steady at $35.

Come on. You gotta laugh. Credit Calvillo, Shevack & Partners, New York, for an ad that takes a well-timed swipe at an icon of yuppiedom while it sells a new one. Despite Black Monday, some very funny, short copy. Art director: Merv Shipenberg; copywriters: Brett Shevack and Mona Monaghan; creative director: Brett Shevack.



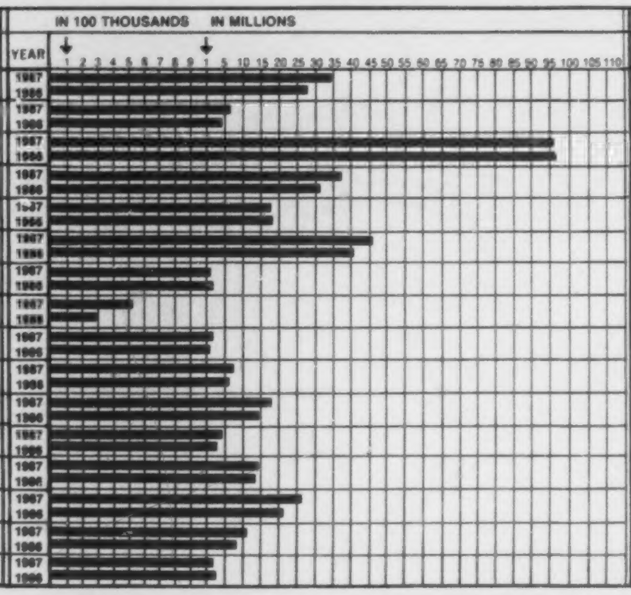
War and Peace
LEO TOLSTOY
What to do while waiting for your bank to get right back to you.
SIGNET BANK

If you've actually read the book in a bank line, you know. If you haven't, it's still a clever and decidedly simple way to point customers to client Signet Bank. Plus the literary touch is nice. Credit the Martin Agency, Richmond, Va. Art director: Cabell Harris; copywriter: Luke Sullivan; photographer: Dean Hawthorne.



How would you feel if your team were upset in the World Series? Upset. Credit Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, with picking the right moment to sell the right product. And that face. Whatta face. Art directors: Bill Colbert and Jeff Gregg; copywriter: Bob Welke.

FLASH REPORT: Newspaper advertising investment for September



September 1987 CATEGORIES	DOLLARS 1987	DOLLARS 1986	CHANGE ACTUAL $ G OR L	CHANGE % G OR L
Amusements	$34,868,822	$27,628,332	+7,240,490	+26.2
Computer stores & supplies	5,929,077	4,386,610	+1,542,467	+35.2
Department stores	95,073,704	95,764,886	−691,182	−0.7
Food stores	36,782,312	30,394,682	+6,387,630	+21.0
Radio, TV, phonographs, records	17,120,939	17,812,430	−691,49182	−3.9
General merchandise stores	45,234,780	40,267,724	+4,967,056	+12.3
Alcoholic beverages	1,809,999	1,946,001	−136,002	−7.0
Cameras, photo supplies & services	516,234	289,297	+226,937	+78.4
Computers, equipment & services	1,875,808	1,698,492	+177,316	+10.4
Public service utilities & communications	7,483,843	5,847,001	+1,636,842	+28.0
Publishing & media	17,295,083	14,143,645	+3,151,438	+22.3
Cigarettes	4,272,089	3,185,681	+1,086,408	+34.1
Airlines	14,354,219	14,179,367	+174,852	+1.2
Passenger cars-new	26,516,448	20,912,661	+5,603,787	+26.8
Banks & trust companies	10,402,267	8,282,801	+2,119,466	+25.6
Stock, bond & investment houses	2,220,116	2,274,078	−53,957	−2.4

This Flash Report of newspaper advertiser investments, compiled for ADVERTISING AGE by Media Records, is derived from tabulations that cover 29 dailies and 22 Sunday editions in 15 cities: Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Washington and Youngstown.

Source: Media Records Inc.

Sept. print spending jumps

NEW YORK—Newspaper ad spending surged in September.

As tabulated in the monthly ADVERTISING AGE Flash Report, which gauges spending in 29 daily and 22 Sunday editions in 15 cities, September posted the best year-to-year increase thus far in 1987. The Flash Report is compiled for AA by Media Records.

Total spending across 16 key categories was up 11.3%, to $321.8 million, from September 1986. And the gains were widespread. Only four of the 16 categories were down from year-ago levels: alcoholic beverages; department stores; radio, TV, phonographs and records; and stock, bond and investment houses.

It was the best monthly gain since May's 9.5% increase and a solid recovery from August, when spending was up only 5.9%.

Leading the categories in dollar increases was amusements, up $7.2 million, or 26.2%, from September 1986. Spending in the category has been running ahead of 1986 in every month but June. September was amusements' biggest year-to-year monthly jump so far in 1987. Hollywood filmmakers have been having a big year, and a strong holiday season could make 1987 a record year at the box office.

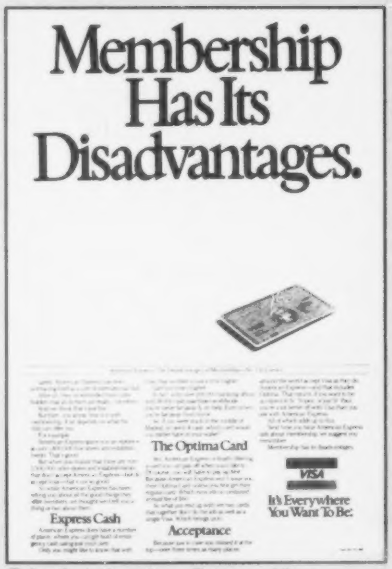
Spending by food stores, another robust category this year, also was strong in September, up $6.4 million, or 21%.

Ad spending in the new passenger car category turned in another big gain, compared with year-ago levels, but fell from its torrid pace of earlier in the year. For September, the category was ahead of 1986 by $5.6 million, or 26.8%. Monthly increases in the $8 million-to-$10 million range have been common in 1987.

A strong gain was reported in the general merchandise store category, up nearly $5 million, or 12.3%, compared with the same time last year. This category also has posted significant increases through most of the year.

The most dramatic turnaround for the month came in department store spending, the biggest category in dollar terms measured by the Flash Report. After a dismal June through August, when the category ran far behind the comparable 1986 period, the September total was off only $691,000 from a year ago. By comparison, August was more than $10 million behind the 1986 pace.

Cigarettes—another category badly behind 1986 spending levels—also staged a rebound in September. Spending was up $1 million compared with a year ago, a 34% increase. It was the first month this year that cigarette spending was up from the year-ago period.#



Membership Has Its Disadvantages.
The Optima Card
Express Cash
Acceptance
VISA
It's Everywhere You Want To Be.

Take that, American Express. Visa International aims a swift and deft counterpunch at AmEx's "membership" campaign. BBDO Worldwide, New York, kept the illustration simple and let the headline and copy do the work, which they do persuasively. Creative director: Art Mellor; copywriter: Jimmy Siegel; art director: Phil Triolo.

Best of Press selections are made by a committee of three: Hank Simons, VP-creative director, Newspaper Advertising Bureau, New York; James Dunaway, VP-information, Newspaper Advertising Bureau; and Patrick Reilly, ADVERTISING AGE newspaper industry reporter. National System Inc., St. Louis, provides tearsheets to the Newspaper Advertising Bureau for much of this work. Agencies, clients and newspapers are invited to submit ads for review. Submissions should be sent to Mr. Reilly in AA's New York bureau.

As milestones fall, cable carries weight

By Len Strazewski

After years as the shunned stepchild of broadcast television, cable TV is coming into its own as a national advertising medium, say agency media buyers and cable industry analysts and leaders.

Building on increased penetration—recently reaching 50% of U.S. homes—affluent demographics, improved programming and falling broadcast TV ratings, cable networks are beginning to show on national advertiser buying schedules as 2% to 10% of the total media budgets, analysts and media buyers say.

By the end of this year, cable network advertising revenue is expected to top $1 billion, with more than $878 million generated from national advertisers—up 18% from last year—and $264 million from local spot sales—up 38%—from last year, according to reports from Paul Kagan Associates, a Carmel, Calif.-based industry analyst.

By 1996, Kagan expects ad revenue to quadruple to $4.5 billion with national advertising reaching nearly $3 billion.

Len Strazewski is a Chicago-based free lance writer.

"What has changed is the relationship of supply and demand," says Radford Stone, VP-national marketing, New York-based Cabletelevision Advertising Bureau. "This is still an oversupply in cable and that has kept the CPMs [costs per thousands] down, but there is an increasing demand for more impressions, particularly in high demographic cable households which broadcast television is not delivering."

> "There is an increasing demand for more impressions, particularly in high demographic cable houses."
>
> Radford Stone
> Cabletelevision
> Advertising Bureau

Broadcast TV ratings have been dropping overall, Mr. Stone notes, and falling particularly fast in cable households as new exclusive programming draws viewers. Moreover, recent studies, including a 1986 MRI survey commissioned by the CAB, have shown that many of the cable networks have a key affluent viewership 10% or more above the national average.

■ Ad dollars flow with programming coups, more affluent, younger demographics

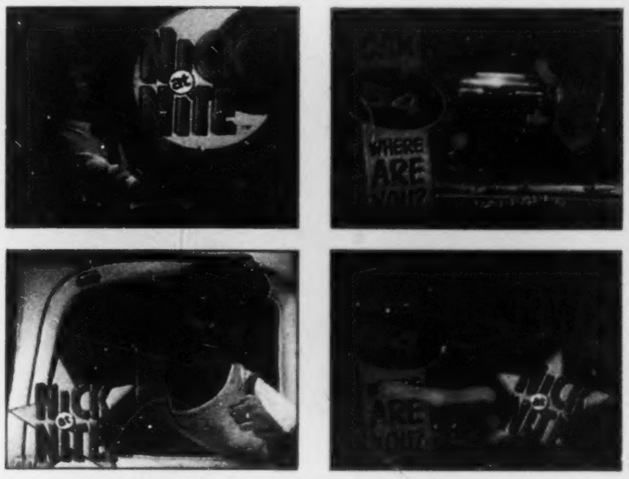
ESPN, for example, has an audience heavily weighted to male affluent viewers and MTV appeals most strongly to young affluent viewers 25 to 34 years old. And according to composite data from a 1986 MRI study, cable households in general are more affluent—18% more likely to have incomes more than $50,000—and better educated—14% more likely than the average to have college graduates.

"Broadcast television underdelivers these valuable households," Mr. Stone says. "That has left media planners scrambling to add impressions to meet their strategic goals. That means shifting 2% to 3% of their budgets into cable."

Costs haven't hurt, either. Although cable ratings may be low—a 2 or 3 share for some shows compared with a 15 to 20 share for typical broadcast TV programming—CPMs are as much as four times lower—$3 to $4 compared with $12 for network television.



Nick at Night promos for shows such as "Car 54, Where Are You?" have won enough followers for the channel to boast big ad revenue gains.

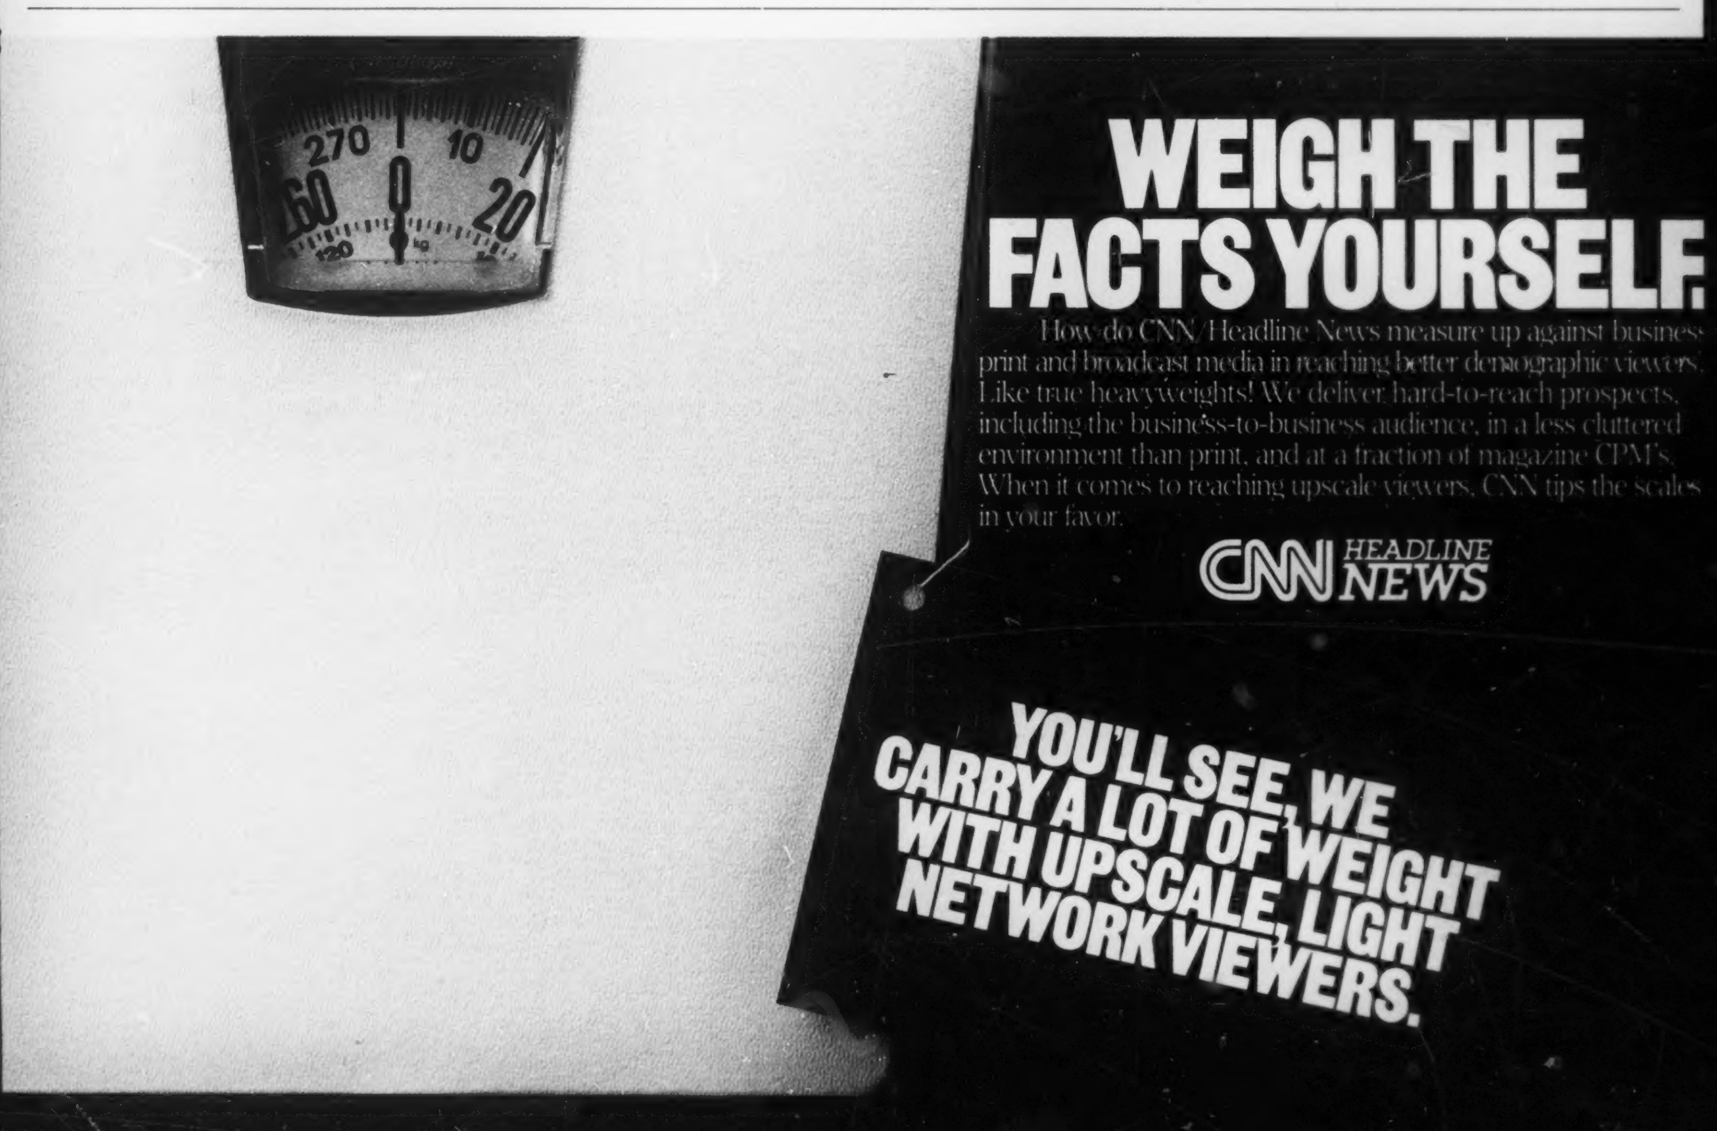
What media buyers aren't getting in total number of viewers they are making up with total impressions, buying more frequent cable spots in upscale cable homes.

"That's been the tactical response from many buyers," Mr. Stone says.

"And while we are glad to see that happening, we would prefer to see cable showing up more as part of strategic media plans from the beginning. That is also beginning to happen."

Mr. Stone says a recent CAB survey of leading national advertisers indicates that 20% of the largest national adver-

(Continued on Page S-8)



WEIGH THE FACTS YOURSELF.
YOU'LL SEE, WE CARRY A LOT OF WEIGHT WITH UPSCALE, LIGHT NETWORK VIEWERS.
CNN HEADLINE NEWS

How do CNN/Headline News measure up against business print and broadcast media in reaching better demographic viewers. Like true heavyweights! We deliver hard-to-reach prospects, including the business-to-business audience, in a less cluttered environment than print, and at a fraction of magazine CPM's. When it comes to reaching upscale viewers, CNN tips the scales in your favor.

Cable carries weight

(Continued from Page S-7)

tisers, including heavyweights Nabisco Brands, Coca-Cola Co. and Mars Inc., are committing up to 10% of their media budgets to cable.

Some national advertisers actually are designing spots for cable. PepsiCo, for example, recently premiered a 90-second Pepsi-Cola spot featuring Michael Jackson on MTV before slotting a shorter version for broadcast.

One reason for the upswing, industry insiders and outsiders agree, is recognition by agency media buyers of the value of cable. Agency media planners, longtime skeptics of cable's value as an ad medium, are now becoming outspoken supporters. They point to such breakthrough events as ESPN's National Football League contract, C-SPAN and CNN's live coverage of the Iran-contra hearings, Turner Broadcasting's colorized classic films and innovative original programming such as Showtime's "It's Garry Shandling's Show."

"As programming has im-

Cable TV advertising revenue: 1984-1987

	Gross advertising revenue (Dollars are in millions)				Net advertising revenue (Dollars are in millions)				% chg	% chg
Network	1984	1985	1986	1987	1984	1985	1986	1987	1985-86	1986-87
Arts & Entertainment	$1.5	$5.5	$8.0	$12.0	$ 1.3	$4.7	$6.8	$10.2	45.5	50.0
Black Entertainment TV	3.0	5.0	6.0	7.0	2.5	4.2	5.1	6.0	20.0	16.7
Cable News Network (1)	49.0	68.0	93.5	116.0	41.6	57.8	79.5	98.6	37.5	24.1
CBN Cable Network	28.0	40.5	46.5	53.0	23.8	34.4	39.5	45.0	14.8	14.0
Country Music TV	1.3	1.5	2.0	2.5	1.1	1.3	1.7	2.1	33.3	25.0
ESPN	68.2	79.0	96.0	120.0	58.0	67.2	81.6	102.0	21.5	25.0
FNN/SCORE (2)	6.7	9.0	12.0	17.0	5.7	7.7	10.2	14.4	33.3	41.7
Galavision (3)	0.0	0.0	0.0	2.0	0.0	0.0	0.0	1.7	0.0	0.0
KTVT	0.3	1.3	1.4	1.6	0.3	1.1	1.2	1.4	7.7	14.3
Lifetime	21.1	25.3	35.3	41.2	17.9	21.5	30.0	35.0	39.5	16.7
MSGN	3.0	4.0	4.5	5.0	2.5	3.4	3.8	4.2	12.5	11.1
Modern Satellite Network (4)	0.1	0.2	0.0	0.0	0.1	0.2	0.0	0.0	0.0	0.0
MTV: Music Television	71.3	87.5	95.0	108.0	60.6	74.4	80.8	91.8	8.6	13.7
Nickelodeon	7.1	10.0	15.0	21.5	6.0	8.5	12.8	18.3	50.0	43.3
Univision (5)	3.7	5.5	7.2	8.5	3.1	4.7	6.1	7.2	30.9	18.1
Tempo TV (6)	0.7	0.6	0.6	0.5	0.6	0.5	0.5	0.4	0.0	-16.7
The Discovery Channel		0.8	3.5	9.0	0.0	0.7	3.0	7.7	37.5	157.1
The Learning Channel	0.2	0.3	0.3	0.5	0.2	0.3	0.3	0.4	0.0	66.7
The Nashville Network	18.0	32.0	42.0	49.0	15.3	27.2	35.7	41.6	31.2	16.7
The Weather Channel	7.0	9.5	11.0	13.0	6.0	8.1	9.3	11.1	15.8	18.2
USA Cable Network	36.0	50.0	58.0	68.0	30.6	42.5	49.3	57.8	16.0	17.2
Video Hits-1		5.3	9.5	15.0	0.0	4.5	8.1	12.8	79.2	57.9
WGN	10.0	13.0	15.0	15.5	8.5	11.1	12.8	13.2	15.4	3.3
WOR	3.5	5.0	6.0	7.0	3.0	4.2	5.1	6.0	20.0	16.7
WPIX	0.6	1.5	2.0	2.3	0.5	1.3	1.7	2.0	33.3	15.0
WTBS (7)	146.0	152.0	168.0	183.1	24.1	129.2	142.8	155.7	10.5	9.0
TOTAL/AVERAGE	486.3	612.3	738.3	878.2	413.4	520.5	627.6	746.5	20.6	19.0

Source: Cable TV Advertising, Paul Kagan Associates, Carmel, Calif. Notes: (1)Includes Headline News Billings. (2) Does not include FNN TelShop revenue. (3) Galavision is a Spanish-language cable service converting from pay to basic. It began selling advertising in 1987. (4) Modern Satellite Network ceased operations in Dec. 1985. (5) Revenue attributable to Univision (formerly SIN) Spanish-surname cable-delivered homes only. (6) Does not include Tempo TV sales of program ti[illegible] home shopping revenue. (7) WTBS estimates do not include billings from Atlanta market sales, estimated at $14 million in 1986 and 1987, or barter revenue from the Goodwill Games in 1986.

SET YOUR SIGHTS ON A WINNER.

Are you overlooking a key player in your starting sports media lineup? When it comes to delivering better income and educated males, TBS stands out in the crowd—with more live, major sports broadcasting than all of its cable competitors combined! If you're looking for a year round winning sports performance, set your sights on TBS Sports.

SuperStation TBS

SEE THE BIG DIFFERENCE TBS SPORTS CAN MAKE IN YOUR GAME PLAN.

©1987 Turner Broadcasting System, Inc.

proved, so has penetration. And the households cable attracts are, in turn, attractive to advertisers. Subscribers tend to be younger, better educated and affluent," says Beverly O'Malley, director of electronic media for Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York.

Erica Gruen, the agency's associate director of electronic media, agrees. "We're seeing cable come into its own, not only financially, but in terms of programming. In fact, because of its attractiveness to subscribers, cable's efficiencies can be better than most broadcast alternatives by as much as 40% to 60%."

An agency study of cable by Ms. O'Malley and Ms. Gruen released this summer points to the Nielsen ratings of early 1987 showing that for the first time, the network prime-time ratings dropped below 50%, down 3% from the previous year, and independent broadcast TV stations fell to less than 8%, also down 3% from the previous year. Meanwhile, cable and cable-carried superstations such as WTBS in Atlanta and WGN in Chicago increased their ratings 15% to 7.3% in prime time.

"Ratings on cable may still be small, given the sheer number of networks competing for their share of the viewing pie, but the overall growth pattern can no longer be denied," the study says.

For 1988, the study predicts continued growth of cable sports programming as a big advertising drawing card, the movement of one-hour action adventure shows such as "Riptide" and "Airwolf" to cable in lieu of syndication, more original cable programming and the continued development of special interest networks such as MTV and Nickelodeon, CNN and The Discovery Channel.

> "When a cable network skews toward a particular audience . . . buying cable households becomes very important."
>
> Kevin Burns
> Ogilvy & Mather

MTV's Nickelodeon and its later-hour counterpart Nick at Night has been a particular surprise this year, drawing toy and cereal advertising for its daytime children's programming and package goods spots at night. Russ Naiman, VP-advertising sales for Nickelodeon and Nick at Night, would not disclose total ad revenues, but says Nickelodeon's revenues doubled over the last three years and Nick at Night more than doubled over the last year.

Daytime highlights include "Double Dare," a kid's game show that has generated a 3.5 share and reruns of "The Monkees," an almost 20-year-old musical sitcom that has become a cult hit.

Nighttime highlights include other television classics such as "Car 54, Where Are You?" and "Laugh-In."

Another factor spurring the growth of national advertising on cable is media-planning technology. For years, agency media buyers and cable industry leaders have bemoaned the lack of accurate ratings and a means to compare the value of broadcast ratings and cable ratings.

The introduction of people meters, however, has improved TV viewing measurement, Mr. Stone notes, and has proved cable industry claims that diary-based measuring techniques were under-reporting cable usage. The new Nielsen data from the meters shows broadcast TV with smaller shares during prime time than ever before (73), with daytime scoring 61 and late-night dayparts 54.

Last summer, when broadcast networks ran reruns, cable viewership increased sharply, according to the latest Nielsen figures. On a 24-hour basis ad-supported cable network's ratings rose by 40% during the summer months, resulting in a gain of 866,000 homes per av-

(Continued on Page S-10)

Cable TV network census: April 1987

Network	Subscribers	Affiliates
ESPN	41,100,000	15,760
WTBS	41,078,000	11,819
CNN	40,204,000	10,723
USA	39,000,000	8,500
CBN	35,834,000	7,582
MTV	33,400,000	4,709
LIFE	32,338,000	3,300
TNN	32,000,000	4,800
NICK	31,700,000	5,005
NICK AT NITE	27,500,000	3,862
C-SPAN	27,500,000	2,600
C-SPAN II	9,200,000	400
TWC	27,000,000	2,700
CNN-H	26,220,000	3,170
FNN	25,000,000	1,600
FNN SCORE	19,750,000	1,066
FNN TELSHOP	10,000,000	660
A&E	24,000,000	2,400
WGN	22,481,000	9,929
VH-1	18,800,000	1,697
DISC	16,700,000	1,650
CVN	16,598,490	1,350
BET	14,000,000	860
HSN	14,000,000	1,036
TEMPO	12,500,000	641
WOR	9,227,990	2,147
TLC	7,850,000	800
CMT	6,300,000	482
UNI (SPAN)	4,311,900	409
UNI (TOTAL)	34,381,800	409
WPIX	2,471,000	317
MSGN	2,015,000	90
KTVT	1,891,000	169
LBN	1,300,000	90
WSBK	1,204,895	35
GALA	750,000	288

Source: Cable TV Advertising, Paul Kagan Asscociates, Carmel, Calif.

WISE UP.

Who indeed, but CNN and Headline News! Find out for yourself why we've ruffled a lot of feathers on the media news scene. The addition of CNN/Headline News to your prime network schedule will give you a bird's eye view of how to balance GRP delivery across all quintiles and stretch overall reach. So, get wise to the facts, and make a smart move to CNN.

CNN HEADLINE NEWS

WHOOOO CAN HELP YOU SQUEEZE MORE OUT OF YOUR NEWS BUDGET?

Cable carries weight

(Continued from Page S-9)

erage hour while pay-cable services increased by 18% or 288,000 homes per quarter.

By daypart, ad-supported cable ratings increased 33% in prime time, 42% during daytime and by 21% on weekends. The Nielsen study shows that advertiser-supported cable and pay cable had audience shares of 22 and 20, respectively, for a 42 total, larger than the broadcast total of 41.

> "Cable's efficiencies can be better than most broadcast alternatives by as much as 40% to 60%."
>
> Erica Gruen
> Saatchi & Saatchi
> DFS Compton

To guide media planners in using the new data, CAB also introduced the Cable Planning System. A computer-software product based on the popular Lotus 1-2-3 personal computer spreadsheet program, the Cable Planning System is designed to use product-use demographic data with ratings information to target impressions in households with greater product buying propensity.

"Essentially, media planners use it to put the majority of impressions in front of the people who buy the product," explains Carol Lansen, senior account exec at CAB. Now in use at most major agencies, including Young & Rubicam, BBDO, Ogilvy & Mather and others, the system was designed to help media planners budget for cable purchases.

For example, if cable households have a 110 product usage index—10% more likely than the average to buy a product—they account for about 55% of sales, making them a good target for advertising. However, because broadcast TV delivers only about 45% of cable households, the planning system reveals that as a medium, broadcast TV is under-delivering the key households. The system then advises buyers as to how much cable time must be purchased to balance the buy.

"It's a very straightforward system," says Kevin Burns, manager of broadcast and new technologies at O&M, New York. "It gives you a formula for figuring out what you should be buying in cable." O&M, he says, has been buying substantially more cable, because of the system and improved programming.

"Using cable has become more of a mainstream consideration," Mr. Burns says. "In some cases, there is no reason to buy any cable at all, but in a lot of situations, particularly when a cable network skews toward a particular audience . . . buying cable households becomes very important. In those situations, the Cable Planning System helps figure out what's needed."

Gene DeWitt, president, DeWitt Media, New York, a media-buying and consulting company, says the system "is the first objective means of calculating how much of a TV budget should go into cable."

Previously, he says, media buyers followed their intuition and bought small amounts of cable time on an experimental basis. Some small advertisers saw cable as a bargain and put 20% to 40% of their budgets in it. The planning system, however, quantifies the audience and eliminates the guesswork.

"To me, cable is just television and buying cable requires the same analysis as buying television," Mr. DeWitt says. "You've got to know who the audience is and how many impressions they are receiving. After that, it's a question of money. If I can buy cable impressions at $5 CPM with as good or better qualified audience and am being charged a $12 CPM for broadcast television, I'm going to buy more cable. Cable is the last bargain left in television advertising."

Cable TV gross revenue estimates

Year	Cable network ad rev.	% chg	Nat'l/local spot cable	% chg	Nat'l/local revenue per sub.	Total cable ad rev.	% chg
1980	50	—	8	—	0.38	58	—
1981	105	110	17	109	0.78	122	110
1982	195	86	32	90	1.26	227	86
1983	303	55	50	58	1.70	353	56
1984	486	60	86	70	2.61	572	62
1985	612	26	139	62	3.91	751	31
1986	738	21	192	38	5.09	930	24
1987	878	19	264	38	6.63	1,142	23
1988	1,044	19	351	33	8.36	1,395	22
1989	1,229	18	456	30	10.35	1,685	21
1990	1,412	15	571	25	12.36	1,982	18
1991	1,616	14	713	25	14.82	2,329	18
1992	1,849	14	856	20	17.14	2,705	16
1993	2,115	14	1,027	20	19.82	3,142	16
1994	2,374	12	1,181	15	21.99	3,555	13
1995	2,682	13	1,358	15	24.54	4,041	14
1996	2,979	11	1,521	12	26.80	4,500	11

Source: Cable TV Advertising, Paul Kagan Associates, Carmel, Calif..

WHO KNOWS WHAT YOU'LL UNCOVER IN 1988.

Expect some exciting new developments and breakthrough marketing from Turner Broadcasting next year. You'll understand why, now more than ever, SuperStation TBS and CNN/Headline News should be a significant part of your broadcast media plans. Get ready for some big surprises!

SuperStation TBS CNN HEADLINE NEWS

Agency layoffs slice careers

Crain News Service

NEW YORK—Consider Ted Fortin, one of those people close to admitting that his career on Madison Avenue may be at an end, after more than two decades.

Despite a portfolio that includes campaigns such as "It's not nice to fool Mother Nature" for Anderson Clayton Foods' Chiffon margarine (now owned by Kraft), and more recent work for Schieffelin & Co.'s Blue Nun wine and Procter & Gamble Co.'s Citrus Hill orange juice and Folgers coffee, Mr. Fortin now spends anxious afternoons alone in his Upper East Side apartment.

"In 1974, you still had a clubby atmosphere, but the acquisitions have changed all of that," said Mr. Fortin, who spent 16 years at Cunningham & Walsh (now N W Ayer), followed by a very brief stint at Grey Advertising, which ended abruptly last February.

"Many of the professionals who have been in the business a long time are having the hardest time," he said.

Faced with ever-growing pressure from clients, even large agencies like Grey that remain merger-free have trimmed their staffs to improve their bottom lines.

"I don't know of a single agency that hasn't had to re-evaluate its staffing," said Marvin Sloves, chairman-ceo, Scali, McCabe, Sloves. "We are all learning to manage our businesses better.

"The irony is that the people who had been most willing to make a commitment to an agency are the ones getting cut."

The job environment in advertising has never been bleaker, because today's retrenchment atmosphere may permanently diminish career opportunities in the field.

The downsizing of the ad business—the top 10 agencies have lopped off close to 1,000 adpeople this year (AA, Nov. 16)—means a rude transition for thousands of once highly paid and creative professionals.

"The agency business always went through cycles when they cut back, but this is more permanent," said Simmy Sussman, an executive recruiter in advertising for almost 20 years. "There is a very quiet resignation this time. . . . Now people almost accept that things are over for them."

Hardest hit by the paring are middle-age professionals like Mr. Fortin, who earned more than $100,000 a year as a senior VP-creative group head.

Those who had not quite made it to equity status and held middle-management posts became frequent targets because of their hefty salaries.

"They are doing away with levels. Account supervisors now have bigger groups and they use one copywriter instead of two," said Leslie Winthrop, president of the Advertising Agency Register, a clearinghouse for clients.

Photo by Sherri Nickol

Ted Fortin is among the many agency veterans who have lost their jobs and may not be able to get another in the advertising field.

She also is head of the Advertising Club of New York's new Mentor program, developed to help unemployed ad executives over the age of 45.

"Many people think it's their age—it's not," she said. "It's their price tag."

"We are of that age that we can empathize with these people who are often thrust into unemployment through no fault of their own," said Harold Levine, chairman of Levine, Huntley, Schmidt & Beaver and co-chairman of the Mentor program. "We are trying to help restore their self-esteem."

Jerry Fields, a veteran recruiter with 40 years' experience in the ad business, is teaching a course at Parson's School of Design entitled "Advertising Career Alternatives."

Even Mr. Fields has moved outside the traditional ad world. His company, Jerry Fields Associates, does half its $1 million in annual recruiting in graphics-related areas.

Less discouraged than some is David Capano, though he has been out of work since June. Mr. Capano, who started as a media planner at what was then called Ted Bates & Co. in 1971, has worked both on the agency and client sides. He believes he has more options than many executives who have spent their entire careers at one agency.

"I know a lot more people in the business, because I have moved around," Mr. Capano said. "You find out about the best jobs by networking."

While everyone in the business agrees the cuts have been harsh, there is less agreement about whether there is a stigma attached to being out on the street.

Many headhunters say being laid off today jeopardizes one's ability to land another job; others believe there is an understanding in the industry that many people simply have been pawns in a much larger game.

"A lot of these people were in redundant jobs," Mr. Sloves said. "I don't even look to see how long someone has been out of work—just if they have done good work."

For many pushed out into the streets, salvation, at least temporarily, has arrived in the guise of free-lance employment. Agencies stretched tight by layoffs more often are finding the need for temporary help.

"Agencies are using freelancers to do new-business pitches," said Frank Corkrum, a partner at the Team Works, a 6-month-old temporary ad personnel business in New York with a list of 150 professionals available. "Two-thirds of our people are between jobs, although some are finding out they like the free-lance life."# and NBC is "studying" the possibility of signing, one official said.

AGB's future

(Continued from Page 3)

"We are now in active dialogue with NBC," said Mr. Poehner, who said a decision "hopefully" would come soon.

But Bill Ruben, VP-research at NBC, said the network was looking "closely" at the data and declined to say whether it would sign a contract.

"We're looking at them because we [continue to] have a lot of unhappiness about people meters in general," he said.

AGB numbers are lower

AGB's current numbers for the Big 3 networks are lower than Nielsen's. A recent study conducted by BBDO Worldwide found that from Sept. 21 through Oct. 21, AGB reported teen-age viewing levels 20% lower than Nielsen's own estimates. The ratings for women ages 25 to 54 were 9% lower; men, 25 to 54, 14.5% lower; and children, 10% lower.

The average network household rating was 3% lower in AGB, according to the study.

There seems to be no rhyme or reason to differences in individual program ratings, though generally CBS programs score higher with AGB than with Nielsen. For example, "Kate & Allie" on Nov. 9 scored a 16.2 rating and a 24 share in AGB, while the Nielsen rating was 13.6 and a 20 share.

Also, AGB recently suffered a setback by essentially admitting its own initial numbers probably were wrong.

AGB changed its "editing" procedure Oct. 26 in response to criticisms that its data collection method was faulty. In editing, the ratings service decides whether data from a certain household should be counted when a national rating is estimated.

The ratings service liberalized its editing procedures so that more homes would be counted, thus raising the ratings themselves.

"We saw that our editing procedures were depressing our ratings and probably not showing viewing levels correctly," Mr. Poehner said.

Will advertisers sign up?

One of the biggest questions for AGB is whether advertisers will sign up. So far, only RJR Nabisco has signed on, for about $50,000. Without General Motors Corp., Procter & Gamble Co. and other major advertisers, AGB eventually could run out of cash.

That cash comes not just from initial sign-on fees but from what AGB calls "special analyses"—the high-margin, customized studies done for clients.

For example, AGB executives estimate there is another $500,000 hidden in any potential NBC contract for these customized studies.

A related challenge is getting ad agencies, which usually follow their clients, into the AGB tent. Virtually all buying and selling of TV time—both barter syndication and network—continues to be based on Nielsen audience estimates.

About half a dozen agencies now subscribe to AGB, including BBDO, D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles and Young & Rubicam.

"If one or two major agencies during the upfront buying time in the coming year start negotiating on AGB, then it will give [the service] a possibility of being viable," said Betty-Ann Morse, VP-media research director at DMB&B. "But if agencies ignore it, I don't give it much of a chance."

High marks from agencies

Agency experts give AGB high marks for establishing a service quickly and providing numbers quickly and efficiently. Those who subscribe to AGB add that it will be months before they decide whether they will keep either Nielsen or AGB.

AGB has financial support from its parent company in the U.K., as well as from London-based MAI; the Schroders bank; Chemical Ventures, the venture capital division of Chemical Bank; and Prudential Insurance Co. of America.

AGB has financial support from its parent company in the U.K., as well as from London-based MAI; the Schroeder Bank; Chemical Ventures, the venture capital division of Chemical Bank; and Prudential Ins. Co.

There have been rumors for more than a year that New York-based Arbitron Ratings Co., Nielsen's archcompetitor in local TV ratings, would buy AGB. Some have suggested that AGB may soon actively pursue a buyer.

Arbitron has been focusing its effort to establish a national peoplemeter service via ScanAmerica. ScanAmerica now has an ongoing "single-source" service in Denver; Arbitron bought out SAMI/Burke, its partners in the project, on Sept. 1.

Mr. Poehner confirmed an Arbitron purchase is "possible," adding, "I've never even met with [Arbitron], but there's a lot of logic in this scenario."

Arbitron has other ideas, however. The company approached AGB three years ago about a possible buyout. AGB refused.

"They didn't need me three years ago—why do they need me now?" asked Arbitron President Rick Aurichio. "We may be too far along with our own project to need them anymore. It's possible that the bridges are burned."

Mr. Poehner, a former IBM Corp. executive, is cautious in his assessment of AGB's future. "It's a lot more complex market than anybody expected," he said in a recent interview. "I'm surprised how much AGB has accomplished in the time period it has. But there's a lot of work to do—there's no stopping now."#

AdWatch

(Continued from Page 3)

Cinnamon N' Bisquits could purchase figurines of the raisin characters. Rocky Mount, N.C.-based Hardee's Food Systems said the raisin campaign topped by 10% its previous sales record for promotional items (AA, Sept. 28, et seq.).

Ogilvy & Mather, New York, handles Hardee's and probably wishes more people had recalled the restaurant chain's name rather than the raisins.

McDonald's Corp.'s "Mac Tonight" campaign last month lost some of the steam that had propelled it to the No. 1 position in September.

But McDonald's was not far behind the raisins, ranking as October's second-best-recalled advertiser.

When the 1,000 adults were asked specifically which fast-food advertising they recalled, 42.3% named McDonald's. That was 9.4 percentage points below the record 51.7% of first mentions Big Mac garnered in September, but enough, as always, to keep it safely at the top.

Burger King was No. 2 with 16.3% of first mentions, up 3.9 points from September; Wendy's International was up 2 points to 8.1%.

The raisins helped boost Hardee's share to 6.4% from 4.7% in September.

AdWatch is a joint project of ADVERTISING AGE and SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb. Advertising awareness is measured by asking a nationally projectable sample to name the advertising that first comes to mind from all heard, seen or read in the previous 30 days. Consumers are queried on the first ad they recall overall and then in a variety of product areas.

In October, 1,000 adults were polled by telephone. Those changes in advertising awareness deemed statistically significant by adWatch researchers are attributable to more than sample variation.

Among other significant changes in the October survey results:

- Pepsi-Cola widened its lead over Coca-Cola in the soft-drinks category by declining less than its rival did. Pepsi got 35.4% of first mentions, compared with a 36.5% share in September. Coca-Cola's 27.1% share in October was down 5.7 points from its 32.8% showing the previous month.

The October survey was conducted before Pepsi-Cola began airing its latest Michael Jackson commercials (AA, Nov. 2).

The 4.2% share of first mentions that put 7UP in the No. 3 spot may not sound like much, but it represents the Uncola's best showing in more than two years.

Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, has produced new commercials for 7UP that introduce an animated character named "Spot" (AA, Oct. 5).

- Apple Computer still leads, but IBM Corp. is bouncing back and closing the gap in the computer category. Apple last month received 26.3% of first mentions, down slightly from 28.1% in September. IBM, which rose 3.8 points to 22.6% in September, inched up to 23.3% in October. Radio Shack was third with 4.4%.
- Another head-to-head battle where the gap has narrowed is that between Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and Michelin Tire Corp. in the tires category. Goodyear kept the No. 1 spot in October—a position it has held since April—with 21.6% of first mentions. Michelin's advertising was close behind with a 20.2% share. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. was third with 3.7%.#

For more information or data, contact SRI Research Center, 301 S. 68th St., Lincoln, Neb. 68506. Phone: (402) 489-0351.

NOTE

ONLY THE FOLLOWING PAGES OF THIS

PUBLICATION HAVE BEEN FILMED

Cov. 1, pgs. 2, S-1, S-6, S-10,

S-11, S-16, 50, 52

NEWSPAPER

*3-DIGIT 200
0201909649 AA00 8749 COMP 012
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

12/8/87 C2710-1

© Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

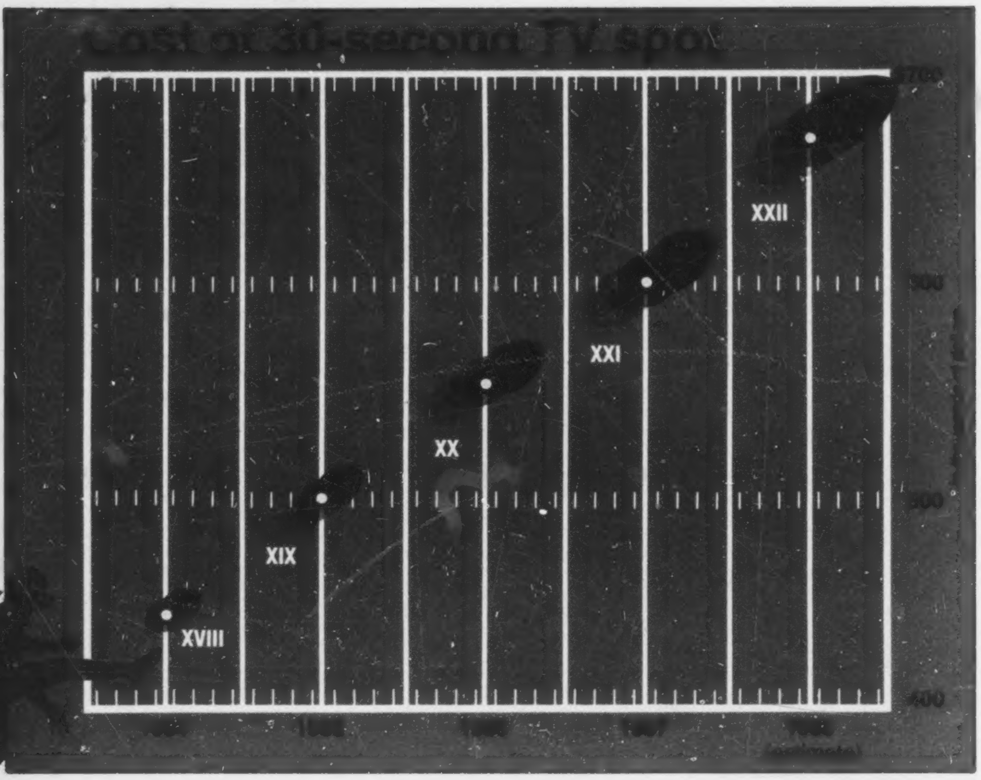
$1.50 a copy; $59 a year

December 7, 1987

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Super Bowl-buster



Graphic by Amy Palmer

ABC nears sellout on commercial time

By PATRICK McGEEHAN and VERNE GAY

NEW YORK—ABC-TV is on the verge of selling out all commercial inventory for Super Bowl XXII, eight weeks before the game is scheduled to air.

This virtual sellout of commercial time during the Super Bowl is one of the earliest in the championship game's recent history. It comes just seven weeks after a potentially devastating National Football League players' strike.

Most of the game's 51 30-second commercial units have sold for $600,000 to $650,000, a record for what usually is one of TV's most-watched programs.

For the three to four units still unsold, the network is asking up to $675,000 per :30, or $75,000 more than the top asking price by CBS for Super Bowl XXI, agency and network sources said.

ABC could reap up to $50 million for the entire Jan. 31 telecast, which will include pregame shows and a postgame show.

The range for the "wraparound" programming is $185,000 to $475,000 per :30. The postgame show has been sold out.

ABC's unprecedented sales pace has been aided by an unusually strong three-network sports market. Also, ABC's "Monday Night Football" is recording stronger ratings this season than last.

"The Super Bowl has become an American event, strike or no strike," said John Flieder, assistant VP-consumer advertising, Allstate Insurance Cos., Northbrook, Ill., one of the game's sponsors. "I think it's going to draw the usual audience."

Allstate is one of several insurance and financial services companies placing extra emphasis on TV sports, once dominated by beer and automobiles.

John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. and New York Life also will advertise during the Super Bowl; each has bought one or two spots.

Volkswagen of America has staked out auto exclusivity on the pregame and postgame shows for its VW and Audi cars, and VW will have one spot in the game,

(Continued on Page 76)

Cooler ads in turmoil as Gallo, Riney split

By JENNIFER PENDLETON and PATRICIA WINTERS

Three of advertising's most popular pitchmen may be on their way out—victims of the wine cooler wars.

With Hal Riney & Partners' surprise decision to resign the estimated $75 million E&J Gallo Winery account last week, the future of lovable hayseeds Frank Bartles and Ed Jaymes, who pitch Gallo's Bartles & Jaymes wine cooler, appears uncertain.

And sources close to Jos. E. Seagram & Sons, which has overtaken Gallo in the $1.3 billion market, said that company is testing "backup" copy without "Moonlighting" star Bruce Willis to determine whether he should continue to represent its brand in 1988.

Mr. Willis is credited with contributing to the meteoric rise of Seagram's Golden wine cooler from No. 4 just two years ago to category leader today.

Concern about spokesmen may have led to the Gallo/Riney split Although neither Gallo nor Riney Chairman-CEO Hal Riney would comment, sources suggest Gallo Chairman Ernest Gallo and Mr. Riney may have clashed over Frank and Ed.

A source close to the agency said the 78-year-old Mr. Gallo, legendary for dispensing personal abuse on agency people, had been particularly hard on Mr. Riney concerning Bartles & Jaymes' share decline.

> "There comes a time to break free."
> —Riney exec

But Mr. Riney apparently defended the advertising, believing the agency's creation of the two characters was the key factor in the brand's phenomenal, early success.

Bartles & Jaymes lost its leadership position to Seagram this summer (AA, Nov. 23). Its share dropped to 27% nationally, while Seagram attained a 30% share from January to August this year, according to Gomberg, Fredrikson & Associates, San Francisco, wine industry consultants.

One source said Mr. Riney had lunch with Mr. Gallo early last week, and several hours later sent an overnight letter to the winery head informing him the agency was resigning the business.

Other sources said the Riney shop wanted to rid itself of some of the less well-advertised Gallo brands, a prospect that did not sit well with Gallo management.

Riney recently had great difficulty getting approval on two campaigns. The San Francisco-based agency battled successfully to get new commercials for Gallo's Andre sparkling wine—breezy tongue-in-cheek spots featuring celebrities Dick Cavett and Pearl Bailey, among others—on the air this holiday season

(Continued on Page 74)

Last Minute News

Florida leaders endorse repeal plan

TALLAHASSEE, FLA.—Gov. Bob Martinez and legislative leaders on Dec. 4 endorsed a proposal to repeal the state's 5% tax on advertising and other services, with no replacement tax, as of April 1 (see earlier story on Page 77). American Advertising Federation President Howard Bell welcomed the proposal, which is expected to be acted on this week, but said he would favor a Jan. 1 repeal date. Mr. Bell said AAF will drop its suit against the state if the plan is approved.

Sears offers ad opportunities

CHICAGO—Sears, Roebuck & Co. for the first time is offering space to advertisers through a direct-marketing program called "The Sears Ad-

(Continued on Page 8)

HOLIDAY MARKETING

Retailers turn to discounts, Page 3
Party scene looks hearty, Page 62
Home video sales soaring, Page 78

Federal to express itself again

Fallon readies $20M effort

By GARY LEVIN

Federal Express Corp., which had throttled back on its advertising despite growing competition in the estimated $4 billion courier market, on Dec. 20 breaks its first national TV campaign from Fallon McElligott.

A $20 million campaign, including network TV, print and radio ads, will carry the Memphis, Tenn.-based company into the Jan. 31 Super Bowl telecast and coverage of both the Winter and Summer Olympics. Federal is a major sponsor of the Olympics.

It is the first concerted Federal Express campaign in nearly a year.

Federal Express officials declined comment on the new campaign, but a source said the effort is "quintessentially the leadership campaign" for the carrier, which claims a 50% share of the U.S. overnight door-to-door delivery market.

United Parcel Service of America, Greenwich, Conn., is second with an estimated 13% share.

The new ads are themed "It's not just a package. It's your business," a line first used during the company's sponsorship last August of TV coverage of the St. Jude Golf Classic.

During that event, the company also tested several offbeat spots, and it has since tested other TV and radio spots and print ads in local markets.

The golf tournament spots, including one in which a spokesman "plays" his lips with his fingers, are not believed to be part of the new campaign.

One print ad appearing in the Nov. 30 issue of People—and typical of much of Fallon McElligott's work—shows an unmarked pouch, captioned "Typo," next to a Federal Express Overnight Letter, above the heading, "Letter Perfect." The copy says, "It's never a mistake to send it Federal Express."

An agency source said TV spots "will look appreciably different" from the side-by-side print comparisons.

The campaign will include commercials that stress the company's international service as well as its domestic operation.

The more hard-hitting competitive approach, which will not mention rivals by name, contrasts sharply with earlier, humorous Federal campaigns from Ally & Gargano, New York.

Ally lost the $20 million domestic business to Minneapolis-based Fallon in a competition earlier this year (AA, March 30).

Fallon already had the estimated $10 million international account, awarded to the agency after Federal pulled the plug on ZapMail, a facsimile transmission service, before it ever was launched.

Federal has seen rivals in the intensely competitive business lure corporate clients with attractive rates.

But a spokesman claimed increased competition and lower ad spending levels have not eroded its market share.

The company's measured ad spending dropped by 21% to $26 million last year, according to Leading National Advertisers. In the first half of 1987, Federal spent only $5 million on measured media.

Besides UPS, which recently began an aggressive marketing thrust in the overnight delivery market, Federal's competitors include DHL Worldwide Courier Express, San Bruno, Calif.; Emery Worldwide, Wilton, Conn.; and the U.S. Postal Service's Express Mail service.#

Highlights

NEWS

4 Saatchis start new agency
Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton opens a new unit to handle Little Caesar Enterprises.

22 Nautilus pumps iron
Nautilus Sports/Medical Industries intends to fatten sales by building its home equipment.

24 P&G ad honors anniversary
Procter & Gamble Co. breaks its first corporate ad campaign as part of its 150th anniversary.

56 How sweet it is
A former Godiva executive forms Monica's Best Foods to market Claridge's chocolates.

59 Missing the target
Stereotypes are prompting marketers to miss opportunities to sell merchandise to oldsters.

64 Telemundo rejects spirits plea
Telemundo Group has refused to discontinue spirits commercials, while LatCom Group agreed to a liquor spot ban.

66 Making the lion roar
Lee Rich, chairman-ceo, MGM/UA Communications Co., works to rebuild the studio.

69 Manny Hanny plans ads
Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. will emerge from a three-year corporate ad hiatus.

71 Tabloid targets deaf community
Deaf USA, a national tabloid aimed at the deaf, began publishing last month.

72 Career path to Chavez
A former ad manager at Blue Cross & Blue Shield takes the Cesar Chavez challenge.

INTERNATIONAL

52 Taking India's ad pulse
Bangalore, India's fifth-largest and fastest-growing city, is emerging as a hot ad center.

53 Canadian sweets
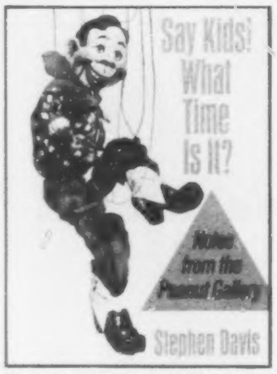
Canada, NutraSweet's first North American market, is testing aspartame-sweetened yogurt.



Say Kids! What Time Is It?
Notes from the Peanut Gallery
Stephen Davis

Excerpt from new book on Howdy Doody. P. 41.

Special Report

Cable:
Cable TV is proving to be a viable outlet for shows unwanted by TV stations. The section also examines cable promotions and local sales. Starts after Page 40.

Departments

Ad review 32
Brady 44
Global Gallery 48
MediaWorks 58
PeopleWorks 54
Photo Review 60
Viewpoint 16, 18, 20

Vol. 58, No. 52—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS* Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $1.50 a copy, $59 a year, $104 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 (313) 446-0494.

Rukeyser gets post at Whittle

By PATRICK REILLY

Whittle Communications has recruited former Money and Fortune Managing Editor William Rukeyser to be its editor in chief.

Whittle founder and Publisher Christopher Whittle called Mr. Rukeyser, currently Time Inc.'s director of international business development, the "important media player" he had been seeking.

Time Inc. loses the editorial executive who had been shepherding plans for the launch of a French version of Fortune, a joint venture with Paris-based Hachette Filipacchi Group, along with other foreign publishing projects.

Mr. Rukeyser will join Knoxville, Tenn.-based Whittle early next year and will be involved immediately in a "major business launch," Mr. Whittle said last week. The launch will be advertiser-supported but not a single-sponsor publication, he said.

"It's not the sole reason he's here, but he is well suited for the project," Mr. Whittle said.

Mr. Rukeyser was the founding managing editor of Money and served as managing editor of Fortune from 1980 until last year.

Whittle, with annual revenues of more than $100 million, specializes in single-advertiser-sponsored magazines, newsletters, videotapes and wall information centers targeted to specific audiences.

Mr. Whittle made his name in publishing by acquiring Esquire,

(Continued on Page 74)

Noble exits DDB to start own shop

By GARY LEVIN

John Noble says the "bigness" of DDB Needham Worldwide led him to leave as exec VP-executive creative director to form his own shop in San Francisco.

Mr. Noble, 47, will open a new agency early next year either alone or with one or more partners, he said. He has signed a "no-compete" agreement preventing him from luring DDB Needham clients for one year.

"I couldn't handle the bigness anymore," he said. "I want to get back into advertising and do advertising, which is what I do best."

Mr. Noble, who spent most of his career in New York, also said he fell in love with San Francisco. He wants to give something back to the city and plans to do it by donating 20% of his profits to a charity designated by the individual clients involved.

He plans to advertise the donations as a method of drumming up business. "It's a quick way for me to say I really do care about the city," Mr. Noble said.

During a seven-month stint at DDB Needham in San Francisco, Mr. Noble hired seven creative staffers, including Brian Barnes, who joined the agency as exec VP-executive creative director from VP-senior art director at Hal Riney & Partners.

Mr. Barnes replaced former Creative Director Mort Scharfman.

Mr. Noble served as interim creative director during the search and worked on campaigns for clients including First Nationwide Savings.

But he rejected an offer to assume that post permanently, viewing it as a "comedown" from his role as executive creative director and a member of the agency's board.

His post as executive creative director will not be filled. Instead, agency Chairman-CEO Keith Reinhard, based in New York, will continue to supervise the agency's creative work.

Mr. Noble's role at DDB Needham is said to have been vaguely defined in recent months, as the agency sought a post for him after last year's merger of Doyle Dane Bernbach and Needham Harper Worldwide.

Mr. Noble joined DDB as a copywriter in 1965, rising to copy chief in 1974 and associate creative director in 1978. He became executive creative director in 1986.#

Alice Z. Cuneo in San Francisco contributed to this story.

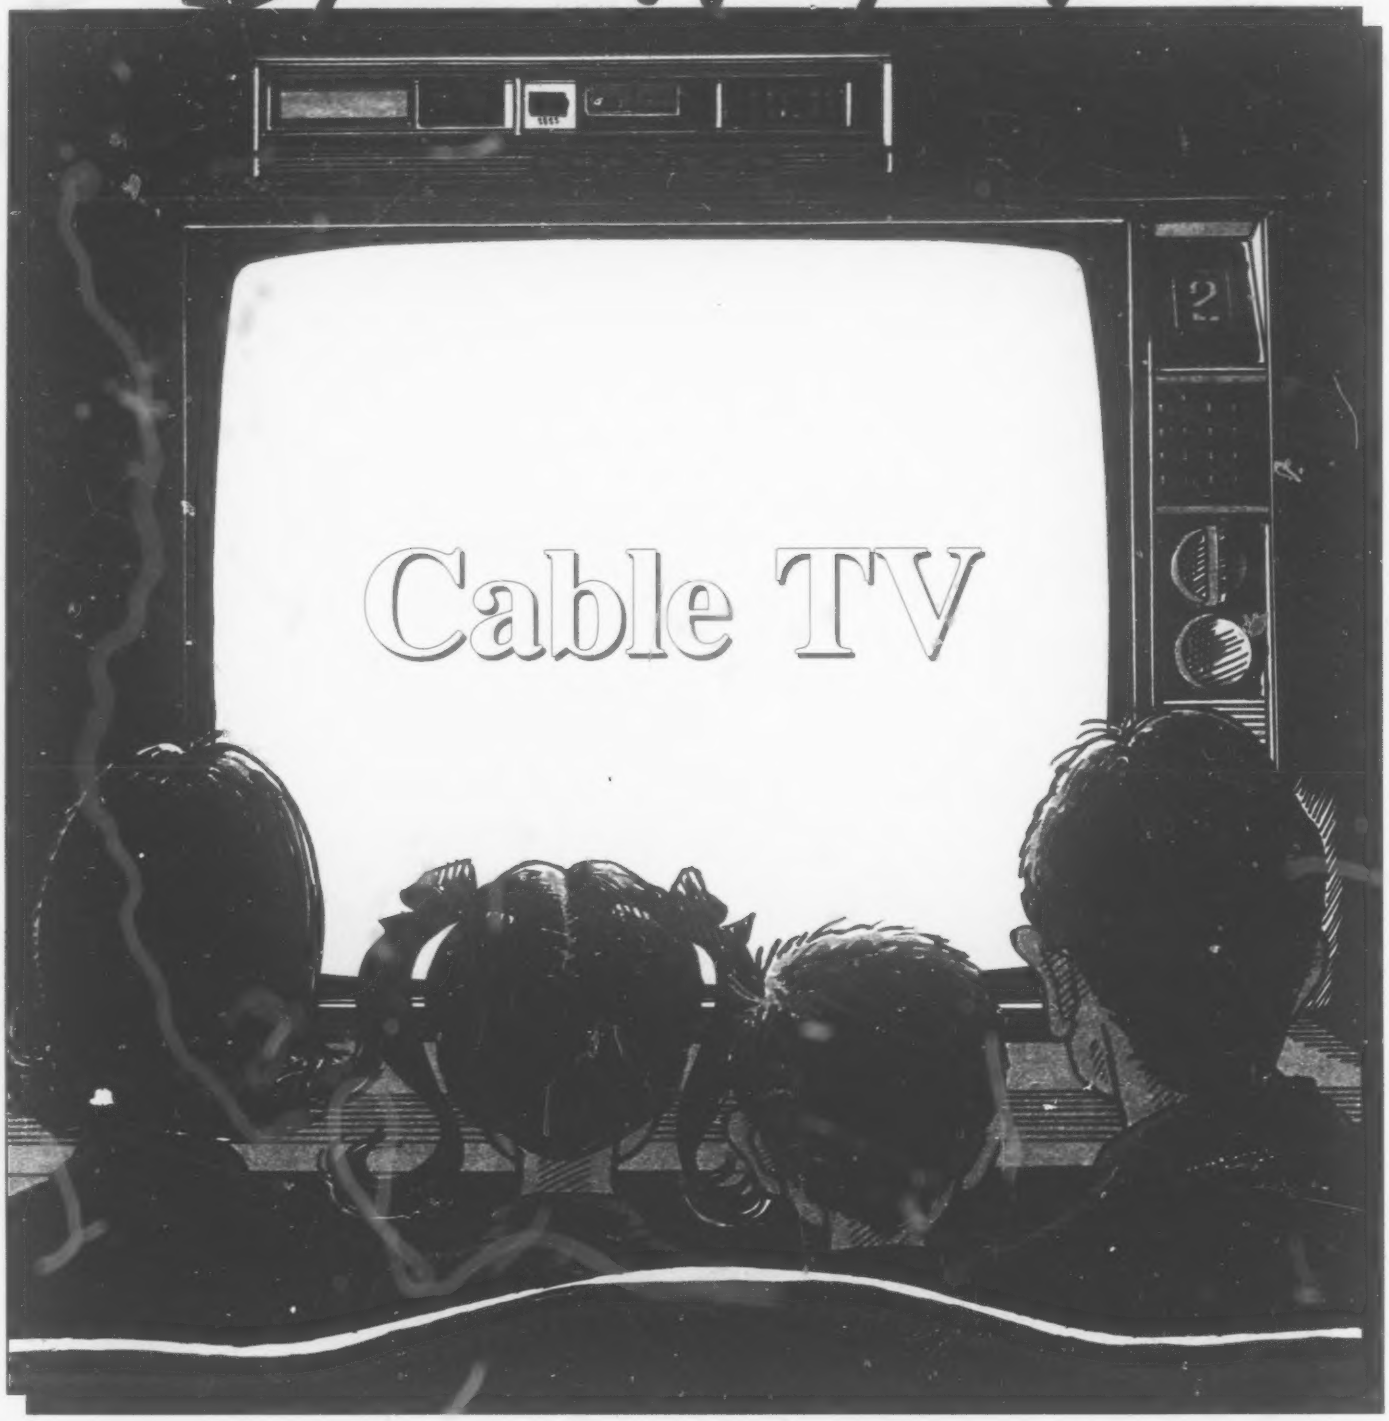
West Coast News

DEC

7

1987

Special Report



Syndicator wares fill cable cupboard

By Wayne Walley

Miami Vice," the hip cop show that set new pastel standards of style for TV, could be at the forefront of another growing trend—exclusive sales of off-network programs to cable networks by TV syndicators sometimes before they are offered for sale to broadcast stations.

Cable TV is filling a void as an outlet for syndicators unable to sell its wares—particularly one-hour shows—to TV stations.

And cable programmers, with a little promotional savvy and salesmanship, are buying those unwanted programs.

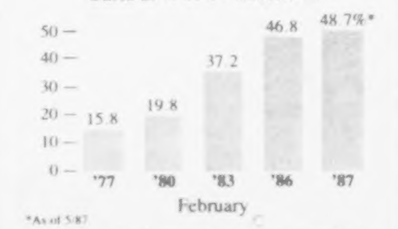
"What do the syndicators have to lose? If a high-profile, off-network show works on cable, broadcasters might become more interested," says Chuck Gingold, VP-programming, Lifetime Cable Network, a division of Capital Cities/ABC, New York.

Even if the show doesn't succeed on cable, the syndicator still recoups some money from the cable sale.

When MCA TV, Universal City, Calif., couldn't find enough TV station buyers for "Miami Vice," the company turned to the USA Network. USA, one of the top-rated cable networks—partly because of the performance of exclusive off-network shows like "Riptide" and "The New Mike Hammer"—was interested, but reportedly turned down a proposed $300,000-per-episode deal last spring.

Cable penetration growth

Cable as % of TV households



*As of 5/87

Source: A.C. Nielsen Company. From "Triumphs and Trends of the Cable Television Industry," a study by Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, 1987.

Then in mid-November after negotiating a price with MCA, USA agreed to buy four-year rights to 92 hours of "Vice" beginning in fall, 1988, for an estimated $200,000 per episode.

The question now is whether or not the Michael Mann-created action/adventure show credited with revolutionizing TV will do the same for cable. "Miami Vice" becomes the first network series directly sold to cable while still airing on broadcast TV. And it could be a barometer of things to come.

(Continued on Page S-16)

Offbeat Nick at Nite pitch fills niche

(Continued from Page S-2)

brand awareness," says Mindy Goldstein, VP-promotions for Ohlmeyer Communications, New York, which has handled cable promotions on MTV and USA Network for various East Hanover, N.J.-based Nabisco Brands products, including Baby Ruth and Butterfinger candy bars.

For the networks, the stakes are high. Cable advertising revenues totaled $948 million in 1986 and are expected to top $1 billion in 1987, according to the CAB.

Among the prizes in VH-1's contest commemorating the tenth anniversary of Elvis Presley's death was a 1957 pink Cadillac.

In the race for ad dollars, networks are increasing their promotion budgets, with an emphasis on tune-in promotions. To qualify for certain contests, viewers must watch the programs that are tied to the promotion.

For example, The Nashville Network, which reaches 35 million subscribers, has a 1987 promotion budget double the amount it was two years ago. TNN's Christmas promotions—including a "Secret Santa" watch-and-win event—began in early November and are being advertised on the nightly network programs such as "Nashville Now."

In addition, RCA Records and American Motors Corp.'s Jeep division cosponsored "Join the Judds Sweepstakes," in which the winner received a trip for two to the Academy of Country Music Awards in Los Angeles, a Jeep Commanche Sportruck, and a visit with the mother-daughter singing duo. The "VideoCountry Contest," which kicked off in September, invites viewers to create an original music video. The winning videos are screened on "VideoCountry," TNN's weeknight music program.

"The cable industry is becoming a lot more programming driven," says Robert Alter, president of CAB. "It used to be that a cable system would almost dare viewers to find out what was on because there was no audience promotion, unlike broadcast television that does constant promotions for programming," he says.

Other industry watchers agree with Mr. Alter. "The industry is learning to do a much better job of informing cable subscribers about the services they have, and they have seen specific and dramatic results," says Larry Gerbrandt, a senior analyst with Paul Kagan & Associates, Carmel, Calif.

Observers say some networks and local system operators are using cross-network and cross-channel promotions to boost programming awareness. Because Nick at Nite airs on the same channel as Nickelodeon, the two services air each other's tune-in spots. Mr. Alter says some local operators have started to cross-promote various channels on services that attracts similar audiences.

The results of a recent CAB survey of cable operators on tune-in promotion support this assertion. For example, more than two-thirds of the cable system operators who responded said such promotions have resulted in increased subscribers.

More than half the respondents said program promotion has resulted in audience growth, while 44% felt tune-in promotion was helpful in increasing local advertising sales. All of the operators surveyed received CAB's monthly "tune-in" kit, which included ready-to-use, program specific promotional material.

"I won't tell you every time we do a promotion our ratings go up, but more often than not they do," says Ellen Kaye, director of marketing at USA Network, which reaches 39 million homes nationwide.

"And even if direct ratings don't go up over the promotion period, I believe that it serves to increase awareness of the programming," she says.

Other cable network officials agree. "Sweepstakes really aren't valuable in and of themselves," explains Laurence E. Rebich, VP-marketing, Lifetime, a division of Capital Cities/ABC, New York.

"The value of a sweepstakes is that it generates a little bit of excitement and makes your advertising message a little bit more memorable," he says. "If it's a pretty straight product ad, it will get some level of response. But if you wrap that ad in the context of a $1 million sweepstakes, you're going to get more attention paid to it."

Promotions this year on Lifetime included "The Ultimate Love Trip Sweepstakes," an on-air Valentine's Day contest that offered viewers the chance to win a 14-day trip for two to Paris, Venice, Rome and the French Riviera. The network's "Motherhood Celebration" ran in April and May and featured a sweepstakes with the winner getting a cruise on the Queen Elizabeth II.

"If you look at where Lifetime was two years ago and where we are today, it makes all the difference in the world," he says. "Advertisers are voting for Lifetime the hard way—with their dollars."

Network officials also say that for offbeat promotions to be effective, they must make sense to the viewer.

"We really try to look at who our audience is and design things that are going to be attractive to them," says Leslye Schaefer, VP-marketing for VH-1, MTV's sister network.

To commemorate last August's tenth anniversary of Elvis Presley's death, the network ran a monthlong tribute that included a weekend devoted specifically to programming about Presley and a contest that gave viewers the chance to win, among other prizes, an exclusive tour of Graceland and a 1957 pink Cadillac.

"It was very successful for us from an entry and a viewership standpoint," says Ms. Schaefer, who adds that the contest was the key to making the entire VH-1 promotion a success.

"[Without the contest] I don't think we would have gotten near the height of participation that we were looking for," she says.

One of MTV:Music Television's off-the-wall promotions gave the winner a job as a roadie for Bruce Springsteen.

At MTV, which is perhaps as well known for its off-the-wall promotions as for its programming, network officials say these types of efforts benefit advertisers as much as the network.

"It makes a difference for all the people who are tying in with us because it puts them in an environment that enables the message to cut through the clutter," says Bob Friedman, senior VP-marketing and promotion development for MTV Networks.

And whether the promotion offers viewers the chance to be a roadie for Bruce Springsteen or to spend a weekend in hedonism with Bon Jovi, the network's efforts have elicited huge responses, according to Mr. Friedman. One promotion co-sponsored by Geffen Records to give away a Jeep, for example, drew 700,000 viewer calls over just one week, he says. MTV reaches more than 37 million households.

Industry watchers say they expect spending on promotion to continue to increase. The 13 cable networks that participated in the National Cable Television Association's National Cable Month campaign last April contributed $23.5 million for advertising and promotional support. In 1988, they will spend $25.9 million, according to NCTA.

Executives at the networks that have had success with unusual promotions say they plan to heighten efforts in 1988.

For example, marketing expenditures that include promotional budgets at Lifetime, which reaches roughly 32 million households, were up 40% in 1987 from the previous year and will jump another 25% in 1988, according to Mr. Rebich.

And, Nick at Nite's 1988 marketing and promotion budget will be double that of 1987.

"I think [the promotions] have been instrumental in audience growth," says Mr. Cronin, who adds that the network is considering a celebrity bowl-a-thon promotion for the coming year. "Nick at Nite is something that has built this very loyal following but there are still some people that don't know about it. 1988 is the year that we really get the word out.

"It's important in cable television that you demonstrate that you have a unique network that is different from local independents and different from what the cable operator already has," he says, "We think of these promotions as offbeat but on-strategy."

Disney, Nashville nets find eager product tie-ins

The Disney Channel, Burbank, Calif., is turning to promotions with like-minded companies. Through a joint effort with General Mills, Minneapolis, consumers mailing proofs of purchase from three different food products—Fruit Corners, Fruit Roll-Ups and Fruit Wrinkles and Nature Valley Peanut Butter Boppers—to the marketer by April 18 received two $12 checks payable to the consumer's local cable company for the first two months of Disney Channel service.

"General Mills is a company that we consider to be of the same image and reputation and certainly having the same family target audience that we have," says Pamela Euler, director of consumer marketing for the channel, which has nearly 3.2 million subscribers as of the end of 1986.

Ms. Euler says Disney research indicates that two-thirds of the consumers who took advantage of the offer said they would not have subscribed without the promotion.

General Mills also was happy with the results, according to Kathryn Newton, PR supervisor for the company. Although Ms. Newton would not say whether General Mills experienced increased sales because of the promotion, she says that company officials believe the effort helped increase brand awareness: "We continue to believe that this is a very viable promotion opportunity."

Kentucky Fried Chicken, Louisville, Ky., had the same goal in mind when it linked with The Nashville Network in April to promote its song-writing contest.

"The audience for country and adult contemporary music is very closely aligned with the consumer base for Kentucky Fried Chicken," says John Weir, VP in the Los Angeles office of Edelman Public Relations, which promoted the contest. "It gives us a great way to reach our customers."

Top 10 cable advertisers

Advertiser	Expenditures
Mars Inc.	$5,744,355
Philip Morris	5,427,642
Time Inc.	5,321,821
Procter & Gamble	5,174,055
Anheuser-Busch	4,283,601
RJR Nabisco	3,746,217
General Mills	3,654,724
Gillette	3,104,652
General Motors	1,970,705
American Home	1,837,816
Total	$40,265,588

Source: BAR data. ©1987 Cable TV Advertising, Paul Kagan Associates, Carmel, CA

According to Mr. Weir, about 20% of the contest's 50,000 respondents entered through TNN this year. "There is no question," he says, "that the association with TNN has been very beneficial to the contest."

—Fannie Weinstein

Winning the battle in the neighborhoods

By Len Strazewski

It's football season and cable operators are cheering—for their home teams and local advertising sales.

Cable operators and industry observers predict a record year for local advertising sales—possibly as high as $300 million. They say this is due, in part, to the strength of expanded interconnects between regional cable systems, greater recognition of the value of cable by advertisers and improved sales techniques at the local operating level.

Most attractive to advertisers is New York-based Entertainment Sports & Programming Network's broadcast of 13 National Football League games. Each NFL game—the Pro Bowl, four preseason and eight regular season games—contains 24 local avails that are being sold for about three times the usual local ad rate of 50¢ per 1,000 subscribers, 25% to 50% of which are headed directly to the local operators' bottom line.

In addition to extra revenues, the NFL games are an effective marketing tool for local systems, providing them the kind of national programming that opens doors to major advertisers, say cable operators and ad representatives. "New programming in general is opening a lot of doors for cable, especially the NFL games. Cable programming like this is much more attractive than anything we've had before," says David Cantor, director of advertising sales, Cox Cable, Atlanta.

"There's no doubt that the NFL games are a breakthrough for cable," says Larry Gerbrandt, senior analyst at Paul Kagan Associates, Carmel, Calif., a media consulting company. "The cable-exclusive games generate a lot of excitement for cable operators and their representatives as well as local avails."

ESPN's acquisition of NFL broadcast rights was one of the major reasons for Mr. Gerbrandt's increase in 1987 local advertising sales estimate from about $252 million to $264 million. Mr. Gerbrandt estimates that local advertising sales could grow to $1.2 billion by 1995.

"If cable operators choose to market their avails correctly, the ESPN games could lead to a significant increase in sales. Cable sells very differently from broadcast and is very dependent on results. If a spot works, advertisers will return and buy more."

Ron Fischmann, VP-local advertising for New York-based Cabletelevision Advertising Bureau, agrees but believes Mr. Gerbrandt is underestimating 1987 local advertising sales. CAB is estimating 1987 sales of about $300 million, which would be a 60.4% increase from 1986.

Top 10 MSOs

Company	Basic subscribers	Basic penetration
TCI*	5,165,000	57.0
ATC	2,888,957	56.5
Continental	1,445,000	54.7
Storer	1,392,000	58.4
Cox	1,371,731	56.7
Warner	1,260,000	53.0
Comcast	1,242,744	55.8
United	1,084,431	56.8
Newhouse	1,026,602	63.4
Heritage	1,000,856	50.5

Source: NCTA data as reported in Broadcasting, May 25, 1987. From "Triumphs and Trends of the Cable Television Industry," a study by Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, 1987.

*TCI figures include consolidated and equity affiliates but do not include its purchase of Heritage.
ATC figures do not include Paragon Cable numbers. Figures are for March 31 unless otherwise noted.

"There's no doubt that ESPN's NFL games are a major breakthrough," he says. "The first preseason game had a 16 rating, which puts cable in the same ballpark as broadcast television."

But, he says, other factors have contributed to the dramatic increases in local advertising sales, among them: increased cable penetration, improved media-planning technology and greater sales professionalism.

With cable penetration topping 50% of U.S. homes, "cable is now regularly being seen in areas in which advertising agency personnel reside," Mr. Fischmann says. "They are finally getting a feeling for what cable is."

Moreover, Mr. Fischmann says, because new cable demographic studies by major researchers such as Simmons Market Research Bureau and MRI, New York, show that cable homes tend to be more affluent, agency people have become more interested in cable households.

New planning technology, such as the personal computer-based Cable Planning System, marketed by CAB, also has helped increase sales because agency buyers can better estimate the amount of cable advertising needed to meet their goals for cable households, he says. As a result, the number of manufacturers and distributors using co-op advertising on cable have increased 59% to 2,110 in 1987.

"This growth is indicative of the emphasis national manufacturers are placing on cable for local advertising," Mr. Fischmann says.

Cable operators also are making regional purchases easier with more interconnections between local systems, he says. CAB now lists 80 interconnects between two or more systems,

Len Strazewski is a Chicago-based free-lance writer and a frequent contributor to Special Report.

Ask Coke, Circle K, 7-11, General Foods or Campbell's about their success with WWF Superstar promotions.

They'll tell you how well it works. The WWF is a proven on-going marketing machine with 20-million active fans... nationwide TV...publishing...and over 1,000 live events a year. Plug in your product and away you go!

To make your promotion or licensing fly, call* 203 352 8607
HULK HOGAN
Supermatch Cards
Supermatch Cards
Supermatch Cards
WWF
WORLD WRESTLING FEDERATION®

up 45% from last year.

Local ad revenues at the 1.3 million subscriber Cable Television Network of New Jersey are up about 20%, thanks to increased advertiser awareness and improved specialty programming, says Jim DeBold, executive director.

Though the network is listed by CAB as the nation's largest interconnect, CTN/N.J. is not really a traditional interconnect because the network sells exclusive locally produced programming within New Jersey and does not sell local avails on big cable networks such as ESPN, Lifetime and USA Network, Mr. DeBold says.

Big sellers are health-related cable programs such as "New Lifestyles" and "Discover," designed to capture haircare and other health and beauty product advertisers.

More advertisers became interested in "New Lifestyles" when one haircare marketer reported 300 sales leads from a direct-response telephone number in its spot. The advertiser now uses cable advertising exclusively, Mr. DeBold says.

At New York Interconnect, the nation's largest traditional interconnect with 1.2 million subscribers, local ad sales are more of a strategic exercise than a sales pitch.

Established in 1980, New York Interconnect's local ad revenues have grown from 18% to 20% each year, according to John Kramer, VP-director of sales. And, he says, each year, the market has grown more competitive and sophisticated.

"As we've grown, the rules have changed. We are now competitors with the local broadcast stations, and that makes us work harder."

ESPN and Cable News Network are the interconnect's two biggest sellers, he says, and thanks to ESPN's success with the NFL, the best avails on that network are now selling out. But the other networks still require aggressive and sophisticated marketing.

For example, to sell cable ad time to Casa Lupita, a local Mexican restaurant chain, New York Interconnect reps plotted a campaign that targeted diners specifically in areas served by the restaurants. The reps used both local audience demographics and individual operator subscriber information to sell the chain a series of spots that appeared only in areas with restaurants.

"Advertisers are finally realizing that cable is pure efficiency—that we aren't limited to large [marketing areas]. We can target to very small areas and provide maximum use of the advertiser's dollars," Mr. Kramer says.

Some cable representatives combine their marketing efforts with print and radio. At Northwest Cable Interconnect, a Seattle-based system with 520,000 subscribers, reps sell spots, print ads in cable guides and bill stuffers. They also cross-promote programming and network promotions with print ads.

Advertising revenues have been growing at about 25% a year for the last three years, according to Penny Taylor, NCI's general manager. About 25% of the revenues are generated by car makers and auto dealer associations. The interconnect has diversified its advertiser base, however, to include PepsiCo, McDonald's Corp., Seattle First National Bank and other large local advertisers, says Ms. Taylor.

Though the Northwest area has been wired for cable since the late 1940s and has a strong viewership, "We still have to break down some barriers of perception," Ms. Taylor says. "Agencies want to know as much as they can about the viewing audience . . . As our research grows, so will our sales."

Cable TV's own classified section

Media General Cable of Fairfax, Va., the nation's 50th largest multiple system operator with more than 140,000 subscribers, according to New York-based Cabletelevision Advertising Bureau, is using new personal computer-generated graphic technology to transmit classified advertising with digitized color photographs of homes and condominiums for sale over local access cable channels. The channels advertise real estate, automotive and job listings.

In their first year of operation, the three classified ad channels already are generating one-third of the system's local advertising revenue—about $500,000 of $1.5 million.

©1987 Landsman Studio

Digitized photos of homes linked with sales information text fills a formerly unused Fairfax, Va., local access channel.

"The channels have been doing great for us," says VP-marketing and programming Don Mathison. "We're looking at adding at least two more classified channels in 1988 and some expansion of the technology to create ads in different formats."

Though Mr. Mathison says he doesn't believe that Media General is really competing with local newspapers for classified advertising, he sees the

(Continued on Page S-14)

Alabama
Rosanne Cash
Neil Young
Dan Fogelberg
Willie Nelson
Jimmy Buffett
The Judds
Kris Kristofferson
Larry Gatlin and the Gatlin Brothers
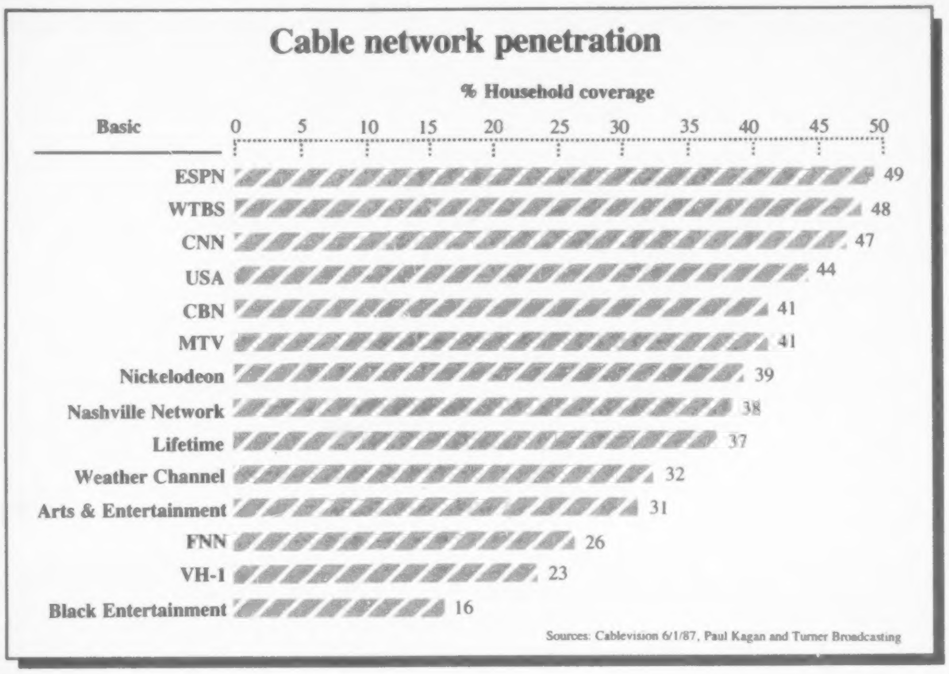
Kenny Rogers
Hank Williams Jr.
Gary Morris
The Oak Ridge Boys
Juice Newton
Barbara Mandrell
Ray Charles
Ronnie Milsap
Johnny Cash
Waylon Jennings
Merle Haggard
Emmylou Harris
Crystal Gayle
Nitty Gritty Dirt Band
Randy Travis
Charlie Daniels
Leon Russell
John Sebastian
Chet Atkins
Nicolette Larson
Loretta Lynn
Eddie Rabbitt
BJ Thomas
Reba McEntire
Ricky Skaggs

TNN IS A SOUND INVESTMENT.

Millions of people with millions to spend watch The Nashville Network every day. We offer great music, specials and sports: quality entertainment you can't find anywhere else. Fine tune your media investments with TNN.

TNN

© GROUP W SATELLITE COMMUNICATIONS 1987
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL 212-557-6550



Sources: Cablevision 6/1/87, Paul Kagan and Turner Broadcasting

Filling the cable cupboard

(Continued from Page S-1)

Shows like Emmy Award-winning "Cagney & Lacey" and "St. Elsewhere" are likely to find a home on cable because of the lukewarm response from stations when offered in syndication this past year.

"It's pretty clear in the syndicated arena that one-hour product is available to us," says Mr. Gingold.

"Broadcast stations aren't buying. Syndicators have a stockpile, and they finally said, 'Gee, basic cable networks are in the black. They are customers.' "

The result: USA, CBN Cable Network and Lifetime have become the viable outlets for TV producers previously unable to recoup production deficits—as much as $350,000 per episode—on one-hour shows.

Each of the three cable networks have paid between $5,000 and $200,000 per episode for series such as "Crazy Like a Fox," "Falcon Crest," "Father Murphy," "Flamingo Road," "Hardcastle & McCormick," "Hell Town," "Jack & Mike," "Kay O'Brien," "Remington Steele" and "Riptide".

USA also bought a limited number of "Airwolf" and "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" hour programs before financing production of new episodes made for USA. "You purchase high-profile, off-network shows as a promotional vehicle," says Tim Kassick, director of programming, CBN Cable Network, Virginia Beach, Va.

"When you factor in the promotional potential from fresh off-network shows, it's worth it. It's better than buying 7,000 newspapers and a lot easier to coordinate. We have 8,000 cable operator affiliates. And problems are compounded in each market. NBC is on only one channel; CBN could be on 12 different channels in the same city," he says.

The high-priced acquisitions also have created another first for cable TV: a ratings battle.

Mr. Gingold called the fall "cable's most competitive season yet between the basic networks."

Overall, the strategy of buying exclusive off-network shows has paid off for cable networks. National ratings, which ranged between 0.8 and 2.0 last year for off-network shows on CBN, Lifetime and USA between the hours of 6 and 11 p.m., represented as much as a 400% increase in audience delivery.

Kay Koplovitz, president-ceo, USA Network, New York, in a speech to the Denver Advertising Federation last month, said basic cable networks this year have gained 40% in audience delivery while the Big 3 broadcast networks—ABC, CBS and NBC—were off 8% in total viewership on a 24-hour basis, according to A.C. Nielsen figures.

And, the high-quality productions and familiarity of a "Hardcastle & McCormick" or "Riptide" ease advertiser resistance to buying time on cable networks.

"[Cable] just hadn't progressed as fast as we thought it would. But we knew if cable spent more money for better programs, the advertiser demand would follow," says Bart McHugh, senior VP-director of national radio/TV programming, DDB Needham Worldwide, New York.

As a result, cable exploded as a top alternative for advertisers this fall. Every major cable network—Arts & Entertainment, CBN Cable Network, CNN, ESPN, CNN Headline News, Lifetime, MTV:Music Television, The Nashville Network, Nickelodeon, Superstation TBS, USA Network and VH-1—reports scores of new advertisers amid the tightest fourth quarter ad marketplace in cable TV history (AA, Nov. 9).

Many industry analysts had said cable TV would never come of age until it produced original programming that earned the broadcast network-type ratings attractive to big advertisers. But the crowded and costly broadcast markets are pushing more marketers to cable TV.

"Miami Vice" will air in 1988 on USA Network.

"Advertisers are finding a fragmented marketplace and they can't make it up just by buying syndication. The networks are losing audience share and our research shows only cable restores it," Ms. Koplovitz says.

Advertisers such as Adidas USA, Campbell Soup Co., Dannon Co., Duracell Inc., Eastman Kodak Co., Ford Motor Co.'s Lincoln-Mercury division, E.&J. Gallo Winery, Lever Bros. Co., National Dairy Board, Nintendo of America, Perrier Group, Polaroid Corp., Timex Corp. and others recently have bought cable for the first time in 1987.

"Cable's been hot," says David Verklin, VP-media director, Hal Riney & Partners, San Francisco. "I only see cable buys increasing because it's easier to sell clients today. More advertisers have cable in their homes. They know what it is about. And cable is getting better programming. How hard is it for an advertiser to understand the U.S. Open in tennis or NFL football, even if it is on USA Network or ESPN?"

Many people have ignored cable because the medium did not live up to its original lofty predictions, says Mr. McHugh. Two years ago most cable observers were saying, "Where's the promise? Cable didn't deliver."

"Remington Steele" now does its sleuthing on CBN.

But cable TV's fortunes have changed this past year, say industry observers. Cable penetration reached 50% of total U.S. homes this year, according to Cabletelevision Advertising Bureau, New York, while programming and ratings also have improved.

"Advertiser objections to cable are slowly falling apart," said Bruce Braun, VP-western region ad sales, USA Network, Los Angeles.

With increased revenues, greater penetration and wider acceptance, those in the industry say cable will get stronger as it procures more top off-network series, begins producing its own higher-quality programming and wins rights to other quality events.

"Now the cable networks just need more programming," says Jack Yearwood, VP-general manager, Bay Area Interconnect, San Jose, Calif. "Our fourth quarter is the best in history and most of that can be attributed to ESPN and NFL football. We used to get $300 for a local 30-second spot on ESPN.

"On NFL games, we get $2,500 a spot. Our growth had been stymied, but now I think we've turned the corner."

Associate editor Anita M. Busch coordinated this report on Cable TV.

Coming

Next week ADVERTISING AGE's Special Report will focus on Marketing to Blacks.

Metal tokens add impact to a promotion.

They look and feel like money.

They add pizzazz to the promotion, have much more impact than coupons. Roger Williams Mint is the country's largest maker of tokens; stock items shipped overnight, custom designs as quickly as 3 weeks. Free design service.

Write or call us for a sample kit,
Toll-Free 1-800-225-2734.*

Roger Williams Mint
Northwest Industrial Park
79 Walton Street, Attleboro, MA 02703
*In Mass. call (617) 226-3310

800-TELEMARKETING
PLUS
CREATIVE COMPUTER SERVICES
EQUAL
SUCCESSFUL PROMOTIONS

C&C INFORMATION SYSTEMS, INC.
54 Willow Park Center
Farmingdale, New York 11735
1-800-424-7669

- Order/Inquiry Acceptance
- Auto Credit Card Deposits
- C.O.D. Processing
- Custom Computer Analysis
- Fulfillment Services

Newspaper Advertising Inches; September 1987 vs. September 1986 (Standard Advertising Units in the Media Records Conversion System)

AKRON, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Beacon Journal (M)	100 295	—	100 717	—
Beacon Journal (S)	63 771	—	67 943	—
Grand Total	164 066	—	168 660	—

NOTE Beacon Journal changed from evening to morning publication effective July 13 1987

ALLENTOWN, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Call (M)	167 714	—	150 886	—
Call (S)	84 898	—	85 409	—
Grand Total	252 612	—	236 295	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

ASBURY PARK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Press (E)	201 582	41 764	187 867	21 820
Press (S)	154 615	25 104	143 656	12 621
Grand Total	356 197	66 868	331 523	34 441

ATLANTA, GA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Constitution (M)	174 437	83 469	161 663	61 833
Journal (E)	185 628	94 971	165 964	59 821
Journal & Constitution (S)	109 866	72 567	128 980	69 244
Journal & Constitution (Sat)	49 475	—	42 714	—
Grand Total	519 406	250 957	499 321	190 898

NOTE Constitution Morning and Journal Evening published five days a week only

BALTIMORE, MD

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Sun (M)	151 151	13 418	132 075	3 528
Sun (E)	129 064	13 420	106 181	3 528
Sun (S)	144 671	50 408	154 745	44 853
Grand Total	424 886	77 246	393 001	51 909

BERGEN COUNTY, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Record (E)	156 440	24 612	156 490	14 451
Record (S)	158 861	36 363	140 169	38 541
Grand Total	315 301	60 975	296 659	52 992

BOSTON, MA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Herald (M)	85 994	—	95 160	—
Herald (S)	22 081	44 031	22 595	33 943
Globe (M)	151 598	14 009	141 237	15 728
Globe (S)	189 094	44 415	194 507	33 921
Grand Total	448 767	102 455	453 499	83 592

BUFFALO, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (AD)	104 800	37 218	111 629	28 190
News (S)	45 728	44 004	50 757	37 842
Grand Total	150 528	81 222	162 386	66 032

CAMDEN, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Courier-Post (E)	145 478	25 447	133 700	14 311
Courier-Post (S)	68 479	22 601	58 536	15 649
Grand Total	213 957	48 048	192 236	29 960

CHARLOTTE, NC

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Observer (M)	134 013	—	127 692	—
Observer (S)	82 864	—	74 798	—
Grand Total	216 877	—	202 490	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

CHICAGO, IL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
*Tribune (M)	126 179	266 705	125 161	258 357
*Tribune (S)	144 880	88 859	127 970	98 782
Sun-Times (M)	130 106	70 715	136 502	72 273
Sun-Times (S)	53 706	50 535	56 803	29 978
Grand Total	454 871	476 814	446 436	469 390

NOTE Tribune figures supplied by publisher to Media Records 1987 figures represent advertising for 8/31/87-9/27/87

CINCINNATI, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Enquirer (M)	151 747	14 414	146 352	5 503
Enquirer (S)	118 597	7 541	124 647	11 635
Post (E)	77 101	26 050	66 029	15 623
Grand Total	347 445	48 005	337 028	32 761

CLEVELAND, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Plain Dealer (M)	142 463	36 061	138 877	27 582
Plain Dealer (S)	99 776	5 853	110 600	10 601
Grand Total	242 239	41 914	249 477	38 183

DALLAS, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (M)	268 701	14 384	271 517	15 379
News (S)	157 725	12 417	148 940	12 469
Times-Herald (AD)	190 168	25 334	201 568	38 504
Times-Herald (S)	111 426	23 262	103 893	18 145
Grand Total	728 020	75 397	725 918	84 497

DENVER, CO

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Rocky Mt. News (M)	268 498	25 118	266 976	489
Rocky Mt. News (S)	67 219	24 085	90 361	1 531
Post (M)	181 162	50 932	188 437	9 098
Post (S)	89 114	35 925	112 309	905
Grand Total	605 993	136 060	658 083	12 023

DETROIT, MI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Free Press (M)	106 407	44 754	100 726	49 518
Free Press (S)	46 419	31 744	61 695	16 415
News (AD)	169 676	34 087	159 649	40 634
News (S)	88 292	25 005	94 836	33 759
Grand Total	410 794	135 590	416 906	140 326

ESCONDIDO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times-Advocate (E)	109 642	3 458	96 614	2 382
Times-Advocate (S)	46 192	—	42 905	483
Grand Total	155 834	3 458	139 519	2 865

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News & Sun-Sentinel (S)	94 209	—	100 271	—
Sun-Sentinel (M)	237 076	—	246 550	—
Grand Total	331 285	—	346 821	—

NOTE Part run figures not available Morning figures include the Saturday Edition

FORT WAYNE, IN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Journal Gazette (M)	88 882	—	73 299	—
Journal Gazette (S)	64 515	—	69 203	—
News Sentinel (E)	90 197	—	86 646	—
Grand Total	243 594	—	229 148	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

GREENWICH/STAMFORD, CT

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Time (E)	78 544	11 035	79 802	1 739
Time (S)	68 115	10 227	63 059	4 880
Advocate (E)	104 677	21 087	103 394	16 996
Advocate (S)	66 918	12 552	62 869	4 119
Grand Total	318 254	54 901	309 124	27 734

HARTFORD, CT

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Courant (M)	154 154	42 464	146 431	28 039
Courant (S)	90 014	116 035	88 705	128 478
Grand Total	244 168	158 499	235 136	156 517

HONOLULU, HI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Advertiser (M)	118 324	—	116 061	—
Star-Bulletin (E)	113 270	—	114 984	—
Star-Bulletin & Advertiser (S)	76 279	—	78 158	—
Grand Total	307 873	—	309 203	—

HOUSTON, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Chronicle (AD)	213 719	29 548	206 900	43 439
Chronicle (S)	117 188	29 676	90 209	39 102
Post (M)	140 301	42 303	131 851	36 141
Post (S)	67 155	30 545	64 623	24 511
Grand Total	538 363	132 072	493 583	143 193

LONG BEACH, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Press Telegram (M)	129 447	44 187	110 686	36 861
Press Telegram (S)	61 922	1 269	60 016	5 123
Grand Total	191 369	45 456	170 702	41 984

LONG ISLAND, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Newsday (E)	102 687	127 677	135 808	92 079
Newsday (S)	78 509	111 830	95 435	82 457
Grand Total	181 196	239 507	231 243	174 536

LOS ANGELES, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times (M)	296 582	286 418	277 809	260 552
Times (S)	165 832	88 239	166 041	93 785
Herald-Examiner (M)	69 726	8 211	59 603	9 172
Herald-Examiner (S)	17 321	7 950	15 236	8 858
Grand Total	549 461	390 818	518 689	372 365

LOS ANGELES/SAN FERNANDO VALLEY, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (M)	191 667	28 212	179 175	37 644
News (S)	80 770	2 711	81 089	940
Grand Total	272 437	30 923	260 259	38 584

*LOS ANGELES/TORRANCE, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Breeze (E & S)	216 851	—	196 077	—
Grand Total	216 851	—	196 077	—

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*MEMPHIS, TN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Commercial Appeal (M)	139 476	76 335	119 952	86 235
Commercial Appeal (S)	94 966	8 916	93 837	5 984
Grand Total	234 442	85 251	213 789	92 219

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

MIAMI, FL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Herald (M)	149 120	—	149 306	—
Herald (S)	92 885	—	78 256	—
News (E)	63 922	—	56 580	—
Grand Total	305 927	—	284 142	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

MINNEAPOLIS, MN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Star & Tribune (AD)	116 726	44 471	111 554	22 564
Star & Tribune (S)	144 811	3 098	143 738	5 756
Star & Tribune (Sat)	25 008	—	24 475	—
Grand Total	286 545	47 569	279 767	28 320

*NASHVILLE, TN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Banner (E)	116 213	—	104 481	—
Tennessean (M)	113 355	—	104 535	—
Tennessean (S)	100 983	—	84 350	—
Grand Total	330 551	—	293 366	—

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

NEW BRUNSWICK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Home News (E)	89 861	4 130	87 538	7 510
Home News (S)	79 275	12 141	68 927	8 432
Grand Total	169 136	16 271	156 465	15 942

NEW YORK, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times (M)	187 619	20 910	178 213	17 700
Times (S)	204 720	114 622	229 398	113 8[illegible]
News (M)	69 418	93 529	61 563	82 94[illegible]
News (S)	45 917	82 567	42 032	69 6[illegible]
Post (AD)	71 888	584	54 321	1 2[illegible]
Grand Total	579 562	312 212	565 527	285 336

NEWARK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Star Ledger (M)	221 242	5 101	205 505	5 586
Star Ledger (S)	210 735	32 116	191 751	22 837
Grand Total	431 977	37 217	397 256	28 423

OAKLAND, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Tribune (M)	86 995	94 956	82 380	77 363
Tribune (S)	40 925	44 049	40 999	35 742
Grand Total	127 920	139 005	123 379	113 105

OCEANSIDE, CA
SAN DIEGO COASTAL NORTH COUNTY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Blade-Tribune (E)	95 864	6 025	103 934	2 415
Blade-Tribune (S)	64 052	—	45 013	—
Grand Total	159 916	6 025	148 947	2 415

NOTE Blade-Tribune Evening published five days a week only

ORANGE COUNTY, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Register (AD)	333 029	87 938	296 768	89 851
Register (S)	123 456	13 550	127 792	8 785
Grand Total	456 485	101 488	424 560	98 636

PHILADELPHIA, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Inquirer (M)	156 945	40 513	152 779	34 549
Inquirer (S)	132 712	68 307	131 913	50 996
News (E)	82 451	2 206	79 350	3 797
Grand Total	372 108	111 026	364 042	89 342

*PHOENIX, AZ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Arizona Republic (M)	278 844	13 610	282 579	15 399
Arizona Republic (S)	173 607	—	174 595	—
Gazette (E)	265 299	13 865	272 695	15 517
Grand Total	717 750	27 475	729 869	30 916

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*PROVIDENCE, RI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Journal (M)	123 331	275 647	114 430	98 378
Journal (S)	149 820	63 214	134 767	62 527
Grand Total	273 151	338 861	249 197	160 905

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*ST. LOUIS, MO

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Post Dispatch (M)	122 464	31 868	102 352	31 685
Post Dispatch (S)	124 347	703	124 247	2 635
Grand Total	246 811	32 571	226 599	34 320

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

ST. PAUL, MN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Pioneer Press Dispatch (AD)	89 802	—	87 043	—
Pioneer Press Dispatch (S)	108 874	—	110 090	—
Grand Total	195 676	—	197 133	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

SAN ANTONIO, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Express-News (AD)	115 897	44 462	110 409	30 820
Express-News (S)	71 403	22 985	73 483	29 078
Express-News (Sat)	31 310	—	34 827	—
Light (AD)	133 250	15 454	123 340	19 696
Light (S)	81 044	2 871	82 537	5 9[illegible]
Light (Sat)	24 884	897	26 894	1 726
Grand Total	457 788	86 669	451 490	87 231

NOTE Express-News All Day and Light All Day published five days a week only

SAN DIEGO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Union (M)	218 689	32 802	194 602	39 977
Union (S)	127 609	1 025	127 458	—
Tribune (E)	227 267	34 424	199 853	41 834
Grand Total	573 565	68 251	521 913	81 811

SAN FRANCISCO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Chronicle (M)	131 774	69 739	123 381	74 369
Examiner (E)	128 479	68 105	—	—
Examiner & Chronicle (S)	77 292	29 716	73 622	35 418
Grand Total	337 545	167 560	197 003	109 787

NOTE 1986 Examiner Evening figures not available

SAN JOSE, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Mercury News (AD)	296 510	20 457	281 015	19 178
Mercury News (S)	144 096	—	140 901	—
Grand Total	440 606	20 457	421 916	19 178

*STATE COLLEGE, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Centre Times (E)	78 516	4 336	74 482	3 252
Centre Times (S)	35 933	221	40 504	1 205
Grand Total	114 499	4 557	114 986	4 457

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*TOLEDO, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Blade (E)	113 225	—	111 453	—
Blade (S)	87 225	—	98 368	—
Grand Total	200 450	—	209 821	—

NOTE Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

WASHINGTON, DC

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Post (M)	285 379	41 854	272 382	35 785
Post (S)	153 700	47 612	160 658	30 443
Grand Total	439 079	89 466	433 040	66 228

WASHINGTON, DC SUBURBAN GROUP

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Montgomery Journal (M)	70 062	688	71 403	1 388
Fairfax Journal (M)	82 261	3 372	81 668	1 991
Grand Total	152 323	4 060	153 071	3 379

NOTE Montgomery Journal Morning and Fairfax Journal Morning published five days a week only

WESTCHESTER ROCKLAND, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Reporter Dispatch (E)	98 018	21 857	84 685	17 414
Reporter Dispatch (S)	78 068	30 841	83 067	19 236
Grand Total	176 086	52 698	167 752	36 650

WICHITA, KS

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Eagle-Beacon (M)	116 309	—	105 778	—
Eagle-Beacon (S)	72 502	—	76 241	—
Grand Total	188 811	—	182 019	—

NOTE Part run figures not available

Source: Media Records

This data has been provided by Media Records for exclusive publication in Advertising Age and may not be reprinted or published in any form without explicit permission from Media Records. All newspapers represented are subscribers to Media Records. For those newspapers that subscribe to Media Records National Advertising Reporting Service, Total Advertising data shown has been supplied by the publisher to Media Records and included in this compilation. All publisher supplied figures are converted to MRCS SAU inches by Media Records. These newspapers are indicated with an asterisk (*).

REPORTING METHODOLOGY

Media Records continues to measure in linage but due to the introduction of the SAU 6 column format Media Records has designed and developed a methodology with the approval of our subscribers, the INAME Measurements Committee, The ANPA NAB Working Committee, The AAAA Newspaper Committee, and other industry groups.

The approved methodology is titled The Media Records Conversion System (MRCS) and is based upon the printed page area of each product of the newspaper and is a five step approach as follows:

1. Measure Printed Page
   Width and Depth in Inches
2. Determine Square Inches of Page
   Multiply Width by Depth Inches
3. Determine the Number of SAU Inches of Page
   Divide the Square Inches by 2.0625 (SAU Inches)
4. Measure the Total Lines of the Page
   Multiply Column Depth Agate Lines by the Number of Columns on the Page
5. Determine the Factor for Converting Measured Lines to Reported SAU Inches
   Divide the Total Lines of Page by the Number of MRCS SAU Inches of the Page

SAU* is the registered trademark of the American Newspaper Publishers Association

India advertising flourishes

Bangalore emerging as a new ad center

By SHEILA TEFFT

BANGALORE, INDIA—Six years ago, the late Ayaz Peerbhoy of Advertising Marketing Associates split his agency between his two competitive sons and created separate companies in two areas of the country.

The eldest son, Sajid, was rewarded with the more valuable branch in Bombay, one of the country's four traditional major ad centers. The younger brother, Bunty, chose to remain in Bangalore, even though Madras was considered the ad capital of the South.

When people questioned his choice, Bunty Peerbhoy told them Bangalore was the city of the future.

Today, many in the ad industry agree. The city has joined the four traditional Indian centers for advertising—Bombay, Calcutta, New Delhi and Madras.

Bangalore is India's fifth-largest city. It also is the fastest-growing city in the country. It has more than 58 accredited agencies, including offices of the country's top 10.

Since the mid-1970s, ad billings have grown tenfold to almost $40 million, approaching the amount of business in Madras, now only several million dollars ahead of Bangalore.

Bunty Peerbhoy's Advertising Marketing Associates has become the largest agency based in south India. with total billings of $10 million. In Bangalore alone, Advertising Marketing trails only Hindustan Thompson Associates, the country's largest agency. In that market, Hindustan Thompson has close to $4 million in billings and Advertising Marketing has $3 million.

In Bombay, Sajid Peerbhoy's once bigger agency is billing less than $1 million.

"Madras has remained static while we are growing by leaps and bounds," said R. Seshadri, VP at Clarion Advertising Services, the first national agency to open an office here 15 years ago.

Long a center for large public-sector companies and scientific research, Bangalore recently has been flooded with private corporations.

The city, now touted as India's "Silicon Valley," has ambitious plans to modernize by importing Western technology. U.S. computer giants Texas Instruments and Hewlett-Packard Co. already have operations here.

In recent years, several consumer products giants, including Brook Bond and Thomas J. Lipton Inc., both previously based in Calcutta, have moved to Bangalore. Now about half of the ad spending here is for consumer products.

All this has meant spectacular growth for agencies.

"The pace is hectic in the pensioners' paradise," heralds a promotional ad, created by Hindustan Thompson.

"That's why Bangalore is the fastest-growing city in India."

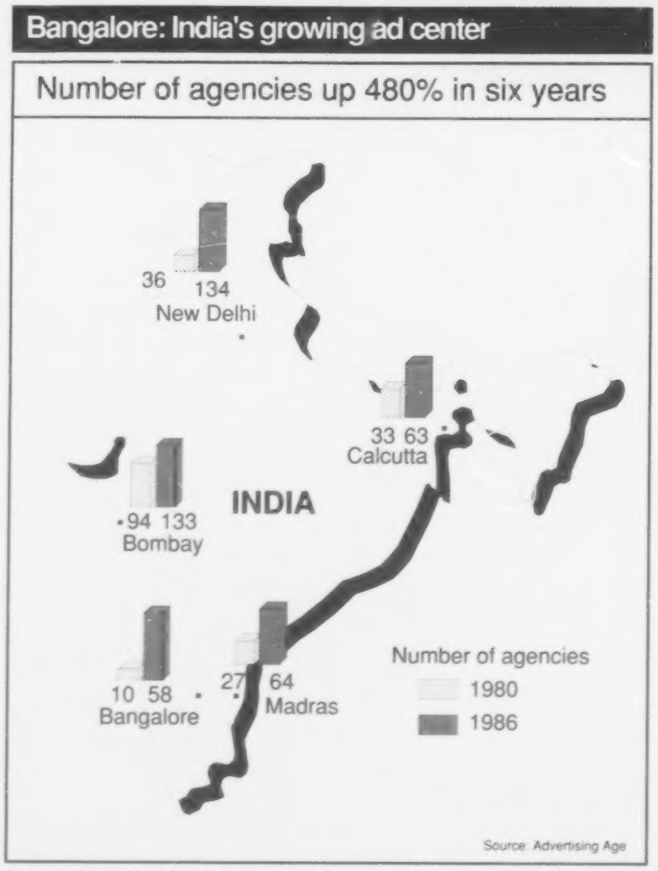
Despite suffering from many of the headaches that beset other Indian cities, such as poor telephone communications and overburdened public transportation, Bangalore's popularity is expected to bring in another 2.5 million inhabitants by the turn of the century, bringing the total to 6 million.

"Bangalore has always been viewed as cosmopolitan," said Ganesh Eashwar, who worked in Madras before opening the Hindustan Thompson office here in the early 1980s.

"I tried for years to get creative talent in Madras, but here it's fairly easy," he said.

But executives said the prosperity cannot last forever. Bunty Peerbhoy is one of those, happy he had enough foresight to enter the market early.

"The market is extremely competitive," he said. "Just about every ad agency has come into Bangalore. There's not enough work for all of them."#



Bangalore: India's growing ad center

Number of agencies up 480% in six years

Source: Advertising Age

Advertising Age graphic: Kevin Brown

Babel of languages towers over ad scene

By SHEILA TEFFT

NEW DELHI—As a young agency executive here more than a decade ago, Nikhil Nehru approved a soft drink ad for distribution in south India.

A native North Indian, Mr. Nehru did not realize the headline was written in one southern language and the text in another.

Mr. Nehru, now head of Hindustan Thompson Associates here, said the only consolation was that all the top officers had seen the ad, too.

In India, advertisers continue to grapple with what may be the world's most diverse babel of languages, with 14 major languages and many more dialects.

Producing ads for such a multilingual audience can boost costs significantly because translators must be familiar with local idioms.

Not long ago, an ad for a company here sent to a south Indian newspaper was returned to Hindustan Thompson with 25 corrections. To avoid future problems, the agency established panels in Bangalore, Calcutta and Madras to review ads before they are released.

The panels will cost the agency as much as $25,000 a year, not an insignificant amount of money here, but Mr. Nehru said the expense is worth avoiding "the financial burden of correcting mistakes."

TV poses special problems, and the language difficulty may have reined in the growth of that medium.

TV spending in India in the last 10 years has risen 809% to about $100 million, while total ad spending has grown 607% to more than $460 million.

In the past, agencies have dubbed ads aired with regional programs in various parts of the country. Now some advertisers have started using more sophisticated methods.

One technique is to do a voice-over in which an unseen commentator advertises the product in various languages. Another method is to reshoot the spot, with actors sometimes speaking in many different languages. Although more effective, the latter technique can increase production costs by 50%.

Christopher D'Rozario, creative director at Trikaya, Bombay, Grey Advertising's affiliate in India, said one answer is to make the message visual. "We try to avoid having people talking," he said.

The most common language in advertising is English, although it is spoken by 10% or less of the country's 750 million people.

"It's a communicator's nightmare," Mr. Nehru said.

Although only 18% of the country's 21,000 publications are written in English, English newspapers and periodicals account for more than 50% of the $350 million in print advertising, the government reported.

Publications in Hindi, the language of between 50% and 75% of the Indian population, attract only 14% of print ad spending.

Many advertisers favor English ads because they target opinion-makers and the small but affluent upper crust of Indian society, ad executives said. In addition, ad professionals contend that writing an ad in English makes a product more attractive.

C. D'Rozario

"The upmarket audience speaks English, and that's a sign of prestige in India," said Ajoy Shourie, head of a small agency here.

However, English's dominance draws criticism from editors of Indian-language publications.

Mr. D'Rozario said that even when residents understand another Indian language or dialect, they may not tune in to ads that are not directed to them in their own language.

Even so, advertisers continue to prefer English ads. In recent years, Reader's Digest, the second-largest publication in India, unsuccessfully tried to publish a version in Hindi.

One success story is India Today, the country's largest-circulation periodical. A weekly news magazine patterned after Time, in late 1986 it launched a Hindi version of its 11-year-old English version.

Ad rates for the English edition are 50% higher than those for the Hindi magazine.

But growing circulation is expected to force the Hindi version's rates higher.#

Slim cigarettes fire up Germany

By DENNIS PHILLIPS

BONN, WEST GERMANY—Tobacco companies are battling for young women smokers, the only segment of the cigarette market not declining here.

Three new brands launched this fall in rapid-fire succession combine king-size length with extra-slim width to appeal to women.

The U.K.-based British American Tobacco beat rivals to the first national slim-line launch here in September with the introduction of Caprice. Hamburg-based Baader, Lang, Behnken handles. In the U.S., BAT offers a similar brand, Capri, through its Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. subsidiary.

Slim Line, from H.F. & Ph. Reemtsma GmbH, Hamburg, was launched nationally only six weeks after starting testing at German airports. Scholz & Friends, Hamburg, handles.

And Martin Brinkmann AG, Rothmans Group's subsidiary in Bremen, rolled out Super Slim nationally in mid-October without testing. Team/BBDO, Hamburg, handles.

"When you already have two competitors, you can't waste time," a Brinkmann spokesman said.

The new cigarettes are about 25% thinner in diameter than standard king-size cigarettes, which are 8 millimeters in diameter and 99 millimeters long. Caprice and Super Slim are 5.4 millimeters in diameter and Slim Line 6.2 millimeters.

The battle surprises even the marketers.

"No one ever expected such competition," a BAT spokesman said. There will be less competition for Capri in that segment in the U.S. "We have a patent for cigarettes up to 6 millimeters [in diameter] in the U.S., so no others can introduce it there," the spokesman said.

In Germany, BAT already leads the women's cigarette market with Kim, which has 1.3% of the entire cigarette market. The new superthin women's cigarettes are expected to take a much smaller share and a 0.5% share for Caprice here "would be a good success," the BAT spokesman said.

"This is a designer product," he said. "It's not to attract new smokers but to win them over from other brands."

Reemtsma's Slim Line almost sold out during the test at airports, a spokesman said, adding that the national introduction has caused "a very positive echo."

Reemtsma has seen its total share of the German market drop almost 2 percentage points to 25.4% during the past two years. Women smokers represent the hope for growth in a market that company Chairman Juergen Peddinghaus predicts will decrease by 2% to annual sales of 115 billion cigarettes by 1989.

Women's brands account for 2% of the total West German cigarette market. The mild brand segment is growing as women are switching over to these brands.

Market leader Philip Morris Cos., whose Marlboro is Germany's leading cigarette with a 23.6% share, is staying out of the superslim cigarette battle. New York-based PM's Virginia Longs brand—the German version of Virginia Slims—perished in test market two years ago.

"First, we don't have the machinery to make them, and, second, we see no necessity for it," a PM spokesman said.

However, PM is not opting out of the women smokers' market. The company launched Tiffany in a sleek black package in Munich in November. The pack design, posters and point-of-purchase material are from Hamburg agency Jeissing & Partner.#

© Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$1.50 a copy; $59 a year

December 14, 1987

NEWSPAPER

3-DIGIT 20C
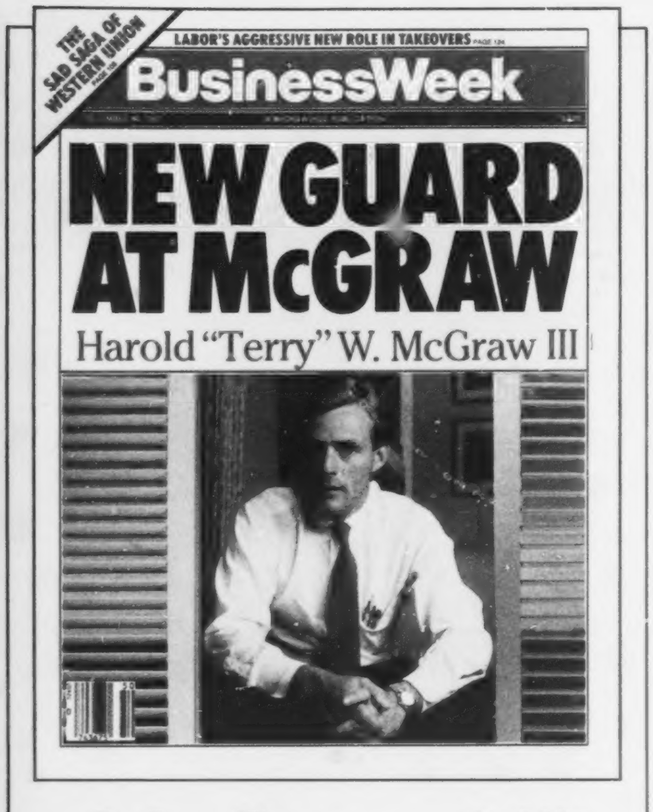
02019C949 AA00 8750 CCMP S62
CONGRESSIONAL INFC SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

C2710-1
12/15/87

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Media
Marketing
See Page 53



THE SAD SAGA OF WESTERN UNION

LABOR'S AGGRESSIVE NEW ROLE IN TAKEOVERS

BusinessWeek

NEW GUARD AT McGRAW

Harold "Terry" W. McGraw III

McGraw-Hill changes tack

By PATRICK REILLY

It has taken Harold "Terry" W. McGraw III, new president of McGraw-Hill Publications Co., less than three months to do what critics say his company had forgotten how to do: acquire new magazines in potentially "hot" growth areas.

Last week, while industry observers wondered whether McGraw-Hill had enough sense to sell off its moribund "smokestack" trade magazines, Mr. McGraw fulfilled his promise to make things "interesting" by scooping up an entire aerospace/defense publishing group from Rupert Murdoch's News America Publishing.

PeopleWorks looks at Harold McGraw III—Page 74

Industry sources estimated the acquisition at more than $50 million for the package, which includes A/C Flyer, Business & Commercial Aviation, a directory and a string of newsletters.

"It's a critical acquisition for our existing aerospace and defense group," said Mr. McGraw, appointed publications president in September. "It gives us channels into market segments we aren't strong in or those we aren't serving at all."

He also made things "interesting" by selling several trade magazines covering declining industries. Mr. McGraw last week sold American Machinist & Automated Manufacturing and 33 Metal Producing to Cleveland-based Penton Publishing for an undisclosed cash sum.

Coal Age, Engineering & Mining Journal and Mining Information Services Publications, a collection of directories and newsletters, were sold to Maclean-Hunter, the Chicago-based U.S. subsidiary of Canadian Maclean-Hunter Ltd.

The buying and selling of titles is important beyond the price they brought. As McGraw-Hill nears its 100th anniversary, Mr. McGraw is tinkering with the company's 3-year-old, controversial strategy of focusing on computer-based information systems and instead is going "back to basics"—magazine start-ups and acquisitions.

While New York-based McGraw-Hill still is an information

(Continued on Page 90)

Gen'l Mills plans new-product blitz

By JULIE LIESSE ERICKSON

General Mills is "batching" 22 new products under its Betty Crocker brand in one of the most sweeping grocery-product introductions in recent years.

The January "grand slam" debut, as General Mills describes it, carries a $35 million ad budget for the first six months. The products include Betty Crocker baking mixes, entrees, side dishes and its first microwave cake mixes.

General Mills' four-flavor line of MicroRave mixes is the Minneapolis-based company's long-expected response to Pillsbury Co., which pioneered the microwave baking market in October 1986 with three flavors of cake mixes.

The Pillsbury line now includes versions of its Streusel Swirl and Bundt brand specialty cakes, plus Microwave Fudge Brownie Mix (AA, Sept. 7) and Frost It Hot! frosting mix.

The January blitz is a significant departure from General Mills' traditional new-product strategy. Simultaneous developments in microwave and shelf-stable technology forced a marketing decision to introduce the 22 items en masse, industry sources explained.

Campbell-Mithun, Minneapolis, and DDB Needham Worldwide, Chicago, handle the new products.

That counters rumors General Mills was turning away from its Midwestern agencies. Such speculation intensified when the company moved the $20 million Fruit Corners snacks account to Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York, from DDB Needham (AA, Dec. 7).

Microwave mixes have added excitement to the flat $726 million baking mix category.

For the fiscal year ended Oct. 9, microwave cake mix sales—mostly from Pillsbury—soared to $34.1 million from $1.2 million the previous year, said Alan Miller, a consultant with Selling Areas-Marketing Inc., New York. During that time, the entire baking mix category posted only a 2.1% gain.

P&G tests low-cal desserts—Page 92

Minneapolis-based Pillsbury introduced its three newest microwave cake mixes—Cinnamon Streusel Swirl, Double Chocolate Supreme and Tunnel of Fudge Bundt, complete with glaze—earlier this month.

Starter kits, including a pan, retail for $2.19; refill mixes sell for $1.59.

That rollout is being supported by TV and print advertising. Young & Rubicam, New York, handles Pillsbury baking mixes and microwave products.

In 1986, Pillsbury spent $7.1 million in measured media advertising for its baking mixes, according to

(Continued on Page 92)

Advertisers protect against shop mergers

Conflict insurance

By JON LAFAYETTE

Major marketers are using a new weapon to defend themselves against agency megamergers.

Some companies are pressing agencies to sign contracts ensuring financial compensation should a merger wreak havoc on the agency-client relationship.

American Cyanamid Co.'s Shulton USA Division and Nissan Motor Corp. USA have moved to put these indemnification clauses in their agency agreements, sources said.

Both clients signed on new agencies this year and both hired Canter, Achenbaum, Associates, a New York-based consultant, to handle their searches. Canter, Achenbaum is known by agencies for driving tough compensation deals.

CAA Chairman Alvin Achenbaum said he recommended that two of his clients include in their contracts with new agencies a clause requiring a payment "in seven figures" if the agency resigns the account because of a merger.

Mr. Achenbaum identified one of the clients as Shulton; sources indicated the other was Nissan.

Mr. Achenbaum said his company included the clause because "clients are saying we want to be protected" from being forced to switch agencies, which can be disruptive, costly and time-consuming.

The new contractual stipulation "emanates from resentment to the

(Continued on Page 92)

Last Minute News

Brokerage ad war looms for '88

New York—Shearson Lehman Bros.' proposed acquisition of E.F. Hutton Group could lead to an all-out marketing war with Merrill Lynch & Co. TV and print ads broke last week that position a combined Shearson/-Hutton company as a giant in financial services. McCann-Erickson, Shearson's agency, created the ads. With its Hutton acquisition, Shearson would manage about $140 billion for clients, compared with about $90 billion managed by Merrill, said Perrin Long, securities industry analyst at Lipper Analytical Service. Merrill has a new ad campaign planned for the Winter Olympics beginning in February, and the company reportedly will drop its "knows no boundaries" theme and substitute a theme based on "trust." Shearson will spend an estimated $25 million on advertising this year, according to

(Continued on Page 8)

Gorby show a hit

Page 94

Florida ad tax, R.I.P.

All states may have learned a lesson

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

It cost the ad industry more than $1 million to help convince Florida to end its tax on advertising and other services, but that could be considered a bargain if other revenue-hungry states learned a lesson from the experience.

Spokesmen for state legislative groups already are talking down the likelihood of "another Florida."

Karen Benker, research director at the National Association of State Budget Officers, Washington, said Florida's bad experience with a service tax will affect the legislative thinking in other states. States will continue looking at service taxes for potential revenue, she said, but advertising and the media may have shown themselves too troublesome to be included.

"There's just too much political capital to be used up fighting [advertising and the media] and I think the politicans would be wary of it," she said.

For now, however, the advertising, broadcasting and print media industries have been given as merry a Christmas present as could be hoped for.

Florida Gov. Bob Martinez Dec. 11 signed legislation repealing the state's entire services tax. The levy had been applied to national as well as in-state advertising.

Even Association of National Advertisers President DeWitt Helm Jr. admitted to surprise that a tax signed into law April 23 would be off the books by Jan. 1.

Mr. Helm said he expects the ANA's executive committee on Dec. 15 to recommend dropping the pending lawsuit against Florida.

Mr. Helm put the ANA's expenses in fighting the tax at more than $500,000—an amount likely matched at the American Advertising Federation, American Association of Advertising Agencies and other businesses that lobbied.#

Chilko raft had leaks, probe finds

By LAURIE FREEMAN

Canadian officials will charge this week that the raft carrying advertising and marketing executives on the Chilko River in British Columbia had leaks and too many people.

The rafting accident killed five U.S. ad executives.

Robert Graham, the regional coroner in British Columbia investigating the Chilko River accident, told ADVERTISING AGE his Dec. 16 report will conclude that "the raft itself had a number of leaks, and it may have been carrying too many people" to ensure proper buoyancy.

Mr. Graham said it is clear from his investigation that the raft carrying 12 people hit a rock in the middle of the Chilko River, "dumping everyone out into water that's like a washing machine."

He said "there's no way to get under control when you're being thrown around by the whirling currents."

Everyone in the raft wore a life jacket, Mr. Graham said, but the jackets would "come right off if a person raises his arms. There are no crotch straps, and those jackets would have come off in the rapids."

Mr. Graham conceded he has not spoken to either the guide or other participants in the accident. Also, one source said the raft was pumped with air five minutes before the crash and that buoyancy was not a problem.

No lawsuits have been filed in connection with the accident, but two law firms—Corboy & Demetrio, Chicago, and Nathanson, Schachter & Thompson, Vancouver, British Columbia—said they have been contacted by several victims' families for possible legal representation.

Earlier reports indicated the investigation could raise questions about liability involving business entertainment (AA, Nov. 23).

Al Wolfe, president of the U.S. division of DDB Needham Worldwide, organized the Chilko River expedition, but said it was not a business trip sponsored by the New York-based agency.

An agency source said DDB Needham often would underwrite trips of this nature, expecting to be reimbursed by the participants afterward.

In this instance, however, the agency did not insist on reimbursement because of the tragic results.

Several surviving participants sent personal checks to the agency to cover their expenses for the weeklong expedition, however.

Stephen Mulhall, lawyer for river guide Ron Thompson, of Williams Lake, British Columbia, said Mr. Thompson "cannot be held liable" for the accident, and added that his client "is not insured, a fact that people might want to know."#

Highlights

NEWS

4 New life for Frank and Ed?
E&J Gallo Winery may keep Frank Bartles and Ed Jaymes as its cooler spokesmen. For now.

6 Chrysler broadens scope
The launch of the new Jeep/Eagle division is not the only way Chrysler is "spreading its wings."

12 7-Eleven plans may get shelved
Southland Corp.'s plan to take the company private may put 7-Eleven ads on hold.

24 Fox running strong
Fox Broadcasting Co. may already have ensured its future as a fourth TV network.

28 Retail agencies hot commodity
Western agencies specializing in retail are racking up impressive new-business gains.

44 Suntory spritzes spirits
Suntory International, Japan's largest liquor company, is expanding its presence in the U.S.

68 A paste with tart taste
Parodontax, a successful "natural" West German toothpaste, hopes U.S. consumers do not sour its success next month when it enters Florida.

86 Say, you want a revolution?
Nike next month breaks a TV spot using a second version of the Beatles' "Revolution."

88 Burnett boosts billings
Leo Burnett Co. announced substantial billings growth for 1987.

89 FTC nominee raises eyebrows
President Reagan's nominee for the Federal Trade Commission has few ad world allies.

INTERNATIONAL

53 Global Media and Marketing
This special section examines how dailies are gaining circulation worldwide, as weekly books drop; an Ad Age survey shows Unilever is the No. 1 ad spender outside the U.S.; and Rupert Murdoch starts a spree of media deals in Australia.

Godfather's Studney Twins: a cheesy duo. Page 32.

Special Report

Marketing to Blacks: Marketers increasingly are targeting promotions to blacks. The key, they say, is to create events that give something back to the community. Starts after Page 47.

Departments

Brady	70
Media People	87
MediaWorks	78, 80
PeopleWorks	74
Photo Review	42
Regional News	68
Viewpoint	16, 18, 20

Vol. 58, No. 53—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $1.50 a copy, $59 a year, $104 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 (313) 446-0494

'New Yorker' ends year on high note

By PATRICK REILLY

NEW YORK—The New Yorker began the year with internal dissension, declining ad pages and flat circulation. It ends 1987 quite differently.

Steven Florio, president-publisher of The New Yorker, said his magazine will finish the year with an increase in ad pages for the first time in six years, with circulation reaching an all-time high and with staff worries quelled after the appointment of Robert Gottlieb as editor of the weekly journal.

The news of increased ad pages is a victory for Mr. Florio but also for S.I. Newhouse Jr.'s Advance Publications, which bought the famous though faded weekly for $168 million in spring 1985.

Though The New Yorker closes ad pages for its 52nd and last issue of 1987 on Dec. 18, Mr. Florio said the total for the year will be at least 2,703 ad pages, a 1% increase from 1986. The business side had been disastrous, with ad pages declining 15% in 1985 and 10% in 1986.

"People were afraid the magazine would lose its editorial voice under a new owner and editor," Mr. Florio said. "If anything, we are better."

Advertisers of luxury items certainly think so. Advertisers such as BMW and Porsche, which had pulled out of the magazine, returned in 1987.

Mr. Florio hired virtually an entire new sales staff, increased subscription mailings to three times a year from one and began the Small Space Program.

The SSP awards mail-order and other back-of-the-book small-space advertisers a free ad for buying three ads at the open rate.

In 1988, the rate base will increase by 4%, from 525,000 to 545,000. Cost per thousand will rise by 5%; a national b&w page goes to $16,295 and a color page will be $25,985.

On the editorial side, under the guidance of Mr. Gottlieb, who succeeded William Shawn, the magazine finally has begun to shake its plodding image.

The newfound success already is bringing changes to The New Yorker's business side. Mr. Florio confirmed that early next year he will step down as publisher, remaining as president. Rebecca Darwin, VP-associate publisher, who has led the magazine's sales staff, will become publisher.

At 34, Ms. Darwin will be the youngest publisher and the first woman publisher at The New Yorker.#

GLOBAL ADVERTISERS

Unilever top spender outside U.S.

By NANCY GIGES

The Anglo-Dutch conglomerate Unilever emerged as the top advertiser in ADVERTISING AGE's first ranking of the top 50 leading advertisers in spending outside the U.S. Unilever invested $598.7 million in 1986 in non-U.S. advertising.

Unilever was followed by Cincinnati-based Procter & Gamble Co. as No. 2; Toyota Motor Corp., Toyota City, Japan, as No. 3; Nestle SA, Vevey, Switzerland, as No. 4, and Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, Mich., as No. 5.

When U.S. spending also is included, the No. 1 spot in 1986 went to P&G due to the company's heavy investment in advertising in the U.S. P&G total worldwide spending was estimated at $1.83 billion, with $399.5 million coming from outside the U.S. Unilever's total worldwide expenditures were estimated at $1.12 billion, putting it in the No. 3 spot worldwide.

On a worldwide basis, Philip Morris Cos. pulled up to the No. 2 spot, also because of its hefty U.S. spending. When U.S. spending is excluded, Philip Morris fell to No. 34. Worldwide, Unilever was trailed by Sears, Roebuck & Co. as No. 4, which is not among the non-U.S. leaders, and General Motors Corp. as No. 5, which ranks No. 14 in non-U.S spending.

Among the top 50, twelve companies do not advertise in the U.S. They are Regie Nationale des Usines Renault, Kao Corp., Henkel KGaA, Lion Corp., Daiei Inc., C&A Brenninkmeyer, Ajinomoto Co., Takashimaya Co., Kirin Brewery Co., House Food Industrial Co., Daimaru Inc. and Barilla Pasta. Eight of these companies are based in Japan.

The top 50 in non-U.S. spending invested $7.3 billion outside the U.S. in 1986. Worldwide, these companies spent $15.1 billion. Twenty-five were headquartered in Japan, eight in the U.S., five in the U.K., four in West Germany, three in Italy, two each in France and the Netherlands and one in Switzerland.

Among industry categories, automotive marketers from five nations led the field with 11 entries accounting for 26.9% of non-U.S ad spending. Five soap and toiletry marketers contributed 20.8% of total non-U.S. spending. Nine electronics marketers contributed 17%. Food, beverage and candy marketers (excluding Philip Morris, whose primary revenue comes from tobacco sales), comprised 16.4%, and retailers, 7.9%.

Japanese and in particular Japan's auto and electronics industries dominate ad spending outside the U.S. Japanese-based companies spent $3.22 billion in non-U.S. advertising, more than double the non-U.S. spending of companies based in the U.S., the second largest representation. Of the Japanese total, autos drew $903.1 million in spending and electronics, $883.6 million.

Information for ADVERTISING AGE's first ranking of the top 50 spenders in non-U.S. advertising was compiled from data supplied on 41 major advertiser countries by AA's international network and sources around the world. (See Where AD AGE got its data, Page 65).

Lists obtained from each country ran from 10 to 100 advertisers long, the length depending on the availability of the data and its reliability. Also, some listings ranked brands rather than advertisers. The editors folded these brand totals into their respective marketers.

The 50 advertisers ranked in this issue undoubtedly advertised in more countries than credited in this report, given the length of the lists obtained from various countries. However, lists from countries that dominate worldwide advertising were lengthy.

Unilever, the most frequently named marketer in the reporting countries, made the top lists in 23 nations. In eight—Indonesia, India, Chile, Austria, the Netherlands, Portugal, South Africa and the U.K.—it was the top spender. The next most geographically dispersed company in ad spending was Nestle SA, reported in 15 countries, followed by Ford Motor Co. and Colgate-Palmolive Co., each in 13 countries.

Several U.S.-based companies ranked as the No. 1 top spender in the countries surveyed: Philip Morris in Hong Kong and in the Arabian Peninsula/Persian Gulf states; Colgate-Palmolive in Colombia and Puerto Rico, and Procter & Gamble in Belgium, Ireland, Italy and in the U.S.

Countries with the biggest ad totals were the U.S., where top spender P&G invested $1.4 billion; West Germany, where leader Siemens AG invested $208.9 million; Japan, where Kao Corp. spent $184.8 million; U.K., where Unilever invested $156.2 million, and Italy, where P&G invested $116.2 million. #

GLOBAL MEDIA and MARKETING

Automotive, electronics and toiletries pace ad spending categories as an increasingly sophisticated media finds more efficient ways to deliver companies' messages to the world

Stanislaw Fernandes/©The Image Bank

Index to report

54 Global media lineup
56 TV nationalism clouds Sky gains
An update on Europe's Sky Channel
58 Top 50 non-U.S. marketers
Unilever ranked No. 1 in 1986 ad spending
60 Plenty of niches for all comers
Profiles of international media execs
62 Tables track top 10 ad spenders around the world
Advertising in 34 regions representing 41 countries
64 Australian media barons' year of changes
Rupert Murdoch sparks $4 billion in deals
65 Where Ad Age got its data

GLOBAL MEDIA

Dailies gain as weekly books slip

By JULIE SKUR HILL

Composite circulation for the world's 16 global publications inched down 0.06% in 1987 over the previous year as their costs to advertisers continued to rise, according to the third annual Global Media survey prepared by ADVERTISING AGE.

Viewed on a regional basis, slight gains in circulation in 1987 from North and South America offset declines from the previous year in Europe, the Middle East/Africa and Asia.

North American circulation grew 0.04% from 1986 to 1987 to 41.7 million, or 74.5% of the 55.98 million total, and South America circulation advanced 2.7% to 1.70 million for 3% of the total. Europe slipped 0.1 percentage point to 16.4% of the total and Asia dropped the same amount to 5.8% while the Middle East/Africa remained static at a 0.3% share.

To qualify for listing, publications must be mass circulated with circulation of more than 50,000, have distribution in three continents with 10% of total circulation abroad and have central offices where advertising is purchased. See Where AD AGE got its data, P. 65.

Only three of the 16 suffered from a drop in circulation in North America. Time, the lead publication of New York-based Time Inc., was especially hard hit. Its North American circulation fell 3.3% from the previous year as the newsweekly's global total dropped 5.5%.

National Geographic, published by the Washington-based National Geographic Society, experienced a decline of 2.4% in North American circulation and a worldwide slump of 2.1%.

The only other publication that recorded a slip in North American circulation was Harvard Business Review, down 1.5%.

Three other publications—Reader's Digest, South and WorldPaper—registered declines in worldwide circulation. Pleasantville, N.Y.-based RD's total circulation declined 0.1% to 27,802,000; London-based South Publications Ltd.'s namesake magazine dropped 11.8%, and Boston-based World Times Inc.'s WorldPaper, dipped by 10.7%.

Among the groupings, the dailies outperformed the rest. Their circulation grew by 6.1%, with gains recorded in all their major world regions. The Financial Times of London led the pack by boosting its North American circulation a whopping 59.6% as total circulation for the U.K.-based publication soared by 23.2%.

All the dailies had higher circulation, ad rates and CPMs except for the FT, which advertisers must appreciate: It is offering higher circulation and a lower CPM in 1988 even with a full-page rate increase of 13.8%. Cost-per-thousand is the page rate divided by circulation that has been reduced to thousands.

Newsweeklies fared the worst. Circulation fell 1.6% for the group, largely influenced by the poor performance of Time. Without Time, group circulation would have risen 3.1% in 1987 over 1986. All newsweeklies have higher CPMs going into 1988, led by the Manchester, England-based Guardian Weekly with a 120% increase to $42.61 in 1988—a leap largely credited to the current strength of the pound sterling against the dollar. From this group, London-based The Economist was the only publication among the 16 listed to report circulation increases in every global region.

Monthlies, comprising 70% of total circulation of the 16, registered a decline of 0.7% in circulation in 1987, largely because of the decline at National Geographic and stagnant results from RD. Scientific American was the only monthly to show a circulation increase in 1987, up 4.1%.

This group, however, is providing advertisers with two lower CPMs for 1988. RD's CPM has dropped 0.4% to $7.87 as its narrow circulation loss in 1987 was matched by a 0.6% decline in the cost of a full-page ad at $218,699. Scientific American's CPM is now at $31.20, down 6.5%, as it carries into 1988 its 1987 full-page rate of $19,450 despite circulation growth.

The most-frequent advertised products listed among the publications were airlines, automobiles, consumer electronics, computers, consumer-oriented high technology companies, financial services and tobacco. Eight publications named AT&T among the top five advertisers, four cited N.V. Philips and three named Singapore Airlines, General Motors and IBM.

Perhaps representing the ultimate measure of advertising's influence is the Guardian Weekly's listing of Amnesty International as one of its top five ad spenders. #

Advertising Age's global media lineup

	Title/ publisher/ headquarters	Major printing plants for international editions	Paid North American circulation (% chg '86-'87)	Paid foreign circulation by region (% chg '86-'87)	Worldwide circulation (% chg '86-'87)	Cost of worldwide B&W pg ($/1988)	Global CPM B&W pg ($/1988)	Top worldwide advertisers in 1987
DAILIES	Financial Times of London Financial Times Ltd. London	London Frankfurt Bellmawr, N.J.	16,683[1] (+59.6)	Europe: 258,259[2] (+18.6) Mid. East/Africa: 3,379[2] (−15.2) Asia/Pacific: 3,637[2] (+19.4) Latin America: 182[2] (−4.7) West Indies: 113[2] (−33.9)	311,885[1] (+23.2)	full: 29,568 qtr.: 7,392	94.80	British Airways British Petroleum Hutchison Whampoa Rank Xerox Siemens
	International Herald Tribune New York Times & Washington Post Neuilly, France	10 cities around the world	3,356 (+14.6)	Europe: 128,260[3] (−1.6) Asia Pacific: 27,268[3] (+4.9) Mid. East/Africa: 7,404[3] (−6.0) Sub-Sahara Afr.: 1,274[3] (−27.4) Other: 1,346[3] (+0.9)	168,908[3] (+0.4)	full: 35,616 qtr.: 8,904	210.86	AT&T Republic National Bank Trade Development Bnk Lufthansa Airlines Air France
	USA Today Gannett Co. Arlington, Va.	Singapore Switzerland Hong Kong[4]	1,600,000[1] (+9.7)	Europe: 26,513[1] (+27.0) Asia: 10,130[1] (+29.7)	1,636,643[1] (+10.0)	full: 41,606 qtr.: 15,959	25.42	AT&T Marlboro Stouffers Hotels Visa Volvo
	Wall Street Journal Dow Jones & Co. New York	Hong Kong Singapore Tokyo Heerlen, Neth. Lucerne	2,026,276[5] (+2.1)	Asian WSJ: 33,505 (+6.0) WSJ/Europe: 38,631 (+9.2)	2,098,412[6] (+2.2)	full: 109,277 qtr.: 27,319	52.08	Shearson Lehman[8] Merrill Lynch Paine Webber Kidder Peabody Morgan Guaranty
WEEKLIES	Business Week McGraw Hill New York	Philadelphia, Pa.	852,367 (+8.1)	Europe: 52,113 (+7.6) Asia: 25,339 (+11.1) Latin America: 16,248 (−1.9) Other: 1,650 (+3.1)	949,661[9] (+8.3)	full: 38,220	40.57	N.V. Philips[8] AT&T Hitachi Siemens Merrill Lynch
	The Economist The Economist Newspaper London	Virginia London Singapore	125,384 (+11.5)	Europe: 138,060 (+1.5) Asia/Pacific: 31,979 (+30.9) Africa: 7,058 (+5.8) Middle East: 8,285 (+41.7) Ctrl. & Latin Am.: 5,713 (+14.6)	316,479 (+8.9)	full: 7,200[7]	22.75[7]	Singapore Airlines British Aerospace Chemical Bank AT&T Fujitsu
	Guardian Weekly Guardian Newspapers Ltd. Manchester	Montreal Lincoln (U.K.)	25,051 (+2.0)	Europe: 18,320 (−0.3) Asia/Pacific: 13,432 (+2.1) Middle East/Africa: 5,701 (−2.0) Latin America: 1,430 (+4.8) Other: 485 (+6.6)	64,419 (+1.1)	full: 2,745	42.61	Tyndall Managers Amnesty International Nat. West W.T. Fry Standard Chartered Bnk
	Newsweek Newsweek Ltd. New York	Zurich Tokyo Hong Kong Daytona Beach	3,181,187 (+3.0)	Atlantic: 306,189 (−4.2) Latin America: 55,219 (+0.3) Asia: 201,213 (−1.0) So. Pacific: 121,000[10] (N/A) Nihon Ban: 121,297[11] (N/A)	3,986,105 (+1.6)	full: 91,525[7]	22.96[7]	Ruperts International[8] Singapore Airlines Rolex N.V. Philips B.A.T.
	Time Time Inc. Publications New York	Toronto Miami Weert, Neth. Singapore Hong Kong	5,033,558 (−3.3)	Atlantic: 526,897 (−1.6) Asia: 235,485 (−12.6) Latin America: 97,442 (+7.7)	5,893,382 (−5.5)	full: 131,175	22.26	Rothmans Group of Cos. Singapore Airlines Philip Morris IBM Rolex
MONTHLIES	National Geographic Nat'l Geographic Society Washington DC	Corinth, Miss.	9,323,891 (−2.4)	Atlantic: 689,557 (+1.3) Pacific: 357,202 (−4.7) Latin America: 94,333 (+0.1)	10,461,337[9] (−2.1)	full: 127,720	12.42	Canon[8] Iberia Airlines Olympus Lufthansa Airlines Minolta
	Reader's Digest Reader's Digest Assn. Pleasantville, NY	24 cities around the world	18,109,000 (0.0)	Atlantic: 6,863,000 (−1.0) Pacific: 1,658,000 (0.0) Latin America: 1,172,000 (+3.9)	27,802,000 (−0.1)	full: 218,699[7]	7.87[7]	Colgate-Palmolive[8] Franklin Mint Nestle Nissan Motor Co. Toyota
	Scientific American Scientific American Inc. New York	Old Saybrook, Ct.	530,668 (+7.0)	Europe: 57,674 (+4.7) Asia/Pacific: 20,128 (−5.5) Ctrl. & S. Am.: 4,976 (−11.8) Africa: 1,851 (−4.5) Middle East: 1,564 (+2.8)	606,826 (+4.1)	full: 19,450	31.20	McDonnell Douglas Hughes Aircraft General Motors AT&T Hitachi
	South South Publications Ltd. London	London Singapore	6,150 (+0.9)	Africa/Mid East: 32,082 (−6.8) Asia/Pacific: 14,809 (−35.4) Europe: 11,648 (+3.4) Latin America: 12,337 (−2.0)	77,026 (−11.8)	full: 3,067[7]	39.82	British Aerospace Babcock & Wilcox N.V. Philips Hewlett-Packard Isuzu
OTHER	WorldPaper[12] World Times Inc. Boston	20 countries around the world	N/A[13]	Latin America: 239,000 (−3.6) Asia: 347,500 (+104.4) Middle East: 69,500 (−18.2)	656,000 (−10.7)	full: 27,522 qtr.: 9,632	42.00	AT&T Hertz American Express IBM
	Fortune Time Inc. Publications New York	Zurich	666,972 (+4.0)	Europe: 61,012 (+10.9) Asia: 36,248 (−5.8) Other: 9,759 (−5.5)	771,988 (+3.6)	full: 31,180	41.30	AT&T IBM General Motors GTE Ford Motor Co.
	Harvard Business Review Harvard Business Review Boston	Glasgow, Ky.	189,638 (−1.5)	Europe: 14,484 (+48.1) Asia/Pacific: 8,652 (+28.1) Ctrl. & S. America: 3,940 (+53.0) Mid. East/Africa: 3,092 (+23.1) Other: 1,208 (+24.2)	220,951 (+2.7)	full: 7,200[7]	32.59	AT&T Morgan Stanley & Co. General Motors Digital Equipment NV Philips

Source: ADVERTISING AGE.

Notes: [1] As of September, 1987. [2] Jan. to June, 1987. [3] Total worldwide circulation Jan.-Dec. 1986. Comparable 1985 figure: 168,189. [4] Plant will start operation April, 1988. [5] As of March 1987. [6] Combines North American figures from March and international figures from June. [7] Page cost is for 1987. [8] All advertisers in category are for non-U.S. editions. [9] Worldwide total exceeds regional total because of different audit dates. [10] April-Dec. 1986 ABC. [11] Japanese language edition of Newsweek. Figure for Jan.-Dec., 1986 Japan Audit Bureau of Circulation. [12] Distributed as a newspaper supplement. [13] Not distributed in North America.

Compiled by Ilse Cermak

TV nationalism clouds Sky gains

By LAUREL WENTZ

LONDON—Five years after the launch of Sky Channel, Rupert Murdoch's pan-European satellite TV channel, industry observers are having doubts about whether TV channels aimed at Western Europe are the best way to capture European audiences and ad revenues.

Sky and U.K.-based ITV Co.'s Super Channel, the two entertainment English-language channels beamed across Europe by satellite, are experimenting with Dutch-and-German-language programming to target specific groups.

The main incentive to the growth of pan-European TV have been the severely limited program choices and advertising opportunities on domestic channels controlled in most of Europe by state broadcasting monopolies. European viewers watch only 2½ hours of TV a day on average compared with 4½ hours daily in the U.S.

But the local TV picture is changing fast. New channels are planned for almost every country in Europe as governments move to preserve cultural values and ad money from an invasion of foreign channels.

In France, this year's start-up of two new channels and the sell-off of one of the three state-owned national channels has changed a deficit of airtime for advertisers to a surplus almost overnight. Seven other countries are planning at least nine new channels by 1990.

A former Sky Channel executive said, "I could see we acted as a catalyst for change [at Sky], and I believe there will be a vast explosion in European ad expenditures, but I agree the biggest growth will be in national channels."

The next big step in European broadcasting is direct broadcast by high-power satellite, or DBS, to individual home dishes. This will target specific countries or language groups even though the satellites will cover most of Europe.

Europe's first DBS satellite, was launched by West Germany last month, but one of the two power-generating solar panels is jammed. If the engineers are unable to fix it soon, only two of the four channels will be usable. West Germany is also being widely criticized for designing TV-SAT 1 to a transmission standard that West German TV sets cannot pick up without a new part that is not available.

Next year France and Scandinavia will send up their DBS satellites devoted to French and Scandinavian programming. The U.K. will follow in 1989 with three new channels for British viewers.

Saatchi & Saatchi predicts TV ad spending in Europe will reach $7.4 billion a year, a 58% increase from $4.7 billion in 1985. So far the satellite TV channels have managed to capture only $25 million of that ad spending. Sky, with an estimated $13 million in ad revenues last year, takes in the biggest slice, but still managed to double its losses to $10.3 million last year.

"A critical question obviously concerns the extent to which the satellite channels are going to share in this market explosion," said Patrick Cox, who resigned last month as ceo and deputy chairman of Sky Channel. Speaking at a TV conference in Luxembourg the week before he quit, he said, "There seems to be little doubt now about the role of the 'national' channels like [new German-language satellite-delivered] Sat1 and RTL Plus, but questions remain concerning the pan-European channels like Sky, Super and Music Television. The advertising profession is now fully aware of the difficulties involved in developing pan-European campaigns, but the fact remains that the market is there and is growing at over 25% a year."

In addition to the problem of persuading advertisers to use satellite channels, conflicts arise with individual countries over pan-European advertising.

The Finnish government has taken McDonald's Corp. to court over commercials aired on Sky last year for a promotion offering customers a toy plastic boat free with hamburger purchase. The Finns say the spots offered children boats, not hamburgers, and so contravened strict national promotion rules.

Rupert Murdoch

The local McDonald's franchisee claims it had no control over the spots, booked through McDonald's U.K. ad agency Leo Burnett Ltd. at Sky's head office in London. (The satellite channel's policy is to take commercials that are acceptable in the country in which the broadcast originates, not necessarily in all the markets the channel airs).

In another dispute, two Dutch advertising groups have taken the Dutch government to an EEC tribunal in Luxembourg over attempts to protect the local advertising market from pan-European satellite TV stations.

The Dutch government won't allow the foreign channels to broadcast spots aimed at the Dutch market which accounts for one-third of Sky and Super Channel's 10 million European cable homes. Despite the huge Dutch audience, spots cannot be dubbed or subtitled in Dutch or advertise products available only in the Netherlands. Two Dutch industry groups support an open market for pan-European TV and are charging the Dutch government with violating the spirit of EEC trade regulations.

Super Channel won permission from the Ministry for Culture to air a popular Dutch sitcom with English subtitles from Nov. 19 by promising not to run any commercials during or around the program. The show, a comedy series called "Say Ah" about a woman doctor and her two children, is Super Channel's first attempt to appeal to a local rather than a pan-European audience. A company spokeswoman said Super Channel plans to try German-language programming in March. Sky Channel is also experimenting with Dutch and German programming. ■

SOLID FOUNDATIONS.

A superior product. Excellent creative. And a substantial budget. As an advertiser, what more could you ask for?

Except, perhaps, some reassurance that the foundation of your strategy is not built on sand.

Constructing a media strategy is in many ways like building a modern office tower. Both stand or fall on the quality of their foundations.

Without this one simple assurance, all your efforts are wasted building castles in the air.

In Asia only one publication guarantees you the solid bedrock you need; The Far Eastern Economic Review.

Quite simply the Review is unique. As Asia's most highly regarded publication, the Review is read by the greatest single concentration of the regions' most influential people.

Week after week it commands their attention and helps guide their decisions.

If this audience matters to your business, the Review is, without doubt, the solid foundation you need.

That's the kind of strength you can build on.

FarEasternEconomic REVIEW

For more information, write or call Joan Barry or Nancy Gollinger in New York, or Galen Knox in Los Angeles.

Dow Jones International Marketing Services Inc., 420 Lexington Avenue, New York, NY 10170. Tel (212) 808 6618

Advertising Age's top 50 non-U.S. marketers

Unilever ranked No. 1 by ad spending in 1986

Rank	Advertiser	Headquarters	Primary business	Countries in which spending was reported	Non-U.S. spending[1]	U.S. spending[1]	World-wide rank	World-wide spending[1]	Non-U.S. as % of w'wide[1]
1	Unilever NV & PLC	Rotterdam/London	Soaps, toiletries, food	U.K., Spain, Ireland, Puerto Rico, South Africa, Italy, Canada, Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Netherlands, Portugal, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Australia, Hong Kong, New Zealand, India, Indonesia, Malaysia.	$598,679	$517,746	3	$1,116,425	53.4
2	Procter & Gamble Co.	Cincinnati	Soaps, toiletries, food, healthcare	U.K., Ireland, Puerto Rico, Italy, Canada, Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Chile, Mexico, Philippines	399,514	1,435,454	1	1,834,968	21.8
3	Toyota Motor Corp.	Toyota City, Japan	Automotive	Japan, South Africa, Canada, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Australia, Hong Kong, Arabia, Indonesia, Malaysia	248,239	208,877	23	457,116	54.2
4	Nestle SA	Vevey, Switzerland	Food	U.K., Spain, Italy, Canada, France, Germany, Portugal, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Australia, Hong Kong, Philippines	244,937	305,451	14	550,388	44.5
5	Ford Motor Co.	Dearborn, Mich.	Automotive	U.K., Spain, Ireland, South Africa, Italy, Canada, Belgium, Finland, France, Germany, Argentina, Australia, Taiwan	243,287	648,500	7	891,787	26.9
6	Nissan Motor Co. Ltd.	Tokyo	Automotive	Japan, U.K., South Africa, Canada, Switzerland, Australia, Arabia	215,998	180,136	29	396,134	54.5
7	Siemens	Munich	Electronics	Germany	208,936	2,980	46	211,915	98.6
8	Mars Inc.	McLean, Va.	Food	U.K., Ireland, Puerto Rico, Canada, Belgium, Germany, Netherlands, Switzerlands, Australia	204,226	312,607	16	516,833	39.5
9	Renault	Paris	Automotive	U.K., Spain, Italy, Canada, France, Portugal, Argentina	196,139	N/A[2]	51	196,139	100.0
10	Honda Motor Co. Ltd.	Tokyo	Automotive	Japan, Canada, Hong Kong	190,253	205,082	30	395,335	48.1
11	Fiat SpA	Turin, Italy	Automotive	U.K., Ireland, Italy, France, Germany	189,722	546	53	190,268	99.7
12	Kao Corp.	Tokyo	Soaps, cleaners	Japan	184,758	0	56	184,758	100.0
13	Matsushita Electric	Osaka, Japan	Electronics	Japan, Canada, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Malaysia, Singapore	175,046	79,809	41	254,854	68.5
14	General Motors Corp.	Detroit	Automotive	U.K., Spain, South Africa, Canada, France, Germany, Switzerland, Brazil, Australia	171,929	839,000	5	1,010,929	16.2
15	Henkel	Duesseldorf	Cleaners	Spain, Italy, Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Netherlands	166,589	0	64	166,589	100.0
16	Colgate-Palmolive	New York	Soaps, toiletries	Puerto Rica, South Africa, Italy, Austria, France, Germany, Portugal, Colombia, Australia, Hong Kong, Philippines, India, Malaysia	164,464	237,867	28	402,331	40.2
17	Mazda Motor Corp.	Hiroshima	Automotive	Japan, Canada	160,534	156,846	34	317,380	50.6
18	Hitachi Ltd.	Tokyo	Electronics	Japan, Hong Kong	159,787	9,169	60	168,956	94.6
19	Volkswagen AG	Wolfsburg, W. Germany	Automotive	U.K., Spain, South Africa, Canada, France, Germany, Switzerland, Argentina, Brazil	150,806	152,211	36	303,017	49.8
20	NEC Corp.	Tokyo	Electronics	Japan	148,425	25,090	57	173,515	85.5
21	Sony Corp.	Tokyo	Electronics	Japan, Hong Kong	143,601	44,344	54	187,946	76.4
22	Toshiba Corp.	Tokyo	Electronics	Japan, Hong Kong	142,700	21,942	66	164,642	86.7
23	Lion Corp.	Tokyo	Soaps, toiletries	Japan	140,267	0	73	140,267	100.0
24	Suntory Co.	Tokyo	Alcoholic beverages	Japan	131,602	1,397	77	132,999	98.9
25	Shiseido Co. Ltd.	Tokyo	Cosmetics	Japan, Taiwan	126,400	2,104	85	128,503	98.4
26	British Government	London	Government	U.K.	119,414	[illegible],018	88	124,432	96.0
27	Sharp Corp.	Osaka, Japan	Electronics	Japan	114,082	4,590	84	128,672	88.7
28	Kellogg Co.	Battle Creek, Mich.	Food	U.K., Ireland, Canada, Mexico, Australia	111,614	374,142	20	485,755	23.0
29	Coca-Cola Co.	Atlanta	Soft drinks, food	U.K., Spain, Ireland, Italy, Canada, Austria, Argentina, Chile, Australia, Hong Kong	111,019	370,379	21	481,398	23.1
30	Daiei Inc.	Kobe, Japan	Retail	Japan	106,444	0	109	106,444	100.0
31	Fuji Photo Film Co.	Tokyo	Photography	Japan	101,615	10,623	100	112,238	90.5
32	Peugeot	Paris	Automotive	U.K., Spain, Belgium, France	100,054	6,907	108	106,962	93.5
33	C&A Brenninkmeyer	Amsterdam	Retail	Germany	95,596	0	118	95,596	100.0
34	Philip Morris Cos.	New York	Tobacco, food	U.K., Spain, Canada, Argentina, Brazil, Australia, Hong Kong, Philippines, Arabia	94,412	1,364,467	2	1,458,878	6.5
35	Ajinomoto Co.	Tokyo	Food	Japan	90,360	0	122	90,360	100.0
36	Suzuki Motor Co.	Hamanagun, Japan	Automotive	Japan, Indonesia	88,095	20,920	105	109,015	80.8
37	Takashimaya Co.	Osaka, Japan	Retail	Japan	81,862	0	133	81,862	100.0
38	Hattori Seiko Corp.	Tokyo	Watches, clocks	Japan, Hong Kong, Arabia	80,633	60,912	72	141,545	57.0
39	Kirin Brewery Co.	Tokyo	Alcoholic beverages	Japan	80,460	0	135	80,460	100.0
40	Fujitsu Ltd.	Tokyo	Electronics	Japan	79,762	1,648	134	81,410	98.0
41	Mitsukoshi Ltd.	Tokyo	Retail	Japan	78,926	30	136	78,956	100.0
42	Cadbury Schweppes	London	Candy, soft drinks	U.K., Spain, Ireland, Canada, Australia	78,765	59,879	74	138,644	56.8
43	House Food Ind. Co.	Osaka, Japan	Food	Japan	78,753	0	138	78,753	100.0
44	Ferrero	Perugia, Italy	Candy	Germany, Italy	75,335	8,950	130	84,285	100.0
45	Daimaru Inc.	Osaka, Japan	Retail	Japan	71,980	0	143	71,980	100.0
46	Hanson Trust PLC	London	Retail, food	U.K.	66,412	20,593	126	87,005	76.3
47	Guinness	London	Alcoholic beverages	U.K., Ireland, Malaysia, Singapore	65,693	11,095	139	76,788	85.3
48	Barilla Pasta	Parma, Italy	Food	Italy	64,945	0	164	64,945	100.0
49	Rowntree Mackintosh	York, U.K.	Retail, food	U.K., Ireland, Canada	64,441	109	167	64,550	99.8
50	NV Philips	Eindhoven, Netherlands	Electronics	Spain, France, Netherlands, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Hong Kong, Malaysia	63,872	79,377	71	143,249	44.1

Source: ADVERTISING AGE. See Where AA got its data, Page 65. Notes: [1] Dollars are in thousands. [2] In 1986 Renault was marketed in the U.S. by American Motors Corp. * indicates that U.S. spending figures include measured media only as reported by BAR/LNA reports. All other U.S. spending figures include estimated unmeasured expenditures. Worldwide expenditures include only those countries listed in the column headed "Countries in which spending was reported."

Compiled by Ilse Cermak and Kevin Brown

Plenty of niches for all comers

'The potential is not slowing down'

To John Eger, a New York-based international communications attorney, the future of global broadcasting is clear: There will be three satellites "each high-powered with a DBS [direct broadcast satellite] distribution system and each [to] cover a third of the Earth."

Arnie Adler

John Eger

Regional systems—proposed or operational—in Japan, Ireland, the U.K. and France—will be the first step toward these "mega-media" enterprises of the future. Unfortunately, the present is clouded. There are many regulatory barriers that may hinder development, he says.

Mr. Eger sharpened his skills as one of the country's leading experts on international broadcasting while serving in the Nixon White House as telecommunications adviser and as head of the White House Office of Telecommunications. He had been senior VP of CBS Worldwide Enterprises from 1981 until last year.

Mr. Eger says: "The big barrier isn't money; it isn't programming, and it isn't technology. While we don't have satellite interconnects or the regional systems yet, they're coming. The big question mark is really one of law and policy." These laws "stand like a picket fence from one nation to another and inhibit the free flow of information."

"If we want to see something accomplished in our time, advertisers all over the world and those companies looking to develop media must have an alliance for world communications.

"Mega-marketers are going to have to employ the tools of power, public relations and politics to fight these barriers," Mr. Eger said.#

—Verne Gay

Humayun Gauhar, publisher and president of South, a London-based monthly magazine focusing on the Third World, said, "I believe the influence of print media will come down a bit with the globalization of television, which I believe cannot be stopped. Print media will have to be more analytical and in-depth. Publications that just cover news will have more trouble than those with a more analytical basis.

Humayun Gauhar

"In the past people were very keen to read news from the powerful Western countries like France and the United States. They thought it was the center of the world and they were keen to know how they were perceived. Now that is less so. In the Third World—which is ¾ of the world—the younger generation born after independence has grown up."

Global publications will have to adapt to writing about what interests these people, recognizing that they might want to read about field hockey rather than baseball, he said.

"There will be tremendous difficulty especially in countries with dictatorships. I think a cultural revolution will take place. It will probably lead to a political revolution. If it does, it's their own fault. They didn't allow their own media to develop to combat it and win credibility."

Mr. Gauhar says he considered taking South weekly but now thinks the magazine's future lies in foreign-language editions. A Chinese-language version of South will begin publication next June in a joint-venture with the Xinhua news agency in China. He says he expects Spanish and Arabic editions to follow. Pakistan-born Mr. Gauhar and his father started South in 1980.#

—Laurel Wentz

Robert Maxwell, the British media tycoon who heads Maxwell Communication Corp., London, as chairman, likens the globalization of information and communication to what has happened to the oil industry since World War II.

Robert Maxwell

Mr. Maxwell said recently before the International Federation of Newspaper publishers, "Information is as vital and as important a commodity as energy. Just as several hundred oil companies of the pre-war period have become compressed into seven multinational giants, so the same will happen in information and communication."

He predicts there will be 10 big global corporations by 2000 dealing in all forms of communications. His company will be one of them, he says. "The new world of order of information throws further responsibilities not only on us as newspaper publishers, but on all those who see the future as I do, in the comprehensive integration of communications and information into globally strategic corporations."#

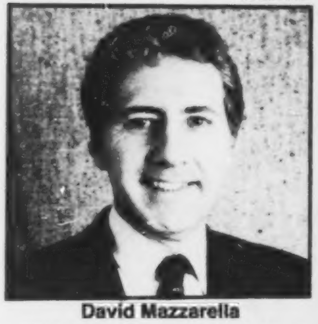
—Nancy Giges

David Mazzarella, New York-based president of Gannett International, is quite optimistic about the future of global publications, especially his own—USA Today International.

While no one can tell what the future will bring for sure, precedent is very encouraging, he noted. "And the global potential is not slowing down," he added.

Mr. Mazzarella pointed out that when a new English-language publication has entered the international marketplace, it has tended to do well without hurting other publications. That was the case with the Financial Times European edition when the Wall Street Journal later added its European edition, he noted.

Arnie Adler



David Mazzarella

USA Today International is in an even better position because it has its own distinctive niche, he says, while the market is still expanding. "The fact is there is a good number of people who will read an English-language publication [about life in America while overseas]. We also have the distinction of having a newspaper, which is very close to its natural parent. It's a compact version of the U.S. edition, not a newspaper overloaded with international and economic news."#

—Nancy Giges

William Rukeyser, leaving Time Inc. as director of international business development and who will be editor in chief of Whittle Communications in 1988, says, "Adapting successful American publications to markets overseas has a big future. Advertisers are looking for these types of publications."

In February, New York-based Time Inc. and French publishing giant Hachette-Filipacchi will begin publishing a monthly French-language edition of Fortune.

West German sources say Time Inc. is talking with publisher Gruner & Jahr to publish a German-language version of Fortune.

Mr. Rukeyser said, "We are having conversations with a number of large publishers outside the U.S.," for similar joint ventures for several of the Time Inc. titles.

Arnie Adler

William Rukeyser

"Globally, American-based magazines in the English language are huge and will remain huge," he says. Time Inc. also publishes a Japanese-language edition of Money and a Fortune-style magazine, called President in Japan.#

—Julie Skur Hill

There's no Wall Street in Japan

···and there are no business newspapers in the Wall Street tradition.

That's why 64.2% of bank executives and 61.0% of international business managers* satisfy their hunger for business news by reading the Asahi Shimbun.

Japan's leading business news newspaper

Asahi Shimbun

Tokyo, Japan

Asahi Shimbun New York Business Bureau, c/o Powers International, Inc
271 Madison Avenue, Suite 708, New York, N.Y. 10016 U.S.A
Tel.: (212) 867-9582 Telex: 236514 JBP UR

Source: Information Development Institute, 1986

*Of banks and companies listed on the Tokyo Stock Exchange.

Tables track top 10 ad spenders around the globe

Ranked in the following 34 tables are the largest advertisers in the world, representing spending in 41 countries.

Marketers ranked in the Arabian Peninsula's top ten represent ad dollars spent in Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman and Jordan. Belgium's top ten includes ad spending in Luxembourg.

Sources and exchange rates are listed beneath tables. For more information on this report, see Where AD AGE got its data, Page 65.

AFRICA

South Africa

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Unilever	9,860	8,999
O.K. Bazaars	8,121	7,813
Checkers	7,143	3,838
Pick & Pay	7,059	6,443
S.A. Breweries	6,166	5,491
Toyota Motor Corp.	6,157	6,085
United Tobacco S.A.	4,498	3,680
Oudemeester	3,583	4,027
SFW	3,527	3,603
Ford Motor Co.	3,469	3,722

Source: Market Research Africa Adindex. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include measured media only. Conversion rate: 0.4284 dollars to the Rand.

ASIA

Arabian Peninsula

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Philip Morris Cos.	6,652	N/A
Rothmans International	3,567	N/A
Toyota Motor Corp.	3,454	N/A
Nissan Motor Co. Ltd.	3,401	N/A
Hattori Seiko Corp.	1,773	N/A
Rado	1,557	N/A
Loews Corp.	1,447	N/A

Source: Pan Arab Research Centre, Kuwait. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Includes Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman and Jordan for year-ending April 1986.

Hong Kong

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Philip Morris Cos.	7,065	N/A
Hong Tai Travel	4,634	N/A
Wing On Group	4,497	N/A
Vita Drinks	3,835	N/A
Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.	3,643	N/A
Loews Corp.	3,509	N/A
Morning Star Travel	3,371	N/A
RJR Nabisco	3,132	N/A
Hattori-Seiko Co. Ltd.	3,119	N/A
Mild Seven	2,813	N/A

Source: Hong Kong Abex, a subsidiary of AGB McNair. Note: Dollars are in thousands.

India

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Unilever	16,809	12,300
Colgate-Palmolive Co.	4,137	3,952
McDowell & Co. Ltd.	3,893	2,378
Peico Electronics & Electricals	3,561	2,663
ITC Ltd.	3,236	2,826
Glaxo Laboratories	2,758	1,948
Escorts Ltd.	2,701	2,374
Bombay Dyeing Ltd.	2,646	1,974
Bata India Ltd.	2,221	1,474
Tata Oils Mills	2,173	1,401

Source: Economic Times Research Bureau, New Delhi. Notes: Dollars are in thousands for years-ending March 1986 and 1985. Conversion rate: 0.0805 dollars to the Rupee.

Indonesia

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Unilever	3,129	N/A
Suzuki Motor Co.	1,473	N/A
Toyota Motor Corp.	1,388	N/A
Daihatsu Cars	1,169	N/A
Lux Soap	774	N/A
Baygon Insecticide	765	N/A
Citra Lotion	740	N/A
Dancow Milk Powder	732	N/A

Source: Advertising Age. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.000841 dollars to the Rupiah.

Japan

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Kao Corp.	184,758	177,311
Honda Motor Co. Ltd.	184,470	149,006
Toyota Motor Corp.	173,428	175,890
Nissan Motor Co. Ltd.	163,136	158,077
Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.	160,211	158,939
Hitachi Ltd.	158,117	152,328
Mazda Motor Corp.	155,584	120,795
NEC Corp.	148,425	115,596
Sony Corp.	142,471	106,960
Toshiba Corp.	140,741	151,988

Source: MOF Portfolio Reports, Tokyo. Notes: Dollars are in thousands for years-ending March 1986 and 1985. Figures do not include foreign company ad spending. Conversion rate: 0.005769 dollars to the Yen.

Malaysia

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Rothmans International	14,819	7,623
Malaysian Tobacco Co.	11,334	8,869
Nupro	7,516	8,031
Unilever	4,514	3,085
Colgate-Palmolive	4,325	3,352
RJR/Nabisco	3,463	3,641
Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.	1,825	3,324
Ederan Otomobil Nasional Sdn. Bhd.	1,528	849
Guinness	1,289	N/A
Toyota Motor Corp.	1,229	2,304

Source: Survey Research Malaysia. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include TV, radio, newspaper, magazine and video. Conversion rate: 0.433 dollars to the Mdollar.

New Zealand

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
FTC Farmers	4,839	N/A
F.W. Woolworth Co.	3,538	N/A
New World Supermarkets	3,330	N/A
Smith & Brown	1,680	N/A
McDonald's Corp.	1,349	N/A
Four Square	1,329	N/A
United Building Society	1,275	N/A
NZ Listener	1,240	N/A
Foodtown	1,194	N/A
PepsiCo Inc.	1,139	N/A

Source: Hunter: AGB Ltd., Auckland. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include TV and print only. Conversion rate: 0.5252 dollars to the NZdollar.

Philippines

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
San Mig[illegible]orp.	767	N/A
Nestle S[illegible]	639	N/A
Colgate-Palmolive Co.	613	N/A
Philippine Refining	613	N/A
Procter & Gamble Co.	409	N/A
California Manufacturing	153	N/A
Warner-Lambert Co.	102	N/A
Philip Morris Cos.	77	N/A
Johnson & Johnson	61	N/A
RJR Nabisco	46	N/A

Source: J. Walter Thompson Co., Manila. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include measured and unmeasured media. Conversion rate: 0.0511 dollars to the Peso.

Singapore

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Yaohan Stores	1,623	N/A
American Express Co.	1,577	N/A
McDonald's Corp.	1,438	N/A
PepsiCo Inc.	1,113	N/A
Federal Publication	1,020	N/A
Metro Stores	881	N/A
Singapore International Airlines	881	N/A
Guinness	835	N/A
Citicorp	696	N/A
Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.	696	N/A

Source: Survey Research Singapore Ltd. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.4638 dollars to the Sdollar.

South Korea

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Goldstar & Lucky Ltd.	29,232	23,446
Samsung Electronics & Jeil Sugar	27,932	25,981
Daewoo Electronics & Motors	17,883	12,810
Pacific Chemical	14,800	12,934
Lotte Confectionary	8,794	6,676
Nhong Shim	8,619	8,817
Yuhan Corp.	7,785	7,134
Samyang Foods	7,743	5,916
Dong-A Pharmaceuticals	7,544	6,834
Hai-Tai Confectionary	7,483	6,874

Source: Korea First Advertising. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.001131 dollars to the Won.

Taiwan

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
China Airlines	8,967	N/A
Peiuf Enterprises	8,533	N/A
President Enterprises Corp.	6,693	N/A
Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.	5,663	N/A
Anping Distributors Ltd.	4,376	N/A
Weichuan Foods Corp.	3,919	N/A
Sanyo Electric Co. Ltd.	3,802	N/A
Taiwan Kao Corp.	3,500	N/A
Hey-Song Corp.	3,383	N/A
Formosa United Industrial Corp.	3,349	N/A

Source: Advertising Age. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Figures were reported in U.S. dollars.

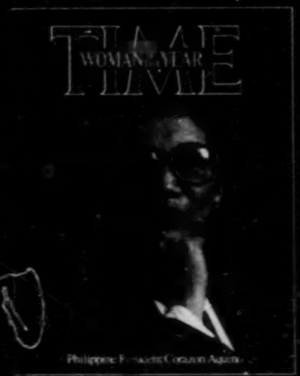
AUSTRALIA

Australia

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
G.J. Coles & Co. Ltd.	63,813	53,382
Mars Inc.	27,067	21,932
Unilever	19,441	17,094
Australian Gov't	18,936	11,704
Telecom Australia	17,445	13,478
F.W. Woolworth Co.	15,842	16,292
Cadbury Schweppes PLC	14,797	16,311
Reckitt & Colman PLC	14,480	12,926
Nissan Motor Co. Ltd.	12,969	10,085
Amatil Ltd.	12,861	12,478

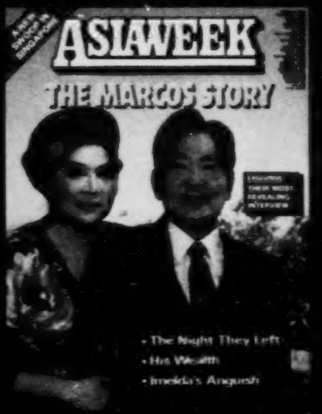
Source: Tart Research, Brookvale, Australia. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include all measured media. Conversion rate: 0.6769 dollars to the Adollar.

OUR BUSINESS IS EXPA



The most widely read newsmagazine in the world. The international editions of TIME circulate in 191 countries.

Circulation: 1,300,000



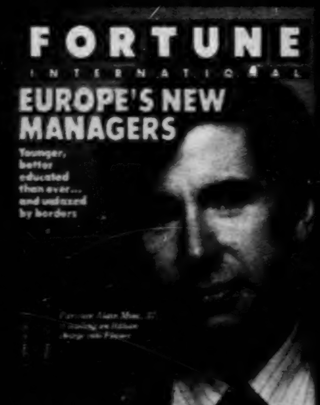
ASIAWEEK, the first pan-regional Asian newsweekly, joined the Time Inc. family of magazines in 1985.

Circulation: 65,000

Money
JAPAN
株テク必勝法 PART2
変額保険大研究

Prepared especially for the Japanese market, MONEY Japan is published with the Seibu Saison Group.

Circulation: 370,000



FORTUNE
INTERNATIONAL
EUROPE'S NEW MANAGERS
Younger, better educated than ever... and unfazed by borders

FORTUNE International enjoys the largest circulation outside the U.S. of any American business publication.

Circulation: 100,000

EUROPE

Austria

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Unilever	9,383	17,541
Henkel	7,301	7,484
Creditanstalt Bankverein	3,956	2,726
Drogeriemarkt	3,754	3,022
Procter & Gamble Co.	3,527	4,638
Kastner & Orhler	3,515	2,461
BAWAG	3,269	3,048
Kika Moebelhandel	2,934	2,751
Billa Konzern	2,814	2,398
Kleider-Bauer	2,650	2,335

Source: A.C. Nielsen & Co. and MMO Media and Market Observer. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.0631 dollars to the Schilling.

Belgium

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Procter & Gamble Co.	7,848	8,342
GB-Inno-BM	7,224	8,063
BSN-Gervais Danone	7,160	5,805
Henkel	6,493	5,913
D' Ieteren	6,192	6,515
Peugeot	5,848	5,440
Ford Motor Co.	5,784	4,429
Delhaize Le Lion	5,698	5,612
Unilever	5,676	4,085
Mars Inc.	5,633	4,924

Source: Advertising Marketing Services, Brussels. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include all public measured media in Belgium and Luxembourg. Conversion rate: 0.0215 dollars to the Bfrancs.

Finland

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Valio	10,938	6,457
Kesko	7,620	6,282
SYP	7,039	N/A
Korpivaara	6,515	5,449
Saastopankit + SKOP	6,360	5,662
Verikkaus	5,604	N/A
Aro-yhtyma	5,410	N/A
Osuuspankit + OKO	5,197	4,789
Ford Motor Co.	4,654	4,363
OP-Kiinteistokeskus	4,266	4,324

Source: Markkinatutlimus OY, Helsinki. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include measured media only. Conversion rate: 0.1939 dollars to the Markka.

France

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Renault	83,927	73,096
Loterie Nationale	48,333	34,009
Nestle SA	41,192	35,384
Ford Motor Co.	40,911	36,085
Procter & Gamble Co.	36,310	41,978
Peugeot	36,225	27,513
Colgate-Palmolive Co.	35,945	26,517
Citroen	30,094	26,517
Intermarche Magasins	29,786	21,564
General Motors Corp.	28,481	26,180

Source: SECODIP, Paris. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.1403 dollars to the Franc.

Ireland

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Procter & Gamble Co.	85,751	47,374
Guinness	54,092	52,160
Kellogg Co.	39,294	32,870
Mars Inc.	32,398	30,988
Rowntree Mackintosh	28,851	30,988
Unilever	27,524	47,374
Cadbury Schweppes PLC	27,477	24,545
Coca-Cola Co.	26,340	12,371
Ford Motor Co.	24,979	19,134
P.J. Carroll	22,475	16,177

Source: Advertising Statistics Ireland. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include measured media only. Conversion rate: 1.313 dollars to the Pound.

Italy

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Procter & Gamble Co.	116,210	62,085
Unilever	100,560	39,299
Fiat SpA	94,344	101,529
Barilla Pasta	64,945	43,418
Renault	56,241	36,460
Sagit	51,447	32,755
Alfa Lancia	50,161	31,052
Fater	48,323	32,940
Colgate-Palmolive Co.	47,463	25,123
Mattel Inc.	44,018	36,119

Source: AGB Italia SpA, Milan. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and represent gross ad expenditures. It is custom in Italy to take a 40% to 60% discount. Conversion rate: 0.000648 dollars to the Lira.

Netherlands

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Unilever	19,268	N/A
Mars Inc.	8,032	N/A
Heineken B.V.	7,159	N/A
Vendex	6,880	N/A
NV Philips	6,767	N/A
Postbank NV	6,652	N/A
Akzo Adv. Coord. Groep	6,427	N/A
Rijksvoorlichtingsdienst	6,132	N/A
Henkel	5,343	N/A
Ned. Zuivelburo	5,275	N/A

Source: VEA. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and do not include regional advertisers or direct mail. Conversion rate: 0.3934 dollars to the Guilder.

Portugal

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Unilever	4,461	2,199
Central Cerverjas	2,109	1,129
Nestle SA	2,036	1,537
Santa Casa da Misericordia	1,838	2,312
Colgate-Palmolive Co.	1,510	855
Renault	1,509	909
FIMA	1,334	1,029
S.C. Johnson & Son	1,314	1,039
Unicer	1,007	789
Knorr Portuguesa	972	N/A

Source: Lintas: Worldwide, Lisbon. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.006683 dollars to the Escudo.

Spain

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
El Corte Ingles Group	28,115	23,823
Peugeot	26,014	20,919
Volkswagen AG	25,205	24,207
Renault	24,451	19,328
Nestle SA	23,913	14,937
Unilever	23,851	15,496
Ministry of Economy	22,036	21,813
Henkel	22,015	13,758
Ford Motor Co.	16,536	12,669
BSN-Gervais Danone	14,798	13,094

Source: Annual Report on Advertising Expenditures by J. Walter Thompson Co., based on Repress/Nielsen data. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include measured media, direct marketing, point of sale, promotions, trade fairs, annual reports and brochures. Conversion rate: 0.00698 dollars to the Peseta.

Sweden

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Kooperativa Forbundet	53,528	51,277
ICA	47,534	46,609
Ahlens	14,735	12,139
B & W Stormarknader	11,172	6,988
Hennes & Mauritz	9,170	8,203
Kapp Ahl	6,808	5,234
Samhallsinformations Kommun/Landsting	6,781	6,380
Volvo AB	6,463	7,457
Favor-Butikerna	6,394	5,648
Televerket	5,759	5,524

Source: Reklamstatistik. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include daily newspapers only. Conversion rate: 0.1381 dollars to the Kroner.

Switzerland

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Migros	36,165	36,767
Co-op	26,251	22,936
Denner	10,737	10,057
General Motors Corp.	10,006	9,657
Toyota Motor Corp.	9,928	8,911
Pfister Moebel	7,276	5,988
Maus Brothers	7,169	6,954
Mars Inc.	6,763	4,992
Volkswagen AG	6,491	6,451
Nissan Motor Co. Ltd.	6,404	5,212

Source: A.C. Nielsen & Co. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.5371 dollars to the Sfranc.

United Kingdom

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Unilever	156,171	179,192
British Government	119,414	46,631
Mars Inc.	68,690	82,647
Hanson Trust PLC	66,412	N/A
Allied-Lyons	59,139	53,410
Asda MFI Group	56,201	55,311
Nestle SA	53,279	59,437
British Telecom	52,968	60,582
Procter & Gamble Co.	51,763	70,029
British Gas	48,323	28,166

Source: Campaign magazine, from Haymarket Publishing: The Top 100 Spenders, June 13, 1986. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 1.4679 dollars to the Pound.

West Germany

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Siemens	208,936	N/A
Unilever NV	102,915	88,276
C&A Brenninkmeyer	95,596	94,487
Volkswagen AG	60,951	59,886
Henkel	60,773	54,563
General Motors Corp.	51,458	36,375
Karstadt	47,554	47,909
Mars Inc.	43,162	33,714
Ford Motor Co.	41,787	34,157
Deutsche Bundespost	39,480	32,826

Source: Schmidt & Pohlmann, a subsidiary of A.C. Nielsen & Co. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.4436 dollars to the Mark.

N. AMERICA

Canada

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Canadian Government	45,912	51,443
Procter & Gamble Co.	36,858	33,344
John Labatt Ltd.	27,097	24,694
Unilever	23,102	22,421
Molson Breweries	23,075	21,347
Philip Morris Cos.	22,522	21,321
General Motors Corp.	19,714	22,404
Gov't of Ontario	18,759	25,117
Thomson Group	17,300	12,645
RJR Nabisco	16,162	18,416

Source: Media Measurement Services, Toronto. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.721 dollars to the Cdollar.

Mexico

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Pedro Domecq	12,740	N/A
Procter & Gamble Co.	12,740	N/A
Bacardi Corp.	11,830	N/A
Grupo Cuauhtemoc	9,828	N/A
Colgate-Palmolive Co.	9,646	N/A
Nestle SA	9,464	N/A
Organisacion Bimbo	9,100	N/A
PepsiCo	6,552	N/A
Gamesa	6,188	N/A
Kellogg Co.	5,824	N/A

Source: PMP Group, Mexico City. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include TV ad expenditures only. Conversion rate: 0.00182 dollars to the Peso.

Puerto Rico

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Colgate-Palmolive Co.	7,952	6,540
Procter & Gamble Co.	7,220	6,793
Sears, Roebuck & Co.	6,684	4,398
Unilever	6,465	6,092
Bacardi Corp.	4,672	N/A
Banco Popular Puerto Rico	4,273	1,575
Schaefer Brewing	3,318	1,901
Mars Inc.	2,536	538
Gillette Co.	2,434	1,533
Anheuser-Busch Cos.	2,225	1,430

Source: Publish Records Service, San Juan. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include TV and print media spending only.

United States

	Ad spending
Advertiser	1986	1985
Procter & Gamble	1,435	1,600
Philip Morris Cos.	1,364	1,400
Sears, Roebuck & Co.	1,005	800
RJR Nabisco	935	1,093
General Motors Corp.	839	779
Ford Motor Co.	649	615
Anheuser-Busch Cos.	644	523
McDonald's Corp.	592	550
K mart Corp.	590	567

(Continued on Page 65)

NDING HORIZONS.

プレジデント
5
「変化」こそチャンス

The largest business magazine in Japan, PRESIDENT is published in cooperation with the Diamond Co.

Circulation: 250,000

LA NAISSANCE D'UN PATRON

A French FORTUNE will be published early in 1988 in cooperation with Hachette-Filipacchi.

Circulation: 50,000

亞洲週刊
在美國建功立業

YAZHOU ZHOUKAN, the world's first independent newsweekly in Chinese, publishes in December, 1987.

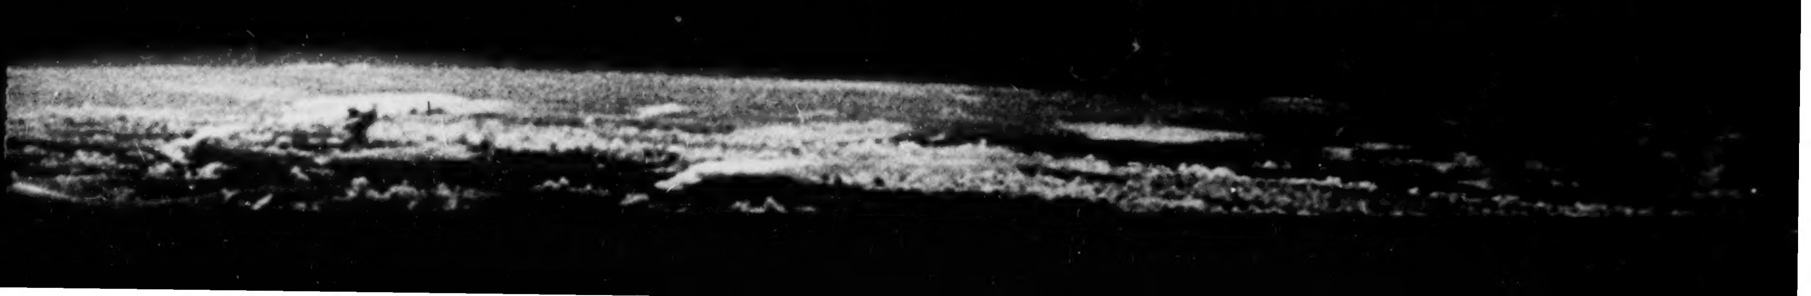
Circulation: 38,000

Around this planet, readers find a wider vision of their world in the international publications of Time Inc.

Our magazine group is growing to meet their growing needs for quality information. The two newest magazines: a handsome new French Fortune and Yazhou Zhoukan, the world's first newsweekly in Chinese.

Our business is expanding horizons. With increasing editorial resources. A wider range of magazines. And a growing audience of the world's most desirable readers.

The International Publications of Time Inc.



Australian media barons' year of changes

Rupert Murdoch's takeover of HWT sparks $4 billion in deals

Major media owners	Major holdings as of January 1987	Trading	Holdings at present
News Ltd. Rupert Murdoch	The Australian, national The Daily Telegraph, Sydney, a.m. The Mirror, Sydney, p.m. The News, Adelaide, p.m. The Sunday Telegraph, Sydney Daily Sun, Brisbane, p.m. Sunday Sun, Brisbane Sunday Mail, Adelaide Eight suburban newspapers near Sydney TEN Network, Sydney and Melbourne Southdown Press magazine group and other magazines	News Ltd.'s $1.4 billion takeover of Herald & Weekly Times Group started the media buying and selling spree. Mr. Murdoch sold his TV holdings—TEN Network in Sydney and Melbourne to Frank Lowy, Channel 7 in Melbourne to Fairfax—and HWT's Perth newspapers to Bell Group. The News, Adelaide, and Daily Sun and Sunday Sun in Brisbane was sold to Northern Star Holdings and staff consortiums.	The Australian, national The Daily Telegraph, Sydney, a.m. The Mirror, Sydney, p.m. The Sunday Telegraph, Sydney Sunday Mail, Adelaide Eight suburban newspapers near Sydney Southdown Press magazine group and other magazines Melbourne Herald, Melbourne, p.m. Sun News-Pictorial, Melbourne, p.m. Courier Mail, Brisbane, a.m. The Telegraph, Brisbane, p.m. The Advertiser, Adelaide, a.m. Herald & Weekly Times Group with 20 magazines—plus about 20 suburban newspapers
Herald & Weekly Times	Melbourne Herald, Melbourne, p.m. Sun News-Pictorial, Melbourne, p.m. Courier Mail, Brisbane, a.m. The Telegraph, Brisbane, p.m. The Advertiser, Adelaide, a.m. The West Australian, Perth, a.m. The Daily News, Perth, p.m. The Sunday News, Perth, p.m. Sunday Mail, Brisbane Channel 7, Melbourne, Adelaide Herald & Weekly Times Group with about 20 magazines	Entire company sold to News Ltd.	None
John Fairfax Ltd. Warwick Fairfax	Sydney Morning Herald, Sydney, a.m. The Sun, Sydney, p.m. Sun Herald, Sydney The Australian Financial Review, national The Age, Melbourne, a.m. The Canberra Times, Canberra, a.m. The Times on Sunday, national Newcastle Herald, a.m. Illawarra Mercury, a.m. 10 community newspapers 24 Victorian regionals and suburbans Fairfax Magazines incorporating Woman's Day, Cosmopolitan, Dolly, Time Australia, The Spectator, weekly BRW, weekly Personal Investments, weekly Rydge magazines Macquarie Network (radio) Channel 7, Sydney, Brisbane	John Fairfax Ltd. first bought Channel 7 in Melbourne from News Ltd. in July but later sold that station, along with stations in Sydney and Brisbane to Universal Telecasters. In early fall, Warwick Fairfax attempted to privatize the company, but met trouble from Mr. Holmes a' Court and Mr. Packer, who each owned sizable stakes. Both received properties in exchange for their cooperation. Mr. Fairfax is expected to attain control of the company soon. John B. Fairfax (deputy chairman) purchased John Fairfax Ltd.'s rural press and suburban newspapers.	Sydney Morning Herald, Sydney, a.m. The Sun, Sydney, p.m. Sun Herald, Sydney, Sunday The Age, Melbourne, a.m. BRW Personal Investment Rydges magazines Time Australia, weekly The Spectator, weekly Ms., monthly Sassy, monthly
Australian Consolidated Press Kerry Packer	Nearly 30 magazines, including Women's Weekly and The Bulletin, incorporating Newsweek, Cleo, Belle and Australian Business. Nine Network in Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane.	ACP sold the Nine Network to Alan Bond. Mr. Packer obtained several Fairfax properties, including much of its magazine group.	Fairfax Magazines, about 30 titles Nearly 30 magazines, including Women's Weekly and The Bulletin, incorporating Newsweek and including Woman's Day, Dolly, Cosmopolitan.
Bell Group Robert Holmes a' Court	Western Mail, Perth Four suburban weeklies, two regional newspapers and four radio stations in Western Australia Channel 7, Perth Channel 10, Adelaide	Mr. Holmes a' Court, who has emerged as a major media owner this year, unsuccessfully attempted to buy News Ltd.'s Channel 7 in Melbourne, but succeeded in buying HWT's Perth papers. Mr. Holmes a' Court received the Financial Review, The Times on Sunday, the Canberra Times, and the Macquarie radio network in the deal with Fairfax.	Channel 10, Adelaide The West Australian, Perth, a.m. The Daily News, Perth, p.m. The Sunday News, Perth, p.m. The Australian Financial Review, national The Times on Sunday, national The Canberra Times, Canberra, a.m. Macquarie Radio Network Expected to sell Channel 7, Perth to Universal Telecasters
Bond Media Alan Bond	Channel 9 in Perth Sky Channel satellite	Mr. Bond became a major media owner this year, with purchases such as ACP's Nine Network.	Nine Network in Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth Sky Channel Intelsat Nine Network satellites, plus 30-watt transponder TV-AM, London Fiji TV Papua New Guinea TV Nine radio stations throughout Australia WIN News (New York) Interests in film and TV marketing and production
Universal Telecasters Christopher Skase	Channel 0, Brisbane Two regional channels	Universal Telecasters bought John Fairfax Ltd.'s Seven Network stations in Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane. It sold Channel 0, Brisbane, to Northern Star Holdings	Two regional channels Seven Network in Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane Expected to buy Channel 7 in Perth from Bell Group
BDC Investments Kerry Stokes	Channel 7, Canberra, Adelaide TEN Network in Perth	BDC exited the media scene by selling its Channel 7 in Canberra and Adelaide and Channel 10 in Perth to Frank Lowy. Mr. Stokes is likely to reenter media through buying regional stations.	No media holdings
Northern Star Holdings, Westfield Capital Corp. Frank Lowy	Northern Star Holdings newspaper group of eight regional papers	Mr. Lowy purchased Mr. Murdoch's TEN Network as well as the News, Adelaide, and Brisbane's Daily and Sunday Suns, as well as BDC's entire stable.	Northern Star Holdings newspaper group TEN Network in Sydney, Melbourne and Perth, Channel 7 in Adelaide and Canberra, Channel 0 in Brisbane and one regional, four radio stations, Festival Records

Research by Geoffrey Lee Martin in Australia

Where Ad Age got its data

ADVERTISING AGE in this special section takes a look at worldwide advertising from both the media and advertiser side.

In its first ranking of the 50 largest non-U.S. advertisers, AD AGE pooled ad totals from its international reporting network and sources around the world.

Rankings of advertisers from 34 regions on six continents were compiled, including the Arabian Peninsula, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Japan, Malaysia, New Zealand, Philippines, Singapore, South Korea, Taiwan, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Finland, France, West Germany, Ireland, Italy, the Netherlands, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, the U.K., Canada, Mexico, Puerto Rico, South Africa and the U.S.

The Arabian Peninsula includes Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman and Jordan. Belgium includes spending in Luxembourg.

Although every effort was made to compile advertising expenditures by these companies in all countries, only rankings of the top 10 advertisers were available in some countries.

Data from several countries was reported by brand, rather than by advertiser. Brand spending was added into parent company spending wherever possible. Also, in some instances, local sources compiled parent company spending by monitoring brand spending—but only including brands closely associated with the parent company. This resulted in some low local parent total spending figures.

Local sources and media information are listed beneath the top ten advertisers by country on Page 62.

Data from the U.S. is based on AA's 100 Leading National Advertisers, Sept. 4, 1987, and Second 100 Leading National Advertisers, Nov. 23, 1987.

BAR/LNA reports supplies the bulk of U.S. measured media information. Magazine and newspaper supplements are supplied to Leading National Advertisers by Publishers Information Bureau. Outdoor is supplied to LNA by the Outdoor Advertising Association of America and Institute of Outdoor Advertisers. Network TV, spot TV, network radio and cable TV networks are supplied by Broadcast Advertisers Reports.

Other U.S. monitored media include newspapers from Media Records, business publications from Rome Reports, farm publications from AGRICOM and spot radio from Radio Expenditure Reports.

U.S. advertising expenditures include estimated unmeasured media spending for direct mail, promotion, co-op and couponing, to name a few, unless otherwise noted.

The worldwide ranking includes all advertisers monitored by AD AGE, regardless of whether any foreign advertising expenditures were reported for this issue.

* * *

AD AGE's third annual compilation of the key indicators judging global publications appears in chart form on Page 54. Criteria for a publication's admission to the chart were:

- Substantial mass circulation on at least three continents.
- Worldwide circulation of at least 50,000, although the circulation of its international editions must equal at least 10% of the domestic circulation.
- Editorial content global in scope and primarily in English.
- Advertising in all editions purchased through one central office.

Trade publications are not mass-circulation publications and were excluded from this listing.

Licensed publications also were excluded because, for the most part, they are not centrally controlled either on the advertising or editorial side.

Kevin Brown

Top 10

(Continued from Page 63)

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
PepsiCo	581	478

Source: Advertising Age 100 Leading National Advertisers, September 24, 1987, including data from BAR/LNA reports, Media Records, Radio Expenditure Reports, Rome Reports and AGRICOM. Notes: Dollars are in millions and include measured and unmeasured media.

S. AMERICA

Argentina

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Aurora	12,092	2,788
Philip Morris Cos.	9,034	2,981
Batus Industries	8,123	3,717
NV Philips	7,379	3,007
Unilever	6,004	3,291
S.C. Johnson & Son	5,567	N/A
Kenia Saic	5,022	1,122
Jacobs Suchard	4,730	2,321
Loterie Chaquena	4,627	3,156
Drean	4,544	1,059

Source: Fuentes & CIA, Buenos Aires. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include TV ad spending only. Conversion rate: 1.184 dollars to the Austral.

Brazil

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Grupo Dorsay	25,287	13,338
Grupo Pao de Acucar	18,070	10,772
Unilever	13,520	6,295
Nestle SA	11,884	5,735
Lopes Cons Imoveis	11,484	2,042
Mesbla	10,867	7,080
Lundgren	10,234	4,870
NV Philips	10,220	4,884
CX Economica Federal	10,052	2,973
B.A.T. Industries	9,725	6,433

Source: Advertising Age. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include measured media only. Conversion rate: 0.072686 dollars to the Cruzado.

Chile

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Unilever	12,547	N/A
Nestle SA	6,368	N/A
Coca-Cola Co.	3,359	N/A
Bayer AG	3,196	N/A
Corona	2,783	N/A
CCU	2,698	N/A
Comercial Eccsa	2,530	N/A
El Mercurio	2,459	N/A
Editorial Portada	2,310	N/A
La Tercera	2,142	N/A

Source: Megatec, Santiago. Notes: Dollars are in thousands. Conversion rate: 0.0054 dollars to the Peso.

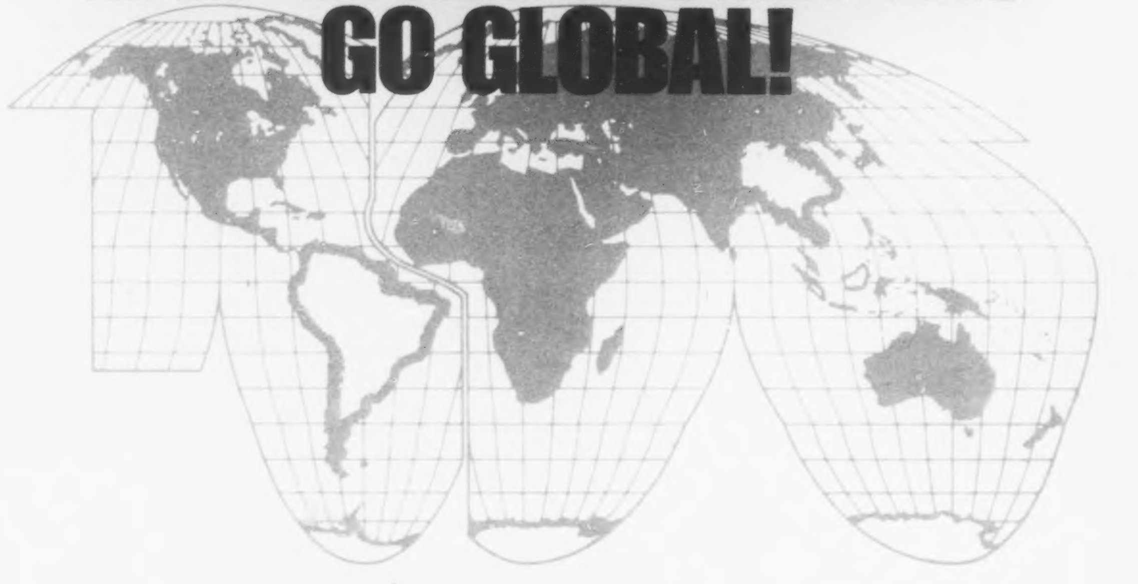
Colombia

Advertiser	Ad spending 1986	1985
Colgate-Palmolive Co.	7,663	N/A
Unilever	6,642	N/A
Postobon	5,017	N/A
Nestle SA	4,293	N/A
Technoquimicas	2,711	N/A
Varela	2,624	N/A
Gillette Co.	2,603	N/A
Disa	2,446	N/A
Cine Colombia	1,998	N/A
Federacion Natl. de Cafeteros	1,814	N/A

Source: A.C. Nielsen & Co. Notes: Dollars are in thousands and include measured media only. Conversion rate: 0.0054 dollars to the Peso.

Coordinating this report were Kevin Brown, Ilse Cermak, Craig Endicott, Karen Brodsky Fine, Nancy Giges and Julie Skur Hill.

BUSINESS WEEK'S EPIC* SPACE INCENTIVES GO GLOBAL!



Now Business Week International offers advertisers extra pages in 1988 at no extra cost—an opportunity to earn up to 5 pages without additional charge!

We want to give Business Week International advertisers in 1988 an outstanding opportunity to increase their marketing impact around the world. The actual number of bonus pages you can earn depends on your 1988 schedule. And please note, EPIC can work for you even if you did not advertise in Business Week International during 1987.

For complete details, please contact your local Business Week International representative.

*EPIC—Extra Page Incentive Contract

INTERNATIONAL BusinessWeek
The world's only international newsweekly of business

Frankfurt: Percy Fahrbach (69) 72-01-81. Hong Kong: Stephen Marcopoto (5) 260149. Lausanne: Irmgard Fischer (21) 27-44-11.
London: Keith Mantie (1) 493-1451. Milan: Roberto Laureri (2) 890-101-03. New York: Charles Menatti (212) 512-3867.
Paris: Bruno Hermann (1) 42-89-03-81. Stockholm: Andrew Karnig (8) 4400-05. Tokyo: Paul Ishii (3) 581-9811

12/22/87 C2710-1

NEWSPAPER

5-DIGIT 200
020190949 AA00 8751 COMP A52
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

© Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$1.50 a copy; $59 a year

December 21, 1987

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Make-goods stagger networks

By VERNE GAY

NEW YORK—The people-meter revolution is costing the Big 3 TV networks millions of dollars in advertiser "make-goods," setting the stage for possible changes in the way commercial airtime is purchased.

The demand for make-goods will accelerate during the next two weeks as advertisers scramble to secure what is due them for the fourth quarter.

The problem is so troublesome that some agency and network TV executives are contemplating changing next year's buying practices to eliminate guarantees on upfront—or advanced—buys.

In an upfront buy, advertisers purchase time as much as a year in advance and get a "guarantee" that the buy will meet certain ratings goals.

If the TV show falls short, the advertiser gets make-goods in the form of commercial units.

This season's paybacks are the result of an unexpectedly severe drop-off in daytime and prime-time ratings by A.C. Nielsen Co.'s people meters, which in September replaced the traditional diary system of measuring TV audiences.

The blow may be softened somewhat by a so-called "cushion" the nets built into last summer's upfront buys, to compensate for the unknowns involved in the changeover.

At that time, many advertisers agreed to pay the networks artificially-arrived-at prices and slight cost-per-thousand increases. The average cushion at ABC was 5%, while CBS' cushion was 7.5%.

Sources said CBS has been particularly hard hit by the make-goods situation. The network's 1987 national prime-time household ratings have fallen 15% from the same period last year. Fourth-quarter daytime ratings have fallen 10%, from 1986 to 1987, although CBS News ratings have increased.

CBS reportedly has exhausted its reserve of commercial time—that which it held from the market to satisfy make-good demand. The network said it is covering shortfalls with units it would have sold during the "scatter" market, the time sold much closer to actual airdate.

Unusually large reserves of make-good slots were set aside during upfront sales, again because of the expected lower numbers. But CBS' reserve reportedly is the smallest.

NBC's was the largest, but it is believed to be close to

(Continued on Page 34)

Apple buys Jan. 1—Page 2

Staff photo by Michael A. Marcotte

Mistletoe Bears weren't selling fast enough at Marshall Field's so the retailer posted a 33%-off sign.

Bear market

Hot holiday promotion cools off

An Advertising Age roundup

Stuffed Christmas bears, the hot promotional trend of the last few years, are stumbling in the final stretch of this holiday season.

HOLIDAY MARKETING

In sharp contrast to their wild popularity last year, the plush-animal ploys—sold at a discount to shoppers who spend above a certain amount overall in the store—are moving slowly in some major outlets.

It is a case of a good idea that got old and tired, retail experts speculate. "It was a fad that has run its course. As a special promotional gimmick, I think it's passe," said Kurt Barnard, publisher of Retail Marketing Report, New York.

"The market is saturated with the creatures," said James Williams, president of the National Retail Merchants Association.

Only those merchants who ordered conservatively or jazzed up the marketing of their purchase-with-purchase toys have enjoyed good sales, it seems. For instance, Dayton Hudson Corp., Minneapolis, which launched the trend with its hugely successful Santa Bear, still is going gangbusters with its bear family, helped by merchandise and advertiser tie-ins.

Elsewhere, however, the promotion is faltering, either because too many stores are doing the

(Continued on Page 34)

WPP ponders sister agency to Thompson

By LAUREL WENTZ

LONDON—WPP Group is considering setting up a second agency network in Europe to operate separately from J. Walter Thompson Co.

The decision hinges on whether the agency group wins the European account of Alfa Romeo, the Italian automaker seeking an international network for its $20 million ad business.

WPP Chairman Martin Sorrell is believed to be masterminding a plan that would circumvent the conflict problems faced by JWT, which handles $300 million of Ford Motor Co. business in the U.S. and other countries.

JWT's Ford business, however, is diminishing. Last week, Ford shifted $5 million in billings from JWT in Latin America.

Ford moved $100 million from JWT in Europe to Ogilvy & Mather in July, and the company has refused to allow JWT to take on competing car accounts.

A new agency network would operate separately from JWT as a wholly owned WPP Group subsidiary, sources said.

The offices would be "set up uniquely to do that [Alfa] job," sources said, but could serve as a base for winning new business. Even though it would be separate from JWT, such a network could draw on JWT resources and staff, agency sources said.

Oddone Camerana, ad director of Fiat S.p.A., Turin, Italy, which

(Continued on Page 34)

Last Minute News

BBDO resigns GE consumer electronics

NEW YORK—BBDO Worldwide has withdrawn from GE/RCA Consumer Electronics' review of its $15 million-to-$20 million combined account. Still competing for the business are Ammirati & Puris, McCaffrey & McCall and Young & Rubicam; Fallon McElligott, Minneapolis; and Hal Riney & Partners, Chicago. Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, earlier resigned the RCA portion of the account, citing demands for reduced compensation (AA, Oct. 5, et seq.). BBDO had handled the GE division.

Donald Mitchum leaves L.A. for Atlanta

LOS ANGELES—BBDO/West President Donald C. Mitchum, 50, will leave his post in mid-January to become president of the agency's Atlanta office. He succeeds Atlanta President-CEO F. Glenn Verrill, who will retire within a year. Mr. Mitchum's successor has not been named yet. Sources say BBDO plans to merge its BBDO/Slightly Fur-

(Continued on Page 8)

Lotus opens Pandora's box—P. 6

Apple makes huge bowl buy

By PATRICK McGEEHAN

Apple Computer has resolved to start 1988 with a return to its old ways, by purchasing an unusual, all-day exclusive sponsorship of NBC-TV's Jan. 1 college bowl game telecasts.

The sponsorship, which makes Cupertino, Calif.-based Apple the only computer advertiser in the Fiesta, Rose and Orange bowls, is Apple's biggest one-day buy, costing about $4 million.

For NBC, it is the largest sale of bowl-game inventory to a single sponsor.

In a deal reminiscent of the "event marketing" concept Apple used to introduce its Macintosh computer in 1984—which included the award-winning "1984" commercial shown during the Super Bowl—Apple has purchased 22 30-second units in NBC's powerhouse New Year's Day lineup.

Apple's sponsorship also will receive mention on 10 "billboards"—short "brought to you by Apple" announcements during the games.

The company is considering running newspaper ads, including a page in USA Today, to draw attention to the buy, as it did with the "1984" spot.

Macintosh spots that have aired only on Sunday morning news shows will be included in the lineup, said Steve Grubbs, VP-director of national TV buying at BBDO Worldwide, New York.

"We have new creative and we haven't had a chance to expose it a lot. We felt we needed to make a big push like this to reach the business target," he said.

The company has followed a broadcast strategy during the past year that limited buys to highly targeted programs, primarily Sunday morning shows and sports.

Mr. Grubbs said the spots would reach "somewhere around 45% of [U.S.] households . . . maybe more than the Super Bowl," on Jan. 1.

Apple sees the sponsorship package as a "morale-builder," said Steve Hayden, exec VP-senior creative director at BBDO, Los Angeles. "It shows that Apple is still a company that can pull off an event."

While the unusual buy marks a distinct change in Apple's TV strategy this year, financial results for the fourth quarter are ahead of projections, sources said, freeing up additional ad dollars for 1988.

The new effort comes at a strategic time. Apple is losing its exclusive franchise in "desktop publishing," once the strongest argument for purchasing a Mac and a companion LaserWriter printer.

IBM Corp. and marketers of IBM-clones now offer similar packages.

Furthermore, IBM has been outspending the No. 2 Apple by as much as five to one. IBM is extending its "M*A*S*H reunion" campaign from personal computers to cover additional products, from typewriters to minicomputers.

In exchange for Apple buying out the remaining inventory in the three games, NBC worked out trades to remove other computer advertisers, including IBM, from the Jan. 1 games. That enabled Apple to have computer exclusivity on NBC that day from 1:30 p.m. (ET) until the end of prime-time programming.

Arthur Watson, president of NBC Sports, said the arrangement of exclusivity over such a long stretch of airtime was "one of the few times it has ever been done."

The buy includes three spots during the Fiesta Bowl, which begins at 1:30 p.m.; three spots during the Rose Bowl pregame show; eight spots during the Rose Bowl; and eight spots during the Orange Bowl.#

Cleveland Horton in Los Angeles contributed to this story.

Highlights

NEWS

4 Serving 'tough client' Gallo

Bet on it: Ernest and Julio Gallo will find an agency to succeed Hal Riney & Partners, which resigned the $75 million account this month.

6 WPP buys hispanic shop

After 18 months of negotiation, WPP Group has acquired the largest hispanic ad agency in the U.S., Mendoza, Dillon & Asociados.

14 Eveready, set, go

Ralston Purina Co.'s Eveready division is giving the battery industry a jolt by segmenting the market with a new line.

15 China fights ad claims

China has issued tough regulations to protect consumers and raise the standard of advertising.

16 Blau holds on to its belt

Barry Blau & Partners will expand its business and remain independent through acquisitions.

17 AAF forms watchdog groups

The American Advertising Federation is developing watchdog groups to track ad tax proposals in all 50 states.

32 Philly paper zones out

The Philadelphia Inquirer is introducing more zoned inserts as suburban competition intensifies.

33 CBS wants drug advertising

CBS-TV is forming an industrywide group to study how to open mass media to prescription drug advertising.

37 Local sales key for cable

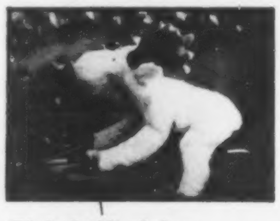
Many cable industry executives predict local spots would be cable's fastest-growing revenue source.

INTERNATIONAL

24 Salting the wound

A potato chip battle is sizzling in Bonn, West Germany, where snack-foods marketer Bahlsens has been accused of running misleading ads, and may be forced to delay the European rollout of a low-fat chip.

Chevrolet startles Garfield with straightforward truck spots. Page 36.



Global gift-giving: AA's International section takes a look at what's hot for the holidays around the world this year. In West Germany, consumers are falling in love with Sigikids, shown above; Aussies are flipping over The Great Australian Gambling Game; and the Irish are cheering up over the legalization of the drink poteem.

Departments

Agency People 31
Brady 22
Currents 18
MediaWorks 25
Photo Review 26
Viewpoint 12, 13

Vol. 58, No. 54—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $1.50 a copy, $59 a year, $104 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 (313) 446-0494.

Hoover ups ad spending

By JULIE LIESSE ERICKSON

Hoover Co. is picking up the tempo in the $2 billion vacuum-cleaner industry with three new products and a $12 million ad program set for the first half of 1988.

The campaign represents a 300% increase over the $3 million Hoover spent on measured media advertising during the first half of 1987, and nearly five times the $2.5 million spent during all of 1986, according to Leading National Advertisers.

Hoover, No. 1 with a 32% market share, will introduce its Innovation upright vacuums at the January Housewares Show in Chicago.

Two other undisclosed products will follow in early 1988.

In 1987, the North Canton, Ohio-based marketer introduced the Quik-Broom and Dubl-Duty, a battery-operated, hand-held vacuum.

Also this year Hoover broke a new multimedia campaign, tagged "Hoover keeps making it better," via Griswold Inc., Cleveland.

Additional commercials featuring the three new-product lines will break in March and April, said Neal Davis, exec VP-client service for Griswold.

The Dubl-Duty vacuum takes on three children in this TV spot.

The 1988 media schedule includes the company's heaviest network TV schedule, with buys on early-morning and evening news, as well as prime-time sports news breaks; spot TV; consumer magazines; the Paul Harvey radio show; and local newspapers.

Hoover is trailed by Bloomington, Ill.-based Eureka Co., which claims a 25% market share, according to Appliance Magazine.#

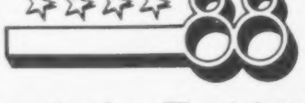
Hart aches

Ad execs offer advice

By STEVE COLFORD

"Hi, I'm Gary Hart."

A line that might have worked as a vote-getter for the Democratic presidential aspirant now provokes snickers and jokes.



Even political image-makers are asking whether Mr. Hart, who reentered the presidential race last week, can be taken seriously or will he require repackaging?

"The first thing he ought to do is be born-again," said Jerry Franz, VP-account supervisor at Doremus Porter Novelli, a Washington public relations firm. "Then, in keeping with summit fever, he should hold a summit with the Ayatollah."

Vic Kamber, president of the Kamber Group, Washington, suggested Hart commercials starring Donna Rice. "She at least could tell us how good he was," Mr. Kamber said.

Bob Gardner, president of Gardner Communications, San Francisco, suggested a retrospective TV spot, featuring presidents such as Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy "and their mistresses.

"The ad could say that all these guys did a pretty good job governing despite their indiscretions, and I could be a good one, too."#

Blau maps growth

Will expand, build presence to keep hold of independence

By JUDITH GRAHAM

Barry Blau & Partners, the nation's largest independent direct-response agency, is preparing to expand its business next year through acquisitions and joint ventures.

Blau's ambitious plans are designed to ensure its survival as an independent in a business increasingly dominated by direct-response subsidiaries of ad agencies. All the top 10 direct-response shops, except Blau, are owned by ad agencies.

Blau's immediate goals are to either acquire or form joint ventures with a computer data base company, telemarketing company, video production outfit and a TV direct-response agency. Officials said its acquisition budget is "flexible."

Discussions are under way with CMSA, Downers Grove, Ill., a privately held computer data base company, and Harbor Associates, a Greenwich, Conn.-based TV production company working with Blau as its TV response arm.

In line with its conviction that advertising is a local business, Blau wants to build a presence in at least six major markets by acquiring or merging with local ad agencies, direct-response agencies or sales-promotion companies.

"The concept is regionalization," said Barry Blau, the firm's founder and chairman. The markets he wants to enter include Atlanta, Boston, Dallas, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Ariz., and Seattle.

So far, only one regional acquisition or merger is scheduled next year. Five to 10 are planned by 1990.

Blau also is evaluating the possibility of buying mail-order businesses. It operates a mail-order coin and collectibles business and sells a general-merchandise calendar through Bank of America, San Francisco, to its credit card customers.

Blau is offering acquisition candidates a chance to keep their identity but operate in the context of a larger organization, a source close to the firm said. "They're looking at entrepreneurial firms that want to cash out and are looking for a big brother, but not too big."

If all goes according to plan, Blau will grow to a $250 million business in the next five years, or more than three times its current $70 million in fees and commissions.

The company, which secured access to the public capital markets through an initial public offering in December 1985, will finance its growth through bank loans, private placements, a preferred stock offering or a debt offering.

Based on its asset base, Blau's financial advisers estimate it could borrow as much as $15 million. But extra funds could become available, depending on the earnings of its acquired businesses.

Recent changes in the company's executive ranks permit Mr. Blau to relinquish day-to-day operating responsibility and focus on acquisitions and new-business development.

The changes elevated Dennis Eastham, 40, former exec VP-general manager of the Chicago office, to president and chief operating officer. Ron Friedman, 39, former exec VP-general manager of Fairfield, Conn., and New York offices, became vice-chairman, a new post. Mr. Blau, former president, remains chairman and CEO. Altogether, Blau has added 16 staff members since January.#

Top 10 direct-response agencies

Agency (parent)	'86 fees/commissions
1. Wunderman Worldwide (Young & Rubicam)	$224.5 million
2. Ogilvy & Mather Direct (Ogilvy Group)	$207.4 million
3. MARCOA Direct Advertising (Omnicom Group)	$110.0 million
4. Grey Direct (Grey Advertising)	$94.0 million
5. Kobs & Brady (Saatchi & Saatchi)	$81.0 million
6. Chapman, Stone & Adler (Young & Rubicam)	$80.4 million
7. Rapp & Collins (Rapp & Collins USA)	$80.1 million
8. FCB Direct (Foote, Cone & Belding)	$78.4 million
9. Barry Blau & Partners	$63.1 million
10. McCann Direct (McCann-Erickson)	$42.0 million

SOURCE: Direct Marketing Association

WCRS broadens DM base

By JENNIFER PENDLETON

WCRS Group's purchase of San Francisco-based direct-marketing agency Cohn & Wells gives the British company a foothold in the West Coast.

WCRS' deal is the latest in the merger trend that is reshaping the fast-growing field.

In recent years, almost all the major ad agencies either have set up direct-marketing units or bought independent shops specializing in direct marketing.

Most recently, Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago, bought Los Angeles-based Krupp/Taylor.

Cohn & Wells Managing Partner Bradley Wells said his 3-year-old shop will operate autonomously, retaining its name and its 19-person staff.

WCRS is paying Mr. Wells, 45, and Martin Cohn, 41, the other partner, $3.2 million initially. It will make further payments up to $14.8 million, depending upon future performance.

Both principals, who were formerly with Ogilvy & Mather, New York, have signed five-year contracts to continue with the agency.

"We will have complete day-to-day operational control," Mr. Wells said.

Among Cohn & Wells' principal clients are Bank of America, Pacific Bell and Gumps gift stores.

With annual billings of about $20 million, Mr. Wells said he believes the shop is among the top 25 direct-marketing agencies in the U.S.

WCRS is the parent of New York agencies Della Femina, Travisano & Partners and HBM/Creamer. The company already has a direct-marketing unit at Della Femina. But Cohn & Wells will not work directly with that agency, although Mr. Wells said he believes its new sister shop will be a source of potential new-business referrals.#

HDM Direct taps Eaton

LOS ANGELES—Peter Eaton, 46, has been named senior VP-executive creative director, HDM Worldwide Direct, a new post. He was group creative supervisor, Wunderman Worldwide, New York.

DM BRIEFS

HOUSTON—Entertainment Marketing, a direct-mail company, is looking for a buyer for its home shopping service Consumer Discount Network.

In a letter to shareholders, Entertainment Marketing Chairman-CEO Elias Zinn said the network "has not been profitable so far."

"We do not plan to operate any business segment that does not make money for the company," he added.

CHICAGO—Maxwell Sroge, president, Marke-Sroge Communications, direct-marketing industry consultants, estimates consumer mail-order sales volume will total $56 billion for 1987, up 12% from last year. During the last five years, the consumer portion of the direct-marketing field has grown 12% to 15% annually. The business-to-business portion is growing even faster, Mr. Sroge said.

"In the days when media costs were low, advertisers could afford to blow it [their ad budgets] on mass media," said Mr. Sroge. "Today, with media costs going up, advertisers are saying, '. . . Let's target the people who really count.' "#

Yellow Pages
HOTLINE
For National Advertisers
Call with questions about your National Yellow Pages Program
1-800-742-1002
1-800-354-5677
In N.Y. State

15.5 million big spenders are putting their money on your brand.

- Health & Leisure targeted coupon co-ops reach 50-65 year old high-trial, high-redeemers.
- Big spenders redeem high – up to 16%!
- Redemption rate is 3 to 5 times higher than FSIs and more than double the rate of mass mailings.

Call today for details and a FREE copy of our Direct Mail Marketing Handbook.

Larry Tucker Inc.
607 Palisade Ave.
Englewood Cliffs,
N.J. 07632
(201) 569-8888

PATRIOTIC PROMOTIONS
Historical Documents
Posters • Money
Constitution Bicentennial
Premiums • Self -Liquidators
Direct Mail Enclosures
400 Stock Items • Custom Work
Genuine antiqued parchment replicas look and feel centuries old.
FREE CATALOG. SAMPLES
HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS CO.
8 N. Preston St., Phila., PA 19104
Ask for Larry (215) 387-8076

MICRO-MARKETING
NATIONALLY VIA
SHOPPING MALLS

Since 1975, Shopping Center Network has successfully promoted publicity and sampling demonstration programs in major Malls throughout the country for America's leading corporations such as General Foods, Clairol, RCA, Chevrolet, General Electric, Fisher-Price, and others.

We utilize the Mall's high traffic Center Court Area to demonstrate, sample, research and test consumer products.

Call or write today.

Shopping Center Network
Shopping Center Network
Shopping Center Network

CHANCES ARE WE HAVE A BEEMAK MOLDED DISPLAY OR HOLDER IN STOCK THAT FITS YOUR NEEDS. IF NOT WE'LL MAKE YOU ONE THAT WILL!

SINCE 1951
BEEMAK PLASTICS
7424 SANTA MONICA BLVD
LOS ANGELES CA 90046

Write or call for free catalog
PHONE (213) 876-1770
Outside Calif. call toll free
1 (800) 421-4393

Consumer Magazine Ad Linage

Advertising pages for U.S., Canadian and foreign consumer publications

DECEMBER

Art & antiques

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Art & Antiques (10X)	62.9	51.5	729.5	568.9
Art News (10X)	98.0	91.0	1,147.9	969.9
Southwest Art	64.3	85.7	1,013.1	906.8
Total Group	225.1	228.2	2,890.6	2,445.5
% change		-1.3%		18.2%

Auto/cycle/rec. vehicles

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
ATV Sports	44.0	49.0	512.2	661.2
Autoweek (52X)	140.4	139.0	1,826.0	1,653.8
Car & Driver	104.6	77.1	1,131.6	1,030.0
Car Collector & Car Classics	18.3	22.8	209.8	210.0
Car Craft	58.6	57.4	999.2	872.3
Circle Track	58.4	48.3	891.6	716.2
Cycle World	36.0	28.1	569.7	506.2
Dirt Rider	45.2	485.0	446.9	470.2
Dune Buggies & Hot VWs	71.0	75.3	906.6	1,032.2
Family Motor Coaching	149.0	129.3	1,865.6	1,716.0
4 Wheel & Off-Road	78.5	76.3	1,058.1	1,022.7
Four Wheeler	91.0	86.0	1,043.0	978.0
Hot Rod	58.6	39.4	876.2	724.5
Motorcyclist	23.1	16.5	524.5	495.0
Motor Trend	73.1	80.9	896.6	802.6
Motorhome	77.5	77.6	1,009.0	1,073.0
Rider	26.5	29.1	459.9	546.5
Road & Track	97.1	114.5	1,204.8	1,184.9
Trailblazer	44.2	30.5	576.1	453.0
Trailer Life	93.4	86.3	1,245.9	1,300.4
Total Group	1,388.4	1,748.4	18,253.2	17,448.7
% change		-20.6%		4.6%

Boating & yachting

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Chesapeake Bay	31.8	27.5	548.9	464.5
Cruising World	108.9	91.8	1,502.6	1,535.5
Lakeland Boating (11X)	69.5	57.0	785.6	686.2
Motor Boating & Sailing	123.1	119.7	1,903.3	1,961.3
Sail	60.7	69.3	1,237.5	1,310.1
Small Boat Journal(6X)	39.0	38.7	307.0	287.9
Trailer Boats(11X)	—	—	571.0	446.9
Western Boatman(6X)	—	—	216.1	226.3
Yachting	111.6	106.4	1,679.8	1,631.0
Total Group	544.6	510.3	8,751.8	8,549.7
% change		6.7%		2.4%

Canadian

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
L'Actualite	83.7	94.4	987.5	1,027.0
Chatelaine:
English Edition A.	86.9	74.6	1,015.5	1,095.4
French Edition	77.2	72.5	914.3	947.6
City & Country Home(10X)	71.8	68.6	626.6	619.2
Equinox	—	—	250.1	236.0
Flare A.	103.0	58.9	1,062.1	964.4
Macleans (52X) A.	97.0	146.0	1,412.6	1,610.8
Moneywise	38.5	47.4	409.2	438.3
Reader's Digest:
Canadian-English A.	57.4	65.8	692.6	877.8
Canadian-French A.	39.5	47.5	525.6	715.4
Toronto Life	177.4	145.6	1,274.4	1,208.3
Vancouver	107.5	117.2	881.2	960.7
Total Group	940.0	938.5	10,051.7	10,701.0
% change		0.2%		-6.1%

Civic/fraternal

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
American Legion	21.5	17.1	396.7	290.8
Elks (10X)	—	—	196.2	187.9
Kiwanis	—	—	179.5	181.3
Lion (10X)	—	—	83.8	64.6
Rotarian	14.6	13.3	180.4	177.5
V.F.W. (11X)	29.0	31.5	349.0	286.6
Total Group	65.1	61.9	1,385.6	1,188.7
% change		5.2%		16.6%

Comics

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Archie Comics Group	5.0	3.0	74.0	46.0
DC Comics	7.5	7.0	76.5	65.5
Marvel Comics Group	8.5	6.0	107.0	84.0
Total Group	21.0	16.0	257.5	195.5
% change		31.3%		31.7%

General

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
American Health (10X)	47.9	46.9	706.1	612.5
American Heritage (7X)	27.8	33.0	264.8	118.1
American West (6X)	—	—	213.2	234.2
The Atlantic A.	46.0	32.2	465.0	456.6
Bon Appetit A.	113.6	128.9	1,020.2	1,035.1
Changing Times	75.2	44.1	780.2	626.6
Conde Nast's Traveler	40.9	—	198.9	—
Connoisseur	101.5	74.6	994.7	889.8
Consumers Digest (6X)	—	—	145.3	173.2
Ebony	104.0	100.6	1,126.1	1,125.4
Fifty Plus	23.3	29.6	447.2	431.9
Food & Wine	96.0	89.7	753.1	686.6
Games (6X)	—	17.0	91.6	201.4
Golden Years	44.8	21.3	479.3	310.8
Gourmet	156.3	121.5	1,322.6	1,168.8
Harper's A.	26.9	21.4	363.0	268.8
Harrowsmith (6X)	—	—	289.0	237.0
Let's Live	42.0	42.0	545.0	589.0
Life	70.0	52.4	581.8	787.7
Mature Outlook	47.8	50.8	303.0	273.4
Modern Maturity (6X)	28.6	41.5	256.9	270.0
Money	146.4	145.2	1,563.9	1,490.0
Money Maker	6.0	—	42.8	—
Mother Jones (9X)	14.3	18.2	151.4	190.0
National Geographic	180.4	26.5	242.3	277.0
National Geographic Traveler(4X)	34.0	24.7	151.0	130.9
Natural History	31.7	34.8	423.2	484.8
Prevention	40.2	53.9	723.2	736.2
Psychology Today	27.9	25.9	360.9	354.8
Reader's Digest A.	120.4	121.6	1,181.4	1,178.8
Saturday Evening Post (9X)	30.8	29.5	356.5	336.2
Smithsonian	100.1	74.4	1,061.7	963.0
Town & Country	182.3	161.1	1,703.4	1,625.7
Travel-Holiday	35.7	40.5	611.8	518.8
Travel & Leisure	92.5	114.8	1,218.7	1,274.1
Vanity Fair	106.0	76.5	868.0	595.8
Writer's Digest	27.8	22.7	341.3	301.6
Yankee	68.1	72.7	963.6	931.7
Total Group	2,337.0	1,990.3	23,312.0	21,886.1
% change		17.4%		6.5%

Home

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Americana (6X)	—	—	126.7	151.8
Architectural Digest A.	125.0	139.2	1,574.6	1,559.1
Better Homes & Gardens	142.6	119.5	1,422.9	1,333.0
Colonial Homes (6X)	59.3	71.4	385.3	387.3
Columbus Monthly-Homes (4X)	—	—	121.1	105.4
Country Home (6X)	78.3	63.3	356.1	294.5
Country Living	82.7	67.6	1,066.8	882.8
Family Handyman (10X) A.	41.6	41.1	561.0	575.1
Flower & Garden (6X)	41.7	38.0	253.7	228.6
Home	28.1	30.1	609.2	591.3
Home Mechanics	42.8	42.7	688.8	679.4
The Homeowner (10X)	23.4	18.1	348.8	300.3
Horticulture	42.5	33.4	441.7	425.2
House Beautiful	51.9	51.1	863.0	844.5
House & Garden	92.5	90.9	1,161.9	1,159.7
Houston Home & Garden	69.1	61.3	838.2	883.9
Metropolis	50.0	50.1	635.6	435.1
Metropolitan Home	61.4	46.2	801.5	679.1
1,001 Home Ideas	38.5	33.9	615.3	545.6
Organic Gardening	46.4	42.5	565.4	647.3
Phoenix Home/Garden	75.0	58.0	908.8	819.5
Practical Homeowner	—	—	426.1	467.7
San Diego Home/Garden	80.3	68.6	789.2	815.3
South Florida Home/Garden	44.4	30.8	514.8	381.1
Southern Accents (6X)	105.8	—	706.8	596.7
Southern Living	103.5	125.2	1,451.9	1,671.0
Sunset Magazine A.	109.9	116.9	1,476.0	1,620.6
Workbench (6X)	—	—	281.7	279.6
Total Group	[illegible]	1,439.8	19,992.9	19,360.3
% change		13.7%		3.3%

In-flight & other passenger

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Aboard Group (7)(6X)	41.3	29.0	176.5	159.4
Alaska Airlines	54.8	45.5	654.5	689.3
America West Airlines	63.3	51.6	622.2	328.4
American Way (24X)	128.7	72.7	1,411.2	1,153.5
East/West Network:
Eastern Review	59.8	76.7	803.6	1,152.2
Northwest	41.3	34.5	533.8	547.7
PSA Magazine	60.2	79.2	973.5	1,105.1
Pan Am Clipper	53.0	38.7	555.8	523.2
Spirit	48.0	94.5	712.4	1,151.1
TWA Ambassador	50.8	56.5	609.5	165.0
Vis 'A Vis	58.3	84.8	727.9	1,142.8
Halsey Publications:
Delta Sky	86.7	61.3	995.9	897.8
US Air	52.5	41.5	639.0	552.2
Piedmont Airlines' Pace	78.1	64.9	1,082.1	982.3
Spirit of Aloha (6X)	—	—	379.2	328.4
Total Group	876.7	831.4	10,877.1	10,878.3
% change		5.5%		0.0%

Men's

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Esquire A.	140.2	156.3	1,155.8	1,246.0
Firehouse Magazine	44.2	40.2	550.9	542.1
Gentlemen's Quarterly A.	208.4	167.2	1,949.6	1,916.8
M Magazine	78.5	81.2	910.7	780.1
Muscle & Fitness	126.0	115.3	1,494.4	1,326.4
Penthouse A.	55.9	55.7	502.9	460.9
Playboy A.	61.5	61.8	662.7	721.5
Salute (8X)	—	25.8	215.9	142.4
Total Group	714.5	703.5	7,442.9	7,136.2
% change		1.6%		4.3%

Metropolitan

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Aloha (6X)	37.4	39.8	188.8	180.3
Atlanta	82.1	72.5	755.8	659.6
Baltimore	89.4	118.2	942.3	1,000.3
Boston	205.5	216.7	2,024.5	1,961.8
California	69.3	69.9	746.7	773.0
Chicago	142.3	154.2	1,322.9	1,640.1
Chicago's North Shore	111.2	129.1	1,061.8	1,057.3
Cincinnati	78.8	67.7	781.3	789.2
Cleveland	110.0	101.3	859.8	884.6
Columbus Monthly	78.5	87.1	879.6	866.2
Connecticut	106.3	101.5	1,215.9	1,137.4
D/Magazine, Dallas/Ft. Worth	125.9	151.4	1,360.4	1,492.8
Denver	65.5	52.5	466.5	450.2
Detroit Monthly	160.3	94.1	1,134.7	975.0
Grand Rapids	43.8	36.8	516.7	481.4
Gulfshore Life (10X)	71.0	69.0	837.0	745.0
Honolulu	84.2	69.7	883.0	777.0
Louisiana Life (6X)	—	—	238.3	248.9
Madison	76.0	77.0	768.9	780.0
Memphis	89.0	83.5	978.0	905.0
Miami/South Florida	93.0	81.0	727.8	793.4
Mid Atlantic Country	25.5	25.3	409.2	463.5
Milwaukee	101.2	92.0	789.6	825.6
Minneapolis/St. Paul	131.8	123.4	1,287.3	1,228.9
New England Monthly	66.5	59.4	567.5	500.8
New Jersey Monthly	94.0	76.1	1,140.2	960.3
New Mexico	39.5	35.8	397.7	336.1
Ohio	41.5	41.5	720.1	721.6
Oregon (6X)	27.0	—	259.0	—
Orlando	84.8	79.7	1,085.7	1,160.9
Palm Beach Life	102.8	107.3	786.3	765.9
Palm Springs Life	128.9	124.5	1,387.4	1,329.3
Philadelphia	168.1	174.5	1,820.0	1,663.0
Phoenix	69.9	98.3	800.5	1,163.3
Pittsburgh	78.2	75.2	843.3	821.7
St. Louis	102.2	75.7	708.1	618.7
San Diego	181.5	173.4	1,734.5	1,673.4
San Francisco Focus	129.6	121.2	1,249.3	1,181.0
Texas Monthly	167.3	146.8	1,271.2	1,496.5
Twin Cities	79.9	75.3	857.3	693.6
The Virginian (6X)	—	—	361.1	347.8
Washington (7X)	54.8	40.0	421.8	413.5
The Washingtonian	170.3	165.1	1,922.6	1,869.0
Total Group	3,964.5	3,783.4	39,510.5	38,832.7
% change		4.8%		1.7%

Movie/romance/radio/tv

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Macfadden's Women's Group:
Modern Romances	27.1	19.8	302.7	262.7
Secrets	27.1	19.8	302.7	262.7
True Confessions	27.1	19.8	302.7	262.7
True Experience	27.1	19.8	302.7	262.7
True Love	27.1	19.8	302.7	262.7
True Romance	27.1	19.8	302.7	262.7
Sterling Women's Group:
Daytime TV	25.2	25.5	298.4	306.2
Modern Screen (6X)	14.5	14.5	83.0	93.7
Movie Mirror (6X)	—	14.5	14.5	33.0
Soap Opera Stars (6X)	16.8	14.5	99.3	93.1
TV Movie Screen (6X)	7.3	7.3	45.8	50.1
TV Picture Life (6X)	6.5	—	40.8	14.2
Total Group	232.8	195.2	2,397.8	2,166.2
% change		19.2%		10.7%

Music/entertainment

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Audio	106.3	97.1	1,224.8	1,140.7
Dance Magazine	58.8	59.4	578.2	511.9
Playbill	65.9	55.0	570.2	560.3
Stereo Review	116.5	111.3	982.4	963.2
Total Group	347.4	322.9	3,355.6	3,176.2
% change		7.6%		5.6%

National Sunday magazines

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Parade (52X)	49.6	42.1	608.4	637.2
Total Group	49.6	42.1	608.4	637.2
% change		17.8%		-4.5%

Outdoor & sport

	Current month 1987	Current month 1986	Year-to-date 1987	Year-to-date 1986
Alaska	41.0	41.0	429.9	509.1
The American Handgunner (6X)	—	—	290.0	229.0
American Hunter	16.7	17.6	262.6	254.1
American Rifleman	16.3	18.4	294.0	294.6
Bass Master (10X) A.	40.0	37.5	624.3	535.0
Bicycling (9X)	65.8	—	883.4	686.9
Ducks Unlimited (6X)	—	—	217.5	210.6
Field & Stream	49.6	56.6	975.2	1,052.4
Fins & Feathers A.	29.0	24.3	340.2	386.1
Fishing World (6X)	—	—	210.8	219.0
Florida Sportsman	107.8	93.8	1,390.1	1,249.5
Golf Digest	101.4	90.6	1,200.1	1,108.7
Golf Magazine	61.4	46.9	879.0	765.6
Gun Dog (6X)	—	—	242.2	218.0
Guns	38.0	33.0	413.0	383.0
Guns & Ammo	53.1	48.7	609.8	608.1
In-Fisherman (6X)	58.0	66.5	459.0	411.7
Outdoor Life	54.2	48.8	961.4	902.1
Outside Magazine	54.4	52.4	653.0	592.6
Petersen's Hunting	59.0	51.2	669.8	650.1
Runner's World (12X)	30.6	29.0	441.1	368.4
Salt Water Sportsman	69.8	53.9	1,188.4	1,004.0
Sierra (6X)	—	—	241.4	256.4
Shooting Times	34.8	28.5	453.6	442.3
Ski (8X) A.	167.9	167.1	961.4	864.1
Skiing (7X) A.	175.4	150.0	1,006.7	893.6
Skin Diver	106.5	90.2	1,254.3	1,104.2
Southern Outdoors (9X)	—	57.8	275.2	398.2
Southern Saltwater(8X)	—	—	224.4	—
Sport	49.1	59.7	494.3	474.9
Sports Afield	51.0	53.4	869.0	713.7
Tennis	46.7	56.3	847.4	840.6
Waterski (8X)	—	—	493.6	395.5
Western Outdoors (10X)	—	—	414.5	434.7
Wildfowl (6X)	28.4	19.1	118.6	96.9
Wing & Shot (6X)	—	—	99.4	27.9
World Tennis	22.9	14.5	423.8	332.9
Total Group	1,628.9	1,506.7	21,812.5	19,914.4
% change		8.1%		9.5%

(X) Represents the number of times published each year; publications are monthly unless otherwise specified.

A. Sectional linage included but prorated to circulation of regional editions. B. Sectional linage included but not prorated to circulation of regional editions. C. Combined unduplicated regional ads.

All figures represented in this chart are supplied by the magazines. ADVERTISING AGE makes no attempt to verify them and, therefore, is not responsible for inconsistencies or errors.

(Continued on Page 28)

(Continued from Page 27)

DECEMBER

Photography

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Petersen's Photographic	41.0	31.5	355.5	315.6
Popular Photography	—	—	—	—
Total Group	41.0	31.5	355.5	315.6
% change		30.2%		12.6%

Religious

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Charisma	59.6	47.7	631.6	612.1
Christian Herald (11X)	23.8	25.5	300.2	306.4
Christianity Today (18X)	31.7	32.5	549.5	537.9
Ministries Today (6X)	—	—	234.7	256.5
Moody Monthly	30.8	32.6	386.4	459.4
Our Sunday Visitor (52X)	13.6	10.0	171.9	136.6
Today's Christian Woman (6X)	—	—	229.9	203.3
Total Group	159.5	148.3	2,504.2	2,512.2
% change		7.6%		-0.3%

Science/electronic /mechanic

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Discover	36.9	49.4	521.8	433.2
Family & Home Office Computing	63.4	73.0	531.2	549.5
Omni	83.4	76.3	754.6	727.8
Personal Computing	220.7	139.7	2,134.6	1,514.3
Popular Mechanics	80.3	74.8	1,003.9	1,085.7
Popular Science	62.3	53.8	839.8	794.7
Scientific American	63.7	44.8	559.7	436.4
Spectrum	70.3	69.9	795.9	983.5
Total Group	680.8	581.7	7,141.5	6,525.1
% change		17.0%		9.4%

Woman/fashion/service

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Bride's Magazine (6X) A.	374.9	304.4	2,476.7	2,095.5
Cosmopolitan A.	171.2	170.6	2,409.5	2,445.4
Essence	76.8	74.6	931.0	965.5
Family Circle (17X) A.	193.4	199.7	1,649.0	1,792.3
Glamour	134.4	164.6	2,222.0	2,173.2
Good Housekeeping A.	159.4	193.8	1,707.2	1,973.9
Harper's Bazaar	93.0	113.8	1,605.3	1,711.5
Health	36.9	33.0	559.1	479.5
Ladies' Home Journal	137.6	116.7	1,296.7	1,350.0
Mademoiselle	111.0	142.6	1,779.4	1,639.0
McCall's	101.8	116.6	1,145.1	1,149.2
Military Lifestyle	68.6	69.2	509.7	522.2
Modern Bride (6X)	272.0	260.0	1,993.0	1,794.0
Ms.	42.7	40.5	518.0	475.7
New Woman	82.1	76.2	969.2	877.5
Parents Magazine A.	127.3	123.8	1,377.8	1,228.1
Redbook	102.3	116.7	1,222.4	1,183.3
Savvy	59.9	52.6	410.7	380.0
Self	60.5	72.8	1,194.3	1,167.3
Seventeen	80.9	81.0	1,459.6	1,376.5
Shape	65.7	68.6	871.2	860.5
Soap Opera Digest (26X)	21.2	20.6	220.7	199.2
'Teen Magazine	51.1	50.5	710.0	627.2
True Story A.	52.7	45.7	647.3	616.9
Vogue	223.9	204.0	3,302.7	3,193.9
W Magazine	68.2	64.7	1,493.3	1,352.1
Woman (9X)	37.0	35.0	327.0	196.5
Weight Watchers	25.3	23.5	375.7	398.2
Woman's Day (16X) A.	142.1	217.6	1,696.1	1,722.0
Women's Sports & Fitness	—	—	—	—
Workbasket	—	—	328.4	350.1
Working Mother	—	—	—	—
Working Woman	89.0	90.6	1,164.9	1,298.4
Total Group	3,262.7	3,343.9	38,572.9	37,594.6
% change		-2.4%		2.6%

Youth

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Boys' Life	27.1	14.9	217.4	198.1
Campus Life (10X)	56.8	50.5	470.1	447.2
Total Group	83.9	65.4	687.5	645.3
% change		28.4%		6.5%

NOVEMBER

Business/national

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Barron's	258.3	221.8	2,372.6	2,095.2
Black Enterprise	66.4	63.2	763.3	792.0
Business Week (52X) A.	665.6	457.9	4,254.0	3,530.2
Business Month	—	—	—	—
Financial World (26X)	85.1	56.3	678.7	604.7
Forbes (26X)	512.7	340.9	3,380.4	3,048.9
Fortune (26X)	308.9	324.4	2,776.3	2,631.7
Frequent Flyer	71.0	67.2	647.3	672.6
Futures	119.8	78.5	735.5	547.0
Income Opportunities	85.9	74.6	773.0	610.1
Industry Week (25X) A.	185.0	141.4	988.4	1,091.1
Nation's Business (12X) A.	34.4	40.7	369.1	382.0
Personal Investor (6X)	—	—	—	—
Venture	102.8	86.4	745.2	781.9
Total Group	2,496.0	1,953.3	18,483.7	16,787.3
% change		27.8%		10.1%

Business/regional

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Arizona Bus. Gazette (52X)	79.3	79.3	893.0	820.5
Baltimore Bus. Journal	114.8	86.0	1,003.9	745.3
Boston Bus. Journal (52X)	168.8	135.4	1,561.6	1,469.4
Business Atlanta	45.8	64.6	687.7	753.0
Business First of Buffalo	—	—	—	—
Business First of Columbus	101.8	154.5	1,202.2	980.7
Business Journal-Milwaukee	352.0	280.0	1,623.0	1,337.0
Business Journal-Sacramento	104.1	54.7	762.8	528.3
Business North Carolina	35.5	36.0	485.1	469.5
Capital Dist. Bus. Review (52X)	109.2	—	902.9	—
Cincinnati Business Courier	127.2	98.5	1,241.1	898.6
Corporate Report Kansas City	26.3	24.1	235.2	275.3
Corporate Report Minnesota	85.0	99.0	843.0	887.0
Crain's Chicago Bus. (52X)	200.0	183.0	1,718.0	1,819.0
Crain's Cleveland Bus. (52X)	83.8	61.1	717.8	709.9
Crain's Detroit Bus. (52X)	106.1	84.2	888.1	739.6
Crain's New York Bus. (52X)	50.5	35.0	440.6	394.0
Florida Trend (13X)	75.8	98.2	839.9	922.7
Georgia Trend	62.7	69.5	739.6	616.2
Grand Rapids Bus. Journal	47.5	36.2	516.5	393.5
Hawaii Business	53.3	49.6	516.8	519.9
Houston Bus. Journal (52X)	102.0	82.0	795.0	914.0
Indianapolis Bus. Journal (52X)	163.5	147.8	1,648.3	1,654.9
Kansas City Bus. Journal	50.5	35.0	440.6	394.0
Los Angeles Bus. Journal(55X)	92.7	50.5	880.4	412.8
Manhattan Inc.	86.2	106.7	835.6	811.7
New England Bus. (20X) A.	97.5	130.0	908.8	1,060.7
Pacific Bus. News (52X)	126.4	121.9	1,285.7	1,294.6
Philadelphia Bus. Journal (52X)	169.6	168.5	1,555.2	1,365.0
Pittsburgh Bus. Times (52X)	123.9	102.9	1,361.3	1,205.6
Providence Business News	88.4	44.0	782.0	278.2
Regardie's/Washington	183.0	104.0	1,625.0	1,393.0
San Diego Bus. Journal (52X)	39.2	50.3	360.7	401.8
San Jose Bus. Journal	90.6	95.3	1,123.5	1,216.6
St. Louis Bus. Journal (52X)	169.8	157.5	1,459.5	1,553.3
Texas Business	47.6	59.8	391.9	632.9
Total Group	3,660.2	3,184.8	33,272.2	29,868.5
% change		14.9%		11.4%

National Sunday magazines

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Parade (52X)	59.3	67.4	558.8	595.1
USA Weekend (52X)	53.9	58.4	445.6	555.9
Total Group	113.2	125.8	1,004.4	1,151.0
% change		-10.0%		-12.7%

Newspaper Sunday magazines

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Boston Globe	220.9	243.7	2,030.1	2,067.8
Chicago Tribune	159.7	115.5	1,251.6	1,026.7
Cleveland Plain Dealer	116.6	108.2	738.3	644.0
Columbus Dispatch	65.0	29.3	404.5	461.7
Detroit News	102.0	135.0	815.0	888.0
L.A. Times	84.5	80.1	616.1	757.4
Miami Herald	38.1	68.7	413.1	533.9
New York Times Magazine	528.4	492.2	3,842.4	3,778.9
Philadelphia Inquirer	95.7	110.5	851.4	771.0
Seattle Times	122.0	91.0	742.0	684.0
St. Louis Post Dispatch	150.5	110.1	881.8	671.5
Toledo Blade Magazine	44.4	47.9	432.5	500.6
Washington Post	119.9	170.9	1,367.8	1,431.1
Total Group	1,847.6	1,803.1	14,386.5	14,216.6
% change		2.5%		1.2%

Weeklies/bi-weeklies

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
The Advocate (26X)	145.3	132.0	1,516.6	1,411.3
Army Times Military Group:
Air Force Times (52X)	199.2	219.7	1,847.9	1,984.2
Army Times (52X)	200.7	213.7	1,805.1	1,868.6
Navy Times (52X)	216.7	222.2	2,007.2	2,074.8
The Blood-Horse (52X)	378.7	350.3	3,692.0	4,138.7
Capper's (26X)	23.3	31.6	288.5	305.7
Commonweal (22X)	13.5	10.5	89.6	76.8
Golf World (43X)	61.5	37.8	949.1	784.5
Grit (52X) A.	29.1	35.9	300.5	282.6
National Journal (50X)	62.7	55.0	728.5	638.4
National Review (25X)	46.2	36.2	385.8	336.5
New Republic (48X)	58.5	49.5	458.0	403.5
New Yorker	452.5	354.7	[illegible]	2,391.8
Newsweek (52X) A.	341.4	286.4	2,380.9	2,258.8
People (52X)	493.4	407.9	3,253.3	3,318.7
Rolling Stone (25X)	261.6	157.7	1,597.2	1,268.1
Sporting News (52X)	77.2	70.9	[illegible]	578.2
Sports Illustrated (52X) A.	341.0	286.1	2,440.9	2,451.4
Time (52X) A.	324.1	278.3	2,193.8	2,314.1
Travelhost (52X) C.	3,226.0	3,086.0	35,290.0	[illegible]
TV Guide (52X) A.	360.8	454.2	3,399.8	3,323.5
Us Magazine (26X)	82.0	88.3	546.0	489.9
U.S. News & World Report (52X) A.	214.3	180.6	1,489.1	1,427.9
Total Group	7,609.7	7,045.4	69,606.8	69,413.9
% change		8.0%		0.3%

Foreign

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
Business Week Int'l (52X)	323.9	150.4	1,512.0	1,454.6
Geomundo:
Argentina	4.0	3.0	42.0	18.0
Central America	9.0	7.0	70.0	47.0
Chile	5.0	7.0	52.0	52.0
Colombia	15.5	17.5	142.0	100.3
Ecuador	7.0	7.0	62.5	43.0
Mexico	12.0	22.5	94.2	110.7
Peru	5.0	4.0	54.0	34.0
Puerto Rico	7.5	4.0	63.5	32.5
U.S.	10.3	6.7	56.0	55.0
Venezuela	29.5	20.5	204.0	147.0
Hombre De Mundo:
Central America	12.0	5.0	69.0	54.3
Chile	9.0	5.0	63.0	54.3
Colombia	32.0	20.7	170.3	162.3
Ecuador	11.0	4.0	61.0	46.3
Mexico	17.0	29.7	124.0	191.3
Peru	8.0	2.0	42.0	31.3
Puerto Rico	13.0	4.0	74.5	44.3
U.S.	12.3	11.7	136.8	110.3
Venezuela	38.5	45.5	212.5	226.3
Ideas Para Su Hogar:
Argentina	5.3	—	27.0	18.2
Chile	—	1.0	—	1.0
Colombia	28.2	31.0	152.0	144.2
Ecuador	—	6.0	24.5	27.0
Mexico	23.2	23.2	119.5	109.0
Peru	10.0	7.0	63.5	36.0
Puerto Rico	—	—	—	0.2
U.S.	3.3	4.0	48.8	47.0
Venezuela	31.0	13.8	142.5	100.5
Mecanico Popular:
Argentina	10.7	5.0	89.5	52.3
Central America	10.7	13.5	100.3	101.8
Chile	6.0	6.3	52.3	51.7
Colombia	19.3	20.7	204.0	172.0
Mexico	18.3	22.7	200.0	146.7
Peru	17.0	16.0	145.2	127.8
Puerto Rico	7.3	10.5	82.8	78.0
U.S.	6.3	7.3	45.5	65.0
Venezuela	19.7	20.3	163.7	136.5
Vanidades Continental:
Argentina	20.3	2.0	175.8	78.8
Central America	47.8	47.3	228.5	219.7
Chile	15.7	9.7	66.5	50.3
Colombia	162.8	155.2	881.3	954.5
Ecuador	23.7	26.8	196.2	214.0
Mexico	143.3	154.2	900.7	930.2
Peru	45.3	41.7	251.5	195.5
Puerto Rico	59.2	35.2	402.8	344.5
U.S.	58.8	46.0	535.5	487.0
Venezuela	85.8	89.2	510.5	473.2
Hearst International Publications:
Buenhogar:
Central America	3.0	3.0	15.0	16.0
Chile	1.0	4.0	12.0	17.0
Colombia	41.5	53.8	369.0	378.2
Ecuador	11.0	17.0	105.0	128.0
Mexico	53.7	56.3	379.2	391.3
Peru	23.5	26.5	157.0	120.5
Puerto Rico	16.8	6.5	69.8	99.0
U.S.	9.3	13.7	194.7	213.8
Venezuela	54.3	41.3	313.8	252.3
Cosmopolitan en Espanol:
Central America	12.3	13.3	76.2	60.0
Colombia	39.0	42.8	240.8	204.2
Ecuador	3.0	1.0	23.0	3.0
Mexico	93.5	76.8	503.8	487.5
Peru	1.0	1.0	7.0	2.0
Puerto Rico	21.8	16.3	168.3	120.7
U.S.(Spanish language)	14.8	18.0	256.5	266.7
Venezuela	43.5	34.3	227.8	181.3
Cosmopolitan Foreign Editions:
Australia	117.8	114.8	724.4	775.1
Brazil	78.2	136.3	692.8	773.9
China	77.5	70.5	519.5	500.4
France	124.0	143.5	1,120.6	1,048.3
Germany	173.0	184.0	1,389.5	1,251.9
Great Britain	175.0	182.0	1,246.0	1,282.5
Greece	70.0	60.0	453.0	462.0
Holland	110.0	125.0	774.0	820.0
Italy	98.3	89.5	827.8	747.2
Japan	64.9	57.7	542.9	539.9
South Africa	122.0	120.0	850.0	905.0
Good Housekeeping Foreign Editions:
Australia	50.6	65.4	403.5	426.1
Great Britain	201.4	203.8	1,512.4	1,451.5
Johnston International:
Alam Attijarat	29.7	58.8	260.9	391.2
Far East Business	—	—	—	—
Modern Africa (6X)	17.2	13.0	81.1	115.7
Latin America Finance (6X)	20.0	18.1	113.2	111.1
Newsweek International A.:
Atlantic (52X)	152.8	125.0	912.2	919.5
Latin America (52X)	44.6	33.9	294.2	329.0
Asia (52X)	91.4	65.8	594.8	637.0
Progreso (9X)	7.3	11.6	57.1	83.2
Reader's Digest:
Arabic	8.0	7.5	87.5	78.0
Asian	140.0	184.0	1,694.0	2,224.5
Australian	59.3	61.3	525.8	610.1
Belgian-Flemish	104.0	132.5	583.0	810.1
Belgian-French	73.0	82.5	391.5	477.6
British	91.9	65.2	584.8	536.2
Chinese B.	92.5	85.5	989.4	1,107.3
Danish	29.5	29.3	324.3	351.1
Dutch	58.5	45.0	436.9	422.4
Finnish	43.0	61.8	479.5	507.6
French	35.8	25.5	285.2	177.2
German	129.9	100.5	860.1	711.9
Iberian	1.0	3.0	3.0	20.5
Indian-English	80.5	86.0	787.5	784.0
Indian-Hindi	4.5	15.5	117.5	112.5
Italian	53.3	45.5	513.8	375.5
Korean	40.0	25.0	383.1	280.8
Latin American:
Argentina	12.0	19.0	137.0	151.5
Brazil	—	—	—	18.0
Central American	4.0	5.0	43.0	75.0
Chile	25.0	8.0	141.0	134.0
Colombia	50.0	41.0	[illegible]	251.0
Ecuador	4.0	6.0	[illegible]	67.0
Mexico	91.9	77.7	684.0	644.2
Peru	3.0	6.0	37.0	78.0
Puerto Rico	4.0	4.0	36.0	49.5
U.P.B.	3.0	9.0	34.5	71.0
U.S. Spanish	20.0	9.5	109.0	166.0
Venezuela	3.0	4.0	38.0	67.0
New Zealand	50.5	63.5	530.8	612.8
Norwegian	9.0	13.0	171.6	86.0
Portugal	60.0	50.5	453.5	430.5
South African	34.5	95.5	817.5	878.0
Swedish	17.5	13.0	85.5	143.5
Swiss-French	40.0	42.0	275.5	260.3
Swiss-German	51.0	46.0	386.0	324.0
Time International:
Time-Asia	98.9	82.0	644.2	761.1
Time-Atlantic	189.1	142.1	1,038.3	1,067.0
Time-Canada	303.6	245.9	1,759.0	1,962.2
Time-Latin America	57.6	47.1	368.2	473.9
Visao (52X)	157.9	189.3	1,241.6	1,598.0
Vision/Latin America (24X) A.	41.7	39.7	301.3	313.4
Total Group	6,154.9	5,811.3	44,323.7	45,159.3
% change		5.9%		-1.9%

© Entire contents copyright 1987 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$1.50 a copy; $59 a year

12/30/87 C2710-1

NEWSPAPER
*3-DIGIT 200
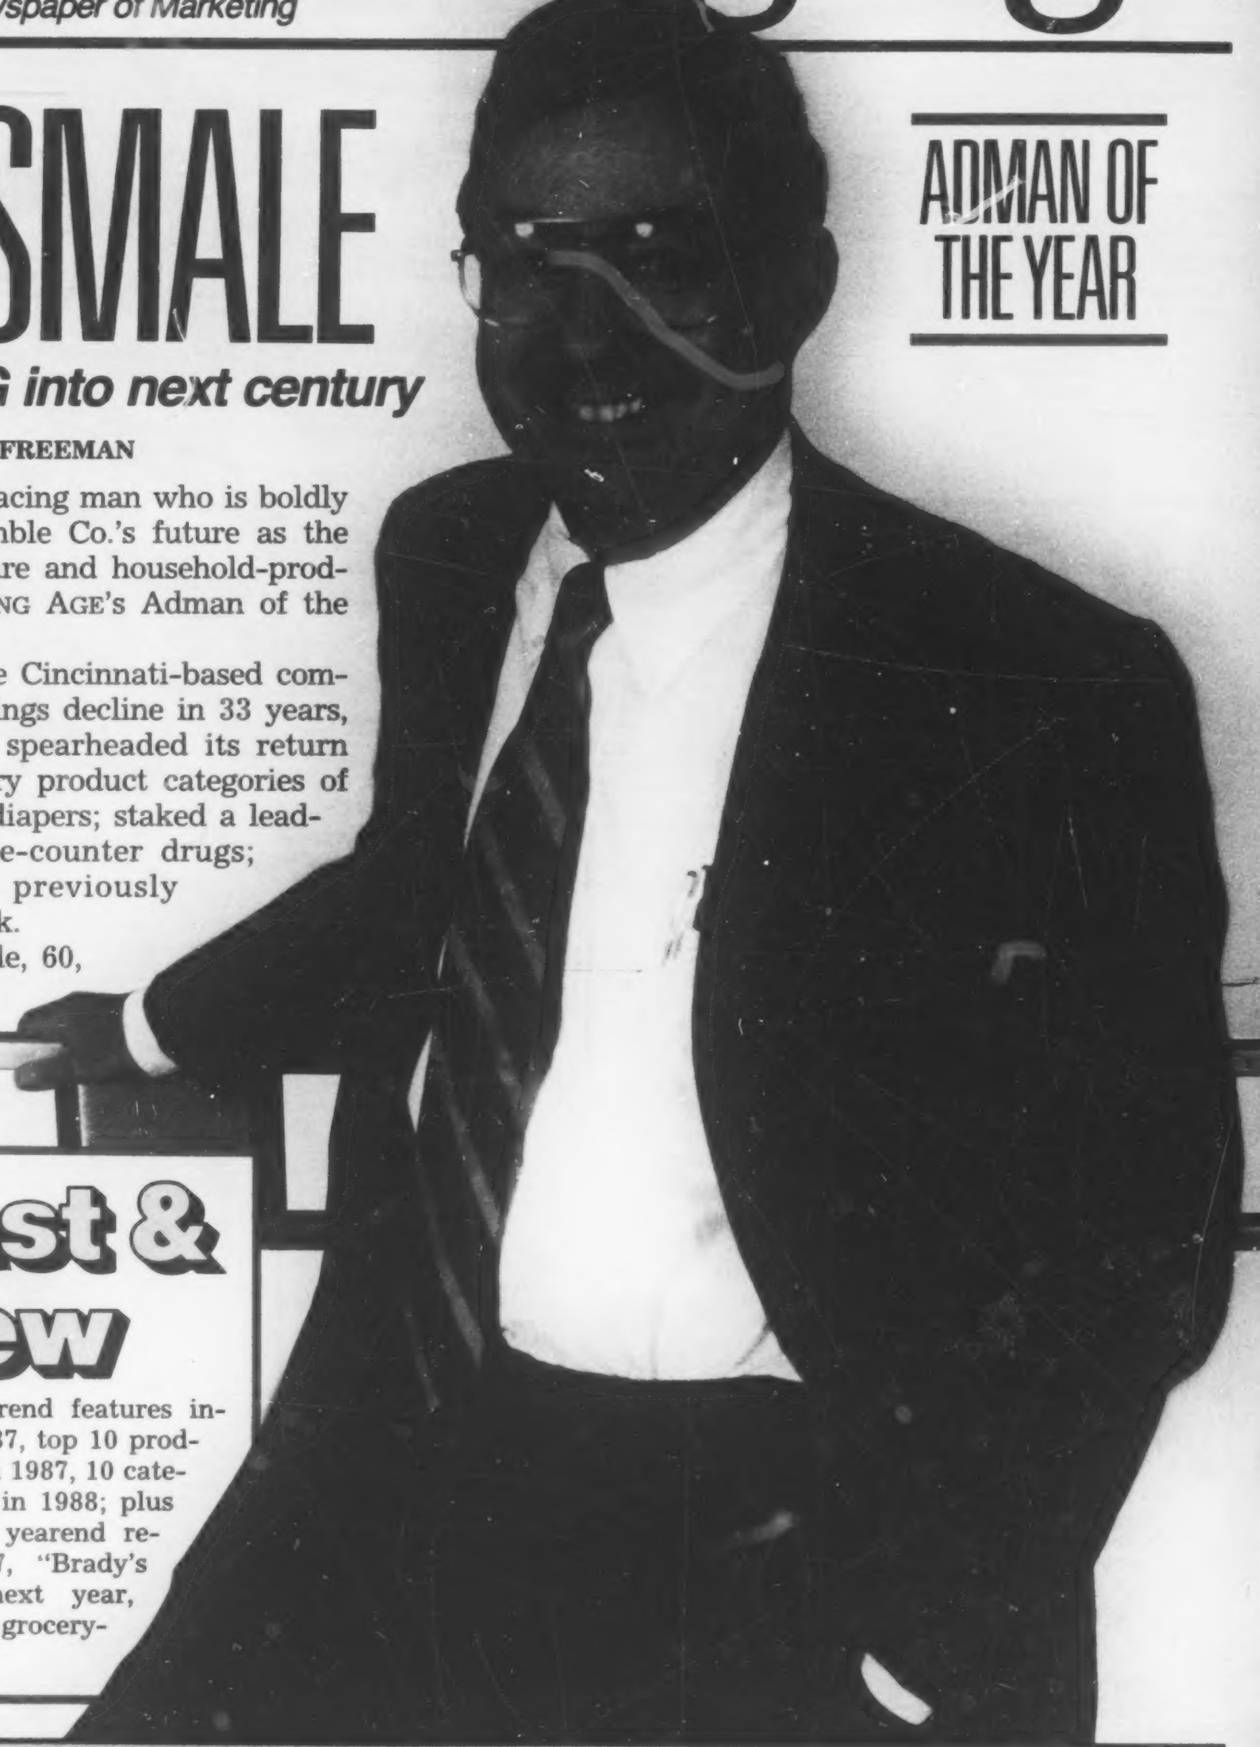
020190949 AA00 8752 COMP S42
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

December 28, 1987

Advertising Age®
Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing

JOHN SMALE

ADMAN OF THE YEAR



Ceo pushes P&G into next century

By LAURIE FREEMAN

John G. Smale, a self-effacing man who is boldly shaping Procter & Gamble Co.'s future as the nation's leading personal-care and household-products company, is ADVERTISING AGE's Adman of the Year.

In the two years since the Cincinnati-based company reported its first earnings decline in 33 years, Chairman-CEO Smale has spearheaded its return to dominance in the primary product categories of dentifrices, detergents and diapers; staked a leadership position in over-the-counter drugs; and given the company's previously stodgy advertising a new look.

By all accounts, Mr. Smale, 60,

(Continued on Page 26)

Forecast & Review

INSIDE: Our annual yearend features include: 10 newsmakers of 1987, top 10 products of 1987, top 10 events in 1987, 10 categories that will make news in 1988; plus International and Regional yearend reviews, Ad Follies of 1987, "Brady's Bunch" predictions for next year, SAMI's annual review of hot grocery-product categories.

What's behind Mars candy shifts?

Page 4

Forecast & Review 1987-88

10 EVENTS that moved the market in '87

Stock market fall
Account shifts
People meters
Rafting tragedy
Agency consolidations
Magazine rates
Tax on advertising
NFL strike
AIDS
15-minute celebrity

Stock market fall

The Oct. 19 stock market dive evoked deep anxiety about consumer spending during the Christmas season and sent financial companies scrambling.

Initial studies showed high levels of consumer confidence immediately after the crash. But later surveys revealed deterioration in the outlook of consumers.

The big issue—whether the market plunge signaled the onset of a recession—remained unanswered at yearend.

Analysts watched retail sales closely for signs of unexpected slowdowns in consumer spending, especially in hard goods and high-ticket items. Results were mixed. Merchants admitted concern, but were generally pleased by post-Thanksgiving sales that were on or slightly above target.

Overall, Christmas sales were expected to rise about 4.5% to 6%, unadjusted for inflation.

In the financial-services arena, the October bust burst the market's bubble.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith was the first major company to pull existing advertising and to put its top executives on the air Oct. 21 in new TV commercials.

Several major securities companies followed with messages asserting their stability, urging consumers to seek professional advice or pointing out investment opportunities.

Banks stepped in quickly to tout their safety and financial strength to consumers scared by the stock market's turbulence. Mutual funds adeptly shifted the focus of their advertising and promotion to relatively "safe" investments such as bond funds.

Discount brokers for the most part stayed out of the limelight, with the notable exception of Charles Schwab & Co., which ran a page newspaper ad apologizing for customer service problems during the market plunge.

Once it appeared the worst was over, Wall Street relaxed, but not for long. Responding to changes in the business climate caused in part by tax reform, several companies, including Kidder, Peabody & Co. and L.F. Rothschild Co., followed Salomon Bros.' lead in announcing staff layoffs and cutting their municipal bond departments to the bone.

Then the directors of E.F. Hutton Group, one of Wall Street's best-known companies, decided Hutton was not strong enough to go it on its own. After a flurry of offers from potential partners, Hutton accepted a $960 million offer from Shearson Lehman Bros. Holdings.

The Shearson/Hutton combination created a financial giant poised to mount a serious challenge to Merrill Lynch's leadership and threatened to spark a marketing battle among the top Wall Street brokerages.

Account shifts

A half-dozen top accounts representing more than $600 million in billings changed hands in 1987 in what will be remembered as a tumultuous year that tested client-agency relationships and shifted fortunes among the nation's leading agencies.

ADVERTISING AGE estimates the value of account shifts during 1987 at well over $1.2 billion. That figure included the two largest accounts ever to shift from one shop to an-

(Continued on Page 10)

10 CATEGORIES that will make news in '88

Olympics
Elections
Financial services
Olestra
Agency compensation
Consumer electronics
Skin care
Luxury sports cars
Ethical drug ads
Children's TV

Olympics

Every four years they come around together, presidential elections and the Olympics. But it was not the U.S. election in 1988 that executives at NBC-TV were most concerned about; it was the recent presidential election in South Korea, site of next year's Summer Games.

South Korea has earned an image of political volatility in the last year, causing advertisers to question the wisdom of holding such an important international event in Seoul. In mid-December, NBC had sold only about two-thirds of the commercial time in the 180 hours of Olympics programming it has planned for the last two weeks of September 1988.

Early on, the cost of a 30-second spot averaged across all dayparts was $176,000. The network's goal is to take in $600 million on the games.

NBC remained optimistic. "Right now, we're between 65% and 70% sold," a spokesman said. "We're happy with it, happy enough that we're considering raising our price."

Ironically, the games in Seoul are expected to be the least politically divisive in recent times. The deadline for nations to declare whether they will participate is Jan. 17, but for the first time since 1976, none of the major players is expected to boycott.

To date, the Koreans have been cooperative with NBC, agreeing to schedule many important events, including the opening ceremonies, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. so they can be shown live in U.S. prime time.

Among the major advertisers NBC has signed are American Isuzu Motors, Anheuser-Busch, Coca-Cola Co., Dow Chemical Co., Eastman Kodak Co., Federal Express Corp., General Electric Co., General Motors Corp., Hyundai Motor America, IBM Corp., Johnson & Johnson, K mart Corp., McDonald's Corp., Miller Brewing Co., Northwest Airlines, Quaker Oats Co., Prudential Insurance Co. of America, United Airlines, US Sprint Communications and Visa International.

Going into December, ABC was still an estimated $30 million short of its ad revenue goal of $425 million for the Winter Games in Calgary, Alberta. ABC, scheduled to devote almost 100 hours of airtime to schussing, skating and slaloming in the last two weeks of February, was asking $265,000 for a 30-second prime time spot in mid-February.

Other advertisers signed up for the Winter Games include American Airlines, Blue Cross & Blue Shield Associations, Chrysler Corp., Ford Motor Co., E&J Gallo Winery, Merrill Lynch & Co. and Stanley Works.

ABC, which paid the astronomical sum of $309 million for broadcast rights, has acknowledged it will lose a substantial amount on its Olympics venture.

Elections

Cable TV and videocassettes might be what is new in political advertising for 1988, but it is the old stories of money and negative TV spots that are expected to dominate the political advertising landscape in the upcoming presidential election year.

To date, cable's modest role in political advertising has been as a local-race medium, where a county office candidate, for example, can reach every wired home in his county.

But it is national cable that's showing signs of growth as a politician's medium.

Already the presidential campaign of Sen. Robert Dole (R., Kan.) is planning a national cable fund-raiser on Financial News Network, and Vice President George Bush's people also admit they may exploit national cable advertising in their candidate's bid for the Republican nomination.

Videocassettes are attractive substitutes for the real candidate. Instead of a fleeting glimpse of Sen. Hometown at a fund-raiser, groups are receiving lengthy cassettes that allow a candidate to lay out policies and platforms.

Campaign 88

But in the end, the campaign's prime ad topic again is expected to be how much money is spent, and whose ads were the nastiest. Already, projections of how much will be spent this presidential election year lurch past $500 million.

That alone practically guarantees that soon after the fall elections, some lawmaker will introduce legislation to cap campaign spending.

The regular exercises in anguish over negative political advertising could be more intense this coming year, at least if the politics of 1987 is any barometer.

With candidates admitting to such indiscretions as adultery, drug use and plagiarism, there's a greater chance than ever that 1988's negative advertising could be the sharpest ever.

That, in turn, could spark a resurgence of congressional interest in restricting who can say what in political spots.

But past interest in such legislation has been so limited that chances of any such bill becoming law are unlikely.

Financial services

Financial service marketers will struggle with new marketing problems and severe financial pressures in 1988. There is general agreement that the stock market's boom years are coming to a grinding halt.

Wall Street watchers anticipate further consolidation in the industry and additional layoffs as securities companies trim their bloated staffs.

The mood shift in the financial sector will be accompanied by a shift in marketing strategies, many observers said. The hard sell to investors will be less acceptable and

(Continued on Page 13)

Highlights

NEWS

8 Godfather's has new cook
Godfather's Pizza moves its $6 million-to-$8 million account to Fallon McElligott.

22 Reynolds spritzes Salem package
R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. is giving Salem cigarettes its first new packaging in 31 years.

23 Computers put new byte in design
J.S. Mandle & Co. devises a revolutionary computerized package design system.

29 PC direct marketers fight fraud
Direct marketers of personal computers are trying to improve the PC mail-order industry's image.

SPORTS
Emma Samms
'Dynasty's' Fallon
A Beauty in Blue on Catalina

Inside Sports' swimsuit issue rolls in February. P. 30.

Departments

Brady 18
Corrections & clarifications 4
Perspectivas 19
Viewpoint 16, 17

Vol. 58, No. 55—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $1.50 a copy, $59 a year, $104 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 (313) 446-0494.

ABP MPA RED TAG ABC

Why Mars is shifting shops

By JANET MEYERS

Mars Inc. is poised for a major overhaul of its candy advertising after yanking more than $40 million in combined billings from two of its largest U.S. shops.

The action apparently was a display of anger over perceived conflicts and agency megamergers.

The decision cost Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, an estimated $30 million in Mars assignments, including 3 Musketeers, Mars Bar, DoveBar, Twix, Ethyl M and P.B. Max, a new candy bar in test in Wisconsin.

Backer Spielvogel Bates Worldwide, New York, lost Milky Way, an estimated $10 million assignment.

Burnett is off the Mars roster; Backer still handles the most Mars business in the U.S. and overseas.

The changes come just weeks after a major shift of top executives at M&M/Mars, Mars Inc.'s confection division in Hackettstown, N.J.

But Backer Spielvogel Bates' loss of Milky Way is seen by sources as more of a disciplinary action by top executives at the parent company's McLean, Va., headquarters.

Reports are the executives considered offensive a recent newspaper ad from Backer's owner, Saatchi & Saatchi Co., which trumpeted Saatchi's 1987 profits.

Burnett's three-year marriage to Mars was considered a success by M&M/Mars, said Hans Fiuczynski, M&M/Mars external relations director.

But a conflict may have been simmering as Burnett client H.J. Heinz Co., Pittsburgh, and its Terminal Island, Calif.-based Star-Kist Foods unit in recent months began buying pet-food operations.

Burnett is the longtime agency for that company's 9-Lives cat food. But the recent acquisitions have significantly expanded its business.

Mars Inc. "feels the [Burnett-Heinz] conflict does not allow it to evolve the relationship internationally," Mr. Fiuczynski said.

Company executives were uncomfortable with the situation because Heinz' growing presence in the pet-food business posed more of a threat to Mars' Kal Kan Foods division. Mars ranks fourth in cat food, slightly ahead of 9-Lives. It also is a major pet food marketer overseas.

Mr. Fiuczynski said he did not know when the Milky Way brand would be reassigned and gave no indication if outside shops would be invited to pitch the account.

Mars' other major worldwide shops are D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, New York and St. Louis, which has domestic and international brands; Grey International, which in 1985 signed on for a limited number of pet-food and candy assignments; and Tatham-Laird & Kudner, Chicago, which has about $3 million for DoveBar's Forever Yours and Rondos brands.

Mars bought DoveBar International last year.

Those agencies stand to gain from Burnett's loss. Because ultrasecretive Mars likes to keep a small stable of agencies, it may have wanted to whittle down the roster, sources indicated.

J. Langdon, VP-brands and sales for M&M/Mars, said the former Burnett brands will be reassigned within the existing family of Mars agencies by April 1.

Burnett won two new assignments from Mars just this summer—the DoveBar ice cream confection and P.B. Max, Mars' first new candy bar in several years (AA, Aug. 3).

Burnett is finishing production of

(Continued on Page 29)

CORRECTIONS & CLARIFICATIONS

- The GE/RCA Consumer Electronics account was not Leo Burnett Co.'s only piece of business that the agency handled on other than a 15% commission basis (AA, Nov. 23, P. 1).
- Control Data Corp., Minneapolis, which owns Arbitron Ratings Co., New York, will become the world's second-largest marketing/-advertising research organization after it completes its acquisition of SAMI/Burke, Cincinnati, from Time Inc. (AA, Dec. 21, P. 14).
- Linda Petrillo has been named associate marketing manager at the Stendhal division of Sanofi Beauty Group, New York. She previously was advertising and sales cooordinator (AA, Nov. 30, P. 78).
- Among the 15 daily newspapers owned by Hearst Corp., the Boston Herald is not among them, as was reported in a profile in the Second 100 Leading National Advertisers (AA, Nov. 23, P. S-29).
- AC&R/DHB&Bess personnel on the Paramount Pictures Corp. account listed under Paramount's parent, Gulf & Western Industries, in the Second 100 Leading National Advertisers are Cheryl Lodinger, exec VP, and Vito Mandato, senior VP-account management. Norman Trell, reported as exec VP-media, no longer is with the agency (AA, Nov. 23, P. S-28).
- Miami's population is 43% hispanic, not 83% (AA, Nov. 23, P. 44).#

STANDOUT SUCCESS

When you compare us with other major dailies, you'll see we're quite unique. Because unlike other city papers that don't go beyond the city limits, our two daily papers reach 49% of all households in Phoenix and its surrounding metro area. That means, in the top 20 markets, we rank third in household coverage.* So, if you want your campaign to stand out, remember we're the address for success.

The Arizona Republic/The Phoenix Gazette

Million Market Newspapers/Times Mirror National Marketing
Source: Circulation '87/'88

*Based on 20 largest metro areas in population.

WHO MIXED UP BACARDI?

The same techniques that helped develop Bacardi's new Frozen Tropical Mixers, put Baking Soda in more than 30 million refrigerators, created the Magic Mushroom for Airwick, Sunkist Vitamin C Tablets, Glass Works for S.O.S...can spell success for you.

Why is 70% of all our business repeat business?

- Our success rate;
- We're sensitive to your needs.

We offer three different new product or re-staging programs. One is ideal for your needs.

To find out more, call or write Sonia Kallen (914) 631-8800.

New York: 55 South Broadway, Tarrytown, NY 10591. Chicago: 333 N. Michigan Ave., Suite 618, Chicago, IL 60601.

Schoenfeld, Chapman, Alm & Pearl Inc.

New Products/Brand Leveraging Consultants

BACARDI
BACARDI

BACARDI TROPICAL MIXERS: An important success that sells more rum!

SPOTLIGHT ON FOOD SALES

High-flying product categories, 1987

52 weeks ending Nov. 6, 1987. Source: SAMI/BURKE

Category	Annual food store retail sales ($ millions)	Annual tonnage gain (%)
DRY GROCERY: FOOD
Misc. snacks & dips	$180.4	+45%
Misc. fruit juices	8.4	+23
Bottled water	347.8	+23
Juice & juice-drink concentrates	40.4	+21
Fruit rolls & bars	308.7	+20
Low/reduced calorie salad dressings	169.6	+14
Cat food snacks	25.3	+12
Fruit pectin	180.4	+11
Blended fruit juices	132.9	+11
DRY GROCERY: NON-FOOD
Mildew removers	41.2	+15
Car-care products	30.4	+10
Heatable plastic bars & wraps	19.6	+ 9
Fireplace logs & bricks	52.0	+ 9
FROZEN FOODS
Frozen yogurt	24.8	+105
French toast & pancakes	81.4	+30
Corn dogs	49.2	+24
Breakfasts	198.7	+22
Mexican dishes	249.9	+22
Misc. prepared vegetables	73.0	+16
Dinner bread & rolls	341.6	+15
Sandwiches	99.6	+14
Prepared vegetables/cream sauce	24.3	+10
American-style prepared vegetables	48.9	+10
REFRIGERATED FOODS
Misc. yogurt products	9.6	+205
Misc. juices	105.0	+119
Misc. dough products	42.9	+34
Yogurt	998.2	+19
Puddings	49.3	+15
Drinks	287.7	+15
Pie crust	44.4	+11
Apple juice/cider	37.2	+11
HEALTH & BEAUTY AIDS
Lipcare products	42.4	+34
Eyecare products	203.3	+16
Hair spray	273.8	+14
Mouthwash	312.2	+14
Natural vitamins, minerals, supplements	63.4	+11
Hand & body creams/lotions	183.9	+11
Dental aids	28.1	+11
Stick deodorants/pads	308.4	+10
Cosmetic & medicated skin aids	114.3	+10

Food stores' sales log sluggish gains

By ALAN B. MILLER JR.

Food store sales did not rise much in 1987, and many product categories suffered volume losses.

Of the 474 categories of warehoused package goods tracked by SAMI/Burke, sales rose only 0.8% in units and just 2.2% in dollars for the year ended Nov. 6.

Among edible foods, there were 87 categories with 52-week tonnage gains, compared with 151 registering poundage losses. In the "dry grocery: non-food" arena, including household cleaners and supplies, paper and laundry products, and soaps and detergents, there were volume losses in 45 and gains in only 33.

Frozen-food gainers outpaced losers 39 to 33.

In the refrigerated foods categories, thanks in large measure to the growth of chilled juices and drinks, the growth categories outpaced the decliners 20 to 14.

Gains and losses were nearly even in the health & beauty aids categories, with 27 on the plus side and 25 with red ink.

Despite flat food-store volume in 1987 compared with 1986, there were important shifts. Frozen sweet goods as a category, for example, suffered a poundage decline of 6%, but within this category Boston cream cake volume soared 66%.

In the internal analgesic category, national food-store unit sales declined 1% overall, but volume of ibuprofen items rose 49%.

In some categories recording significant volume increases, the gains can be traced directly to important new-product introductions. Much of the growth in Italian, meat and poultry frozen entrees was provided by new Swanson Homestyle Recipe lines introduced by Campbell Soup Co. early in the year.

New premium or calcium-added refrigerated orange juice items from Procter & Gamble Co.'s Citrus Hill, Coca-Cola Foods' Minute Maid and Beatrice Cos.' Tropicana Products have contributed to the continuing growth trend in this category.

In other categories, important new products have created a churning. Four of the top 10 new dry grocery food brands were dry dog foods —Purina O.N.E., Grrravy, Tender Chops-All Tender and Tender Chops-Crunchy & Tender. But in spite of this high volume, poundage in the dry dog-food category fell 3.3%.

Common denominators

There are common denominators behind many of the upward trends of 1987. It would appear that new products with certain attributes have a leg up on those that cannot take advantage of basic changes or preferences in buying behavior.

Microwaveability, when accompanied by good quality, appears to have a high rate of acceptance, particularly in the case of frozen foods and, to a growing extent, shelf-stable foods. Volume sales in products especially formulated or packaged for specific use in microwave ovens amounted to $760 million in 1987, up 46% from '86.

The category with the highest volume of microwaveable items was shelf-stable popcorn, with sales of $269 million in 1987. That represented a gain of more than 59% from last year.

Another major upswing was exhibited by aseptic packages of juices and drinks, which passed $500 million in retail volume, reflecting a growth rate of more than 15%. More than 1.6 billion aseptic packages were bought in food stores during 1987.

Volume of low-sodium products in selected categories grew slightly from 1986, accounting for more than $370 million in '87. The highest-volume levels were found among butter and butter/margarine blends, snack nuts, salt and canned corn or green beans.

Sales of selected light or sugar-free items showed mixed trends. They ranged from a 52-week dollar gain rate of 24% for low-calorie mayonnaise or spoonable salad dressing to an 18% loss for sugar-free milk modifiers.

Health buzzwords

Another common denominator is fiber, which SAMI has been tracking in the ready-to-eat cereal category. Some 17 high-fiber brands in this category account for $794 million, a gain of 6% in dollars.

Decaffeination is another health-oriented buzzword that figures into coffee and tea sales. Decaffeinated tea bags in 1987 accounted for 13.1% of total dollar volume and sales rose 16%. Decaffeinated ground coffees gained share in 1987, while instant coffees' share fell slightly to 31.2% in dollars in '87 from 32.7% in '86.

Growth also is in evidence among foods in squeezable containers. In the 11 product categories in which these plastic food containers are being scrutinized on a continuing basis, dollar sales rose 9% to $659 million.

Squeezable containers now account for 47% of ketchup sales, 55% of maple syrup and 36% of prepared mustard. They have lost share in the jams, jellies and preserves category.

Another special universe being tracked is high-quality, new frozen entrees and dinners, paced by Campbell, ConAgra Inc. and Stouffer Corp., among others. These "gourmet" entrees now account for $1.1 billion in sales, growing 2.3% since 1986. Sales of the higher-price frozen winners increased 18% in annual dollars and 12% on a poundage basis.

Some of the other universes exhibiting growth going into 1988 are low-cholesterol products; Cajun items; high-quality items other than frozen foods; and products with health-oriented additives such as calcium and fish oil.#

Mr. Miller is a New York-based consultant to SAMI/Burke, Cincinnati.

Foodservice to gain data

Product tracking planned

By SCOTT HUME

Food manufacturers serving the $200 billion foodservice industry will gain access next year to data on market shares and sales trends.

The availability of the new data is expected to change significantly companies' marketing strategies and ad spending. About $75 million is spent annually on foodservice trade advertising.

The International Foodservice Manufacturers Association, which represents nearly 500 food, equipment and supply manufacturers, has begun soliciting member participation in a series of Product Tracking Studies.

Those studies are intended to provide the first data on manufacturers' shipments of foodservice products. While Cincinnati-based SAMI/Burke has for many years tracked chain warehouse food shipments to retail grocery stores, no such data on foodservice sales have been available.

"This is an industry that's hungry for numbers," said Ken Miller, marketing manager at J.M. Smucker Co., Orrville, Ohio. "Collecting this kind of data has been tried before, but never successfully. IFMA has the clout to do it, and this looks like the best, most organized effort to date."

Food manufacturers' reluctance to divulge sales and product-specification data has been a major stumbling block. To overcome that, quarterly product shipment reports will be sent to accounting firm Ernst & Whinney, Cleveland, which will tabulate and prepare reports.

Companies subscribing to the reports will get category totals from which they can extract their market shares, but not hard figures on individual competitors' sales or shares.

Subscription costs will be $2,500 per category per year.

These data are expected to influence decisions on new-product development, ad budgets and seasonal timing of sales promotions.

"There never have been hard sales numbers available in the foodservice industry, which means you have major companies like Kraft, Quaker and the others marketing in the dark," said John Orr, managing partner of Wheaton, Ill.-based Armantrout Orr Associates. The consultancy is working with IFMA to develop product categories being tracked.

"Foodservice is a very tough industry to track, because you've got more than 500,000 outlets being served and because the distribution is so dispersed," Mr. Orr said. "The major companies only account for about 12% of the total, with the rest handled by guys with one or two trucks.

"By tracking shipments from the manufacturers, we'll finally get a fix on this market."

Armantrout Orr Associates is working with manufacturers to determine how product categories are defined and how data will be presented (in dollars or pounds or however participants desire).

Once participation in any given product category is determined to represent at least 80% of that category's volume, collection of data and creation of quarterly reports will begin.

The Chicago-based IFMA already has fielded two pilot studies, covering foodservice sales of cheeses and of jams and jellies.

The success of those studies prompted the rollout of the program to other categories.

Baking mixes, bacon and coffee are the next studies planned, with 100 product categories expected to be involved during the next two to three years.

"What we gained from the pilot tracking study [on jams and jellies] was data on the mix of product package sizes and volumes of specific flavors we never could get before," Smucker's Mr. Miller said. "We're a company that believes in market planning and that data quantifies product potential."

The marketing reverberations should be immediate and significant, Mr. Orr said.

"If you're a manufacturer of baking mixes and you see that chocolate cake shipments are rising, you'd better be in that category or at least increase advertising and promotional support for it if you are in it," he said. "The data on which to base those decisions has been awfully sketchy until now."#

E-II buys Cajun food company

CHICAGO—Jumping onto the Cajun-Creole bandwagon, E-II Holdings, a company that owns various former Beatrice Cos. brands, has acquired Zatarain's Inc., Gretna, La.

Zatarain's is a regional marketer of Cajun and Creole seasonings and condiments. Its principal products are breadings, seasonings, rice mixes and sauces.

E-II Holdings spent $35 million to acquire the company from Wyndham Foods, Houston.

When formed in July, E-II Holdings stated its intent to acquire large and small consumer-product companies that fit in with its existing businesses.

E-II will run Zatarain's through its Martha White Foods subsidiary, Brentwood, Tenn. Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Minneapolis, handles Martha White; Zatarain's does not have an agency of record.#

MARKETING TO HISPANICS

Perspectivas

Edited by Ed Fitch

NUMBERS GAME

PHONES KNOCK ON DOOR'S DOMAIN

More shots are being fired in the war over the merits of using telephone interviews to sample U.S. hispanics.

Detractors say phone ownership levels are not high enough to accurately represent the U.S. hispanic population (AA, Sept. 28). Strategy Research Corp., Miami, claims only 69% of U.S. hispanic households have telephones and only 31% have listed numbers.

Troy Thomas

Market Development Inc., San Diego, reports 85% of hispanics have phones, claiming this makes phone sampling a viable, cost-effective research method.

"If 30% of hispanics don't have phones, you can't accept phone studies because too many are missed. But if only 10% or 15% of the total sample are excluded, it becomes an acceptable methodology," said Peter Roslow, director-marketing, Telemundo Group, New York.

As part of the television network's recent study of hispanics in Los Angeles, Miami, New York and San Francisco, Telemundo reports 40% of hispanics surveyed have listed phone numbers, 39% unlisted, 9% did not have a phone and 13% refused to say.

"A gray area exists on the question of whether a phone is available to them," Mr. Roslow said. "But the difference between the 9% [that say they don't have a phone] and the 30% that's often claimed shows that the 15% that the U.S. Census claimed was realistic." The 1980 census estimated 84% of households in the 11 largest U.S. hispanic markets had phones.

Hispanic research is geared to door-to-door interviews, and the infrastructure needed to perform phone surveys is not yet established, he said.

"Once the infrastructure is up, then savings will be realized. It's hard to pinpoint, but they could be up to 20%."

Phone surveys also offer greater control in interviewing, said Mr. Roslow, who started his career in the hispanic market as a researcher.

A recent study conducted by Information & Analysis, Hicksville, N.Y., for the Spanish Radio Advisory Council, New York, found respondents reported higher Spanish-language radio listenership when interviewed in person than when questioned by telephone (AA, Nov. 30). "There tends to be more bias in door-to-door," he said.

Mr. Roslow did not dismiss door-to-door methods; the Telemundo data was gathered via in-home interviews. "Whether you use phone or not depends on what you're looking to measure," he said.

It also depends on who you are measuring. MDI's study, which analyzed phone ownership in Chicago, Los Angeles, Miami, New York and San Antonio, shows the disparity in phone ownership between hispanics and non-hispanics is greatest at lower income levels.

English-dominant hispanics also are more likely to own phones than Spanish speakers, although this was not much of a factor in the bicultural markets of Miami and San Antonio.

According to Telemundo's findings, 93% of Miami respondents claimed to have a phone. However, that figure fell to 56% in San Francisco, which is experiencing a surge of new hispanic arrivals. In Los Angeles and New York, phone ownership stood at 75% and 77%, respectively.

In another move that bolsters phone methods, the SRAC recommended in early December that the Spanish-language radio industry use the same type of telephone sampling techniques utilized by I&A in its test. Beginning next spring, stations in 15 of the top 16 U.S. hispanic markets—Sacramento, Calif., a one-Spanish-language-station market, is excluded—are being asked to survey listeners by phone.

The SRAC, made up of representatives from such general-market agencies as D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles and Saatchi & Saatchi Advertising Worldwide and companies such as Procter & Gamble Co. and McDonald's Corp., said findings based on in-home interviews were too high to be believed and did not offer enough sampling controls and random selection, said Eduardo Caballero, president of Caballero Spanish Media, New York, who observed the meeting.

Although the stations his company represents may report lower listener levels, Mr. Caballero welcomed the request. "Now we won't have to sell the research concept. I prefer a 40 share that people believe vs. an 80 share that no one puts any faith in."

Mr. Caballero suggested that more media outlets will follow similar methodologies to satisfy general-market agencies and clients.

■ Other findings of the Telemundo study, conducted by Market Opinion Research, back up recent results of a Univision-sponsored analysis of hispanics TV viewing habits (AA, Nov. 30).

The Telemundo study reported that hispanics spend 6.7 hours each day watching TV. Of this, 4.9 hours are spent viewing Spanish-language TV.

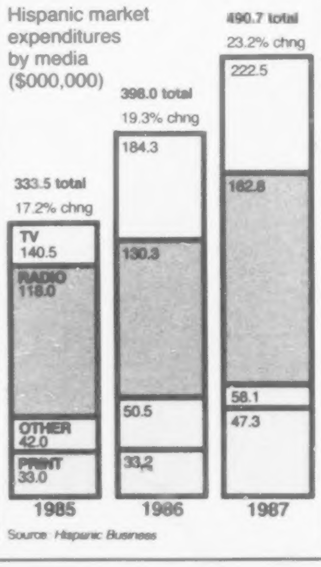
About 47% of respondents do not understand English at all or not very well. Even among those who understand English, almost 60% spend most or all of their time watching Spanish-language TV; 23% of the total sample watch English-language TV most of the time and only 6% watch it exclusively.

Concerning advertising, 64% said they would be more likely to buy products advertised on Spanish-language TV vs. English-language TV; 80% agreed that an advertiser that uses Spanish-language TV "really wants my business."

■ Hispanic Business, Santa Barbara, Calif., has released its annual study of hispanic market advertising expenditures.

Philip Morris Cos., New York, was rated the market segment's No. 1 advertiser. Philip Morris reportedly increased its spending 77.3% to $13.3 million in 1987. Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati, slipped from No. 1 in 1986 to the No. 2 slot, spending $12 million, up 50% from 1986. Adolph Coors Co. jumped to the No. 3 position by boosting its budget 145% to $9.8 million.

The market steps up



Source: Hispanic Business

ON THE AIR

COLUMBIA SERIOUS ABOUT SITCOM

Columbia/Embassy Television, Burbank, Calif., is considering a Spanish-language broadcast of "Trial & Error," a sitcom scheduled as a midseason replacement and described as an hispanic-oriented "Odd Couple."

"It's not a reality yet," said Don DeMesquito, VP-corporate communications at Columbia/Embassy. "We're still studying whether it's technically possible."

Spanish-language broadcasts would be offered on CBS affiliates in the six largest U.S. hispanic markets when the show debuts in January or February. If the response is positive, the concept probably would be considered for additional markets and other shows, Mr. DeMesquito said.

■ Don Raider, exec VP-chief operating officer at Telemundo Group, New York, denied reports that the network has committed to a Spanish-language news show developed by Cable News Network, Atlanta. The CNN pilot reportedly would have replaced the network's "Noticiero Telemundo" news show, produced by Hispanic-American Broadcasting Corp. (HBC), Miami.

On Jan. 2, the network will launch "Telemundo SportsCenter," a Saturday afternoon feature that will cover boxing and soccer events and feature Olympic reports and sports news wrapups. An action/adventure-oriented programming block targeting men will be added on Jan. 16 to tie into "SportsCenter."

The network added "Estrenos y Estrellas," which reviews movies and TV shows, and features music videos and personality interviews.

Mr. Raider said the network's satellite probably will go up Jan. 11.

■ Univision, Los Angeles, also will expand sports programming in 1988, breaking into Saturday and focusing on auto racing, soccer and boxing events. A college football package also will be introduced.

A second two-minute daily sports brief will be added. Adolph Coors Co., Golden, Colo., sponsored the segment in 1987.

"We had a 700% increase in billings in 1987," said Joe Weidensall, Univision's director-sports. "We represent 4% of programming, but 10% of ad revenue."

Univision also revamped its novela lineup, adding "El Camionero y La Dama" and "Rina" in the 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. slot and "La Dama de Rosa," "Quinceanera" and "La Indominable" from 7 to 10 p.m. Topo Gigio, the mouse puppet of "Ed Sullivan Show" fame, stars in a new variety/comedy show airing at 5 p.m. on Saturday.

■ "Sabado Gigante" again is the top-rated Univision show as measured by Strategy Research Corp., Miami. During the Oct. 31 to Nov. 6 sweep, the game/variety show pulled a 43 household rating.

"La Dama de Rosa" and "El Pecado de Oyuki" followed with 41 and 36 ratings, respectively. The network's early evening weekday news also pulled a 36 rating. The network's Sunday night movie followed with a 27 rating.

SRC will begin rating Telemundo programming shortly.

■ UPI Radio Noticias, Washington, will add weekend hourly news reports to its Monday-through-Friday broadcasts. Sports reports likely will be added in 1988.

SHOP TALK

NEW SHOP HOPES CABLE ADS SELL

Joseph Orbi, formerly VP-creative director of AC&R/Rossi, New York, and his brother George opened Orbi & Orbi in Hartsdale, N.Y. The agency handles Executive Coffee Break, a division of San Juan, Puerto Rico-based Cafe Crema, and the Westchester Opera, Ossining, N.Y., said Joseph Orbi, chairman. George Orbi will be president.

The agency will run 30-second, English-language cable spots in New York to attract clients, and will pursue both hispanic and general-market advertising accounts.

■ WPP Group, London, acquired Mendoza, Dillon & Asociados, Newport Beach, Calif. (AA, Dec. 21).

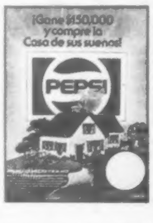
MAIN EVENT

PEPSI FINDS KEY TO PROMOTIONS

Pepsi-Cola USA, Somers, N.Y., has found the key to encouraging hispanic participation in promotions. In November Pepsi gave away $150,000 toward the purchase of a home to the winner of a Univision-televised contest.

Following a weekend of wining and dining 10 finalists in Los Angeles, Luz Ayalla Carrillo, a housewife from Buena Park, Calif., won the contest, in which finalists tried to unlock the door of a toy house.

For 11 weeks before the event, Pepsi placed nine TV spots weekly on Univision promoting the contest and aired a weekly lottery drawing-style segment during which finalists were selected. Point-of-purchase material, print ads and radio spots supported the "Dream House" contest, via agency Publicidad Siboney, New York.



¡Gane $150,000 y compre la Casa de sus sueños!
PEPSI

The contest was an extension of a similar promotion created last year by Pepsi's Los Angeles-area bottler. "We saw it as a good opportunity to do something larger. This is the first promotion of its type nationally," said Hernand Gonzalez, Pepsi's director-hispanic marketing.

Bottlers in Miami and San Antonio, Texas, localized the promotion, also giving away $150,000 toward home purchases in concurrent contests. The Los Angeles bottler offered new furniture.

Response was extremely strong, because hispanics are not jaded by promotional saturation, said Nilda Velez, Siboney's promotions manager. "The effect on sales can't be measured yet, but we generated a phenomenal number of entries. We started with a normal size raffle drum and had to transfer to a swimming pool," she said.

Mr. Gonzalez said the prize's unusual nature encouraged response. "It's not the usual trip or sweepstakes. It creates a lot of excitement among consumers and at retail," he said. "Early reports from the store level are strong."

PRODUCT & ACCOUNT ACTIVITY

■ Seven-Up Co., Dallas, named Casanova, Pendrill Publicidad, Irvine, Calif., its first hispanic agency of record. The agency will concentrate on creating a national campaign, and also is expected to work with bottlers.

■ Polaroid Corp., Cambridge, Mass., reassigned its hispanic account to Conill Advertising, New York, after having been inactive in 1986. Budget has not been established yet, but Fil Fernandez, Polaroid's marketing program manager-hispanic market, said the account will be very active.

Standard Brand Paint Co., Torrance, Calif., $500,000 account also to Conill (AA, Dec. 14).

■ Frito-Lay, Plano, Texas, has assigned Merced Benitez Machin & Asociados, San Juan, Puerto Rico, to handle its hispanic marketing and promotional activities in Miami. Casanova, Pendrill remains Frito-Lay's hispanic agency of record.

Doug Boyle, Frito-Lay's director-field marketing/west, cited MBM's proximity to the Miami market as the reason. He also said Frito-Lay's hispanic budget would increase significantly in 1988.

■ Kraft Inc., Glenview, Ill., will introduce two more products to hispanic markets via Spanish-language media in 1988. In addition to Kraft mayonnaise and Kraft Singles, the company will promote Parkay spread and a yet-undetermined fourth brand via J. Walter Thompson Hispania, Chicago.

■ WIND-AM named San Jose & Associates, both in Chicago, to handle advertising, promotions and public relations.

■ San Diego Wild Animal Park and Zoo named Latin Ad, San Diego, its first hispanic agency of record.

■ Warehouse Grocery has appointed Montemayor & Asociados, both located in San Antonio, Texas, its first hispanic agency of record. The assignment covers advertising, media placement and promotional planning.

1/11/88 C2710-1

Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

January 4, 1988

NEWSPAPER

*3-DIGIT 200
020190949 AA00 8801 COMP PYZ
CONGRESSIONAL INFC SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing

How GM is shifting gears

A fresh look at the future

By RAYMOND SERAFIN

DETROIT—General Motors Corp. will make a major effort to revive its sagging image by trumpeting its futuristic technology in an invitation-only show this week at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York.

But with much less fanfare, GM is putting into place a new market-segmentation scheme that is far more crucial to the automaker's recovery than any gee-whiz technology.

The segmentation strategy departs from the elegantly simple scheme, developed in the 1920s by then-President Alfred Sloan, that has guided GM since that time.

Mr. Sloan envisioned GM's divisions as a price ladder, a system that worked with little change for a half-century and helped GM become the world's biggest automotive company.

Under Mr. Sloan's system, Chevrolet brought the first-time car buyer into the GM system at the lower rung, and, as that customer became more affluent, he moved up to Pontiac, then Oldsmobile, Buick and, finally, Cadillac.

Now the ailing giant faces new challenges, and Chairman-CEO Roger Smith is working to reposition the company for leadership in the 21st century.

GM's share of the U.S. automobile market dropped to 37% from about 42% during the 1987 model year.

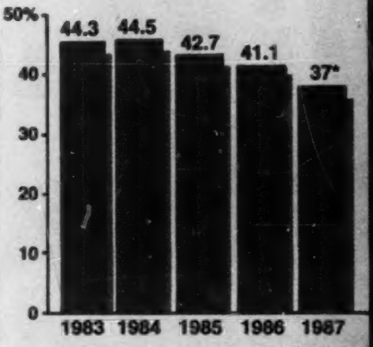
Additionally, the company's earnings are lagging behind archrival Ford Motor Co. for the second straight year and GM is saddled with the highest unit costs in the business.

"We've been competing too much with ourselves, while our competitors carved out parts of the market where we didn't compete," said Jay Qualman Jr., general advertising director for the Buick division.

Crucial to the new segmentation

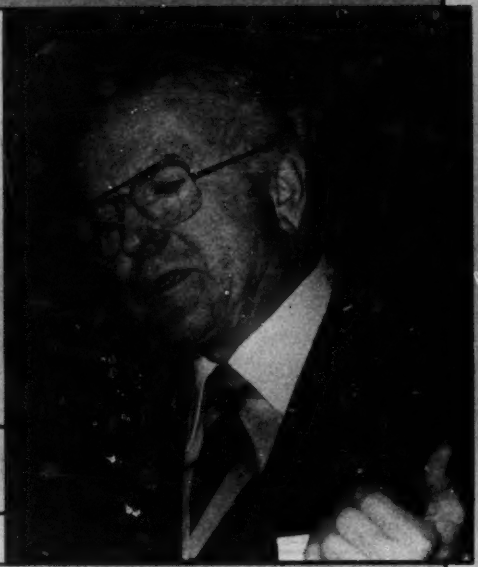
(Continued on Page 42)

General Motors market share



* estimate

Sources: General Motors, Automotive News



GM Chairman-CEO Roger Smith

Last Minute News

Riney may keep some Gallo work

MODESTO, CALIF.—Hal Riney & Partners, San Francisco, which resigned the $75 million E&J Gallo Winery account last month (AA, Dec. 7), may keep an undetermined piece of the Gallo business, an agency source said. There is speculation Gallo may split the business among at least three shops. Senior executives from Wieden & Kennedy, Portland, Ore., met with Gallo Chairman Ernest Gallo. N W Ayer, New York, which handles Gallo media buys, apparently also is under consideration.

Polaroid seeks shop for new camera

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Polaroid is seeking an agency to handle an inexpensive camera aimed at teens. It reportedly is talking to Goodby, Berlin & Silverstein, San Francisco, and other shops about the $1 million-to-$2 million account. BBDO Worldwide, New York, is Polaroid's agency of record.

P&G moves $10M Pantene account to Grey

CINCINNATI—Procter & Gamble Co. has moved its $10 million Pantene

(Continued on Page 8)

Campbell faces Nissin with Oriental soup

Bow to the East

By JUDANN DAGNOLI

Campbell Soup Co., a relative newcomer to the instant-soup market, is poised to combat the success of "the Japanese threat" with its own Oriental-style entry.

The Camden, N.J.-based company is developing an Oriental dry soup for market testing early this year. Tentatively called Noodle Nest, the product is expected to have 80% less fat than other dry Oriental-style soups.

No agency has been assigned the new product.

Campbell USA President Herb Baum often has referred to the success of Oriental noodle soups as "the Japanese threat" and said the company was gearing up to match the Japanese production efficiencies.

The U.S. marketer recently introduced its first national entry in the dry-soup arena, Campbell's Cup (AA, Aug. 3). Backer Spielvogel Bates, New York, handles.

Meanwhile, potential Campbell competitor Nissin Foods is claiming victory in the $460 million dry-soup war over category leader Thomas J. Lipton Inc.

Gardena, Calif.-based Nissin, marketer of Top Ramen, Oodles of Noodles and Cup O' Noodles soups, said it surpassed Lipton in dry-soup unit sales for the first time for the 52-week period ended Oct. 9.

The company said it had a 23.2% share of the total

(Continued on Page 8)

Brit spaceways

"Spaceflight," a 60-second TV commercial for British Airways, heads for the U.S. this year. The spot features a supersonic Concorde flying to the moon and Mars. Saatchi & Saatchi, London, created.

Marketers learn: Make plans now or yule be sorry

An Advertising Age roundup

As the 1987 holiday season becomes a ghost of the past, marketers already are preparing for the Christmas yet to come.

"For many of our clients, plans for this year's Christmas have to begin now, in terms of planning new products and buying media," said one executive at Chiat/Day, Los Angeles.

The toy industry, having learned some lessons from disappointing Christmas sales last year, is expected to promote its 1988 lines earlier in the year and to become less dependent on tie-ins with animated children's TV programs, industry observers said.

By advertising earlier, companies will be able to separate the hits and duds sooner and plan Christmas marketing strategies before the fourth quarter.

Tonka Corp., Minnetonka, Minn., is pinning its hopes on the

(Continued on Page 42)

South shops merge

Move forms $125M agency

By JO BETH McDANIEL

ATLANTA—Tucker Wayne & Co., the largest independent ad agency here, is merging with Luckie & Forney, Birmingham, Ala., to form a $125 million Southeastern shop.

The merger follows an agency shakeout here and creates Tucker Wayne/Luckie & Co., the city's largest ad shop. Tucker Wayne & Co. was an $82 million shop; Luckie & Forney's billings are $47 million.

The merger will make both shops "more competitive on the national and regional advertising scene," said Knox Massey Jr., Tucker Wayne president.

"The $10, $20, $50 million accounts are increasingly disenchanted by the mega-agencies," he said. "When you pass $100 million, you pass the threshold of capabilities and services to feed into major advertisers. But it's not like getting lost in a $4 billion agency."

Though the client rosters of the two agencies are remarkably similar, there are no client conflicts, said Robert Luckie, chairman-ceo of Luckie & Forney, who will remain head of the Birmingham office.

The two agencies handle separate BellSouth divisions, Southern Bell in Atlanta and South Central Bell in Birmingham. Other major clients include two large bakeries and three banks—SouthTrust of Alabama, SunTrust of Florida and Trust Co. of Georgia.

The move caps off a yearlong series of Atlanta mergers that saw independent Burton-Campbell swallowed by Earle Palmer Brown Cos., Bethesda, Md.; Omnicom Group's Cargill, Wilson & Acree merged into its Dallas-based Tracy-Locke; and Atlanta's oldest agency, Liller Neal, purchased by Noble Communications, Springfield, Mo.

The two offices will operate separately, with principal officers retaining their titles and no staff changes expected.#

Highlights

NEWS

4 Jovan spots boost Beecham
Beecham Cosmetics may be on the selling block, but it still plans a major Olympics-year marketing push.

18 Launch of the liquids overseas
Colgate-Palmolive Co.'s rollout of its Galaxy liquid dishwasher detergent is sparking a flow of new-product launches in Europe.

19 Chrysler wages European push
Chrysler will back its re-entry into the European passenger car market with a multimillion-dollar ad effort, starting next March in West Germany.

20 Shopping net faces turmoil
Home Shopping Network could lose money this fiscal year if it fails to control expenses and expand its customer base.

36 Studios target tape rentals
Home video companies are determined to revive lagging consumer interest in video rentals with unprecedented first-quarter multimillion-dollar ad blitzes.

40 Shopping for a niche
Natural grocery stores are seeking a larger share of the retail food market by shedding their granola and tofu image to appeal to young professionals.

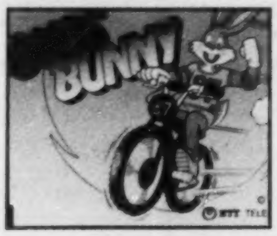
41 Female voice-overs still numbered
Despite a study last year that indicated women's voice-overs are as effective as the male voice, agencies and marketers have not dramatically increased use of them.

43 Homeless featured in PSA
Award-winning director Leslie Dektor has created a wrenching public service spot highlighting the plight of the homeless.

INTERNATIONAL

22 Charro challenges Benetton
Charro SpA, an aspiring Italian fashion design company, is battling Benetton and Stefanel head-on for control of the international youth clothing market.

AD REVIEW: Garfield looks at music. P. 46.



Prepaid cards: The jingling of pocket change in Japan may be a thing of the past, as prepaid magnetic cards gain popularity to pay for phone calls or railway tickets. Consumers are even being allowed to design their own cards (above). McDonald's Japan Corp. plans to introduce them soon. Page 22.

Departments

Brady 26
Brady's Bunch 36
Global Gallery 28
MediaWorks 31
PeopleWorks 32
Photo Review 30
Viewpoint 12, 14, 16

Vol. 59, No. 1—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $2.00 a copy, $84 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970

Lotus ethics suit against agency may be settled

By ALAN RADDING

BOSTON—A controversial client-agency battle over ethics is moving into the next stage, and it may result in an out-of-court settlement.

Rossin Greenberg Seronick & Hill filed its countersuit against Lotus Development Corp. last week, charging the software marketer with damaging the agency's reputation.

N. Hill

Lotus has accused Rossin of trying to market trade secrets to software rival Microsoft Corp. in the course of pitching for that advertiser's business (AA, Dec. 21). Two Rossin employees used to work for Lotus agency Leonard Monahan Saabye, Providence, R.I.

Sources close to the case, however, report that contact between Cambridge, Mass.-based Lotus and the ad agency has been established, and efforts are under way to negotiate a quick out-of-court settlement.

The countersuit was filed after a Dec. 28 ruling against the ad agency in Suffolk Superior Court. In that ruling, the court favored Lotus' request that the proceedings be kept private to protect confidential information. The countersuit was filed in the same court.

The agency opposed the request because its primary defense is that it never had any confidential information to release.

Lotus charged RGS&H with trying to "sell" Lotus trade secrets in an effort to win accounts.

"We're still waiting for Lotus to tell us what is the confidential information that we have. We don't have any," said RGS&H President Neal Hill.

Lotus executives were not available to comment following the Dec. 28 ruling.

Lotus' Dec. 11 lawsuit cited a flier that RGS&H sent to Microsoft, Redmond, Wash.

In the flier, the agency implied it had access to Lotus' plans through the work of the two new employees. LMS joined Lotus' suit the next week.#

Top execs involved

Fallon McElligott act 'shocks' city

By BOB GEIGER

MINNEAPOLIS—Fallon McElligott stirred up a controversy here after playing a crude joke on a woman who criticized a presentation by FM's design subsidiary.

The issue began when Charles S. Anderson, a partner in FM subsidiary Duffy Design Group, made a marketing presentation at Mankato (Minn.) State University attended by Neala Schleuning, director of MSU's Women's Center and a doctorate in American studies.

Ms. Schleuning wrote Mr. Anderson after the October presentation and complained about the use of the words "bitches" and "whores" in agency ads shown by Mr. Anderson. She called it a "male gonad style of doing business."

On Nov. 6, Mr. Anderson sent Ms. Schleuning a letter stating that Duffy was "re-examining not only our approach to design but to life as well." He enclosed a photo of an African Dinka tribe boy's mouth pressed against a cow's anus in a ritual, and suggested Ms. Schleuning write or visit the Dinkas to "put an end to this horrible practice."

Ms. Schleuning sent copies to the Minnesota Women's Consortium, and on Nov. 25 the group wrote Fallon McElligott, after which FM Chairman Patrick Fallon and VP-Creative Director Tom McElligott wrote separate Dinka-related letters that insulted Ms. Schleuning.

Mr. Fallon offered to pay half of Ms. Schleuning's expenses "(or full expenses, one way)" for the trip alluded to by Mr. Anderson. "You, Doctor, are the person to handle this problem," the letter said.

Mr. McElligott in his letter told Ms. Schleuning that her doctorate "may not be in English" and said her letter was "amusing" FM's employees.

The Women's Consortium then mailed 35 copies of the series of letters to local media and four FM clients: Federal Express Corp., US West, The Wall Street Journal and Wolverine World Wide.

Most ad executives here did not want to comment officially on the matter, which got newspaper coverage, but anonymously said they were shocked or appalled by the FM letters.

FM finally apologized in a Dec. 29 letter to Ms. Schleuning from Mr. Fallon.

"There really can be no excuse or explanation for our behavior," he wrote, "except that we allowed our reaction to your criticism to sweep us beyond the bounds of judgment, taste and common decency. It shouldn't have happened, and it won't happen again."

Mr. Anderson told ADVERTISING AGE he sent the picture of the Dinka boy as a joke, meaning there were bigger problems than sexism to worry about in the world. He said he did not intend for his letter to "hurt [Ms. Schleuning] personally" and added that he is sorry.

He said there has been no reaction from FM clients.#

Underneath the covers

'Vanity Fair' adds to glitter

By PATRICK REILLY

In less than four years, Vanity Fair has gone from near-disaster to a bona fide success by chronicling celebrities on the order of Liza Minnelli and Calvin Klein.

But Editor Tina Brown, 33, the engineer of its revival, is not content with just lightweight patter, and in 1988 plans to add substance to the glitter.

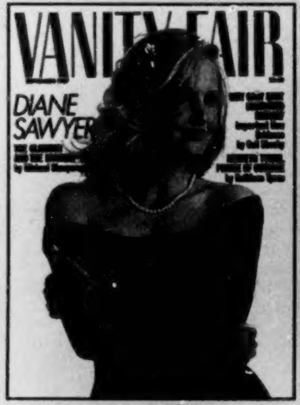
After years of heralding the antics of the chic, wealthy and powerful, Vanity Fair is showing its serious side. The January cover of the Conde Nast Publications monthly features presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. It is a weighty selection compared to former subjects, such as Cher, Farrah Fawcett and Bette Midler, but it is an indication of where Vanity Fair is heading.

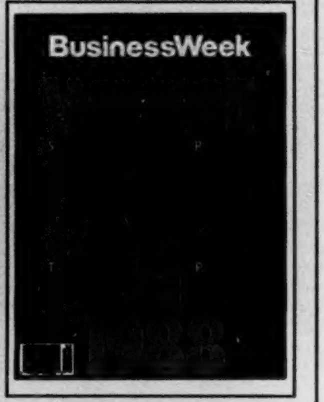
"Even if the sales of the Jesse Jackson cover are not good, it is a cover we needed to do," Ms. Brown said.

Vanity Fair Publisher G. Douglas Johnston said that in 1988, Vanity Fair will show it can delve into important social issues. "People now understand we aren't just about trends. We are a chronicle of our time," he said. "We are no longer just entertaining. We are entertaining and important."

The magazine's comeback has fueled speculation that

(Continued on Page 45)





1987 shows ad-page boom

Vanity Fair Year	ad pages	% change	Business Week Year	ad pages	% change
1984	335	NA	1984	4,972	7
1985	431	29	1985	4,214	(15)
1986	597	39	1986	3,893	(7)
1987	866	45	1987	4,708	21

Business book surges ahead

By PATRICK REILLY

Business Week proved in 1987 it was the workhorse in the stable of magazines at McGraw-Hill Publications Co. But in 1988, the weekly business news magazine may have to work even harder.

Though a generous space credit program appears to have helped pump up ad pages, the weekly had an undeniably robust year. Business Week raised its rate base three times in the past 13 months, newsstand sales rose 50% in the first six months of 1987 and total ad pages rose 21% over 1986.

The magazine is expected to make up more than half of the company's estimated $60 million operating profit in 1987, industry sources said. "Business Week this year will make up for a number of poor performances in the publication company," said one industry expert.

Harold "Terry" W. McGraw III, who oversees Business Week as president of the New York-based publications company, said he is pledged to making the magazine the "best editorial product of its kind."

Mr. McGraw has targeted a circulation of 1 million by 1990. That would be an increase of more than 17% from current levels. He said he also will increase the editorial

(Continued on Page 45)

World News Roundup

TORONTO—Cineplex-Odeon, North America's second-largest theater chain, reinstituted cinema advertising a year after dropping the idea when customers objected. A 90-second spot for Fisher home electronics, created by Torobin Advertising here, was among the first to be shown.

MADRID—Channel 10, Europe's first Spanish-language satellite TV station, which starts broadcasting this month, will take no advertising initially but may later. Channel 10 is owned jointly by Radio Tele Luxembourg, French-based Canal Plus, an Andorra-based savings bank and a group of entrepreneurs.

HONG KONG—Dentsu will open an office here this month. Sogo and Daimaru, Japanese department stores and Dentsu clients, reportedly are interested in starting operations here. HDM, in which Dentsu is a partner, already has an office here. Separately, Dentsu is opening its Convention Business Division in Tokyo this month to develop business in this area.

DUESSELDORF—Cinzano is breaking a $1.4 million ad campaign in West Germany highlighting Asti Cinzano, the best-selling Italian wine in the country. Westag, Cologne, handles.

BARCELONA—Henkel picked GGK to handle the European launch of its City Men's body deodorant. In Spain, Henkel moved its Shim shower gel and Polykur shampoo brands, worth an estimated $1.5 million in billings, to HDM from GGK.

FRANKFURT, WEST GERMANY—Fiat is expected to pick Michael Conrad & Leo Burnett for the introduction of Tipo autos. D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles here and R.G. Wiesmeier Werbeagentur, Munich, also pitched.

SYDNEY—The Australian Trade Practices Commission is blocking Rupert Murdoch's News Corp. from buying John Fairfax Ltd.'s

(Continued on Page 22)

Time is money to nets: $121,860 per :30 spot

By VERNE GAY

NEW YORK—The Big 3 TV networks charged a record $121,860 for an average 30-second prime-time commercial in October 1987, 8% more than the cost one year earlier.

Newly released figures show each network boosted its average 30-second charge, with NBC leading the way and its rivals registering only small increases.

Ratings leader NBC got an average of $150,625 per :30, a 20% increase, while ABC had an October average of $111,800, a 6% increase. CBS trailed with a $103,130 average :30 cost, a 2% increase.

ABC's prime-time average was complicated by "Monday Night Football," which sold at reduced rates in October because of the National Football League players' strike. ADVERTISING AGE's average reflects what the games would have sold for under normal circumstances.

The numbers for October, the first full month of the new TV season, provide the first glimpse of the networks' hugely successful 1987-88 upfront sales market, the period earlier last year when inventory went on sale as much as 52 weeks in advance.

At that time, the networks secured double-digit price increases in cost-per-thousand rates.

> The numbers for October provide the first glimpse of the networks' hugely successful 1987-88 upfront sales market.

Each network has roughly 1,144 prime-time :30s per month, which means the three networks together had a $418 million prime-time sales bonanza in October, not counting the World Series telecasts. Total October network sales for all dayparts were $946 million, according to a Televison Bureau of Advertising analysis.

Due to viewership patterns and advertiser demand during the holiday period, prices are somewhat lower now, while prices in November '87 and April and May of this year, both peak periods, will be higher. November and December figures have not been released.

By using $418 million as a monthly average throughout the 1987-88 broadcast year, the networks could reap $5.019 billion in prime-time ad revenues this year,

(Continued on Page 44)

Ad awareness on the upswing

AdWatch survey of advertising awareness Top 10 in November

One thousand people were asked: Of all the advertising you have seen, heard or read in the past 30 days, which advertisement first comes to mind? Source: SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb.

Rank 11/87	10/87	Advertiser	Agency
1	1	California Raisins	Foote, Cone & Belding
2	3	Budweiser/Bud Light	D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles/DDB Needham
3	4	Coca-Cola	McCann-Erickson
4	7	Pepsi-Cola	BBDO Worldwide
5	5	Miller/Miller Lite	J. Walter Thompson USA/Backer Spielvogel Bates
6	6	Ford	J. Walter Thompson USA
7	2	McDonald's	Leo Burnett USA
8	8	Chevrolet	Lintas:Campbell-Ewald
9	—	Toyota	Saatchi & Saatchi DFS
10	—	Tide	Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton

By SCOTT HUME

Let's enter the new year on a positive note.

The discussions of personnel layoffs, economic recession, account losses and agency and advertiser belt-tightening that dominated last year's news may have obscured a small but interesting trend: Consumers are paying more attention to advertising.

The California Raisin Advisory Board's campaign was the best-recalled advertising in November, the monthly adWatch survey showed. But possibly more significant was that only 32.2% of those polled were unable to name a specific advertisement when asked to recall the first that came to mind.

That percentage may seem high, but it is comparatively low. Of the 1,000 people interviewed for the November 1986 survey, 49.8% drew a blank when asked which advertising they recalled first.

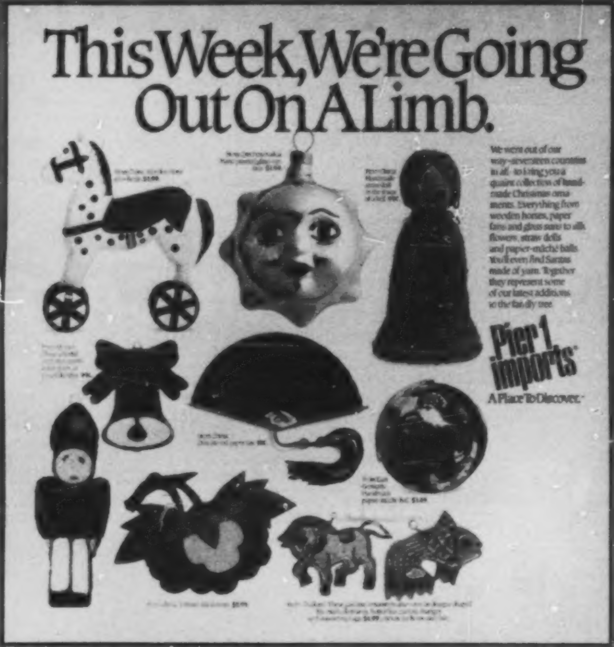
For the survey taken 18 months before the recent survey, the percentage of the sample who did not recall any advertising was almost as high, with 47.1% coming up dry.

The same trend appears in the results for product-specific advertising recall. In November, 13.6% said they could not recall a single ad they had seen, heard or read for soft drinks. A year ago, the "don't knows" accounted for 19.5% of the replies in the soft-drink category. Eighteen months ago, it was 14.5%.

When respondents were asked in November to name the first pet food

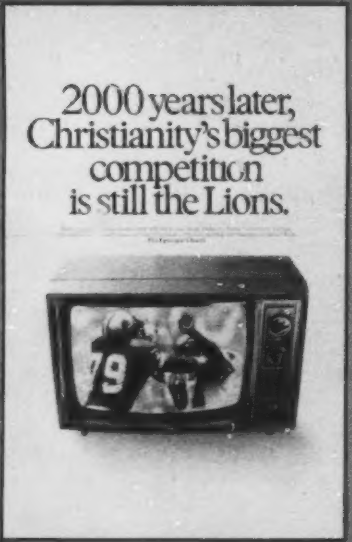
(Continued on Page 44)

BEST OF PRESS



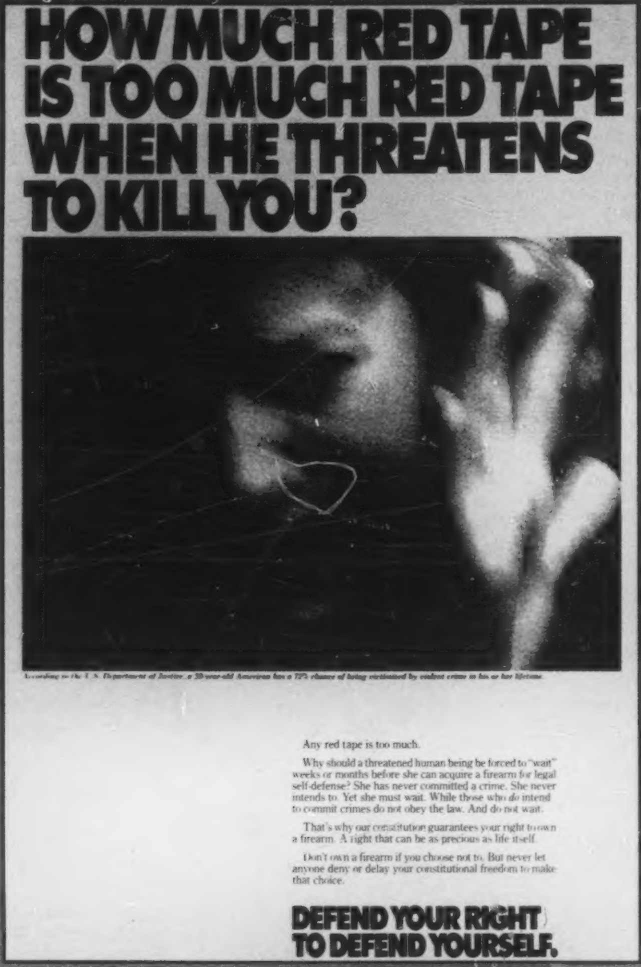
We went out of our way—seventeen countries in all—to bring you a quaint collection of handmade Christmas ornaments. Everything from wooden horses, paper fans and glass suns to silk flowers, straw dolls and paper-mâché balls. You'll even find Santas made of yarn. Together they represent some of our latest additions to the family tree.

Selling Christmas tree ornaments can't be as easy as it looks, and buying them certainly isn't. But here Pier 1 makes it easy for you, using a good headline to sell its one-of-a-kind inventory. Credit the Richards Group, Dallas. Creative directors: Glenn Gill and Grant Richards; copywriter: Ross Myers; art director: Carl Warner; photographer: Jim Bowie.



2000 years later, Christianity's biggest competition is still the Lions.

Credit Fallon McElligott, Minneapolis, for knowing as much about the ritual of the National Football League as the ritual of churchgoing. It shows a church ad, in this case the Episcopal Ad Project, can pack a punch with a light touch. Creative director and copywriter: Tom McElligott; art director: Dean Hanson.



HOW MUCH RED TAPE IS TOO MUCH RED TAPE WHEN HE THREATENS TO KILL YOU?
DEFEND YOUR RIGHT TO DEFEND YOURSELF.

According to the U.S. Department of Justice, a 20-year-old American has a 72% chance of being victimized by violent crime in his or her lifetime.

Any red tape is too much.

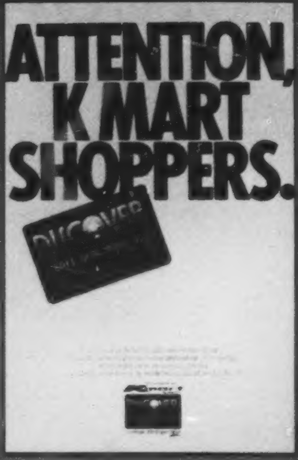
Why should a threatened human being be forced to "wait" weeks or months before she can acquire a firearm for legal self-defense? She has never committed a crime. She never intends to. Yet she must wait. While those who do intend to commit crimes do not obey the law. And do not wait.

That's why our constitution guarantees your right to own a firearm. A right that can be as precious as life itself.

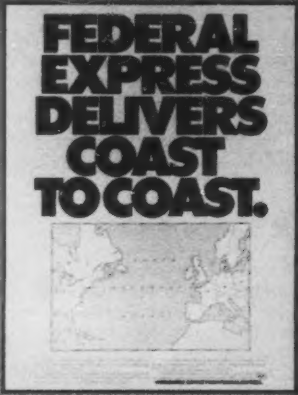
Don't own a firearm if you choose not to. But never let anyone deny or delay your constitutional freedom to make that choice.

Regardless of your politics or opinions about the gun lobby, the common fear and anxiety the ad portrays is inescapable. The artwork is strongest because it's blurred. An unequivocal issue ad from the Ackerman, Hood & McQueen agency, Oklahoma City, Okla., and the NRA. But what else? Creative director: Angus McQueen; copywriters: Tim Odenart and Les Kerr; photographer: Michael Ives.

Best of Press selections are made by a committee of three: Hank Simons, VP-creative director, Newspaper Advertising Bureau, New York; James Dunaway, VP-information, Newspaper Advertising Bureau; and Patrick Reilly, ADVERTISING AGE newspaper industry reporter. National System Inc., St. Louis, provides tearsheets to the Newspaper Advertising Bureau for much of this work. Agencies, clients and newspapers are invited to submit ads for review. Submissions should be sent to Mr. Reilly in AA's New York bureau.



Remember the joke? Here's the punch line, doing good work for both Sears, Roebuck & Co. and K mart Corp. at once. Credit Cramer-Krasselt, Chicago, for a concept as appealing as a blue-light special. Creative director: Maureen Moore; copywriter: Erica Silins; art director: Virginia Celle.



A strong, but not overpowering, headline and type delivers the message, and the map gives it a twist. So ya gotta read it. Again, credit Fallon McElligott for clearly showing Federal Express is more than a U.S. air service. Creative director: Tom McElligott; copywriter: George Gier; art director: Bob Brihn; artist: Bob Blewett.

Newspaper ad spending sputters

NEW YORK—October was a dud for the major market newspapers tracked by the ADVERTISING AGE Flash Report.

Total spending in 16 key ad categories was up 2% from October 1986, a disappointment after September spending levels ran a strong 11.3% ahead of last year (AA, Nov. 30). It was the second weakest monthly performance of 1987. June fell 3.8% behind the year-ago month.

New-car advertising in newspapers, the engine behind much of the year's Flash Report gains, stalled in October at 1986 levels. The retrenchment by auto advertisers, perhaps flinching at lower projected sales, could not be overcome by strong advances in the amusements, bank and trust company and computer stores and supplies categories.

In a month punctuated by Wall Street's jarring Oct. 19 "Black Monday" plunge, spending in the stock, bond and investment house category approached $3 million, up 20.1% from its 1986 pace.

Overall, 10 of the 16 categories measured for the report by Media Records were up, compared to 12 gainers and four losers the previous month. Results reflect spending by advertisers in 29 daily and 22 Sunday papers.

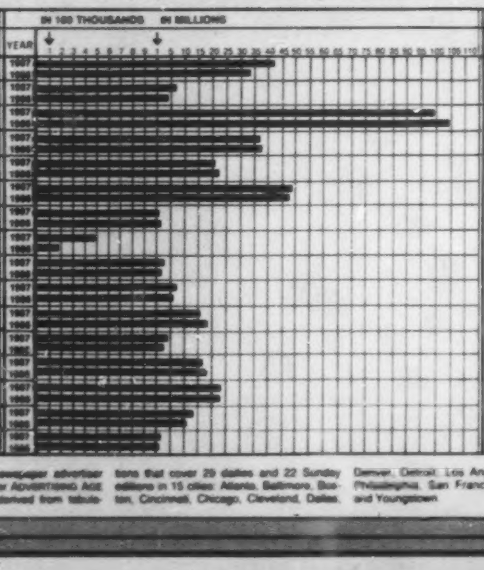
Food stores, like autos, a strong ad spender in September and through much of the year, fell behind 1986 levels in October.

Spending by general-merchandise stores, though up from the year-ago month, advanced only 2.7% after a 12.3% gain in September.

October also dashed hopes that department store spending—the biggest dollar category measured for the report—was rebounding from the weak levels of the summer.

After nearly matching 1986 levels in September, the department store category in October fell $4.6 million, or 4.4%, behind the year-ago pace.

FLASH REPORT: Newspaper advertising investment for October



October 1987		DOLLARS		CHANGE
CATEGORIES	YEAR	1987	1986	ACTUAL $ G OR L	% G OR L
Amusements	1987 1986	$41,425,190	$33,3[illegible]	8,123,050	+24.4
Computer stores & supplies	1987 1986	6,987,82[illegible]	[illegible]28,783	+2,259,043	+47.8
Department stores	1987 1986	99,872,171	104,471,257	−4,599,086	−4.4
Food stores	1987 1986	37,313,537	37,719,254	−405,717	−1.1
Radio, TV, phonographs, records	1987 1986	20,595,461	22,285,789	−1,690,328	−7.6
General merchandise stores	1987 1986	49,412,457	48,098,087	+1,314,370	+2.7
Alcoholic beverages	1987 1986	2,511,172	2,750,107	−238,935	−8.7
Cameras, photo supplies & services	1987 1986	48[illegible],295	187,103	+294,192	+157.2
Computers, equipment & services	1987 1986	3,018,376	2,063,269	+955,107	+46.3
Public service utilities & communications	1987 1986	7,491,894	6,553,297	+938,597	+14.3
Publishing & media	1987 1986	15,603,393	18,486,570	−2,883,177	−15.6
Cigarettes	1987 1986	4,301,708	3,536,493	+765,215	+21.6
Airlines	1987 1986	17,256,416	17,830,105	−573,689	−3.2
Passenger cars-new	1987 1986	22,424,355	22,056,946	+367,409	+1.7
Banks & trust companies	1987 1986	13,100,553	10,922,388	+2,178,165	+19.9
Stock, bond & investment houses	1987 1986	2,964,880	2,469,035	+495,845	+20.1

This Flash Report of newspaper advertiser investments, compiled for ADVERTISING AGE by Media Records, is derived from tabulations that cover 29 dailies and 22 Sunday editions in 15 cities: Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Washington and Youngstown.

Source: Media Records Inc.

Newspaper Advertising Inches; October 1987 vs. October 1986 (Standard Advertising Units in the Media Records Conversion System)

	1987		1986
	Full Run	Part Run	Full Run	Part Run
AKRON, OH
Beacon Journal (M)	107.136	——	111.494	——
Beacon Journal (S)	77.773	——	71.306	——
Grand Total	184.909	——	182.800	——
NOTE: Beacon Journal changed from evening to morning publication effective July 13, 1987.
ALLENTOWN, PA
Call (M)	172.101	——	174.276	——
Call (S)	100.598	——	96.796	——
Grand Total	272.699	——	271.072	——
NOTE: Part run figures not available.
ASBURY PARK, NJ
Press (E)	213.247	36.302	210.925	35.398
Press (S)	157.129	15.652	151.898	16.939
Grand Total	370.376	51.954	362.823	52.337
ATLANTA, GA
Constitution (M)	185.808	98.277	193.567	87.045
Journal (E)	173.938	86.801	187.405	86.075
Journal & Constitution (S)	113.482	81.658	132.126	67.721
Journal & Constitution (Sat)	60.507	——	45.956	——
Grand Total	533.735	266.736	559.054	240.841
NOTE: Constitution Morning and Journal Evening published five days a week only
BALTIMORE, MD
Sun (M)	148.865	19.498	162.644	7.737
Sun (E)	126.767	19.521	132.662	7.248
Sun (S)	155.427	52.086	166.968	47.647
Grand Total	431.059	91.105	462.274	62.632
BERGEN COUNTY, NJ
Record (E)	183.010	18.184	187.632	23.424
Record (S)	166.593	42.789	154.959	38.639
Grand Total	349.603	60.973	342.591	62.063
BOSTON, MA
Herald (M)	98.189	——	108.766	751
Herald (S)	23.644	48.502	21.951	36.441
Globe (M)	167.777	13.271	170.493	20.306
Globe (S)	205.276	43.748	199.685	34.581
Grand Total	494.886	105.521	500.895	92.079
BUFFALO, NY
News (AD)	114.560	35.089	126.185	26.414
News (S)	52.097	50.998	57.745	35.860
Grand Total	166.657	86.087	183.930	62.274
CAMDEN, NJ
Courier-Post (E)	143.862	25.615	145.813	19.092
Courier-Post (S)	77.733	22.931	60.611	17.932
Grand Total	221.595	48.546	206.424	37.024
CHARLOTTE, NC
Observer (M)	143.943	——	145.296	——
Observer (S)	78.797	——	74.261	——
Grand Total	222.740	——	219.557	——
NOTE: Part run figures not available.
CHICAGO, IL
*Tribune (M)	142.160	266.085	138.446	270.709
*Tribune (S)	153.122	101.544	[illegible]	116.520
Sun-Times (M)	157.444	87.582	[illegible]	100.520
Sun-Times (S)	61.705	58.069	66.747	[illegible]
Grand Total	514.431	513.280	492.023	526.671
NOTE: Tribune figures supplied by publisher to Media Records. 1987 figures represent advertising for 9/28/87–10/25/87.
CINCINNATI, OH
Enquirer (M)	163.078	10.884	179.815	11.138
Enquirer (S)	133.061	8.726	138.765	11.041
Post (E)	87.048	28.574	89.354	21.170
Grand Total	383.187	48.184	407.934	43.349
CLEVELAND, OH
Plain Dealer (M)	156.578	39.953	155.331	36.341
Plain Dealer (S)	117.232	11.142	124.705	10.023
Grand Total	273.810	51.095	280.036	46.364
DALLAS, TX
News (M)	281.613	17.066	299.452	15.874
News (S)	164.524	14.139	152.486	12.267
Times-Herald (AD)	202.971	24.095	229.123	45.521
Times-Herald (S)	115.069	28.557	108.229	[illegible]
Grand Total	764.177	83.857	789.290	[illegible]
DENVER, CO
Rocky Mt. News (M)	275.872	22.333	291.385	6.816
Rocky Mt. News (S)	69.031	27.984	92.842	2.050
Post (M)	166.764	35.516	211.123	12.994
Post (S)	87.435	32.767	111.196	1.132
Grand Total	599.102	118.600	706.546	22.992

	1987		1986
	Full Run	Part Run	Full Run	Part Run
DETROIT, MI
Free Press (M)	105.528	65.289	107.742	57.725
Free Press (S)	48.193	48.496	46.493	40.951
News (AD)	178.623	44.909	170.442	48.555
News (S)	98.276	30.695	94.517	26.299
Grand Total	430.620	189.389	419.194	173.530
ESCONDIDO, CA
Times-Advocate (E)	94.393	2.427	107.080	4.219
Times-Advocate (S)	52.215	——	43.971	35
Grand Total	146.608	2.427	151.051	4.254
FORT LAUDERDALE, FL
News & Sun-Sentinel (S)	105.131	——	111.186	——
Sun Sentinel (M)	277.192	——	297.839	——
Grand Total	382.323	——	409.025	——
NOTE: Part run figures not available. Morning figures include the Saturday Edition.
FORT WAYNE, IN
Journal Gazette (M)	87.551	——	86.993	——
Journal Gazette (S)	73.495	——	74.294	——
News Sentinel (E)	87.281	——	97.360	——
Grand Total	248.327	——	258.647	——
NOTE: Part run figures not available.
GREENWICH/STAMFORD, CT
Time (E)	88.987	11.802	91.804	1.119
Time (S)	65.743	7.846	64.271	——
Advocate (E)	116.656	27.096	118.683	16.820
Advocate (S)	65.479	5.452	61.165	2.547
Grand Total	336.875	52.196	335.923	20.486
HARTFORD, CT
Courant (M)	166.124	48.923	172.087	47.513
Courant (S)	95.248	144.235	89.609	135.540
Grand Total	261.372	193.158	261.696	183.053
HONOLULU, HI
Advertiser (M)	124.818	——	136.625	——
Star-Bulletin (E)	113.310	——	130.908	——
Star-Bulletin & Advertiser (S)	82.015	——	79.540	——
Grand Total	320.143	——	347.073	——
HOUSTON, TX
Chronicle (AD)	246.078	34.241	232.688	45.424
Chronicle (S)	123.831	33.772	108.342	38.066
Post (M)	155.456	41.364	147.712	36.562
Post (S)	71.345	34.274	75.337	22.171
Grand Total	596.710	143.651	564.079	142.223
LONG BEACH, CA
Press Telegram (M)	131.561	45.743	119.400	50.450
Press Telegram (S)	63.936	1.949	66.020	1.993
Grand Total	195.497	47.692	185.420	52.443
LONG ISLAND, NY
Newsday (E)	113.308	149.696	146.545	124.119
Newsday (S)	77.231	129.095	108.497	83.259
Grand Total	190.539	278.791	255.042	207.378
LOS ANGELES, CA
Times (M)	327.716	292.626	319.778	304.650
Times (S)	173.366	88.736	164.437	94.374
Herald-Examiner (M)	76.991	7.579	86.585	7.725
Herald-Examiner (S)	17.084	8.157	15.544	9.601
Grand Total	595.157	397.098	586.324	416.350
LOS ANGELES/SAN FERNANDO VALLEY, CA
News (M)	203.541	26.458	191.694	54.492
News (S)	85.924	3.433	86.608	1.917
Grand Total	289.465	29.891	278.302	56.409
*LOS ANGELES/TORRANCE, CA
Breeze (E & S)	221.051	——	220.461	——
Grand Total	221.051	——	220.461	——
NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.
*MEMPHIS, TN
Commercial Appeal (M)	142.725	100.347	139.928	113.738
Commercial Appeal (S)	92.643	11.362	95.934	8.001
Grand Total	235.368	111.709	235.862	121.739
NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

	1987		1986
	Full Run	Part Run	Full Run	Part Run
MIAMI, FL
Herald (M)	163.054	——	177.273	——
Herald (S)	87.863	——	84.003	——
News (E)	67.247	——	61.989	——
Grand Total	318.164	——	323.265	——
NOTE: Part run figures not available.
MINNEAPOLIS, MN
Star Tribune (AD)	128.123	50.517	128.494	25.554
Star Tribune (S)	138.048	2.846	139.160	6.098
Star Tribune (Sat)	34.869	——	25.679	——
Grand Total	301.040	53.363	293.333	31.652
*NASHVILLE, TN
Banner (E)	104.487	——	121.595	——
Tennessean (M)	108.790	——	123.120	——
Tennessean (S)	101.116	——	89.024	——
Grand Total	314.393	——	333.739	——
NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.
NEW BRUNSWICK, NJ
Home News (E)	101.712	828	105.420	2.354
Home News (S)	82.599	6.295	75.287	8.878
Grand Total	184.311	7.123	180.707	11.232
NEW YORK, NY
Times (M)	209.383	21.054	212.059	18.159
Times (S)	207.992	147.458	205.095	124.758
News (M)	74.849	95.101	69.217	108.039
News (S)	46.224	83.392	43.906	83.532
Post (AD)	79.737	1.182	62.904	1.192
Grand Total	618.185	348.187	593.181	335.680
NEWARK, NJ
Star Ledger (M)	236.889	6.299	241.013	6.709
Star Ledger (S)	228.964	32.707	198.276	23.022
Grand Total	465.853	39.006	439.289	29.731
OAKLAND, CA
Tribune (M)	89.039	80.311	95.478	86.542
Tribune (S)	45.791	40.530	42.321	41.408
Grand Total	134.830	120.841	137.799	127.950
OCEANSIDE, CA SAN DIEGO COASTAL NORTH COUNTY
Blade-Tribune (E)	97.571	5.507	112.581	6.708
Blade-Tribune (S)	51.653	1.595	46.423	——
Grand Total	149.224	7.192	159.004	6.708
NOTE: Blade-Tribune Evening published five days a week only
ORANGE COUNTY, CA
Register (AD)	345.524	85.725	340.945	92.654
Register (S)	120.007	10.196	126.124	6.949
Grand Total	465.531	95.921	467.069	99.603
PHILADELPHIA, PA
Inquirer (M)	167.880	44.174	176.597	46.791
Inquirer (S)	144.462	61.263	131.528	73.327
News (E)	89.082	4.101	97.425	6.874
Grand Total	401.424	109.538	405.550	126.992
*PHOENIX, AZ
Arizona Republic (M)	229.538	[illegible]	[illegible]	13.848
Arizona Republic (S)	150.364	——	[illegible]	——
Gazette (E)	218.894	[illegible]	[illegible]	13.949
Grand Total	598.796	[illegible]	[illegible]	27.797
NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.
*PROVIDENCE, RI
Journal (M)	98.318	119.843	96.115	84.571
Journal (S)	134.219	55.971	112.807	54.493
Grand Total	232.537	175.814	208.922	139.064
NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.
*ST. LOUIS, MO
Post Dispatch (M)	125.520	38.192	114.444	37.431
Post Dispatch (S)	128.771	——	125.313	284
Grand Total	254.291	38.192	239.757	37.715
NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.
ST. PAUL, MN
Pioneer Press Dispatch (AD)	105.518	——	107.879	——
Pioneer Press Dispatch (S)	109.278	——	109.453	——
Grand Total	214.796	——	217.329	——
NOTE: Part run figures not available.
SAN ANTONIO, TX
Express-News (AD)	124.991	40.508	131.755	40.886
Express-News (S)	74.383	22.954	74.417	35.164
Express-News (Sat)	38.412	——	34.711	——
Light (AD)	122.769	16.082	152.369	23.871
Light (S)	85.873	5.061	94.158	4.940
Light (Sat)	31.627	816	30.347	1.743
Grand Total	477.875	85.121	515.757	106.603
NOTE: Express-News All Day and Light All Day published five days a week only

	1987		1986
	Full Run	Part Run	Full Run	Part Run
SAN DIEGO, CA
Union (M)	239.569	43.513	228.899	44.734
Union (S)	133.026	1.180	130.134	——
Tribune (E)	231.722	41.666	243.897	45.735
Grand Total	604.317	86.359	602.930	[illegible]
SAN FRANCISCO, CA
Chronicle (M)	142.439	67.625	139.060	84.871
Examiner (E)	136.345	66.788	——	——
Examiner & Chronicle (S)	84.376	27.092	79.599	38.731
Grand Total	363.160	161.505	218.659	123.502
NOTE: 1986 Examiner Evening figures not available
SAN JOSE, CA
Mercury News (AD)	303.281	17.860	301.804	29.686
Mercury News (S)	144.745	——	142.412	——
Grand Total	448.026	17.860	444.216	29.686
*STATE COLLEGE, PA
Centre Times (E)	86.960	4.879	94.635	9.486
Centre Times (S)	41.941	444	43.080	568
Grand Total	128.901	5.323	137.715	10.054
NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records
*TOLEDO, OH
Blade (E)	106.022	——	117.953	——
Blade (S)	109.845	——	106.047	——
Grand Total	215.867	——	224.000	——
NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records
WASHINGTON, DC
Post (M)	315.198	47.352	303.508	53.810
Post (S)	174.256	35.359	157.435	44.740
Grand Total	489.454	82.711	460.943	98.550
WASHINGTON, DC SUBURBAN GROUP
Montgomery Journal (M)	70.587	904	76.764	836
Fairfax Journal (M)	81.171	2.383	93.762	1.613
Grand Total	151.758	3.287	170.526	2.449
NOTE: Montgomery Journal Morning and Fairfax Journal Morning published five days a week only
WESTCHESTER ROCKLAND, NY
Reporter Dispatch (E)	111.556	18.729	105.445	[illegible]
Reporter Dispatch (S)	93.652	21.051	86.612	[illegible]
Grand Total	205.208	39.780	192.057	45.796
WICHITA, KS
Eagle-Beacon (M)	115.739	——	123.455	——
Eagle-Beacon (S)	72.869	——	79.410	——
Grand Total	188.608	——	202.865	——
NOTE: Part run figures not available

Source: Media Records

This data has been provided by Media Records for exclusive publication in Advertising Age and may not be reprinted or published in any form without explicit permission from Media Records. All newspapers represented are subscribers to Media Records. For those newspapers that subscribe to Media Records National Advertising Reporting Service, Total Advertising data shown has been supplied by the publisher to Media Records and included in this compilation. All publisher supplied figures are converted to MRCS/SAU inches by Media Records. These newspapers are indicated with an asterisk (*).

REPORTING METHODOLOGY

Media Records continues to measure in linage but due to the introduction of the SAU 6 column format Media Records has designed and developed a methodology with the approval of our subscribers, the INAME Measurements Committee, The ANPA/NAB Working Committee, The AAAA Newspaper Committee, and other industry groups.

The approved methodology is titled The Media Records Conversion System (MRCS) and is based upon the printed page area of each product of the newspaper and is a five step approach as follows:

1. Measure Printed Page ....
   Width and Depth in Inches
2. Determine Square Inches of Page ....
   Multiply Width by Depth Inches
3. Determine the Number of SAU Inches of Page ....
   Divide the Square Inches by 2.0625 (SAU Inches)
4. Measure the Total Lines of the Page ....
   Multiply Column Depth Agate Lines by the Number of Columns on the Page
5. Determine the Factor for Converting Measured Lines to Reported SAU Inches ....
   Divide the Total Lines of Page by the Number of MRCS/SAU Inches of the Page

SAU® is the registered trademark of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Prime-time

(Continued from Page 3)

less a 15% agency commission. That would represent a 7% increase compared with '86-87 levels. Other dayparts, especially sports, are expected to outperform that.

The total picture is clouded, however, by the ongoing "make-good"—or advertiser rebate—problem now plaguing the networks (AA, Dec. 21).

Prime-time household ratings are off an estimated 10% to date, and when advertisers are guaranteed in upfront buys that certain ratings levels will be met, the network owes make-good time.

If people meters continue to show 10% lower viewing levels throughout the TV year, the networks theoretically could owe as much as $500 million in make-goods to advertisers.

Industry experts, however, say this figure is greatly exaggerated for at least two reasons.

For one, the networks built in artificial increases in their '87-88 CPMs because of the changeover in ratings methodology from diaries to people meters. These so-called "cushions" are expected to soften the blow from decreased viewing levels.

Secondly, the networks usually pay back advertisers with their least expensive—and hardest-to-sell—spot inventory.

Still, the make-good problem is a difficult one for the networks.

"If the ratings picture shows no improvement by February . . . and if advertising shows any sign of slowing down," then two of the three networks would lose money, said Alan Gottesman, an analyst with L.F. Rothschild & Co.

Nevertheless, the networks are riding on an extraordinarily strong sales year, as the price-per-program proves (see chart).

NBC's "Cosby Show" continues to reign as network TV's most expensive program. The show's average $369,500 per :30 increased 4% from October 1986 to October 1987. However, several "Cosby" units have been sold throughout the year for more than $400,000 a :30.

Every NBC show on Thursday night increased its rate, but "Cheers" topped all NBC shows with a 31% increase to $307,000.

ABC's top-priced show for the second year in a row was "Moonlighting," which had a rate increase of 37% to $249,190.

CBS' top performer remained "60 Minutes," which boosted its rate 4% to $160,300.

But the big gainer at CBS was "Magnum, P.I.," which went up 56% to $140,790.

There were some shows registering decline. Among the biggest was former ABC champion "Dynasty," whose price plummeted 30% to $113,540. Close behind was NBC's "Family Ties," which moved from Thursday to Sunday nights, and now has dropped 27% to $219,500. "Dallas" had a surprising 1% decline in October, going to $139,470.

For the full year, revenues could be higher because of the Winter and Summer Olympics.

The unit costs are compiled by Broadcast Advertisers Reports. BAR collects the numbers directly from the networks.#

Networks' 30-second price list, 1987-88 season

Prices reflect the average advertisers paid for a 30-second prime-time unit in October 1987. NBC's average cost was $150,625; ABC has an average cost of $111,820; CBS' average cost is $103,130. The networks provide these numbers to Broadcast Advertisers Reports and A.C. Nielsen Co. The following reflects the most recent schedule with new-for-fall shows shaded in gray; an asterisk (*) denotes where a time period has a different program since October. Source: BAR and Nielsen.

		7:00 (ET)	7:30	8:00	8:30	9:00	9:30	10:00	10:30
MONDAY	ABC			MacGyver $90,330		Monday Night Football $195,000
	CBS			Kate & Allie $102,640	Frank's Place* $100,350	Newhart $149,190	Designing Women $124,790	Cagney & Lacey $115,440
	NBC			ALF $149,500	Valerie's Family $161,000	NBC Monday Night at the Movies $150,000
TUESDAY	ABC			Who's the Boss? $197,660	Growing Pains $228,350	Moonlighting $249,190		thirtysomething $125,460
	CBS			Houston Knights $87,850		Jake & the Fatman $91,520		The Law & Harry McGraw $75,080
	NBC			Matlock $103,000		J. J. Starbuck $82,000		Crime Story $98,000
WEDNESDAY	ABC			Perfect Strangers $138,110	Head of the Class $159,290	Hooperman $146,780	The "Slap" Maxwell Story $127,090	Dynasty $113,540
	CBS			The Oldest Rookie $75,360		Magnum, P.I. $140,790		The Equalizer $134,520
	NBC			Highway to Heaven $109,000		A Year in the Life $134,500		St. Elsewhere $131,000
THURSDAY	ABC			Sledge Hammer! $38,740	The Charmings $45,860	ABC Thursday Movie $79,830
	CBS			Tour of Duty $67,590		Simon & Simon* $85,770		Knots Landing $127,050
	NBC			The Cosby Show $369,500	A Different World $276,000	Cheers $307,000	Night Court $257,500	L.A. Law $205,000
FRIDAY	ABC			Full House $79,780	I Married Dora $68,660	Mr. Belvedere* $89,960	Pursuit of Happiness* $79,090	20/20 $80,000
	CBS			Beauty & the Beast $68,900		Dallas $139,470		Falcon Crest $99,700
	NBC			Rags to Riches $91,500		Miami Vice $171,500		Private Eye $124,000
SATURDAY	ABC			Ohara* $55,680		Sable* $37,070		Hotel $83,480
	CBS			CBS Saturday Movie* $57,000-$100,000				West 57th $48,120
	NBC			Facts of Life $107,000	227 $111,500	Golden Girls $182,500	Amen $135,000	Hunter $121,500
SUNDAY	ABC	Disney Sunday Movie $78,734		Spenser: For Hire $64,530		The Dolly Parton Show $138,210		Buck James $94,370
	CBS	60 Minutes $160,300		Murder, She Wrote $140,560		CBS Sunday Night Movie $121,020
	NBC	Our House $92,500		Family Ties $219,500	My Two Dads $189,000	NBC Sunday Night at the Movies $155,000

Ad recall up

(Continued from Page 3)

advertising they recalled, 32.3% drew a blank, compared with 39.5% a year ago and 38.1% 18 months ago. It is possible that the number of pet owners has increased significantly or that November's sample was somehow more tuned in to advertising, but not likely.

Interestingly, overall recall was higher in November 1987 for every product category tracked by adWatch than it was for surveys taken one year and 18 months ago.

For one possible explanation of this admittedly unscientific hypothesis, it may not be necessary to look beyond the advertising that ranked as the best recalled in November.

The California Raisin Advisory Board's dancing raisins are not cult figures that transcended the advertising. They drew attention to the craft of advertising. Those commercials added the word "Claymation" to many people's vocabulary.

Several other ad campaigns that ranked among the best-recalled during 1987 also were remembered and discussed as examples of the craft. McDonald's Corp.'s "Mac Tonight" spots combined a familiar song with memorable art direction, sparking a sharp rise in recall.

The witty monologues at the heart of the campaign for E&J Gallo Winery's Bartles & Jaymes wine cooler have drawn as much attention to the craft of advertising copywriting as they have to the two actors who play Frank and Ed.

Similarly, the campaigns for Anheuser-Busch's Bud Light and Miller Brewing Co.'s Miller Lite have ranked among the best-recalled advertising every month in 1987, in part because consumers are watching to see what the creators think of next.

AdWatch is a joint project of ADVERTISING AGE and SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb. Advertising awareness is measured by asking a nationally projectable sample to name the advertising that first comes to mind from all seen, heard or read in the previous 30 days.

In November, 1,000 adults were polled by telephone. Those changes in advertising awareness deemed statistically significant by adWatch researchers are attributable to more than sample variation.

There were a few significant changes in the November survey. Among them:

- Apple Computer's multimedia campaign continues to gain awareness in the computer category. In November, Apple's advertising came to mind first for 30.7% of the sample, up 4.4 percentage points from October. Since April, when Apple fell to second place with a 21.1% share of first mentions, it has increased its share by nearly 50%.

IBM Corp. has settled back into second place after taking the top spot in April. In November, it garnered 20.2% of first mentions, down 2.1 points from October. Radio Shack was third in November with a 3.6% share.

- The wine category continues to be a battle of Hal Riney & Partners campaigns. In November, the agency's advertising for Gallo wines strengthened its hold on first place with 15.6% of first mentions, up 2.5 points.

Recall of Bartles & Jaymes wine cooler advertising fell 5.2 points to a 6.9% share and third place. Riunite moved into the No. 2 spot with 7.8% of first mentions.#

For more information or data, contact SRI Research Center, 301 S. 68th St. Lincoln, Neb. 68506. Phone: (402) 489-0351.

Whittle spruces up division

Campus Voice changing

By PATRICK REILLY

Whittle Communications' Campus Voice Network division is undergoing a revamp.

Reacting to industry rumors that Campus Voice, a 1.2 million-circulation magazine, will fold this spring, media entrepreneur Christopher Whittle said the magazine and its Campus Voice Biweekly wall posters will make "significant advancements.

"We will change the look, the packaging and the marketing of Campus Voice," said Mr. Whittle, founder and publisher at the Knoxville, Tenn.-based company. "There will be big changes."

Mr. Whittle is being secretive about the planned changes, except to say that Campus Voice's distribution of three times a year could be increased. He said the division's sales staff will begin selling the magazine to advertisers this week and that changes would appear in the fall 1988 issues.

The newsy wall posters, changed every two weeks during the academic year, are on more than 5,000 campuses in fixed positions, such as student centers.

Mr. Whittle said there would be little change in the Campus Voice Sampler, which distributes more than 1.2 million product-sample boxes.

The new effort will mean revenues from student publications, wall posters and sampling will increase 29.4% to $11 million in 1988, Mr. Whittle said.

Campus Voice, formerly known as Nutshell, was one of Mr. Whittle's original properties and was one of the first magazines to target college students directly when it was launched in 1969.

Today, Campus Voice is distributed free on more than 400 college campuses and carries an estimated 52% of all national advertising in the student publications.

However, the lucrative college market has become crowded and increasingly competitive. There are now as many as 16 college magazines taking national advertising. The most high-profile and well-funded publications include McGraw-Hill Publications Co.'s Business Week Careers, Newsweek Inc.'s Newsweek on Campus and Time Inc.'s Student Life.

Newsweek on Campus, launched in 1982, has a circulation of 1.3 million on 224 campuses. Student Life, which was renamed from Dorm when it was bought by Time Inc. last year, has a circulation of 1.2 million and comes out twice a year.#

C2710-1

3-DIGIT 200
020190949 AA00 8803 COMP 06Z
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

e—P. 33 | George Will on ads—P. 66

NEWSPAPER

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved. $2.00 a copy; $64 a year

January 18, 1988

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Last Minute News

WPP may unveil new European network

London—WPP Group could announce early this week the formation of a new European agency network affiliated with Lord, Geller, Federico, Einstein, New York. WPP executives are meeting with the network's potential first client, Milan-based automaker Alfa Romeo, which is considering agencies for its $25 million account. Lintas Worldwide previously handled $14 million in Alfa Romeo billings in seven European countries but was not free to handle the automaker throughout Europe. Paul Huybrechts, a 24-year J. Walter Thompson veteran and international VP who has worked on Ford business in Detroit and Europe, most recently in Madrid, would leave JWT to become account group director for Alfa Romeo Europe. The network would be run separately from WPP's J. Walter Thompson Co., New York, a major U.S. agency of Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, Mich.

NutraSweet plans fat substitute

Skokie, Ill.—NutraSweet Co. on Jan. 27 will announce that it has developed a low-calorie, low-cholesterol fat substitute, Crain's Chicago Business reports. Pending approval by the Food & Drug Aministration, the company expects to use the dairy-based substitute first in ice cream, perhaps to be marketed under NutraSweet's own retail brand

(Continued on Page 8)

CBS lashes out at meter 'flaws'

By VERNE GAY

New York—CBS has launched a high-level assault on A.C. Nielsen Co. by denouncing the new people-meter system as "unacceptable" and a threat to the entire network television industry.

In a "private" letter to Nielsen Chairman John Holt, CBS/Broadcast Group President Gene Jankowski demanded that errors plaguing the new system be corrected.

Copies of the letter were circulating among several major network advertisers and key ad agencies last week.

The Jankowski letter, dated Dec. 23, is drawing applause from some agency executives, who praised the CBS executive for stepping up the pressure on Nielsen.

Mr. Jankowski's letter also demanded that Nielsen begin an "independent validation" to determine whether the ratings, upon which the networks base their advertising rates, were correct. His language was blunt.

"We have reviewed the performance of the new people-meter service over its first three months of operation as the official Nielsen measurement of national television audiences, and we find that performance unacceptable," Mr. Jankowski wrote.

"More importantly, we find that the shortcomings of the Nielsen people-meter service have already had a disproportionate economic impact on the television network industry and, if not corrected, will

(Continued on Page 92)

P&G, Disney link videos, products

By WAYNE WALLEY

Procter & Gamble Co. is offering free Disney videocassettes with product purchases in a major winter promotion.

In cooperation with Walt Disney Home Video, P&G will offer buyers of specially marked packages of Ivory dishwashing liquid and Tide laundry detergent a free "Special Edition" of Disney's "Cartoon Classics" collection of videotapes by mail.

The Cincinnati-based marketer will support the giveaway with an estimated $15 million national TV and print ad blitz this month.

A 30-second spot from Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York, first aired Jan. 15 and will continue through Jan. 31, when the initial phase of the campaign ends with the cover page of a free standing insert in 48 million Sunday newspapers.

Burbank, Calif.-based Disney estimates P&G will distribute as many as 1 million of the specially produced "Cartoon Classics" tapes during the six-month offer.

Disney, which sold an estimated 3 million copies of its "Lady & the Tramp" videotape at $29.95 this past holiday season, will support the giveaway with its own point-of-purchase displays at video stores. The displays, created in-house, also tout Disney's 10-volume cartoon series priced at $14.95 per tape.

The free cassette, in addition to its three cartoons and special introduction, includes a trailer for the other "Classic Cartoons" tapes.

P&G, looking for a 1988 follow-up to its extensive multibrand "Great American Key Hunt" promotion with General Motors Corp. last year (AA, Feb. 23), approached Disney with the idea. "We were obviously interested," said Carole Black, VP-marketing at Walt Disney Home Video. "I knew what it meant to be associated with Tide, and February has always been 'Tide month,' when the company likes to put on

(Continued on Page 92)

Wine coolers press agencies to ignite sales

By PATRICIA WINTERS

Wine cooler marketers, suffering problems with celebrity spokesmen, are pressuring their ad agencies to come up with new creative in time for the key spring/summer selling season.

Leader Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, New York, is unlikely to renew its contract with Bruce Willis for Seagram Golden wine coolers and is asking Ogilvy & Mather to create a new cooler campaign that will be as successful as the Willis campaign.

E&J Gallo Winery, Modesto, Calif., which markets Bartles & Jaymes wine coolers, has asked Wieden & Kennedy to develop speculative creative based on characters Frank Bartles and Ed Jaymes, sources said. Levine, Huntley, Schmidt & Beaver also is talking to Gallo about a campaign.

This development is occurring despite reports that Richard Maugg, who portrays Ed Jaymes, says he is uninterested in working with any agency other than Hal Riney & Partners.

San Francisco-based Riney resigned the $75 million account in December (AA, Dec. 7).

The Willis campaign for Seagram's wine coolers is widely credited with helping the brand vault over Gallo into the leadership position of the category from fourth place two years ago.

Concerned the account will be

(Continued on Page 92)

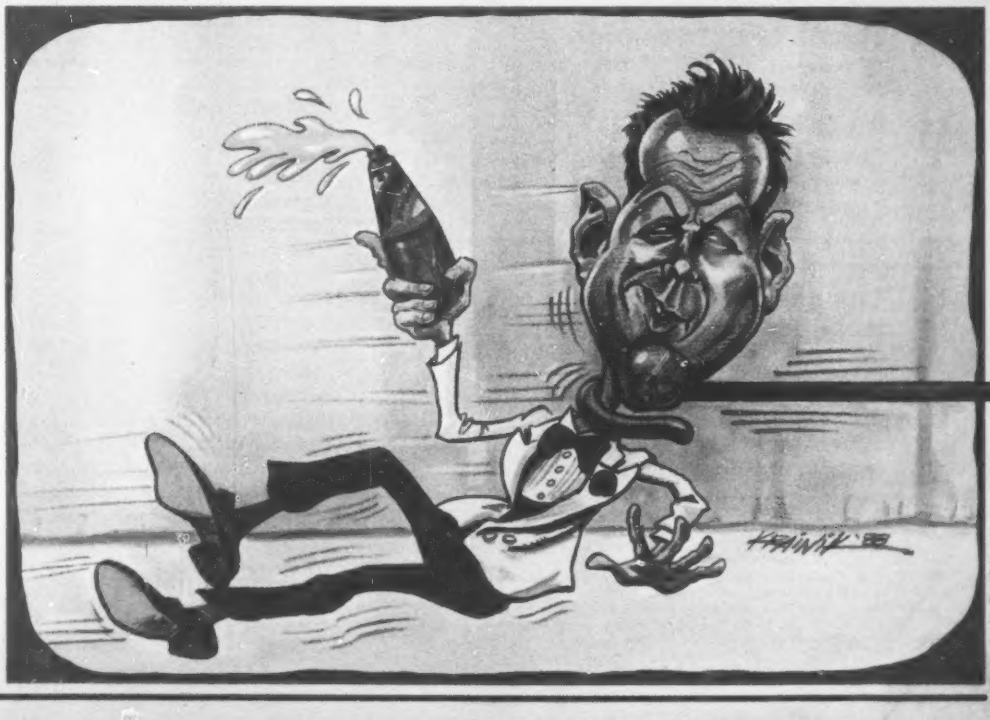

Illustration by David Krainik

FOCUS ON AGENCIES

Fallon rues 'joke'

Agency cast in unfamiliar, negative role

By BOB GEIGER

MINNEAPOLIS—Irv Fish says he has not felt so much heat since the offices of Martin/Williams Advertising, where he worked, burned to the ground in 1978.

But Mr. Fish, as Fallon McElligott's chief financial officer, knows that FM's predicament is no joke.

The question at the agency last week was how many potential presentations FM has lost through a clumsy attempt at humor that has put the agency—which has grown in its seven years to $130 million in billings—in a very unflattering spotlight.

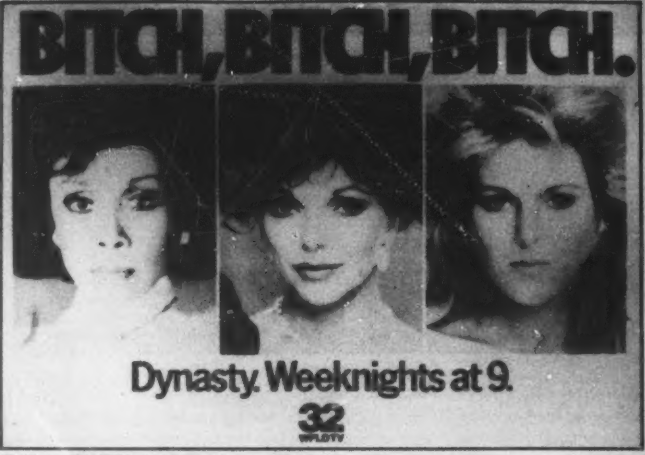
The crude responses to a woman's written complaint about an FM presentation's use of the words "bitch" and "whores" already have cost the agency five-year client US West's $9 million corporate account, have put other clients in an uncomfortable position and threaten to brand fast-rising FM permanently as callous and arrogant.

The incident has sobered agency executives here and elsewhere, as they watched a shop—accustomed to winning accounts, creative awards and praise—let a thoughtless action become the focus of embarrassing national media coverage.

"The silver lining is that it's heightened all of our awareness," said Lee Lynch, chairman of Carmichael Lynch.

It all started when Neala Schleuning, director of the Mankato (Minn.) State University Women's Center, wrote to Charles Anderson, a partner in FM subsidiary Duffy Design Group (AA, Jan. 4). She objected, in part, to a print ad FM had done for WFLD-TV, Chicago, pro-

(Continued on Page 92)



BITCH, BITCH, BITCH.
Dynasty. Weeknights at 9.
32
WFLD-TV

Fallon McElligott's ad for WFLD-TV, Chicago, was one spark that caused the ire of Neala Schleuning and others. Agency brass responded with mocking letters, and now FM is awash in bad publicity.

Highlights

NEWS

6 Holiday Inns sours on BJK&E
Holiday Inns is reviewing its account at Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York.

12 Discover on the rebound
Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s Discover card appears to be turning the corner.

38 Ad growth slows
Despite optimistic 1988 ad business forecasts, many agency executives say budgets have shown little growth so far.

52 Sony spins new disc
Sony Corp. of America is promoting new compact disc players that can spin smaller CDs.

62 Centlivre looks ahead
FCB's Lou Centlivre looks ahead at the creative process of the 1990s and sees clear, visual messages with an unexpected twist.

71 Playing the weighting game
Marketers of low-calorie foods and beverages are heavying up on their ad and promo budgets.

76 MONY bonks on new spots
MONY Financial Services is taking a long shot with a TV campaign featuring lengthy spots.

78 The state of the onion
To peel off misunderstandings about onions, Vidalia growers are planning a nationwide blitz.

81 An Olympic brew
Cashing in on Olympic fever, Century Importers is introducing Calgary Beer, a Canadian amber lager, in the U.S.

INTERNATIONAL

68 The sweets of France
Marketers are racing to launch France's first calorie-free soft drinks and food products.

69 BBDO eyes Brazil shop
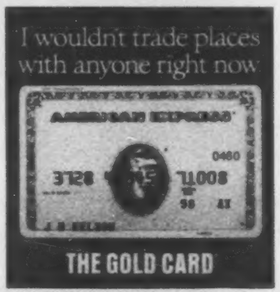
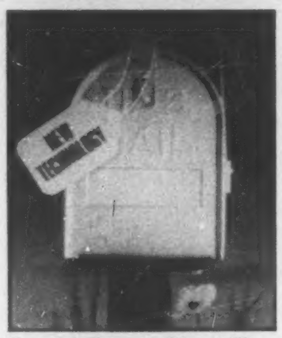
BBDO Worldwide's interest in buying Brazil's second-largest shop signals parent Omnicom Group's desire to boost its status there.



I wouldn't trade places with anyone right now.
AMERICAN EXPRESS
THE GOLD CARD

AD REVIEW: The attitude of money. Page 94.



Special Report: Direct Marketing starts after Page 60.

Departments

Brady 64
Brady's Bunch 81
Editorial 14
For the Record 89
Forum 18
Garfield 65
Global Gallery 48
Letters 20
MediaWorks 82
People 84
PeopleWorks 74
Photo Review 75
Research Beat 44
The Next Trend 64

Vol. 59, No. 3—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $34 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to: Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970.

Were JWT firings a 'financial thing'?

By GARY LEVIN
and JON LAFAYETTE

NEW YORK—The recent firing of five highly paid senior executives at J. Walter Thompson Co. was motivated by either money or politics, sources say.

Gone are John Cronin, 56, vice-chairman and chief advertising officer of the company, as well as four exec VPs: Harold Clark Jr., 52, charged with organizational development; Ronald Kovas, 45, recently on assignment at JWT's Hill & Knowlton PR unit but earlier regarded as heir apparent to ousted chairman Don Johnston; Terence Martin, 44, the latest in a series of top finance and administration officers; and Stephen Salorio, 45, general counsel and secretary (AA, Jan. 11).

Mr. Clark believes the firings—which saved the agency nearly $2 million in salaries and bonuses—were motivated by the need to increase profits for the company's new shareholders.

"In [JWT Chairman-CEO Burt Manning's] mind I think it was purely a financial thing," Mr. Clark said. "He's not a vindictive man. People who say he's out to get Johnston people don't know him very well."

Emma Hill, analyst at Wertheim Schroder & Co., said Mr. Manning's mission is to "change a fat corporate culture."

She said the agency had a number of highly paid executives and that she expected Mr. Manning to change the compensation system to a bonus arrangement that would reward performance.

But others said the firings were a determined effort by top management—WPP Group CEO Martin Sorrell and Mr. Manning—to rid the company of the last executives nurtured by Mr. Johnston, almost a year to the day after events were set in motion leading to the takeover of JWT.

"My view is that Burt Manning is totally entitled to build his own management team," Mr. Cronin said. "I guess he has to make his own judgments on who he wants on that [team]. He doesn't want me and he told me so."

Messrs. Clark and Cronin together worked on the "advertising management group" and were charged with developing the "Thompson Way," a philosophy of planning and creating ads.

In an internal memo, Mr. Manning

(Continued on Page 92)

L.A. shop taps new president

DDB gets boost

By CLEVELAND HORTON

LOS ANGELES—DDB Needham Worldwide named Dave Park, chairman-ceo of a sister agency in Hawaii, to fill the vacant post of president of DDB Needham here.

Mr. Park, 45, replaces Richard Edler, who left 18 months ago to become exec VP-general manager, McCann-Erickson.

Mr. Parks comes from Milici Valenti Park & Gabriel, Honolulu. After Mr. Edler's departure, DDB Needham West President Alan Pando, who heads five western DDB Needham agencies including MVP&G, acted as president of the Los Angeles shop.

At MVP&G, President Frank Valenti becomes chairman-ceo and Exec VP-Creative Director Tom Gabriel becomes president.

Mr. Park's appointment marks the "culmination of the reorganization" at DDB Needham here, Mr. Pando said.

The agency suffered a string of defections among its senior ranks since Mr. Pando took over in early 1986 (AA July 27, 1987).

Mr. Pando said that with the exception of three people, the departures were "all part of the same reorganization I planned from the day I got here. My idea is run it [the agency] lean."

Mr. Park's new assignment takes effect immediately, but Mr. Pando expects a two-to-three-month transition period during which Mr. Park will split his time between Los Angeles and Hawaii.

Mr. Park spent 22 years in advertising in Hawaii. He founded Mayfield Smith Park in 1969, and 16 years later merged it with DDB agency Milici Valenti.#

Olympic ad onslaught begins

By PATRICK McGEEHAN

With the Winter Olympics in Calgary, Alberta, just four weeks away, dozens of U.S. companies are unleashing advertising and promotion campaigns in the biggest commercial onslaught ever for the Winter Games.

Nine global sponsors paid the International Olympic Committee a total of $120 million to become official sponsors of the Summer and Winter Games and of most national Olympic committees.

The Summer Games will be held in Seoul, South Korea, in September.

The U.S. Olympic Committee, which organizes all activities of the U.S. team, raised more than $70 million from 42 companies, said John Krimsky, deputy secretary general of the USOC.

On top of those sponsorship fees, advertisers will spend $360 million to advertise on ABC-TV's 97-hour broadcast of the Winter Games, industry sources said.

Four years ago, ABC paid a staggering $309 million rights fee for the Calgary Games, more than three times what it paid to carry the 1984 Winter Games from Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

The network said it will lose money on the Winter Games. "We did the best job ever of marketing the Olympics, and we are very pleased with sales," said Larre Barrett, VP-Olympic sales for ABC.

U.S. Olympic Committee sponsors

Adidas
Jeep
Blue Cross/Blue Shield
Campbell Taggart
Clairol
Maxwell House
Gillette
Merrill Lynch Realty
McDonald's
United Airlines
Waste Management
ALCOA
Anheuser-Busch
Briggs & Stratton
Canon
Data General
General Motors (Buick)
Hilton Hotels
Motorola
Uniroyal
Xerox

T.O.P. sponsors*

Brother Industries
Federal Express
Matsushita
Philips
Visa
Coca-Cola
Kodak
3M
Time

XV Olympic Winter Games sponsors

Anheuser-Busch
Safeway
IBM
Motorola
Petro-Canada
Shell Canada
Atco Development
Buick
Labatt's
Nova (energy)
Royal Bank of Canada
Xerox

* The Olympic Programme, which includes sponsorship of Winter and Summer Games and U.S. team. Source: Ad Age.

ABC began selling prime-time 30-second units at $255,000 and now is asking $300,000. Saturday and Sunday daytime units started at $100,00 and are now $125,000; late-night sold out for $60,000 to $75,000. About 2% of ABC's inventory is left for sale.

Notable Olympics-related advertising and promotion plans include:

- Chrysler Corp., Highland Park, Mich., and Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, will share the $50 million automotive category on ABC's broadcast, though Detroit-based General Motors Corp.'s Buick division is the official car sponsor of the USOC.

GM of Canada is supplying vehicles for the Winter Games, and Chrysler's Jeep brand is an official sponsor of the USOC.

Ford, which purchased an estimated one-quarter of ABC airtime, will divide it between corporate commercials and Ford and Lincoln-Mercury division spots.

Ford also is advertising in Sports Illustrated's special Olympics issue, and Ford's Lincoln-Mercury division has developed a retail-oriented commercial for its dealers to air during post-Olympics programming.

The campaign, entitled "Drive for the Gold," shows the Mercury emblem resembling an Olympic gold medal.

- Coca-Cola Co., one of the nine official global sponsors, will be the only soft-drink advertiser on the broadcasts of the Winter and Summer Games.

"Can't You Feel It," a song commissioned by the Atlanta-based company that will be sung by the Coke World Chorus at the opening ceremonies in Calgary, will be used in a new TV spot, themed "Thirst for greatness."

That spot, via McCann-Erickson, New York, will break in early February and run through the Winter Games.

Two other new spots, one from McCann and one from Lintas:New York, will run during the Winter Games. An Olympics-theme spot for Coca-Cola Classic is airing in Canada.

Coca-Cola also is sponsoring a "pin-trading" center in downtown Calgary, where its Olympic pins and those produced by other sponsors will be on sale.

The company's Olympics-related marketing activity "exceeds by 50%" the commitment made by Coca-Cola USA in 1984.

- Philips Lighting Co., Somerset, N.J., whose Netherlands-based parent company is a worldwide sponsor, will spend $3 million on network TV for the Winter Games

(Continued on Page 90)

Brewer names new ceo

Miller under pressure

By SCOTT HUME

NEWS ANALYSIS

A top management shift at Miller Brewing Co. last week is the latest, strongest sign that parent Philip Morris Cos. is losing patience with the brewing unit's performance.

It also may set the stage for another Australian buyout of a major U.S. brewer, industry observers suggest.

Newly named Miller President-CEO Leonard Goldstein, 60, formerly senior VP-sales, faces a mandate to build Miller's sales volume, a goal that eluded his predecessor, William Howell, 57, who elected to take an early retirement and move to Florida.

If Milwaukee-based Miller does not show substantial improvement in 1988, PM is expected to sell the company, just as it did last year with Seven-Up Co.

"It's clear PM has been putting the screws on to get [Miller's] numbers turned around," said John Collopy, analyst at Cleary, Gull, Reiland, McDevitt & Collopy. "It's a 'do it or else' situation, and I think the job had become more of a pressure cooker for Bill Howell than he wanted. I don't doubt for a minute that Miller is for sale."

Industry sources say PM has been looking for bids in the $2 billion range for Miller. If 1988 production shows little gain, New York-based PM could begin entertaining lower, more reasonable offers, they say.

One frequently mentioned potential bidder is John Elliott, chairman of Australia's Elder's IXL Ltd. brewery. His longtime Australian

(Continued on Page 93)

Magazines' ad breaks go over big

By PATRICK REILLY

NEW YORK—Time Inc. believes its highly promoted Max-Plan corporate ad discount is an early success.

But Newsweek and U.S. News & World Report say they have lost no ground in the newsweekly ad wars.

In the battle of Max vs. Match (Newsweek) vs. Flex (U.S. News), Time Inc. executives boast that the 461 advertisers signed for Max-Plan by Dec. 31 far exceeded their original estimates.

Time Inc. Magazine Group Senior VP Richard B. Thomas, the originator of Max-Plan, said Time originally thought the plan would

(Continued on Page 91)

World News Roundup

BRUSSELS—The European Parliament, in its report on TV broadcasting, advocates strong government control of advertising. The report also recommends a limit of 15% of airtime for advertising, with no more than 18% on any one hour taken up by advertising. A ban on tobacco advertising and strict curbs on alcohol commercials were upheld.

MADRID—Pepsi-Cola de Espana will aggressively promote Michael Jackson's concerts in Spain, hoping to boost its share of the Spanish cola market from 14% to 25%. PepsiCo, through J. Walter Thompson Co., will increase its Spanish ad budget by 50% to $4.1 million and launch caffeine-free Pepsi in mid-1988.

TORONTO—Levi-Strauss Canada moved its $3.1 million account to Harrod & Mirlin from DDB Needham Worldwide.

LONDON—Eddie Shah, founder of the unsuccessful Today tabloid, which later was sold to Rupert Murdoch's News Corp., is

(Continued on Page 69)

Jesse Jackson unveils TV effort

Candidate places spots on cable

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

★★★★ Campaign 88

JESSE JACKSON

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, the only major presidential hopeful other than Gary Hart to eschew campaign advertising to date, this week breaks his first TV spots in Iowa and New Hampshire.

The 10 and 30-second "issue-oriented" cable TV spots will spotlight the Rev. Jackson in classic "talking-head" fashion, said campaign manager Gerry Austin, whose Columbus, Ohio, agency, Gerald J. Austin & Associates, is producing all the ads.

In commercials filmed last weekend and this week, the Democrat speaks to such broad themes as justice, peace and economic freedom, in anticipation of the first voter preference tests next month in Iowa and New Hampshire, Mr. Austin said.

Mr. Austin is a public relations and political consulting veteran whose previous clients included Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste. He said the Jackson TV campaign will break Jan. 22 in Iowa and continue through the Feb. 8 party caucuses, the first preference voting of campaign '88.

In New Hampshire, the campaign's first advertising breaks Feb. 9 and continues through the Feb. 16 primary, Mr. Austin said.

The campaign made heavy buys on Cable News Network, ESPN and Financial News Network in both states; the Yankee Cable Network, a Concord, N.H., cable program producer and distributor; and the Country Music Channel in Iowa, Mr. Austin said.

The buys were made on cable systems largely because of financial constraints. Although Mr. Austin said he also plans to buy time on broadcast outlets in both states, his explanation for buying cable first was forthright: "We can afford it."

He said the campaign's cable expenditure of $22,000 in Iowa was "about a third the cost" of a comparable broadcast purchase. Mr. Austin added, "I'd buy broadcast first if I could, but . . ."

In his first presidential foray in 1984, the Rev. Jackson used essentially no campaign advertising. Certainly, his name recognition is not expected to receive any measur-

(Continued on Page 94)

Sears may hold winning card

Prospects brighten for Discover

By LAURIE FREEMAN and KATE FITZGERALD

Credit card watchers and market analysts are spotting signs that Discover, the troubled Sears, Roebuck & Co. card, may have turned the corner.

The most recent encouraging news occurred over the Christmas holidays, when even Sears officials were surprised at the card's strong use, following an intense Christmas marketing campaign created by J. Walter Thompson USA, Chicago.

JWT has been replaced on the $42 million account by DDB Needham Worldwide (AA, Nov. 23).

Paul Marrone, VP-media relations at Dean Witter Financial Services, the Sears unit that administers and markets the card, said the "phenomenal December" has caused executives to "re-evaluate Discover's position in a very crowded and mature industry. Our commitment is firm, and we have a lot of new things planned for 1988."

Across the board, analysts see reason for optimism.

"We think Discover is easily going to become the third big credit card, after Visa and MasterCard," said John DeMarco, VP at Payment Systems Inc., Tampa, Fla., a credit card industry research company. "Right now they're the second-biggest issuer of credit cards, behind CitiCorp."

Citicorp also is the industry leader in credit card volume.

"Their strategy was to first get the cards into the hands of consumers, and our research shows that 16% of all households now have a Discover card," Mr. DeMarco said. "Next they started working on merchant acceptance of the card, and they're still at it. The next step will be to get people to use the card."

John Love, publisher of Credit Card Management, a Chicago-based magazine, also believes Discover will succeed and become profitable, possibly even before the end of 1988.

"If you look at Discover right now and conclude that Sears is about to fold up its tent on the project, you're not realizing the practical start-up costs of a brand-new major credit card," Mr. Love said. He thinks Discover may begin to turn a profit by the third quarter.

The new optimism comes at a critical juncture for Discover. Competition in the $200 billion credit card industry is fierce, and profit margins are down, forcing marketers to rely on raiding rivals to boost market share.

Card issuers are slashing interest rates or working with companies and organizations to launch "affinity" cards that are issued jointly for cross-marketing synergies.

Sears already has spent more than $200 million to introduce and support the card. Although Discover in two years has attracted more than 22 million cardholders, it has not proved it can be a real force in the industry dominated by Visa and MasterCard.

"The Discover card has a built-in loss situation" because Sears does not charge an annual fee, said Spencer Nilson, publisher of The Nilson Report, a Santa Monica, Calif.-based credit industry newsletter. "While the bank cards are structuring their programs to meet consumers' needs, Discover has one formula. They can't possibly offer what the bank cards do."

Discover's rocky road

Leo J. Shapiro & Associates, Chicago, asked 450 people the following questions.

Will you apply for the Discover Card?
Definitely	11%
Maybe	19%
Definitely not	70%

If you have a credit card, which do you use most often?
Visa	60%
MasterCard	47%
American Express	42%
Discover	14%

But the optimists outnumber the pessimists. Bruce Brittain, principal at Brittain Associates, Atlanta, believes Discover will turn a profit but not in 1988.

"Sears is going to keep throwing money at Discover, and they'll accomplish what they set out to do," he said. "But I don't see how they're going to reach their goal of profitability this year."

Merchant acceptance has indeed been slow, though large retailers are starting to come aboard, including K mart Corp.

The question Dean Witter and DDB Needham are wrestling with is whether Discover can find a permanent place in consumers' wallets.

"That's a question that they [Sears] haven't answered to the satisfaction of the consumer," said Leo J. Shapiro, principal of Leo J. Shapiro & Associates, a Chicago-based market research company. "If the point is to use it as a financial services card, then there are cards that are far better. They have a program that's not going anywhere and, at this point, they should be [considering whether to] sell out to Visa or MasterCard."

An independent study by Shapiro indicates Sears is far from its goal of making Discover a major card. Nearly 70% of the 450 persons surveyed said they had no intention of applying for the card.

In April 1986, when the card was introduced, 71% of those surveyed said they would not apply. In May 1987, even after JWT's $40 million ad campaign was in full swing, 70% of respondents said they would not apply for a Discover card.

Also, those who have received a Discover card apparently are not inclined to use it instead of a Visa or MasterCard, the study showed.

Mr. Nilson said Discover cardholders tend to charge less on Discover than on other credit cards. The average Discover charge is $35, compared with Visa's and MasterCard's $60 per purchase. Discover's revolving balances also are lower, $550 per month to the bank cards' $1,000 monthly average.

The need to spur card use prompted the shift of the $42 million Discover account to DDB Needham from JWT.

Although it was JWT's last campaign, during December, stressing usage, that handed Dean Witter its Christmas bonus, sources trace the split in part to the agency's support for marketing strategy focusing on Sears' long-term goal of making Discover an integrated financial services card.

When Sears decided that Discover first should be established as a credit card, JWT found itself at odds with the company.

DDB Needham's first campaign, which will start in late spring, is expected to accentuate Discover's credit card capabilities with more direct comparisons to Visa and MasterCard.

Dean Witter still sees Discover as the first step in linking elements of a financial network.

But there are indications that Discover's ultimate goal is being tempered. In an interview last year with Crain's Chicago Business, a sister publication of ADVERTISING AGE, Robert Wood II, chief operating officer of Dean Witter's consumer banking division, said, "From day one, our initial goal was to make money as a credit card. You don't invest $200 million after-tax on the hopes that this is going to be an access vehicle to a lot of banking services."#

Credit card marketers go for gold

By JUDITH GRAHAM

The big three credit card marketers will tangle over the lucrative gold card business this year.

The struggle will pit Visa USA, introducing its Visa Gold credit card in April, against American Express Co. and MasterCard International.

Gold MasterCard unseated Visa's Premier card from the No. 1 spot in the prestige credit card category last year. Visa's Premier card will be replaced by Visa Gold.

At stake is market share in one of the fastest-growing and most lucrative segments of the credit card business. Gold cardholders pay larger yearly fees, charge more on their cards and tend to have larger unpaid monthly balances, industry experts say.

MasterCard says it led the gold card field in December, with 6.5 million Gold MasterCards, compared with 5.5 million Visa Premier cards and 5 million American Express Gold Cards.

Gold cards from AmEx, MasterCard and Visa, including the Premier card, have captured about 66% of the $145.1 billion U.S. prestige card category, according to The Nilson Report, a Santa Monica, Calif.-based credit card industry newsletter. That market includes prestige cards from Citicorp Diners Club and others.

Based on dollar volume, Gold MasterCard led the category in 1987 with cardmember charges of $35.4 billion, followed by Visa Premier with $32.2 billion and AmEx Gold with $28.4 billion, Mr. Nilson said. Those figures do not include AmEx's Green and Platinum cards, which also serve an upscale clientele.

Visa Gold is "the most important thing we're doing this year in terms of product development," said David Roberts, advertising manager for the San Mateo company.

MasterCard, New York, assumed dominance in the category in 1987 because "they were more aggressive in selling, they had a unified look and they had a better set of features," he said. In contrast, Visa's Premier cards, controlled more closely by individual banks, had different names, colors and images.

While declining to give details of the upcoming ad campaign, Mr. Roberts said, "Everything we've done since we hired BBDO Worldwide in 1985 is to prove that Visa is better than American Express. We're pretty wedded to that strategy."

AmEx launched its first TV campaign for its Gold Card last November via McCann-Erickson.

The new emphasis on TV will cause Visa to boost ad spending for the prestige category significantly, Mr. Roberts said.

Asked how AmEx intended to respond to Visa's challenge, an AmEx spokesman said, "As the saying goes, imitation is really a form of flattery. But today's sophisticated consumers know the difference between an imitator and the real thing. They know you can't tell a card by its color."

Even before Visa announced its new credit card, MasterCard was planning to focus more attention in the first quarter on its Gold MasterCard. "Our gold card is our fastest-growing product. We want to get behind it while it's growing," said Joanne Black, senior VP-marketing services.

In early January, MasterCard began running print ads and bind-ins tailored to individual banks in women's, business and general-interest magazines. Under the new joint marketing program, banks pay for the bind-ins and MasterCard pays for the ads.

In the second quarter, MasterCard probably will follow the print campaign with spot TV and cable advertising. "We will probably work in a more targeted fashion with our gold card," Ms. Black said, adding that the market for gold cards tends to be concentrated in major markets.

Lintas:Worldwide handles MasterCard.#

FLEET OWNER
APRIL 1987
NEW STRATEGIES FOR USED TRUCKS
FLEET OWNER
SEPTEMBER 1987
SMALL FLEET EDITION

Fleet Owner offers advertisers a unique concept in media selection—the total truck fleet market delivered in two separate editions.

McGraw Hill

Consumers at home with shopping

By Joanne Cleaver

There's no doubt that home shopping via television is grabbing the interest and money of millions of consumers.

According to Carmel, Calif.-based Paul Kagan Associates, 56 million TV homes will have shopping available to them this year compared with just 3 million three years ago. Sales per home with the service will average $45, and total home shopping industry revenues will leap an estimated 45% from 1987 to $2.55 billion. In contrast, total 1988 U.S. retail sales are estimated at $1.5 trillion.

While some technological breakthroughs have been introduced recently, home shopping executives most likely will utilize existing technologies for cross-marketing purposes.

"What's happened in home shopping is the success of low tech. It uses technology that was already available but was not being used in an imaginative way," says Arnold Fishman, president of Marketing Logistics, Lincolnshire, Ill., a direct-marketing consultancy.

While most home shopping shows and networks are sticking to television-and-telephone, Home Shopping Network, St. Petersburg, Fla., has added an automated phone answering and order-taking system. The computerized voice response system, introduced last June, now handles up to 35% of incoming calls, according to Judy Luden, director of corporate communications, though it primarily is geared to repeat customers familiar with the HSN telephone ordering format.

■ Home shopping has found success in low tech, using available methods in imaginative ways

Telaction Corp., a Schaumburg, Ill.-based subsidiary of J.C. Penney Co., New York, has been developing an interactive cable video shopping mall through which consumers use a Touch-Tone phone to order products directly. So far, the service, which has been in development for two years, has 38 retailers signed, half of which are on line including Neiman-Marcus Co., Dallas, Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, J.C. Penney, New York, Express Music Catalog, New York, and a lesser-known Minneapolis-based grocery wholesaler, Nash/Lynch.

Industry consultants and other executives doubt the menu-based system that permits consumers to control the shopping process will eclipse the time-honored toll-free number method.

When the Telaction system goes on line, Express Music Catalog, which is also involved with videotex marketing, will offer 10,000 items representing all categories of music from classical to rock. Customers also will be able to contact Express Music operators through the Telaction system, allowing the customers to order from the company's titles, according to President Bob Hurley. He says that with Telaction, consumers can listen to clips from albums they are considering to buy—a significant marketing edge over mail order and retail stores.

"Telaction is so much easier to use than a home computer system," says Mr. Hurley. "We've have very good reception among the samples that have been tested [with consumers] so far."

Mary Dale Walters, director-corporate communications for Telaction, says the system "meets or exceeds all our test criteria in terms of easy directions and minimal waiting time. [Customers] find it easy to navigate, and liked the grocery store especially."

To help market the program, Telaction offers cable system operators a deal, something critics say the delay-plagued system has been forced to do because of a slow startup. Telaction is scheduled to come on line this month.

Networks are anxious to make deals with operators because of increased competition in the home shopping arena. For example, Los Angeles-based Shop Television Network is offering a six-month unconditional guarantee to participating cable operators. STN will pay those operators a commission that matches the commission paid by the home shopping service with the highest sales levels.

THE Fashion CHANNEL
now
IN YOUR HOME ON CABLE TV
TUNE IN TO THE MOST POPULAR NAMES IN Shop all the Right Styles... Right now! more inside

The Fashion Channel's cross-marketing effort included this 14-page catalog-like direct mailer.

According to direct marketing and cable industry consultants, marketing and promotion will be critical for home shopping companies this year, partly because cable operators are realizing the profit potential. Shopping services pay sub-

Joanne Cleaver reported on home shopping services in the Oct. 26, 1987 Special Report on Direct Marketing.

THE MARGIN OF VICTORY

A fraction of an inch.

A hundredth of a second.

When the competition is toughest, the difference between winning and losing can be remarkably small.

And in the race for new customers and increased sales, even the smallest advantage can separate the business leader from the business also-ran.

Now the nation's most competitive businesses are turning to Advanced Telemarketing Corporation for that critical, decisive edge. Because no other company helps you realize the potential of telemarketing better.

Capacity. Your calls get through. With more than 600 operator stations and the most advanced telecommunications switch in the industry, ATC puts technology to work for you.

Customized programs. ATC develops specialized inbound and outbound telemarketing strategies that help you find new ways to sell your products.

Caliber of people. Our well educated, highly trained sales force understands and fully communicates the quality of your product.

If you're looking for a new margin of victory, call Cathy Hynek at Advanced Telemarketing Corporation today. 214-830-1800.

ATC
ADVANCED TELEMARKETING CORPORATION

The margin of victory for American business.

The Secret Is Out.

You can have a national TV campaign with a limited budget.

The secret is out. There's no reason why you should allow budget constraints to keep a good direct response product or service off the air. With help from LBAI, you really don't need a substantial budget to start a campaign – or keep it going.

* * *

LBAI – Lawrence Butner Advertising, Inc. – regularly helps many major national clients when the media budget just won't stretch enough to accommodate national TV. We place their commercials on the air in major markets across the country 52 weeks a year.

LBAI is the largest independent broadcast direct response agency in the business. We know how to help you develop and manage inquiries and orders on a steady basis.

What's more, with our unique, computerized telemarketing capability, we can turn the responses over to you within 24 hours after your commercial runs. So your responses become customers faster.

Talk to LBAI. Today. Ask for Larry Butner, President, and discover how you can have a national TV campaign with a limited budget.

Call 1-800-228-LBAI

In New York, call 212-682-3200.

LAWRENCE BUTNER ADVERTISING, INC.
228 East 45th Street, New York, NY 10017

scriber fees and offer participating operators a commission—based on consumer sales through that system—of up to 10% of net revenues, says Lew Auerhaan, principal with Neil Miles Ltd., a New York-based direct-marketing research company.

"The cable operators were stunned. These guys now see that home shopping is a potential boon to them," says Gary Arlen, president of Arlen Communications, a Washington-based research and consulting company specializing in interactive electronic media.

Mr. Arlen says one of the problems the networks now face is how to reach the 80% of the public that has never watched a home shopping show. "Most of the cable viewing population hasn't seen it," he says. "But of the 20% that have seen it, a high percentage have bought."

Now aware of the need to promote their service, home shopping executives are spinning off specialty mail-order catalogs, offering specialty programming and using print, media and outdoor boards.

When the Fashion Channel, Willow Grove, Pa., went live on Oct. 1, 1987, it already had blanketed its initial markets with a 14-page, catalog-like direct mailer that highlighted the channel and its products. Charlie Gee, the channel's chairman-ceo, says the network's start-up plan called for cross-marketing and promotion including consumer promotions, radio spots, and print ads in local cable and regional TV guides where the channel is available.

"We're using lots of other media to reinforce what we do," says Michael Rosen, chairman of STN. "We'll do catalogs of merchandise that's available or will be available on STN. And we'll have video catalogs, which will be our primary push."

Maxwell Sroge, a mail-order consultant with Marke/Sroge Communications, Chicago, says, "The opportunity for cable people is that specialty is the way to go. And isn't that what built the successful cable networks—CNN, Disney, Discovery?"

According to industry consultants and executives, home shopping shows are being influenced by tried-and-true precepts of merchandising and direct marketing. For example, STN devotes a half-hour program to one particular topic or product category.

Mr. Rosen says that all STN's programming is broken into half hours in which "an expert and a celebrity anchor will talk and romance the item. Sometimes they have two items, sometimes eight per half hour, depending on how long it takes to explain the item. We are a totally different store at 9 p.m. than we are in the daytime format," he continues. "It gives an opportunity to all vendors to find an hour that fits their audience.

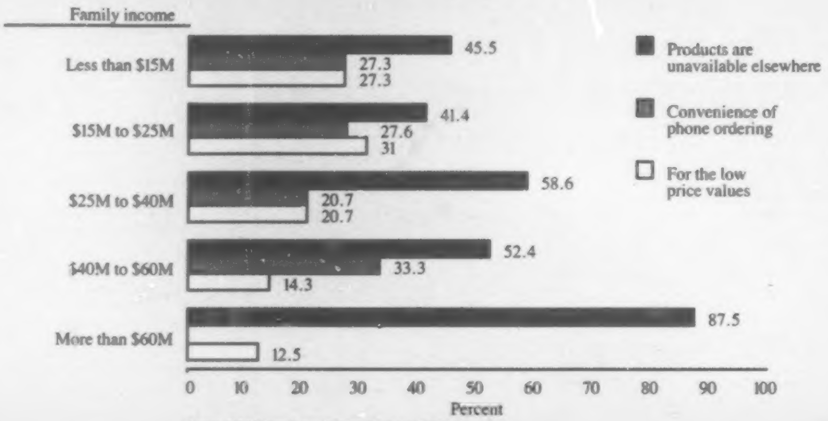
The Fashion Channel is following a similar format, with "featurettes," according to Mr. Gee. The number of these five minute mini-shows will be increased, as well as product tie-ins following these segments.

Several system operators are experimenting with both placing shopping shows on lower-number channels—where viewers are much more likely to notice them—and with creating a video mall effect by placing several shopping shows on consecutive higher-number channels.

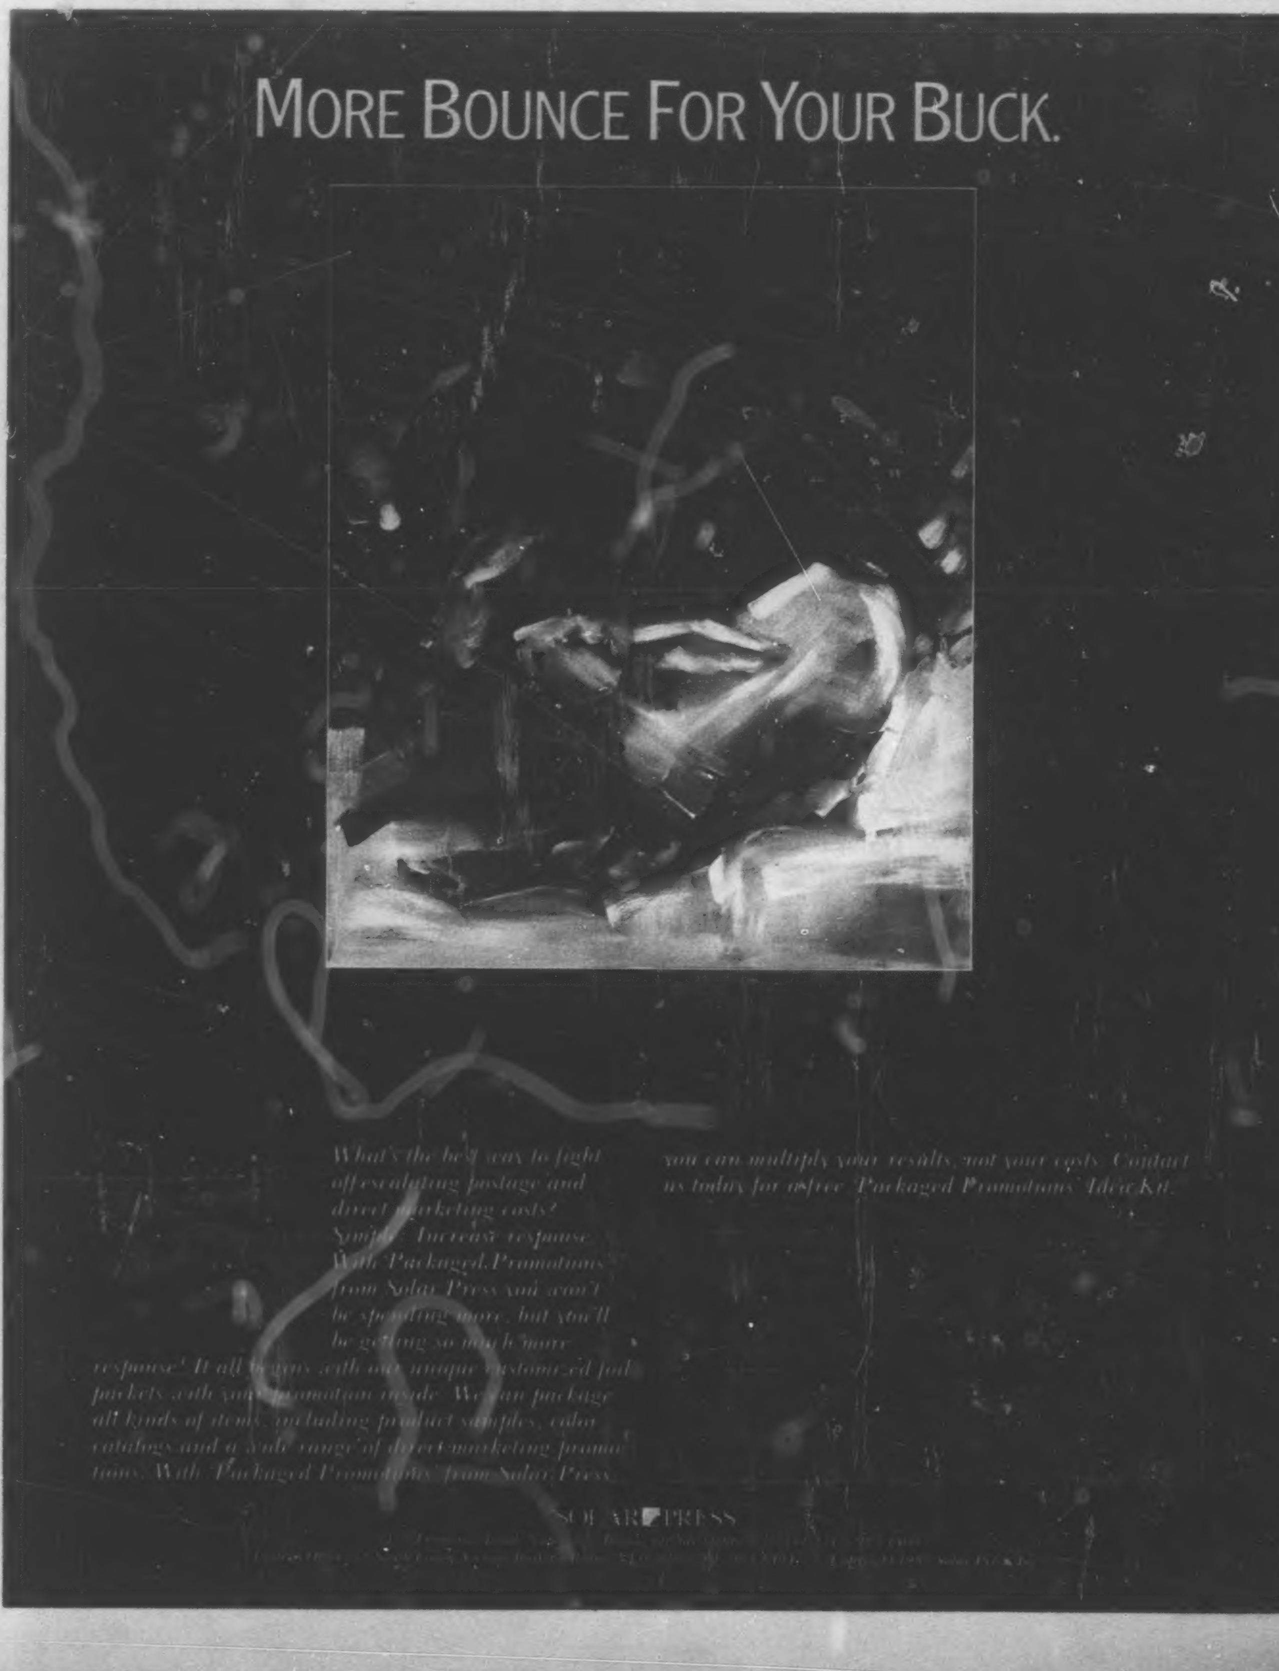
However, at least one network—Consumer Discount Network, Houston—has played the home shopping game and

(Continued on Page S-19)

Why they buy via home shopping programs
Reasons by income



Source: Jack Myers Inc.. Communications Group. Jan. 1987

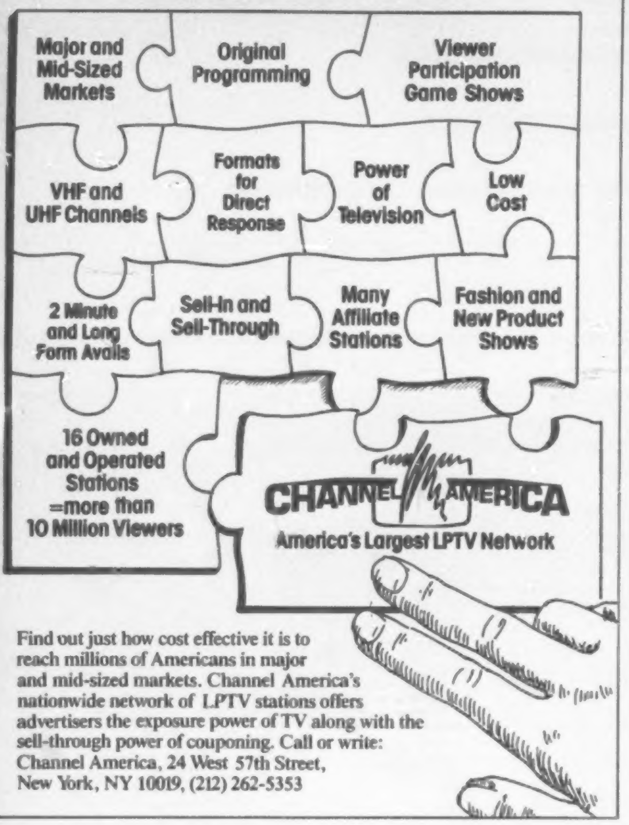


MORE BOUNCE FOR YOUR BUCK.

What's the best way to fight off escalating postage and direct marketing costs? Simple: Increase response. With Packaged Promotions from Solar Press you won't be spending more, but you'll be getting so much more response! It all begins with our unique customized foil packets with your promotion inside. We can package all kinds of items, including product samples, color catalogs and a wide range of direct marketing promotions. With Packaged Promotions from Solar Press you can multiply your results, not your costs. Contact us today for a free Packaged Promotions Idea Kit.

SOLAR PRESS

The Missing Piece to the TV Ad Puzzle



Major and Mid-Sized Markets
Original Programming
Viewer Participation Game Shows
VHF and UHF Channels
Formats for Direct Response
Power of Television
Low Cost
2 Minute and Long Form Avails
Sell-In and Sell-Through Many Affiliate Stations
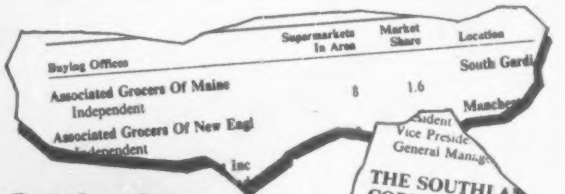
Fashion and New Product Shows
16 Owned and Operated Stations =more than 10 Million Viewers
CHANNEL AMERICA
America's Largest LPTV Network

Find out just how cost effective it is to reach millions of Americans in major and mid-sized markets. Channel America's nationwide network of LPTV stations offers advertisers the exposure power of TV along with the sell-through power of couponing. Call or write:
Channel America, 24 West 57th Street,
New York, NY 10019, (212) 262-5353



Supermarkets In Area
Market Share
Location
Buying Offices
South Gardi
Associated Grocers Of Maine Independent
8
1.6
Manche
Associated Grocers Of New Engl
Independent
Inc sident
Vice Preside
General Manag
THE SOUTHLAN
CORPORATION
Great Lakes Division
dba: 7 Eleven Stores
2214 Algonquin Road
Rolling Meadows, IL 6000
(312) 577-1711
Number of stores: 350
Stores franchised: 225
res with gas: 65

Put the pieces together with Progressive Grocer's valuable library of directories

Marketing Guidebook profiles over 800 supermarket chains & wholesalers in 55 U.S. & Canadian markets. The "who's who" guide to the supermarket industry offers company level data, key personnel and buyers' name.

Market Scope provides a quantitative look at supermarket distribution. Displaying retail market shares for 2,500 buying offices, within syndicated market areas, it's the "what's what" guide to the supermarket industry.

Directory of Mass Merchandisers profiles nearly 850 discount/variety chains, drug stores, 5¢-10¢ stores, department stores & club-type stores, indicating store data, corporate plans, key personnel & buyers. A one-stop retail overview!

Directory of Convenience Stores profiles 1,200 convenience store companies in 53 U.S. market areas. Its comprehensive store data includes suppliers' names, stores selling gas, franchises, personnel & buyers!

Retail Tenant Directory offers 3,000 chain company profiles, which cover market penetration & expansion plans. It also lists key executives and their titles.

☎ For immediate service, call (203) 325-3500, ext. 547

PROGRESSIVE GROCER INFORMATION SALES

Progressive Grocer Information Sales
1351 Washington Blvd.
Stamford, CT 06902

72A

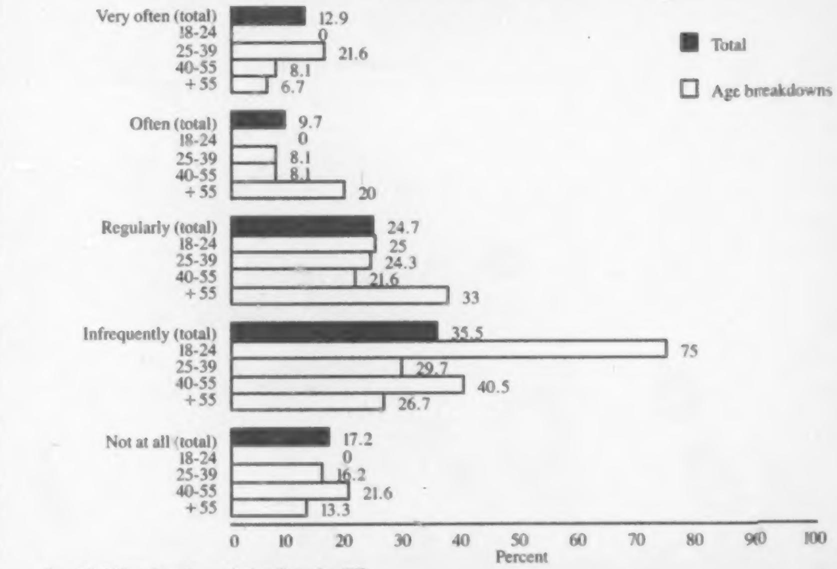
Data bank—Direct Marketing

National 24-hour home shopping services

Services	Launch date	Homes reached Dec. 1987 (millions) Cable	Homes reached Dec. 1987 (millions) Broadcast	Content
Home Shopping Network (includes Home Shopping Network II)	July 1985	21.26	29.30	Jewelry, electronics, hardware, toys and clothing
Cable Value Network	May 1986	18.22	—	Electronics, tools, toys, jewelry and clothing
Quality Value Network	Nov. 1986	10.70	—	Jewelry, electronics and appliances
America's Value Network	April 1987	.840	10.60	Discount merchandise
The Fashion Channel	Oct. 1987	7.60	—	Clothing, cosmetics and accessories
The Travel Channel	Feb. 1987	6.80	—	Travel related items and travel packages

Source: Paul Kagan Associates

How often they watch home shopping programs
By age of viewer



Source: Jack Myers Inc., Communications Group, Jan. 1987

Public awareness of TV home shopping programs

	(Base)	Very familiar	Fairly familiar	Only a little familiar	Not at all familiar	Don't know
Total public	(1001)	15%	22	34	28	1
Northeast	(213)	19%	22	31	28	—
North Central	(250)	13%	22	39	25	2
South	(340)	15%	20	33	31	1
West	(198)	13%	26	35	25	—
Non-metro area	(260)	8%	20	37	34	2
Metro area (under 1 million)	(338)	16%	21	32	30	1
Metro area (1 million +)	(403)	19%	25	35	21	—
Less than 35 years old	(366)	17%	24	40	18	1
35-64 years	(498)	15%	24	33	27	1
65 years or more	(130)	8%	12	25	54	1
High school incomplete	(100)	15%	14	26	44	—
High school graduate	(370)	15%	20	32	31	1
College incomplete	(189)	15%	26	34	24	1
College graduate	(330)	15%	25	41	19	—

*Less than ½%

Source: Opinion Research Corporation, April 1987

Consumers

(Continued from Page S-17)

lost. According to Andrea Baker, public relations manager, the network closed Dec. 31 because it had been unprofitable since it began in September 1986.

She says it would be "very unlikely" that Entertainment Marketing, the Houston-based company that began CDN, would try another home shopping venture.

Although smaller networks may be floundering, the biggest player in the home shopping game, HSN, has seen dramatic increases in sales over the past year. From fiscal 1986 to fiscal 1987, which ended Aug. 31, the company's revenues more than tripled to $532 million, with net earnings nearly doubling to $29.5 million, up 174% from 1986.

> Although smaller networks may be floundering, the biggest player in the home shopping game has seen dramatic increases in sales over the past year.

During that time, it bought 10 UHF TV stations and created HSN 2, which reaches 24.5 million TV viewers, and intends to purchase stations until it reaches the Federal Communications Commission ceiling of 12.

HSN will continue to add affiliate stations and expand services to include financial, travel and pharmaceutical information segments and products on both cable and broadcast networks.

According to Larry Gerbrandt, senior analyst, Kagan Associates, the two second largest home shopping networks, QVC, Westchester, Pa., and Cable Value Network, Minneapolis, are roughly equal, each with projected 1987 gross revenues of about $120 million.

By 1992, 79 million households will have a home television shopping service available, but the industry's annual growth rate will have slowed to about 15%, resulting in total revenues of $5.6 billion, predicts Kagan Associates. ■

Associate editor Anita M. Busch coordinated this report on Direct Marketing.

Coming

Next week ADVERTISING AGE's Special Report will focus on Newspapers.

First in a series of discussions in the M/A/R/C Symposium.

A Candid Discussion About Database Marketing.

Q: What is the difference between database marketing and traditional direct marketing?

A: Database marketing is the next evolution of direct marketing. The primary difference is the ability to communicate more precisely with different market segments and incorporate the consumer response back into the database. Once the response information becomes part of the file it can be used for segmentation purposes in creating the next direct marketing program. The advances in the data processing industry over the last 10 years have made storing of large amounts of information about prospects and customers much more affordable. The real magic is in the analysis of the data and its application to a particular marketing problem.

Q: I currently employ targeting tactics in my media buys. How will this be different in a database marketing environment?

A: It'll give you the ability to communicate more precisely with identified market segments. Analysis of promotion responders can yield strategic marketing direction.

So, the collective intelligence of the database improves with use. By appending the database with additional information from previous promotions or database overlays, targeting can be refined to much higher levels. Each new promotion or database overlay added to your consumer database provides more marketing variables to segment market niches that have a higher propensity to respond to your offer.

Q: What kind of marketing applications should be considered for database marketing?

A: Categories which have a high degree of switching, are mature, or have well-defined niches are excellent candidates. Examples of programs which work well in a database strategy are competitive and continuity promotion programs, frequent traveler and shopper programs, sales lead generation and business-to-business direct marketing programs.

Q: If you had to describe the biggest difference between M/A/R/C Database Marketing and others, what would it be?

A: There is a big difference between just collecting information and knowing what to do with it. The most important difference is our ability to leverage over 25 years of marketing and consumer research experience to design, develop and implement marketing programs that best suit your needs. It becomes a matter of knowing what to ask, and then knowing what to do with the answers. Database marketing allows you to communicate with each customer on an individual basis and create a dialogue that will continually enrich your market intelligence. As an example, we very often uncover information that points to needed changes in the marketing mix. So, the results of the interpretation of the information can optimize strategic marketing programs. M/A/R/C can also identify cross-selling opportunities, either for existing products and services or for new introductions. And, you can use it as a tool to outmaneuver your competition's marketing strategy in as many or as few markets as you choose. With M/A/R/C Database Marketing, pre-emptive planning will become the norm because you will have quantified knowledge of the category consumer base.

Q: Isn't database marketing going to make an already expensive advertising vehicle even more so?

A: The true benefit of database marketing is that it optimizes each marketing program that you run. As mass media costs rise and response to these programs gets harder to quantify, the need for measurable marketing solutions increases. The ability to fine tune your targeting, so you only reach those prospects which have a high probability of responding, can dramatically reduce your costs while improving your volume. M/A/R/C can provide a turnkey test of database marketing with your brand or service for less than $100,000.

Q: I know M/A/R/C has a great reputation in custom research, but I imagine you use a service bureau for database management. Don't you?

A: No. Most direct marketing agencies do use a service bureau. M/A/R/C is unique. Information has long been our business and our state-of-the-art computer capabilities enable us to do everything in-house. We think it is the only way to offer clients a formula for success where one plus one equals four.

M/A/R/C has a long history of proactive client service. We have been dedicated for the past two decades to working with clients to understand and create the best product or service mix to sell in changing market conditions. This expertise and dedication to service are carried forward into our newest service, database marketing. When you think about it, an integrated system customized to meet your individual needs – a system that's capable of revolutionizing your marketing strategy – is a powerful concept.

Q: OK. You've got my attention. How do I find out more about M/A/R/C Database Marketing?

A: Call Ken Orton at 1-800-527-2680 or return the coupon.

☐ Yes, I want to arrange an interview to find out how effective M/A/R/C Database Marketing can be for my company.
☐ I'm interested, but before we meet, call me at my office.

Name ______________________

Company ______________ Title ______________

Address ______________________

City, State, Zip ______________________

Telephone ______________________

M/A/R/C Inc.
Ken Orton, Vice President
P.O. Box 650083
Dallas, TX 75265-9990

MARC

The Artistry of Marketing. It Works.

DIRECT MARKETING CONSULTATION

I write THE DELAY LETTER and provide Direct Marketing consultation for a Fortune 500 company. I have time for one other client who needs strategic planning and/or proper direction. I can mate you with the right people and right places to save you time and money. If you have an interest in mergers or acquisitions, I have extremely useful contacts and experience.

If you are new to Direct Marketing, my experience can be invaluable. I'm not an agency. I don't write copy or draw. I just provide sound advice for a fee. Even if you have a substantial DM operation you can find my services cost-justifiable for you.

If you are interested call Bob DeLay at (212) 688-7559. Or contact Bernadette Lee at the same number. She'll put you in touch pronto!

Robert F. DeLay and Associates
320 East 54th Street, Suite 6G
New York, NY 10022-5030

BEAT THE 1988 POSTAGE INCREASE

By participating in cooperative direct mail, you can save substantially on rising postage and paper costs. Direct response card pacs are one of the most effective, efficient "shared mail" media available. Ideal for generating sales leads, catalog inquiries, subscriptions, newsletters, direct sales, new customer acquisition, etc.

VENTURE COMMUNICATIONS' expertise comes from mailing tens of millions of card packs annually to subscribers of Working Woman, Working Mother, Success, Nation's Business, Prentice Hall and more. We can match your offer to the ideal audience at pennies per prospect. Join Xerox, IBM, Spiegel, and thousands of informed advertisers and beat the 1988 postage increase.

VC
VENTURE COMMUNICATIONS INTERNATIONAL, INC
114 E. 32 St., Suite 1700, New York, NY 10016
(212) 684-4800 FAX (212) 576-1129

LOOKING FOR A FULFILLING RELATIONSHIP?

Look no further than Fulfillment Corporation of America for all your information processing needs. FCA gives you timely, accurate, cost-effective full service fulfillment without filling out your budget. Over 40 years of experience, state-of-the-art technology, and attention to detail combine to make FCA a fulfilling experience for you.

(Clip and see how timely we are at fulfilling our part.)

Yes, FCA may be suited to my needs in these areas:

☐ Mail Opening/Remittance and Order Processing
☐ Data Entry
☐ High Speed Optical Scanning/Document Page Scanning
☐ List Management
☐ Sweepstakes/Rebates/Mail-in Offers
☐ Coupon and Gift Certificate Redemption
☐ Product and Premium Fulfillment
☐ Direct Mail/Mail Distribution and Lettershop Services
☐ Other (please specify) ____________

Name ____________ Title ____________
Company ____________
Address ____________
City ____________ State ________ Zip ________
Telephone (   ) ____________

Mail to Linda Moloney, Marketing Manager, at:
205 W. Center St., Marion, Ohio 43302, or phone 614/383-5231. FCA

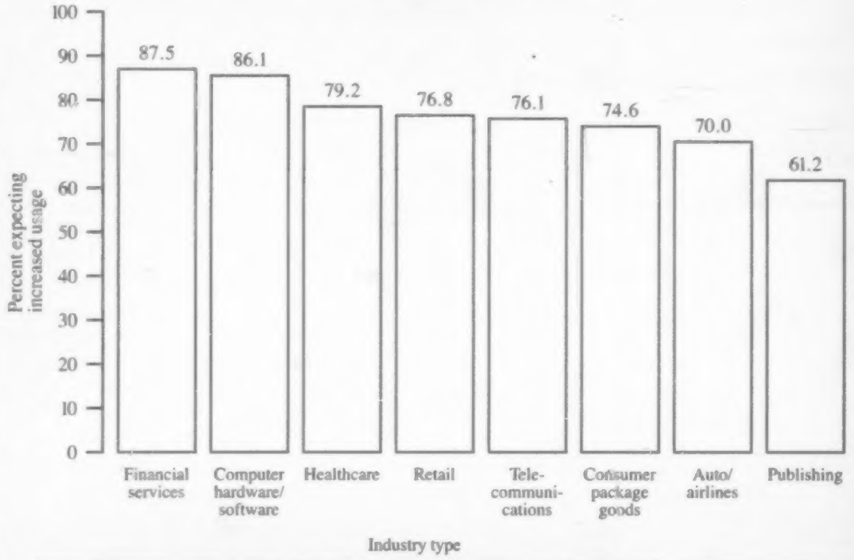
Data bank—Direct Marketing

Media usage
Today's patterns vs. tomorrow's expectations

Media	% For lead generation		% To generate sales		For sales support
	Today	Tomorrow	Today	Tomorrow	Today	Tomorrow
Direct Mail	61%	52%	66%	56%	24%	22%
Magazines	53%	37%	43%	30%	27%	18%
Catalogs	31%	26%	38%	33%	10%	10%
Telemarketing	30%	32%	42%	42%	15%	17%
Newspapers	30%	21%	26%	17%	19%	11%
Pkg./Stmt. inserts	25%	22%	31%	25%	12%	9%
Free stdg. inserts	22%	18%	24%	18%	11%	8%
Point of sale	19%	13%	18%	14%	11%	8%
UHF/VHF television	15%	17%	15%	14%	15%	13%
Cable TV	11%	20%	13%	19%	8%	11%
Radio	11%	10%	11%	10%	14%	10%

Source: DMA Research Department, Marketing Council, Direct Marketing Practices & Trends Survey, 1986

Future involvement in direct marketing
By industry type



Source: DMA Research Department, Marketing Council, Direct Marketing Practices & Trends Survey, 1986

Direct response advertising trends
Estimated 1985–1986 U.S. ad volume

	1985 ($ Millions)	1986 ($ Millions)	Percent change
National
Newspapers	3,352	3,376	+ 0.7
Magazines	5,155	5,317	+ 3.1
Network TV	8,285	8,570	+ 3.4
Spot TV	6,004	6,570	+ 9.4
Cable TV	637	752	+ 18.1
Network radio	365	423	+ 16.0
Spot radio	1,335	1,348	+ 1.0
Outdoor	610	600	− 1.5
Direct mail	15,500	17,145	+ 10.6
Other national media	12,112	12,749	+ 5.3
Total national advertising	53,355	56,850	+ 6.6
Local
Newspapers	21,818	23,614	+ 8.2
Local TV	5,714	6,514	+ 14.0
Cable TV	130	179	+ 37.8
Local radio	4,790	5,178	+ 8.1
Outdoor	335	385	+ 14.9
Other local media	8,608	9,420	+ 9.4
Total local advertising	41,395	45,290	+ 9.4
Total all advertising	94,750	102,140	+ 7.8

Source: Robert J. Coen, McCann-Erickson, 1987

Honoring King: Marketers woo blacks in holiday promotions

By GARY LEVIN

Major marketers are dreaming up new ways to reach black consumers with special campaigns and promotions celebrating this week's observance of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday and Black History Month in February.

Blue-chip advertisers including AT&T Co., Burger King Corp., Coca-Cola USA and McDonald's Corp. will honor the contributions of blacks in U.S. history and recognize the importance of black consumers with programs that run the gamut from TV campaigns to restaurant tray liners.

Most industry observers agree marketers have boosted their involvement substantially in campaigns and promotions related to the holiday and Black History Month.

Sarah Burroughs, senior VP-general manager at Burrell Advertising, Chicago, said that "there's certainly more [marketing activity] than I personally recall ever seeing," especially since the Rev. King's birthday became a national legal holiday in 1986. "As some companies get in the forefront and really get involved, other companies do it from a marketing standpoint," she said.

"There are a number of advertisers who recognize the importance of showing [blacks'] contributions as a way of showing interest in our markets and their interest in us as consumers," said Greg Walker, VP-management supervisor, UniWorld Group, New York.

Among major efforts running this month, targeted primarily to blacks:

- Burger King Corp., Miami, broke a TV spot and print ad celebrating the Rev. King's birthday, which was Jan. 15 but is celebrated today.

The No. 2 burger chain also plans print ads and a tray liner promotion for Black History Month. The ad shows a U.S. flag with names of prominent black historical figures sewn into it, themed "Black history: woven into the fabric of America."

They don't come any more original than the real McCoy.
Coors
BURGER KING

Adolph Coors Co. and Burger King Corp. are among the marketers gearing their advertising and promotions to the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr. and Black History Month. Their programs run the gamut from print and TV campaigns to restaurant tray liners.

The tray promotion, depicting black Americans' role in literature, music, science and sports, will be made available to BK franchisees systemwide in February. It is supported by radio spots via UniWorld, the agency for BK's minority advertising. N W Ayer, New York, has the general account.

- Coca-Cola USA, Atlanta, will run for the sixth straight year its "Share the Dream" college scholarship sweepstakes. The cola giant broke a new TV vignette-style spot Jan. 15 featuring a montage of a library, grocery and graduation ceremony.

The TV spot, via Burrell, runs through February, supported by February magazine ads and a newspaper ad the week of Feb. 8 with coupons and sweepstakes entry blanks.

- Adolph Coors Co., Golden, Colo., continues its aggressive yearlong minority campaign with print ads tied to its general-market effort, themed "An American original," running in February issues of black-oriented magazines. The brewery also is running a separate print ad, in stark gray tones, offering "a moment of silence in celebration of the life and accomplishments" of the Rev. King.

Both efforts are part of the company's "continuous advertising in black media," said Cinde Dolphin, Coors area manager, who added that the holiday ads supplement both general and black-oriented ads in a major new campaign featuring former boxer Sugar Ray Leonard. GSD&M, Austin, Texas, handles Coors.

- McDonald's Corp., Oak Brook, Ill., offers glimpses of "Black history-makers of tomorrow" in a promotion that "honors the past by focusing on the future," said Melvin Fallis, senior VP at FraserSmith Corp., New York, which developed the promotion.

A new TV spot and print ad breaking in early February highlight 10 teen-agers, selected in a national search and essay contest, who show promise in future careers. Ad support was created by Burrell. The long-term program will be expanded next year to include regional contests with separate winners leading to the national competition.

- Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, is running corporate ads in January and February issues of black-oriented magazines "paying tribute" to King and Black History Month. The nation's largest retailer also is sponsoring "Living the Dream," a syndicated TV special airing tonight on the legal observance of the holiday. An Allstate Insurance Cos. ad, via Leo Burnett USA, and a corporate ad featuring all of Sears' units, produced by Vince Cullers Advertising, will run during the special.
- Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N.Y., will run a print campaign next month recognizing black Americans' participation in the Olympics. The ad, also from UniWorld, coincides with the Winter Olympics in Calgary, Alberta.
- AT&T, New York, plans a February sweepstakes tied to Black History Month, themed "Call on your past to enrich your future." It includes several black historical figures and asks magazine readers to "call in and listen to the black history moment," a prerecorded message that provides contest entry information. AT&T also will run separate corporate ads acknowledging both observances. UniWorld handles.

Each of the advertisers using the Rev. King's name, photo or other likeness needed the approval of the civil rights leader's family and had to donate to the King Center for Non-Violent Social Change.#

Ad pages in farm publications for 12 months, 1987-86

Fourth-quarter and year-to-date figures for U.S. and Canadian publications reporting to Advertising Age

	Pages
	Oct.-Dec. 1987	Oct.-Dec. 1986	Jan.-Dec. 1987	Jan.-Dec. 1986
— Canadian —
Country Guide:
Eastern Edition	97.3	85.2	448.3	440.5
National Edition	139.4	118.1	709.2	716.5
Western Edition	95.8	86.7	465.4	506.2
Le Bulletin des:
Agriculteurs	—	—	—	—
Total Group	332.5	290.0	1,622.9	1,663.2
% change		14.7%		-2.4%
— Dairy & livestock —
Beef Today	42.7	25.1	181.4	101.9
Beef Magazine A	96.6	83.2	525.8	460.5
Beefweek	93.2	136.7	381.7	519.1
The Cattleman	261.6	216.4	926.8	992.8
Dairy	67.0	49.2	278.0	275.0
Dairy Today	57.7	36.6	234.4	176.7
Dairy Herd Management	—	—	—	—
Drovers Journal (21X) A	—	—	—	—
Feedlot Management	—	—	—	—
Florida Cattleman	202.7	220.0	670.1	776.3
Hoards Dairyman (21X) A	108.6	104.3	484.7	523.4
Hogs Today	62.5	51.4	196.7	162.8
Hog Farm Management	—	—	—	—
National Hog Farmer	175.5	169.9	613.0	642.2
Pork '87	—	—	—	—
The Hog Producer	—	—	—	—
S. Beef	—	—	—	—
Southern Beef Producer (8X)	27.6	42.6	158.2	195.1
Sunbelt Dairyman (6X)	—	—	—	—
Western Livestock Reporter	211.0	184.6	472.6	475.7
Total Group	1,406.7	1,320.0	5,123.4	5,301.5
% change		6.6%		-3.4%
— Fruit & vegetable —
American Fruit Grower	78.1	88.3	406.4	465.6
American Vegetable Grower	101.2	130.2	556.2	592.3
Citrus & Vegetable	150.2	132.3	586.6	570.8
Hay & Forage Grower	14.6	—	88.0	—
The Citrus Industry	—	—	—	—
The Grower	80.4	80.0	391.0	306.7
Total Group	424.5	430.8	2,028.2	1,935.4
% change		-1.5%		4.8%
— General farm publications —
American Agriculturalist	56.0	47.0	240.0	246.0
California Farmer (21X) A	105.0	114.0	344.0	425.0
Colorado Rancher & Farmer	—	—	—	—
Farm Futures A	52.9	75.3	351.0	368.0
Farm Industry News (10X)	66.9	86.2	425.5	436.8
Farm Journal (14X)	81.2	103.2	554.2	535.2
Farm Progress Group:
Prairie Farmer (21X) A	146.0	129.0	700.2	801.5
Indiana Edition (21X)	—	—	—	—
Wallace's Farmer (21X) A	—	—	—	—
Wisconsin Agriculturist(21X)	—	—	—	—
Florida Grower & Rancher	77.7	72.5	279.5	317.1
HBJ Farm Unit:
Colorado Rancher & Farmer (12X)	39.6	44.9	221.6	288.6
Kansas Farmer (16X)	52.8	59.0	348.1	432.6
Michigan Farmer (16X)	71.3	64.2	384.7	426.9
Missouri Ruralist (16X)	49.1	61.0	362.0	476.0
Nebraska Farmer(23X)	120.5	147.5	787.8	909.4
Ohio Farmer (16X)	64.6	72.8	464.4	515.3
Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman (12X)	39.4	36.4	192.8	181.1
Pennsylvania Farmer (16X)	55.5	46.4	359.4	354.0
Texas-Farmer Stockman (12X)	35.2	34.8	181.1	169.0
High Plains Journal:
Eastern Kansas (52X)	433.3	378.5	1,785.2	1,776.2
Colorado	437.5	385.9	1,815.9	1,812.5
Nebraska	421.4	362.7	1,758.9	1,719.6
Oklahoma-Texas	441.4	392.6	1,817.3	1,795.2
Western Kansas	482.4	437.3	1,970.1	1,983.2
Kentucky Farmer	27.0	36.3	205.5	241.7
Lancaster Farming (52X)	1,608.3	1,555.5	6,986.0	6,684.2
Pecan South (6X)	20.3	24.5	78.7	70.6
Progressive Farmer A	128.4	115.7	582.6	612.7
Specialized Agricultural Publications:
Flue Cured Tobacco Farmer	20.6	15.5	94.0	92.2
Peanut Farmer (8X)	—	—	102.7	94.3
Successful Farming Now A	143.5	102.8	627.8	547.2
Tennessee Farmer	18.7	20.3	116.5	131.8
The Farmer (24X)	100.8	118.3	586.7	702.4
Top Producer	27.6	32.3	183.6	161.4
Western Farmer-Stockman Magazines:
Ariz. Farmer-Stockman (12X)	42.9	40.5	158.1	212.1
Idaho Farmer-Stockman (20X)	74.8	61.1	356.2	418.5
Mont. Farmer-Stockman (20X)	98.7	88.6	507.4	572.9
Ore. Farmer-Stockman (20X)	60.9	50.5	278.8	324.2
Utah Farmer-Stockman (20X)	64.7	49.5	253.0	262.2
Wash. Farmer-Stockman (20X)	62.2	49.2	299.0	341.3
Total Group	5,828.9	5,511.9	26,760.3	27,438.8
% change		5.8%		-2.5%
— Poultry —
Broiler Industry	171.3	149.6	621.5	571.5
Egg Industry	58.0	46.3	228.7	217.0
Poultry Digest	98.4	81.7	283.9	253.7
Poultry & Egg News	—	—	—	—
Poultry Times	—	—	—	—
Northeast/Midwest	—	—	—	—
Pacific Edition	—	—	—	—
Southeast Edition	—	—	—	—
Southwest Edition	—	—	—	—
Poultry & Egg Marketing	—	—	—	—
Total Group	327.7	277.6	1,134.1	1,042.2
% change		18.0%		8.8%

(X) Represents the number of times published each year; publications are monthly unless otherwise specified. A. Sectional linage included but prorated to circulation of regional editions.

All figures represented in this chart are supplied by the magazines. ADVERTISING AGE makes no attempt to verify them and, therefore, is not responsible for inconsistencies or errors.

Why some won't play the Games

By LAURIE FREEMAN and JANET MEYERS

Procter & Gamble Co., the giant consumer-products company that spends about $1.4 billion a year on advertising, will not play a marketing role in the 1988 Olympics.

The cost is too high, executives say.

The company is not alone in its opinion. Black & Decker Corp., Colgate-Palmolive Co. and other major advertisers think the cost of becoming an Olympics sponsor or advertiser is not efficient.

The cost of an Olympic sponsorship varies with the product or service involved.

P&G, Cincinnati, did sign a yearlong agreement with the U.S. Hockey Team for its Sure antiperspirant. But that agreement does not cover the Olympic Games.

"Once the Calgary Games open, you have to be an official sponsor to [promote your] affiliation with a team," said a spokesman for Hill & Knowlton, New York, which is handling Sure's public relations.

Like P&G, Colgate investigated possible sponsorships and media buys during the Olympics but declined to participate. Colgate "found that the cost-efficiency is out of line with other network opportunities," a company spokesman said.

Lever Bros. bought TV time for several of its food and household products during the Olympics but decided against becoming an official sponsor.

"The person buying our products generally is the homemaker, who buys the products that are used throughout the house. We have found that women are not all that interested in the Olympics, and there is no reason for us to be a primary sponsor in that environment," a Lever spokesman said.

M&M/Mars, Hackettstown, N.J., which sponsored the official snack food of the 1984 Olympics, declined any sponsorship this year, partially because there is no product category for snack foods and also because the Games are not in the U.S., said Hans Fiuczynski, M&M/Mars external relations director.

For the 1984 Los Angeles Games, M&M/-Mars' top two candy brands, Snickers and M&M's, were the Olympics official snack food, a crucial nomenclature for Mars, which was trying to reposition its confections as wholesome snacks.

In 1988, Nabisco Brands, East Hanover, N.J., will be the official sponsor for cookies, crackers and confectionary products—a broader category than M&M/Mars wanted.

Black & Decker Corp., the Towson, Md.-based marketer of housewares and power tools, considered a sponsor role for the '88 Olympics a year and a half ago. B&D then was changing newly acquired General Electric Co. household products to the B&D name, and the Olympics represented an alluring international marketing possibility, said Barbara Lucas, B&D VP-public affairs.

But the steep sponsorship costs forced B&D to nix the idea.#

Olympic sponsors set world record

(Continued from Page 3)

beginning Feb. 13. The kickoff commercial, created by Cliff Freeman, chairman-chief creative officer at Cliff Freeman & Partners, New York, a Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton agency, features a female speed skater in the dark, then cuts to a series of fluorescent Philips lights blazing onto the rink.

- Visa International, San Mateo, Calif., which has been lording its global sponsorship status over rival American Express Co. since May, plans to spend about $15 million on Olympic-associated advertising this year.

Visa purchased half the broadcast time available in the credit card category, said Jan Soderstrom, VP-advertising and marketing communications.

The company will break a new spot continuing its 3-year-old "It's everywhere you want to be" theme during coverage of the Winter Games.

The commercial will focus on an establishment in Calgary that accepts Visa but not the AmEx card.

During the last days of the Games, Visa will start airing a spot promoting its donation program for the Summer Games in Seoul.

That spot, like the one Visa broke last July to promote donations to the winter teams, will use the tagline "Pull for the team."

- Federal Express Corp., a global sponsor and the sole air-freight-express advertiser on ABC, will air spots from its new "It's not a package. It's your business" campaign that focus on international delivery.

Fallon McElligott, Minneapolis, handles.

Memphis, Tenn.-based Federal Express is concentrating its promotional efforts in Calgary on a nightly multimedia show that it will stage at the Olympic Plaza after presentations to each day's medal winners.

The shows will include lasers, fireworks and a giant Fed Ex Olympic logo.

- Eastman-Kodak Co., Rochester, N.Y., worldwide sponsor for film, photo processing, batteries and non-35 millimeter cameras, is the only advertiser on ABC in those categories.

The 39 spots it will air during the Winter Games will be divided evenly among film, batteries and its Colorwatch processing.

A spot for Kodak's VRG film that will air only during the Games will feature skier Debbie Armstrong, who won a gold medal in Sarajevo, "growing up" on Kodak film.

The company also will insert a 10-page viewing guide in the Feb. 13 issue of TV Guide that will carry ads from several Kodak divisions.

J. Walter Thompson USA, New York, is Kodak's main agency.

- Anheuser-Busch, St. Louis, will air Olympics-themed commercials for all major brands, including a "Light up the night" spot for Michelob Light that will show people skiing and skating at night.

A-B corporate advertising created by Hal Riney & Partners, Chicago, also is expected.

- Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, will air spots throughout February for a promotion of its High Life, Genuine Draft and Lite brands.

For every case of the beers sold in the month, Miller will donate 5¢ to the Olympic Training Center.

Backer Spielvogel Bates, New York, handles.

- McDonald's Corp., Oak Brook, Ill., is a USOC sponsor and shares the fast-food category on ABC with Wendy's International, Dublin, Ohio.

Although it will advertise heavily during the Winter Games, McDonald's is saving its promotional muscle for the summer, sources said.

Summer plans include a reprise of the "When the U.S. wins, you win" scratch-card game it ran during 1984.

During the winter, sources said they expect special discounting promotions and commercials featuring athletes preparing for the Games.

Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, is McDonald's agency.

Wendy's will unveil its long-awaited first major campaign from Backer Spielvogel Bates.

The campaign will continue the "Best burger in the business" theme with a product quality message.

- East Hanover, N.J.-based Nabisco Brands, which signed on as USOC sponsor too late to produce Olympics-themed TV spots, has scheduled a Feb. 7 free standing insert promoting its cookie and cracker division.

The insert will include a sweepstakes offering official Olympics jackets and trips to Olympic cities.

Nabisco's Del Monte USA and Planters divisions also have official sponsor status and will advertise on ABC's broadcast.

Nabisco's main cookie/cracker agency is Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York.

- General Foods Corp.'s Maxwell House, the official coffee brand of the USOC and the Winter Games, apparently is brewing up a big Olympics effort.

The Rye Brook, N.Y.-based company drastically cut its coffee ad budget in the second half of 1987 and plans to break a new Maxwell House campaign during the ABC broadcast. Ogilvy & Mather, New York, handles.

- Apple Computer, Cupertino, Calif., has made a large buy on ABC that probably will make it the No. 1 personal-computer advertiser during the Games, said Sharon Lack, advertising and sales promotion manager.

Apple is not a sponsor—IBM Corp. is the computer sponsor of the Winter Games—but Ms. Lack hinted that Apple's involvement "is not just in media time."

Apple's entire Olympics campaign will promote the Macintosh computer. BBDO Worldwide, New York and Los Angeles, handles.

- Hilton Hotels Corp., Beverly Hills, Calif., a USOC sponsor, in February will expand its Olympics-themed frequent traveler program to include an instant-winner promotion.

A TV spot for the program, featuring Hilton Chairman Barron Hilton, will break during ABC's coverage.

The spot, shot in Calgary, shows Mr. Hilton standing among U.S. Olympics team members. McCann-Erickson, Los Angeles, handles.

- K mart Corp., Troy, Mich., is not an official Olympics sponsor but is spending about $20 million on commercials during telecasts of the Winter and Summer Games.

An additional $10 million is being spent on its sponsorship of the U.S. hockey team, a special Olympics national newspaper and magazine campaign, and a 2,200-storewide customer sweepstakes. Ross Roy Inc., Detroit, handles.

- Blue Cross & Blue Shield Association, Chicago, is spending about $15 million on its USOC sponsorship, which includes a huge buy on ABC. TV spots have been running since the fall, and new print ads break in February.

Hal Riney & Partners, Chicago, is its agency.

- Prudential Insurance Co. of America, Newark, N.J., though not an official sponsor, is a major advertiser on ABC and will run an Olympics-related ad in magazines.

Backer Spielvogel Bates handles.#

Contributing to this report were Verne Gay, Judann Dagnoli, Judith Graham and Patricia Winters in New York; Ray Serafin and Patricia Strnad in Detroit; Scott Hume and Julie Liesse Erickson in Chicago; Janet Meyers in Washington; and Cleveland Horton and Marcy Magiera in Los Angeles.

Biggest spenders on ABC's Winter Olympics

($ in millions)

Chrysler and Ford ($50)
Anheuser-Busch and Miller ($25)
Allstate, Northwestern Mutual Life and New York Life ($20)
Merrill Lynch ($15)
Apple, IBM and Compaq ($15)
McDonald's and Wendy's ($14)
Blue Cross/Blue Shield ($13.5)
Visa and American Express ($11)
American Airlines and Northwest ($10)
US Sprint and MCI ($10)
K mart ($10)
Johnson & Johnson ($8)
Federal Express ($7.5)
Quality Inns ($7)
Kodak ($6)
Gallo ($6)
Michelin ($6)
Lipton ($6)
General Foods ($5.5)
Campbell Soup ($5)
CPC Int'l/Best Foods ($5)
Wrangler ($5)
Hertz ($5)
Weyerhaeuser ($5)

Source: Advertising Age

Confusion could hurt sponsors

By PATRICK McGEEHAN

The biggest contest at the Winter Olympic Games in Calgary, Alberta, next month will be off the field.

Marketers will be racing to ensure that the buying public associates their companies with the Games.

Official Olympics sponsors, who paid huge sums for the right to call themselves that, might find consumers are confused.

Companies that draw any connection to the Olympics without buying a sponsorship "are taking advantage of the American public by causing confusion in the minds of the consumers," said Robert Prazmark, VP at ISL Marketing USA, New York, which sold exclusive sponsorships to nine companies at an average cost of more than $13 million.

ABC-TV, the U.S. network that is broadcasting the Games, established 76 advertising categories but did not offer "category exclusivity." Instead, it set $3 million as the original cost of entry for advertisers.

Because not all the advertisers on the Olympics will be official sponsors, there may be confusion.

For example, Visa International, San Mateo, Calif., and American Express Co., New York, will advertise, but AmEx is not an official sponsor. Visa paid about $15 million for its global sponsorship.

AmEx, which passed on the deal before Visa bought it, is so intent on tying into the Olympics that it is including magazine ads featuring former Olympic stars Eric Heiden and Billy Kidd in its "Portraits" campaign.

Anheuser-Busch, St. Louis, and Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, will be the only beer advertisers during the broadcast. A-B is the official beer sponsor of the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Winter Games while Miller is the sole sponsor of the Olympic Training Center.

"Our advertising uses the logo of the Olympic Training Center because it's something unique," said Alan Easton, Miller's VP-public affairs. "The Olympics committee has sliced sponsorships so many different ways that there's really a terrible clutter problem with Olympics tie-ins."

Olympic officials acknowledge the confusion but add that they have tried to police it.

"Our obligation is to protect and deliver meaningful exclusivity," said David Shanks, general manager-corporate relations for the Calgary organizing committee.#

3-DIGIT 200
020190949 AA00 8804 COMP F62
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

C2710-1

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

January 25, 1988

NEW Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

VIE DE FRANCE What went wrong?

By JANET MEYERS

McLEAN, VA.—On Aug. 28, 1986, the French businessmen who controlled Vie de France Corp. locked the company's $1 million-a-year president out of his office.

They hoped they had seen the last of him.

But two months later, there was Lloyd J. Faul, speaking from the floor at the company's annual meeting here. Defiant as ever, the lean, fit, former U.S. Army general proclaimed he was leaving "with my head high, because I'm extremely proud of the achievements of this company."

Then, with his flair for drama, Mr. Faul presented the Frenchmen with a parting gift: notice of a $26 million lawsuit charg-

(Continued on Page 34)

Trust bedevils agencies—P. 18

Newspaper wars—P. S-1

Murdoch's time

Launches multi-book incentive plan

By PATRICK REILLY

NEW YORK—Murdoch Magazines is unwrapping a multi-magazine advertiser incentive plan based on space credits, the first such plan to be offered by a major magazine group since Time Inc. unveiled its Max-Plan last year.

Murdoch's Group Advertising Plan covers a diverse, fast-growing fleet of titles that range from the trendy Elle to the supermarket tabloid The Star.

Reflecting its mix of magazines, including recent start-ups such as Automobile and Premiere, the plan offers special incentives, not found in Max-Plan, to lure advertisers to expand their buys into untried Murdoch titles and increase their spending in general.

In another significant departure from Time Inc.'s strategy, the Murdoch plan does not insist that advertisers maintain or increase the share of their total print budget allotted to its magazines to qualify for space credits.

Although adopted by Newsweek's Match Plan, Time Inc.'s Max-Plan remains the only multi-magazine incentive plan built around the share-of-market strategy.

Publishers and agency media buyers said Murdoch's move is fresh evidence that advertisers are coming to "expect" special incentives that go beyond traditional package rate discounts.

The more traditional discounts are built around frequency and adding titles, such as those offered by Conde Nast Publications, Diamandis Communications Inc. and Hearst Corp.

"The Murdoch plan is recognition

(Continued on Page 74)

New magazine rates force agencies to change—Page 71

GE/RCA goes with Ammirati

By GARY LEVIN

Thomson Consumer Electronics says a well-rounded presentation resulted in Ammirati & Puris, New York, winning its $15 million-to-$20 million account.

Indianapolis-based Thomson, formerly GE/RCA Consumer Electronics, said Ammirati won the business last week with an assignment given each of the finalists for a hypothetical campaign for a TV set to be introduced in the fourth quarter of 1988.

In October, Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, resigned the $15 million RCA account, citing reduced compensation and the decision to start an agency review (AA, Oct. 5).

Thomson SA, a French company, bought the electronics brands last year from General Electric Co. and combined the RCA advertising assignment with the $5 million GE electronics account, previously at BBDO Worldwide, New York. BBDO later pulled out of the review.

Agency sources indicated a fee and commission system approaching a previously standard 15% profit was negotiated for Ammirati.

Ammirati will create separate campaigns for the GE and RCA electronics brands, with RCA getting the bulk of the total budget. The brands will not use the Thomson name in any marketing efforts.

BBDO still handles most of GE's corporate, appliance and lighting products (AA, Dec. 21).

Ammirati's first print and TV effort will break in September, traditionally the start of the year's major electronics selling season.#

Highlights

NEWS

4 Suit-able sweets for the sweet
Marketers are dressing up boxes of chocolates in black tie or pinstripes as valentine's gifts for men.

12 GM plans $100M blitz
General Motors Corp. is putting nearly $100 million behind the launch of its three newest cars.

10 Saatchi eyes business-to-business
Saatchi & Saatchi Co. is setting up a business-to-business agency network throughout Europe.

30 Toothpastes polish new ads
Toothpaste marketers are resuming intense advertising of plaque and tartar-removal products.

32 HDM goes to India
HDM is beefing up its Asian operations to better serve key client Colgate-Palmolive Co.

38 USOC enters affinity arena
The affinity credit-card universe has another big entrant—the U.S. Olympic Committee.

40 Game shows big with kids
Independent TV stations are pinning their hopes on game shows for children.

48 Sponsors lured to local fetes
Corporate sponsors are pulling out all the stops in shifting dollars from national to local events.

68 Philippines worries rum producers
Puerto Rican rum producers are concerned the Philippines could jeopardize their dominance in the U.S.

71 Agencies shift magazine strategies
Agency media departments are being forced to re-evaluate the way they buy magazine space.

INTERNATIONAL

66 Nielsen sues AGB in France
A.C. Nielsen Co. is suing Audits of Great Britain for unfair competition after AGB won the exclusive contract for France's first people meters.

The Vie de France photograph on the cover was taken by Stan Miskiewicz.

CELESTIAL SEASONINGS
CRANBERRY COVE

AD REVIEW: Hartley and Celestial teas. Page 76.

PERSPECTIVAS: "Tonight Show" viewers needed a Spanish-English dictionary for this RC Cola spot. P. 58.

Departments

AdWhirl 67
Brady 50
Brady's Bunch 38
Direct Marketing 38
Editorials 16
For the Record 69
Forum 18
Global Gallery 42
Letters 20
MediaWorks 54
People 56
PeopleWorks 57
Photo Review 52
The Next Trend 50

Vol. 59, No. 4—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970.

Dole campaign drops Ringe shop

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

Campaign 88

ROBERT DOLE

WASHINGTON—He was the first presidential contender to consider using national cable TV in the 1988 campaign. Now he is the first to replace his ad agency.

Less than a month before the critical New Hampshire primary, Sen. Robert Dole (R., Kan.) last week dropped Ringe Media, the agency he hired only three months ago.

The move to replace Ringe underscores increased pressure on all political consultants to produce TV spots that move voters.

Recently, two Republicans, former Delaware Gov. Pierre du Pont and the Rev. Pat Robertson, and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, a Democrat, changed media buyers or image-makers.

But it was Sen. Dole, in an all-out nomination battle with Vice President George Bush, who took the boldest step.

Dole insiders, speaking anonymously, confirm that agency President Donald Ringe now is an unpaid media consultant whose only future role will be in production.

Larry McCarthy, formerly a top lieutenant to Roger Ailes at Ailes Communications, New York, now handles the campaign's creative decisions. Multi Media Services, Alexandria, Va., retains media buying.

Mr. McCarthy was hired in December by campaign manager William Brock, the former Tennessee senator and Republican National Committee chairman.

"The fuse was lit then," one insider said. "That was the beginning of the end for Ringe."

If that was the start, then the end was Ringe Media's failure to produce spots that moved voter numbers.

In Iowa, the Dole campaign believes strong organization, limited paid media and a "he's-a-midwesterner-just-like-us" message should propel the Kansas senator to victory in the Feb. 8 caucuses.

The Dole message now being disseminated in New Hampshire is basically the same one used in Iowa, and campaign sources believe the two states are too dissimilar for the same message to work.

"Iowa is an organization state, and Dole has a good one there," a source said. "Dole on a farm, with Dole talking about his war injury and working his way up—that played well in Iowa.

"But New Hampshire is more of a media-driven state because it's a primary state, not a caucus state like Iowa. The simple story being told in Iowa is not enough in New Hampshire, which is George Bush country. . . . They're showing Dole on a farm, and there just aren't many wheat farmers in New Hampshire."

The Dole campaign has aired only a handful of TV spots to date, most of them excerpted from or based on an 18-minute biographical video produced by Murphy & Castellanos, Alexandria, Va.

Another Dole campaign official said the agency change was "mostly a matter of personalities."

One source said, "You can put up with someone who's an [expletive] and is creative, but if he's not creating, why put up with him?"

Officially, Dole campaign staffers and Mr. Ringe deny any change in their relationship.#

Consumers buy more if they like president

By LEO J. SHAPIRO and DWIGHT BOHMBACH

The link between consumer spending and the way people feel about the U.S. president is so close that a sensible economic forecast depends on a realistic forecast of the next president's popularity, an ADVERTISING AGE poll reveals.

The monthly phone polls of 5,416 consumers interviewed during 1987 by Leo J. Shapiro & Associates, Chicago, turned up new data on links between the way people feel about finances, the nation, personal spending and the president.

Adults who said they were "pleased" with President Reagan's performance were weighted statistically to match the age, education and income of respondents who said they were "displeased" with his performance.

Spending link

The finding: People pleased with the president's performance are more likely to be optimistic about the country and the economy, more hopeful for their own future and more inclined to go out and buy all kinds of consumer goods.

In fact, people pleased with the president are three times as likely (42% vs. 14%) to believe things are going better for the nation and more than twice as likely to think the economy will get better (44% vs. 20%).

Confidence in one's own financial future and feelings of affluence also are vital ingredients in consumer willingness to spend freely and to make major purchases.

Those happy with the president are more likely to say they are having an easier time getting along and paying the bills (44% vs. 28%) and to feel confident about their own finances in the coming year (56% vs. 39%).

The percentage spending freely to maintain their standard of living is 13 points higher among consumers pleased with their president (78% vs. 65%). Spending freely means not cutting back on clothing, food and other items.

Spending for major goods and services also is affected (see table). For example, those pleased with the president are 29% more likely than those displeased with him to be planning a new-car purchase (22% vs. 17%). They also are more likely to be shopping actively for a car (11% vs. 9%).

The next president

With the presidential election less than 10 months away, no one candidate has emerged yet from either party who is popular enough to be mentioned spontaneously by more than 7% of Americans as someone they would prefer over President Reagan.

Americans are hungry for a president in whom they can believe. But none of the candidates has demonstrated that kind of potential, according to the polling.

This situation raises the possibility that if no one suddenly "catches on" with voters, a dark-horse candidate capable of capturing the confidence of a majority of Americans could appear later this year.#

Messrs. Shapiro and Bohmbach are with Leo J. Shapiro & Associates.

Reagan's job performance rating

Spending for major goods and services is sharply affected by people's opinions of the president, according to Leo J. Shapiro & Associates, Chicago. The question, "Overall, are you pleased with the job Ronald Reagan has been doing as President of the United States?" drew "yes" responses from 3,029 people and "no" from 2,120 respondents. This chart shows spending plans of the "pleased" group to be higher than those not pleased in almost all categories.

Plan to buy major goods in 1988...	Pleased	Displeased
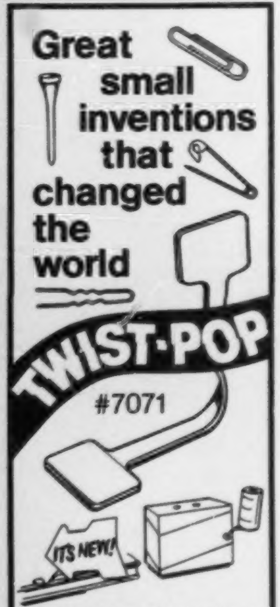
New car	22%	17%
Used car	19	18
Housing	18	13
Furniture	30	24
Appliance	17	15
Carpeting	15	11
Color TV	12	10
Air travel	42	34
Hotel/motel stay	52	41
Shopped during Dec. '87 for...
New car	11	9
Used car	8	8
Housing	10	8
Furniture	13	10
Appliance	8	7
Carpeting	6	4
Color TV	5	4
Air travel	19	14
Hotel/motel stay	19	13



Great small inventions that changed the world
TWIST-POP
#7071
IT'S NEW!

Give your signs a twist and your sales a lift with our soft metal Twist-Pop. Removable adhesive at both ends. Call for free samples, prices and catalog.

Fasteners For Retail
36 Alpha Park, Cleveland, Ohio 44143
(216) 473-6919 1-(800)-422-2547

'Nat'l Journal' plans special dailies

WASHINGTON—The National Journal plans a daily tabloid edition for the Democratic and Republican conventions this summer, which will attract about 20,000 people each.

The National Journal Convention Daily, which also was published during the 1984 national political conventions, will cover topics ranging from political party infighting and media coverage to local saloons and sights.

The weekly National Journal, a Times Mirror Magazines publication, specializes in government affairs reporting and circulates to a small, elite audience of government policymakers, journalists and corporate and labor government affairs executives. Circulation is about 10,000.

More than half the ad space for the convention dailies has been sold, said Journal Publisher Roger Kranz. The publications will be distributed free during the Democratic convention July 17 to 22 in Atlanta and the Republican gathering Aug. 14 to 19 in New Orleans.

Mr. Kranz said the advertiser list includes Bell Atlantic Corp., Citibank, General Dynamics Corp., General Motors Corp., MasterCard International, Philip Morris Cos. and the National Cable Television Association.

In 1984, nearly all the available ad space for the convention dailies was sold, generating more than $200,000 in revenue, Mr. Kranz said. He said the tabloid will bring in at least that much in advertising in 1988.

A b&w page costs $8,250, before frequency discounts; a color page is $9,250. A guaranteed position carries a 10% surcharge. Each issue will be 40 pages, with about 60% devoted to editorial, 40% to ads, Mr. Kranz said.

Local advertisers will be able to use a special Sunday insert featuring stories about the convention cities, maps and sight-seeing possibilities.

Pressrun for each issue will be 20,000. Copies will be available in local hotels, convention halls and convention media space, Mr. Kranz said.

Advertising will count toward accumulating corporate discounts in the Journal as well as two other Times Mirror publications, The Capital Source, a quarterly directory, and Government Executive, a monthly magazine.#

Harness The Power Of Advertising

ARS

The ADVERTISING RESEARCH SYSTEM

The Standard For Advertising Management

research systems corporation
110 Walnut Street, Evansville, Indiana 47708
(812) 425-4562

Kenner prays for Blessings

By JAMES P. FORKAN

Has the toy business found religion?

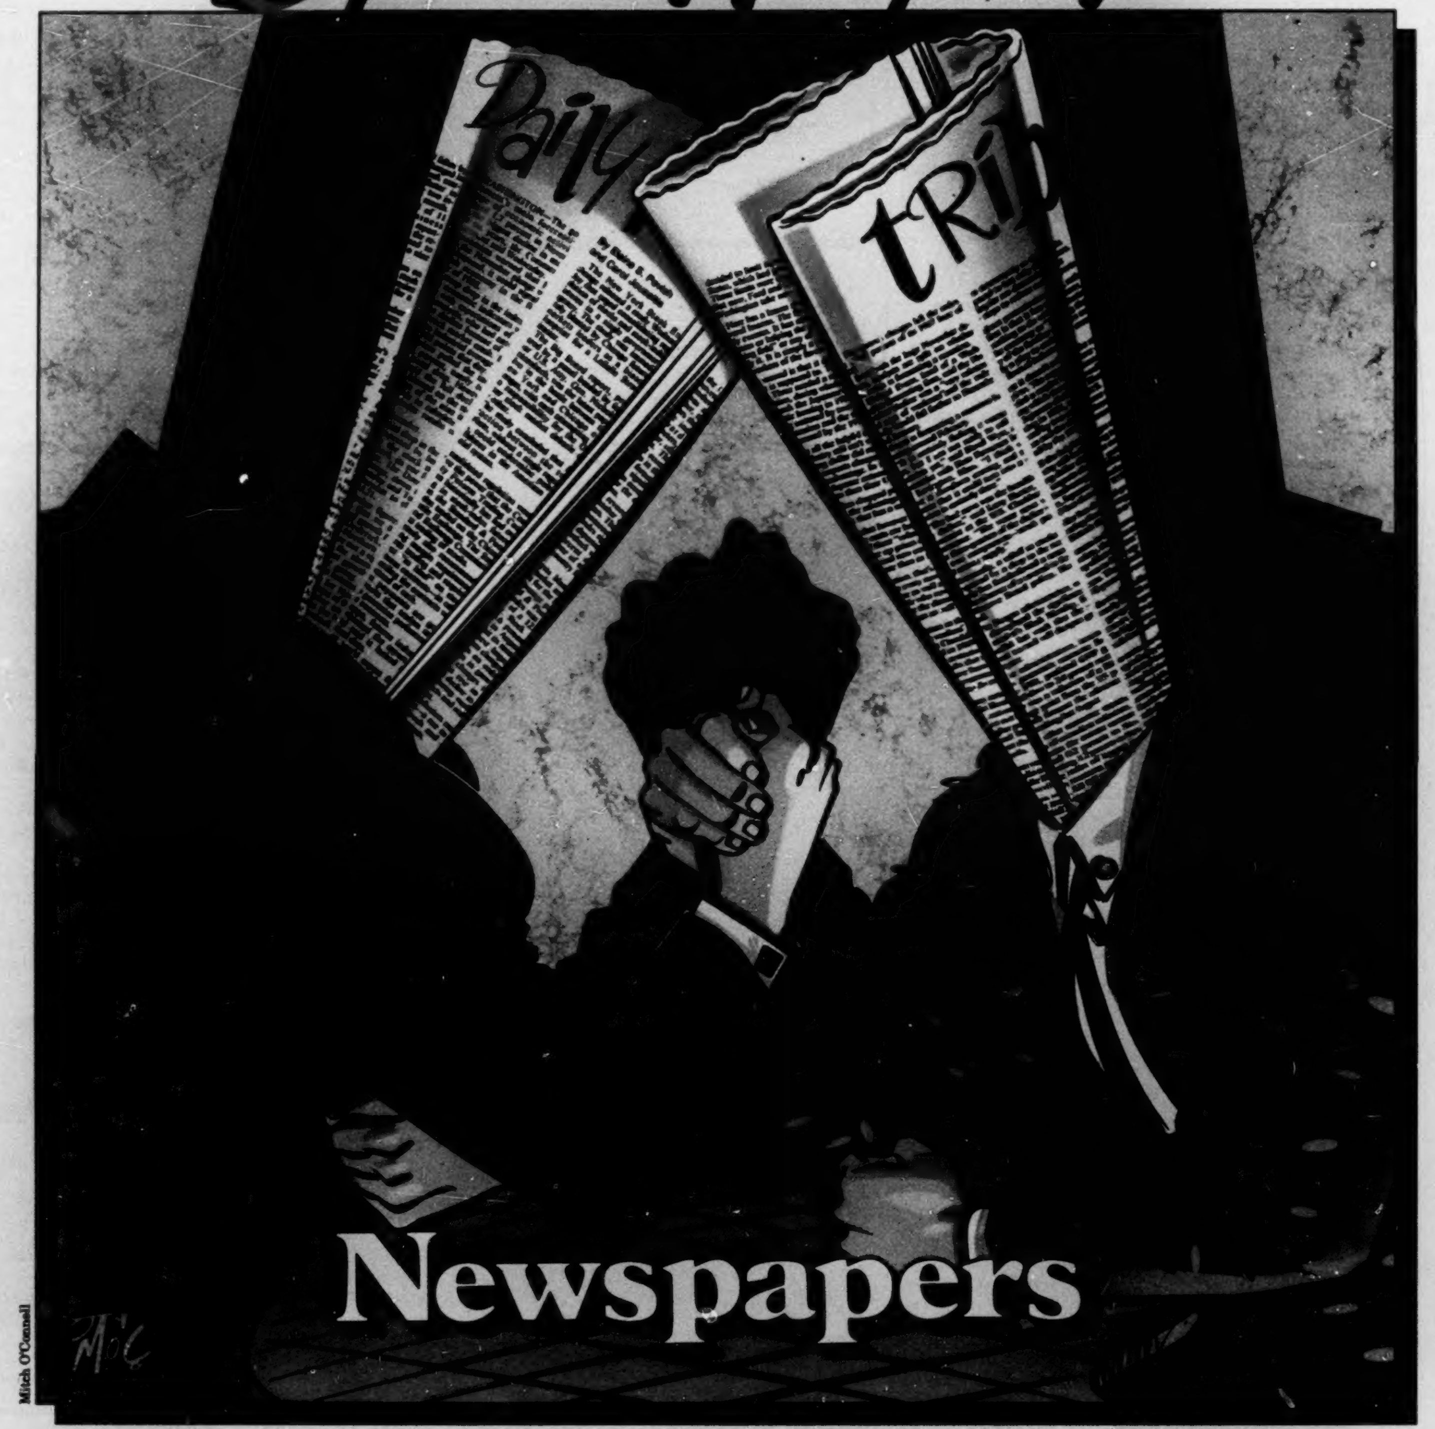
Kenner Parker Toys' Cincinnati-based Kenner Products plans a spring introduction for Special Blessings, a line of four dolls that can be put into a praying position.

Each doll, whose eyes look heavenward, comes with a booklet of inspirational thoughts and sayings, such as "Before I go to bed, dear Lord . . . I really want to thank you lots for being my best friend."

The dolls were developed for Kenner by Those Characters From Cleveland, Independence, Ohio, the licensing arm of American Greetings Corp. The introduction will be supported by a $5 million print and TV campaign, via Grey Advertising, New York, said Kenner Parker Toys President David Mauer. A small amount will be placed in religious media.

Advertising will break "around Easter," Mr. Mauer said.#

Special Report



Mitch O'Connell

Newspapers

Last metro foes still feisty fighters

By Robert Goldsborough

One of the inescapable truths about American newspapers today is that competition, at least in the traditional sense of the big-city dailies slugging it out with each other, is limited to a precious few major markets.

True, other newspaper "forms" have supplied competition by emerging to take chunks out of the metro dailies' turf: the muscle-flexing suburban daily, often distributed in numerous communities or whole counties; advertising-laden free weeklies and shoppers; the "national" papers. If you're looking for cities with separately owned, separately produced downtown dailies, though, the list is short, although the action is hot. Consider that within the last year:

- William Dean Singleton has purchased a major player in no less than three competitive markets—Denver, Dallas, Houston.
- The battle over whether Rupert Murdoch should be allowed to retain both newspapers and broadcast properties in New York and Boston has moved into the U.S. Senate.
- For the first time, a request to the federal government for the creation a Joint Operating Agency has been denied (Detroit), although the appeals, which may well decide the fate of the Detroit Free Press, continue.
- The remaining dailies in Minneapolis and St. Paul have crossed into each other's territory, creating what is in effect a single newspaper market where two previously existed.

One might wish for a greater number of truly competitive newspaper situations, but the ones that remain and are chronicled on the following pages show that in some corners, the feisty spirit of "The Front Page" lives. ■

Unless otherwise noted, all circulation figures in this section are from the Audit Bureau of Circulations FAS-FAX report for the six months ended Sept. 30, 1987.

Inside:

Papers can't dent 'L.A. Times' lead
Page S-2
'Chi. Trib' puts heat on 'Sun-Times'
Page S-4
Four-way New York battle
Page S-8
Competition in Dallas still fierce
Page S-16
'Washington Post' guards its flanks
Page S-18
Boston rebounds as 2-paper town
Page S-20

Papers try but can't dent 'Times' lead

By Jennifer Pendleton

All newspapers should have the Los Angeles Times' problems.

As the premier newspaper in the U.S.' second largest city, the Times reigns supreme atop the southern California newspaper heap. Hearst Corp.'s Los Angeles Herald Examiner, once the nation's largest afternoon paper and a fierce competitor of the Times, long ago lost its position in the marketplace.

The Times remains the U.S.' second largest major metropolitan daily paper behind the New York Daily News, as well as the leader nationally in total advertising volume for 32 years. It estimates its total 1987 revenues at $1 billion.

Scorned as "The Whale" by some observers because of its huge staff, ponderous stories and the remarkable heft of its issues, the Times continues to make substantial investments to increase its penetration. Reaching only 25% of total households daily in its primary Los Angeles and Orange County marketing areas, the Times' penetration is surprisingly low given its circulation.

Los Angeles circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
Times	1,113,459	2.5	1,384,857	2.7
Herald-Examiner	238,811	−1.1	195,009	−2.9
Daily News	159,348	3.8	174,767	6.0

Among recent actions, the Times committed $385 million for a new downtown plant and facility. Publisher Tom Johnson described the five-year project as the largest capital expenditure in the paper's history. It has revamped and expanded its "Metro" and "Business" sections to include new features and additional news space, in addition to redesigning and adding new features in its Orange County edition.

The paper also has begun publishing a weekly Ventura County suburban section and has replaced its twice-weekly South Bay section with a three-day-a-week South Bay edition. Richard T. Schlosberg III, 43, formerly publisher at the Denver Post, which Times' parent Times Mirror Co. sold earlier in the year, joined the Times as president-ceo.

The consumer-sized Los Angeles Times Magazine, published on Sunday, continues to undergo editorial refinement,

(Continued on Page S-4)

Cash infusion by Cooke buoys 'Daily News'

Since Jack Kent Cooke's plunge into southern California newspapering two years ago with his purchase of the Daily News from Tribune Co. of Chicago, the sports magnate hasn't become a staple of local society columns like the Chandlers of the Los Angeles Times.

Rather, the man who built the Forum sports arena and onetime owner of the Los Angeles Lakers and Kings, has kept a low profile, showing up to work at the paper only one week a month, according to sources at the San Fernando Valley-based Daily News. Still, the 75-year-old multi-millionaire has been quietly putting his mark on the paper he bought for a staggering $176 million in 1985.

Sports magnate Jack Kent Cooke brought in new leadership and new equipment to upgrade the Daily News.

Among the most significant changes occurred on June 1, when the paper moved from its dreary offices in Van Nuys (described bluntly as a "dump" by Publisher Steve Morris) to a new state-of-the-art facility in Woodland Hills. In addition, the paper bought a new fleet of circulation trucks, new phones and computer hardware and is making plans for a new press and production facility in 1989. "When an owner exhibits a commitment of time and financial resources like this, it makes a hell of a lot of difference about the way people feel about their daily routine," says one longtime Daily News business executive.

In July, Mr. Morris, former VP-advertising at the Denver Post, became publisher, succeeding Byron C. Campbell; two

(Continued on Page S-4)

St. Petersburg, Clearwater, Tampa. Many cities comprise Tampa Bay, Florida's largest and wealthiest metro area. But only one newspaper unites these communities, influencing more consumer buying decisions — the St. Petersburg Times.

More than 693,000 adults turn to the daily Times; 775,800 adults are Sunday Times readers. That's the largest audience of any medium serving the Tampa Bay area. It's an affluent audience, too. More college educated adults, more chief wage earners, more upper income households and more of the buying prospects you want to reach.

What's more, nine in 10 of these adults read the Times exclusively. No broadcast medium reaches this audience as effectively and efficiently. And the area's other paper can't deliver them at all.

So, if you want to reach the metro area's largest, most affluent audience, you need Tampa Bay's most influential newspaper — the St. Petersburg Times.

Source: The 1987 Scarborough Report.

AD SAT. General Advertising 813/893-8249
Represented nationally by CWO&O

Tampa Bay's LARGEST NEWSPAPER Isn't In Tampa

St. Petersburg Times
Tampa Bay's Largest Newspaper

Aggressive 'Trib' puts heat on 'S-T'

By Julie Liesse Erickson

Although the numbers indicate it may be merely a lot of hot air, a bitter rivalry continues between Chicago's two downtown daily newspapers.

Mention the Chicago Sun-Times to Tribune Editor Jim Squires and he grimaces. "The Murdoch era made terrible mistakes with the Sun-Times and made our job that much easier—through its mistreatment of [columnist Mike] Royko and its reappearance as a schlocky newspaper," Mr. Squires says. "The way the Sun-Times is being edited makes it a nice alternative to the Tribune. But it's less a direct competitor to us than ever; what they're trying to be is not what we want to be."

For his part, Sun-Times Executive Editor Ken Towers says, "We want to be a daily record of news that's relevant and important to our local readers. We leave the pretensions of being a regional or national paper to the Tribune."

Chicago circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
Tribune	765,371	2.7	1,117,275	0.5
Sun-Times	604,862	−1.3	613,940	−1.9

Mr. Towers says two 1988 priorities—beefing up local coverage and investing in the Sunday Sun-Times—will allow the paper to "come within striking distance of the Tribune."

But to many observers, that Sun-Times' claim seems unrealistic. Although both Chicago dailies lost circulation in the early 1980s, the Tribune has regained readers, while the Sun-Times continues to suffer.

The Sun-Times has lost about 10% of its daily circulation and 15% of its Sunday circulation since September 1979. The Tribune's recent gains have cut its seven-year circulation losses to 2% on weekdays and 3% on Sundays.

Mr. Squires attributes the Tribune's circulation rebound largely to editorial tinkering. "When I joined the Tribune in 1981, the first thing we had to do was to stop the circulation losses. We had to counter weaknesses uncovered in our marketing studies.

"The Sun-Times' strengths were its perception as a young person's paper, its sports section and its local news coverage," he says. "So we repack-

(Continued on Page S-6)

'Times' lead

(Continued from Page S-2)

this year gaining a slightly harder edge. "We have always considered it a feature magazine with magazine-style, quality feature writing as the key. And that commitment has not changed," says Magazine Editor Michael Parrish on its evolution. "But readers of a daily newspaper, even with a Sunday magazine in a daily newspaper, expect a spine of news to it." With that change in thinking, the magazine has recently run cover stories on ethnic gangs, politics and business. On average, the magazine runs 40 to months before Mr. Morris' arrival, the Orange County Register lured Daily News Editor Timothy M. Kelly as managing editor. Managing Editor-News Bob Burdick succeeded Mr. Kelly in the Daily News' top editorial post.

(Continued on Page S-6)

'Daily News'

(Continued from Page S-2)

The Daily News' circulation (159,348 daily, 174,767 Sunday, for the six months ending Sept. 30, according to Audit Bureau of Circulations), has risen steadily for several years; Mr. Morris believes it will reach 175,000 this year through geographic expansion and aggressive promotion.

He is convinced that "wherever the Los Angeles Times is the primary paper there's a fundamental weakness" the more locally oriented Daily News can exploit. Its format involves shorter stories, more colorful graphics and greater local emphasis than the Times.

The Daily News, long struggling to sign major department store chains as advertisers, recently added Buffums Department Stores and Bullock's.

Mr. Morris looks to Orange County, where the Orange County Register has a commanding circulation lead—almost 2 to 1—over the Times. "It [the Daily News] is where the Orange County Register was five years ago," Mr. Kelly says.

—Jennifer Pendleton

"What do I have to do to get 'local' rates in The Houston Chronicle?"

Just increase your frequency with a Chron-Flight® schedule.

"How does Chron-Flight work?"

Most advertisers space their ads throughout a quarter or entire year. But with Chron-Flight, you can concentrate your ads into flights, going to short-burst, high-impact schedules similar to your broadcast buys.

"And Chron-Flight gets me a 'local' rate?"

You bet. Because you're not only getting a substantial Chron-Flight discount, you're also getting your usual frequency discount. The end result? A cost-per-page that is so rock-bottom, you'll think you're off the rate card.

Now your client will be getting the "local" rates that have been in the news lately.

"But won't more ads—even discounted—cost more?"

Actually, you'll spend less. The Chronicle delivers your target market at a very affordable rate. You'll get the maximum frequency discount by placing 100% of your ads in The Chronicle. So don't split your advertising between different newspapers.

"Wait. Isn't Houston a two-newspaper town?"

Yes, Houston has long been known as a two-paper town—and those top two are the Sunday Chronicle and the daily Chronicle.

Surprised? You shouldn't be. The Chronicle's circulation lead over the Post is overwhelming—more than *95,000 daily and *175,000 Sundays.

So The Chronicle, all by itself, delivers the market to advertisers.

It takes only one daily insertion in The Chronicle to reach as many adults as two in the daily Post.

And check what happens on Sunday: One ad in The Chronicle reaches as many Houston adults as five ads in The Post. Here is the big picture.

Total Adults

Daily	1 ad	2 ads	3 ads	4 ads	5 ads
Chronicle	40%	48%	53%	56%	58%
Post	32	40	44	47	49
Sunday
Chronicle	53	62	66	69	71
Post	38	45	49	51	53

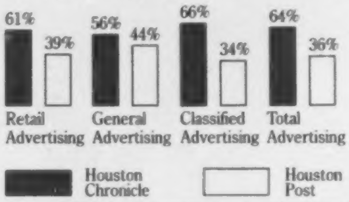
Source: Simmons 1987 National Study of Local Newspaper Ratings, Houston P.M.S.A.

"But which newspaper do advertisers choose?"

The smartest ones are in The Chronicle. They've made us the clear, number one choice in Houston. We lead in every single category of advertising, as you can see here.

So when you bring your national advertising campaign into Houston, use the "local" rate structure of Chron-Flight to make the most of your budget.

Chronicle vs. Post Market Shares



Source: Houston Chronicle internal inch reports, first six months, 1987. Includes full and part run ROP inches. Preprint inches are excluded.

"How can I get a Chron-Flight schedule?"

Just call your Houston Chronicle rep. Get full details on how increased frequency gets you the "local" rate. Today in Houston, Chron-Flight makes your dollar more powerful than ever before.

"Call the Chron-Flight Hot Line at 713-220-7761."

Represented by Sawyer Ferguson Walker

Houston Chronicle

Houston's primary advertising investment

*SOURCE: Calculations computed from the March 31, 1987 Publisher's Statement for the Houston Chronicle and the Houston Post.

‘Trib’ puts heat on ‘S-T’

(Continued from Page S-4)

aged our local news to make it easier to find; we added people and space to our sports section; and through additions like our 'Inc.' [gossip] column and [editorial cartoonist] Jeff MacNelly, we've reached out toward younger city readers."

Last year, both dailies launched ad campaigns that will continue through 1988. Hal Riney & Partners, Chicago, handles the Tribune's folksy ads; the fast-moving "Take a new look at the new Sun-Times" ads, stressing the paper's emphasis on Chicago news, are done in-house.

With circulation up 14% in non-metro areas and Sunday circulation peaking, according to Mr. Squires, the Trib now is focusing on improving its distribution network.

Mr. Squires says the paper also will increase the number of zoned editions to "at least" four, by including a south and north zone to the city and Du Page County editions.

The attention to outlying areas reflects management's opinion that its primary competition is not really the Sun-Times

"Our plans are no longer pointed at the Sun-Times," Mr. Squires says. He says his attention is on the suburbs, where population totals are growing and acquisitions have strengthened the position of out-of-town media companies such as St. Louis-based Pulitzer Publishing Co.

Eroding the Tribune's daily circulation lead and improving its Sunday edition top the Sun-Times' list of 1988 goals.

The Sun-Times in 1988 will test a Sunday lifestyle magazine, add color to more Sunday sections and beef up graphics.

Tentatively scheduled for a spring 1988 debut, the as-yet untitled color and b&w supplement "hopes to bring something novel and interesting to the concept of the Sunday magazine," said Cornelia Tuite, the magazine's managing editor.

Mr. Towers also emphasizes a commitment to more and better business and local reporting, particularly to build readership in the fast-growing Du Page County and northwest suburban areas.

In addition, the Sun-Times will "continue to cover sports energetically," he says. For the 1987-88 National Football League season, the Monday edition sported a wraparound section highlighting the Chicago Bears. Mr. Towers will not comment on whether that wrapper will live beyond next week's Super Bowl.

Putting sports news upfront is one way the Sun-Times tries to catch the eye of local readers; newsstand sales account for more than half of its circulation. Executives also have boosted color use and instituted various graphic changes.

"The goal of all these graphic changes is providing a paper that doesn't have a sameness about it from day to day," Mr. Towers says.

While the Sun-Times focuses on catching up in daily circulation, the Tribune faces the No. 1 paper's task of finding new outlets for circulation and ad growth.

"We still have room to grow," Mr. Squires says. "We can grow through zoning and by offering better service . . . "We also can enhance our regional and national reputation, both editorially and as a vehicle for national advertising."

‘Times’ lead

(Continued from Page S-4)

pages an issue.

While the Times attempts to reinforce its dominant position, the money-losing Herald Examiner is on an opposite course. Long searching for a success formula, the paper is strongly considering switching to a tabloid format. Although the Herald is well-known for developing prototypes for new formats and sections that ultimately never receive corporate support, ceo John J. McCabe says, "It seems likely" the Herald will go forward with its plans, probably late in 1988.

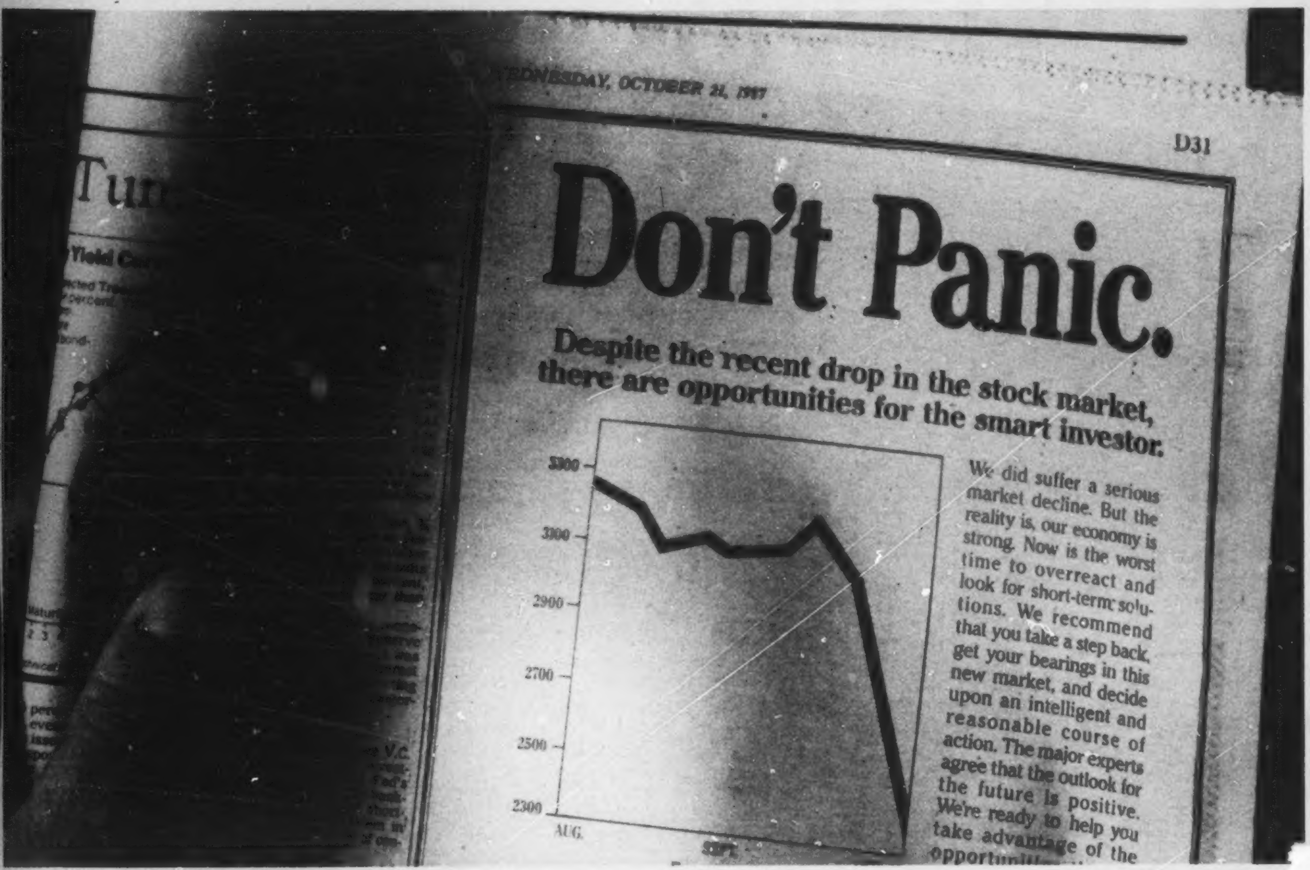
Editor Max McCrohon, 58, a one-time editor of the Chicago Tribune, is directing the effort. The Australian-born Mr. McCrohon hopes to build on the 75% of the circulation from street sales and wants an editorial mix that attracts more Asian and hispanic readers.

The Times' two strongest rivals reside to the north and south of the its primary marketing area—the Daily News, covering the San Fernando Valley and the Orange County Register, covering the sprawling 26 communities below Los Angeles.

Two years ago sports entrepreneur Jack Kent Cooke purchased the Daily News from Chicago-based Tribune Co. (see related story on Page S-2) and began making changes designed to insure its future.

While the Daily News' 152,963 daily circulation (as of March 31) still doesn't equal the Times' circulation in the San Fernando Valley (186,000 as of March 31), newly installed Publisher Steve Morris speaks confidently that that will happen soon. "We are on the verge of beating the Times," he says. He notes that new presses—set to begin operation early this year—will allow the Daily News to print more than 300,000 copies daily by fall 1989.

In circulation, Freedom Newspapers's Orange County Register has been consistently beating the Times in Los Angeles' affluent neighborhood to the south for some time.



EDNESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1987

D31

Don't Panic.

Despite the recent drop in the stock market, there are opportunities for the smart investor.

We did suffer a serious market decline. But the reality is, our economy is strong. Now is the worst time to overreact and look for short-term solutions. We recommend that you take a step back, get your bearings in this new market, and decide upon an intelligent and reasonable course of action. The major experts agree that the outlook for the future is positive. We're ready to help you take advantage of the opportunit

We took a major broker from Black Monday to black & white on Wednesday.

When the stock market fell last October 19, an important broker needed to run a very important newspaper ad. Immediately.

They knew. This was a job for AD/SAT. Why? Because only AD/SAT can transmit ads to as many as 112 newspapers—in minutes.

With AD/SAT, you don't lose a day, as with overnight delivery or couriers. And you never worry about traffic jams, messengers or weatherbound airports.

Just give us a single piece of repro. We beam it up to our satellite and back down to any or all AD/SAT newspapers—with virtual 100% reliability.

That's not all. AD/SAT saves you money as well as time. Compared with the old way of duplicating and shipping, our delivery is as low as $15 per ad.

You also get our Message System, a computer link to all AD/SAT newspapers. You can confirm space reservations, rates, sizes or special positions with a single entry. Or use it for electronic mail.

For speed, economy and reliability, bank on AD/SAT. It's one of the best investments you'll ever make.

AD/SAT National Ad Agency Sales Representatives:
Atlanta • Advertising Technologies, Inc. • 404/892-1441
Cambridge (Boston) • The Collier Wright/Co., Inc. 617/547-7200
Chicago • Ad Systems • 312/427-4025
Detroit • Collier Colortype, Inc. • 313/962-9432
Los Angeles • Gore Graphics • 213/668-2111
New York • Potomac Graphic Industries 212/924-4880
Palo Alto (San Francisco) • Star Graphic Arts 415/494-3351
Pennsauken, N.J. (Philadelphia) • Phototype Color Graphics • 609/663-4100

AD/SAT.
We deliver newspaper ads at the speed of light.

AD/SAT, INC. • 527 WEST 34TH STREET, NEW YORK, NEW YORK 10001 • TELEPHONE 212/330-0678 • FAX 212/330-0660
Operations Center open weekdays 9am to 1am. (Available 24 hours for emergencies.)

Four-way battle to get more colorful

By Patrick Reilly

Now that union peace has been found in the New York newspaper world, the next big battle looming is color.

The New York Daily News and the New York Post both recently reached at least tentative agreements with the city's 10 newspaper unions after nearly a year of tense labor negotiations. Throughout the negotiations, News Publisher James Hoge continually referred to the negotiations as critical to the survival of the tabloid. The Post, faced with annual losses of more than $10 million, also was concerned with whether a strike by the unions might not force the closing of the already wobbly weekday tabloid.

The New York Times at press time was in the process of making agreements with its unions. New York Newsday already had settled a four-year contact with its unions in early 1987 as part of its parent, Long Island Newsday.

However, with union peace achieved, the four papers appear ready with new editorial and promotional campaigns to go at it again in an all-out newspaper war. Publishers won't have the unions to blame if they fail. Instead, the papers are pitted against one another, and more than likely, not all will survive.

One of the emerging weapons in the battle appears to be the use of color. New York Newsday has had it since the tabloid entered the New York market in 1984 and has made its color pages a major theme in its TV ad campaign. So far, Newsday is the only newspaper in town with the ability to print color.

That could change at the News, but first it must demonstrate its profitability to persuade Chicago-based parent Tribune Co. to invest $300 million in color presses. Mr. Hoge said the presses are needed to compete in the market for the long run. The News is expected to lose from $10 million to $12 million this year on revenue of about $450 million.

At a recent analysts meeting, Mr. Hoge said the News was actively seeking a plant site and looking at technology to build a plant with color capability for the 1990s.

The New York Times could have color sooner than that. At the same meeting, Times officials said color advertising ability would come on-line in 1990 with the opening of a new printing plant. The color capability is expected to be available for some editorial pages in its Sunday edition. In November, the Times also added several new pages on education, fashion, law, health and fitness and medical science.

The New York Post has not announced plans to go to color on its pages. In fact, the Post is expecting a further drop in its already declining circulation when it cuts back to two editions a day from eight along with worker trims.

The paper's circulation has fallen to about 690,000 from 960,000 in 1983. After the cut in editions, Patrick J. Purcell, Post publisher, said he expects circulation to drop to about 550,000.

Owner Rupert Murdoch has officially put the Post up for sale, which the Federal Communications Commission has ordered him to do by March 1988 because he also owns a TV station in New York. Already British press lord Robert Maxwell and a number of New York real estate moguls have shown interest. Currently, however, Mr. Murdoch is em-

(Continued on Page S-11)

New York circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
Daily News	1,285,869	1.2	1,615,038	1.1
Times	1,022,899	2.1	1,589,290	0.3
Post	690,915	−5.6	–	–

'News' has big role in creating shop

Bob Conlon knows what makes newspapers better clients than most: They make decisions fast.

"Newspaper people are very smart people. You don't have to draw them a map. You show them something and they move quickly," says Mr. Conlon, who along with Paul Nye, the two of them former executives at SSC&B:Lintas Worldwide, formed Conlon & Nye in October.

Messrs. Conlon and Nye will certainly be moving fast with the New York Daily News and its $8 million account. This month Conlon & Nye broke a new Daily News campaign in TV, print and outdoor continuing the theme they began last year, "Nobody knows it, nobody shows it, nobody tells it like the Daily News."

Arnie Adler

Paul Nye and Bob Conlon are responsible for putting together the new Daily News campaign.

The agency really owes its existence to the New York tabloid. The two creative executives began working on the Daily News business strictly on a free-lance basis in April 1987, when the paper's last agency, Holland & Calloway, suddenly resigned the account to take on the business of rival tabloid New York Newsday.

The first TV spots Conlon & Nye developed for the paper used the now-familiar tag line to promote the Daily News sports pages. The paper's management like the campaign so much it was expanded to include promotion of the news and feature sections.

The recent success News Publisher Jim Hoge has had with cutting costs and increasing circulation is making the agency's work much easier, says Mr. Conlon. "The News these days is looking like a winner," says Mr. Conlon. "It's a lot easier than promoting the [New York] Post. I don't know if that could be pulled off."

The new News campaign focus on, among others, editors and columnists at the paper. "The focus is on the people who make the difference at the paper," he says.

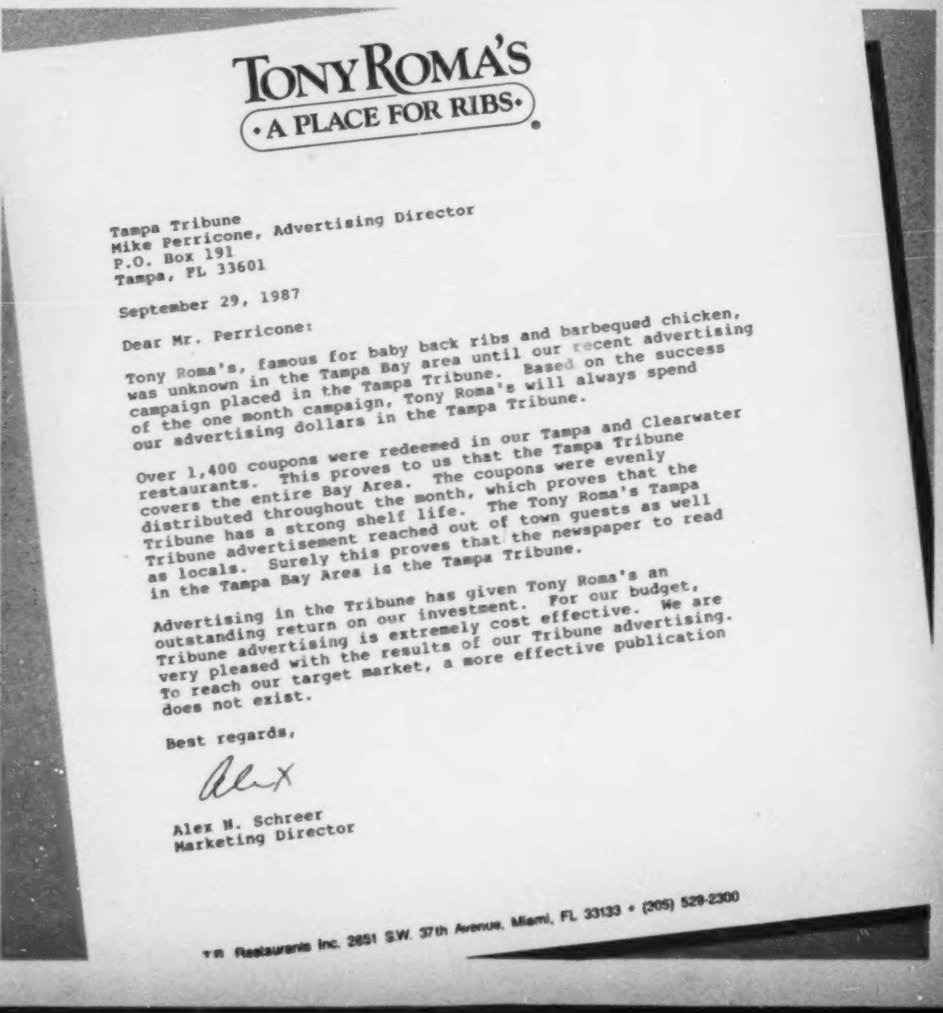
—Patrick Reilly

ADVERTISING THAT STICKS TO YOUR RIBS

The Tampa Tribune
Tampa Bay's Newspaper
A Media General Newspaper represented nationally by Sawyer-Ferguson-Walker

For more detailed information, send your business card to Joe Gess, General Advertising Manager, The Tampa Tribune, P.O. Box 191, Tampa, FL 33601-4005. Or call (813) 272-7447 to request your free copy of the latest Tampa Bay Folio or other market and product information.

©The Tampa Tribune, 1988



TONY ROMA'S
·A PLACE FOR RIBS·

Tampa Tribune
Mike Perricone, Advertising Director
P.O. Box 191
Tampa, FL 33601

September 29, 1987

Dear Mr. Perricone:

Tony Roma's, famous for baby back ribs and barbequed chicken, was unknown in the Tampa Bay area until our recent advertising campaign placed in the Tampa Tribune. Based on the success of the one month campaign, Tony Roma's will always spend our advertising dollars in the Tampa Tribune.

Over 1,400 coupons were redeemed in our Tampa and Clearwater restaurants. This proves to us that the Tampa Tribune covers the entire Bay Area. The coupons were evenly distributed throughout the month, which proves that the Tribune has a strong shelf life. The Tony Roma's Tampa Tribune advertisement reached out of town guests as well as locals. Surely this proves that the newspaper to read in the Tampa Bay Area is the Tampa Tribune.

Advertising in the Tribune has given Tony Roma's an outstanding return on our investment. For our budget, Tribune advertising is extremely cost effective. We are very pleased with the results of our Tribune advertising. To reach our target market, a more effective publication does not exist.

Best regards,

Alex

Alex H. Schreer
Marketing Director

TR Restaurants Inc. 2651 S.W. 37th Avenue, Miami, FL 33133 • (305) 529-2300

Economy takes toll on 'Post,' 'News'

By Julie Truck

Denver's two fiercely competitive daily newspapers are showing signs of a retrenching following a major skirmish with the state's beleaguered economy.

The Denver Post suffered its biggest setback in September when Times Mirror Co., Los Angeles, sold the ailing paper for $95 million to MediaNews Group of Dallas, headed by William Dean Singleton.

Meanwhile, at the offices of Scripps Howard's Rocky Mountain News, news bureaus have been trimmed back and its afternoon stock final was canceled in November after a year of disappointing sales. Both of the newspapers also have canceled their Colorado Springs editions.

Acquired by Times Mirror in 1980 and converted shortly afterward to a morning paper, the Post has strugged to regain market share ever since. Anthony Campbell, recently promoted to executive editor, says the Post will concentrate on beefing up local coverage and increasing story count, traditional fortes of the News. "The battle has got to be won on local hard news," Mr. Campbell says.

News editor Ralph Looney, a Scripps Howard veteran, says he will be watching the Post with interest and has some of his own editorial changes planned for 1988, but adds he that doesn't plan any changes in the News editorial philosophy.

"We've tried not to change the character of the paper, which seems to indicate to me that [readers] haven't lost their identity with the paper," he says.

The Post suffered a crushing blow last spring with the loss of a $2 million account—the paper's largest—when all 12 outlets of The Denver department store chain closed.

The sluggish economy has further squeezed advertising revenues, and local advertisers can take advantage of some of the lowest rates per thousand in the country, says Dave Beihoff, Post VP-advertising & marketing.

The cut-rate advertising also has trickled down to the Denver-based Sentinel Publishing Co., with 10 suburban weekly newspapers. Sentinel president Harrison Cochran says in the short-term, he expects the ad-rate pressure to continue, with more lean times ahead.

However, the competitive atmosphere at the two papers has proven a plus for one group—new subscribers. Both papers have employed price promotions in which new readers can receive a week's worth of the News for 86¢ and the Post for 85¢. Existing subscribers at both papers are charged $7.25 a month.

The September Audit Bureau of Circulations figures place the News daily circulation at 332,114 compared with the Post's 230,471. However, the Post has a Sunday lead of more than 30,000.

Through the first 10 months of 1987, the News was the ad linage leader. According to figures compiled by Media Records, it holds a 55.7% share of total linage for daily and Sunday with 3.1 million inches, compared with the Post's 2.5 million inches.

These figures include preprints, but not linage in the Post's USA Weekend or the News' Parade.

According to Vernon Mallinen, News director of marketing services, the paper will become much more aggressive in playing up its lead.

As part of that marketing strategy, the News hired Broyles Allebaugh & Davis, Denver, in December to handle its $1 million account, replacing Colle & McVoy, Englewood, Colo.

At the Post, advertising executives say they plan no review of Schenkei/Associates,Denver, for at least six months. But Mr. Beihoff says the paper will cut its advertising budget "significantly" in 1988. In 1987, the newspaper spent $1.6 million in television alone, he says.

Some observers say the Post's sale was expected following the summer buyout offer to employees. About 150 Post employees accepted the offer for voluntary termination. Through the offer, the Post had hoped to cut 200 positions for an estimated salary savings of $6 million.

But for many Post employees, the question is whether MediaNews can turn a profit at the paper while maintaining the editorial excellence that won the Post a Pulitzer Prize in 1986.

Former Post Publisher Richard T. Schlosberg III left to become president of the Los Angeles Times, while Editor David Hill has moved to Times Mirror in a senior editorial capacity.

The new editor and publisher, Maurice Hickey, comes from the Detroit News, where he was publisher. He also played a key role in the development of USA Today.

Fueling employee worries following the takeover of the Post was a request from Mr. Singleton for 4% to 6% in wage concessions, which he received from the Denver Newspaper Guild and which took effect Jan. 1.

Also, in early December, the paper cut 20 positions, including seven in management, for an estimated savings of $700,000 in wages and benefits.

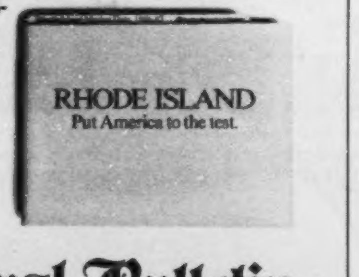
Denver circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
Rocky Mountain News	332,114	1.5	373,206	1.6
Post	230,471	1.5	404,271	−5.0

Julie Truck is a Denver-based correspondent for ADVERTISING AGE.

COME TO RHODE ISLAND AND SEE IF YOUR CHICKEN CAN FLY ACROSS AMERICA.

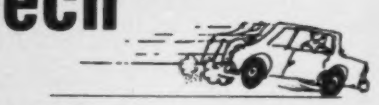
A company like Weaver doesn't launch new products on a wing and a prayer. To find out how their new chicken specialties would fly nationally, they rolled out their Zesty Wing line extension in Rhode Island. Because Rhode Island's a near-perfect microcosm of America. With demographic and economic profiles that are remarkably close to the national norm. What's more, the market's virtually immune to media spillage. And it's extremely cost-efficient. You can reach practically everyone in the market through Rhode Island's only major newspaper. At a CPM that's mere chicken feed. So if you're introducing something new to America, don't run around like a chicken with its head chopped off. Come to Rhode Island. Call Bill Peckham at 401-277-7172 or write and ask for our free test market information kit.



RHODE ISLAND
Put America to the test.

The Providence Journal-Bulletin
Put America to the test.
75 Fountain St., Providence, RI 02902
Represented nationally by Cresmer, Woodward, O'Mara & Ormsbee.

Boston's more than a honk, a screech and the globe.



Boston. It's more than notorious drivers and a single newspaper. Complete your buy of the Boston metropolitan market with The Patriot Ledger. Our circulation area, immediately south of Boston, is rich in the upwardly mobile professional prospects you expect to reach when you buy Boston.

The Patriot Ledger is Massachusetts' leading evening daily newspaper with 90,518 circulation. And we're leaders in advertising linage, too — our classified section tops all New England dailies and our retail linage is the highest among Massachusetts dailies. In 1986, we even outran The Boston Globe in Monday-Saturday retail and classified linage (we don't publish on Sunday).

Make the most of Boston.

The Patriot Ledger

(617) 786-7000
(617) 786-7092
automatic telecopier

Represented nationally by Landon Associates.

Source: ABC Publisher's Statement 3-31-87
New England Newspaper Assn. Linage Report 11-30-87

Twin Cities arouse squabbling 'siblings'

By Bob Geiger

The Star Tribune: Newspaper of the Twin Cities and the St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch are fighting for readers and advertisers in a battle that could transform the Twin Cities into a single metro market.

Star Tribune, flagship property of Minneapolis-based Cowles Media Co., dropped Minneapolis from its name Aug. 31 and added a St. Paul edition—asserting the Twin Cities had meshed into a single 2.25 million-person market.

The smaller Pioneer Press Dispatch, owned by Miami-based Knight-Ridder Newspapers, retorted that the "twin" cities differ vastly and hired Clarity Coverdale Rueff, Minneapolis, for a $500,000 campaign to counter Star Tribune's $1 million ad blitz via Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Minneapolis.

After ruling out a "west metro" counterattack, the Pioneer Press in October began delivery in downtown Minneapolis. Further, the paper seeks subscribers near the future site of the Fashion Mall of America, a 2.8 million square foot retail mall south of Minneapolis in suburban Bloomington.

Pioneer Press Dispatch President-Publisher John Henry said the westward creep signals a St. Paul drive to expose Minneapolis decision makers to another newspaper and to boost readership near the future home of the first Twin Cities' Bloomingdale's and Nordstrom department stores. Mr. Henry would not say whether the Pioneer Press plans home delivery in Minneapolis.

Both newspapers are the merged products of morning and evening publications. The evening Minneapolis Star combined with the Minneapolis Tribune in 1982 to form the Minneapolis Star & Tribune. In 1984, the evening St. Paul Dispatch joined with the St. Paul Pioneer Press. Additionally, both papers feature slick color graphics and new off-site printing plants.

Twin Cities circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
Star Tribune	389,410	2.8	629,845	2.2
Pioneer Press/Dispatch	193,075	3.0	251,484	2.4

Stakes are high in what is seen as a drawn-out war for readers and local and national advertisers who in the past have made two ad buys. Key to Star Tribune's east metro success is its contention that people who work or socialize in both cities should be served by a newspaper covering the entire metro area.

In contrast with a hands-off marketing stance long maintained by both newspapers, the Pioneer Press has a feisty broadcast, print and outdoor campaign highlighting differences between the papers, which started last fall.

Typical of St. Paul's campaign is a print ad picturing a Star Tribune delivery truck parked near a "dead end" sign. The headline: "The newspaper of the Twin Cities seems to be getting lost in St. Paul."

The Star Tribune's "Good news" campaign in Minneapolis includes one 30-second tv ad, radio and print and outdoor ads. Introductory print ads were headlined, "We look at

(Continued on Page S-12)

Bob Geiger is an ADVERTISING AGE correspondent based in the Twin Cities.

Colorful

(Continued from Page S-8)

broiled in a battle with the FCC and members of the U.S. Senate—including Edward M. Kennedy (D.-Mass.)—over whether he can retain cross-ownership of newspaper and broadcast properties in New York and Boston.

The toughest battle in New York is bound to be between the street-smart Daily News and its newest, slightly more genteel competitor, New York Newsday.

Each is launching new advertising campaigns in 1988 that feature the editorial product. The Daily News campaign from Conlon & Nye features the paper's stars, including columnist Liz Smith (see related story on Page S-8).

New York Newsday's campaign also breaks in January from Holland & Calloway, New York, which resigned the Daily News account in 1987 to take on New York Newsday. It too will feature Newsday columnists and by late 1988 could include Jim Breslin, the Daily News columnist contracted to write for Newsday.

Herald City:
354,772* upscale households.
1,001,332* upscale consumers.

Daily Herald
U.S. hostage slay
This Week
John Drury

One unbeatable TMC opportunity.

Herald City is the 50 northwest and western Chicago suburbs that call the DAILY HERALD their newspaper. Suburbs with a median family income of $43,490* and a median home value of $110,450.* Suburbs spending more per household in total retail sales than any equivalent suburban area.

Daily Herald + This Week

The new, brighter, more colorful "reader friendly" DAILY HERALD, plus THIS WEEK, its sprightly companion publication, give you total market coverage of Chicagoland's most dynamic market. For total information on this total market opportunity, call Jim Walsh at 870-3600.

*Source: CACI Demographic Services

PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS, INC. • P.O. BOX 280 • ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL 60006 • 312/870-3600

JOA setback sends papers scurrying

By Dee Ann Maki

A pending decision by U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III will determine whether Detroit will see a continuation of the long-running newspaper war between The Detroit News and Detroit Free Press.

Those two, the country's ninth and 10th largest newspapers, have run into numerous hurdles in their attempt to form the largest joint operating agreement on record.

The latest came Dec. 30, when Administrative Law Judge Morton Needelman recommended denial of the merger, four months after completion of public hearings over the papers' claims that a JOA was necessary to preserve Detroit's two distinctive editorial voices.

FIRST PLACE

LANDING DEAL

The Detroit News

Judge says Detroit market a 'plum' for 2 newspapers

Recession in 1988? Analysts disagree

Detroit Free Press

Judge advises Meese to reject JOA

Says Free Press not failing paper

The Detroit News and Detroit Free Press both made front-page news with a judge's rejection of their JOA proposal.

The News and Free Press announced the merger proposal April 14, 1986, arguing that without a JOA, the Free Press, which has suffered greater losses, is in danger of failing.

Judge Needelman presided over 16 days of public hearings last August, at which the newspapers cited combined losses of $142 million from 1981 through first quarter 1987.

The losses have been caused by an intense competition that has resulted in a fierce newsstand price and ad rate battle. Readers and advertisers, who have benefited so far, fear a JOA may remove the economic incentive for such competition.

The News, which sells for 15¢, has the lowest cover price for a metro daily in the country, followed by the Free Press at 20¢. Sunday editions run 75¢ for each. Ad rates are marked by "severe discounting," according to Judge Needelman.

Under terms of Detroit's proposed JOA, the production, advertising, circulation and business departments of both publications would be combined. The Free Press would continue to publish its morning editions, and the News its afternoon editions.

Detroit circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
News	686,787	0.8	837,511	−0.3
Free Press	649,312	−1.1	732,699	−1.9

Dee Ann Maki is a Detroit-based free-lance writer.

Squabbling 'siblings'

(Continued from Page S-11)

life from both sides now," "East Side Story," and "Unfolded, it covers the entire Twin Cities."

Effects of Minneapolis' metrowide strategy are unclear. Suburban publishers say daily news competition in Dakota County and northwest Ramsey County—the most intense Minneapolis-St. Paul confrontations—hasn't changed their product. But ad bidding has become more competitive. Dakota County suburbs of Apple Valley, Burnsville and Eagan comprise the south metro battleground. The Star Tribune dominates here, but St. Paul mails its Dakota West community section weekly to 24,000 homes.

"We saw more activity out of Dakota West than we saw out of [Star Tribune's] metrowide thing," says Lee Canning, VP of Guy Gannett Minnesota Publications, publisher of 26 suburban weeklies mailed free to homes and five local shopping guides.

Mr. Canning, senior VP-business manager for the Minneapolis Star and Tribune Co. until 1974, said the thrust of Star Tribune's metrowide strategy is to drain national ad revenue from the Pioneer Press (National ad buys make up between 10% and 20% of Star Tribune ad revenue). And while Mr. Canning thinks the Twin Cities has become a more singular market, he likened buying ad space in Star Tribune's St. Paul edition to "selling an empty bag for $3" because of low east metro penetration.

Dan Clay, head of Burnsville-based This Week Newspapers, a chain of nine Twin Cities weeklies, said "We don't

We impressed Rand McNally who named the Research Triangle cities the third most liveable place in the country.

We continue to impress the highest number of Ph.D.'s per capita of any place in the nation, enough to make them want to live here.

We impressed the U.S. Census Bureau as one of the fastest growing areas in the U.S. with one of the lowest unemployment rates anywhere.

We've also impressed a lot of local, regional and national advertisers with great circulation and a lower CPM than broadcast media in North Carolina's Triangle.

AND SOME PEOPLE STILL THINK WE'RE WHERE BARNEY AND GOMER COME FOR EXCITEMENT.

The News and Observer
THE RALEIGH TIMES
Durham Morning Herald
THE SUN
Duke doctor cautions
Branham

TOLLFREE: 1-800-221-4596

Columnists 'positive' about St. Paul switch

Ex-Minneapolis newspaper columnists Nick Coleman and Joe Soucheray have turned on their old employer in ads for the rival St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch.

Print and TV advertising says that after encountering "writer's block," Messrs. Coleman and Soucheray left The Star Tribune: Newspaper of the Twin Cities, to "find freedom of the Press." Both men, now Pioneer Press columnists, claim Minneapolis editors told them to be more positive and killed some columns that weren't done so.

The feisty Pioneer Press ad campaign marks a radical change in the tame nature of Twin Cities newspaper marketing.

The St. Paul paper's $500,000 campaign via Clarity Coverdale Rueff, Minneapolis, contrasts sharply with the Star Tribune's polite "Good news" ad effort.

That's because the Star Tribune, in effect, declared war on the Pioneer Press turf Aug. 31 after it changed its name and launched a St. Paul edition.

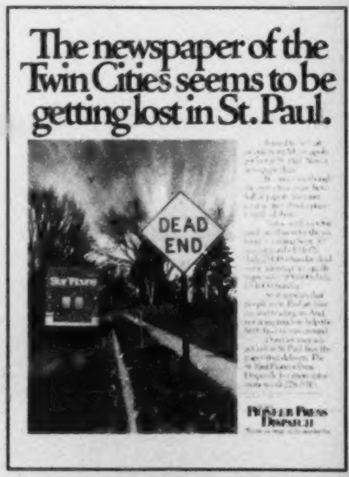
Star Tribune officials stress they are following their readers east, and that increased metrowide competition won't threaten the Pioneer Press.

"They can call it whatever they want, but we'd be fools not to respond like it's a war," says Mr. Coleman, who joined the Pioneer Press in June 1986 after 13 years of reporting and media criticism in Minneapolis.

"I kept getting this message to be positive. Long, agonizing torturous meetings [with editors]—it was like something out of Kafka. They started cutting the crap out of stuff I was writing," says Mr. Coleman.

Mr. Soucheray, who defected to St. Paul in 1984 after he lost his sports column, said Star Tribune editors "made it very clear they wanted more positive coverage."

Joel Kramer, Star Tribune executive editor, replies that "There have been occasions when we have not run people's columns," and says that happens at every newspaper. Mr. Kramer adds Star Tribune columnists aren't allowed to "hammer repeatedly" on the same subject.



The newspaper of the Twin Cities seems to be getting lost in St. Paul.

DEAD END
Star Tribune
Pioneer Press Dispatch

A Pioneer Press Dispatch ad pokes fun at the Star Tribune.

Under the proposed JOA, the papers would consolidate on weekends under the masthead of The Detroit News-Free Press. Saturday editions would entail the Free Press covering breaking news and the News carrying the features. The Sunday edition would have the Free Press producing features and its lifestyles section while the News would cover breaking news and sports. Both papers would to maintain separate editorial voices, and the entire operation would be run by the Detroit Newspaper Agency.

During the August hearings, opposition was led by Detroit's Mayor Coleman Young and labor unions representing both papers. The anti-trust division of the U.S. Justice Department claimed at the hearings that the Free Press could have avoided losing money had it not chosen to engage in "an intense give an inch to the dailies." Mr. Clay slammed St. Paul's Dakota West as a "half-hearted" attempt to gain readers and advertisers and sniped at Star Tribune for its thin local news coverage. "I don't feel threatened, let's put it that way."

(Continued on Page S-14)

The Pioneer Press lampoons Star Tribune editing in full-page print and 30-second TV spots.

Ads picture typed copy with red editor's slashes and commands to rewrite or soften text—something Messrs. Coleman and Soucheray say does not happen at the Pioneer Press.

That's just one way the Pioneer Press ads differ from the current Star Tribune campaign, a $1 million effort via Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Minneapolis. Pioneer Press TV spots use staff members while Star Tribune's warm-and-fuzzy image ads do not.

Other St. Paul advertising notes lower single-copy price (25¢ compared with 35¢ for the Star Tribune); a.m. and p.m. editions (Star Tribune prints mornings only), and pokes fun at the Star Tribune's "east metro" buzzword for St. Paul and its surrounding suburbs.

Most pithy and hard-hitting is a St. Paul print ad headlined, "The newspaper of the Twin Cities seems to be getting lost in St. Paul" with a Star Tribune truck pictured near a "dead end" sign.

"It's clear that they have taken a very combative stance," says Thomas Culligan, Star Tribune VP-marketing.

Messrs. Culligan and Kramer agree that the Star Tribune prefers a positive marketing approach, not wanting to offend prospective readers and advertisers in the eastern portion of the metropolitan area.

—Bob Geiger

Reactions mixed about the future of 'Free Press'

One reporter at the Detroit Free Press compared the mood of its employees to that of a patient ready for major surgery.

"You can talk about the weather, but sooner or later your thoughts drift back to whether you're going to make it off the operating table," Rick Ratliff, a business reporter at the Free Press, says.

A common worry among staffers is that there's an element of self-fulfilling prophecy to the newspaper's declaration in its application for a joint operating agreement—that it is a failing newspaper.

Newsroom defections fuel the concern, but circulation and ad sales have not significantly suffered since the Free Press first applied for a JOA with Gannett Co.'s The Detroit News 21 months ago.

Free Press executives have been trying to boost morale among the paper's 2,200 employees with discussions and news briefings to them abreast of JOA developments. David Munch, VP-advertising, begins weekly staff meetings with the question, "Does anybody want to talk about the JOA?"

"It's been an emotional roller coaster," says Robert Hall, general manager at the Free Press. "There hasn't been any panic or masses of people saying they want to quit or anything like that. They're just concerned about another period of uncertainty as to what's going to be in the future."

The News lured about a dozen reporters away from the Free Press during a talent raid last spring, and the Free Press has lost another 15 or more reporters and editors since the JOA request was announced.

Tim Kiska, who joined the News as a columnist last March during the News' raid of the Free Press' newsroom staff, says morale was "pretty low" when he left. "At the Free Press, the JOA was almost a constant source of conversation. Here it doesn't seem to be much of an issue."

Although analysts say it is typical for the declared failing newspaper of a JOA to suffer declines in circulation and advertising while the JOA application is being considered, the Free Press has remained fairly stable in both areas.

"I think there's a good deal of faith and affection in the Free Press, and a great deal of trust in the Free Press from both readers and advertisers," says David Lawrence Jr., publisher and chairman.

—Patricia Strnad

One Rate. No Debate.

No matter how big your ad budget, how small your account, how fat your franchise, or how regional your retail, The Record, New Jersey's largest evening newspaper, guarantees one low rate for all advertisers whether national, retail, or co-op. This means you're able to reach a market whose impressive EBI places it 28th in the nation, for just the agency commission over local rates.

While many newspapers continue to charge national advertisers a premium of up to 150 percent above local rates, The Record eliminates the national and local rate differential and also offers you contract options at all levels. So now, your advertising message in The Record can reach an audience of fashionable and affluent big spenders for small change.

Reach across the Hudson River to a market whose residents wield a disposable income of $22.1 billion. Reach the super market of Bergen/Passaic. You'll find this wealthy market reading The Record, the best media bargain in town.

Call Jonathan Theophilakos, Director of Advertising, at (201) 646-4259.

The Record
We cover your world. All of it.
150 River Street, Hackensack, N.J. 07601-7172
1350 Route 23, Wayne, N.J. 07470-5839

AD SAT

Source: © S&MM Survey of Buying Power, 1987 National Representative: Sawyer-Ferguson-Walker Co.

Papers hot properties in cool economy

By Jennifer Lawrence

For a city in the throes of an economic slump, Houston's newspaper market generated headlines of its own when the Houston Chronicle was sold to Hearst Corp. in May for $415 million.

A little more than six months later, The Houston Post was sold to William Dean Singleton's MediaNews Group by Toronto Sun Publishing Corp. for $150 million plus an amount based on future revenues through 1992.

Houston circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
Chronicle	406,776	0	534,771	0.8
Post	301,100	−2.1	347,052	−3.7

"Both newspapers in essence together sold for around $600 million, and that's good news for Houston," says Elio Agostini, The Houston Post's VP-marketing, who along with Post's senior management under Toronto Sun decided to stick with the feisty paper. "Obviously both newspapers have a place in this community or that kind of money wouldn't have been put up."

Nevertheless, a soft retail economy and a static population base have caused problems. Total ad revenues are down and the papers reported slight daily circulation losses for the six months ending Sept. 30. Both are trying to lure new readers by touting editorial superiority in ad campaigns. New ownership has not changed marketing focus at either paper, though the Post modified its game plan to compete head-on with the Chronicle. The Post's strategic shifts were made before the sale.

Still, the Chronicle maintains a sizable circulation lead (see box at left).

Despite the Post's circulation losses, the paper has made slight gains in advertising share. Media Records shows that for the first 10 months of 1987, the Chronicle's ad share was 58.9%, compared with 59.2% in 1986. The Post climbed to 41.1% this year from its 40.8% share in 1986.

In classified advertising, the Post went from a 33.2% share for the first 10 months of 1986 to 33.8% in 1987 compared with the Chronicle's 66.8% in 1986 and 66.2% this year.

Houston Chronicle

U.S. may be underestimating Soviet missile strength

Hart renews his campaign where he quit

The Chronicle, under new owner Hearst, continues its tag as "Houston's leading information source."

The Chronicle's main marketing thrust is continued reinforcement of the paper's No. 1 position, says Bob Thomas, Chronicle marketing director.

With that goal, the Chronicle extended its "We support Houston" ad campaign to the next phase, which describes what the paper means to readers.

A series of four 30-second TV spots captures moments between family members as they tell their children how they feel about the Chronicle and what the information in the paper provides for them. Rives Smith Baldwin Carlberg, Houston, created the "Heritage" campaign.

JOA setback

(Continued from Page S-13)

and costly battle for dominance."

The hearings also included testimony from Knight-Ridder Chairman Alvah Chapman and Gannett Co. Chairman Allen Neuharth as well as additional employee unions, economists and industry analysts.

Mr. Chapman testified during the hearings that he would recommend closing the Free Press if the JOA is denied (AA, Aug. 17).

Judge Needelman's decision to recommend denial of the proposed merger was based on his conclusions that the Free Press sought market dominance at any cost, with the belief that if it failed it could qualify for a JOA. He characterized that scenario as a win-win situation, where either outcome would assure profitability. Judge Needelman also concluded the Free Press is not in a "downward spiral" in terms of advertising and circulation revenue.

Mr. Meese will not consider the case until mid-February, giving both papers, the U.S.

Presenting the eight best routes to Michigan's money.

The Grand Rapids Press
The Saginaw News
The Journal

If you're interested in locating a great money market, look no further than Booth, Michigan. We're America's 10th largest metro market. Booth is also the 10th largest homeowners market. And the 10th largest market of households with children. It's easy to get to Booth, too. Just pick up the phone and place an order with Booth Newspapers at (313) 540-5600. You'll get the eight best routes to Michigan's money at a 15% discount with just one call. One order. One bill. Represented nationally by Newhouse Newspapers.

booth newspapers

Ann Arbor News · Bay City Times · Flint Journal · Grand Rapids Press · Jackson Citizen Patriot · Kalamazoo Gazette · Muskegon Chronicle · Saginaw News

Source: 1985 SMRB - Scarborough Newspaper Study. Survey of Buying Power, July, 1986

Mr. Thomas indicates that the Chronicle also has expanded its same-day radio campaign, which promotes that day's top stories in several sections of the paper. In November, a 60-second spot was added to the rotation on Wednesdays to highlight the food section. The seven-week effort, a test for similar future efforts, directed listeners to key coupons, recipes and ads. The Chronicle's tag remains "Houston's leading information source."

While concentrating on maintaining awareness, the Chronicle this year will begin to consider targeted marketing opportunities. "Because of the size of our paper and the amount of available new readers, it becomes much more difficult to grow," says Mr. Thomas. "We feel we have maintained maximum penetration and now must focus on target marketing."

At the Post, marketing efforts are aimed at building long-term readership gains and increasing ad share—particularly in classified, where the Post is a distant second.

A current fall ad campaign from GSD&M, Houston, is homing in on the Post's accurate and balanced reporting with two 30-second TV spots and three 60-second radio commercials.

"Research showed that people want balanced reporting and thorough local news," says Mr. Agostini. "We feel the Post is more a model of those qualities than the opposition, and our marketing is pushing those principles."

The Post also debuted a new tag, "A sign of intelligent life." "Again, research showed that people viewed the new slogan three ways: 1.You have to be intelligent to read the paper; 2.

(Continued on Page S-16)

Justice Department and other-parties 30 days to respond to the judge's recommendation, and then another 15 days to respond to each other's briefs.

Mr. Meese has no deadline and can make his final decision any time after the 45-day span.

Worries of soaring ad rates under JOAs are common among advertisers. Although a pricing format has been readied for use, pending approval, specific rates cannot be determined.

Current ad rates and revenue figures cannot be used to determine the new cards because it is considered an anti-trust violation if both parties share competitive information before a decision is announced.

Knight-Ridder continues to be optimistic that the JOA will be approved despite Judge Needelman's recommendation. If Mr. Meese denies the application, the company's options include appealing in U.S. District Court, selling the newspaper, closing the Free Press and selling its assets or cut costs by reducing staff and raising daily cover prices. The Free Press is said to have lost an estimated $18 million in 1987.

New owner softens the 'Post' look

What's black and white and no longer red all over? The redesigned Houston Post.

The day after William Dean Singleton's MediaNews Group acquired Houston's No. 2 paper, out went the red logo of The Houston Post logo that was instituted by the previous owner, Toronto Sun Publishing Corp.

In its place came a more traditional logo and a redesigned front page.

Under the paper's masthead is the tag "Texas owned, Texas proud."

"A new front page was motivated by the change in ownership," says Elio Agostini, Post VP-marketing. "Dean [Singleton] wanted more of a morning newspaper look. Many of us all along felt that the Toronto Sun look was not apropos for this paper."

The Houston Post nameplate uses the Times New Roman typeface—similar to the look of sister publication Dallas Times Herald.

Like the Times Herald, the new Post uses the U.S. flag and Texas flag on the front page. The Dallas Times Herald tag, however, says "The best newspaper in Texas."

The Houston Post
Cubans offered deal as riots grow
One slain in uprising in Atlanta

"Yes, we wanted to be more in keeping with the MediaNews Group look and sought a similarity," acknowledges Peter O'Sullivan, the Post's VP and editor-in-chief.

THE HOUSTON POST
Cubans demand to stay in U.S.

The redesigned Houston Post (left) dumped the red logo and added the tag, "Texas owned, Texas proud."

"We wanted a softer, more traditional design."

Noting that the ownership change was the perfect opportunity to make a design change, Mr. O'Sullivan says,

(Continued on Page S-17)

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

Your Money™ Is Making A Point

And the point is perfectly clear. Your Money is a leader. Published each Wednesday by The Orlando Sentinel, Your Money is one of the nation's first weekly, free-standing sections to give personal financial advice and act as a consumer advocate.

Even before it was fashionable to worry about personal finances, before Black Monday, The Orlando Sentinel saw the validity of such a publication. And when readers needed it most, the largest business news staff in Florida launched Your Money on November 4.

Leading the way in an uncertain time, Your Money points to one conclusion. The Orlando Sentinel's aggressive foresight and progressive editorial content will continue to make it the best newspaper in Florida.

For readers. And advertisers.

The Orlando Sentinel
LET'S MAKE A DEAL

The Orlando Sentinel

Represented by CWO&O and Metropolitan Sunday Newspapers, Inc. Member Publishers Representatives of Florida and AD/SAT. To contact The Orlando Sentinel advertising department call 305/420-5101.

Competition still fierce, but some rules change

By Beverly Narum

When MediaNews Group took control of the Dallas Times Herald in the fall of 1986, one of the first complaints its president, William Dean Singleton, made was that the two Dallas newspapers looked too much alike.

Beverly Narum is a Dallas-based free-lance writer.

At the time, most people would have agreed. Under Times Mirror Co. ownership, the Herald and its rival, The Dallas Morning News, waged fierce, toe-to-toe competition, each trying to outcover the other on every story, each chasing similar markets. While that competition certainly hasn't ceased, the game plan for the Herald in a little more than a year under MediaNews ownership has changed.

"You always go head-to-head in a competitive market," Mr. Singleton says. "The reader has the choice to put his quarter in your box or their box. But we are trying to reach a certain audience, a younger, more family-oriented audience. We are targeting that 25-to-45 age group, the family with a wife and kid and two car payments. That's the growing part of the market."

To meet that goal, Mr. Singleton chose veteran newsman David Burgin as editor. The Herald has changed in look and content; front page headlines are larger and flashier and Page 1 stories often have more of a feature flair than in the past; Some selections have a more sensational bent.

The News has responded by continuing its program, although increasing its use of color and graphics.

"From a pure marketing standpoint, we are delighted in the changes at the Herald," says Jeremy Halbreich, exec VP and general manager of the News.

Mr. Halbreich says competition continues to be intense, but he believes it is less direct and less of a threat than when Times Mirror owned the Times Herald.

Under the new ownership, the Herald editorial staff has dropped to about 250 from its peak at 310 while the News has about 300. But the Herald gained a boost in coverage potential last fall when MediaNews Group announced it would purchase The Houston Post and The Denver Post.

Already the two Texas papers have worked together in covering the Cuban riot in a Texas prison; stories from Houston Post reporters already have appeared on the front page of the Herald.

Mr. Singleton also shows he's ready to fight the News on other levels. He ordered an investigation of News circulation practices even before his new ownership position was official, and that challenge continues.

After nearly a year of trading charges, months of deposition taking and the involvement of the Texas attorney general's office, the two papers had reached an agreement in August 1987 for the Audit Bureau of Circulations to begin its first audit since the Herald's challenge stopped the audit of the 12 months ended March 31, 1986.

When the audit—expected to be completed in the first quarter of this year—is issued, it will be the first official audit since the review of the 12 months ended March 31, 1985.

While the audit continues, both sides remain adamant in their positions and continue legal proceedings.

Additions to the papers haven't stopped. The Herald beefed up neighborhood coverage with zoned editions while the News in 1987 added a twice-weekly edition for the city of Plano and Collin County, an area with growth potential and high-end demographics. Last fall the News added a Sunday supplement, "Youth Beat."

Both newspaper leaders said the downturn in the local economy has been a bigger challenge than fighting the competition. Both papers lost millions of dollars in ad revenues in 1987 when Safeway closed all of its North Texas grocery stores and long-time retailer Joske's was sold to Dillard Department Stores, already an advertiser in the market. Both papers trimmed staff and instituted other cost-cutting measures.

Mr. Halbreich says the News will continue its "Dallas reads the Dallas Morning News" campaign with agency Tracy-Locke/Dallas.

Mr. Singleton said advertising in 1988 for the Herald will depend on what happens with the economy. Richards Group, Dallas, handles the account.

Though there are no recent audited circulation figures, unaudited figures give the News a substantial lead. ■

Hot property

(Continued from Page S-15)

You become intelligent when you read the paper; or 3. Intelligent people write the paper," says Mr. Agostini. The most dramatic marketing shift was the Post's abandonment of games and sweepstakes promotions. When Toronto Sun acquired the paper in late 1983, spring and fall game promotions were used to build single-copy sales and subscriptions. "Games were not effective for the long-term," says Michael Kleibrink, Post director/research and promotion. Those marketing dollars were directed toward the current campaign, he says.

The Post put its hispanic marketing campaign on hold. Last spring the paper named Rios, Barcenas & Zadik, Houston, as its second agency. That relationship has ended.

The Post also decided to conduct an agency review after GSD&M consolidated its Houston office with its Austin headquarters. A decision on a new agency is expected by Feb. 1.

What may emerge as the Post's competitive edge is its positioning as a Texas-owned newspaper. That positioning—through Dallas-based MediaNews Group's ownership—particularly appeals to readers in outlying areas, suggests Mr. Kleibrink. It is ironic because until the Houston Endowment sold the Chronicle to New York-based Hearst and until Toronto Sun sold the Post to MediaNews, the Chronicle was the hometown paper while the Post was "foreign-owned."

The day MediaNews assumed ownership, the Post emerged with a new front-page look

LOCAL VOLUME DISCOUNTS
NATIONAL VOLUME DISCOUNTS

Now they're equal in Columbus MSA and no restrictions

Now national advertisers buy The Columbus Dispatch with the same range of volume discounts as local advertisers and there are no restrictions!

You can dominate the almost $16 BILLION EFFECTIVE BUYING POWER IN THE COLUMBUS MSA easier than ever. The Dispatch delivers 55% of the nearly one million MSA adults daily, plus a whopping 73% Sunday.

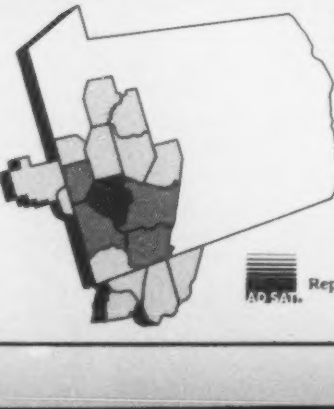
For a new Rate Book, call National Advertising Manager Leonard Zane at (614) 461-5183. In Ohio, call toll-free: 1-800-282-0263.

The Columbus Dispatch
Morning & Sunday

Represented nationally by
Cresmer, Woodward, O'Mara & Ormsbee, Inc.

SUNDAY
AD SAT

Source: Scarborough's 1987 Newspaper Audience Ratings Study.



Pittsburgh's Unbeatable Buy

From the market's Allegheny County hub to its 5-county CMSA and throughout the 18-county ADI . . . The Pittsburgh Press and Post-Gazette deliver unmatched penetration of all important demographic groups.

And no other medium matches their cost-efficiency, daily or Sunday.

For more details,
call the General Advertising
Department, 412/263-1336.

The Pittsburgh Press
SCRIPPS HOWARD EVENING-SUNDAY
Pittsburgh Post-Gazette MORNING

AD SAT

Represented nationally by Sawyer-Ferguson-Walker Co., Inc.

Papers try to keep up with city's gains

By Shannon Thurmond

San Antonio and its two daily papers have been struggling to outgrow the "manana attitude" in a depressed Texas economy. Now the city and papers are trying to live up to forecasts that term San Antonio one of America's top growth spots.

The city has looked beyond the ravaged oil industry and found tourism as a base for continued growth. The May 1988 opening of Sea World's $140 million aquatic park promises to bring $1 billion alone to the area. Such stimulation has helped the city become the nation's fourth-fastest growing metro area.

The newspapers also are working to change, but some onlookers believe Hearst Corp.'s San Antonio Light and News America's Express-News have yet to meet the challenge of providing the bustling city with aggressive journalism.

William C. Thomas, San Antonio Light publisher, disagrees. "We've made a dramatic number of product changes and introductions, including a new format and new style section to meet the changes in the city."

However, one long-time San Antonio newspaper executive who asked not to be identified says that despite their efforts, both newspapers fail to provide adequate editorial coverage.

The Light was the largest paper in the city until 1984, when the Express-News combined its morning and evening editions to boost its circulation figures.

Struggling to regain its claim as "South Texas' largest newspapcr," the Light made changes to compete with the often flamboyant and sensational coverage associated with Rupert Murdoch's newspapers.

San Antonio circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
Express-News	172,410	4.0	246,798	3.6
Light	147,325	6.7	224,391	7.7

Although the Express-News' VP-Marketing Jim Allen and Publisher Charles Kilpatrick refused to comment on the paper's marketing plans, E-N's Managing Editor, Jim Moss, said there had been no major changes in the format or editorial content of the newspaper in 1987.

A greater emphasis had been placed on local news, Mr. Moss says, in the form of a new inside section for stories on local issues and editorials pertaining to those issues. Additionally, the newspaper added a state desk separate from the city desk to address the paper's southern Texas readership.

The Express-News did not run an image campaign in 1987, Mr. Moss says, but did use weekly promotions to spotlight Sunday paper features.

One San Antonio newspaper executive who asked not to be indentified for competitive reasons said that both newspapers appear to be making profits, although the Express-News had a definite advantage. "If two papers can be competitive in a

(Continued on Page S-18)

(See related story on Page S-15.)

The Post also intends to capitalize on its relationship with the Dallas Times Herald, another MediaNews property, by offering combination buys to advertisers.

On the editorial front, the Post and Times Herald have merged their Austin bureaus.

But the Chronicle's Mr. Thomas isn't worried about the Post. "We don't have someone breathing down our neck," he says. "Houston's a competitive market more in terms of what we can't control—like the economy."

'Post' look

(Continued from Page S-15)

"The design is a striking reflection that this is a Texas-owned company. The look is more suited to the market."

Even before Mr. Singleton bought the paper, the Post's management was considering changing the red logo. One insider said that research showed women do not like red logos. So far reaction to the new design is "by far and away favorable," says Mr. O'Sullivan.

Even a Chronicle executive says he likes the Post's new front page, claiming it now resembles the Chronicle.

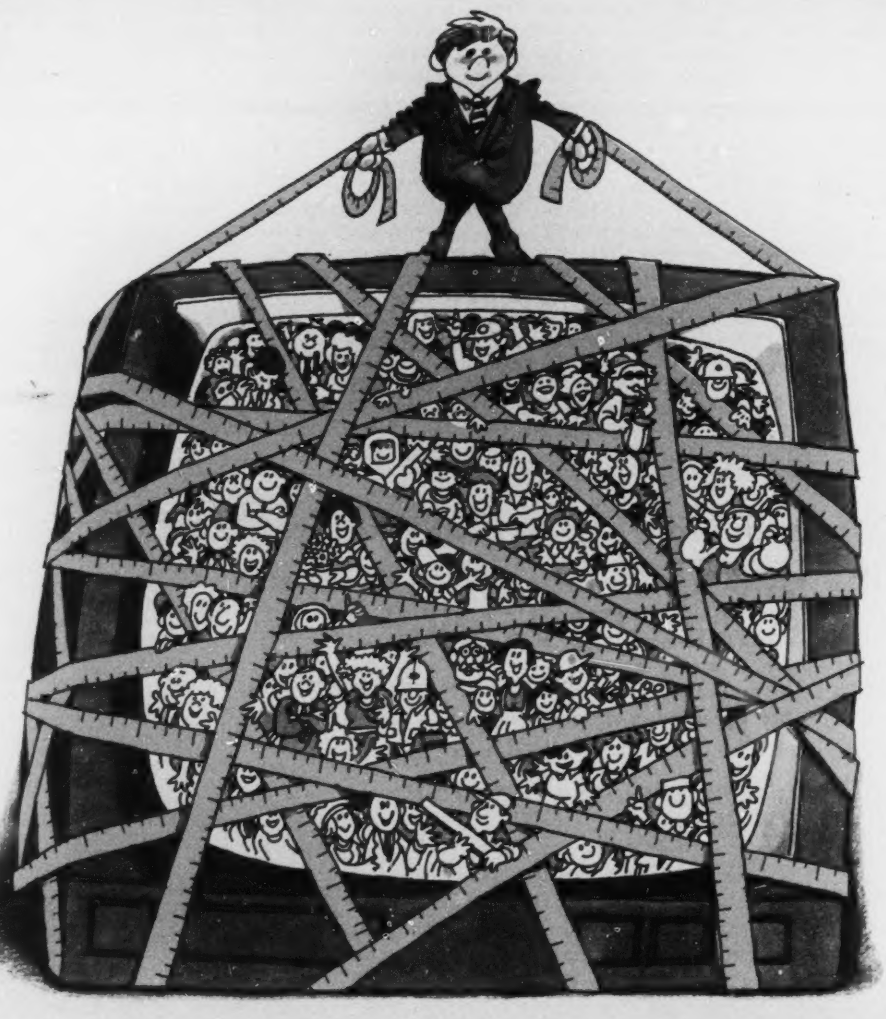
Mr. O'Sullivan, however, says the real imitator is the Chronicle, which he says copied the Post's heavy use of front page color.

—Jennifer Lawrence



EQUITRAC™ Now Measures The Unmeasurable–
Advertising Campaign Equity

You have always known that an advertising campaign can have a special value all of its own. Something that can grow over time. Something that can magnify the effectiveness of the individual commercials within the campaign.

This "something" is campaign equity. And now it can be measured.

Using a campaign collage board to represent the key campaign "threads", EQUITRAC measures Advertising Campaign Equity through its key components:

1. Recognition of the basic campaign format.
2. Association of this format with the right sponsor.
3. Positive attitudes toward the campaign.

With this measurement and the diagnostic insights it provides, EQUITRAC serves as an unparalleled campaign assessment tool to reassure you that your campaign is right on track, needs modification, or needs to be changed.

EQUITRAC. It can tell you how much your campaign is really worth. Write or phone for a complete brochure.

EQUITRAC

Directly Measuring Advertising Campaign Equity from Westgate
Westgate Research • 650 Office Parkway • St. Louis, Missouri 63141 • 567-3333

Entrenched 'Post' guards its flanks

By Janet Meyers

Washington circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
Post	761,142	1.8	1,096,725	1.6
Times	91,508	−12.2	–	–

Whenever Washington Post Marketing VP Nick Cannistraro feels tempted to dwell on his newspaper's local dominance and 80% household penetration rate, he instead contemplates what's happened in New York and Los Angeles.

"We believe a newspaper will lose if it doesn't pay attention to the expanding suburbs," says Mr. Cannistraro. In California, he points out, the Orange County Register has made significant cuts into the Los Angeles Times, while in New York, Long Island's Newsday is chewing into the New York Times numbers. "We take these two examples as warnings to us."

So far the Post is keeping the wolves at bay. For the six months ending Sept. 30, the Post was the only Washington area daily to gain circulation, according to Audit Bureau of Circulations figures.

The Washington Times, with five years in the market and losses of $70 million in the last two years, now it is taking another stab at the Post. Last September the Times unveiled a redesign and introduced it with a hefty ad campaign (see related story).

The Times believes it can appeal to advertisers by delivering an upscale, more targeted buy than the Post.

The chain of Journal newspapers, composed of five suburban dailies in the Maryland and Virginia counties ringing the District of Columbia, promises a home-owning, family-oriented readership.

Only in the "war zone" counties between Baltimore and Washington does the Post meet its match. It is there that the Baltimore Sun papers wage an effective and often winning battle for readers in Howard and Anne Arundel counties. But the Sun doesn't intend to spar with the Post outside those two counties.

"Inevitably, there will be skirmishing at the frontiers," said Mr. Cannistraro. Like any strategist, he is aware of the enemies' strengths and weaknesses. The redesigned Times, says Mr. Cannistraro, "is quite attractive, frankly." But, he adds, "I see no evidence that their circulation is growing in any meaningful way."

The Post has added new sections to offer advertisers less expensive buys. In the past year, however, the newspaper. has dedicated its efforts to a slick new Sunday magazine, which has proven a greater lure to national than local advertisers. Its other major editorial change in the past year has been to expand news coverage in the far suburbs, including Howard and Prince William counties in Maryland and Loudon County, Va., southwest of Washington.

The Sun is more aggressive in Maryland. In 1987 it launched a twice-weekly Anne Arundel Sun supplement filled with local news, which expanded to six times a week by the end of the year. In 1988, it will increase the Howard County section to six times a week from just Sundays. Howard represents the greatest town, then these two papers are. I have to question the treatment of stories by both papers, but I can see improvement in the look of the papers in recent years."

Keeping up

(Continued from Page S-17)

The Light's format changed in March 1986 when the newspaper debuted "Sunday Viva," an offset magazine focusing on personalities and features. Throughout 1986, the paper continued to revamp its sections. The culmination of the alterations came in March 1987 when the paper changed its daily feature section and created a daily offspring of "Sunday Viva" that carries pull-out TV listings, comics and local and national columnists.

" 'Viva' magazine has been particularily popular," Mr. Thomas says. "The changes we made represented a complete redesign of the paper."

The changes in the newspaper were the underlying message in an image campaign for the Light that began in September. The TV, radio, point of purchase and in-house newspaper ads carried the theme "San Antonio, we're your paper."

"Research indicated that neither paper belonged to the city," says Light VP-Marketing Larry Wynn. "We decided to capitalize on that notion and present a paper that offered new features and a new look."

TV spots feature vignettes of how the paper plays a role in people's lives. Although Thompson/Marince, San Antonio, is the paper's agency of record, one of Hearst Corp.'s agencies, Shaw & Landey, New York, created the campaign.

Two new spots will break in February, Mr. Wynn says, and the "We're your paper" theme will continue throughout 1988.

Despite a population that is 46.6% hispanic, the paper does not print a Spanish-language edition. "We have a blending of ethnicities here that is comfortable. I see no reason to produce separate papers," says Mr. Thomas. ■

The Number One Market for Black Consumers Has Only One Black Daily Newspaper: THE DAILY CHALLENGE

There are only two Black oriented daily newspapers in the United States. And, only one is in New York City, the number one Black consumer market. THE DAILY CHALLENGE.

Advertising Takes On Special Meaning In THE DAILY CHALLENGE

Like other major dailies, THE DAILY CHALLENGE delivers news and information as it's happening. Unlike other dailies, THE DAILY CHALLENGE addresses the issues from a Black perspective. Our audience reads, intently and intelligently, about the things that are very much on their minds: their jobs, their future, their families, and their relationships with the rest of the world.

Loyalty And Sales Are Earned In THE DAILY CHALLENGE

Advertisers who understand our clout include:

Abraham & Straus
Brooklyn Union Gas
Coca Cola
General Foods
I Love New York
McDonald's
Sears
Air Jamaica
Brown & Williamson
Con Edison
General Motors
New York State Lottery
Pepsi Cola
R.J. Reynolds-Nabisco
Anheuser-Busch
Chrysler
Ford
IBM
Kraft
Philip Morris Co.

DAILY CHALLENGE
"City's Only Black Daily"
Thomas H. Watkins Jr., Publisher
1368 Fulton St., Brooklyn, New York 11216, (718) 636-9500

A LOT OF NEW YORK MONEY LIVES IN FAIRFIELD COUNTY.

Any advertiser wanting to hit home with the high end income core of the N.Y. ADI had better zero in on Fairfield County: home of the highest per capita Effective Buying Income and highest average household EBI in the U.S.

And the FCD Newspaper Network, now with full 3% ADI coverage, is by far the most effective and cost-efficient way to reach it!

If your advertising target is irresistible wealth, call Elliott Huron at Landon Associates: (212) 867-1112.

FAIRFIELD COUNTY DAILIES
FCD
one order / one bill / at a discount
At home with irresistible wealth

FCD: The Bridgeport Post-Telegram, Danbury News-Times, Greenwich Time, The Hour (Norwalk), The Advocate (Stamford)

challenge, says Ann Gallant, Sun director of marketing and communications, because many Howard residents work close to home, so they have no leaning toward either city.

Annapolis, Md., which is about midway between Baltimore and Washington, has acquired a more competitive environment since the Annapolis Capital last September began a Sunday edition.

The Journal last year launched a total market coverage product to reach 525,000 households in the metropolitan area.

The Journal saw its display and classified linage totals increase more than 9% in 1986, while the Times saw retail advertising revenues rise 30% in 1987. (The Times estimates its 1987 circulation and advertising revenues at about $8 million.)

The Times wants to be profitable in five years. "The Post is a formidable competitor," says Larry Chandler, Times director of development. "For the print industry, we are the test tube case," he says. "Can you, in this day and age, create a profitable new paper?"

But the Post will still dominate Washington, says Mr. Chandler. "The two newspapers will offer different things as they evolve. Washington will have the pleasure of having two healthy newspapers."

'Times' spots fight skepticism about owner

Josette Shiner
Deputy Managing Editor
Arnaud de Borchgrave
Editor-in-Chief
The Washington Times
For the way you live today

TV spots for the Times feature Editor Arnaud de Borchgrave and Josette Shiner, deputy managing editor, in newsroom settings.

The Washington Times, as portrayed in a series of TV spots this fall, is a bustling, newsy place where editors listen and act on the desires of their readers.

That's exactly the image the Times wants—and needs. In September, it used its redesign to unleash a $1 million-to-$2 million campaign reintroducing the Times to Washingtonians, many of whom have shied away from the newspaper because of its association with the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church. The Times is owned by News World Communications and is supported with grants from businesses run by Unification Church members.

But the Times' newsroom looks like any other newspaper newsroom, and its editors look real, too.

"There's great skepticism about the media generally these days," says Larry Chandler, Times director of development. "We thought it was a valuable thing for them to hear from the actual people who were doing it [the redesign]."

The first two TV spots, from Earle Palmer Brown Cos., Bethesda, Md., feature Arnaud de Borchgrave, the Times' often controversial editor, and Josette Shiner, deputy managing editor, standing in the newsroom. "You wanted a paper that you could get through without feeling like it was your second job," says Mr. de Borchgrave. "The choice is yours. Providing, of course, you choose the new Washington Times." Ms. Shiner, head of the committee that redesigned the newspaper, says, "Congratulations. You built yourself a newspaper."

The Times used reader focus groups to discover what readers wanted in a newspaper. Thus the next four spots in the campaign showed editors of the business, features, federal report and metro sections discussing the changes in their sections, then cutting to consumers telling what they want.

So far, it's proved successful. The Times, whose circulation had dipped 12.2% to 91,508 for the six months ending Sept. 30, is up over 95,000, claims Mr. Chandler. That's particularly significant, he adds, because "historically, we've been able to grow the rest of the year, but not in the fall." In September, the Post breaks its fall offer: buy Sunday and get the other days free.

The Post uses mainly radio and direct mail in a less expensive, more targeted sell to new subscribers. DDB Needham Worldwide, Washington, handles. Nick Cannistraro, the Post's VP-marketing, says the Post met its circulation goals last fall.

In December, the Times offered a "Huggable Hog" stuffed animal wearing Washington Redskins garb as a premium for new subscribers.

For the first quarter of 1988, the Times will return with another series of TV spots describing more of the Times' special features.

—Janet Meyers

FROM FASHION AND ENTERTAINMENT, TO HIGH TECH INDUSTRY, THE DAILY NEWS MARKET LEADS THE WAY!

TODAY'S SPECIAL How the new tax law will affect you.
D-T-V
Mickey makes megabucks with Disney music videos
Daily News
EYE POPPING
New swimwear guaranteed to make a splash
SERVING THE SAN FERNANDO AND NEIGHBORING VALLEYS
Workers at Rocketdyne welcome NASA challenge
VALLEY BUSINESS
Daily News
Of movies, money and MCA
L.A. LIFE
Daily News
BOULEVARD FASHIONS!

As home to some of America's most dynamic and successful companies — like Disney, Universal, Lockheed and Rocketdyne — the Daily News PMA (including the San Fernando and neighboring Valleys) is one of the most powerful, productive and trend-setting markets in the country today.

It's also a dynamic retail market ($18.22 billion in retail sales), where residents spend more per capita per year on food and fashion than any other area in Southern California.

For information on how you can set new trends in L.A.'s most affluent, free-spending market, contact the Daily News of Los Angeles today at 818-713-3250.

Source: National Planning Data Corp., 1987

Daily News
LOS ANGELES

Represented nationally by Sawyer-Ferguson-Walker

Boston rebounding as two-paper town

By Alan Radding

Three years ago serious doubts existed as to whether Boston would remain a two newspaper city. The Globe was solidly entrenched, commanding the overwhelming share of readers and advertising while the Herald floundered in red ink, low readership and weak advertiser support.

People were writing the Herald's obituary. But that has changed. "Boston is definitely a two newspaper city," says Russell Pergament, publisher of The Tab, a chain of Boston suburban free weeklies. "From the readers' point of view, each paper is markedly different."

Advertisers also are starting to consider Boston a viable two newspaper market. "For certain advertisers the Herald can be very effective," says Louise Bradford, VP-media director at Rossin Greenberg Seronick & Hill, a Boston ad agency. To reach the affluent market, however, she still favors the Globe.

To counter criticism that Rupert Murdoch's Herald is saddled with a downscale, urban-core readership and to attract some of the upscale advertising that now goes automatically to the Globe, the Herald has made significant changes. "We've toned down the look of the front page and added new features and columnists to bring in the upscale readers," says James Blinn, associate publisher.

The Boston Globe
Flynn blasts Dukakis on incinerator
Emergency spending bill voted, signed
Arabs to join Palestinians in protest strike

According to a 1987 Scarborough report for the Boston market, the Herald has a long way to go. Among households with $75,000 plus income, the Globe reaches 55% to the Herald's 21%, although the Herald has made strong gains recently, says Mr. Blinn.

To attract an upscale readership, the Herald is putting more effort into developing as a classic hard-hitting newspaper. For instance, it broke a major story on municipal corruption in nearby Lowell just a week before an election and has been zealous in covering what it perceives as abuses by top legislative leaders.

By comparison, the Globe's highly regarded Spotlight investigative team tackles more sophisticated issues, such as the handling of child abuse cases by the state. It provides detailed analysis of national and international events.

Boston Herald
Contras launch attacks on eve of talks
Flynn dumps on Duke trash plans

A toned-down look of the Herald is putting up stiffer competition for the Globe.

Boston circulation scorecard

Newspaper	Daily circ.	% change from '86	Sunday circ.	% change from '86
Globe	502,521	−2.7	781,407	−2.9
Herald	355,355	−1.2	265,401	−1.3

Mr. Pergament follows both papers intently and concludes the Globe "does far better covering the national scene than it does the local one." Still, "It is regularly scooped on State House and City Hall news by its scrappy, street-fighting rival," he adds. Unfortunately, the Herald still has "a lot of trash," which he ascribes to its "English [Fleet St. tabloid] patrimony.'

In addition to boosting its editorial product, the Herald has changed its circulation strategy and is no longer trying to match the Globe's coverage throughout New England. Instead, the Herald will concentrate on building circulation in the central Boston retail trading area, says Mr. Blinn. "We want to be the paper of record for the city of Boston," he says, "while the Globe is moving towards being a New England newspaper."

The Herald strategy, riding on unrelenting contest promotions, is paying off. The paper is even making money. According to published reports, profits doubled in the year ending September, to $1.4 million over the previous year.

For the fiscal year ending in June, the Herald reports advertising volume increased $10.5 million, for a 27% gain. Mr. Blinn expects the advertising to end the current fiscal year $10 million ahead of last year.

Despite these gains, the Globe continues overwhelming dominance of the Boston newspaper market. For the first three quarters of the year, advertising volume rose 5.9% to 3.6 million inches. In 1986, Globe advertising reached $328.3 million, a 17.2% increase over the previous year.

A new editorial design, content changes, expansion of the TV magazine, new sections and broadened local news coverage are reportedly in the works for the Globe early this year.

The Globe also is shopping for a new advertising agency.

Just when the Herald was increasing profits, there was talk that it might be sold because of the FCC cross-ownership rules. But Mr. Murdoch, who also owns WFXT-TV, part of his Fox Television Network, said earlier this month in an interview on Cable News Network that if forced to make a choice, he would sell the station and keep the Herald.

Alan Radding is an ADVERTISING AGE correspondent in Boston.

Executive editor/features Robert Goldsborough coordinated this report on Newspapers.

Coming

Next week ADVERTISING AGE's Special Report will focus on Youth Marketing.

HERALD-JOURNAL

NEWSPAPERS
Working Women Love 'Em.

In the Syracuse Market 78% of working women read either The Post-Standard or Herald-Journal during an average five day period and 86% of these women read the Sunday Herald American over a four week period. This rapidly growing group represents 28% of all adults in the four county area.*

Because they have less time and more needs, they turn to the medium that gives them the most varied information in terms of both news and shopping information.

Are you looking to reach working women? Reach for the vehicle they always have time for . . . The Syracuse Newspapers.

For more information write: Research and Promotion Department, The Syracuse Newspapers, P.O. Box 4915, Syracuse, N.Y. 13221, or call Carl Sweeney at (315) 470-2073.

* Belden CMS 1986

The Syracuse Newspapers
Herald-Journal The Post-Standard Herald American

Evening Express
Portland Press Herald
Maine Sunday Telegram

The (ME) test

☑ What mini-test market matches mainstream America demographics plus or minus 5%?
☑ What market meets all the ADI media-mix requirements, minimal spillage, and low GRP costs (average 30 second TV spot reaches 19% @ $16.50 per point; the newspaper buy reaches 34% @ $16.54 a point)?
☑ What market offers tight monitoring and control with 80% reach of the All Commodity Volume through 14 supermarkets?
☑ What market has the most up-to-date auditing capabilities of Nielsen, Burgoyne, SAMI?
☑ What market is served by a dominant newspaper with over 86,000 daily circulation and 129,000 Sunday, 96% within the ADI?

Call Gary Gagne (Portland, ME) 207-775-5811,
Jim McNeil (Landon-Portland) 207-799-0990,
Frank Chicko (Landon-Boston) 617-266-2141.

Test marketers select the (ME) Market . . . the Portland (ME) Newspapers.

Portland, ME

PORTLAND NEWSPAPERS: 390 Congress St., Portland, ME 04101
Nationally marketed by LANDON 23 offices coast-to-coast

Consumer Magazine Ad Linage

Advertising pages for U.S., Canadian and foreign consumer publications

JANUARY

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1988	1987	1988	1987
Art & antiques
Art & Antiques (10X)	53.1	46.7	53.1	46.7
Art News (10X)	105.0	110.0	105.0	110.0
Southwest Art	69.3	54.9	69.3	54.9
Total Group	227.3	211.7	227.3	211.7
% change		7.4%		7.4%
Auto/cycle/rec. vehicles
ATV Sports	28.6	50.6	28.6	50.6
Autoweek (52X)	121.0	112.0	121.0	112.0
Car & Driver	78.2	83.5	78.2	83.5
Car Collector & Car Classics	19.4	16.0	19.4	16.0
Car Craft	50.5	49.9	50.5	49.9
Circle Track	47.7	44.1	47.7	44.1
Cycle World	23.2	25.1	23.2	25.1
Dirt Rider	28.0	32.1	28.0	32.1
Dune Buggies & Hot VWs	67.8	77.0	67.8	77.0
Family Motor Coaching	196.5	168.0	196.5	168.0
4 Wheel & Off-Road	63.2	60.0	63.2	60.0
Four Wheeler	71.0	61.0	71.0	61.0
Hot Rod	93.8	43.4	93.8	43.4
Motorcyclist	15.7	14.2	15.7	14.2
Motor Trend	45.8	54.0	45.8	54.0
Motorhome	81.6	76.3	81.6	76.3
Rider	21.1	25.8	21.1	25.8
Road & Track	100.4	73.6	100.4	73.6
Trailblazer	36.2	35.0	36.2	35.0
Trailer Life	84.9	87.3	84.9	87.3
Total Group	1,274.5	1,189.0	1,274.5	1,189.0
% change		7.2%		7.2%
Boating & yachting
Boating	194.3	191.0	194.3	191.0
Chesapeake Bay	40.8	35.8	40.8	35.8
Cruising World	108.1	100.7	108.1	100.7
Lakeland Boating (11X)	77.0	79.5	77.0	79.5
Motor Boating & Sailing	216.1	223.5	216.1	223.5
Sail	97.5	95.4	97.5	95.4
Small Boat Journal(6X)	—	—	—	—
Trailer Boats(11X)	67.3	60.3	67.3	60.3
Western Boatman(6X)	56.0	44.1	56.0	44.1
Yachting	218.9	197.9	218.9	197.9
Total Group	1,076.0	1,028.2	1,076.0	1,028.2
% change		4.7%		4.7%
Canadian
L'Actualite	40.0	37.2	40.0	37.2
Chatelaine:
English Edition A	50.6	43.1	50.6	43.1
French Edition	45.4	40.4	45.4	40.4
City & Country Home(10X)	—	—	—	—
Equinox	33.8	27.4	33.8	27.4
Flare A	37.0	33.4	37.0	33.4
Macleans (52X) A	79.2	101.2	79.2	101.2
Moneywise	23.0	27.9	23.0	27.9
Reader's Digest:
Canadian-English A	40.7	43.8	40.7	43.8
Canadian-French A	39.3	35.2	39.3	35.2
Toronto Life	59.8	64.2	59.8	64.2
Vancouver	35.5	37.5	35.5	37.5
Total Group	484.3	491.3	484.3	491.3
% change		-1.4%		-1.4%
Civic/fraternal
American Legion	42.7	40.2	42.7	40.2
Elks (10X)	17.8	25.8	17.8	25.8
Kiwanis	14.0	15.7	14.0	15.7
Lion (10X)	—	—	—	—
Rotarian	13.5	10.5	13.5	10.5
V.F.W. (11X)	32.8	33.3	32.8	33.3
Total Group	120.8	125.5	120.8	125.5
% change		-3.7%		-3.7%
Comics
Archie Comics Group	3.0	4.0	3.0	4.0
DC Comics	8.5	8.0	8.5	8.0
Marvel Comics Group	10.0	9.0	10.0	9.0
Total Group	21.5	21.0	21.5	21.0
% change		2.4%		2.4%
General
American Health (10X)	69.5	64.2	69.5	64.2
The Atlantic A	59.8	27.8	59.8	27.8
Bon Appetit A	66.5	57.5	66.5	57.5
Changing Times	52.7	66.0	52.7	66.0
Conde Nast's Traveler	34.6	—	34.6	—
Connoisseur	50.4	37.8	50.4	37.8
Consumers Digest (6X)	17.5	27.5	17.5	27.5
Ebony	70.3	71.8	70.3	71.8
Fifty Plus	33.0	39.5	33.0	39.5
Food & Wine	37.0	34.1	37.0	34.1
Games (6X)	—	—	—	—
Golden Years	37.4	24.9	37.4	24.9
Gourmet	70.4	56.2	70.4	56.2
Harper's A	27.2	29.0	27.2	29.0
Harrowsmith (6X)	65.0	54.4	65.0	54.4
Let's Live	48.0	45.0	48.0	45.0
Life	49.5	52.5	49.5	52.5
Mature Outlook	32.5	46.3	32.5	46.3
Modern Maturity (6X)	—	—	—	—
Money	104.2	90.8	104.2	90.8
Money Maker	—	6.0	—	6.0
National Geographic	9.3	12.0	9.3	12.0
Natural History	33.4	40.1	33.4	40.1
Prevention	50.1	66.5	50.1	66.5
Psychology Today	30.5	30.0	30.5	30.0
Saturday Evening Post (9X)	39.0	43.9	39.0	43.9
Smithsonian	84.1	59.7	84.1	59.7
Sylvia Porter's Personal Finance (10X)	54.0	67.3	54.0	67.3
Town & Country	97.7	82.1	97.7	82.1
Travel-Holiday	45.7	41.3	45.7	41.3
Travel & Leisure	67.8	63.9	67.8	63.9
Vanity Fair	33.0	24.5	33.0	24.5
Writer's Digest	26.4	26.9	26.4	26.9
Yankee	69.4	70.6	69.4	70.6
Total Group	1,565.7	1,460.1	1,565.7	1,460.1
% change		7.2%		7.2%
Home
Americana (6X)	16.7	14.6	16.7	14.6
Architectural Digest A	79.9	79.9	79.9	79.9
Better Homes & Gardens	74.8	52.3	74.8	52.3
Colonial Homes (6X)	42.7	44.0	42.7	44.0
Columbus Monthly-Homes (4X)	30.2	22.6	30.2	22.6
Country Home (6X)	41.9	36.2	41.9	36.2
Country Living	56.2	58.4	56.2	58.4
Family Handyman (10X) A	48.4	38.7	48.4	38.7
Home	44.0	33.2	44.0	33.2
Home Mechanics	41.5	40.8	41.5	40.8
The Homeowner (10X)	43.6	40.5	43.6	40.5
Horticulture	48.8	40.4	48.8	40.4
House Beautiful	38.4	43.0	38.4	43.0
House & Garden	59.3	51.8	59.3	51.8
Houston Home & Garden	40.3	42.3	40.3	42.3
Metropolis	55.9	63.9	55.9	63.9
Metropolitan Home	50.5	33.8	50.5	33.8
1,001 Home Ideas	46.4	36.4	46.4	36.4
Organic Gardening	58.2	55.8	58.2	55.8
Phoenix Home/Garden	71.8	59.8	71.8	59.8
Practical Homeowner	43.9	38.9	43.9	38.9
San Diego Home/Garden	51.8	59.7	51.8	59.7
South Florida Home/Garden	43.0	37.0	43.0	37.0
Southern Accents (6X)	82.3	84.1	82.3	84.1
Southern Living	67.8	73.1	67.8	73.1
Sunset Magazine A	85.2	61.6	85.2	61.6
Workbench (6X)	48.4	49.4	48.4	49.4
Total Group	1,411.6	1,292.2	1,411.6	1,292.2
% change		9.2%		9.2%
In-flight & other passenger
Aboard Group (7)(6X)	28.0	27.8	28.0	27.8
Alaska Airlines	54.7	52.1	54.7	52.1
America West Airlines	61.5	42.6	61.5	42.6
American Way (24X)	127.4	79.2	127.4	79.2
Brighton Inflight Group:
Hawaiian Air (6X)	—	—	—	—
East/West Network:
Continental	52.0	—	52.0	—
Eastern Review	61.2	77.8	61.2	77.8
Northwest	43.2	39.0	43.2	39.0
Pan Am Clipper	43.3	43.2	43.3	43.2
Spirit	59.7	57.3	59.7	57.3
TWA Ambassador	51.0	42.5	51.0	42.5
Vis 'A Vis	40.7	53.2	40.7	53.2
Halsey Publication:
Delta Sky	80.7	69.7	80.7	69.7
Pace Communications:
Piedmont Airlines Pace	73.3	73.4	73.3	73.4
US Air	56.5	41.5	56.5	41.5
Spirit of Aloha (6X)	20.9	34.0	20.9	34.0
Total Group	854.1	733.2	854.1	733.2
% change		16.5%		16.5%
Men's
Esquire A	47.3	44.5	47.3	44.5
Firehouse Magazine	38.0	47.0	38.0	47.0
Gentlemen's Quarterly A	84.2	54.9	84.2	54.9
M Magazine	43.6	35.3	43.6	35.3
Muscle & Fitness	120.5	110.3	120.5	110.3
Penthouse A	55.9	44.4	55.9	44.4
Playboy A	53.0	60.6	53.0	60.6
Salute (8X)	—	—	—	—
Total Group	442.5	396.9	442.5	396.9
% change		11.5%		11.5%
Metropolitan
Aloha (6X)	18.8	27.9	18.8	27.9
Atlanta	49.6	51.9	49.6	51.9
Baltimore	51.5	57.5	51.5	57.5
Boston	126.7	133.7	126.7	133.7
California	63.2	37.2	63.2	37.2
Chicago	105.9	71.0	105.9	71.0
Chicago's North Shore	93.3	78.8	93.3	78.8
Cincinnati	47.7	45.3	47.7	45.3
Cleveland	52.9	52.4	52.9	52.4
Coast (39X)	51.7	60.0	51.7	60.0
Columbus Monthly	68.8	60.3	68.8	60.3
Connecticut	75.1	83.2	75.1	83.2
D/Magazine, Dallas/Ft. Worth	71.9	90.6	71.9	90.6
Denver	28.2	21.5	28.2	21.5
Detroit Monthly	51.5	95.9	51.5	95.9
Grand Rapids	27.6	29.7	27.6	29.7
Gulfshore Life (10X)	86.0	86.0	86.0	86.0
Honolulu	55.4	56.2	55.4	56.2
Louisiana Life (6X)	23.8	29.8	23.8	29.8
Madison	30.5	54.0	30.5	54.0
Memphis	74.0	81.0	74.0	81.0
Mid Atlantic Country	17.2	21.8	17.2	21.8
Milwaukee	47.5	32.0	47.5	32.0
Minneapolis/St. Paul	67.3	64.8	67.3	64.8
Nashville	44.0	44.0	44.0	44.0
New England Monthly	46.5	31.6	46.5	31.6
New Jersey Monthly	70.0	70.2	70.0	70.2
New Mexico	51.5	92.5	51.5	92.5
Ohio	55.0	67.8	55.0	67.8
Oregon (6X)	26.0	23.0	26.0	23.0
Orlando	92.2	85.5	92.2	85.5
Palm Beach Life	85.7	91.6	85.7	91.6
Palm Springs Life	155.0	130.8	155.0	130.8
Philadelphia	122.6	123.6	122.6	123.6
Phoenix	63.1	75.1	63.1	75.1
Pittsburgh	49.3	50.2	49.3	50.2
St. Louis	46.2	34.0	46.2	34.0
San Diego	175.9	110.5	175.9	110.5
San Francisco Focus	54.7	79.8	54.7	79.8
South Florida Magazine	81.8	53.9	81.8	53.9
Texas Monthly	53.1	78.1	53.1	78.1
Twin Cities	65.0	34.6	65.0	34.6
The Virginian (6X)	60.5	52.1	60.5	52.1
Washington (7X)	47.4	40.0	47.4	40.0
The Washingtonian	112.7	117.7	112.7	117.7
Total Group	2,944.2	2,909.0	2,944.2	2,909.0
% change		1.2%		1.2%
Movie/romance/radio/tv
Macfadden's Women's Group:
Modern Romances	18.3	18.6	18.3	18.6
Secrets	18.3	18.6	18.3	18.6
True Confessions	18.3	18.6	18.3	18.6
True Experience	18.3	18.6	18.3	18.6
True Love	18.3	18.6	18.3	18.6
True Romance	18.3	18.6	18.3	18.6
Sterling Women's Group:
Daytime TV	24.5	24.2	24.5	24.2
Modern Screen (6X)	—	—	—	—
Movie Mirror (6X)	—	—	—	—
Soap Opera Stars (6X)	—	—	—	—
TV Movie Screen (6X)	—	—	—	—
TV Picture Life (6X)	7.3	—	7.3	—
Total Group	141.5	135.8	141.5	135.8
% change		4.2%		4.2%
Music/entertainment
Audio	109.9	98.4	109.9	98.4
Dance Magazine	54.0	57.8	54.0	57.8
Playbill	35.4	33.6	35.4	33.6
Stereo Review	101.8	98.5	101.8	98.5
Video Magazine	73.0	78.5	73.0	78.5
Total Group	374.1	366.8	374.1	366.8
% change		2.0%		2.0%
National Sunday magazines
Parade (52X)	58.4	48.7	58.4	48.7
Total Group	58.4	48.7	58.4	48.7
% change		20.1%		20.1%
Outdoor & sport
Alaska	32.1	23.8	32.1	23.8
The American Handgunner (6X)	49.0	41.0	49.0	41.0
American Hunter	17.6	20.9	17.6	20.9
American Rifleman	24.8	28.6	24.8	28.6
Backpacker (6X)	34.5	27.0	34.5	27.0
Bass Master (10X) A	82.9	67.0	82.9	67.0
Bicycling (9X)	85.6	69.6	85.6	69.6
Ducks Unlimited (6X)	22.6	18.3	22.6	18.3
Field & Stream	55.7	75.5	55.7	75.5
Fishing World (6X)	43.0	33.1	43.0	33.1
Florida Sportsman	133.7	149.6	133.7	149.6
Golf Digest	86.6	100.5	86.6	100.5
Golf Magazine	150.2	118.2	150.2	118.2
Gun Dog (6X)	—	—	—	—
Guns	33.0	29.0	33.0	29.0
Guns & Ammo	38.7	34.9	38.7	34.9
In-Fisherman (6X)	—	—	—	—
Outdoor Life	55.6	70.3	55.6	70.3
Outside Magazine	35.0	32.3	35.0	32.3
Petersen's Hunting	36.4	38.2	36.4	38.2
Runner's World (12X)	35.8	22.1	35.8	22.1
Salt Water Sportsman	200.3	183.5	200.3	183.5
Sierra (6X)	—	—	—	—
Shooting Times	23.8	32.7	23.8	32.7
Ski (8X) A	104.5	83.4	104.5	83.4
Skiing (7X) A	115.7	94.9	115.7	94.9
Skin Diver	91.1	99.0	91.1	99.0
Southern Outdoors (9X)	44.6	46.1	44.6	46.1
Southern Saltwater(8X)	39.4	—	39.4	—
Sport	36.0	31.9	36.0	31.9
Sports Afield	42.8	131.6	42.8	131.6
Tennis	41.5	44.3	41.5	44.3
Waterski (8X)	49.5	43.0	49.5	43.0
Western Outdoors (10X)	37.6	30.0	37.6	30.0
Wildfowl (6X)	—	—	—	—
Wing & Shot (6X)	—	—	—	—
World Tennis	19.7	13.8	19.7	13.8
Total Group	1,899.4	1,834.0	1,899.4	1834.0
% change		3.6%		3.6%

(X) Represents the number of times published each year; publications are monthly unless otherwise specified.

A. Sectional linage included but prorated to circulation of regional editions. B. Sectional linage included but not prorated to circulation of regional editions. C. Combined unduplicated regional ads.

All figures represented in this chart are supplied by the magazines. ADVERTISING AGE makes no attempt to verify them and, therefore, is not responsible for inconsistencies or errors.

(Continued on Page 62)

(Continued from Page 61)

JANUARY

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1988	1987	1988	1987
— Photography —
American Photographer	37.9	25.0	37.9	25.0
Petersen's Photographic	23.7	22.0	23.7	22.0
Popular Photography	81.1	68.0	81.1	68.0
Total Group	142.8	115.0	142.8	115.0
% change		24.2%		24.2%
— Religious —
Charisma	45.8	49.2	45.8	49.2
Christian Herald (11X)	19.2	25.5	19.2	25.5
Christianity Today (18X)	33.0	32.5	33.0	32.5
Inside Magazine (4X)	—	—	—	—
Ministries Today (6X)	57.3	39.2	57.3	39.2
Our Sunday Visitor (52X)	19.6	13.3	19.6	13.3
Today's Christian Woman (6X)	34.2	31.4	34.2	31.4
Total Group	209.1	191.0	209.1	191.0
% change	9.5%		9.5%
— Science/electronic /mechanic —
Discover	38.9	47.9	38.9	47.9
Family & Home Office Computing	41.8	55.1	41.8	55.1
Omni	53.9	47.5	53.9	47.5
Personal Computing	218.5	127.0	218.5	127.0
Popular Mechanics	59.0	73.7	59.0	73.7
Popular Science	59.8	59.1	59.8	59.1
Scientific American	18.3	30.3	18.3	30.3
Total Group	490.2	440.6	490.2	440.6
% change	11.2%		11.2%
— Woman/fashion/service —
Bride's Magazine (6X) A.	—	—	—	—
Cosmopolitan A.	142.0	152.9	142.0	152.9
Essence	58.0	55.4	58.0	55.4
Family Circle (17X) A.	55.5	74.2	55.5	74.2
Glamour	91.8	119.4	91.8	119.4
Good Housekeeping A.	66.5	83.9	66.5	83.9
Harper's Bazaar	61.9	69.4	61.9	69.4
Health	27.5	34.0	27.5	34.0
Ladies' Home Journal	74.5	65.2	74.5	65.2
Mademoiselle	62.0	77.5	62.0	77.5
McCall's	55.1	54.9	55.1	54.9
Military Lifestyle	33.6	44.2	33.6	44.2
Modern Bride (6X)	—	—	—	—
Ms.	36.6	—	36.6	—
New Woman	57.1	56.9	57.1	56.9
Parents Magazine A.	80.6	63.8	80.6	63.8
Redbook	72.9	73.0	72.9	73.0
Savvy	39.7	32.5	39.7	32.5
Self	51.7	57.5	51.7	57.5
Seventeen	43.7	75.3	43.7	75.3
Shape	55.9	65.4	55.9	65.4
Soap Opera Digest (26X)	34.0	8.6	34.0	8.6
Teen Magazine	32.1	32.6	32.1	32.6
True Story A.	39.4	34.4	39.4	34.4
Vogue	103.6	118.5	103.6	118.5
W Magazine	83.1	71.4	83.1	71.4
Woman (10X)	—	—	—	—
Weight Watchers	29.5	34.3	29.5	34.3
Woman's Day (16X) A.	86.1	93.2	86.1	93.2
Women's Sports & Fitness	25.0	—	25.0	—
Workbasket	25.5	27.7	25.5	27.7
Working Mother	54.3	53.4	54.3	53.4
Working Woman	67.1	82.3	67.1	82.3
Total Group	1,746.3	1,811.7	1,746.3	1,811.7
% change		-3.6%		-3.6%
— Youth —
Boys' Life	14.3	12.6	14.3	12.6
Campus Life (10X)	50.8	45.2	50.8	45.2
Total Group	65.2	57.8	65.2	57.8
% change		12.7%		12.7%

DECEMBER

	Current month		Year-to-date
	1987	1986	1987	1986
— Business/national —
Barron's	154.3	199.3	2,527.9	2,318.9
Black Enterprise	71.1	69.1	834.4	861.1
Business Week (52X) A.	454.3	364.8	4,708.3	3,893.2
Business Month	33.4	—	384.5	—
Financial World (26X)	77.4	54.7	756.1	659.4
Forbes (26X)	245.8	369.2	3,626.2	3,418.1
Fortune (26X)	255.3	276.2	3,017.0	2,907.9
Frequent Flyer	42.0	50.7	689.3	723.3
Futures	47.8	41.8	783.3	588.9
Income Opportunities	89.9	63.7	862.9	673.8
Industry Week (25X) A.	46.7	56.8	1,035.1	1,147.9
Nation's Business (12X) A.	20.2	19.6	314.8	284.8
Personal Investor (6X)	—	—	—	—
Venture	94.0	67.4	839.8	849.3
Total Group	1,632.2	1,633.3	20,379.6	18,326.5
% change		-0.1%		11.2%
— Business/regional —
Advantage-Nashville's Bus. Mo.	62.6	55.0	690.1	737.4
Arizona Bus. Gazette (52X)	101.9	98.8	933.9	820.5
Baltimore Bus. Journal	84.6	79.0	1,088.5	824.3
Boston Bus. Journal (52X)	131.5	143.5	1,693.1	1,612.9
Business First of Buffalo	65.5	72.4	787.6	2,052.0
Business First of Columbus	84.4	73.9	1,286.5	819.5
Business Journal-Milwaukee	272.0	348.0	1,895.0	1,685.0
Business Journal-Sacramento	113.4	125.9	876.2	654.2
Business North Carolina	37.5	51.5	522.4	521.0
Capital Dist. Bus. Review (52X)	73.1	72.0	976.0	970.0
Cincinnati Business Courier	95.5	72.0	1,336.6	970.0
Corporate Report Kansas City	15.9	14.6	235.2	275.3
Corporate Report Minnesota	69.0	65.0	912.0	952.0
Crain's Chicago Bus. (52X)	135.0	166.0	1,853.0	1,984.0
Crain's Cleveland Bus. (52X)	59.7	71.7	777.6	781.5
Crain's Detroit Bus. (52X)	72.2	84.1	960.3	823.7
Crain's New York Bus. (52X)	38.4	28.1	479.3	422.5
Florida Trend (13X)	64.2	66.5	904.1	989.2
Georgia Trend	40.9	43.6	780.5	659.8
Grand Rapids Bus. Journal	31.3	39.1	547.8	432.6
Hawaii Business	39.3	35.7	556.2	555.6
Houston Bus. Journal (52X)	58.0	59.0	853.0	973.0
Indianapolis Bus. Journal (52X)	137.1	154.7	1,785.4	1,809.6
Los Angeles Bus. Journal(55X)	121.2	54.1	1,001.6	467.0
Manhattan Inc.	61.4	106.8	897.0	811.8
New England Bus. (20X) A.	52.3	77.0	784.5	1,022.0
Pacific Bus. News (52X)	107.2	133.1	1,392.9	1,427.7
Philadelphia Bus. Journal (52X)
Pittsburgh Bus. Times (52X)	149.7	168.7	1,511.0	1,374.0
Providence Business News	74.3	63.0	856.3	341.2
Regardie's/Washington	143.0	137.0	1,768.0	1,530.0
San Diego Bus. Journal (52X)	20.4	39.6	381.1	441.4
San Jose Bus. Journal	81.4	71.5	1,204.9	1,288.1
South Florida Bus. Journal	106.3	146.6	1,229.8	1,363.2
St. Louis Bus. Journal (52X)	152.9	173.9	1,612.3	1,727.3
Texas Business	27.2	45.8	419.1	678.7
Warfields Monthly Baltimore	49.3	52.1	790.1	527.8
Total Group	3,029.5	3,289.3	36,578.6	35,325.6
% change		-7.9%		3.5%
— National Sunday magazines —
Parade (52X)	49.6	42.1	608.4	637.2
USA Weekend (52X)	40.9	36.7	486.4	592.7
Vista Magazine	23.5	16.6	210.3	107.2
Total Group	114.0	95.4	1,305.1	1,337.1
% change		19.5%		-2.4%
— Newspaper Sunday magazines —
Boston Globe	177.2	175.7	2,207.3	2,243.5
Chicago Tribune	139.0	97.6	1,390.8	1,152.0
Cleveland Plain Dealer	73.5	75.0	811.8	719.0
Columbus Dispatch	31.0	35.7	435.5	497.4
Detroit News	59.0	62.0	874.0	950.0
L.A. Times	91.9	81.6	769.1	839.0
Louisville Courier-Journal	41.0	87.0	645.0	758.0
Miami Herald	40.2	44.5	453.3	578.4
New York Times Magazine	269.9	347.7	4,112.3	4,126.6
Philadelphia Inquirer	67.1	70.5	918.5	841.5
Seattle Times	83.0	82.0	825.0	756.0
Toledo Blade Magazine	37.9	39.1	470.4	539.7
Washington Post	106.0	109.6	1,473.8	1,540.7
Total Group	1,216.8	1,308.0	15,386.8	15,541.7
% change		-7.0%		-1.0%
— Weeklies/bi-weeklies —
The Advocate (26X)	149.7	128.0	1,666.3	1,539.3
Army Times Military Group:
Air Force Times (52X)	137.0	172.6	1,984.9	2,156.8
Army Times (52X)	137.1	171.8	1,942.1	2,040.4
Navy Times (52X)	155.5	184.7	2,162.7	2,259.5
The Blood-Horse (52X)	1,409.9	1,474.6	5,101.9	5,613.3
Capper's (26X)	10.4	12.2	298.9	317.9
Commonweal (22X)	4.1	6.0	93.7	82.8
Golf World (43X)	70.5	51.3	1,102.5	917.2
Grit (52X) A.	9.4	11.2	309.9	293.7
National Journal (50X)	38.3	39.0	766.8	677.5
National Review (25X)	47.6	37.2	433.4	373.7
New Republic (48X)	46.3	42.7	504.2	445.7
New York Magazine (50X)	307.3	287.8	3,134.7	3,126.7
New Yorker	350.6	281.5	2,703.2	2,677.7
Newsweek (52X) A.	184.0	272.8	2,564.2	2,531.5
People (52X)	327.3	443.0	3,581.4	3,761.7
Rolling Stone (25X)	170.6	186.2	1,749.4	1,452.8
Sporting News (52X)	35.1	34.5	634.8	612.6
Sports Illustrated (52X) A.	210.7	258.4	2,651.4	2,709.9
Time (52X) A.	166.0	259.8	2,359.8	2,575.0
Travelhost (52X) C.	3,105.0	3,070.0	38,395.0	38,356.0
TV Guide (52X) A.	226.6	242.5	3,626.4	3,566.1
Us Magazine (26X)	71.7	73.9	617.6	583.3
U.S. News & World Report (52X) A.	183.6	143.5	1,708.7	1,665.7
Total Group	7,554.2	7,885.4	80,093.8	80,336.8
% change		-4.2%		-0.3%
— Foreign —
Business Week Int'l (52X)	134.0	162.1	1,646.0	1,616.6
Geomundo:
Argentina	5.0	1.0	47.0	21.0
Central America	10.0	9.0	80.0	56.0
Chile	8.0	8.0	60.0	60.0
Colombia	18.5	20.5	160.5	120.8
Ecuador	9.0	8.0	71.5	51.0
Mexico	16.0	15.7	110.2	126.3
Peru	7.0	5.0	61.0	39.0
Puerto Rico	7.5	5.0	71.0	37.5
U.S.	6.0	4.7	62.0	59.7
Venezuela	28.0	26.0	232.0	173.0
Hombre De Mundo:
Central America	11.0	7.0	80.0	61.3
Chile	8.0	6.0	71.0	60.3
Colombia	36.5	25.2	206.8	187.8
Ecuador	11.3	5.0	72.3	51.3
Mexico	21.0	33.2	145.0	224.5
Peru	5.0	3.0	47.0	34.3
Puerto Rico	13.5	10.0	88.0	54.3
U.S.	8.0	11.7	144.8	122.0
Venezuela	39.5	39.0	252.0	265.3
Ideas Para Su Hogar:
Argentina	6.0	—	33.0	25.2
Central America	—	—	—	—
Chile	—	—	—	1.0
Colombia	23.0	25.2	175.0	169.3
Ecuador	1.0	3.0	25.5	30.0
Mexico	20.8	22.0	140.3	131.0
Peru	4.0	9.5	67.5	45.5
Puerto Rico	—	—	—	0.2
U.S.	2.0	4.0	50.8	51.0
Venezuela	27.0	9.0	169.5	109.5
Mecanica Popular:
Argentina	9.3	6.5	98.8	63.5
Central America	12.3	15.8	112.7	117.7
Chile	9.7	9.5	62.0	61.2
Colombia	33.5	22.5	237.5	194.5
Mexico	32.7	27.5	232.7	174.2
Peru	16.7	18.0	161.8	145.8
Puerto Rico	8.0	11.2	90.8	89.2
U.S.	4.0	4.8	49.5	69.8
Venezuela	26.8	19.7	190.5	156.2
Vanidades Continental:
Argentina	29.0	2.0	204.8	111.5
Central America	35.8	36.3	264.3	256.0
Chile	11.3	9.2	77.8	59.5
Colombia	137.7	122.7	1,019.0	1,077.2
Ecuador	30.7	32.5	226.8	247.5
Mexico	134.2	117.0	1,034.8	1,047.2
Peru	56.0	68.0	307.5	263.5
Puerto Rico	73.0	56.2	475.8	400.7
U.S.	84.0	58.0	619.5	545.0
Venezuela	127.5	102.8	638.0	576.0
Hearst International Publications:
Buenhogar:
Central America	3.0	4.0	18.0	20.0
Chile	2.0	4.0	14.0	21.0
Colombia	61.7	58.7	430.7	436.8
Ecuador	25.0	17.0	130.0	145.0
Mexico	54.8	54.0	434.0	445.3
Peru	34.0	37.5	191.0	158.0
Puerto Rico	17.3	6.5	87.2	105.5
U.S.	29.3	30.3	224.0	244.2
Venezuela	58.2	55.8	372.0	308.2
Cosmopolitan en Espanol:
Central America	14.3	12.3	90.5	72.3
Colombia	45.2	36.3	286.0	240.5
Ecuador	3.0	2.0	26.0	5.0
Mexico	89.5	73.5	593.3	561.0
Peru	2.0	1.0	9.0	3.0
Puerto Rico	47.0	35.2	215.3	155.8
U.S.(Spanish language)	40.7	35.0	297.2	301.7
Venezuela	51.0	48.3	278.8	229.7
Cosmopolitan Foreign Editions:
Australia	92.8	101.4	817.2	876.5
Brazil	50.3	140.0	743.1	913.9
China	87.3	83.3	606.8	583.6
France	109.5	107.7	1,230.1	1,156.0
Germany	147.3	155.8	1,536.8	1,407.7
Great Britain	158.0	133.0	1,404.0	1,415.5
Greece	85.0	61.0	538.0	523.0
Holland	116.0	106.0	890.0	926.0
Italy	63.7	77.5	891.5	824.7
Japan	71.2	58.6	614.2	598.5
South Africa	97.0	126.0	947.0	1,031.0
Good Housekeeping Foreign Editions:
Australia	50.9	76.4	454.4	502.5
Great Britain	162.9	160.0	1,675.4	1,611.5
International Management:
English	42.0	39.0	432.5	520.7
Middle East	11.0	8.2	81.6	134.5
Johnston International:
Alam Attijarat	33.0	41.8	293.9	433.0
Far East Business	—	—	—	—
Modern Africa (6X)	18.2	13.0	82.1	115.7
Latin America Finance (6X)	—	—	113.2	111.1
Newsweek International A.:
Atlantic (52X)	79.0	77.6	991.2	997.1
Latin America (52X)	29.0	23.4	323.2	352.4
Asia (52X)	54.9	54.7	649.6	691.7
Progreso (9X)	10.7	7.4	67.8	90.5
Reader's Digest:
Arabic	13.0	8.5	100.5	86.5
Asian	128.0	183.5	1,822.0	2,408.0
Australian	37.5	67.0	563.3	677.1
Belgian-Flemish	61.0	74.0	644.0	884.1
Belgian-French	40.5	42.5	432.0	520.1
British	47.6	42.9	632.4	579.1
Chinese B.	173.0	143.5	1,162.4	1,250.8
Danish	21.0	19.5	345.3	370.6
Dutch	54.8	48.0	491.6	470.4
Finnish	79.8	46.7	559.3	554.3
French	20.1	10.5	305.4	187.7
German	92.8	62.6	952.9	774.6
Iberian	—	—	3.0	20.5
Indian-English	87.0	78.5	874.5	862.5
Indian-Hindi	8.5	15.0	126.0	127.5
Italian	42.0	55.0	555.8	430.5
Korean	28.5	27.5	411.6	308.3
Latin American:
Argentina	14.0	21.5	151.0	173.0
Brazil	—	—	—	18.0
Central American	5.0	5.0	48.0	80.0
Chile	19.0	15.0	160.0	149.0
Colombia	35.0	42.0	343.0	293.0
Ecuador	3.0	4.0	35.0	71.0
Mexico	89.5	68.7	773.5	712.9
Peru	3.0	5.0	40.0	83.0
Puerto Rico	4.0	5.0	40.0	54.5
U.P.B.	4.0	6.0	38.5	77.0
U.S. Spanish	11.5	8.5	120.5	174.5
Venezuela	3.0	5.0	41.0	72.0
New Zealand	63.3	85.0	516.8	515.5
Norwegian	51.3	57.0	582.0	669.8
Portugal	11.0	10.0	182.6	96.0
South African	60.0	54.5	877.5	932.5
Swedish	9.5	12.5	95.0	156.0
Swiss-French	26.0	20.0	301.5	280.3
Swiss-German	37.0	22.0	423.0	346.0
Time International:
Time-Asia	80.0	65.2	723.5	825.8
Time-Atlantic	103.7	104.0	1,140.8	1,171.0
Time-Canada	155.1	191.8	1,906.6	2,154.9
Time-Latin America	36.7	37.8	403.8	511.8
Visao (52X)	—	240.9	—	1,838.9
Vision/Latin America (24X) A.	30.2	35.2	331.5	348.6
Total Group	5,296.2	5,427.8	48,811.6	51,228.2
% change		-2.4%		-4.7%

NEWSPAPER
3-DIGIT 200
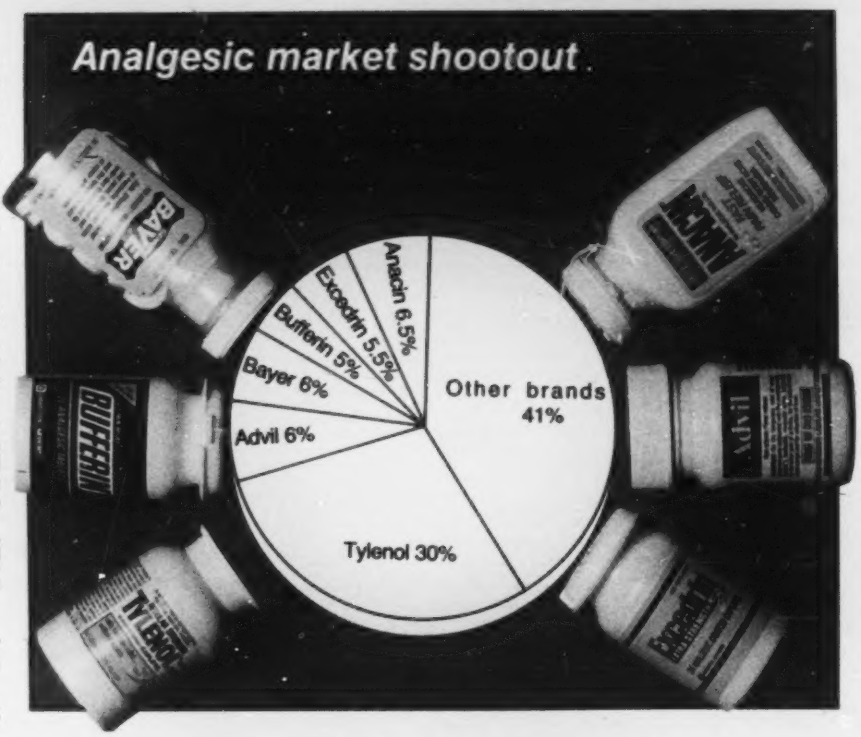
0201090649 AA00 8805 COMP V12 -
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014
2/88 C2710-1

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year
February 1, 1988

Advertising Age®
Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Aspirin cashes in



An Advertising Age roundup

Major aspirin marketers moved quickly last week to leverage the National Institutes of Health's report of a study showing aspirin use may lower the incidence of heart attacks in healthy men.

Industry analysts expect the findings will expand the $2.2 billion analgesic market. Marketers of non-aspirin pain remedies, such as Tylenol-maker Johnson & Johnson, may lose some share but not sales.

Aspirin marketers responded quickly to opportunity's knock.

Bayer aspirin marketer Sterling Drug, which began the week evaluating its proposed merger with Eastman Kodak Co., ended it with a Jan. 29 page ad in The New York Times touting the "Good news for heart health in America."

Bob Kinelski, VP-marketing for Sterling's Glenbrook Laboratories unit, which markets its over-the-counter drugs, said during the week the company "swapped spots from our corporate buys" to give maximum exposure to Bayer commercials.

Those spots, themed "The wonder drug that works wonders," highlight results of an earlier NIH study that showed aspirin can reduce second heart attacks.

Lintas:Worldwide, New York, handles.

New York-based Sterling may consider increasing the frequency of Bayer spots in its rotation during the coming months.

Bufferin marketer Bristol-Myers Co. managed to buy additional network TV time for its aspirin push, via Boclaro, its in-house media unit.

Commercials for SmithKline-Beckman Corp.'s Ecotrin also were prominent on network TV. But a spokesman for the Philadelphia-based company said the NIH report only gave added value to TV buys made long before announcement of the study results.

New aspirin packaging and products will be available as early as this week.

B-M two weeks ago began introducing to retailers nationally an improved Bufferin tablet called Tri-Buffered Bufferin.

The new product, replacing the Bufferin tablet currently on shelves, is expected to get a $15 million advertising campaign beginning March 1.

B-M also is rolling out Bufferin in caplet form, which will be differentiated by bright yellow packaging.

It could not be determined whether the caplets will be part of the Tri-Buffered line.

Also undetermined is whether new advertising will feature Arthur Ashe and Geoff Kimball, heart attack victims who appear in current Bufferin commercials. Those ads, like Bayer's, refer to aspirin's ability to reduce the risk that a heart attack will recur.

Laurence, Charles, Free & Lawson, New York, handles Bufferin.

Both B-M and Sterling plan to expand marketing of "calendar packs," numbered 28-day supplies of aspirin tablets.

That dosage is based on the every-day recommendation to prevent second heart attacks, as approved by the Food & Drug Administration in 1985.

Sterling's Mr. Kinelski said mass-market distribution of the "Bayer Calendar Pak" will start this week. Earlier this year the company began distributing to physicians 3 million samples of the new packaging, designed as starter kits for the 28-day size that will be available at retail.

Mr. Kinelski said that if and when the approval for an every-other-day claim comes, it is possible that the company will market every-other-day calendar packs.

No consumer advertising is planned for the packs, which cannot be shown on TV because of FDA regulations.

There was calm last week at New Brunswick, N.J.-based Johnson & Johnson, whose Tylenol brand of aspirin-substitute acetaminophen accounts for about 32% of the

(Continued on Page 76)

States turn screws

NBC curbing air-fare ads

By JENNIFER LAWRENCE

Nine state attorneys general are trying to use the Big 3 TV networks to enforce recently enacted national guidelines on air-fare advertising.

NBC-TV confirmed Jan. 29 that it will require all air-fare commercials to comply with the National Association of Attorneys General ad guidelines that took effect Jan. 15 (AA, Jan. 11). The effective date of NBC's order is Feb. 1.

At least four airlines will have to revise fare commercials to continue their price campaigns on the network.

All three networks received a letter late last week from the state attorneys general alerting them to disclosure requirements in air-fare broadcast spots.

Also, the networks were told in telephone conversations that some states could sue the broadcaster for knowingly airing a misleading commercial.

NBC immediately began discussions with the four airlines whose spots were not in compliance, said Richard Gitter, NBC VP-broadcast practices, East Coast. Two of the carriers were Fort Worth, Texas-based American Airlines and Houston-based Continental Airlines. He would not reveal the remaining two.

"Round 1 is over, and NAAG won," said James O'Donnell, Continental's VP-marketing services. "But it's not

(Continued on Page 74)

Last Minute News

P&G tests bleach-added Tide

CINCINNATI—Procter & Gamble Co. is testing Tide With Bleach powder detergent in Denver. A $2 million print, sampling and TV campaign, via Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York, breaks in mid-February. Also, P&G is launching nationally Downy fabric softener sheets and SunRinse Fresh Downy liquid. Grey Advertising handles. P&G today breaks the first TV spot for Lemon Fresh Dash detergent. D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles handles.

Compaq heads back to TV

HOUSTON—Compaq Computer Corp., the No. 2 business personal-computer marketer, returns to TV advertising after a two-year absence with a $3 million campaign be-

(Continued on Page 8)

INSIDE:

- Brady reviews Dan Rather. P. 3
- Focus on newspaper meeting. P. 24
- Schmertz's life after Mobil. P. 75
- IBM eyes competition. P. 76
- Coca-Cola's realignment. P. 77

Visa, Kodak big winners in Olympics

Copyright ©1988 by Crain Communications Inc.

By PATRICK McGEEHAN

Visa International and Eastman Kodak Co. are the early favorites for gold medals in Olympics advertising awareness, according to an ADVERTISING AGE poll that shows Olympics sponsorships appear to be paying off.

More than half of those people polled recalled advertising that mentioned a company's status as an Olympics sponsor or supplier, and more than one-third of the respondents said they would be inclined to buy a product because of such a link.

The results surpass previous surveys used to convince potential Olympics sponsors to buy sponsorships. They are part of a monthly nationwide adWatch survey of adult consumers done for AD AGE by SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb.

"I think they're good numbers, especially since they came two months prior to the [Winter] Olympics," said Robert Prazmark, VP at ISL Marketing USA, New York. ISL's

(Continued on Page 74)

JWT zeros in on client service

By GARY LEVIN and KATE FITZGERALD

J. Walter Thompson Co. is trying aggressively to shore up its client-service area in an attempt to stem the tide of defections.

The latest loss, last week's departure of the $5 million Kemper Group property and casualty insurance account from JWT's Chicago office, epitomizes the agency's vicious circle, particularly in that office: As clients leave, key personnel follow, leading to more lost business.

JWT USA President Stephen Bowen Jr., acknowledging the problems in an interview in New York, said: "A storm came through here and blew a few shutters off the house. All of a sudden, with the speed of lightning, we were on our ass."

Those developments, he said, "certainly took away a little bit of the esprit that existed here."

In the Kemper loss, quality of the creative product was not a factor, because new agency Bayer Bess Vanderwarker & Flynn, Chicago, will continue the "Kemper cavalry" theme JWT developed 15 years ago.

Kemper officials, like others who have moved business from JWT, cited inadequate servicing of the account.

Mr. Bowen conceded that promoting the past two Chicago general managers to New York may have destabilized that office. The Chicago office has lost nearly $100 million in business in the past seven months.

"As each guy focused his personal aspirations on New York, they lost attention on building a relationship with clients," he said. "We're trying to not have Chicago, particularly at the top management level, always be a revolving door for New York."

S. Bowen

He added, however, that this does not mean qualified people will not be promoted.

"During the past two years, there have been significant . . . changes" at JWT, said Steve Fine, advertising manager for Long Grove, Ill.-based Kemper's insurance unit. Mr. Fine joined the company 17 years ago, at the same time JWT was hired.

The departure of several key executives is one of the main reasons for the move, Mr. Fine said.

Because of the agency's overall problems, Mr. Bowen said he understands the reluctance of many potential clients to let the agency compete for their business.

"If something is terribly wrong with me physically, I'm not interested in going to a doctor with the same problem," he said.

JWT has taken three major steps to help it recover from the disastrous turn of events.

First, the agency has formed a "business review board," enabling top management to work more closely on the business of its 20 largest clients.

Secondly, it has launched a "consumer behavior group" by restructuring its research and strategic planning functions under New York-based Senior VP Peter Kim (AA, Jan. 18).

Finally, it is close to buying a New York sales-promotion agency to round out its menu of specialized services (AA, Jan. 11), which officials hope to market more aggressively to clients in coming months.

Einson-Freeman, Paramus, N.J., often is mentioned as a JWT acquisition target. The two agencies have worked closely in the past, notably on Burger King Corp. business. Miami-based Burger King's $200 million account was JWT's largest and most publicized loss of 1987.

Einson principals could not be reached for comment on any possi-

(Continued on Page 76)

Highlights

NEWS

12 Wendy's goes with old concept
Everything old is new again in the fast-food market, as chains break new executions of old ideas.

26 Magazines debut in France
Several U.S. magazines make their first forays into France as Playboy calls it quits.

54 Olympics time to spare
Some of ABC-TV's stations are having a tough time selling their Winter Olympics inventory.

63 Legal snags sour celebrity usage
Celebrity endorsers are hot licensing properties, but legalities are making it hard to use them.

64 The bagel rises at Lender's
The company that Americanized the bagel is returning to its roots with Big'n Crusty bagels.

65 Military books seek ads
The Department of Defense wants to allow advertising in at least two of its service magazines.

66 Diaper fight flares up
Kimberly-Clark's Snuggems Ultra re-ignites the disposable-diaper war with Procter & Gamble.

72 Understanding auto motives
It took several years to dispose of modern-day automotive Prohibition, the national 55 mph speed limit. Now let's push it to 150 mph.

73 Mars keeps 'wholesome' theme
Despite its recent agency changes, Mars Inc. will continue positioning its confections as wholesome snack food.

77 Agencies favor Coke shakeup
From now on, as far as Coca-Cola USA's advertising is concerned, Mike Beindorff "is it."

INTERNATIONAL

50 Dentsu: Japan's party animal
As the rest of the world returned to work in early January, leaving the party season behind, seasonal celebrations by Dentsu and other Japanese agencies were in their prime.

AD REVIEW: Fed Ex and Fallon McElligott. Page 78.

SPECIAL REPORT: Youth Marketing looks at college students. Starts after P. 36.

Departments

AdWhirl 71
Barnett 42
Brady 38
Brady's Bunch 66
Classifieds 67
Direct Marketing 60
Editorials 16
For the Record 73
Forum 18
Garfield 42
Global Gallery 34
Letters 20
McKinney 44
MediaWorks 56
People 59
PeopleWorks 58
Photo Review 22
Public Relations Beat 61
Stroock 42
The Next Trend 38
Wainwright 44
Words 44

Vol. 59, No. 5—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908). $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRUNG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970.

Not so Simplesse

FDA sours NutraSweet

By JULIE LIESSE ERICKSON

As the Food & Drug Administration swooped down on NutraSweet Co.'s no-fat, no-cholesterol fat substitute last week, the company's marketing program hit a major roadblock.

Although the company will continue developing its new product, called Simplesse, it now will seek approval from the FDA, a procedure that can take years.

The FDA trained it sights on NutraSweet last week after the company, without notifying the FDA, introduced Simplesse with much fanfare in a news conference Jan. 27 (AA, Jan. 18).

NutraSweet's approach so "outraged" the FDA that it reacted immediately, saying on Jan. 28 that NutraSweet must get approval in one of two ways or risk having a sample "seized" from stores and tested for safety once it hits the market.

NutraSweet then agreed to file a petition with the FDA for generally-recognized-as-safe approval.

In another development, NutraSweet officials may be called before a congressional hearing to explain why Simplesse was not submitted to the FDA for approval.

An aide to Rep. Ted Weiss (D., N.Y.) said the congressman was interested in the issue but had not yet decided

(Continued on Page 76)

BBDO reorganizes Western operation

By CLEVELAND HORTON

BBDO Worldwide is reorganizing its California operation to bolster its flagging creative image in the West.

The agency last week merged its Los Angeles-based creative annex, dubbed BBDO/Slightly Further West, with the local office. Steve Hayden, 40, who headed the annex as exec VP-senior creative director, takes on the additional title of chief creative officer.

BBDO also named Gene Cameron president-ceo of the Los Angeles and San Francisco branches, replacing Donald C. Mitchum, who in January moved to Atlanta to head up BDA/BBDO (AA, Dec. 21).

With the move, Mr. Cameron, 42, ends a 10-year tenure with Chiat/Day, Los Angeles, most recently as exec VP-director of strategic planning.

BBDO created the annex two years ago when Mr. Hayden joined the agency to work on the Apple Computer account but chose not to move to New York.

Cupertino, Calif.-based Apple welcomed the addition of Mr. Hayden, who had worked on the account at C/D, but expressed concern that its account would shift to the California agency. As such, the annex technically was a part of the headquarters office.

BBDO sought and received Apple's consent both on the merging of the agencies and the hiring of Mr. Cameron.

Mr. Cameron's departure is considered a blow to C/D. Agency insiders said he was instrumental in winning the $150 million Nissan Motor Corp. USA account, C/D's largest, and establishing the "Built for the human race" strategy.

The appointment of Mr. Cameron ends an exhaustive search conducted by Eckert Enghauser & Partners, a Newport Beach-based executive search company.

BBDO's choice of Mr. Cameron surprised many in the West Coast ad community who believed C/D had shackled him with "golden handcuffs."

"Even I was surprised we could get him," said Mr. Hayden, who worked with Mr. Cameron during his own stints with C/D.

Mr. Cameron said he could not turn down "the opportunity to work in partnership with Steve."

"We're sorry to see him go," said Bob Wolf, C/D president. "But I find it interesting that a major agency here is now being run by two ex-Chiat/Day people."

The BBDO/West agencies, made up of the Los Angeles and San Francisco offices, have failed to build their billings over the past several years except by acquiring other shops.

Many observers attribute that failure to lack of creative clout. By merging the annex with the agency, and dropping the "/West" designation, BBDO should be able to better exploit Mr. Hayden's extensive creative credits for new-business pitches.#

'HG' puts on new face—again

Conde Nast expands coverage

By PATRICK REILLY

NEW YORK—For the second time in five years, Conde Nast Publications has redesigned and redirected House & Garden, this time shortening its name to HG.

The monthly also will expand its coverage beyond beautiful homes to include beautiful lifestyles of beautiful people.

Although the dramatic revamping of the upscale home magazine has been well-received by many advertisers and agency media directors, some are wary of the changes at the 86-year-old Conde Nast publication. The new look makes its debut in the March issue, which will be available on newsstands Feb. 8.

Paul Zuckerman, senior VP-media planning and operations at DDB Needham Worldwide, said the new HG has a "great look." But he said his client Chanel Inc., which has advertised in the old House & Garden, asked, "Why did they change it again? . . . It's moving more toward Vogue."

Still, Chanel is expected to keep HG in its media buy, he said.

Another media director, who asked not to be identified, said, "Every two years, House & Garden does something new. It doesn't give people a chance to catch up."

In fact, it was 1983 when Conde Nast spent $8 million to follow the lead of Knapp Communications Corp.'s Architectural Digest and give House & Garden a clean, decidedly upscale look. The latest revamp of HG uses a larger, 9-inch-wide format and bold lettering a la Vogue on the cover. HG's rate for a color page will remain at $24,910.

"We want to keep our focus on the home but build on it," said HG Publisher J. Kevin Madden.

But Architectural Digest and HG no longer have the field to themselves. In the past year, Hearst Corp.'s House Beautiful has redesigned its cover to resemble what is now the old House & Garden. And the entire field has been shaken up by the rise of Meredith Corp.'s Metropolitan Home, which targeted an even younger, affluent audience and has grown quickly.

With its ad pages flat and the upscale home magazine field more crowded than ever, HG's revamp was a clear indication that Conde Nast saw the magazine as a weak link in its ad sales package.

"No publisher will spend that kind of money to redesign unless there's an uneasiness with the bottom line," said Bill Barborka, director of advertising at Baker, Knapp & Tubbs, a Chicago-based luxury furniture company. "It's clearly a move to end any similarity HG has with Architectural Digest. It could be a positive change."

Mr. Madden said the new HG will "strengthen the concept" of the Conde Nast Ltd. package, which also includes Conde Nast's Traveler and Gourmet. Last year, HG got 24% of its 1,157 ad pages through the package. HG has a rate base of 500,000, but its 1987 circulation was above that, averaging about 573,000.

Conde Nast appointed former British Vogue Editor Anna Wintour as editor in chief last summer, hoping she would create a formula that might jump-start House & Garden's flat advertising performance in 1987. Although House & Garden's ad revenue rose by about 5% to $23.4 million last year, its ad pages grew only 0.1%. In 1987, Architectural Digest's pages grew by 2% to 1,589 pages, while ad revenue climbed 11.5% to $33.8 million. But no one came close to Metropolitan Home with an 18% increase to 807 pages and a 46.2% jump in ad revenue to $21.4 million.

Mr. Madden said HG is not abandoning its charter as a home furnishing and decorating magazine. Its center remains a catalog of the homes and environs of the affluent, though Ms. Wintour has included more people in their homes.

The biggest changes are in HG's front and back pages, where Ms. Wintour has infused greater coverage of lifestyles, issues and personalities. Each edition will include a single theme and many, but not all, articles in the issue will pertain to it.

The new look already has brought in advertisers from outside the home furnishing and decorating categories. Clothing designers Donna Karan, Anne Klein and Ralph Lauren have added HG to their media schedules, as have British Airways and Givenchy fragrance.

"There are trends and news happening in decorating just as in fashion, but there was no sense of that in the old House & Garden," said the 38-year-old, London-born Ms. Wintour. "Today there has never been greater intense awareness of design in the home."

Ms. Wintour's arrival has been closely watched from within Conde Nast and without. Industry rumors have placed her as a successor to Grace Mirabella as editor of Vogue, but Ms. Wintour denies it.#

How home magazines stack up

HG
DECORATIVE BETTE MIDLER
THE MODERN ROTHSCHILDS
ROMANCE!
METROPOLITAN HOME
ARCHITECTURE NOW
MILAN

Titles	Ad pages in 1987	% change from 1986	1987 circulation
Home	622	+4.9%	889,929
House Beautiful	868	+1.3	829,913
Metropolitan Home	807	+18.1	717,052
Architectural Digest	1,589	+2.0	632,235
HG (formerly House & Garden)	1,157	0.1	572,544

Sources: Audit Bureau of Circulations, Publishers Information Bureau

WHO HELPED CHIQUITA POUR ON THE JUICE?

The same techniques that helped develop Chiquita's new Orange Banana Juice, created the Magic Mushroom for Airwick, Bacardi's Frozen Mixers, Glass Works for S.O.S, Sunkist Vitamin C Tablets, put Baking Soda in more than 30 million refrigerators…can spell success for you.

Why is 70% of all our business repeat business?

- Our success rate;
- We're sensitive to your needs.

New Chiquita
Orange Banana Juice

CHIQUITA ORANGE BANANA JUICE: Growing so fast it will soon make Chiquita the top-banana in the refrigerator case.

We offer three different new product or re-staging programs. One is ideal for your needs.

To find out more, call or write Sonia Kallen (914) 631-8800. 55 South Broadway, Tarrytown, NY 10591.

Schoenfeld, Chapman & Pearl Inc.
New Products/Brand Leveraging Consultants

Connally pitches for S&L

By JENNIFER LAWRENCE

HOUSTON—Former Texas Gov. and U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally may be down, but he's not out.

On the heels of his much-ballyhooed auction of personal belongings to help settle last summer's personal bankruptcy filing, Mr. Connally has become a pitchman for University Savings, the state's fourth-largest savings and loan association.

The message in the statewide TV campaign that broke Jan. 31 is to save money—and preferably at University Savings.

Taylor Brown & Barnhill handles the $3 million account.

Mr. Connally, starring in one of three 30-second spots entitled "On the Importance of Saving," was chosen from among a new breed of Texans: former high rollers now facing money woes.

J. Connally

Telling viewers that he and his wife, Nellie, worked hard all their lives to make sure they would be financially secure, Mr. Connally says "things haven't worked out like we planned. . . . There's no better place than Texas to start over and to save a little something. Because you never know what the future may bring."

A supporting print ad starts running today.

Agency executives believe Mr. Connally brings a larger-than-life quality to the campaign, which also includes former Houston Oilers coach Bum Phillips and local businesswoman Ninfa Laurenzo. They also have overcome financial adversity, though not as publicly as Mr. Connally.

Mr. Connally and the others were compensated for their role but the fees remain a closely guarded secret.

Agency President Don Brown said Mr. Connally's reimbursement was "above scale."

Mr. Connally cut an appealing ad image even before his financial hardships surfaced. In 1985, he was tapped as a "Man of Distinction" for C.F. Hathaway in a continuation of the famous campaign started 37 years ago for the shirt company by David Ogilvy (and handled now by Eric Mower & Associates, New York).#

Celebrities
For Advertising
WE DO MORE THAN SAVE YOU MONEY

- Creative strategy for the best deal possible
- Detailed follow through to completion
- Merchandising the celebrity to excite dealer groups
- Ballpark costs within 24 hrs saves time and effort
- Confidential negotiations on your behalf
- Creative input for the most credible celebrity
- Full disclosure contracts

THE REIBOLD COMPANY, INC.
3410 N. Knoll Drive Los Angeles CA 90068
(213) 462-3209 Telex 69 16 99 HBS USA
(Celebrity Packagers For Advertising Since 1969)

Market leaders also dominate in recall of ads

By SCOTT HUME

AdWatch survey of advertising awareness Top 10 for 1987

Each month, 1,000 people were asked: Of all the advertising you have seen, heard or read in the past 30 days, which advertisement first comes to mind? Below are the top 10 advertisers in cumulative first-mention responses for the year. Source: SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb.

Rank	Advertiser	Agency
1	Coca-Cola	McCann-Erickson
2	Pepsi-Cola	BBDO Worldwide
3	McDonald's	Leo Burnett USA
4	California raisins	Foote, Cone & Belding
5	Budweiser/Bud Light	D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles/DDB Needham
6	Miller/Miller Lite	J. Walter Thompson USA/Backer Spielvogel Bates
7	Ford	J. Walter Thompson USA
8	Chevrolet	Lintas:Campbell-Ewald
9	Chrysler	Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt
10	Bartles & Jaymes	Hal Riney & Partners

Leadership, it appears, has its privileges, too.

The 10 advertisers with the highest cumulative unaided recall for their advertising in 1987 also were the market-share leaders in their product categories.

One possible exception was E&J Gallo Winery's Bartles & Jaymes wine cooler. It lost its No. 1 ranking in 1987 to Jos. A. Seagram & Sons' Seagram's wine cooler and, interestingly, saw its share of unaided first mentions decline, too.

Bartles & Jaymes also has become the exception to another interesting similarity among the 10 best-recalled advertisers of last year: None changed their ad agencies during the year or significantly changed their advertising messages.

With Hal Riney & Partners' resignation of the Gallo account, B&J may get a new agency and a new look for its advertising.

Calling the California Raisin Advisory Board the leading marketer in its category may be fudging a bit since it represents more than one commercial brand. But the leading brands are from California.

By capturing the No. 4 spot among the year's best-recalled advertisers, the dancing raisins also struck a blow for creativity over media weight.

Two big ad spenders, the top soft-drink marketers, did finish in first and second place for the year.

Coca-Cola Co., which (in its Coca-Cola Classic formulation) finished 1987 with a 19.8% market share, according to Beverage Digest, was the year's best-recalled advertiser.

Close behind in both unaided recall and market share (18.8%) was Pepsi-Cola Co.'s Pepsi.

Holding the No. 3 spot in advertising recall was McDonald's Corp., the perennial leader in fast-food sales with an approximately 20% share of that market.

Budweiser, the top-selling beer, ranked (in tandem with Bud Light, the seventh-ranked beer) as the best-recalled beer advertising. The No. 6-ranked advertiser, behind the two Anheuser-Busch brands, were Miller Brewing Co.'s brands Miller Lite (the second-best-selling brand) and Miller High Life (the third-ranking seller).

Next up among the best-recalled advertisers are the top three automakers. No. 2 carmaker Ford Motor Co.'s advertising had better cumulative recall than did General Motors Corp.'s. But GM still outsells Ford on dealers' lots.

The ninth-best-recalled advertiser is the third-best-selling automaker, Chrysler Corp.

And hanging on to the last slot among the 10 best-recalled advertisers for the year are those lovable porch-sitters Frank Bartles and Ed Jaymes.

AdWatch is a joint project of ADVERTISING AGE and SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb. Advertising awareness is measured by asking a nationally projectable sample to name the advertising that first comes to mind from all seen, heard or read in the previous 30 days.#

For more information or data, contact SRI Research Center, 301 S. 68th St., Lincoln, Neb. 68506. Phone: (402) 489-0351.

FLAKEYS
FLAKEYS
FLAKEYS

Do you really know who you're selling to?

Get closer to your best customers with May & Speh Direct.
Wouldn't it be great to get acquainted with everyone who buys your brand--name by name, product by product? It may not be easy to implement. But in this "specialty market" era, it's certainly worth it. Especially when you have the marketing support of May & Speh Direct.

Working closely with you, we'll develop a complete, confidential data base system that captures customer information from co-op and solo mailings, telemarketing, mail-in offers and the like. Then we'll enrich it with individual purchasing histories, demographic and census information. And show you how to analyze, segment and refine this valuable data. Enabling you to create profiles identifying your best customers.

So you can instantly access individual buyer information to support your media strategies. Cross-sell products within a line to your best buyers. Obtain detailed geographic data to enhance your sampling efforts. And much more.

We'll also show you other ways to utilize our comprehensive new facility, staffed by over 200 specialists with decades of computing and marketing expertise. For details, call our Marketing Department at 312/964-1501. And get closer to your best customers.

Helping smart marketers market smarter.

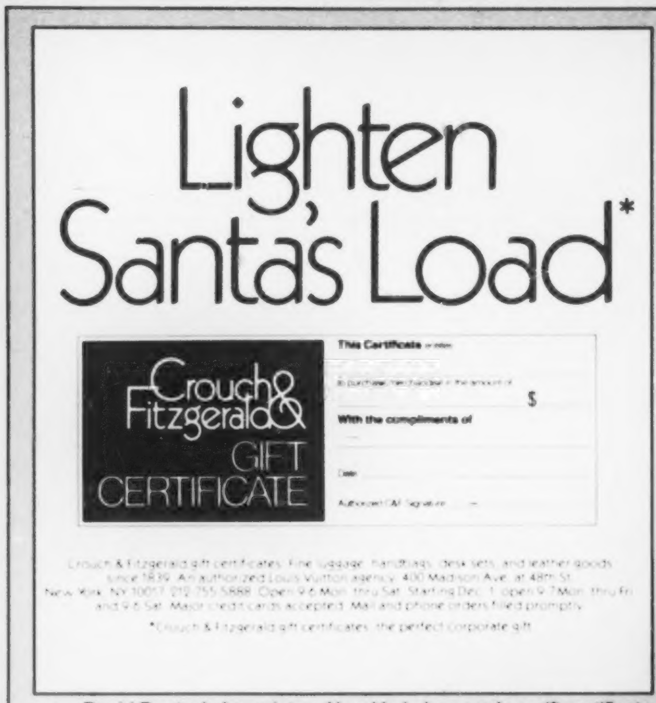
May & Speh DIRECT
Direct Marketing Information Services, A Division of May & Speh, Inc.
1501 Opus Place
Downers Grove, Illinois 60515-5713

© 1988, May & Speh Direct

CORRECTIONS & CLARIFICATIONS

- The free air miles given away in First Brands' joint promotion with Trans World Airways are promotional miles and are neither associated with TWA's frequent-flier program nor any other TWA flier program as reported (AA, Jan. 18, P. 8).
- An article about the New York City newspaper market incorrectly stated that the New York Daily News "is expected to lose from $10 million to $12 million this year on revenue of about $450 million." The reference should have been to 1987 (AA, Jan. 25, P. S-8). In 1988, Publisher James Hoge stated, the News "expects to be profitable."
- Lear's will carry ads from Christian Dior cosmetics, not frangrances, and Princess Marcella Borghese will not run ads in the first issue of the magazine, as was reported (AA, Jan. 18, P. 4).#

BEST OF PRESS



Lighten Santa's Load*
Crouch & Fitzgerald GIFT CERTIFICATE
This Certificate entitles to purchase merchandise in the amount of
$
With the compliments of Date
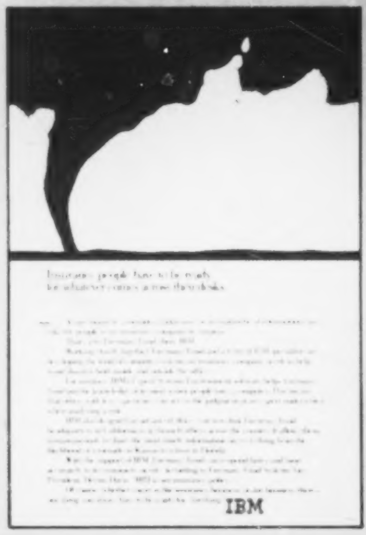
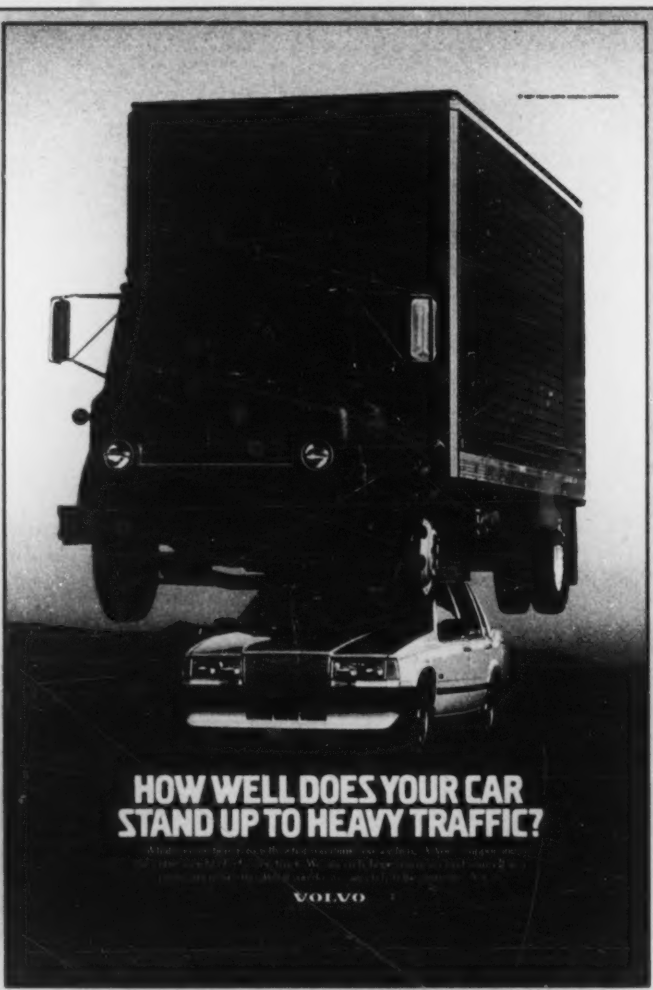
Authorized C&F Signature
Crouch & Fitzgerald gift certificates. Fine luggage, handbags, desk sets, and leather goods since 1839. An authorized Louis Vuitton agency. 400 Madison Ave. at 48th St. New York, NY 10017. 212-755-5888. Open 9-6 Mon. thru Sat. Starting Dec. 1, open 9-7 Mon. thru Fri. and 9-6 Sat. Major credit cards accepted. Mail and phone orders filled promptly.
*Crouch & Fitzgerald gift certificates, the perfect corporate gift.

David Deutsch Associates, New York, has made a gift certificate appealing by making it simple. In a special appeal to corporate gift givers, the agency could have packed the ad with selections from Crouch & Fitzgerald's finest, but at Christmas that just adds to clutter. Creative director: Donny Deutsch; art director: Rocco Campanelli; copywriters: Rocco Campanelli, Tony Gomes.



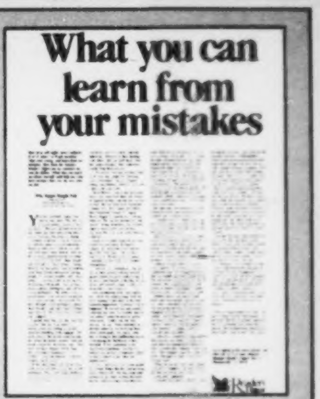
Lord, Geller, Federico, Einstein, New York, shows that maybe the best way to sell IBM computers to businesses is by not showing modules and keyboards. Let 'em look at a real disaster and tell them how IBM helps, in this case, an insurance company deal with it. Creative director: Barry Hoffman; assistant creative directors: Tony Remeo, Ira Silver; art director: Nancy Bink; copywriter: Rhonda Ann Peck; photography: E.R. Degginger/Earth Scenes.



HOW WELL DOES YOUR CAR STAND UP TO HEAVY TRAFFIC?
VOLVO

When you gotta sell cars, you gotta have a gimmick. At least here, Scali, McCabe, Sloves, New York, is playing up Volvo's safety features and that's not a dumb gimmick. Besides, preposterous as it might look, how many U.S. carmakers would be willing to try the same thing? Creative director: Sam Scali; art director: Earl Cavanah; copywriter: Larry Cadman; photographer: Henry Sandbank.

Best of Press selections are made by a committee of three: Hank Simons, VP-creative director, Newspaper Advertising Bureau, New York; James Dunaway, VP-information, Newspaper Advertising Bureau; and Patrick Reilly, Advertising Age newspaper industry reporter. National System Inc., St. Louis, provides tearsheets to the Newspaper Advertising Bureau for much of this work. Agencies, clients and newspapers are invited to submit ads for review. Submissions should be sent to Mr. Reilly in AA's New York bureau.



What you can learn from your mistakes

Part of a series from Reader's Digest, editors at the world's favorite condenser are daring you to read the ad, so the reader does—or at least part of it. The magazine is sure the topic has broad appeal, so who needs art? Let the words do the talking. It gives the reader a taste of what's inside. A collaborative effort between Gregory & Clyburne, Stamford, Conn., and Reader's Digest's editorial department.

The pen is mightier than the sword.
PARKER

It can be difficult to make real-life (much less historic) events work for an advertiser. But Lowe Howard-Spink & Bell, London, has done it well here by not belittling the event for the sake of the product. If any thing, the headline is a message worth remembering. Art director: Ken Hoggins; copywriter: Chris O'Shea.

Newspapers ride Hollywood's boom

New York—Box office sales boomed to a record $4.25 billion for Hollywood movie makers last year, and the bounty spilled over into newspaper ad coffers.

In November, in the newspapers measured for the Advertising Age Flash Report, the amusements advertising category posted an $8.4 million gain over November 1986. That was the biggest year-to-year dollar gain of any of the 16 categories tracked for the November report by Media Records here.

With strong increases also reported in newspaper advertising for new cars, general merchandise stores and food stores, the 16-category spending total for November climbed a solid 8.5% to $433.4 million. Ten of the 16 categories, including the department stores segment, finished ahead of November 1986 spending levels.

Newspaper ad spending for amusements, after an up-and-down first half, has been surging far ahead of year-ago levels since the summer. November's $8.4 million advance over last year followed an equally strong October, when spending was $8.1 million ahead of 1986 levels.

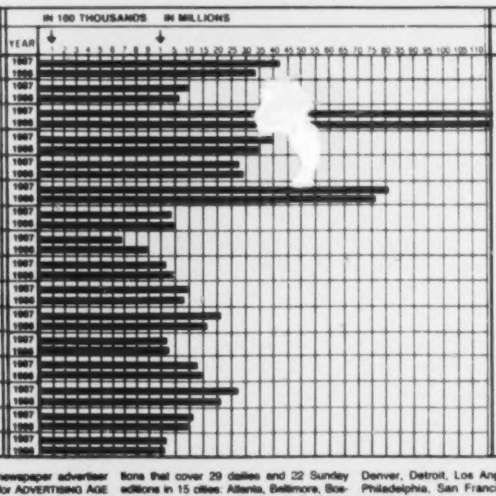
November's overall 8.5% gain was a welcome rebound from an otherwise disappointing October, when, despite strong amusement category spending, the 16-category total bettered October 1986 by only 2%.

A key to November was revived spending in the new-car category, up $6.9 million from the 1986 period after weak year-to-year gains in October. New-car advertising ran solidly ahead of 1986 through most of last year.

Department stores, wallowing far behind 1986 spending levels, also showed some strength as they mounted their holiday ad blitzes. Spending in the category, the largest measured for the Flash Report, was up $3.5 million over November 1986.

Among decliners, cigarette advertising, off $299,000 in November, once again slipped behind 1986 levels after two months of gains.#

FLASH REPORT: Newspaper advertising investment for November



CATEGORIES	DOLLARS 1987	DOLLARS 1986	CHANGE ACTUAL $ G OR L	CHANGE % G OR L
Amusements	$42,048,180	$33,645,866	+8,402,314	+25.0
Computer stores & supplies	9,187,618	6,786,606	+2,401,012	+35.4
Department stores	139,829,891	136,371,639	+3,458,252	+2.5
Food stores	39,191,204	34,017,026	+5,174,178	+15.2
Radio, TV, phonographs, records	27,362,167	29,296,842	-1,934,675	-6.6
General merchandise stores	81,913,727	76,468,849	+5,444,878	+7.1
Alcoholic beverages	3,009,317	3,350,701	-341,384	-10.2
Cameras, photo supplies & services	661,393	899,919	-238,526	-26.5
Computers, equipment & services	2,445,450	4,197,820	-1,752,370	41.7
Public service utilities & communications	9,707,455	7,241,800	+2,465,655	+34.0
Publishing & media	20,321,498	16,865,195	+3,456,303	+20.5
Cigarettes	3,166,582	3,465,207	-298,625	-8.6
Airlines	13,167,996	14,983,205	-1,815,209	-12.1
Passenger cars-new	27,521,961	20,636,865	+6,885,096	+33.4
Banks & trust companies	11,290,152	9,037,159	+2,252,993	+24.9
Stock, bond & investment houses	2,535,984	2,277,858	+257,806	+11.3

This Flash Report of newspaper advertiser investments, compiled for ADVERTISING AGE by Media Records, is derived from tabulations that cover 29 dailies and 22 Sunday editions in 15 cities: Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Washington and Youngstown.

Source: Media Records Inc.

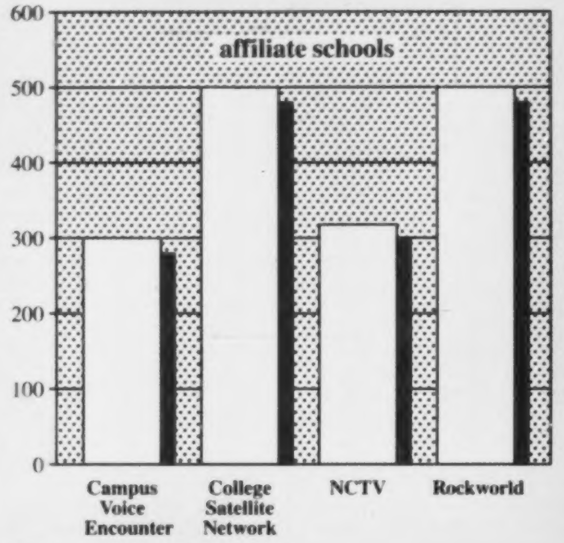
Data bank — Youth Marketing

College magazines' coverage and circulation

Magazine	Number of schools	Copies distributed
Business Week Careers	2,400	600,000
Campus USA	90	606,000
Campus Voice Magazine	415	1,200,000
Careers & The College Grad	27	22,000
Careers & The Handicapped	1,400	10,500
Careers & the MBA	18	15,000
College Entertainment Guide	1,200	1,250,000
College Musician	1,008	100,000
College Opportunity Guide	35	100,000
College Woman	1,510	650,000
Directions	26	220,000
Directory of Classes	100	1,000,000
Engineering Horizons	58	22,000
Equal Opportunity	1,400	15,000
Graduating Engineer	312	83,000
Minority Engineer	296	16,000
Moving Up	1,518	500,000
New Accountant	423	54,667
New Route	207	241,588
Newsweek On Campus	224	1,300,000
Panache	200	569,000
Plus	200	1,100,000
Student Life	600	1,200,000
Term Planner	460	1,500,000
The Black Collegian	1,200	91,450
The Collegiate Career Woman	1,400	10,500
The Computer & Electronics Graduate	311	18,000
The Woman Engineer	290	16,000
Time, Campus Edition	861	550,000
U., The National College Newspaper	218	1,400,000
University Directories	73	890,500
31 magazine average	600	504,877

Source: College Marketing Annual; Publishers' Reports

Campus-directed electronic media



Source: ADVERTISING AGE, College Marketing Annual

What college students own

65.5%	Stereos
63.4	Cassette-playing portable radios
59.7	Bicycles
55.4	Cars
51.9	Car stereos
41.3	Electric portable typewriters
40.6	Color TVs
36.1	35mm cameras
16.5	Computers
16.5	VCRs
2.4	Video cameras

Source: The College Stores Research & Educational Foundation; Student Watch '86.

College students' values

Percent surveyed wanted to:	1985	1967
Be very well off financially	70%	43%
Help others	63	69
Develop a meaningful philosophy of life	43	82
Have administrative responsibility	43	22
Keep up with political affairs	38	58
Become an expert in finance and commerce	26	13
Clean up environment	20	49

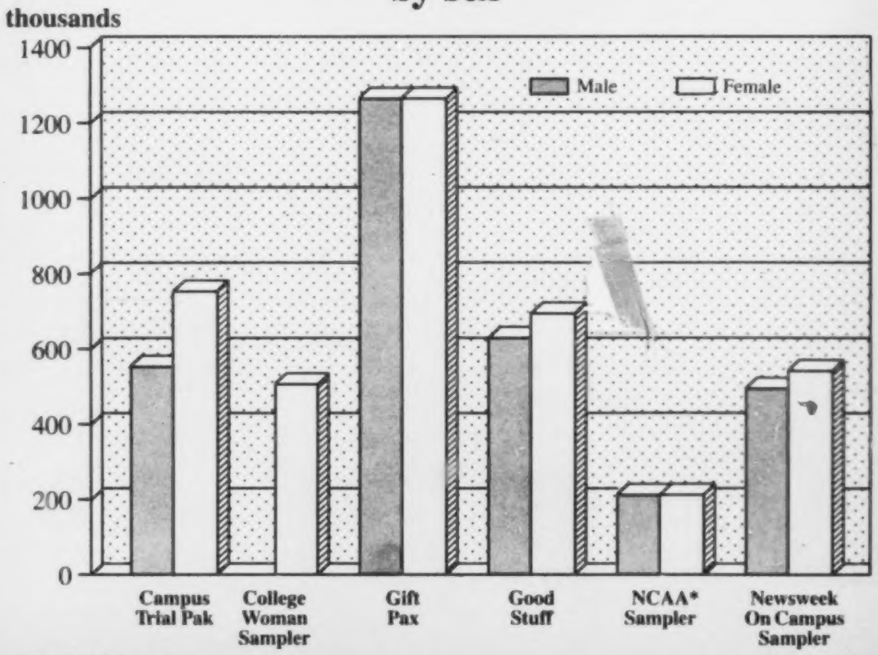
Source: American Demographic Institute, Number News, 1987

Financial services usage among college students

85.5%	Have savings accounts
61.9	Carry car insurance
55.7	Use credit cards
43.4	Carry health insurance
41.0	Have student loans
28.3	Carry life insurance
21.8	Have savings certificates
21.2	Use travelers' checks
15.0	Carry homeowner's insurance
14.4	Have car loans
13.0	Have money market accounts
6.5	Have brokerage accounts

Source: The College Stores Research & Educational Foundation, Student Watch '86.

Cooperative sampling totals by sex



*National Collegiate Athletic Assn.
Source: College Marketing Annual

Newspaper Advertising Inches; November 1987 vs. November 1986 (Standard Advertising Units in the Media Records Conversion System)

AKRON, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Beacon Journal (M)	119,019	— —	118,389	— —
Beacon Journal (S)	94,526	— —	107,233	— —
Grand Total	213,545	— —	225,622	— —

NOTE: Beacon Journal changed from evening to morning publication effective July 13, 1987

ALLENTOWN, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Call (M)	176,905	— —	180,481	— —
Call (S)	128,251	— —	129,727	— —
Grand Total	305,156	— —	310,208	— —

NOTE: Part run figures not available

ASBURY PARK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Press (E)	202,032	31,914	203,203	24,382
Press (S)	221,765	24,153	208,387	22,658
Grand Total	423,797	56,067	411,590	47,040

ATLANTA, GA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Constitution (M)	162,911	86,756	152,361	74,296
Journal (E)	194,349	108,111	183,374	92,198
Journal & Constitution (S)	134,414	136,517	155,334	124,519
Journal & Constitution (Sat)	45,481	— —	55,041	— —
Grand Total	537,155	331,384	546,110	291,013

NOTE: Constitution Morning and Journal Evening published five days a week only

BALTIMORE, MD

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Sun (M)	169,078	19,046	161,624	13,786
Sun (E)	120,665	12,880	102,325	9,751
Sun (S)	198,931	71,844	211,455	68,903
Grand Total	488,674	103,759	475,404	92,440

BERGEN COUNTY, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Record (E)	176,703	38,471	179,124	25,162
Record (S)	222,536	80,083	209,957	59,015
Grand Total	399,239	118,554	389,081	84,177

BOSTON, MA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Herald (M)	93,040	— —	106,163	3,112
Herald (S)	34,324	73,607	32,641	59,252
Globe (M)	157,208	23,477	160,810	26,302
Globe (S)	252,016	60,728	244,134	57,410
Grand Total	536,588	157,812	543,748	146,076

BUFFALO, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (AD)	119,576	34,325	129,755	33,407
News (S)	64,863	81,065	100,966	34,867
Grand Total	184,439	115,390	230,721	68,274

CAMDEN, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Courier-Post (E)	140,274	21,436	145,316	19,299
Courier-Post (S)	104,695	35,949	84,106	28,629
Grand Total	244,969	57,385	229,422	47,928

CHARLOTTE, NC

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Observer (M)	143,049	— —	149,945	— —
Observer (S)	94,816	— —	103,210	— —
Grand Total	237,865	— —	253,155	— —

NOTE: Part run figures not available

CHICAGO, IL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
*Tribune (M)	148,435	276,435	145,123	288,695
*Tribune (S)	161,792	103,443	136,957	111,159
Sun-Times (M)	151,633	94,461	143,702	99,989
Sun-Times (S)	86,548	74,359	85,643	61,632
Grand Total	548,408	548,698	511,425	561,475

NOTE: Tribune figures supplied by publisher to Media Records. 1987 figures represent advertising for 10/26/87–11/22/87

CINCINNATI, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Enquirer (M)	184,917	10,097	195,364	17,869
Enquirer (S)	189,590	14,720	196,537	15,547
Post (E)	98,889	26,036	110,763	33,792
Grand Total	473,396	50,853	502,664	67,208

CLEVELAND, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Plain Dealer (M)	163,527	34,200	164,556	34,313
Plain Dealer (S)	151,907	19,635	157,570	18,852
Grand Total	315,434	53,835	322,126	53,165

DALLAS, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (M)	300,472	15,983	314,698	12,613
News (S)	212,656	26,805	201,103	26,640
Times-Herald (AD)	217,227	26,466	242,830	30,518
Times-Herald (S)	147,920	48,012	158,117	29,920
Grand Total	878,275	117,266	916,748	99,691

DENVER, CO

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Rocky Mt. News (M)	266,615	43,669	297,633	4,445
Rocky Mt. News (S)	99,759	39,500	136,318	584
Post (M)	170,636	64,247	207,910	19,705
Post (S)	115,013	54,476	162,383	1,643
Grand Total	612,023	201,892	804,244	26,357

DETROIT, MI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Free Press (M)	107,880	90,094	106,076	64,899
Free Press (S)	67,734	76,402	64,693	77,109
News (AD)	169,396	69,731	158,448	62,641
News (S)	129,552	64,236	126,256	68,535
Grand Total	474,562	300,463	455,473	272,984

ESCONDIDO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times-Advocate (E)	110,532	2,007	115,920	5,444
Times-Advocate (S)	72,559	— —	62,661	— —
Grand Total	183,091	2,007	178,581	5,444

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News & Sun-Sentinel (S)	142,663	— —	161,954	— —
Sun-Sentinel (M)	275,226	— —	312,892	— —
Grand Total	417,889	— —	474,846	— —

NOTE: Part run figures not available. Morning figures include the Saturday Edition

FORT WAYNE, IN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Journal Gazette (M)	100,649	— —	89,962	— —
Journal Gazette (S)	101,321	— —	105,469	— —
News Sentinel (E)	102,420	— —	99,118	— —
Grand Total	304,390	— —	294,549	— —

NOTE: Part run figures not available

GREENWICH/STAMFORD, CT

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Time (E)	82,119	13,801	82,958	2,279
Time (S)	89,326	19,831	95,901	569
Advocate (E)	114,758	22,911	112,063	22,158
Advocate (S)	89,776	18,442	90,068	7,372
Grand Total	375,979	74,985	380,990	32,378

HARTFORD, CT

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Courant (M)	169,836	48,043	170,963	41,156
Courant (S)	122,601	194,108	114,628	199,644
Grand Total	292,437	242,151	285,591	240,800

HONOLULU, HI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Advertiser (M)	124,974	— —	133,225	— —
Star-Bulletin (E)	116,918	— —	127,729	— —
Star-Bulletin & Advertiser (S)	115,039	— —	108,432	— —
Grand Total	356,931	— —	369,386	— —

HOUSTON, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Chronicle (AD)	234,686	47,770	220,883	61,861
Chronicle (S)	160,235	49,605	134,212	69,362
Post (M)	152,539	55,382	153,528	41,708
Post (S)	91,643	53,045	101,977	49,134
Grand Total	639,103	205,802	610,600	222,065

LONG BEACH, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Press Telegram (M)	126,559	56,397	120,219	55,696
Press Telegram (S)	82,700	7,580	88,386	4,287
Grand Total	209,259	63,977	208,605	59,983

LONG ISLAND, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Newsday (E)	103,153	149,532	135,235	130,777
Newsday (S)	104,414	186,484	124,353	173,483
Grand Total	207,567	336,016	259,588	304,260

LOS ANGELES, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times (M)	315,772	323,188	320,039	326,551
Times (S)	219,435	123,219	214,589	130,643
Herald-Examiner (M)	75,840	16,909	71,617	12,011
Herald-Examiner (S)	23,451	10,833	19,870	10,758
Grand Total	634,498	474,149	626,115	479,963

LOS ANGELES/SAN FERNANDO VALLEY, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (M)	202,953	36,877	198,800	53,778
News (S)	111,967	7,776	113,898	3,937
Grand Total	314,920	44,653	312,698	57,715

*LOS ANGELES/TORRANCE, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Breeze (E & S)	264,648	— —	264,655	— —
Grand Total	264,648	— —	264,655	— —

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

*MEMPHIS, TN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Commercial Appeal (M)	152,427	116,323	156,299	137,208
Commercial Appeal (S)	126,889	29,087	137,457	16,566
Grand Total	279,316	145,410	293,756	153,774

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

MIAMI, FL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Herald (M)	168,691	— —	186,446	— —
Herald (S)	130,825	— —	148,177	— —
News (E)	65,239	— —	65,848	— —
Grand Total	364,755	— —	400,471	— —

NOTE: Part run figures not available.

MINNEAPOLIS, MN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Star Tribune (AD)	136,670	48,468	123,068	28,928
Star Tribune (S)	190,681	5,647	181,690	13,035
Star Tribune (Sat)	26,532	— —	30,245	— —
Grand Total	353,883	54,115	335,003	41,963

*NASHVILLE, TN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Banner (E)	128,128	— —	132,681	— —
Tennessean (M)	127,227	— —	133,867	— —
Tennessean (S)	135,768	— —	133,935	— —
Grand Total	391,123	— —	400,483	— —

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

NEW BRUNSWICK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Home News (E)	105,249	1,841	103,049	5,082
Home News (S)	125,508	6,759	105,816	13,294
Grand Total	230,757	8,600	208,865	18,376

NEW YORK, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times (M)	188,956	20,892	182,862	15,384
Times (S)	252,839	189,616	266,262	164,794
News (M)	72,410	97,688	63,762	109,630
News (S)	61,761	134,169	58,133	140,017
Post (AD)	72,361	1,284	61,303	1,238
Grand Total	648,327	443,649	632,322	431,063

NEWARK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Star Ledger (M)	223,303	6,673	223,075	6,896
Star Ledger (S)	284,038	53,820	251,776	48,298
Grand Total	507,341	60,493	474,851	55,194

OAKLAND, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Tribune (M)	[illegible]	103,056	96,008	96,919
Tribune (S)	[illegible]	77,863	49,794	66,744
Grand Total	[illegible]	180,919	145,802	163,663

OCEANSIDE, CA
SAN DIEGO COASTAL NORTH COUNTY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Blade-Tribune (E)	106,828	5,054	112,494	6,548
Blade-Tribune (S)	82,279	— —	63,587	— —
Grand Total	189,107	5,054	176,081	6,548

NOTE: Blade-Tribune Evening published five days a week only

ORANGE COUNTY, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Register (AD)	321,688	114,195	339,706	111,713
Register (S)	149,787	28,144	177,138	7,023
Grand Total	471,475	142,339	516,844	118,736

PHILADELPHIA, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Inquirer (M)	177,450	47,298	179,337	48,242
Inquirer (S)	183,300	88,286	184,800	98,225
News (E)	90,156	3,891	95,957	3,763
Grand Total	450,906	139,475	460,094	150,230

*PHOENIX, AZ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Arizona Republic (M)	232,089	18,844	241,364	12,806
Arizona Republic (S)	141,653	11,232	156,955	— —
Gazette (E)	221,520	19,043	230,457	12,972
Grand Total	595,262	49,119	628,776	25,778

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*PROVIDENCE, RI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Journal (M)	84,469	111,835	102,058	87,839
Journal (S)	137,343	75,781	135,958	64,462
Grand Total	221,812	187,616	238,016	152,301

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

*ST. LOUIS, MO

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Post Dispatch (M)	123,150	40,224	135,001	44,360
Post Dispatch (E)	176,527	680	179,380	883
Grand Total	299,677	40,904	314,381	45,243

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

ST. PAUL, MN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Pioneer Press Dispatch (AD)	113,954	— —	105,431	— —
Pioneer Press Dispatch (S)	147,737	— —	148,894	— —
Grand Total	261,691	— —	254,325	— —

NOTE: Part run figures not available.

SAN ANTONIO, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Express-News (AD)	135,119	48,931	124,770	46,008
Express-News (S)	98,434	37,680	97,835	55,518
Express-News (Sat)	31,733	— —	40,541	— —
Light (AD)	141,081	21,259	144,144	27,435
Light (S)	108,085	10,016	122,653	15,195
Light (Sat)	25,386	359	33,967	2,234
Grand Total	539,838	118,245	563,910	146,390

NOTE: Express-News All Day and Light All Day published five days a week only.

SAN DIEGO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Union (M)	235,378	47,269	223,307	56,527
Union (S)	165,431	1,145	167,036	— —
Tribune (E)	240,876	46,625	225,933	53,030
Grand Total	641,685	95,039	616,276	109,557

SAN FRANCISCO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Chronicle (M)	131,715	90,141	136,338	95,001
Examiner (E)	126,093	89,161	— —	— —
Examiner & Chronicle (S)	101,188	55,542	98,153	62,127
Grand Total	358,996	234,844	234,491	157,128

NOTE: 1986 Examiner Evening figures not available

SAN JOSE, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Mercury News (AD)	315,757	24,801	302,618	19,929
Mercury News (S)	203,231	— —	201,588	— —
Grand Total	518,988	24,801	504,206	19,929

*STATE COLLEGE, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Centre Times (E)	86,226	4,336	87,079	5,150
Centre Times (S)	59,837	2,373	61,046	1,318
Grand Total	146,063	6,709	148,125	6,468

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

*TOLEDO, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Blade (E)	142,692	— —	136,282	— —
Blade (S)	40,034	— —	38,093	— —
Grand Total	182,726	— —	174,375	— —

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records

WASHINGTON, DC

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Post (M)	310,398	67,324	297,080	59,385
Post (S)	203,218	71,412	188,778	65,260
Grand Total	513,616	138,736	485,858	124,625

WASHINGTON, DC SUBURBAN GROUP

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Montgomery Journal (M)	69,690	775	70,999	248
Fairfax Journal (M)	77,408	1,603	86,086	1,656
Grand Total	147,098	2,378	157,085	1,904

NOTE: Montgomery Journal Morning and Fairfax Journal Morning published five days a week only

WESTCHESTER ROCKLAND, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Reporter Dispatch (E)	110,373	12,400	98,113	16,577
Reporter Dispatch (S)	137,552	34,983	112,778	55,994
Grand Total	247,925	47,383	210,891	72,571

WICHITA, KS

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Eagle-Beacon (M)	122,915	— —	133,308	— —
Eagle-Beacon (S)	100,615	— —	107,208	— —
Grand Total	223,530	— —	240,516	— —

NOTE: Part run figures not available.

Source: Media Records

This data has been provided by Media Records for exclusive publication in Advertising Age and may not be reprinted or published in any form without explicit permission from Media Records. All newspapers represented are subscribers to Media Records. For those newspapers that subscribe to Media Records National Advertising Reporting Service, Total Advertising data shown has been supplied by the publisher to Media Records and included in this compilation. All publisher supplied figures are converted to MRCS/SAU inches by Media Records. These newspapers are indicated with an asterisk (*).

REPORTING METHODOLOGY

Media Records continues to measure in linage but due to the introduction of the SAU 6 column format Media Records has designed and developed a methodology with the approval of our subscribers, the INAME Measurements Committee, The ANPA/NAB Working Committee, The AAAA Newspaper Committee, and other industry groups.

The approved methodology is titled The Media Records Conversion System (MRCS) and is based upon the printed page area of each product of the newspaper and is a five step approach as follows:

1. Measure Printed Page.....
   Width and Depth in Inches.
2. Determine Square Inches of Page....
   Multiply Width by Depth Inches.
3. Determine the Number of SAU Inches of Page.....
   Divide the Square Inches by 2.0625 (SAU Inches).
4. Measure the Total Lines of the Page.....
   Multiply Column Depth Agate Lines by the Number of Columns on the Page.
5. Determine the Factor for Converting Measured Lines to Reported SAU Inches.....
   Divide the Total Lines of Page by the Number of MRCS/SAU Inches of the Page.

SAU® is the registered trademark of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Olympics survey

(Continued from Page 1)

Switzerland-based parent company marketed worldwide sponsorships of the 1988 Olympics.

The polling occurred in December; 1,000 adults were asked five questions about Olympics sponsors.

When asked which ads from sponsors first came to mind, 5% of the respondents named Visa, a global sponsor that began its "Pull for the team" campaign last summer. BBDO Worldwide, New York, is Visa's agency for the Olympics.

Another 4% named Kodak and 1% named Kodak batteries. Rochester, N.Y.-based Kodak is the worldwide sponsor of the Olympics in the film, photo-finishing, battery and non-35mm camera categories. J. Walter Thompson USA, New York, handles.

The results are particularly significant for San Mateo, Calif.-based Visa, and for Kodak, because those companies paid dearly—about $15 million apiece—for their global sponsorships and because they were not the primary sponsors in their categories the last time around.

For the 1984 Summer Games in Los Angeles, Visa's rival, American Express Co., was the official credit card sponsor. Fuji Photo Film Ltd. had official film status.

Judging by the poll results, Visa's admonition that "this time the Olympics don't take American Express" is being noted.

Jan Soderstrom, Visa's VP-advertising, attributes the company's higher-than-projected volume increase in 1987's third quarter to the cachet of its Olympics sponsorship.

Visa reported its charge volume was up 17% over the third quarter of 1986, well ahead of the 11% increase it had projected.

Other than Visa and Kodak, the only Olympics sponsors named by 1% or more of the respondents were Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta, and Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee.

Coca-Cola is the global soft-drink sponsor; Miller is the sole sponsor of the Olympic Training Center. Both companies have mentioned their sponsorships in ads.

Some confusion about who is and who is not a sponsor was evidenced by the naming of Pepsi-Cola Co. and MasterCard International, neither of which is an official sponsor, by 1% of the respondents.

Other companies named by less than 1% of respondents accounted for 20% of the answers, while 64% did not name a specific company.

Of those polled, 51% said they had read, seen or heard advertising that mentioned a company as an official Olympics sponsor or supplier, though only 36% named a specific company.

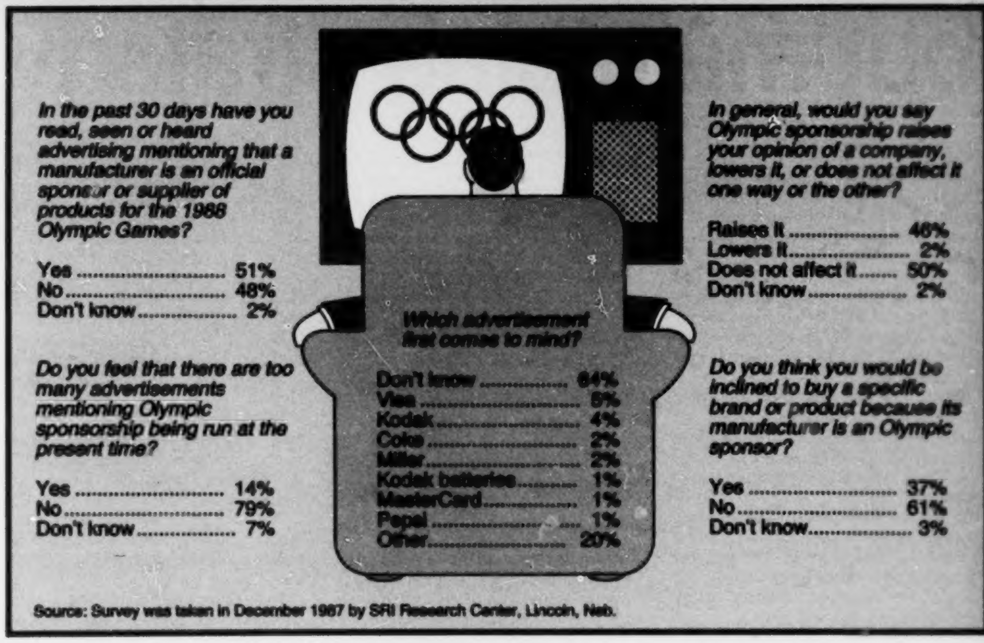
When asked whether they would be inclined to buy a specific brand or product because its maker is an Olympics sponsor, 37% said they would and 61% said they would not.

When ISL commissioned a four-country survey in August 1985, 29% of U.S. respondents said an Olympics sponsorship designation would make them more likely to buy a company's product.

In the adWatch survey, nearly half (46%) of the respondents said a company's Olympics sponsorship raises their opinion of the company, while 50% said sponsorship does not affect their opinion.

Only 32% of U.S. respondents to ISL's survey said an Olympics sponsorship would make them more favorable in their attitude toward a company.#

Olympic advertising awareness



In the past 30 days have you read, seen or heard advertising mentioning that a manufacturer is an official sponsor or supplier of products for the 1988 Olympic Games?

Yes	51%
No	48%
Don't know	2%

Do you feel that there are too many advertisements mentioning Olympic sponsorship being run at the present time?

Yes	14%
No	79%
Don't know	7%

Which advertisement first comes to mind?

Don't know	64%
Visa	5%
Kodak	4%
Coke	2%
Miller	2%
Kodak batteries	1%
MasterCard	1%
Pepsi	1%
Other	20%

In general, would you say Olympic sponsorship raises your opinion of a company, lowers it, or does not affect it one way or the other?

Raises it	46%
Lowers it	2%
Does not affect it	50%
Don't know	2%

Do you think you would be inclined to buy a specific brand or product because its manufacturer is an Olympic sponsor?

Yes	37%
No	61%
Don't know	3%

Source: Survey was taken in December 1987 by SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb.

Advertisers blitz airwaves during Bowl

By PATRICK McGEEHAN

While the Washington Redskins and Denver Broncos battled in Super Bowl XXII, big-budget TV advertisers were involved in a different fight.

At costs as high as $675,000 for 30 seconds of airtime during the big game on ABC-TV Jan. 31, advertisers showed off new campaigns or their newest commercials in ongoing campaigns.

ABC collected $45 million to $50 million in ad revenues by selling out its inventory in the pre and postgame shows and the game itself.

At press time, a dogfight was shaping up between Anheuser-Busch and Stroh Brewery Co. Stroh, Detroit, was planning to unveil a spot featuring its spokesdog, Alex, doing impressions of famous dogs, including A-B's own Spuds MacKenzie. Lowe Marschalk, New York, handles.

St. Louis-based A-B planned to run a new Bud Light spot with Spuds flying off a ski jump, via DDB Needham Worldwide, Chicago.

Other companies that were slated to break new commercials during the game broadcast included Coca-Cola Co., John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., IBM Corp., McDonald's Corp., New York Life Insurance Co. and Pepsi-Cola USA.

New York Life's futuristic :60 was considered one of the most ambitious debuts. The spot, called "Frozen Skier," uses the new theme line "The future is coming. Get the most out of life with New York Life."

"Frozen Skier" and "Astronaut," another new spot, cost a total of $1.5 million to produce. Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton, New York, is New York Life's agency.

Pepsi-Cola USA, Somers, N.Y., planned to air new spots for its Diet Pepsi brand featuring actor Michael Fox and actress Jami Gertz. The company also was expected to launch a campaign for its Slice juice-added soft drinks. BBDO Worldwide, New York, handles both brands.

Coca-Cola, Atlanta, was expected to counter with a new spot for Diet Coke starring spokesman Pierce Brosnan fighting off bad guys on a speeding train. Lintas:New York handles Diet Coke.

John Hancock, Boston, changed plans last week and decided to run a new spot in the second generation of its "Real life, real answers" campaign during the game, along with an existing spot. The company has two 30-second slots during the telecast and originally did not plan to use a new commercial. Hill, Holliday, Connors, Cosmopulos handles.

After weeks of deliberation, McDonald's Corp. marketing executives decided Jan. 29 to use two of its four Super Bowl slots to announce the national rollout of the Cheddar Melt sandwich.

Also, a new 60-second image commercial, entitled "County Champ," ended with the line "McDonald's. Proud partner of the Olympic dream." That was the first national advertising tie to this month's Winter Olympics, of which McDonald's is a commercial sponsor.

Oak Brook, Ill.-based McDonald's used its fourth slot to promote its salads. Burrell and Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, created the spots.#

Brady's analysis

(Continued from Page 3)

drinks were ordered. Trouble was, with all the din, I couldn't hear. There they were up there, Bush with his mouth hanging open, Rather with his tic smile, that has all the warmth of a dentist's chair, and I couldn't hear a damned thing.

No matter. They were probably discussing entitlement programs and wheat subsidies. It wasn't until late that evening I realized what I'd missed.

The next morning, that's all anybody was talking about. No one cared if Mario Cuomo remained in Albany for life or about Gary Hart's latest mess with the Lorimar guy or would Fergie have twins.

Rather had flipped out. Bush's people said CBS played dirty. Bob Dole looked mournful. CBS said Bush's people knew very well what he was getting into. Maybe Rather would be canned. Would Cronkite come back? The Democrats were forgotten. Bush played hard ball with the tennis line. For the first time ever there was someone excited about Bush who wasn't his wife.

Here's what I think, after seeing the reruns:

Bush stonewalled on the Iran-contra-hostage questions. The president long ago told Shultz and the rest of them to tell the truth. Bush continued to do the minuet. Rather, as a reporter should, continued to press. What Rather should have done, and second-guessing comes easy to guys who weren't there, was, after a series of refusals to answer, say to Bush:

"OK, Mr. Vice President, it's painfully clear you don't choose to answer about your role in these events. Now, will you answer this . . . and this . . . and this?"

Instead of being deft and shifting his feet a bit, Dan kept hammering home the one point. That was when he became ineffective. And that was when he created the opening for what may well have been the only truly spontaneous line on Bush's entire resume, the wickedly effective sally about the night the CBS screens went dark.

If Bush had kneed Rather in the groin, it couldn't have been more painful.

After that, it disintegrated into ill-tempered cross-talk and, with time running out, Rather just cut off the vice president.

There is out there in the land an enormous popular hostility toward the press, often stupid and unthinking, but it is undeniable. There are Americans who think the country would be better off if the government could send reporters to jail.

The media haters lapped up what happened on CBS last Monday night. They don't like Rather and Jennings and Koppel and Brokaw because they make a lot of money and they don't toady and genuflect.

"Who elected you bastards?"

I've heard that and so has every journalist who ever sweated a politician. So the switchboards lit up and the affiliates got nervous and Reed Irvine pontificated and Bush's people rubbed their hands and told one another, "We kicked a little ass!" and at his next stop someone in the crowd shouted at Bush, "Get Sam Donaldson next!"

It is easier running against the media then against Dole or Kemp or the Democrats.

What really happened was that the vice president, who may be our next president, refused to answer a reporter's legitimate question and the reporter allowed himself to get cranky. That it happened, could happen, on live television, says something about the system we have, the kind of country we are. I don't think it was a low point. I think it finally got this campaign started.

I think that's what both American politics and live broadcasting are all about: flawed and vibrant and rough and tumble and irresistible. It got us arguing; it got our attention; it erased boredom; it ignited passion. I wouldn't trade those eight imperfect minutes for a year's worth of seamless, slick, flag-waving political taped speeches and commercials.

Was Rather disrespectful to the Office? History tells us what Cactus Jack Garner, a two-term vice president under Roosevelt, once said about the job:

"It's not worth a bucket of warm spit."#

Air fares

(Continued from Page 1)

over until the fat lady sings."

Continental, intending to comply with the guidelines, will shift some broadcast dollars into radio and print in response to NBC's willingness to uphold the NAAG standards, Mr. O'Donnell said. Two price spots will be revised to comply with the ad standards. N W Ayer, Houston and New York, handles.

It was unclear at press time how other carriers would modify their media plans in light of NBC's agreement with the NAAG over what constitutes deceptive fare advertising.

At ABC, Harvey Dzodin, VP-commercial clearance, said the NAAG guidelines are "under very serious review." CBS also is reviewing the guidelines and will take a position within two weeks, said Matthew Margo, VP-program practices.

The nine states initiating discussions with the networks include attorneys general from California, Colorado, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New York, Texas and Wisconsin.

Andrea Levine, an assistant New York attorney general, indicated the states took the approach of going to the broadcasters because "networks have an opportunity to see the commercials before the industry puts tremendous resources into production, and they can make format changes before the ad airs."

Disagreement over the guidelines has focused on the definition of misleading fare advertising.

The NAAG believes that in TV spots, fare restrictions should be made orally rather than visually. Airlines have contended that numerous oral disclosures would inhibit creativity.#

In pinch, IBM admits to stiff competition

By CLEVELAND HORTON

IBM Corp. is publicly acknowledging something it has never before mentioned: competition.

The Armonk, N.Y.-based company has always thought the market leader in an industry never should acknowledge the presence of other players. But with the corporate reorganization announced last week, along with the introduction of a new "Big Picture" ad campaign, IBM is straying from its heritage.

The inclusion of the word "competition" in its 16-page ad insert in The Wall Street Journal last week is thought to be a first. Lord, Geller, Federico, Einstein, New York, created the campaign, which promotes the company instead of its products.

Most observers say that, with the changes, Big Blue is attempting to speed its product development cycle rather than overhaul its marketing operations.

The company created six independent business groups, increasing the duties of Edward E. Lucente, exec-VP U.S. marketing and services group, who now is responsible for all IBM products in the U.S. He previously oversaw the information systems group.

That move is a tacit indication that upper management is satisfied and should quell any thought by outsiders of immediate ad agency reassignments.

While IBM may think it shored up its position in the personal-computer market with the Personal System/2 line, it faces tough competition in the minicomputer market from Digital Equipment Corp.

In the mainframe segment, the only market Big Blue continues to dominate, U.S. marketers such as Cray Research and a host of Japanese companies threaten to dislocate IBM.

The company may be trying to address a change in the marketplace whereby computer buyers are becoming increasingly technology-literate.

While Big Blue used to advertise the message of unmatched customer support and service, making IBM a "safe" buy, its personal and mid-range computer customers now want to know more about the future of the technology.

"They're responding to the threat from DEC," said Steve Hayden, exec VP-chief creative officer, BBDO Worldwide, Los Angeles, Apple Computer's agency.

DEC succeeded in gouging IBM's market share in the minicomputer market primarily by offering a full line of compatible computers. IBM still suffers from the inability of its various machines to talk to one another.

DEC's recent marketing affiliation with Apple makes it an even greater threat to Big Blue.

"Corporations of all sizes are looking for better ways to link mainframes, minis and personal computers all into one environment," said Bruce Mowery, Apple director of marketing communications. "Now the largest computer company in the world is segmenting its businesses. I don't know how they'll integrate with each other."#

Gary Levin in New York and Jennifer Lawrence in Dallas contributed to this story.

Aspirin ads

(Continued from Page 1)

analgesic market. A company spokesman said "the study will greatly expand the already existing market for aspirin usage as a heart attack preventative, but [we] do not see how it will reduce our market share."

With the growth of acetaminophen and ibuprofen-based products (such as American Home Products Corp.'s Advil), aspirin's share of the market has fallen to about 45%. Sterling's Bayer holds a 6% share, while B-M's Excedrin has 5.5% and its Bufferin 5%.

One pharmaceutical industry source disputed J&J's claim that it and other acetaminophen and ibuprofen products will not lose market share to aspirin. But he cautioned that that does not mean the sales of those brands will decline.

"This is like a new-product launch," the executive said. "As a percentage of the category, ibuprofen and acetaminophen will have a lower share."

For a headache, consumers will not necessarily make the new connection and "they'll probably continue taking Tylenol," he said. "But the next day, they'll take aspirin to keep their hearts healthy."

Bayer, which accounts for a nearly 66% share of the aspirin category, has registered "double-digit increases" since 1986, said Sterling's Mr. Kinelski. That was when the brand's advertising began using the claim that "studies with people who have had a heart attack or unstable angina show aspirin reduces heart attacks as much as 50%."

Aspirin marketers received approval from the FDA in October 1985 to use that type of claim. Sterling used its claim in print ads until last spring, when it extended the claim with a $16 million network TV effort (AA, June 1).

Ads touting the aspirin's other benefits and its "doctors recommend most" claim will continue, but Mr. Kinelski said "a significant" portion of Bayer's overall budget would be devoted to the heart attack prevention effort.#

This story was written by Scott Hume in Chicago from reports by Judann Dagnoli and Verne Gay in New York and Laurie Freeman in Washington.

Aspirin spots a lucky draw

New York—The flood of aspirin advertising last week was more a case of good luck than last-minute buying by marketers.

Although some marketers did buy some unsold scatter market spots, most of the units were purchased upfront last summer.

Many of the slots were bought during early-evening news programming and ABC-TV's "Nightline," which, as one source put it, "is prime time to the analgesics."

CBS had news time left over to sell because of anticipated ratings shortfalls when the conversion to people meters took place. It held back some time as make-goods for advertisers. But ratings for "The CBS Evening News With Dan Rather" were better than expected during the past five months and the make-good units were put back on the open market. A CBS unit goes for about $75,000, and the network confirmed that some analgesic marketers had bought in.#

Simplesse

(Continued from Page 2)

whether to go ahead with hearings.

Before the FDA interference, the company hoped to have products on the market in 12 to 18 months.

The fat substitute has the potential to be used in a variety of categories, including ice cream, margarine, salad dressings, spreads and yogurt.

Sources suggest NutraSweet sidestepped the FDA and used the media to get the public, food marketers and stockholders excited about the new ingredient. NutraSweet decided it was worth the risk of not notifying the FDA for two reasons, sources said.

First, NutraSweet, a division of Monsanto Co., maintained it did not think the product needed FDA approval because it is made from all-natural milk and egg white proteins.

Second, sources say, NutraSweet wants to market Simplesse quickly because the patent on its aspartame sweetener expires in 1992.

With so much riding on the new product, secrecy and security were intense. Until this month, the only people authorized to know the details about Simplesse were members of the "Beta Group." That team, headed by NutraSweet Co. VP-New Ventures Dave Morley, included executives from FCB/Leber Katz Partners, New York, Simplesse's agency.

"Simplesse was the best-kept secret I've ever seen," said Laurel Cutler, vice chairman and director of marketing planning for FCB/Leber Katz.

The toughest competition for Simplesse may be Procter & Gamble Co., which has applied for FDA approval of its olestra, a no-calorie, no-cholesterol fat substitute (AA, May 11). Unlike Simplesse, olestra is not made from natural ingredients and can be used for baking and frying. Analysts predict olestra may not get FDA approval for another two years.

Simplesse may be a much stiffer competitor to olestra than many industry observers originally thought.

"It appears to be useful in a wider range of products than believed possible," said Jay Freedman, household-products analyst at Kidder, Peabody & Co., New York.#

Steven W. Colford and Laurie Freeman in Washington and Gary Levin in New York contributed to this story.

STOCK REPORT

AGENCY PERFORMANCE

	Close	% change
Foote, Cone & Belding	46⅞	6.5
Grey Advertising	103	0.0
Interpublic Group	29¼	−2.9
Lorimar Telepictures	10	0.0
Mickelberry Corp.	4⅝	−2.6
Ogilvy Group	25½	−1.9
Omnicom Group	18¾	−1.9
Saatchi & Saachi Co.	22⅞	−1.0
WPP Group	15⅞	−3.7

ADVERTISERS PERFORMANCE

Winners	Close	% change
1. J.C. Penney	43	13.1
2. Sterling Drug	88⅝	12.4
3. AMR Corp.	36¾	11.3
4. American Cyanamid	48	10.3
5. Delta Air Lines	43⅛	10.2
Losers
1. Eastman Kodak Co.	43½	−11.4
2. MCA	38⅝	−4.6
3. Johnson & Johnson	78⅝	−1.9
4. Xerox Corp.	54⅛	−1.3
5. American Brands	46⅞	−1.0

MEDIA PERFORMANCE

Winners	Close	% change
1. Knight Ridder	41⅛	10.7
2. Gannett Co.	37	8.8
3. TeleCommunications	24½	7.6
4. LIN Broadcasting	47⅝	7.3
5. Media General	42	7.0
Losers
1. Park Communications	24¾	−3.8
2. Viacom	20¼	−3.5
3. United Cable TV Corp.	26⅞	−2.2
4. Turner Broadcasting	11¾	−2.0
5. Playboy Enterprises	12⅝	−1.0

Source: Lomas Publications. For week ending 1/29/88. Based on AA's top 100 advertisers and media companies.

JWT services

(Continued from Page 2)

ble negotiations with JWT.

The business review unit, supplementing existing creative review and planning boards, consists of Mr. Bowen; JWT USA Chairman Jim Patterson; Vice Chairman Donald Sullivan, the most recent Chicago general manager to move to New York; and, for each meeting, senior management on one of the agency's 20 largest accounts.

JWT Co. Chairman Burt Manning sometimes will join the group, which will meet 40 times a year—every six months with each of its major clients—to discuss all facets of their business.

The agency also has regrouped disciplines variously known as account planning, research and strategic planning into a new entity tentatively called the Consumer Behavior Group. The group seeks to "dissect" purchasing patterns from the buyer's standpoint to improve development of advertising strategy.

"For many years research departments have not been kept up to date," said Mr. Kim, 28, who will serve as executive director of the group along with other duties overseeing JWT's direct-marketing operations. "The role of advertising research has changed from qualitative research [with] focus groups and copy-testing research for new ad campaigns. Now research has become the tool by which consumer insights are developed. . ."

The unit is not a separate profit center; it will be used for existing clients as a way to further JWT's contribution to their business.

"We're not in the research business, but research is an integral part of what we do," Mr. Kim said. He added that many large companies now perform more traditional market research functions internally.#

Kemper loss is unexpected

Chicago—Ostensibly, the $5 million Kemper Group property and casualty insurance account that J. Walter Thompson USA's Chicago office lost last week was not even under review.

Kemper had asked the Chicago offices of Bayer Bess Vanderwarker & Flynn; BBDO, which handles its financial-services unit's $5 million account; and JWT to pitch a proposed new corporate-image account. Bayer Bess' presentation for the corporate assignment worked in JWT's "Cavalry" theme in a way that greatly impressed Kemper management, sources said.

After a short deliberation, Kemper decided to move the insurance account to Bayer Bess from JWT, while it continued to ponder the corporate assignment. Later in the week corporate went to BBDO.

The first corporate advertising, discussing both its insurance and financial-services capabilities, is scheduled to break in June during CBS-TV's coverage of the Kemper Open golf tournament.#

—Kate Fitzgerald

NOTE

ONLY THE FOLLOWING PAGES OF THIS

PUBLICATION HAVE BEEN FILMED

Cov. 1, pgs. 2, S-1, S-2,

S-6, S-7, S-9, S-10, S-12,

S-13, S-15, S-16

2/8/88 C2710-1

*3-DIGIT 200
020190949 AA00 8806 COMP 552
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

NEWSPAPER

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

February 8, 1988

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Last Minute News

Murdoch nears 'Post' sale

New York—Rupert Murdoch is expected to sell the New York Post to real estate developer Peter S. Kalikow, sources say. Mr. Murdoch still is negotiating with at least three others. Sources close to the deal said the daily tabloid and its real estate in lower Manhattan would bring about $40 million. Mr. Murdoch is requiring all potential buyers to commit to keeping the newspaper in business.

Lorillard lights True effort

New York—Lorillard Inc. on Feb. 28 breaks the first effort for its True cigarettes since last summer, when incumbent Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton retained the brand in a $25 million review. The theme is "A taste worth switching to," and ads show smokers making statements about why. Philip Morris USA this month launches a comparative campaign for Merit via Leo Burnett USA, Chicago.

Merrill Lynch instills trust

New York—Merrill Lynch on Feb. 13 breaks its first major advertising since pulling the "Know no boundaries" campaign after the Oct. 19 stock market plunge. The new

(Continued on Page 8)

Big Mac opens in Sears stores

By DAVID SNYDER and PETER D. WALDSTEIN
Crain's Chicago Business

Sears, Roebuck & Co. and McDonald's Corp. are negotiating a deal to locate McDonald's restaurants in Sears stores.

Sources within McDonald's say a final pact between the two companies is near completion.

The number of restaurants that will be opened and the specific Sears outlets have not yet been determined. McDonald's wants to appraise customer traffic flow on a store-by-store basis, a source said.

"They're going to do a deal," said a source with close ties to McDonald's. "It's just about a done deal."

The specifics of the agreement—such as whether McDonald's simply would lease space or give Sears a percentage of sales—could not be determined, nor could the target date for the program's rollout.

Last November, McDonald's opened a prototype outlet under a lease arrangement with a Sears store in Pittsburgh's Ross Park Mall.

The restaurant does not have a separate entrance—a sharp break from McDonald's tradition and key for Chicago-based Sears, since the fast-food outlet serves as a magnet for store traffic.

Oak Brook, Ill.-based McDonald's declined to comment specifically on its plans. But a spokesman said: "We go where our customers are—where they work, shop, live or where they go for entertainment."

"We only have one at this time," said a Sears spokesman, "and we're looking at a few other locations."

The venture would mark a powerful linkup between the world's largest retailer and fast-food chain. It would be the latest development in the burgeoning marketing alliance

(Continued on Page 70)

Cosby goes to bat for Jackson

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

Bill Cosby for
Jesse Jackson

Bill Cosby last week added Democratic presidential contender Jesse Jackson to his list of endorsements.

Bill Cosby, star of TV's top-rated show and endorser extraordinaire, is talking up another "client"—presidential candidate Jesse Jackson.

In 10 and 30-second TV spots that broke last week in Iowa, the man whose "Cosby Show" helped boost NBC to the top urges viewers "to vote for somebody you really want to vote for—vote for Jesse Jackson."

The spots were scheduled to air on broadcast stations through the weekend and perhaps as late as today, when Iowa caucus voters meet to select delegates in the first serious strength test for presidential hopefuls.

Mr. Cosby also is an advertising spokesman for Coca-Cola Co., Eastman Kodak Co. and General Foods Corp.

A GF spokesman said the company had "no problems with" Mr. Cosby's political activism, adding that a product endorser's political activity would have "no effect" on his relationship with GF.

"Celebrities have freedom of speech just like the rest of us," he said.

Kodak expressed no concern with Mr. Cosby's political activity. A spokeswoman said the NBC star's "political views are his own . . . and it is our policy not to comment on political views, even if high-profile."

She said Kodak was "very pleased with Bill Cosby, who's been an excellent spokesperson for the company" and that his Jackson endorsement would have "no bearing" on his role as a Kodak endorser.

Jackson campaign officials declined to say if the Cosby "talking head" commercials will be recycled for future use, particularly in New Hampshire, site of 1988's first primary election Feb. 16.

But a vote-for-Jesse spot starring the popular Mr. Cosby would seem to be worth its weight in

(Continued on Page 72)

Roman takes helm at Ogilvy

Phillips finds 1988 a 'good time' to step aside

By GARY LEVIN

K. Roman

W. Phillips

New York—Kenneth Roman will become chairman-ceo of Ogilvy Group, succeeding William Phillips.

The promotion of Mr. Roman, 57, who retains those same titles at Ogilvy & Mather Worldwide—Ogilvy Group's principal unit—reflects Mr. Phillips' desire to remove himself from operating responsibility and comes at a stable period in the agency group's history.

The change becomes effective at a May 17 board meeting.

Mr. Phillips, 58, for now remains chairman of the company's executive committee, and will continue to oversee its Scali, McCabe, Sloves and Research International units.

He intends to devote more time to personal activities and internal projects, and said he will stay involved with five or six major clients as well as new-business efforts.

"I think it's a good time to [step down] because I'll have a period of time that I can help Ken convert to his new responsibilities before I disappear entirely," Mr. Phillips said, adding that full retirement will come in "not less than a year and not more than three years."

Mr. Roman said he plans no additional executive changes in the wake of his promotion.

He said last year's hiring of Alexander Brody as president of the agency's international division relieved him of some overseas responsibilities to "make that part of the job much easier. I don't think we could have done [this] were he not involved."

Another senior Ogilvy executive said the hiring of Mr. Brody was made in anticipation of Mr. Roman's succeeding Mr. Phillips.

This executive, who asked not to be identified, said he believes Mr. Phillips "definitely" would have retired last year were it not

(Continued on Page 70)

INSIDE:

Diet Pepsi
changes formula. P. 2
P&G may buy food company. P. 4
How to answer
state regulators. P. 16
A gallery of political ads. P. 24
Creatives pan
Super Bowl ads. P. 72

Pepsi revamps diet, caffeine-free colas

By PATRICIA WINTERS

Pepsi-Cola USA is changing Diet Pepsi's formula as well as the name and packaging of its caffeine-free Pepsi Free line.

The moves come as rival Coca-Cola USA continues gaining market share with regular and caffeine-free Diet Coke.

The new Diet Pepsi formula and the caffeine-free line roll out in March, just before the key spring/-summer selling period. The same month, Pepsi breaks its long-publicized Michael Jackson spots for its flagship Pepsi brand.

BBDO Worldwide, New York, handles Pepsi.

Michael Lorelli, Pepsi USA senior VP-marketing, said the company is changing the Diet Pepsi formula because "a product improvement was made available . . . a refinement to the taste."

Somers, N.Y.-based Pepsi plans to announce the change in March, but has no plans to advertise the improved formula separately.

"Diet is a big growth market, and even though Diet Pepsi is doing very well, even with that growth, they want to compete better with Diet Coke," said Jesse Meyers, publisher of Beverage Digest, a Greenwich, Conn., industry newsletter.

The formula change is the brand's third change in the 1980s. Pepsi first switched to 100% NutraSweet and last year changed the packaging, making the can slicker and using a new symbol.

While Diet Pepsi is on the rise—its share increased to 4.8% of the $40 billion soft-drink industry in 1987 from 4.3% a year earlier—Diet Coke grew even faster to 7.7% from 7.1%, Beverage Digest reported.

Separately, Pepsi is dropping Pepsi Free and adding the designa-

(Continued on Page 70)

Highlights

NEWS

4 P&G mulls food options
Procter & Gamble Co. may be in the market to buy a food company.

12 Tobacco giants round up smokers
Tobacco marketers are mobilizing the nation's 60 million smokers to fight public outcry against smoking.

30 Tupperware freshens ad strategy
Tupperware has decided not even an American classic can afford to stay the same forever.

34 Compaq plans '88 ad push
Compaq Computer Corp. plans an aggressive ad push that kicks off during the Winter Olympics.

36 Touch 'o green
Dep Corp. is trying to spritz up the image of Lavoris, one of the nation's oldest mouthwashes.

46 D-Con, Combat in battle
Sterling Drug has been accused of unsubstantiated ad claims for d-Con d-Stroy.

47 POP push is on Grocery-product marketers are rushing into POP as though they just discovered the ad medium.

48 Midwest dailies buff business
Increased interest in business has prompted personnel and product changes in the business sections of three major Midwestern newspapers.

58 Simpson plans all-star cartoon
O.J. Simpson is arranging a daily TV cartoon series starring famous sports figures.

67 FTD peddles to Soviets
The Florists' Transworld Delivery Association has expanded its international service to the U.S.S.R.

INTERNATIONAL

44 McCann tests Hungarian waters
McCann-Erickson Worldwide is concluding negotiations that would make it the first Western advertising agency to hold a majority share of a Hungarian shop.

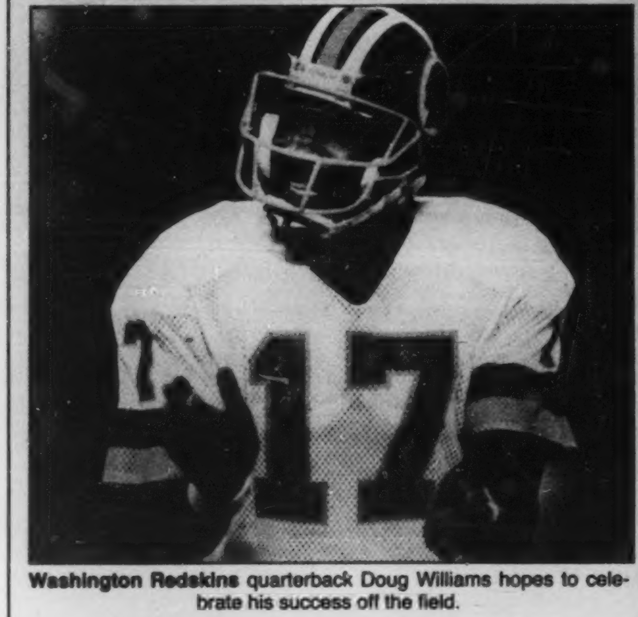
AD REVIEW: Garfield sizes up new Army spots. P. 74.

SPECIAL REPORT: Hispanic marketing, starts after P. 46.

Departments

AdWhirl 67
Brady 38
Brady's Bunch 62
Christopher 40
Classifieds 63
Contract Sports 46
Direct Marketing 30
Editorials 16
For the Record 69
Forum 18
Garfield 40
Letters 20
MediaWorks 52
Parting Shot 40
People 61
PeopleWorks 60
Photo Review 50
The Next Trend 38

Vol. 59, No. 6—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4906). $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970.



Washington Redskins quarterback Doug Williams hopes to celebrate his success off the field.

Underdog

Agents handicap Williams' future

By PATRICK McGEEHAN

Washington Redskins quarterback Doug Williams is facing fourth down and long yardage in his bid to gain off-the-field endorsements.

Sports agents and marketing experts say the most valuable player of Washington's 42-10 Super Bowl romp over the Denver Broncos Jan. 31 is dogged by claims and counterclaims over who is his agent.

Creative directors snub Super Bowl spots, Page 72

Bob Piper, who runs a small marketing company in Washington called Resource Link, spent the last two weeks of January drumming up interest in Mr. Williams. But Eddie Sapir, a criminal court judge in New Orleans and agent for New York Yankees manager Billy Martin, claims to have an exclusive contract with Mr. Williams.

Mr. Sapir said he plans to meet with Mr. Williams this week to discuss numerous offers he has received.

The only deals Mr. Williams has signed are to appear in a TV spot for Walt Disney Co. and to wear Champion shoes during the Super Bowl. The shoes are made by Phoenix Integrated, Port Chester, N.Y.

Advertisers may be hesitant to sign anything but short-term deals with Mr. Williams, said David Fishof, a New York agent who represents New York Giants quarterback Phil Simms.

Mr. Fishof said a big handicap for Mr. Williams is his rivalry with Jay Schroeder for the Redskins' top quarterback slot. But, "I think there's a book there, a real Horatio Alger story."#

O&M to define Microsoft image

By CLEVELAND HORTON

Microsoft Corp. will try to unify the tone of its advertising to create a badly needed brand image with the help of new agency Ogilvy & Mather, Los Angeles.

The leading personal computer software publisher selected O&M last week to handle what is expected to be a $14 million account.

Keye/Donna/Pearlstein, Los Angeles, which handled the account for four years, informed Microsoft in September that it would resign at the end of last year, citing creative frustrations (AA, Sept. 28).

The same frustrations may hamper O&M in developing a single ad voice for the company. Sources say K/D/P often faced problems of pitching corporate themes to individual product managers who differed on creative approaches.

Microsoft still has not streamlined or consolidated the ad-approval hierarchy, but hopes to develop a more consistent "look and feel" for its ads, according to Rob Lebow, director of corporate communications.

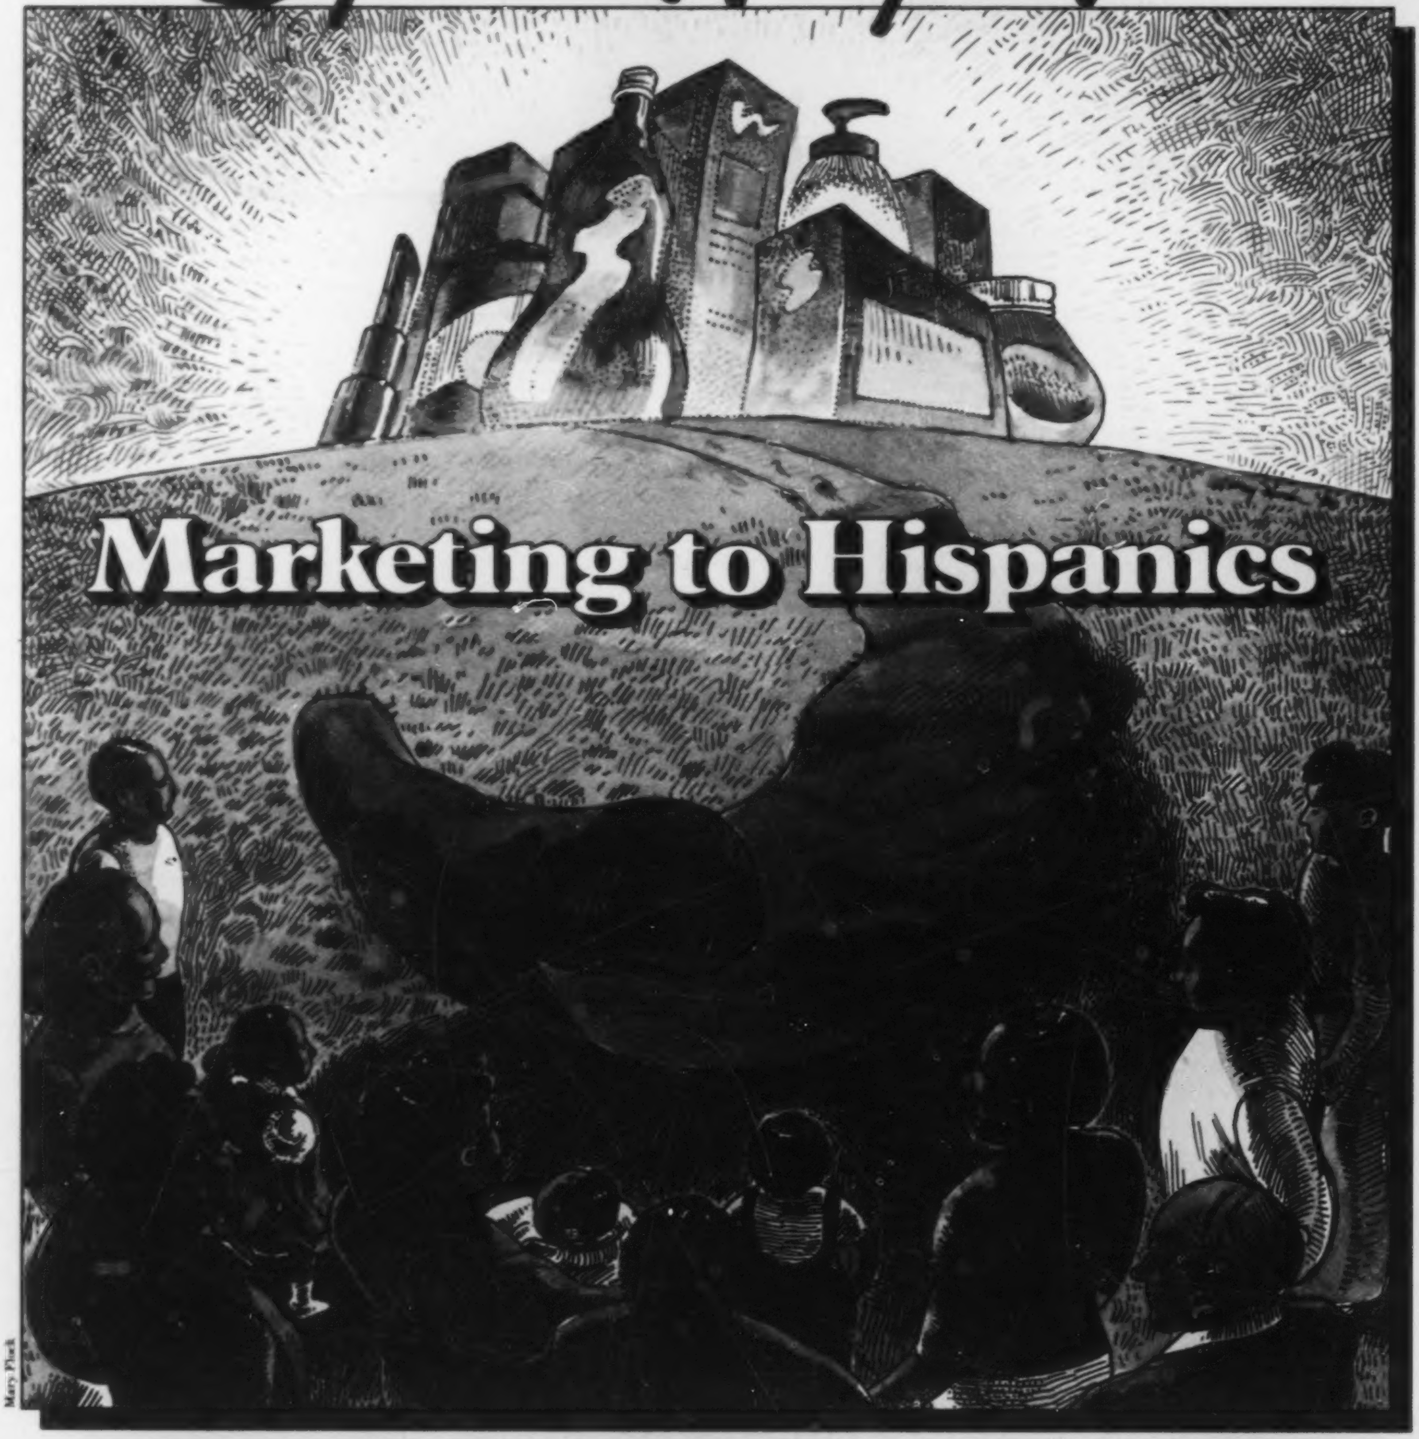
"It was clear that what Microsoft needed at this point was a more formal process to get to the final ad," Mr. Lebow said, noting that the company sells diverse products to various markets.

"The agency has to be able to pull all that diversity into a branded strategy," he said.

Redmond, Wash.-based Microsoft markets PC software, hardware peripherals, books and training services. For its software alone, the company has three separate groups, each with its own product managers who report to the corporate commu-

(Continued on Page 70)

Special Report



Mary Flock

Marketing to Hispanics

Is red carpet treatment plush enough?

By Ed Fitch

Percentages can be misleading.

A quick look at one set indicates that corporations are increasing budgets, rolling out the red carpet to the U.S. hispanic market. According to Hispanic Business, Santa Barbara, Calif., companies spent $490.7 million targeting U.S. hispanics in 1987, a 23.3% increase from 1986.

But further examination shows that if corporate America is laying down a red carpet, it is amazingly thin.

Corporations spent $4.2 million less targeting U.S. hispanics in 1987 than Pillsbury Co.'s total ad budget in 1986, a year in which it was ranked as the No. 16 advertiser.

Philip Morris Cos.' 1986 ad budget was almost $1.4 billion. Philip Morris also happened to be the No. 1 hispanic market advertiser in 1987. Its '87 hispanic budget was $13.3 million—less than 1% of its 1986 ad spending.

Hispanic market proponents rather wistfully argue that companies should spend 7.5% of their budgets on the segment to reflect hispanics' percentage of the U.S. population. Some companies—notably Adolph Coors Co., the No. 3 hispanic advertiser—divert about 7.5% for hispanic marketing. But they are an exception.

A big bang in a small universe

Hispanic market ad expenditures

	($000,000)	% chg.
1987	$490.7	23.3
1986	398.0	19.3
1985	333.5	17.2
1984	284.5	26.8
1983	224.4	35.2

Source: Hispanic Business

Because the numbers show it is unrealistic to expect most companies to equate ad expenditures with hispanic population, those having a vested interest work to convince non-advertisers to enter the market.

"We can't go to the well all the time," says John Pero, New York-based VP, director of national sales, Univision, the leading Spanish-language TV network. "Although the perennial advertisers are spending more, a lot of companies are sitting back and not doing anything."

Spanish-language media and hispanic agencies encounter a familiar litany of reasons

(Continued on Page S-15)

Cosmetic companies need to brush up

By Faye Brookman

Flipping through the pages of Cosmopolitan en Espanol, one sees ads for products ranging from Benson & Hedges to Beefeater Gin flash by.

Yet the nation's 9.6 million hispanic women are hard pressed to find cosmetics pitched in Spanish, despite the fact that they spend $1.4 billion a year on cosmetics and fragrances. Few beauty products are touted on Spanish-language television or radio either.

"I've heard several excuses for not advertising cosmetics to hispanics," says John Pero, VP, director-national sales for Univision, New York. "They feel their advertising reaches the consumer already; they think hispanic women want only darker shades or a product made just for them, and they feel hispanic income levels are too low to spend on cosmetics."

Many of the industry giants say conventional cosmetics advertising suffices. A Revlon Inc. spokesman says the company's general-market campaign "encompasses women all over the world." The theory that standard advertising appeals to hispanics was echoed by sources at Cosmair Inc.'s L'Oreal, Noxell Corp. and Max Factor & Co.

Even some companies that realize the importance of the market are passing on beauty advertising. Shulton Inc., a Wayne, N.J.-based division of American Cyanamid, increased hispanic ad budgets, but for its household products and not its personal care lines.

"We feel that is where it works," says Kenneth Freeman, VP-marketing. "Our toiletries, such as Old Spice, transcend language barriers."

Consumption indexes don't support the industry's passive stance. Hispanic women use more blush, eye shadow, eye liner and nail polish than their Anglo counterparts, according to Miami-based Strategy Research Corp.

MIRE
QUE BIEN
LUCE
AHORA

Avon's ads have helped build a brand loyal foundation among hispanics.

No need to blush at Avon

Hispanic market share leaders

Blush	Avon (19.2%)
Lipstick	Avon (26.2%)
Eye shadow	Avon (24.0%)
Nail polish	Avon (29.5%)
Lip gloss	Avon (25.5%)
Mascara	Maybelline (33.1%)
Eye liner	Maybelline (25.3%)
Base make-up	Cover Girl (20.3%)

Source: Strategy Research Corp.

Because hispanics are shown to spend more of their disposable income than the average consumer on products they feel are quality items, much of the category leaders' resistance is even more puzzling. Hispanics seek national brand names and buy products based on their perceived quality, says Mario Castaneda, director-general merchandise, Vons Grocery Co.'s Tianguis, an outlet designed solely for hispanic consumers in Montebello, Calif.

This explains why Que Guapa, a cosmetics brand marketed specifically to hispanics, flopped in 1985. Although chains like Deerfield, Ill.-based Walgreen Co. and Dallas-based Page Drug tested it, shoppers overlooked it in favor of brands such as Revlon, Maybelline and Max Factor because it lacked a national presence.

SRC studies show hispanics mention Avon as the preferred brand of lipstick, blush, eye shadow and lip gloss. For base makeup, Cover Girl pulls top honors; Maybelline is favored for mascara and eye liner.

These preferences are not likely to change. Hispanics are more brand loyal than Anglos by a rate of 38% to 23%, according to Univision research.

Hispanics' preference for traditional brands also disputes the notion that hispanics only want darker shades. "Hispanic women come from so many countries that there are many skin tones," says Claudia Copquin, general executive-public relations at Univision.

Although most companies are overlooking ethnic markets —less than 10% of all cosmetics ad dollars are directed at ethnic consumers, primarily blacks—a handful of cosmetics companies are starting to target hispanics.

New York-based Avon Products is the first major cosmetics company to hire a hispanic market agency and run a Spanish-language network TV spot. The 30-second commercial, first placed last October and handled by UniWorld Group, New

(Continued on Page S-6)

Faye Brookman is a New York-based writer specializing in the cosmetics industry.

IF THE LANGUAGE ISN'T RIGHT, THE MESSAGE IS WRONG.
Don't underestimate the consumer. Incorrectly translated, your message could be offensive.
CALL US. WE'LL DO IT RIGHT.
GRILLONE ENTERPRISES
The Complete Service Advertising Agency
714 / 529-9688
3026 Brea Blvd. • Fullerton, CA 92635

NOTHING SELLS TO
THE SPANISH MARKET
LIKE SPANISH RADIO.... PUNTO
EDUARDO CABALLERO
1.975

LOS ANGELES
KLVE • KTNQ
NEW YORK
WADO • WJIT
SAN ANTONIO
KEDA • KSAH
MIAMI
WQBA-AM-FM • WSUA
SAN FRANCISCO/SAN JOSE
KIQI • KAZA
CHICAGO
WCRW • WVVX
HOUSTON
KEYH • KXYZ
McALLEN/BROWNSVILLE
KIRT • KQXX
EL PASO/JUAREZ
KAMA
ALBUQUERQUE
KABQ • KXKS
FRESNO
KEAP • KXEX
DALLAS/FT WORTH
KESS • KSSA
PHOENIX
KPHX • KSUN
SAN DIEGO/TIJUANA
XEMO • XHFG-FM • XEPRS
SACRAMENTO/STOCKTON
KCVR • KNTO
CORPUS CHRISTI
KCCT • KXTO
DENVER
KBNO
PHILADELPHIA/VINELAND
WTEL • WFHM
TUCSON
KQTL
AUSTIN
KRGT

SALINAS/MONTEREY
KLFA
TAMPA/ST. PETE
WAMA
ODESSA/MIDLAND
KJIT
LAREDO/N. LAREDO
KLAR • XEFE • XENU
BOSTON
WUNR
LUBBOCK
KLFB
WASHINGTON D.C.
WILC
BAKERSFIELD
KAFY • KXEM
EL CENTRO/YUMA
XEAO • XECL • XED
PUEBLO/C. SPRINGS
KRMX
OXNARD/VENTURA
KTRO
SANTA MARIA/LOMPOC
KNEZ
HARTFORD
WRYM
SANTA FE
KBOM
ROSWELL
KRDD
NEW ORLEANS
KGLA
ORLANDO
WONQ
FORT MYERS/NAPLES
WZOR
YAKIMA/SEATTLE
KZTA
EAGLE PASS
XEMU

...AND THE TOP SPANISH RADIO STATIONS IN THE TOP HISPANIC MARKETS OF THE U.S.A. ARE IN THE CABALLERO RADIO NETWORK
One call...one order...one bill...
For all you want to know about Spanish Radio, call in New York
Eduardo Caballero, (212) 223-6410, or in
Los Angeles (212) 465-8337
S.Francisco (415) 928-3323
Dallas (214) 871-9513
Houston (713) 222-9119
Chicago (312) 443-0101
Detroit (313) 445-0491
Kansas City (816) 471-5502
Miami (305) 856-9144
Atlanta (404) 262-1200

Efforts by big retailers gaining notice

By Lori Kesler

J.C.Penney's hispanic spots diverge from general-market counterparts and always focus on the family.

Following the lead of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and J.C. Penney Co., retailers are taking hispanic marketing plans off the shelves and realizing that it takes money to make money in the segment.

According to Santa Barbara, Calif.-based Hispanic Business, Sears spent $3 million on hispanic advertising in 1987—unchanged from 1985 and 1986—and Penney spent about $2 million, up from $1.2 million the previous year. These budgets make Sears and Penney's the hispanic market's Nos. 8 and 18 largest advertisers, respectively, and the only department store chains to make Hispanic Business' list of the top 40.

But K mart Corp., Troy, Mich., appears to be coming up fast. The company is expected to boost its hispanic ad budget by 20% this year, which should push it past the $1 million mark, says Jesus Chavarria, Hispanic Business' publisher.

Spending by the retailing segment trails several other categories, which surprises Patricia Asip, Penney's manager-special market segments. She concedes that developing a retail strategy for hispanics can be complicated, "but it also offers big rewards," she says. "People do notice which stores are making the effort."

Retail activity seems to be heating up on several fronts. Hispanic Business reports that two national shoe chains, New York-based Kinney Shoe Corp. and Topeka, Kan.-based Payless Shoesource, each spent $1.5 million against the hispanic segment last year; only 24 companies spent more advertising to hispanics.

Insiders say regional chains—notably Burdines, a Miami-based division of Federated Department Stores, and Dayton-Hudson Corp.'s Hayward, Calif.-based Mervyn's—have staked out positions among the nation's top hispanic advertisers.

Mr. Chavarria says local retailers represent a significant part of hispanic media spending. "Remember that local advertisers initially launched this market," he says, adding that hispanic radio and newspapers still get about 70% of their ad revenue from local retailers while TV splits about evenly between local and national advertising.

Hispanic marketing's two retail giants have attacked the segment quite aggressively in recent years, but they've moved in different directions. While both Sears and Penney's currently channel most of their ad dollars into promoting sales events, Sears is depending more heavily on hispanic radio and Penney's leans toward TV.

Penney's makes about 20 hispanic TV commercials annually, all created in-house and produced with hispanic models and directors. Penney's uses some Spanish-language radio—a medium that's slated for hea-

---

Lori Kesler, ADVERTISING AGE St. Louis correspondent, is a frequent contributor to Special Report.

THE METROPOLITAN NEW YORK HISPANIC MARKET HAS
3,000,000 CONSUMERS!
SELL THEM WITH

ONLY RADIO WADO OFFERS YOU:
- 25 years of SERVICE to the New York Latin Community
- The audience - WADO is number one with Latin Adults
- Merchandising Plans that SELL
- A helping hand in UNDERSTANDING the market
- Your message inside the Bodegas - They LISTEN to WADO

WADO
1280 AM

666 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017 • (212) 687-WADO

Cosmetics

(Continued from Page S-2)

York, shows a hispanic woman in both home and work settings.

Parfums de Coeur, Stamford, Conn., has earmarked 10% of its budget for hispanic spots, says President Mark Laracy. "Hispanics are very heavy fragrance users so it was natural," he says.

The company recently produced a 30-second spot comparing its Primo! to premium Giorgio in both English and Spanish and placed it on several Univision shows. The spot's 16-week flight was grounded when a California U.S. District Court decided in favor of Giorgio Inc. that the spot was deceptive.

Despite the setback, Mr. Laracy says his company will continue its marketing efforts to hispanics. DeWitt Media, New York, produced the commercial.

Clarins and Cosmair Inc.'s Lancome and Biotherm place Spanish-language ads in hispanic publications.

Additionally, Orange, Conn.-based Colonia Inc. just signed Argentinian tennis star Gabriella Sabatini to appear primarily in print ads as a spokeswoman for its fragrances.

Spanish-language advertising is an essential ingredient, says Margaret Sharkey Kelly, VP-marketing and advertising for Biotherm, New York. "Spanish-speaking customers appreciate Spanish advertising and it is important to reach them in their own language," she says.

A recent study by New York-based Telemundo Group reported that 80% of respondents said advertisers that promote in Spanish "want my business." Moreover, 64% said they were more likely to buy products advertised on Spanish-language TV than those advertised only on English TV.

Unless cosmetics advertisers are on Spanish-language broadcast media, their efforts may not be effective because hispanics turn to TV for information and entertainment more than Anglos, says Mr. Pero.

Univision research reports that hispanics watch 32% more TV than non-Hispanics. Hispanics average 41 TV viewing hours per week of which two-thirds is spent watching Spanish-language TV.

Philip Crosland, Avon's group VP-marketing, says hispanics' media habits helped push Avon to produce its first Spanish-language TV commercial.

Although the spot's tagline, "Mire que bien luce ahora," is a translation of the general-market "Look how good you look now," the creative approach was altered slightly.

"We believe the ad speaks directly to the values of the hispanic community—the strong work ethic that exists throughout," he says. Producing an ad

Join with us and our 300,000 daily readers in celebrating the 75th anniversary of the longest-published and most respected Spanish-language newspaper in the United States of America.

75 el diario/la prensa

GANNETT

143 VARICK STREET. NEW YORK. N Y 10013 (212) 807-4600

vier support in 1988—and occasionally translates print circulars into Spanish for distribution via Spanish-language newspapers.

But TV remains Penney's primary medium. "We've tested our efforts and found TV to be the most immediate and effective way of bringing our sales events to the attention of the public," says Ms. Asip.

Penney's hispanic TV commercials bear little resemblance to their general-market counterparts. The English-language spots tend to be fast-paced and contemporary, often showing just one individual. The hispanic spots always focus on the family.

"Even if the products don't relate directly to the home," says Ms. Asip, "we try to find ways to bring mother, father and grandmother into the picture."

The company is considering making some commercials to support its house brands, but it has no plans to do an image-oriented campaign. "Investments have to be focused on results, and sales events are what motivate people to come into the store," she says.

Sears also concentrates most of its efforts on traffic-building sales events. Ann Collins, Sears Merchandise Group's coordinator-national advertising campaigns, says the company aired some corporate image TV commercials early in 1987, but then switched primarily to promotional radio. The shift was not specific to hispanic media, she says.

"The hispanic program—like the black or any other segment—works in synergism with the general market program," says Marta Gerdes, VP-account supervisor at J. Walter Thompson Hispania, Chicago, which handles Sears hispanic creative and market planning. "And radio has been the primary broadcast medium in all markets—black, hispanic and general."

The escalating costs of TV production figured heavily in the media shift. Ms. Gerdes says Sears does more than 100 promotional events a year and the costs of producing 100 TV spots would be prohibitive.

"When a sales message airs for only three days," adds Ms. Collins, "it's much more cost-effective to use radio."

But Sears didn't entirely abandon Spanish-language TV in 1987. Last summer Sears turned to TV to promote its line of McKids clothing because this

(Continued on Page S-8)

HispanAmerica
RESEARCH

- Awareness, Usage & Image Studies
- Product Research
- Advertising Effectiveness

Division of Moran & Tucker, Inc.
125 Greenwich Ave., Greenwich, CT. 06830

CALL FOR BROCHURE 203-629-3660

---

specifically for the market "also demonstrates how important it is to Avon."

Maybelline Co., Memphis, also has entered Spanish-language TV, but without a commercial. The company has committed to a year-long sponsorship on "Sabado Gigante," the No. 1-rated Spanish-language TV show, according to SRC. For the first 13 weeks, Maybelline will sponsor on-camera makeovers of women selected from viewer mail.

It's not surprising that Maybelline is testing the market through "Sabado Gigante." Not only does it command more viewers than any other Spanish-language show, but advertisers don't have to pay commercial production costs. "I think this is what made it so attractive for Maybelline," Mr. Pero says.

A Maybelline spokeswoman offers a more telling reason behind its move. "They really buy what is on the show," she says.

Another easy way to enter the hispanic market is to do voiceovers of general-market ads, which is the approach taken by Parfums de Couer. Translation does present pitfalls, admits Mr. Laracy, saying Univision staffers helped him make certain his commercial didn't become an embarrassment.

Other recommendations include using a hispanic spokeswoman in general-market ad campaigns. Maybelline may have been reaching bilingual hispanics when its general-market advertising featured Mexican-American actress Lynda Carter.

Just as Maybelline has made one more step toward the market through "Sabado Gigante" sponsorship, Mr. Pero is certain others will follow as the pioneers generate sales. "We know Spanish advertising works," he says. "I'll guarantee we'll see more cosmetics firms joining in the near future." ■

In South Florida, nearly a million people think in Spanish, do business in Spanish, make love in Spanish and you're advertising to them in English.

They won't buy that.

There's only one way to reach one of the most dynamic markets in the country. In their language. On their station. For more information call your UNIVISION sales representative or Mara Rankin, General Sales Manager, WLTV Miami, at (305) 285-4023.

WLTV
23

WLTV. Channel 23. America's highest rated Spanish TV station.

An affiliate of UNIVISION

Imports accelerate drive for share

By Dee Ann Maki

American automakers historically have attracted the loyalty and dollars of hispanic car buyers in this country. But the domestic manufacturers may no longer be in the driver's seat, perhaps having taken their position for granted for too long.

Import nameplates, especially Asian, are making big inroads into the $5 billion-plus car-buying market through a variety of specific campaigns targeting hispanic buyers.

Jesus Chavarria, editor-publisher of Santa Barbara, Calif.-based Hispanic Business, says efforts by domestic companies have been sporadic, and hispanic-focused advertising still isn't a front-burner issue.

"It's a shame," he says. "They're kind of missing this market and if they really pursued it they might be surprised."

Isaac Lasky, VP-hispanic marketing, W.B. Doner & Co., Southfield, Mich., agrees that U.S. automakers are in danger of losing hispanic buyers.

"The American dream is to drive a car, and big names to Latin Americans are Ford and Chevy."

According to a recent study by San Diego-based Market Development Inc., Chevrolet and Ford have the greatest brand awareness of all nameplates among hispanic buyers. Not coincidentally, Chevrolet and Ford also had the best share of the hispanic car market, commanding 15.1% and 10.9% shares of 1986 model year purchases, respectively, according to R.L. Polk & Co., Detroit.

Detroit's reportedly stagnating efforts are in sharp contrast to the hispanic auto market's increasing potential. R.L. Polk reports that hispanics purchased $5.2 billion worth of new cars and trucks in 1986, up 15.6% from $4.5 billion in 1985.

Early results of the company's study of 1987 model year purchases, commissioned by Los Angeles-based Univision, shows a 4% increase in the number of vehicles purchased. In comparison, vehicle purchases by non-hispanics declined 4.1% from 1986 to 1987 model years.

■ Seemingly complacent domestic carmakers leave an opening in segment

Additionally, the imports' share of the hispanic market is substantial and growing. A study of car registrations in the 21 largest U.S. hispanic markets showed that 39.3% of hispanics buying a new car in 1986 chose an import, compared with 37.2% in 1985. In the total U.S. marketplace, imports captured about 29% of all new-car buyers in 1986.

Yet among automakers, two domestics top the list of ad spending. Dearborn, Mich.-based Ford Motor Co. ranks No. 8 on Hispanic Business' list of the 40 leading hispanic market advertisers with 1987 ad expenditures of $3 million. General Motors Corp., the only other automaker to make the list, was No. 17 with a budget of $2.4 million.

Ford's budget was static from 1986 levels, however; General Motors' increased 9%.

Ford, which began in 1982 with the help of J. Walter Thompson Hispania, its New York hispanic shop, emphasizes original advertising specifically designed for hispanics. Its efforts have centered primarily on Taurus and Tempo but have included the Aerostar minivan and its Ranger light truck.

Ford's Lincoln-Mercury division also has stepped up its interest in the hispanic market, sponsoring a segment of "Sabado Gigante," Univision's game/variety show. L-M's compact Tracer was used as a prize on the show in return for media time in 1987.

Although some characterize the swap as being the lowest possible level of corporate involvement, L-M advertises in Automundo and Hispanic Business. The division expects to increase its Spanish-language radio efforts in 1988, focusing on Sable and Tracer, through UniWorld Group, New York.

Since initiating Spanish-language advertising in 1985, GM has concentrated its efforts at the Buick and Chevrolet divisions. For example, Warren, Mich.-based Chevrolet has been involved in the market for five years, primarily targeting the California market.

After sponsoring the 1986 World Cup soccer tournament, Buick says it has significantly upped its emphasis in the hispanic market. Buick is researching about 20 hispanic markets to make sure its ad strategy is appropriate in each area, says Jay Qualman Jr., the Flint, Mich.-based division's general director-advertising.

"The challenge we face at Buick is to make sure that the appeal for our cars is consistent to the various markets," he

(Continued on Page S-10)

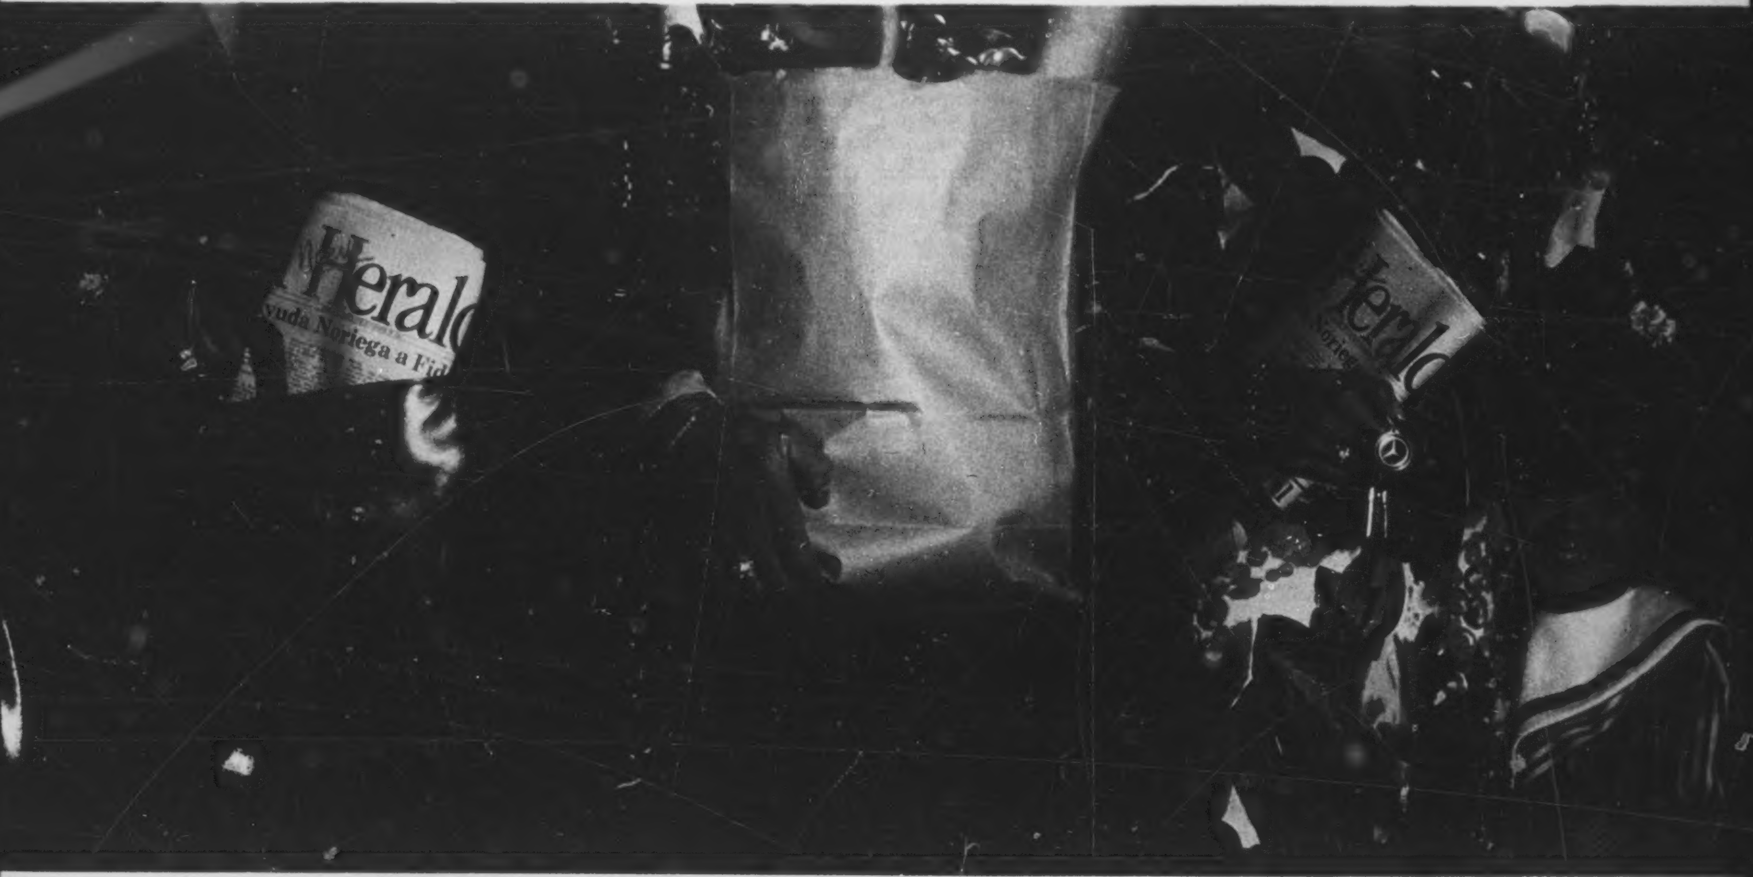
Chevy in the driver's seat

Share of hispanic market, 1986 model year car purchases

1. Chevrolet	15.1%
2. Ford	10.9%
3. Nissan	9.6%
4. Chrysler	9.1%
5. Oldsmobile	6.9%
6. Honda	6.8%
Toyota	6.8%
8. Pontiac	6.5%
9. Buick	5.0%
10. Lincoln-Mercury	4.0%
Others	19.3%

Source: R.L. Polk & Co.

Dee Ann Maki is a Detroit-based free lance writer.



Reach one of the most affluent new markets to appear on the American scene in years. The 8.7 billion dollar Hispanic market of South Florida, nearly one million strong and growing. A market that has increased in size 38 times over since 1950. And which is growing stronger every day.

Virtually 90% of this dynamic market speaks Spanish most frequently in their homes. That's why a world-class new newspaper in the tradition of The Miami Herald, written entirely in Spanish, with full color sections tailored to the individual needs of this market, surpasses the value of any South Florida Hispanic media buy you could make until now.

It's the most convincing, effective and economical way you can get your products into the hands and homes of America's Newest Billionaire market. Starting November 21st. For additional information and rates; call Cesar Pizarro, El Nuevo Herald Advertising Manager or James C. Currow, Vice President Advertising: 305-376-2858.

el Nuevo Herald

Imports

(Continued from Page S-9)

says. "Each market is different, therefore, each individual preference is different."

Many auto manufacturers simply translate their mainstream advertising to reach the hispanic market. Buick doesn't follow this theory. "In instances where the message doesn't come across as well in the Spanish idiom, we design specific ads that will," Mr. Qualman says.

For example, last year Buick used actor Hal Holbrook as a celebrity spokesman. In targeting hispanics, Buick changed both the general-market spokesman and tagline, using actor Hector Bonilla and the phrase, "Esta como usted lo quiere", or "It has what matters most to you."

CALIDAD TOYOTA
¡QUIEN PODRIA PEDIR MAS!

Toyota's hispanic profile is jumping thanks to Spanish-language ads, which pick up general-market themes.

This year, Buick scrapped the celebrity spokesman approach and picked up "The great American road belongs to Buick" theme, which stars only the car.

Buick has used television to reach hispanics, but may add radio and print in 1988. McCann-Erickson, Troy, Mich., handles.

According to Carlos Montemayor, president of San Antonio, Texas-based Montemayor & Asociados, which works with Highland Park, Mich.-based Chrysler Corp. on regional efforts, the automaker appeals to hispanics through cultural references.

Chrysler's ads, which are considered more of a corporate effort positioning the company as having a model for every life style, play up the importance of family to hispanics.

Outside of these efforts, the domestics pay little attention to the market on a corporate level.

For example, GM's Pontiac, Mich.-based Pontiac division claims it attempts to reach everybody, not just selected markets, and emphasizes name and product awareness, says Bill O'Neill, Pontiac's director-public relations. Most of the automaker's hispanic market involvement is carried out by dealer organizations, which pursue it at their discretion.

> "There's a significant [hispanic] middle class, and the foreign market is quickly taking notice."
>
> Jesus Chavarria
> Hispanic Business

Unless Detroit increases its activity, some market watchers suggest it will lose an even greater share to imports.

Toyota Motor Sales USA, Torrance, Calif., suddenly has become one of the biggest contenders in the hispanic market. "Toyota is certainly going to leave the rest in the dust if these other people don't start doing something. This includes both foreign and domestics," says Philip Wilkinson, West Coast sales manager, Univision, Los Angeles.

Mr. Chavarria says the imports are seeing niches within the market and targeting them. "There's a significant middle class among these people, and the foreign market is quickly taking notice," he says.

Toyota found the hispanic segment a good market for its compact trucks, as well as midline Corolla and Camry car models.

Toyota's initial involvement began in 1986 with a 15 market promotional mall tour. Toyota now is launching a full-scale campaign in 1988 using TV, radio and print ads and carrying its "New dimension" theme line on a national level as well as involving its dealer associations.

"Once we launched the national program, dealer participation was active and we expect this activity to be enhanced in 1988 and beyond," says Jeff Bracken, account exec at Toyota.

Although Carson, Calif.-based Nissan Motor Corp. USA's activity has been limited primarily to dealer association TV, radio and print ads, the company is reexamining the market and expecting to boost activity, says Gene Cameron, exec VP, director-corporate marketing at Los Angeles-based Chiat/Day, Nissan's agency.

Even relative newcomer Hyundai Motor America, Garden Grove, Calif., is targeting hispanics. Hyundai takes a price-value approach that's attractive to the segment.

"We began our hispanic marketing involvement in Miami during the third quarter of 1987 and we plan to continue this focus throughout '88 and beyond," says Mark Weinfeld, senior account exec, Hyundai Dealer Association, Huntington Beach, Calif. The hispanic marketing budget will grow in line with overall spending increases, he says.

Hyundai's involvement is strictly on a dealer-level, representing Hyundai's factory and four dealer associations. The company expects to target both the Los Angeles and Miami markets in 1988 and is considering San Antonio.

"Years back Detroit automakers were showing some rather impressive shares in the hispanic market," says Mr. Chavarria. "Now their efforts are laxing and in the meantime the imports are becoming more sensitive to the needs of the hispanic market.

"The Big Three are going to have to do more than just translations if they want to make a comeback." AA

VIVA LA
EXPERIENCIA

You want to reach the Hispanic audience. You want action in that arena. But you need advice. You need the experience to back you up.

We have the experience.

CONCEPTS
HISPANIC
Advertising PR Sales Promotions

MARGARET GONZALEZ
President

5444 Westheimer, Ben Franklin Tower, Suite 1900
Houston, Texas 77056 713/623-4282

WHO ARE THE LEADERS
IN SPECIAL EVENTS?
REACHING THE HISPANIC MARKET

Events

- 3rd Annual Primavera Musical Festival
  - CHICAGO
- 3rd Annual Viva Mexico Festival
  - CHICAGO ■ LOS ANGELES
- 4th Annual Pan-American Festival
  - CHICAGO ■ NEW YORK ■ MIAMI
- International SOCCER Matches
- Concert Tours

Sponsorship Opportunities

- Main Stages
- Art Exhibition
- Tropical Garden Cafe
- Children's Playland
- Community Tent
- V.I.P. Reception
- Skydivers Show
- Fireworks Show
- Corporate Booth (Sampling)
- Proof of Purchase Discount

CF CARDENAS/FERNANDEZ & ASSOCIATES INC.
3946 West North Avenue
Chicago, Illinois 60647 • (312) 772-2244
CHICAGO TEXAS NEW YORK CALIFORNIA FLORIDA
We're Marketing and Entertainment!

Hispanic
Research.
Solving Problems and Creating Opportunities

The Hispanic
Research Experts

Strategy Research
Corporation®

100 N.W. 37th Ave., Miami, FL 33125 (305) 649-5400
60 E. 42nd St., New York, N.Y. 10165 (212) 661-3050
El Monte Mall, Third Floor, Suite 2, Hato Rey, PR 00918 (809) 764-3586

As events grow, so does skepticism

By Laurie Freeman

The list of corporate sponsors at Carnaval Miami, the most popular hispanic festival in the U.S., reads like Who's Who among America's top businesses.

More than 100 advertisers participate in the nine-day event, including Anheuser-Busch Cos., AT&T Co., Campbell Soup Co., Coca-Cola USA, Colgate-Palmolive Co. and Miller Brewing Co.

Although figures are not available for total corporate sponsorship of hispanic events, Carnaval Miami's budget is more than $1 million, most of which is derived from sponsorship fees, according to event organizer Leslie Pantin of the Kiwanis Club of Little Havana.

The tremendous advertiser commitment to Carnaval Miami illustrates the explosion in special-events marketing. But, while advertiser commitments are increasing, some companies are beginning to express concerns that these events have attracted too many sponsors.

A just-completed survey conducted by the University of Miami and Conceptos International, a division of Miami-based Tinsley Advertising, shows corporate marketing and advertising personnel favor advertising over promotions and public relations in reaching hispanic consumers. Although 21% are undecided, 56% prefer media advertising while 23% say promotions and PR are as important or more important.

Events may reach a broader spectrum of hispanic consumers, however, allowing companies to generate awareness and distribute samples to those who do not depend solely on Spanish-language media.

Hispanics aren't as jaded as mainstream consumers, says Ricardo Amundsen-Bueno, president of Amundsen-Bueno Associates, an Atlanta-based hispanic marketing consultancy. "And if a company makes a concerted overture to them through an event, it will win their business," says Mr. Amundsen-Bueno.

The major beer companies have been particularly effective in reaching the hispanic market, he says, because "they understand they have to do more than just hang up a banner over the event stage."

Guaranteeing success from participating in special events means reaching out to the community. "You need to have an integration of marketing and community affairs," says Frank Kopilak, a Miami-based marketing consultant, who helps major package-goods companies develop and execute hispanic marketing strategies.

"Hispanic consumers are not stupid," he says. "They know the difference between flag-waving and companies that are truly interested.

Companies need to determine whether their involvement is an extension of an existing marketing strategy, says Bronna Lipton, VP, manager-hispanic media and marketing services at Burson-Marsteller, New York. "These events are a supplementary activity, part of a larger marketing picture. They can't be the only tool."

If companies want an event to succeed, says Mr. Kopilak, "it means getting the sales manager in that area to support the event, talk it up to the trade and develop a good relationship with the local community."

For instance, CPC International's Mazola cooking oil has sponsored several Carnaval Miami events, and returns proceeds from some contests to a local charity. "Mazola is out to get name exposure and also give the community a sense that it is doing something," he says.

A thorough analysis of the community's needs is key, Ms. Lipton says. "If a company ties in with a charity or makes a donation, it must look at the organization carefully and tailor itself to the organization, not the other way around."

As hispanic events have grown, sponsors have become concerned that impact is diminishing and have expressed a need to exercise greater control over their participation.

"Some events can become diluted if too many companies try to sponsor too many things,"

Party time

Top hispanic special events

	Attendance (000)
1. Calle Ocho, Miami	1,500
2. Puerto Rican Day Parade, New York	1,000
Hispanic Day Parade, New York	1,000
4. Hispanic American Festival, DC	500
5. Fiesta del Sol, Chicago	400
6. Three Kings Parade, Miami	300
Fiestas Patrias International Parade, Houston	300
8. Hispanic Heritage Festival, Miami	290
9. Fiestas Patronales, Chicago	250
Con Sabor a Mexico, Chicago	250
Carnaval, San Francisco	250
Charro Days, Brownsville	250

Source: Burson-Marsteller Hispanic Media and Marketing Service

500,000
Hispanics make FRESNO the 8th largest Hispanic market in the U.S.
Only ONE bilingual newspaper targets this key market.
EL SOL DEL VALLE
(209) 875-8771

THE QUEEN OF BEERS FLIES NAKED IN MIAMI.

If your ads en español tickle more than tempt, you need Marketing Mix to create rather than translate.

Marketing Mix, a bilingual Miami agency provides creative and promotional support for national advertising and public relations agencies geared to sell in our unique South Florida market.

¿No hablas español? Maybe your clients wish you did.

Call Ana Alvarez-Bischoff in Miami, 305-758-7574.

MARKETINGMIX
166 N.E. 96th Street • Miami Shores, Florida 33138 • 305-758-7574

THERE'S SOMETHING NEW IN TELEVISION.

The Spanish-speaking voice of Houston/Galveston

KTMD-TV
TELEMUNDO
Houston Galveston

Now you can reach Spanish-speaking audiences in Houston/Galveston like never before. Because now there's TV 48 with the programming and environment that holds tremendous appeal for this important, fast growing segment of the market.

TV 48 is the only Houston-area station with a full 30-minute local news segment entirely in Spanish. It's followed by national and world news from Telemundo, a leader in Spanish-language TV from coast to coast.

For additional program information, market data or rates, call TV 48 or your Telemundo representative today. When you see what we offer advertisers, we think you'll agree. VIVA TV 48!

KTMD-TV
3903 Stoney Brook, Houston, TX 77063, (713) 974-4848 • 4210 Broadway, Galveston, TX 77550, (409) 765-8757

says Mr. Amundsen-Bueno. "When 15 to 18 companies sponsor an event, an advertiser has to make sure its message gets through."

Participating in established events has its pros and cons. Although longstanding events have a built-in community image and track record, they also may have become too large. "You run the risk of becoming a little fish in a big pond," Ms. Lipton says.

Companies can become involved on one of three levels: by creating their own event, becoming the sole or primary sponsor of a large event or becoming one of many sponsors in a large event.

Sole sponsors of new events can receive a sales and image boost. "But you also run the risk of having it fail," Ms. Lipton says. "The best level may prove to be the sole sponsor of a large event, because it already exists, is proven to be a success, and will guarantee the sponsor the limelight."

WLTV-TV, Miami, in December helped coordinate the first annual International Salsa Festival and took into account growing discontentment over saturation.

"We guaranteed category exclusivity and made concessions, like allowing Budweiser to put banners on the music stage," says Mara Rankin, WLTV's general sales manager.

Budweiser also was the only beer sold during the festival. "Because this is the first time this event has been held, it didn't have a track record," Ms. Rankin says. "When most sponsors buy an event, the event dictates what the sponsor can do. With the Salsa Festival, we catered the event to the advertiser."

With many events having reached the sponsor saturation point, more advertisers are trying to determine the effect of their participation on sales. David Garcia, account supervisor-hispanic communications at Fleishman-Hillard, a Los Angeles-based public relations agency, says most of an event's success hinges on how much pre-event advertising, publicity and in-store promotions are set into motion.

"It's possible to measure the impact of publicity and consumer outreach programs, and do a cost analysis on that," he says.

Mr. Kopilak says it's not realistic to expect an event to generate significant product movement. "It's all playing with numbers and it's hard to measure," he says. "That shouldn't be the only objective of an event sponsorship."

As advertisers begin demanding more impact from sponsorship, events will have to be tailored more to companies' wishes. "It's like buying a suit off the rack," says Mr. Amundsen-Bueno. "A store is only too happy to make alterations to keep the customer satisfied. Most event marketers will make alterations to make the event work for the sponsoring company." ■

Met Life conjures up a genie

By Mark Bittman

The snowball effect often cited in hispanic marketing—that the first company to enter the market is quickly followed by many of its competitors—melts quickly when considering the insurance industry's involvement in the market.

In this category one company is mounting a full-scale marketing effort while others are relying more on image. Most insurance companies appear to be hanging back until the market matures.

An accelerating marketing program by New York-based Metropolitan Life in the seven largest hispanic markets has had demonstrably positive results. Met Life hardly has a lock on selling life insurance to hispanics—Allstate Insurance Co. commanded a 12.1% share of policies written in 1986, followed by Met Life's 9% share and Prudential Insurance Co. of America's 7.8% share.

■ Accentuating the living aspects of life insurance is a first step in reaching hispanics

But no one denies Met Life has made strides in both breaking ground and generating sales since first targeting the market in 1983.

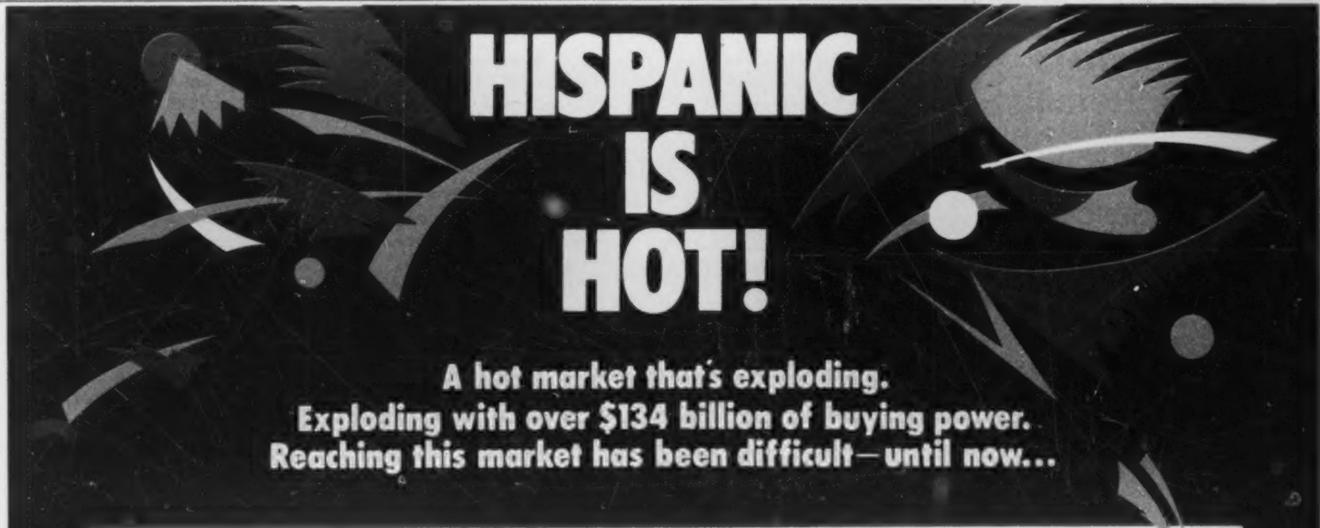
"In 1983," says Ruben Lopez, marketing director-special projects, "few insurance companies were doing anything at all in the hispanic market, and we were a distant fourth in terms of both market awareness and market share."

Mr. Lopez's figures show that in 1983, Met Life garnered a relatively paltry $400,000 in premiums from hispanic cus-

(Continued on Page S-14)

Mark Bittman is a New Haven, Conn.-based free-lance writer.

GREATER TALENT NETWORK
Celebrates Crossover to the Hispanic Market.
Commercials
Personal Appearances
Meetings & Conventions.
Mildred Soto (212) 645-4200



HISPANIC IS HOT!
A hot market that's exploding.
Exploding with over $134 billion of buying power.
Reaching this market has been difficult—until now...

Announcing
Hispanic Media and Markets from SRDS

With Hispanic Media and Markets you can target your advertising buy to the exact Hispanic media serving your market. Everything you need to know about Spanish language media is at your fingertips—media rates, closing dates, market data, programming facts, circulation figures, contact names, contact numbers.

One Source For Multiple Media
Hispanic Media and Markets includes detailed listings by media and ADI for over 400 media serving the Spanish language market—radio, television, daily and community newspapers, business publications, consumer magazines, direct mail lists and outdoor advertising.

More Than Media
Hispanic Media and Markets includes comprehensive market data estimates for population, households, and other media/market indicators for the top 30 Hispanic ADI.

An Unbeatable Offer
Subscribe to Hispanic Media and Markets on a 20-day trial basis at no cost or obligation. See for yourself how it will help make your job easier and your media decisions more effective. An annual subscription includes four issues plus monthly update Bulletins.

To reserve your copy of the premier issue of Hispanic Media and Markets, available in March, 1988, fill out and return the coupon. In a hurry? Call 1-800-323-4588 or 312-256-8333.

srds
HISPANIC
MEDIA AND MARKETS

Yes, enter my trial subscription to Hispanic Media and Markets. If I am not completely satisfied I will return the first issue within 20 days.

☐ Enclosed is my payment of $145
☐ Bill my company ☐ Send me more information

Name______ Title______
Company______
Address______
City/State/Zip______
Type of Business______
Telephone Number______

SRDS Circulation Department
3004 Glenview Road, Wilmette, IL 60091

Red carpet

(Continued from Page S-1)

companies prefer to stay out: Research is inadequate or suspect; general-market ads reach hispanics; the market will assimilate; it's not worth the cost; hispanics don't buy our products; we don't have the marketing or distribution expertise—the list goes on. "It's like knocking your head against the wall," Mr. Pero says.

"Hispanic Marketing Issues: A National Survey," just-released research conducted by Miami-based Tinsley Advertising's Conceptos International division and the University of Miami, opens up some windows in that wall, tracking the opinions of brand managers and marketing and advertising executives at major corporations.

"For one thing, only 1% of the respondents feel strongly that the so-called hispanic market would disappear," says Joe Albonetti, VP-executive director of Conceptos International and the study's author. In fact, 63.2% strongly agree that the market will grow and become more important. And 70% feel that Spanish-language advertising is essential, even in reaching younger, more assimilated hispanics.

A sizable 70% also admit that their company doesn't give hispanic marketing the attention or budget it deserves, while only 8% say it is overemphasized. "And the longer companies are involved in hispanic marketing, the more they feel they aren't doing enough," says Mr. Albonetti.

Budgets are limited, says Bonnie Garcia, national manager-hispanic market development at Detroit-based Stroh Brewery Co. "I would love to do something to reach the Puerto Ricans and Cubans, but we have to concentrate on the bulk of the market first. The company has its priorities and that is to establish the general market first."

Hispanic marketing often is pushed onto the back burner. "It's a peripheral issue for everybody who isn't directly associated with the market," says Victor Ornelas, manager-promotions and marketing communications, Seven-Up Co., Dallas.

Ms. Garcia says that awareness of the segment is very high among Stroh brand groups and that targeting hispanics is seen as a long-term, but crucial, marketing strategy. "We're unlike A-B [Anheuser-Busch], Coors or Miller, because we're the new kid on the block, just expanding into different markets."

The Conceptos' study shows that companies' decisions to target hispanics are proactive and not reactive, however. Although those that market to hispanics are more aware of their competitors' hispanic market activity than those who are not involved, the decision to enter the market is not a defensive posture.

Most companies decide to target the hispanic market because they sell products in heavily hispanic areas and find the segment's growth attractive, particularly in light of a maturing general market.

"Companies are more concerned with finding a way of building their brands than looking over their shoulders," says Mr. Albonetti. "It's not being used primarily to outmaneuver competitors or as a way to gain share of market from them," a view that is held equally by category leaders and lower-tier competitors.

At Kraft Inc. the strategy is completely offensive. "We view the segment as a growth opportunity for selected core brands that have high consumption among hispanics," says Jim Macdonald, ethnic marketing manager at the Glenview, Ill.-based marketer.

The survey's response to another possible reason, "Our competition is marketing to hispanics and they could gain an edge if we do not," also downplays competitiveness as a factor. Only 58% of the respondents say this is important or very important, placing nine other considerations as more crucial. This casts doubt on the snowball theory, which holds that once one company in a category enters the market, its competitors will follow.

"This is one of the most important findings," says Mr. Albonetti, "and it may be disconcerting to people who are

(Continued on Page S-16)

Philip Morris smokes into the market

	1987 budget ($000,000)	% change from 1986
1. Philip Morris Cos.	$13.3	77.3%
2. Procter & Gamble	12.0	50.0%
3. Adolph Coors Co.	9.8	145.0%
4. Anheuser-Busch Cos.	8.0	23.1%
5. McDonald's Corp.	7.0	11.1%
6. Johnson & Johnson	6.0	71.4%
7. Colgate-Palmolive Co.	5.0	66.7%
8. Ford Motor Co.	3.0	—
Goya Foods Inc.	3.0	—
Sears Roebuck & Co.	3.0	—
Nabisco Brands Inc.	3.0	20.0%
AT&T	3.0	20.0%
Dart & Kraft Inc.	3.0	20.0%
American Home Products	3.0	76.5%
Lever Brothers	3.0	N.A.

Source: Hispanic Business

UNITED SPANISH
ADVERTISING
A full service advertising agency for the hispanic market.
1605 West Olympic Blvd.
Suite 9037
Los Angeles, CA 90015
(213) 388-8662

Se Habla Español
KRAFT SINGLES
Marlboro
PEPSI
GM NABISCO
GOYA
Campbell's Tomato Soup
Coors
TYLENOL
Lite
Maxwell House
The market's loaded. Hispanic buying power will grow to $129.5 billion in 1988. And the parade of savvy advertisers will keep growing, too. Don't miss the

FIRST ANNUAL HISPANIC

Red carpet

(Continued from Page S-15)

trying to create a bandwagon feeling." Fortunately, he says, most of the companies that have entered the market have met their goals.

Not every marketer is satisfied with the effort. About 12% of the survey respondents started and then dropped hispanic marketing programs. "No one can be complacent about that," Mr. Albonetti says.

The first marketer in a product category to jump into the segment is the most successful because of hispanics' documented brand loyalty, says Fil Fernandez, marketing program manager-hispanic marketing, Polaroid Corp., Cambridge, Mass.

The fourth most mentioned reason why companies market to hispanics is that they feel their product has a particular appeal to hispanics. But because package goods essentially are alike, "the appeal of a specific product is generated by advertising," Mr. Albonetti says. "If you're the first in you can make tremendous share gains because competition is less and hispanics are brand loyal and enjoy the attention."

Being able to prove that hispanics will find their products appealing is the most important reason for reconsidering a hispanic marketing program, according to non-participating companies. If research indicates strong product usage among hispanics, 80% say it would be a very important consideration. Data displaying good potential of the market as a whole is cited as being very important by 70%.

"Research has gotten the market to where it is, but because it has been promotional in many instances, it has fueled suspicion of the numbers," says Mr. Albonetti. Those with a vested interest in the market have to provide cleaner, more actionable data, he says.

Recently, Univision and Telemundo Group commissioned studies by Audits of Great Britain and Market Opinion Research, both widely respected by general marketers. And the Spanish Radio Advisory Council asked corporations and general-market agencies to select a methodology they would trust.

Although Spanish-language media research may not equal that found in the general market, Larry Goldstein, project manager, Advansers, St. Louis, admonishes corporations that use research as an excuse for not participating.

"There may not be data available in all markets, but the available data is reasonable," he says. "Companies can proceed with what's there."

One of the more interesting ironies is that 60% of those companies not marketing to hispanics base this decision on reasons other than research. Although they say they want more believable data, only 19% researched the market, finding "hispanic media inefficient within the context of overall brand marketing."

Mr. Ornelas agrees that those trying to convince companies to enter the market have to provide better information. "But corporations have to do a better job of providing their own research."

Most companies that aren't marketing to hispanics say the cost isn't worth the budget. Despite Ms. Garcia's contention that corporations will find hispanic marketing programs and media "surprisingly efficient," the No. 1 reason cited by nonmarketers is that they cannot afford to divert resources from current marketing programs. The No. 2 reason is that potential sales do not offset the costs.

"The reason they stay away is because they say they can't divert funds and lack resources," says Mr. Albonetti, "not because they don't think the market holds potential.

"But they're not blind. They're attuned to the fact that it's a hot segment. Even the skeptics filled out a 12-page survey, which shows a certain degree of interest."

Shops critical in pointing the direction

By Marie Spadoni

Agencies tuned in to the nuances of the hispanic market are carrying a great deal of weight with companies seeking to tap that segment. Because many marketers have no experience in targeting hispanics, these shops become critical to successful campaigns.

"The major companies will demand the best kind of marketing and advertising support," says Joe Albonetti, VP, executive director of Conceptos International, a division of Miami-based Tinsley Advertising, which along with the University of Miami recently surveyed corporate marketing and advertising personnel about hispanic marketing. Almost 99% of the survey respondents said that a shop's ability to understand their needs was fairly-to-very important in the agency selection process.

"Creative capabilities may make the difference in selecting among finalists," he says, "but agency professionalism and marketing support will make up the core of the decision as to who gets to that stage."

New clients confirm this. "We need a lot of direction because we don't know anything about the hispanic market," says Michael Keenan, VP-corporate advertising for Texaco, White Plains, N.Y. Last December Texaco selected Conill Advertising, New York, as its first hispanic ad agency.

Conill's first effort for Texaco will break in either Miami, southern California or Texas this month.

Dallas-based Seven-Up Co. also plans to target hispanic markets regionally in 1988. Last month, Seven-Up signed Casanova, Pendrill Publicidad, Irvine, Calif., as its first hispanic agency after a six-month review (AA, Dec. 28).

"We wanted an experienced agency that could provide us and the bottlers with direction and insight into our current [hispanic] marketing position," says Bill Thompson, VP-brand management. Casanova, which had just lost the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Group of Los Angeles account, has extensive soft-drink experience, he says.

The company had not aggressively approached the hispanic market, Mr. Thompson says, and was beginning to feel competitive pressure from Coca-Cola Co.'s Sprite and PepsiCo's Slice, which have been actively marketed for hispanics. "Marketing to ethnics is a commitment of [Seven-Up's] new management," he says.

Key to that commitment is the ad agency. "It is important that our agency educates us," says Mr. Keenan. "They have the knowledge of the market."

Senior editor Ed Fitch coordinated this report on Marketing to Hispanics.

Coming

Advertising Age's February 12 Special Report will focus on TV Syndication.

Free Inside
Ivory Snow
Pampers
dreft ¡Felicidades!
FREE
MONEY SAVING COUPONS INSIDE SAVE OVER $6.00
GRATIS
CUPONES DE DESCUENTO

The Best Way to Reach Young Hispanic Families

Now you can profitably sell to America's fastest growing ethnic group in an exciting bi-lingual co-op mailing presentation.

Today's Hispanic young families are mail responsive and loyal to advertisers who reach them with cents-off coupons, rebates, and offers of special interest.

Over 700,000 Hispanic families with children under 24 months of age will receive our mailing in April and October 1988. Your brand can join major advertisers who already enjoy success with us.

MADISON DIRECT MARKETING, LTD.
295 Madison Avenue
New York, NY 10017

For details, call
Señores Chris Hulse,
Bruce Gold,
or Tracy Nieporent.
(212) 370-5009

Seeking to enhance your corporate image, and improve your visibility in the Hispanic market?

The prestigious Hispanic Family of the Year Programs will help you reach the heart of America's Fastest Growing Market. Participate in our 1988 Special Events for the States of: California, Illinois, Texas, and soon Florida (April '89). Some of our sponsors have been: Coca Cola USA, General Mills, Ford Motor Company, Pacific Bell, Mountain Bell, TRW, Chevron USA, Rockwell International, ARCO, and Blue Cross of California.

Tap the fastest and most loyal market by investing in:

- Promoting traditional family values
- Education, and
- Enhancing the Quality of Life of American Families

Call now for details:

Hispanic American Family of the Year Foundation
10654 Woodbridge Street, North Hollywood, CA 91602, (818) 500-1309

Hispanic American Family Magazine
Published quarterly, the magazine targets upscale bilingual Hispanic American Families. Initial rate base is 15,000. Ad Close: April 8.
B&W page: $1,550; color page: $1,990.

Hispanic Family of the Year, Hispanic American Family of the Year, and Hispanic American Family Magazine are Servicemarks of Hispanic American Family of the Year Foundation. All rights reserved.

We need you.

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

Listen . . . They're Playing Our Música

MEXICANA
AMERICAN DAIRY ASSOCIATION
KRAFT
SOUTHERN BELL
GOYA
PAN AM
COLGATE
GLENDALE FEDERAL ARRID

Music a la carte

10501 S.W. 53 ST. MIAMI, FL 33165
(305) 274-4636

COMMERCIAL MUSIC PRODUCTIONS
FOR ALL HISPANIC MARKETS

2/9/88 C2710-1

Coors rolls out Extra—P. 4 | Sunday-insert shakeout?—P. 28 | NAD hits TWA—P. 69

*5-DIGIT 200
0201909649 AA00 8807 COMP E32
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

NEWSPAPER

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

February 15, 1988

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing.

New attacks on aspirin ads

States threaten court action

By JENNIFER LAWRENCE

In an escalating battle over aspirin ad claims, the New York and Texas attorneys general put aspirin marketers on notice that they face state court action if they promote aspirin as a preventative for heart attacks.

The first company targeted by the two states was Rorer Pharmaceutical Corp., whose print ad for its Ascriptin brand reprinted a story in The New York Times on the National Institutes of Health study about aspirin preventing first heart attacks (AA, Feb. 8).

Rorer also felt heat from the Feds. The company last week said it decided to shorten its schedule for the Ascriptin ad after a "cordial" Feb. 10 telephone call from the Federal Trade Commission, during which the agency expressed its "concerns" about the ad.

Fort Washington, Pa.-based Rorer received the letter from the the New York and Texas attorneys general Feb. 12, after it had decided to discontinue the ad's schedule due to the FTC call.

All aspirin marketers were being contacted by the FTC in connection with heart-attack-prevention ad claims, said Susan Atkins, Rorer group VP-public affairs. (See related editorial on Page 16.)

Garfield takes a look at new aspirin ads—P. 88

Previously, New York-based Sterling Drug halted a page newspaper ad for No. 1-selling Bayer aspirin that called the study "Good news for heart health in America," at the request of the Food & Drug Administration (AA, Feb. 1).

There is some federal inter-agency rivalry taking place here; sources said the FTC, which has authority over ad claims, was irked that the FDA, which has authority of over-the-counter drug labeling, stepped into the issue without advising the FTC.

The FDA publicly expressed concern about the ads because it still is reviewing the new study.

While the FDA has approved use of aspirin to prevent second heart attacks, the agency has not approved its use to prevent first heart attacks.

William MacLeod, director of

(Continued on Page 86)

Staff photo by Arnold Adler

"Agencies are giving clients what they do best, and what they make the most money on."
—Alvin Achenbaum

Achenbaum warns shops on media role

By JON LAFAYETTE

New York—Advertising agencies are in danger of losing control over media spending.

That's the belief of Alvin Achenbaum, the consultant who has helped change the way some big advertisers compensate their agencies.

"Agencies have spent so much time talking about creativity, they've not done the job they should have with media," Mr. Achenbaum, chairman of Canter, Achenbaum, Associates, said in an interview.

Mr. Achenbaum's company, founded 15 years ago with Stanley Canter, figured prominently in agency reviews of Minolta Corp.,

(Continued on Page 83)

Ad spending up, but don't count on it

An Advertising Age roundup

Despite the optimistic spending plans of some of this country's major advertisers, many ad industry executives are saying that if the market dictates, all bets are off.

An Advertising Age survey shows that while many marketers are boosting their budgets, those increases are subject to scrutiny quarter by quarter, if not sooner.

Competition boosts carmakers' spending—P. 84

"Advertisers certainly are watching for changes in the economy, and they'll change their ad plans accordingly," said Greg Ostroff, advertising industry analyst at Goldman, Sachs & Co., New York. "No agencies are reporting substantial cutbacks [by clients] yet," but "they're making plans on a month-to-month basis."

In recent weeks, such major marketers as Alberto-Culver Co., General Motors Corp. and Warner-Lambert Co. disclosed substantial ad budget increases, ranging from Alberto's 25% hike to $114 million

(Continued on Page 84)

Last Minute News

Paramount picks DMB&B

Hollywood, Calif.—Paramount Pictures named D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, Los Angeles, as agency for its estimated $60 million media-buying account. DMB&B replaces AC&R/DHB&Bess. Other finalists included Saatchi & Saatchi DFS, Torrance, and Los Angeles agencies BBDO Worldwide and Ogilvy & Mather (AA, Jan. 25).

Ralston rolls new cereals

St. Louis—Ralston Purina Co. in March introduces nationally Bran News and Double Chex cereals with coupons, direct-mail sampling, inserts and a heavy network TV campaign. Ally & Gargano, New York, handles Bran News; Double Chex is handled in-house by Centra Advertising.

Wendy's beef is in groceries

Dublin, Ohio—Wendy's International is testing sales of 1 and 3-pound packages of ground beef with its logo in Kroger stores in Columbus and Cin-

(Continued on Page 8)

Do you know me? See P. 2

Pepsi regional move to shake up marketing

By PATRICIA WINTERS

A shake-up is expected in the marketing department at Pepsi-Cola Co. following a sweeping reorganization that eliminates its operating units and regionalizes the company into four key divisions.

Pepsi executives are evaluating positions in the national marketing department, and sources said it is likely to result in a shuffling of the staff at company headquarters in Somers, N.Y.

The reorganization announced last week is an effort to streamline operations, create operating efficiencies and stress the regional character of the soft-drink business (AA, Feb. 8).

Pepsi had no comment on whether there will be layoffs.

The marketer is eliminating the company-owned Pepsi-Cola Bottling Group and the Fountain Beverage Division, creating a single company called Pepsi-Cola Co. Pepsi-Cola USA will not exist after Feb. 22.

The new Pepsi-Cola Co. will operate as four regional companies, each headed by a separate president. The regional presidents will report to Craig E. Weatherup, named president-chief operating officer.

Mr. Weatherup, a 14-year PepsiCo veteran, most recently was president of the bottling group.

The new system creates a general manager setup where regional presidents will be responsible for total sales in their areas, including fountain, retail and company-owned and independent bottlers.

Ron Tidmore, Pepsi-Cola USA president-ceo, was named president of Pepsi-Cola South, Dallas. John M. Cranor becomes president of Pepsi-Cola East, Somers, from president, Fountain Beverage Division;

(Continued on Page 87)

Highlights

NEWS

12 K mart clears up Stewart role
K mart Corp. will launch two network TV spots to define Martha Stewart's role.

26 Those big-town blues
Two of the U.S.' hottest creative agencies have had a lukewarm reception in the No. 1 ad market.

30 Happy birthday, 'New York'
New York turns 20 with an unconventional anniversary celebration that should pump up its recent flat advertising performance.

35 Merrill launches 'trust' theme
Merrill Lynch brings "trust" back into advertising in its first major effort since Black Monday.

36 Postal chief faces turmoil
As Anthony M. Frank takes command, the U.S. Postal Service is about to undergo upheavals.

40 Coupons a hit with consumers
Advertisers have sold consumers on coupons and rebates, but resistance still remains to other promos.

43 Gillette boosts Ayer overseas
N W Ayer's international operation got a needed boost from Gillette Co.

62 Agencies challenge N.Y. tax law
Upstate shops recently audited are questioning New York's interpretation of its sales tax law.

65 Ketchum revamps
Ketchum Communications reorganized into three operating units to streamline management.

82 Eveready takes Classic turn
If Coca-Cola can go classic, so can Eveready batteries.

INTERNATIONAL

58 The Canada challenge
Canada is poised for a hot year in 1988 as it faces a free-trade agreement with the U.S. and a bid by the Canadian government to ban advertising and promotion of tobacco products.

AD REVIEW: Aspirins on the attack. P. 88.

The original sensuous shave; a reminiscence by Bill Grathwohl. P. 50.

Departments

AdWhirl 81
Brady 52
Brady's Bunch 82
Classifieds 77
Direct Marketing 38
Editorials 16
For the Record 83
Forum 18
Garfield 54
Global Gallery 56
Letters 20
MediaWorks 76
People 75
PeopleWorks 74
Photo Review 70
Stock Report 86
Slices 54
The Next Trend 52
Words 54

Vol. 59, No. 7—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908).

Photo by Richard Young

Say 'cheese'

London—Camera-shy Charles and Doris Saatchi were captured in a rare photo together at the star-studded premiere of the film "White Mischief" Jan. 29 in London's West End. While other papers zeroed in on fellow guests Prince Andrew; his wife, Fergie; Koo Stark; and Ringo Starr, the Daily Express tabloid ran the Saatchi paparazzi photo. The caption: "Saatchi . . . and Saatchi: Charles and Doris together at last."

Compared with older photos of 45-year-old Mr. Saatchi, co-founder of the Saatchi & Saatchi empire, the new one shows that he has cut his hair and lost weight.

Better known as an art collector than a filmgoer, Mr. Saatchi's private London museum this month opened an exhibit of contemporary East Village art called "NY Art Now."#

JWT re-enters fast-food field

Gets $1M KFC account

By JANET MEYERS

J. Walter Thompson USA last week picked up a $500,000-to-$1 million assignment from Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp. that it hopes will ease the pain of its Burger King account loss.

JWT's Atlanta office will handle the assignment, a three-market test of KFC home delivery.

The business once again gives JWT a fast-food account, after its New York office lost the $200 million Burger King Corp. account to N W Ayer, and its Chicago office lost Godfather's Pizza's $8 million assignment to Fallon McElligott, Minneapolis.

Young & Rubicam, New York, which previously had the home-delivery assignment, still handles KFC's $100 million national account, but there have been rumors that its hold on the business is tenuous.

KFC in March breaks a new national campaign from Y&R, its fourth in two years. The effort is said to be a non-product-oriented image campaign, a departure from recent spots.

One spot tested was themed

(Continued on Page 86)

Columbia recruits BBDO executive

By WAYNE WALLEY

Columbia Pictures last week became the latest studio to raid the ad-agency ranks. The studio recruited Dan Michel, exec VP-chief operating officer at BBDO Worldwide, Los Angeles, as its new marketing president.

Mr. Michel, 41, becomes the third agency executive in the past six months lured by Hollywood to forsake the agency business. The moves reflect a new studio attitude toward marketing.

With the average film costing $19.7 million for production and another $7 million for advertising and promotion, film companies are eager to maximize the potential and minimize the risk by hiring package-goods marketers.

"Historically, at studios the promotions department is doing one thing, advertising is doing another and publicity is doing another," Mr. Michel said. "What agency operations guys can do is bring in fresh thinking, different disciplines and pull all these things together."

Gordon Weaver, former president of Y&R Entertainment, joined the De Laurentiis Entertainment Group as a member of the office of the president in October (AA, Sept. 28).

In December, former DDB Needham Worldwide Exec VP-General Manager Sy Kornblit became exec VP-marketing for Universal Pictures (AA, Nov. 23).

At Warner Bros., Sandy Reisen-

(Continued on Page 87)

Carmakers keep ad pedal to floor

By RAYMOND SERAFIN

Although many carmakers are trying to hold the line on ad spending this year, competitive pressures are forcing some big ad budgets.

That includes industry leader General Motors Corp., which is trying to reverse a disastrous 5% loss in market share in 1987, plus a slew of small marketers looking to carve niches.

Overall automobile ad spending growth probably will not match the substantial increases of 1987, but many think the category will continue to grow faster than the ad industry average. Predictions of increases range as high as 20%.

A superheated competitive environment drove up ad spending beyond anyone's predictions last year, and the fight for share is no less bloody now.

With more than three dozen marketers offering more than 300 car models, automakers, distributors and dealers are spending heavily to develop brand image, introduce new models and nameplates and regionalize their strategies.

No single source tracks auto spending at all levels, but a compilation of various sources suggests advertising in the category reached $7 billion last year, with spending by importers leading the growth.

A source at one ad agency that tracks spending patterns said passenger-car spending in major media by factories grew 29% and factory-dealer co-ops went up 21% during the 1987 model year, to a combined total of $2.6 billion.

Those figures do not include trucks, which represent 32% of all vehicle sales, and they also exclude costs for direct mail, promotions, incentives and ad production.

Robert J. Coen, senior VP-director of forecasting, McCann-Erickson, New York, said auto ad spending was up 19% during the first nine months of 1987, based on tracking of network and spot TV and magazines.

Tom Webb, senior economist for the National Automobile Dealers Association, McLean, Va., said dealer spending rose 12.5% to $3.6 billion during 1987. The total includes about $1.1 billion in dealer contributions to co-op advertising, which he said is growing faster than any other aspect of dealer ad spending.

NADA's figures show that dealer per-unit spending rose 20% during the year, which more than offset a 7% decline in vehicle sales.

Mr. Coen said auto spending will be "well above" the 9% growth he forecasts for the entire ad industry.

Two agency sources, who asked not to be identified, were split on Mr. Coen's projection. One said his agency is expecting factory and dealer group spending increases in the 20% range. "And our projections over the past few years have been consistently low," he said.

The other executive was more cautious, saying that preliminary figures from the first quarter of the 1988 model year showed spending was flat. Spending for the Olympics might change that trend, but 1988 "is a hard year to gauge," he said.

If ad spending levels are off somewhat, it may in part be because Japanese importers are feeling cost squeezes. As their parent companies watch profits fall with every rise in the yen, the U.S. marketing subsidiaries are forced to defend existing marketing budgets.

"A lot of Japanese [automotive] companies are responding to the increased budgets in Detroit by looking at their established ad spending and trying to find out what to do with the numbers they have," said Leon Rosen, national marketing manager, American Isuzu Motors, Whittier, Calif.

But importers overall spent aggressively during 1987. Mr. Coen said importers' major media spending soared 47% in the first nine months of 1987, compared to the previous year.

Another agency source calculated a 27% increase on importers' total spending during the 1987 model year. According to another agency's internal estimates, importers accounted for more than 45% of all car spending during the 1987 model year, even though their market share was under 33%.

Those sorts of numbers leave Detroit agency executives frustrated as they try, with only modest success, to convince their clients to ante up. "The difference is that domestic carmakers regard advertising as an expense, while the Japanese importers regard advertising as an investment," said the head of one agency.

GM traditionally has spent less money per car on advertising than any of its rivals, though GM's sheer size still allowed it to muster more total ad dollars than anyone else.

Detroit-based GM is giving its three newest models a $100 million ad send-off (AA, Jan. 25), a sign the automaker is revving up to win back some of the share it lost last year. However, more than half of that $100 million reflects a redirection of dollars rather than new spending, sources indicate.

Dearborn, Mich.-based Ford Motor Co. and Highland Park, Mich.-based Chrysler Corp. are taking a conservative approach to spending increases, sources indicated. Both nearly went broke during the early 1980s, and they now are keeping a lid on all expenses—including ad budgets—in order to hold down their break-even points.#

Cleveland Horton in Los Angeles and Patricia Strnad in Detroit contributed to this report.

AUTOMOBILE AD SPENDING PLANS

Advertiser	'88 budget estimates	% Increase
Austin Rover	$20 million	NC[1]
BMW of North America	$75 million	NC
Chrysler Corp.'s Chrysler-Plymouth division	$110 million	NC
Chrysler Corp.'s Dodge division	$115 million	NC
Chrysler Corp.'s Jeep/Eagle division	$125 million	14%
Daihatsu America	$5-10 million	NA[2]
Ford Motor Co.'s Ford division	$310 million	NC
Ford Motor Co.'s Lincoln-Mercury division	$125 million	NC
General Motors Corp.'s Buick division	$103 million	15%
General Motors Corp.'s Cadillac division	$42 million	5%
General Motors Corp.'s Chevrolet division	$325 million	5%
General Motors Corp.'s Oldsmobile division	$105 million	10%
General Motors Corp.'s Pontiac division	$90 million	20%
American Honda's Acura division	$53 million	18%
American Honda Motor Co.	$137 million	5%
Hyundai Motor America	$71 million	14%
American Isuzu Motor Co.	$62 million	5%
Mazda Motors of America	$157 million	NC
Mercedes-Benz of North America	$60 million	NC
Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America	$65 million	25%
Nissan Motor Corp. U.S.A.	$180 million	NC
Peugeot Motors of America	$25 million	67%
Porsche Cars North America	$15 million	NC
Saab-Scania of America	$11 million	10%
Toyota Motor Sales USA	$209 million	NC
Subaru of America	$60 million	100%
Volkswagen of America's Audi of America division	$80 million	100%
Volkswagen of America's Volkswagen U.S. division	$125 million	19%
Yugo America	$48 million	100%

[1] No change. [2] Not available. Source: Advertising Age

Budgets

(Continued from Page 1)

to W-L's 13.7% jump to $830 million annually to GM's six-month $100 million ad blitz backing three new cars.

It will not be known for some time whether advertisers stick to their plans, but agencies are questioning their clients about how solid the 1988 plans are.

"The answers I'm hearing make me think budgets are going to change a lot throughout the year," said an agency executive, who works with a major toiletries advertiser. He reflects the view of many executives who believe budgets are volatile.

"Half of our clients say ad spending will be up this year, and half say it will be down," said an agency president. "But they all add the same thing: Don't count on anything."

Many observers and marketers remain optimistic that ad spending will show a moderate gain this year. But projections vary wildly.

Some forecast a gain of more than 10%, while others predict ad spending will rise no more than 5%, or barely above the inflation rate.

All this uncertainty exists despite the twin catalysts of a presidential election year and the Olympics, which traditionally boost ad spending.

"The trend will be toward more selective advertising, less across-the-board increases," said Jay Freedman, household products analyst with Kidder Peabody & Co. "Companies aren't in a tremendous building mode. They'll focus on advertising more than they have in the last two years. But at the same time, they're going to be watching profitability."

Many agencies said they have seen little indication that the spending increases truly are boosting measured media campaigns (AA, Jan. 18).

"What we're looking at are budgets showing an 8% increase overall," said Charles Peebler Jr., ceo at Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York. "Some of those [budgets represent] bigger campaigns and pushes than others, but we don't look at it as being a lot different than we thought. . . . We're not seeing at the moment any deterioration of budgets because of any additional shifts to promotion."

Among package-goods marketers, 1988 media spending is projected to rise moderately after two years that saw an increased emphasis on consumer and trade promotions as well as mergers and acquisitions.

But even among these companies, traditionally the most recession-proof, ad spending is not up across the board.

For the most part, these advertisers are putting renewed emphasis on rebuilding brand position or supporting new products—or they are involved in tremendous market-share battles in specific categories.

"Over the last few years, more and more dollars have been diverted to promotional spending, but there's always been a concern that promotional tools are more tactical than strategic," said Joel Weiner, senior VP-corporate marketing, Kraft Inc., Glenview, Ill.

"Now, you have a concern on manufacturers' part that we need to go back to basics and find correct brand positioning," he said. "Through advertising, companies are trying to rebuild or continue to build or ensure that brand franchises are built."

> "Half of our clients say ad spending will be up this year, and half say it will be down. But they all add the same thing: Don't count on anything."
>
> —Agency president

Mr. Weiner said Kraft this year will increase advertising for most brands by a significant amount. "But I see a situation where we will be beginning to put the brakes on the significant increases in [trade] and promotion spending that you've seen in the past years."

One of last year's hottest head-to-head product battles, between Quaker Oats Co. and General Mills in the $500 million hot-cereal category, is fueling more ad spending increases this year.

Chicago-based Quaker boosted its marketing budget by 37% in fiscal 1987, which ended Sept. 30, and plans a sizable increase for fiscal 1988. Already, spending in the first half of the year is up more than 50%.

But such ad spending increases cut into profit margins. For two consecutive quarters, Quaker's grocery division has reported losses blamed on increased marketing expenditures.

"We made a conscious decision a year ago to significantly increase the level of ad support for our flagship product," a spokesman said. "Marketing studies showed that the category was undermarketed."

General Mills' ad spending is expected to rise at least 10% this year, more than double last year's 4% hike. And continued strong support for Total oatmeal is only one factor in the increase.

On April 1, the Minneapolis-based marketer starts a $35 million print and TV ad push for 22 new Betty Crocker products (AA, Dec. 14).

Campbell Soup Co.'s 15%-to-20% hike in 1988 ad spending is less a result of the premium cost of TV time on the Olympics telecasts or the threat of recession than it is a response to declining market shares for some brands.

Hurt by declines in its Le Menu frozen-food line and Prego spaghetti sauce, and the failure of the Fresh Chef line of refrigerated salads and sauces, the Camden, N.J.-based company is pumping up and redirecting most of its ad spending to core brands such as the red-and-white-labeled soups.

Among cosmetics and toiletries marketers, ad spending is projected to be flat not only because of profit constraints but because retailers are pressuring marketers to put more money into promotion and catalogs, said Allan Mottus, a New York-based cosmetics industry consultant.

At least one national beer marketer, Adolph Coors Co., has decided that 1988 is the right time for a strong advertising push. It has achieved national distribution for its brands and sees weakness at competing brewers.

"We've made the decision that 1988 is the year to strike hard," said Gary Naiseh, VP-brand management at Golden, Colo.-based Coors. "Our corporate strategy is 'Let's go get 'em.' "

Part of the company's 25% ad spending increase, to $100 million, will support newly launched beers (see related story on Page 4). Coors also will increase spending for its flagship Coors and Coors Light brands.#

Written by Laurie Freeman in Washington with contributions from Julie Liesse Erickson and Scott Hume in Chicago; Marcy Magiera in Los Angeles; Judann Dagnoli, Gary Levin and Pat Sloan in New York; and Janet Meyers in Washington.

2/24/88 C2710-1

NEWSPAPER

*3-DIGIT 200
0201909649 AA00 8808 COMP L32
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

February 22, 1988

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Last Minute News

7UP goes for the gold

DALLAS—Seven-Up Co. today unveils 7UP Gold, a spicy citrus soft drink in regular and diet versions, sources say. The company reportedly will introduce the product for rollout at a series of news conferences across the country starting with one today in Washington. The marketer last year tapped the teen market with Cherry 7UP. Industry observers believe 7UP Gold is targeted to consumers ages 18 to 34 and is positioned as a "wilder" soft drink. Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, handles.

Blendax dumps DDB Needham

DUESSELDORF—Blendax Werke R. Schneider & Co. will not retain DDB Needham Worldwide for its $14.5 million personal-care products account. Peter Elsing, the company's marketing manager, attributed the loss to the fact that DDB is a member of the Omnicom Group, which handles many of Blendax's competitors.

Maxwell House starts perking

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, FLA.—General Foods Corp. will resume advertising for its Maxwell House coffee brand in mid-1988, said Philip Smith, chairman-ceo of the Rye Brook, N.Y.-based company. GF spent $33 million on measured ad spending in 1986, the last full year of spending for the brand. Mr. Smith said GF's coffee share slipped last year due to low pricing of coffee beans and intense sales promotion but that the company

(Continued on Page 8)

Magazine plan shakes industry

Whittle offers waiting-room exclusivity

By PATRICK REILLY

A revolutionary magazine plan from Whittle Communications that offers advertisers limited exclusivity in doctors' waiting rooms has angered rival publishers, who are getting ready to fight back.

What irks competing publishers are reports that Christopher Whittle, chairman of the privately held publishing company, has promised advertisers that most rival publications will be removed from medical waiting rooms to guarantee limited exclusivity.

Called "The Whittle Family System," the project includes the October launch of Special Reports, six quarterly magazines distributed to the offices of 15,000 general family practitioners, obstetrician/gynecologists and pediatricians in 125 major markets.

The oversize, glossy magazines will be displayed in specially designed wooden cabinets and each will be based on a single topic: family; fiction; health; living (food, home and travel); personalities and gossip; and sports.

If Mr. Whittle's concept is unprecedented, so too is the vitriolic reaction by magazine publishers.

The reason: Medical waiting rooms represent major magazines' largest share of out-of-home readership, where publishers benefit from the high pass-along rate. For exam-

(Continued on Page 74)

Inside:

Brady beats about the Bush. P. 3

Marketers seek slotting truce. P. 12

David Horowitz has problems. P. 32

More on Fallon and Dinka. P. 69

P&G cuts $75M from network TV

By VERNE GAY

Procter & Gamble Co. sliced nearly $75 million from its network TV budget in 1987, the largest year-to-year network cut in P&G's history and one of the biggest drops ever for a single advertiser.

P&G spent $377.6 million on the Big 3 TV networks last year, a 16.4% drop from 1986 levels.

This marks the second consecutive year P&G has cut net TV spending. It lopped off about $40 million in 1986 from 1985 levels; that, too, was a record.

But P&G's massive 1987 cutback was offset by an equally huge increase in network TV spending by Kellogg Co. The Battle Creek, Mich.-based company boosted expenditures 43.2% to $238 million, also believed

(Continued on Page 73)

Top 10 network TV advertisers

Advertiser	'87 network TV spending	% chg from '86
1. Procter & Gamble Co.	$377,551,800	−16.4%
2. Philip Morris Cos.	$331,936,200	− 3.0%
3. General Motors Corp.	$272,953,100	+16.8%
4. Kellogg Co.	$238,016,900	+43.2%
5. McDonald's Corp.	$216,067,400	+11.9%
6. Unilever	$211,923,000	+ 4.7%
7. RJR Nabisco	$209,777,300	+34.7%
8. Anheuser-Busch	$186,947,700	+ 5.3%
9. Johnson & Johnson	$181,998,900	+10.8%
10. American Home Products	$181,499,400	− 2.2%

Source: Broadcast Advertisers Reports.

Burger bungle?

No. 2 chain dishes up new campaign that pounds away at an old ad theme

By BOB GARFIELD

AD REVIEW

Bring back Herb.

OK, don't bring back Herb. That's a terrible idea. Bring back "Burger King Town." Remember? Neat montages. Sensational jingle. The commercials didn't sell many hamburgers, but Burger King Corp. had so many operational and marketing problems at the time the campaign never had a chance.

You didn't like "Burger King Town"? No problem. Bring back that goof with the crown on his head. Heck, hire Madge away from Palmolive. Most anything would be better than what N W Ayer has produced in its debut effort following The Biggest Account Change in Advertising History.

The first assault in the latest cam-

(Continued on Page 72)

New BK spots show children discussing grill lines on patties (l.) and old people talking about burgers in the good old days.

BJK&E completes $133M buyback

By GARY LEVIN

NEW YORK—Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt completed its long-delayed buyback from Lorimar Telepictures Corp. by forming a new holding company called Bozell Inc.

The total purchase price, which Lorimar earlier tagged at $133 million (AA, Feb. 15), includes a "closing purchase price" of $75 million in cash and securities of the new company.

It also includes $44 million in outstanding debt and $3 million for a non-compete clause preventing Culver City, Calif.-based Lorimar from acquiring another agency.

Lorimar will remain a BJK&E client.

In addition, Bozell has issued a $5.5 million promissory note, payable in 12 annual installments, that with interest will amount to a total payment to Lorimar of more than $12 million over the term of the note.

Bozell Inc. will consist of BJK&E, the New York-based general agency; Poppe Tyson, a New York-based business-to-business agency with billings of more than $65 million; Robinson, Lake, Lerer & Montgomery, a consulting company; and public relations, healthcare, direct-marketing, Yellow Pages and custom production shops.

BJK&E has nine full-service U.S. offices and equity or affiliate relationships in 55 foreign cities. Poppe Tyson has offices in New York and Union, N.J., having recently sold a third office in Boston to management there, which renamed it McConnell & Co. (AA, Feb. 1).

The transaction finalized late last week eventually will give Bozell $30.4 million in outstanding common stock, of which $21 million, or about 70%, will be owned by employees and directors of the agency.

Sixty-six senior managers raised $14 million toward the purchase; a $5 million employee stock ownership plan for middle managers and a stock bonus plan will constitute the remainder of the shares.

Lorimar said it will post a pretax profit of about $16 million from the sale in its fourth quarter, ending March 31.

The new price tag is somewhat lower than expected when the deal was announced last year (AA, July 28, et seq.).

The Oct. 19 stock market dive created difficulties in arranging high-yield "junk" bond financing, and heightened scrutiny by financial partners led to several delays. The buyback originally was to have been completed by last fall, for $143 million.

Financial terms were renegotiated with principal lenders Citibank and Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., and Lorimar, following the market's plunge.

Lorimar paid $21 million for Kenyon & Eckhardt in August 1983. After acquiring Bozell & Jacobs for $41 million in January 1986, it merged the two operations.

Poppe Tyson was acquired last year from D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles and merged with USAdvertising, earlier formed as a BJK&E spin-off shop to avoid a conflict.

For Lorimar, the sale sends a signal that it is capable of turning a profitable deal. Lorimar's home-video unit has been plagued by scandal recently: An investigation of three former top executives concerns a "breach of fiduciary duties," which led the company to set aside $22 million in loss reserves for the third quarter, translating to a $19.2 million net loss.#

Highlights

NEWS

10 Culinova lowers prices
Culinova is going downscale with its upscale refrigerated dinners.

12 Combating slotting fees
Major food marketers are creating programs to settle their escalating feud with retailers over the crippling costs of so-called slotting allowances.

30 Video marketers boost spending
The home video industry could spend a combined $200 million on advertising and promotion to maintain revenue growth in 1988.

37 Ads raise Soviets' curiosity
The first international exhibition of advertising in the Soviet Union drew more than 40 companies from Eastern and Western bloc countries.

49 Publisher pares papers
American City Business Journals has sold two regional papers and closed another, but says advertisers may notice little difference.

50 Taking a bet
Six states and the District of Columbia, hurt by lotteries in neighboring states, have joined forces to launch a multistate lottery.

62 Who done it?
A computerized home-shopping service is turning computer hackers into direct-response shoppers with a "Murder at the Mall" contest.

63 Carmakers milk Japanese ventures
Domestic automakers are not shy about making greater use of their partnerships with Japan.

70 J&J getting Playtex
Johnson & Johnson, trying to boost its share in feminine hygiene, has offered to buy Playtex.

INTERNATIONAL

58 The battle of the business books
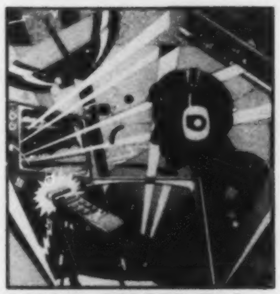
Fiscal fisticuffs among Canada's financial media began in earnest earlier this month, as the weekly Financial Post became a five-days-a-week newspaper.

Lowenbrau's campaign is off to a roaring start. P. 4.



SPECIAL REPORT: TV Syndication, starts after P. 48.

Departments

AdWhirl 69
Brady 40
Brady's Bunch 70
Christopher 42
Classifieds 65
Currents 44
Direct Marketing 62
Editorials 16
For the Record 71
Garfield 42
Global Gallery 20
Letters 18
MediaWorks 54
Parting Shot 42
People 61
PeopleWorks 60
Photo Review 52
Stock Report 73
The Next Trend 40

Shearson sees rising market

By JUDITH GRAHAM

NEW YORK—For the first time since "Black Monday," a major brokerage house's ads are telling consumers that the stock market is ready for an upturn.

The ads could mark the start of a new marketing phase for brokers, which pulled ads touting stocks immediately after the market sank.

Shearson Lehman Hutton is telling investors that the market is on the road to recovery since Oct. 19 with a campaign that began with a 30-second TV spot on NBC Feb. 20.

Print ads start Feb. 22 in The Wall Street Journal, followed by ads in major-market newspapers Feb. 23. McCann-Erickson handles.

Some experts believe brokers will return to more aggressive product advertising while continuing the post-"Black Monday" strategy of reassuring investors.

But Shearson's strategy is considered risky, in light of the market's continued volatility.

"If they're right, they'll go a long way toward rebuilding people's trust, but if they're wrong, they can suffer severe long-term consequences for their business," said Alan Towers, president of Alan Towers Associates, a corporate public relations company.

Shearson's print ads, carrying the tagline "The worst is over," list nine reasons why an upturn is due.

"We think this is very big news," said Catherine Kaputa, Shearson VP-director of advertising, noting that investors and brokers alike have adopted a "gloomy attitude" since the market's plunge.

Merrill Lynch & Co., Shearson's largest competitor, shares Shearson's relatively optimistic view of the market but has not focused its advertising on the point.

Instead, it has been recommending a balanced portfolio of investments. Last week, it increased the suggested stock portion of the portfolio to 50% from 45%.

Merrill's new TV campaign, launched Feb. 13 via Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, shows experts discussing investment products and strategies. The campaign includes a :30 on portfolios with a relatively strong stock weighting.

PaineWebber, which also has been keeping investors informed on investment opportunities via commercials since early November, has run at least six :60s talking about unusual values in the stock market, said John Lampe, senior VP-director of advertising and public relations. However, it has not predicted an overall uptick in the market.

Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton handles.#

Wal-Mart pushes brand-name line

By SHANNON THURMOND

Wal-Mart Stores, to capitalize on brand-name popularity, is introducing its exclusive line of Bobbie Brooks women's casual wear in a TV campaign breaking this week.

In so doing, the No. 3 discount retailer is shifting from its traditional price-oriented strategy to imitate Sears, Roebuck & Co. and K mart Corp.

Analysts believe Wal-Mart is trying to match Sears' Cheryl Tiegs line of women's clothing and K mart's Jacqueline Smith line.

The Bobbie Brooks brand name, licensed by Garan Inc., New York, previously has only been attached to junior sportswear. The brand has never been sold before in Wal-Mart.

The TV spots promote Wal-Mart's Bobbie Brooks women's line with the theme "Feel how good you look." GSD&M, Austin, Texas, handles the estimated $5 million apparel account.

Similar ads are running in Glamour, Mademoiselle and 'Teen, said Roger McNitt, Wal-Mart's director of broadcast advertising.

The Bobbie Brooks line shows an upgrade in quality of merchandise, Mr. McNitt said, adding that brand-name recognition is important in today's retailing environment.

"Wal-Mart's major thrust has been quality for less, but unless you have a name brand, it's hard to say what quality is," said Dennis Telzrow, an analyst at Eppler, Guerin & Turner, Dallas.

Bentonville, Ark.-based Wal-Mart has 1,100 stores in 25 states.#

Vol. 59, No. 8—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908).

ABP MPA RED TAG ABC

Brand fame spreading

Line extensions are marketers' lifelines

By JULIE LIESSE ERICKSON and JUDANN DAGNOLI

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, FLA.—It's back to basics for the nation's grocery marketers, and that is having a major impact on ad spending.

Although these marketers are committed to big increases in advertising and marketing budgets, the additional spending is not going to new brand names but to "batched" products intended to maximize retail and marketing leverage.

If a new brand name is created, it is for a full line—not one product.

"Expect us to be even more aggressive in the future in leveraging our most valuable commodity—our brand names—across product lines and categories," said John Bryan, Sara Lee Corp. chairman-ceo.

In numerous presentations and interviews at last week's Consumer Analysts Group of New York's Florida food conference, marketers said they will use familiar brands for line extensions, category expansions and reformulations.

"A line extension is the ultimate in increased productivity," said Manny Goldman, analyst with Montgomery Securities, San Francisco.

Sara Lee, for instance, is expanding its Isotoner brand—already found on gloves, hosiery and slippers—into women's underwear.

Separately, the Chicago-based company's Hanes brand, the nation's top name in hosiery with a 40% share, will be used on a new line of Hanes Her Way panties, and the label will follow on bras, gloves and other related products.

Sara Lee President Paul Fulton even tossed out the possibility of using the Sara Lee, Jimmy Dean and Hillshire Farms names on food products cutting across category lines.

St. Louis-based Pet Inc. is testing three sets of products that extend established names: Pet-Ritz snack cakes, Progresso frozen dinners and Underwood barbecue sauce.

Quaker Oats Co. is beginning national distribution of Quaker Oat Squares cold cereal, which has been testing since last year in the Midwest. Print and TV ads use the tagline "An honest taste from an honest face," and the Quaker man appears on boxes and in ads.

Kraft Inc. is bringing along an entirely new brand. But its Chillery label encompasses a full line of refrigerated meals—salads, entrees and desserts. Glenview, Ill.-based Kraft is building on its existing foodservice and deli-supply network for the Chillery line.

The conference's overriding theme was food marketers' ef-

(Continued on Page 76)

Olympic advertising awareness survey

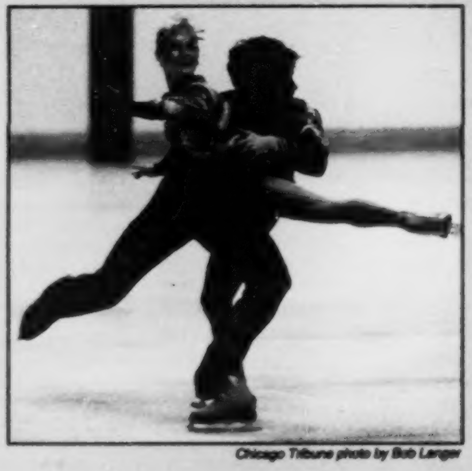
This survey of 672 adults was taken in January by SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb. (See story on Page 73.) Below, Jill Watson and Peter Oppegard show bronze-medal form.

In the past 30 days have you read, seen or heard advertising mentioning that a manufacturer is an official sponsor or supplier of products for the 1988 Olympic Games?

Yes	67%
No	31%
Don't know	2%

Do you think you would be inclined to buy a specific brand or product because its manufacturer is an Olympic sponsor?

Yes	27%
No	70%
Don't know	3%



Chicago Tribune photo by Bob Langer

In general, would you say Olympic sponsorship raises your opinion of a company, lowers it or does not affect it one way or the other?

Raises it	37%
Lowers it	2%
Does not affect it	59%
Don't know	1%

Do you feel that there are too many advertisements mentioning Olympic sponsorship being run at the present time?

Yes	20%
No	73%
Don't know	7%

Which advertisement first comes to mind?

Don't know	50%
Coca-Cola	13%
Kodak	3%
Miller	3%
Visa	2%
Pepsi	2%
Budweiser	2%
McDonald's	2%
Kodak batteries	1%
Subaru	1%
Procter & Gamble	1%
Eveready	1%
Other	18%

Winter Games TV ratings fail to snare gold

By VERNE GAY

NEW YORK—Ratings for ABC-TV's coverage of the Winter Olympics are lagging, leaving the network with a possible $35 million in advertiser "make-goods."

ABC was averaging just under a 19 prime-time rating from A.C. Nielsen Co. from Feb. 14, when the telecast began, through Feb. 18.

The network originally guaranteed advertisers a 21 rating on the Winter Olympics, though many advertisers estimated the ABC telecasts probably would achieve somewhat lower ratings during the two-week period.

AT&T Co., for example, said the Games would achieve between a 17 and 19 rating in prime time.

ABC sold about $360 million worth of commercial time in prime time, late-night and weekends.

If ratings continue to track about 9% under ABC's own estimates, then the network could owe advertisers between $30 million and $35 million in make-goods.

This would boost substantially ABC's own estimated losses on the Games.

It originally paid $309 million for the telecast rights, but production and other expenses were expected to push losses as high as $40 million.

A severe audience short-fall this week could easily double that figure.

Advertisers were promised make-goods, or audience guarantees, based only on household delivery.

Some advertisers doubted the net-

(Continued on Page 73)

World News Roundup

MANILA—PepsiCo moved its $2 million account to Hemisphere-Leo Burnett from J. Walter Thompson Co.

LONDON—Saab awarded the $15 million international launch of its new 9000CD model to Saatchi & Saatchi-owned KHBB here. Print and TV ads are scheduled to break in March in Europe and this fall in the U.S.

TORONTO—Wardair, Canada's third-largest airline, moved its $5.5 million account to J. Walter Thompson Co. from Miller Myers Bruce Dalla-Costa.

BERNE, SWITZERLAND—The Swiss Parliament has been asked to stop alcohol, cigarette and pharmaceutical advertising broadcast on

(Continued on Page 58)

Gillette-Shiseido tie just a joint venture?

By PAT SLOAN

Gillette Co. is testing a new skin-care line called Myoko as part of a joint venture with Japan's Shiseido Cosmetics Ltd., a deal that has many observers wondering if there's more there than meets the eye.

Shiseido ranks high on a list of possible "white knights" for Gillette, the target of takeover attempts, Wall Street sources say. The list was compiled by Coniston Partners, a New York investment group that recently bought a 6% stake in the Boston-based marketer of toiletries and razor blades.

A Gillette spokesman would not confirm that Tokyo-based Shiseido is supplying Myoko, but acknowleged the line has gone into a 50-store test in the Boston area. Shiseido would not comment.

Myoko is a mass-market version of some of the Japanese marketer's

(Continued on Page 74)

Goldwater pushes Bush over top in first primary

The story of George Bush in New Hampshire has a happy ending.

By JAMES BRADY

There was more good news out of New Hampshire last week than we ever got on the radio from Gabriel Heatter.

For those so young they think broadcast news began with Bill Hurt and Holly Hunter, Mr. Heatter would open his news show every evening with the sonorous declaration:

"Ah, there's good news tonight . . ."

Quite often there was actually bad news, like the Fall of France, but even then Heatter tried to put a good face on it.

You didn't have to strain a bit to enjoy New Hampshire. Anyone who didn't find the country in pretty fair shape the morning of Feb. 17 had to be either a curmudgeon or a losing candidate. I think that for the rest of us, and the nation, the New Hampshire primary worked just fine. And suddenly I feel a lot better

(Continued on Page 71)

Unwired nets snare marketers' dollars

By Richard Edel

With fewer people watching network television and the cost of network time spiraling upward, many advertisers are searching for alternatives. Among the fastest growing innovations are unwired networks.

Called "unwired" because they do not distribute programming, these networks typically place commercials in prime-time access lineups of locally oriented shows. Prime-time access is the hour preceding the start of network prime time.

The concept is a cross between syndication and spot TV. An advertiser negotiates with a national station representative to forge attractive market coverages, and chooses time slots to air simultaneously on all stations, regardless of programming, when the target audience is likely to be viewing.

Unwired networks received a major boost in mid-1987 when Procter & Gamble Co. reportedly walked away from what it viewed as extremely high prices at ABC for advance sales of the 1988 season. ABC's preseason demand was up partly because its schedule includes the 1988 Winter Olympics in Calgary. Long used to volume placements in return for lower prices, P&G began searching for creative ways to place about $30 million in advertising, sources say.

In July, P&G spent an estimated $10 million on Fox Broadcasting Co., a move that some viewed as a message to the networks that P&G would support alternative media, and one that preceded P&G's first unwired network buys.

In October, P&G placed $10 million with Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting System's WTBS superstation and Chicago-based Tribune Broadcasting Co.'s six independent stations for a multi-product campaign running from Jan. 1 to June 30. Taken together, this unwired network reaches 65% of the U.S. Units reportedly were priced 15% to 25% below network TV. Cincinnati-based P&G says unit cost per thousands compared "very favorably" with network TV. P&G has the option to begin a new campaign on TBS/Tribune July 1 to June 30, 1989, for which spending could reach an estimated $20 million.

P&G also signed in October an estimated $10 million deal with New York-based Katz Communications to advertise on the 191-station Katz Alternative Network, created especially for P&G. The Katz network has 92% U.S. coverage.

Unwired networks became a reality in 1987 purely as a result of economic forces, says Michael Drexler, exec VP-national media director at Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York. "[Unwired] networks are stimulated and perpetuated by the need to get better economy and efficiency from advertisers' broadcast investments," he says.

Advertisers and their agencies are sending a signal to the three major networks that they will push for better network pricing by helping to create national media alternatives, Mr. Drexler says.

But opinion is divided on the degree to which unwired networks represent a new medium. Stephen Leff, vice chairman of Backer Spielvogel Bates, New York, considers them less an alternative than "another weapon in the arsenal. Unwired networks have a place—they're another form of syndication. But are they going to take over the world? No. I think [the P&G buy] is as much a signal as it is a positive move," he says.

Declining network ratings*

(For the period Sept. 21, 1987-Jan. 3, 1988 vs. Sept. 22, 1986-Jan. 4, 1987)

	ABC (ratings)		CBS (ratings)		NBC (ratings)		Average
	1986-87	1987-88	1986-87	1987-88	1986-87	1987-88	1986-87	1987-88
Households	14.3	12.9	16.1	13.7	17.5	16.4	15.9	14.3
Women 18-49	10.2	8.6	10.8	8.6	13.8	11.9	11.5	9.6
Men 18-49	9.3	8.1	8.0	6.5	10.2	8.7	9.1	7.7

*Each rating point equals 1% of 88.6 million households.
Source: A.C. Nielsen Co.

Agencies have long promoted the concept of unwired networks. In the past, they have met with resistance from local stations and their national media representatives, who could more profitably sell stations' inventory on the spot market.

In 1987, a few national spot TV representatives were able to convince their station clients that participation in unwired network deals would bring new dollars into the spot market, says Jim Beloyianis, president of Katz's American division.

The stations worried that advertisers would pay for unwired network deals out of funds earmarked for spot TV, thus undercutting the stations' own sales efforts. A P&G spokeswoman confirms, however, the money for its unwired network deals came from budgets for network TV and syndication.

"Traditionally, spot TV is at the end of the [allocations] pipeline," Mr. Beloyianis says. "The agency first buys national media, then goes to spot TV to augment the buy on a market-by-market basis. With the Katz Alternative Network, we want to tap in a few miles up the line," he says.

However, there are limits to how far the reps and stations are willing to go, says Bill Breda, senior VP-general sales manager at Blair Television, a New York rep company. Some advertisers try to secure lower spot TV CPMs by asking for proposals on unwired network buys that might include a shortened list of the stations that a rep company represents, he says.

"We are looking at each offer on a case-by-case basis. It was determined [in several cases] that we were dealing essentially with spot dollars and we declined the offers," Mr. Breda says. "Our sole objective is to go after dollars that would not be intended for spot TV."

Bristol-Myers Co. in December placed a multimillion-dollar unwired network buy with Blair's lineup of 134 stations covering 70% of the U.S. The buy was made with money earmarked for syndication, says Peter Spengler, VP-advertising services at the New York-based company.

"These are bucks these stations would [otherwise] never get," Mr. Spengler says.

Interest was piqued by P&G's buys, he adds. Bristol-Myers invited offers from several national station reps, settling on Blair. Factors favoring the buy included that it was national, the quality of the station list, time period, quality of programs and favorable CPMs.

"If I can encourage, in part, the creation of another national alternative to syndication or network [TV], I'll try to do that," Mr. Spengler says. "But nothing is ever easy the first time around. The unwired network was not offered a year ago. It happened because of Procter & Gamble and Katz."

Better syndicated programming is a key reason why advertisers are turning to alternatives to network TV, Mr. Spengler says. Top-rated shows, such as "The Oprah Winfrey Show," "Wheel of Fortune," and "Star Trek: The Next Generation" are contributing to a general trend of placing more advertising dollars in syndication this year.

To understand the forces that led to creation of unwired networks, it is necessary to examine a chain reaction of factors in the broadcast marketplace in 1987, experts say. The first is high demand for network TV inventory: A record $9 billion in total sales is riding on the success of the 1987-88 network season, including a record $3 billion in upfront sales.

This intense level of spending caused network scatter market inventories to tighten in late 1987 and early 1988. Further tightening is expected because of the 1988 Olympics and general elections.

A second factor is A.C. Nielsen Co.'s introduction of the people meter in 1987, replacing Nielsen's diary system. People meters indicate that far fewer people are watching network TV than before.

The dual effect of higher prices and smaller network audiences was a drastic increase in network TV CPMs, up 10% to 30% in 1987, comparing people-meter results with Nielsen's old system.

As a result, advertisers last year began re-evaluating their network TV spending, boosting allocations to alternative media, such as cable and syndication. These shifts, in turn, caused softness in the 1987 spot TV market. As local stations began feeling the pinch, they became less reluctant to participate in unwired network deals organized by their national reps.

Critics question whether these rep networks are able to address the problem of underdelivery by the networks, however. Because the majority of local stations in the so-called "repworks" are network affiliates, they are prone to the same underdelivery problems as the three networks, says Mike Kammerer, founder of the New York-based Independent Television Network, an affiliation of 85 independent stations with 86% U.S. coverage that completed its first full broadcast year in 1987.

However, P&G is well covered with its Tribune/TBS deal, says Lou Latorie, senior VP-sales at WTBS. "The beauty of our deal with P&G is that it addresses the two points of erosion, from [network] underdelivery of cable homes and in the area of putting additional numbers behind independent stations," he says.

There also are marketing factors to consider, Mr. Latorie adds. According to Simmons Volumetrics studies, cable penetration is nearly 50% of the nation's 88.6 million homes, but for many product categories, cable homes are better consumers of certain products than non-cable homes, he says.

"[Generally] the cable home is a better consumer. They have more kids, more dollars to spend and greater consumption of goods," he says.

With the TBS/Tribune deal, "You're effectively addressing the problems both from a media point of view and from a marketing point of view," he says.

What the future holds for unwired networks is neither a question of marketing or media, however. It is one of economics, says Deborah Hackenberry, director of sales development at New York-based Petry Television, a national media representative.

Advertisers evaluate media based on cost, reach and efficiency. "The advertising well is not a bottomless pit. You have to reach eyeballs and ears," she says.

On these counts, Mr. Beloyianis says the Katz Alternative Network promised and is delivering for P&G a respectable 7 to 8 weeknight rating (a rating point is 1% of 88.6 million households) in the 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. (ET) time slot, at a CPM that is "competitive" with network TV. (Spot TV CPMs normally are much higher.)

The reason Katz was able to swing better CPMs is that rates for national spot TV increased only 3.5% in 1987, compared with hefty 20% CPM increases for network shows. Spot TV also became a more attractive alternative to cable TV and syndication, both of which recorded 20%-plus increases in 1987, Mr. Beloyianis says.

Still, other reps say that Katz and Blair are undercutting the spot TV market with their unwired network deals.

Dave Hills, VP-sales development at Telerep Inc. in New York, says the unwired network deals are simply rearranging spot TV dollars so that CPMs are lower.

"The ultimate effect is that you contract the spot TV market, not expand it," Mr. Hills says. "The biggest issue is where the dollars are coming from."

Petry's Ms. Hackenberry echoes a similar theme. Although Petry hasn't taken a stand on unwired networks, it also is not pursuing them, Ms. Hackenberry says. "Not knowing where the dollars are coming from, we don't think it's a good trend for spot TV. We don't want to wind up robbing Peter to pay Paul." ■

Richard Edel is a Chicago-based free lance writer and frequent contributor to Special Report.

Coca-Cola scores as Games sponsor

Copyright ©1988 by Crain Communications Inc.

By PATRICK McGEEHAN

More people are noticing advertising from sponsors of the 1988 Olympics, and what they are noticing most are ads for Coca-Cola, according to the latest ADVERTISING AGE survey.

But whether increased awareness of sponsors' advertising will boost sales is questionable, because most people say they would not be inclined to buy a product because its marketer is an Olympic sponsor.

The Olympic poll was part of a monthly nationwide adWatch survey of adult consumers conducted for AD AGE by SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb. In January, adWatch asked 672 adults five questions about Olympic sponsors.

Two-thirds of those polled in January said they had read, seen or heard advertising mentioning that a company is an official sponsor or supplier of the Olympic Games.

That figure was much higher than the 51% who recalled such advertising in a December survey, when the ads and spots were not running as often (AA, Feb. 1).

When asked in January which company's advertising first came to mind, 13% named Coca-Cola, far more than any other sponsor. Eastman Kodak Co. was a distant second, with 3% of respondents naming Kodak and 1% citing Kodak batteries.

In December, only 2% of respondents named Coca-Cola, while Kodak and Visa International led the way with 5% each. Coca-Cola Co., Kodak and Visa are three of the nine global sponsors of the 1988 Olympics.

The jump in awareness of Coca-Cola as an Olympic sponsor was surprising because the company had not begun airing its Olympics-theme advertising when the survey was conducted in January.

Coca-Cola, which is the exclusive soft-drink advertiser and one of the top spenders on ABC-TV's broadcast of the Winter Games from Calgary, began running a campaign themed "Thirst for greatness" in early February.

A spokesman for Atlanta-based Coca-Cola suggested the increased awareness of its sponsorship resulted from heavy publicity in December and January about the company's search for U.S. representatives to the Coca-Cola World Chorus, which performed at the opening ceremonies in Calgary.

In January, recall of advertising from Visa, which has been trumpeting its sponsorship since last summer, fell to 2%.

Miller Brewing Co., the sole sponsor of the U.S. Olympic Training Center, was the only company other than Coca-Cola and Kodak mentioned by more than 2% of respondents, with 3%.

The bad news for Olympic sponsors was that few respondents said a company's Olympic sponsorship raises their opinion of the company and fewer said they would be inclined to buy a company's product because of such a sponsorship.

In January, only 37% said Olympic sponsorship raises their opinion of a company, down from 46% in the December survey. Those who said sponsorship does not affect their opinion rose to 59% in January from 50%.

When asked whether they would be inclined to buy a specific brand or product because its manufacturer is an Olympic sponsor, 27% said ~~yes, down~~ from 37% in December.

Those who said they would not be inclined to buy products from sponsors rose to 70% in January from 61%.

As the Winter Games approached and consumers began to notice more advertising from sponsors, some were starting to feel overwhelmed, the poll showed.

One-fifth of those polled said they felt there were too many ads mentioning Olympic sponsorship run at the time, up from 14% who said that in December.#

STOCK REPORT

AGENCY PERFORMANCE

	Close	% change
Foote, Cone & Belding	49⅞	1.0
Grey Advertising	97	−2.0
Interpublic Group	31⅛	1.6
Lorimar Telepictures	10⅝	2.4
Mickelberry Corp.	5½	0.0
Ogilvy Group	27¼	2.8
Omnicom Group	17⅞	−3.3
Saatchi & Saatchi Co.	21¾	0.0
WPP Group	16¾	6.3

ADVERTISERS PERFORMANCE

Winners	Close	% change
1. AMR Corp.	39½	11.6
2. Delta Air Lines	48⅛	7.8
3. Loews Corp.	73⅞	6.1
4. Mattel	7⅛	5.6
5. Warner Communications	33	5.6
Losers
1. Noxell Corp.	20	−6.9
2. Pillsbury Co.	33¼	−5.0
3. Chrysler Corp.	25	−2.9
4. Schering-Plough Corp.	54⅛	−2.4
5. Goodyear Tire & Rubber	57⅞	−2.3

MEDIA PERFORMANCE

Winners	Close	% change
1. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich	6⅞	14.6
2. Chris Craft Ind.	21⅝	9.5
3. Times Mirror Co.	36⅞	6.9
4. Dow Jones & Co.	32½	6.1
5. Gannett Co.	36	2.8
Losers
1. McGraw-Hill	55¼	−5.5
2. Scripps Howard Broadcasting	78	−5.4
3. Media General	43⅞	−4.6
4. Belo, AH Corp.	46	−3.4
5. Turner Broadcasting	10¾	−3.4

Source: Lomas Publications. For week ending 2/19/88. Based on AA's top 100 advertisers and media companies.

TV spending

(Continued from Page 1)

to be a record level for Kellogg.

There was other good news for the networks, according to recently released spending figures from Broadcast Advertisers Reports, the unit of New York-based Arbitron Ratings Co. that tracks TV ad spending.

The nation's top 25 network TV advertisers—which represented half of 1987's total net revenues of $8.81 billion—upped their total spending by $248 million over 1986 levels. The average increase for top 25 advertisers was 8.4%.

Only five of those advertisers, including P&G, pulled back. They include No. 2 ranked Philip Morris Cos., which cut spending by 3% to $331.9 million, and Sears, Roebuck & Co., which reversed a strong network growth cycle in recent years and cut spending 30% to $89.9 million.

Other advertisers also set spending records. RJR Nabisco, in a dramatic yearend spending burst, pumped spending up 34.7% to $209.8 million. Mars Inc., which was the 25th-largest buyer last year, surged to No. 17 on the strength of a 50% increase to $130.3 million.

There also was frenetic activity in the automotive ranks. No. 3-ranked General Motors Corp. lifted its budget by 17% to $273 million.

But Ford Motor Co. cut spending by almost 15% to $161.2 million. Chrysler Corp. purchased American Motors Corp. last August, and that contributed to an increase of 45% to $182.7 million.

Cincinnati-based P&G's huge spending reversal is historic for the nation's largest advertiser, which has been the pre-eminent TV advertiser since the medium was born.

P&G had boosted its net TV budget by about 10.4% a year since 1960, when it spent $46.4 million. It increased its net TV budget almost continuously since that time, with brief respites in the mid-1960s and early '70s.

But that ended in 1986.

"Declining efficiences overall in network, because of excessive pricing," have forced P&G to put the money elsewhere, said Greg Ostroff, a securities analyst with Goldman, Sachs & Co. "They've increasingly shifted away from network due to declining efficiencies, period."

But Charles Crane, VP and advertising-industry analyst with Prudential-Bache, said, "I wouldn't read too much doom and gloom into [the spending cut], but it's noteworthy when the behemoth of behemoths moves things around. I don't get the sense from agencies that this has affected them."

> "Declining efficiences overall in network, because of excessive pricing," have forced P&G to put the money elsewhere.
>
> —Analyst

A P&G spokesman said, "Spending in any given year will vary based on the given needs of brands. For example, new products or new initiatives on the part of existing brands" will affect spending.

P&G introduced several major brands in 1985, including Crest Tartar Control toothpaste and Ultra Pampers disposable diapers, which directly affected P&G's record $492 million outlay that year. Spending for the acquired Richardson-Vicks also was added to the P&G column that year.

Some analysts said the shifts are more fundamental. "I'm sure they're putting a lot more money in cable TV and a lot more into coupons" and promotions, said Jack Salzman, a VP at Goldman, Sachs. Syndication TV also is being emphasized at P&G.

There may be other reasons behind the drop. P&G owns a substantial block of daytime TV, which it uses for its own productions, and a softening daytime market in the past few years, as well as flat ratings on some of P&G's own shows, probably has caused the value of its own commercial time to fall.

P&G keeps some commercial time in its shows for its own brands; the networks sell the rest of the time.

BAR reported that the biggest fall-off in P&G's spending was in daytime. BAR counted $245 million worth of P&G daytime inventory in 1986; that had fallen 19.3% to $197.7 million last year.

Kellogg's whopping increase is primarily due to a rash of new, heavily marketed products.

In 1987, it committed $100 million in marketing and ad support for only four brands: three new cereals—Mueslix, Nutrific and Pro Grain; and Nutri-Grain line extensions.

In addition, the No. 1 cold-cereal marketer maintained heavy support for established lines, including Frosted Flakes and Special K.

But some of the big 1987 spending increase probably is attributable to a negligible increase the previous year. Kellogg typically does not comment on ad spending reports.

Automotive spending was affected by shifting market share patterns. Detroit-based GM put millions of dollars behind new entries in the fourth quarter, including the Buick Regal, the first of the GM-10 cars.

The company also lost nearly 5% market share last year and boosted spending to reverse the loss. Dearborn, Mich.-based Ford, however, had factories operating at full capacity to meet higher demand. Ad spending then softened.#

Julie Liesse Erickson in Chicago and Raymond Serafin in Detroit contributed to this story.

ABC

(Continued from Page 3)

work would have to deliver any make-good payments.

"With the exception of [the night of Feb. 13], they've done fine," said Bill Hadlock, exec VP, Leo Burnett USA, Chicago. "I suspect ABC is not unhappy; I know I'm happy."

If ratings do not pick up, ABC probably will offer some advertisers make-goods within the Games because some airtime was withheld for this purpose.

Some advertisers were optimistic ABC could make up the differential this week.

"They're within striking distance," said Bill Croasdale, senior VP, Backer Spielvogel Bates, New York.

Audience demographics also have been strong for the Games. "The audience comp has been higher than anticipated, and when you balance that out vs. household [ratings], then it's got to be pretty close to washing out," said Steve Grubbs, senior VP, BBDO Worldwide.

Clearly, ABC's success hinges on the success of the U.S. hockey team. "I think the ratings will go down if the hockey team is out of it," said Bob Watson, director of advertising services, AT&T. Mr. Watson's company concentrated its entire Olympic effort on the Feb. 21 telecast.

A major concern looms for NBC, whose telecast of the Summer Olympics in Seoul kicks off.

NBC has sold just over 70% of the total ad time in the event. One top ad executive said NBC could have trouble selling the balance of time if ABC's Games fall flat.

"Obviously, we hope ABC will do as good as it can for a lot of reasons," said Bert Zeldin, VP-Olympics sales and marketing at NBC.

Like ABC, NBC also is guaranteeing a 21 prime-time rating for the Summer Games.

Mr. Zeldin added, however, "I don't think [ABC's performance] will make any difference [in the NBC sales effort], but it would enhance it if their ratings were very good."

ABC got a 9.9 prime-time rating on Feb. 13. The network got an 19.7 rating on Feb. 14; an 18.1 rating on Feb. 15; a 25.5 rating on Feb. 16; a 19.3 rating on Feb. 17; and an estimated 19 rating on Feb. 18.#

Spot lineup irks viewers

NEW YORK—ABC-TV's commercial format for the Olympic Games is under attack.

Many commercials, including one for Chrysler Corp., interrupted goals by the U.S. hockey team during a crucial match against Czechoslovakia.

Also, during a game against the Soviet Union, ABC cut away to show skiing and skating, and missed two goals by the U.S.

"It's a fact of life in commercial TV and we deal with it the best we can," said an ABC spokesman, who added that advertisers had not criticized the network over this.

However, other sources said there was concern by some advertisers, and that ABC indicated it would shorten commercial pods in the hockey telecasts to minimize the chance for a recurrence.#

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

February 29, 1988

*3-DIGIT 200
90949 AAOO 8809 COMP A42
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

- C2710-1
3/4/88

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Last Minute News

Sears revamps retail operations

CHICAGO—Sears, Roebuck & Co. this week will announce a sweeping restructuring of its retail operations, Crain's Chicago Business reports. The No. 1 retailer has been faced with languishing sales and profits in its flagship merchandise group. Sears' 27 buying groups will become independent, vertically integrated business units, each with greater control over the selling process. Entire layers of management structure will be eliminated in some cases as the reorganization is phased in during the next two to three years. Significant cuts through layoffs or attrition in the headquarters office are expected. The strategy is seen as an admission by Sears that each of its product lines has different merchandising and management needs, and that its current structure prevents the company from responding quickly to customer tastes.

JWT joins Revlon review

NEW YORK—Revlon Group has been talking to J. Walter Thompson USA about its $25 million media-buying account, resigned by Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, as well as creative assignments, sources say. Reportedly, Young & Rubicam also has been added to the media re-

(Continued on Page 8)

Sorrell on target with JWT profits

By LAUREL WENTZ

LONDON—WPP Group Chairman Martin Sorrell appears to be on track in fulfilling the ambitious profit targets he set for J. Walter Thompson Co. when he bought the troubled communications giant last summer.

When Mr. Sorrell makes public WPP Group's 1987 financial results March 2, the announcement is expected to show concrete evidence of cost cutting at its JWT subsidiary and strong growth for other WPP companies.

By this time next year Mr. Sorrell should be far ahead of the goals he set for JWT's operating margins.

Although the figure for 1987 is expected to be only 5.5%, up from the agency's 1986 margins of 4%, the 1988 figure is expected to rise to 10%, a goal Mr. Sorrell initially hadn't planned to reach until 1990.

Financial analysts here and in the U.S. are forecasting pretax profit of $21 million to $22 million for WPP in 1987, which includes five months of JWT contributions through December.

Predictions for 1988 are even higher—more than double that of 1987.

Although there is no comparable figure for 1986, last year's results are an improvement over both JWT's and WPP's separate earlier figures.

"Our goal during the first six months has been to put things right with the directors of the different branches as far as precise financial goals are concerned," Mr. Sorrell recently told a European advertising publication. "We give

(Continued on Page 86)

Rolling out fresh foods

Carnation gets a head start

By MARCY MAGIERA

LOS ANGELES—Carnation Co. is establishing itself as early leader in a market that's whetting the appetites of many major food companies.

Carnation is racing to build a national presence in the fresh prepared foods business before Kraft Inc. and General Foods Corp. go national with products currently in limited test markets.

Carnation President-CEO Timm Crull told ADVERTISING AGE his company will invest as much as $40 million on the midyear national introduction of its Contadina Fresh Pasta & Cheese line.

Pasta & Cheese, like the other companies' experimental lines, is designed to compete with gourmet takeout food from restaurants and a growing number of supermarket deli sections.

"We want to determine [the parameters of] the category and own a big piece of it," said Stephen Cunliffe, president of the independently run Pasta & Cheese subsidiary. "That means pushing to get national before anyone else."

The Pasta & Cheese line consists of six fresh-cut pastas, nine filled pastas and nine pasta sauces. Carnation expects to add "second-generation" Italian-style line extensions by the end of the

(Continued on Page 88)

Inside:

Gore's new plan: Go negative. P. 2

Murder-for-hire ads get hit. P. 2

Lee Iacocca drops out (of ads). P. 26

Super Tuesday: A marketer's guide. P. 72

Is this man lying?
See Page 87

America's Corp.

Conner pushes for logos

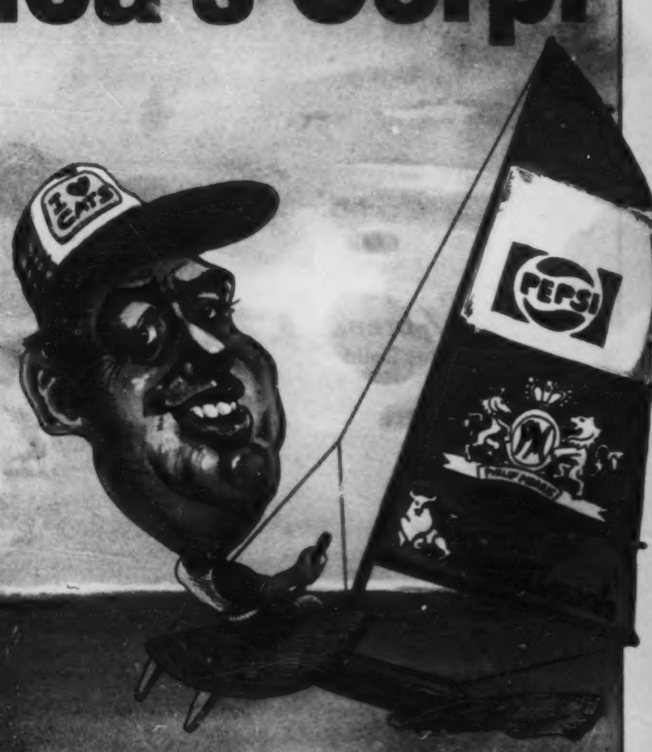

Illustration by David Kramik

By PATRICK Mc[illegible]GAN

If skipper Dennis Con[illegible]r gets his way, corporate log[illegible] will appear on the sails, h[illegible]s and crew of his catamaran during the America's Cup races this fall.

Mr. Conner's plan would make the logos of Merrill Lynch, Pepsi-Cola Co., Philip Morris Cos. and one other company visible throughout the nationally televised races.

In previous America's Cup [illegible] appeared on sails during practice and travel but not during races.

"Not only will [the logos] be on the sails, they'll be on the boat," said Mr. Conner, who is the skipper of the San Diego Yacht Club's defense of the America's Cup.

Merrill Lynch, Pepsi and Philip Morris have made sponsorship deals with Sail America, the syndicate organizing the defense of the cup.

A fourth company has signed up as a sponsor, Mr. Conner said, but he declined to identify it.

As organizer, Sail America decides how and where sponsors' logos can appear during the races, said Peter Isler, VP-communications of Dennis Conner Sports, a sports-marketing company.

Previously, individual race organizers have established the guidelines for sponsors. However, any guideline or proposed rule can be challenged.

Mr. Conner has told sponsors he wants four logos to appear on the hulls of the boat during all races.

He also said that each company would have the main sail and crew members' clothing to itself for one race.

His plan is contingent on the New Zealand challenger agreeing to a best-of-seven series, assuring at least four races. In a best-of-three series, the four logos would appear together on the sail, under Mr. Conner's plan.

"This is just a post-contract signing development," said Cathy Lieber, director of event promotions at New York-based Philip Morris. "It came as a big

(Continued on Page 86)

Campaign 88

Will Gore get gory?

ALBERT GORE

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

WASHINGTON—Sen. Albert Gore Jr. (D., Tenn.) is turning to a veteran media "streetfighter" from the Deep South to jump-start his presidential campaign.

Only 13 days before the crucial Super Tuesday, the Gore campaign hired Raymond Strother, who is expected to unleash a barrage of "attack" ads.

Work by Raymond D. Strother Ltd., Washington, will supplement Gore's Philadelphia-based agency, The Campaign Group.

Mr. Strother, 47, was unavailable for comment, and a Gore campaign spokesman said only that Mr. Strother's shop will help the other agency.

"Ray Strother is fairly versatile and capable of very effective negative ads, though he's also good at positive stuff," said Greg Schneiders, partner in political agency Hamilton, Frederick & Schneiders.

Mr. Strother has criticized Sen. Gore's decision to bypass Iowa and New Hampshire for an all-or-nothing gamble on Super Tuesday March 8, which involves primaries and caucuses in 20 states.

"Gore's got to finish first or second in the South," said Mr. Schneiders, media adviser to former presidential candidate Bruce Babbitt. "He's now brought in someone who's from the South, understands Southern politics better than anyone in this media business and is very strong in the closing days of a campaign."

It was during the closing days of campaigning in New Hampshire that Vice President George Bush broke negative ads against Sen. Robert Dole (R., Kan.) and won the primary. That scenario looks plausible for Sen. Gore, said Adam Goodman, VP at the Robert Goodman Agency, a Baltimore-based shop that works for Republicans.

"There's been a real trend in the last 14 days to negative ads," Mr. Goodman said, "and as that lesson is learned by Al Gore, who's got to do well on Super Tuesday, I think he will take a more aggressive approach."

He said Mr. Strother, a Louisiana native, "has a sense of the pulse of the South" and might be more attuned than The Campaign Group to what media will work in the South.

"Going negative wouldn't surprise me now, and Ray Strother is . . . a streetfighter who's not afraid to mix it up," Mr. Goodman said.

The most likely target of negative spots from Sen. Gore would be Rep. Richard Gephardt (D., Mo.), Mr. Schneiders said.

"He can't go negative against every other Democrat," Mr. Schneiders said. "When you spray buckshot like that, it will come back and hurt you.

"But if the polls are saying Gore is sharing votes with Gephardt—looking for the moderate-to-conservative Southern Democrat—then it would make sense to go after Gephardt. He's the logical target, not [Massachusetts Gov. Michael] Dukakis, whose appeal is to the more liberal Southern voters."#

Highlights

NEWS

12 C/D expands holdings
Armed with a new direct-marketing unit, Chiat/-Day plans to continue diversifying.

24 Leaf candy is no dud
After four years of repackaging and improving its candy, Leaf Inc. says it's ready for the majors.

30 That morning kick
The National Coffee Association could be getting ready to join the cola wars.

34 Domino's gets fresh
Delivery is not enough for Domino's, which is expanding its ad theme to include "hot and fresh."

36 Lay's spices chips
Frito-Lay is testing a "hard-bite" potato chip in a continuing commitment to regional marketing.

50 Saatchis show off art
Charles and Doris Saatchi unveil a collection of New York contemporary art in an exhibition in London.

64 Spring break ups and downs
While Fort Lauderdale revelry shrinks, two Texas resort towns are luring spring breakers.

70 FDA clarifies Sandoz dispute
The FDA asked Sandoz to halt its newspaper campaign because its claims were incorrect, not because the ad was directed at consumers.

74 D.C. monthlies renovate
Two money-losing Washington magazines are being revamped to drum up enthusiasm.

82 GM taps Four Tops
General Motors Corp.'s Oldsmobile division recruited the Four Tops to introduce the Cutlass Supreme at a half-dozen parties.

INTERNATIONAL

40 Brazilian meltdown
General Foods Corp.'s Kibon subsidiary is aiming to melt the frigid ice cream market in the tropical climate of Sao Paulo with lifestyle advertising, positioning changes and new products.

AD REVIEW: Space travel reaches earthly ads. P. 90.

SPECIAL REPORT: Auto marketing starts after P. 48.

Departments

AdWhirl 83
Best of Press 46
Brady 54
Brady's Bunch 70
Classifieds 79
Direct Marketing 38
DM Beat 38
Editorials 16
For the Record 85
Forum 18
Garfield 52
Global Gallery 42
Letters 20
MediaWorks 68
People 77
PeopleWorks 76
Photo Review 66
Slices 52
The Next Trend 54
Words 52

Vol. 59, No. 9—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908).

April start date

MasterCard sets 'difference' drive

By JUDITH GRAHAM

While the Visa card is grabbing the glory as an official sponsor of the Olympics, MasterCard is developing its game plan for the months ahead.

MasterCard International will reposition itself as a company that "Makes a difference." Advertising for all MasterCard products will be overhauled, sources close to the company said, though ad spending is expected to remain level at about $40 million.

MasterCard's new marketing direction will be formally proposed to member banks at its March board meeting.

The "Makes a difference" theme is a refinement of last year's cause-related promotion, themed "Choose to make a difference," that ran from Oct. 1 through Dec. 31, giving donations to various charities.

That promotion, which MasterCard says was a major success, contributed to a 25% rise in cardmember charges to more than $250 billion during the crucial Thanksgiving-to-Christmas holiday season.

The "Makes a difference" theme is seen as warmer and more substantive than the "Master the possibilities" theme that was launched in 1986, and it underscores MasterCard's actual benefits as opposed to its potential, sources said.

MasterCard's 1988 strategy is to spread its ad budget more carefully over a larger group of products. The first major creative for "Makes a difference" will be two 30-second network TV spots, breaking in April for Gold MasterCard. Lintas:New York handles the $5 million-plus effort, which is the first foray into TV for the product.

Last November, American

(Continued on Page 86)

'Soldier' loses protection plea for 'hit man' ad

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

A federal judge last week refused to give First Amendment protection to an ad placed by an alleged murder-for-hire "hit man" soliciting business.

The advertisement, which ran in several 1984 issues of Soldier of Fortune, said, "Ex-Marine—Nam Vets. Weapons specialist, jungle warfare, pilot, M.E., high risk assignments in U.S. or overseas. World security group."

A reader, Robert Black, answered the classified ad, placed by Atlanta mercenary John Wayne Hearn, and allegedly arranged for Mr. Hearn to murder Mr. Black's wife, Sandra.

As a result, Mr. Black is facing execution in Texas on a murder-for-hire conviction, and Mr. Hearn is serving three life sentences in Florida, two on other convictions.

In the suit against Soldier of Fortune, Mrs. Black's family charged that the magazine was negligent for not investigating the nature of the ad, and is seeking $22 million.

Lawyers for Soldier of Fortune, which is published by Omega Group, Boulder, Colo., have argued that the First Amendment insulated the magazine from responsibility.

The magazine's lawyers contend the ad didn't specifically propose illegal conduct.

But U.S. District Court Judge David Hittner on Feb. 25 rejected those arguments and sent the case to the jury to decide whether the magazine should pay damages.

Slade Metcalf, chairman of the legal affairs committee of the Magazine Publishers of America, said a judgment against the magazine might make other publications "more reluctant in taking ads of a controversial nature of ads that could cause harm to anyone."#

BEST AVAILABLE COPY

ADWATCH

AdWatch survey of advertising awareness Top 10 in January

One thousand people were asked: Of all the advertising you have seen, heard or read in the past 30 days, which advertisement first comes to mind? Source: SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb.

Rank 1/88	12/87	Advertiser	Agency
1	4	McDonald's	Leo Burnett USA
2	2	California raisins	Foote, Cone & Belding
3	7	Ford	J. Walter Thompson USA
4	1	Budweiser/Bud Light	D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles/DDB Needham
5*	9	Chevrolet	Lintas:Campbell-Ewald
5*	5	Pepsi-Cola	BBDO Worldwide
7*	6	Miller/Miller Lite	J. Walter Thompson USA/Backer Spielvogel Bates
7*	—	Tide	Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton
9	3	Coca-Cola	McCann-Erickson
10*	8	Chrysler	Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt
10*	—	Toyota	Saatchi & Saatchi DFS

* indicates a tie

'Mac attack' wins battle for ad recall

By SCOTT HUME

Throw an extra bit of whimsy into McDonald's advertising and the recall needle jumps.

McDonald zoomed to the top of the charts in September with the "Mac Tonight" mini-campaign featuring the McMan-in-the-Moon character promoting the Big Mac sandwich.

It happened again last month, when McDonald's emerged with the best recall after it introduced a series of funny commercials, also for the Big Mac.

January was the Big Mac's 20th birthday. To celebrate, the chain aired a series of spots—from Leo Burnett USA, Chicago—graphically portraying the incredible power of the fabled "Big Mac attack."

In one spot, viewers were treated to a high-speed journey from home to the closest McDonald's through the eyes of an actual "attack" sufferer.

Jumping over obstacles, taking a shortcut down a child's backyard slide and zooming down the street, the "attackee" arrives at McDonald's and passes the Big Mac moonman in a rush to the counter.

You don't forget a journey like that. While McDonald's advertising seems to have a permanent home among the top 10 in recall in ADVERTISING AGE's monthly adWatch surveys, those commercials, coupled with local-market advertising promoting Big Mac price discounts, moved McDonald's into the top spot in January.

Rounding out last month's top 10 were the California Raisin Advisory Board's lovable dancers; Ford Motor Co.; Anheuser-Busch's Budweiser/Bud Light brand team; General Motors Corp.'s Chevrolet and Pepsi-Cola Co. in a dead heat for the No. 5 spot; Miller Brewing Co.'s Miller/Miller Lite brand duo tied Procter & Gamble Co.'s Tide laundry detergent for No. 7; Coca-Cola Co.; and Chrysler Corp. and Toyota Motor Sales USA tied for No. 10.

AdWatch is a joint project of AA and SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb. Advertising awareness is measured by asking a nationally projectable sample to name the first advertising that comes to mind from all seen, heard or read in the previous 30 days. In January, 1,000 adults were polled by telephone.

Among changes in individual product categories last month:

- After closing the gap with category leader Pepsi-Cola in past months, Coca-Cola lost ground last month in the soft drink category.

Coke's was the first soft drink advertising to come to mind for 27.8% of the sample, down 3.2 percentage points from 31% in December. Pepsi fell 0.3 points to a 34.4% share.

- E&J Gallo Winery's wine advertising remained in the No. 1 spot last month with a 12.4% share of first mentions. Its Bartles & Jaymes wine cooler tied with Banfi Vintners Riunite for second place with 5.4%. Riunite's recall was down 4.6 points from December.#

For more information or data, contact SRI Research Center, 301 S. 68th St., Lincoln, Neb. 68506. Phone: (402) 489-0351.

CORRECTIONS & CLARIFICATIONS

- Ralston Purina Co. will introduce Bran News cereal in selected markets in March (AA, Feb. 15, P. 1; Feb. 22, P. 10). At that time, its Double Chex moves into the East Central area of the U.S. These products are not moving into national distribution in March.
- A 1985 IBM Corp. business-to-business target video marketing program was referred to generically as "Videoware" in an article entitled "Selling Through Video Wins Proponents" (AA, Jan. 18, P. S-2). Videoware Corp. actually is the name of a New York-based target video marketing company that IBM hired to carry out the project.#

Meet Your New Creative Partner...
MACINTOSH™.

The Macintosh has finally arrived at the "Creative Desktop". And the advertising industry will never be the same again.

Macintosh II

Desktop Production...
From start to finish.

Join us at any one of our "Creative Office" seminars, where we will show you how. At 10:00 am and 2:30 pm on the dates below we will be introducing the "Creative Office", and conducting a live simulation of how the Macintosh can become your creative partner.

You'll see how a production can be created and assembled on an Apple® Computer DeskTop Publishing system...starting with a concept. Then copy. The graphics. The page layout. We will turn it all into a winning presentation to the client. You'll even walk away with the finished layout.

FREE SEMINARS

- New York City March 8, 1988
- Stamford, CT March 16, 1988
- Philadelphia, PA March 22, 1988
- Boston, MA March 24, 1988

Call Georgia now for reservations:

In New York City 212/972-9250
In Stamford, CT 203/356-1920
In Philadelphia, PA 215/977-9302
In Boston, MA 617/542-4554

Or send in this coupon... Right now.

Seating is limited–
The possibilities are endless.

Macintosh...
the power to be your best!

Authorized Dealer
©1987 Apple and the Apple logo are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc.
Macintosh is a trademark of Apple Computer, Inc.

Please reserve a place for me at "The Creative Office" seminar.

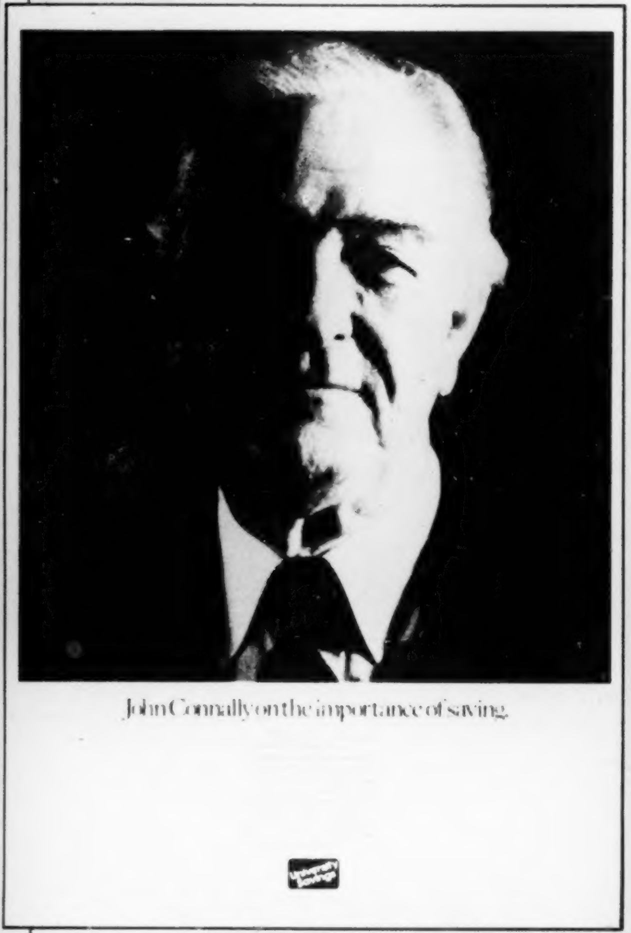
____ 10:00 am OR ____ 2:30 pm
____ Marriott Marquis in NYC
____ Stamford Marriott, Stamford CT
____ Holiday Inn Center City, Philadelphia, PA
____ Marriott Long Wharf, Boston, MA

Name ____
Company ____
Title ____
Address ____
City ____ State ____ Zip ____
Phone: O: ____
H: ____

Please send coupon to:
The Computer Factory Att: MYRA
219 E. 44th St. NY, New York 10038

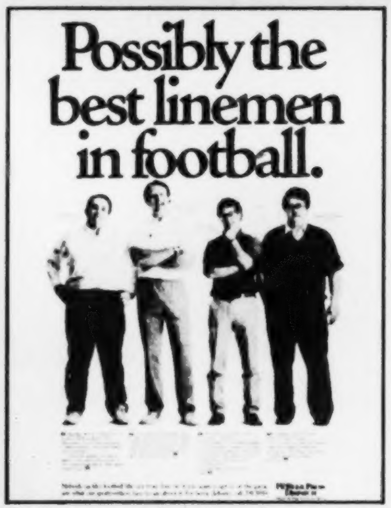
THE COMPUTER FACTORY

BEST OF PRESS



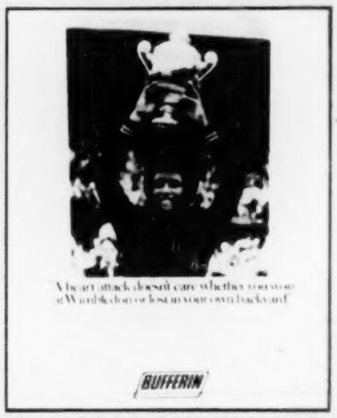
John Connally on the importance of saving.
University Savings

Using a Texan with a Texas-size problem, here is a testimonial you can trust. Considering John Connally's predicament, the headline amounts to black humor, and while anyone can get it, credit Taylor Brown & Barnhill, Houston, for creating a campaign neither the bank nor Mr. Connally will feel embarrassment about. Creative director: Dick Smith; art director: Mike Fazende; copywriter: Jane Child; photographer: Henry Sandbank.



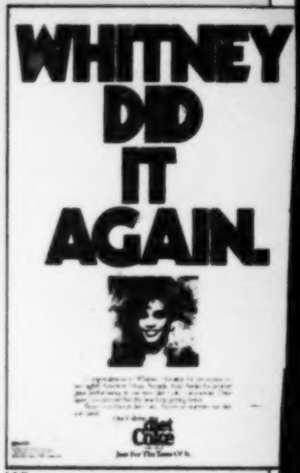
Possibly the best linemen in football.

Sports-page readers always have a close relationship to sportswriters. So why not introduce the guys with a slice of their prose? Credit Clarity Coverdale Rueff, Minneapolis, for playing to writers' egos and readers' curiosity. At least you know they haven't missed any meals lately. Art director: Jac Coverdale; copywriter: Jerry Fury; photographers: Jim Arndt, Paul Sinkler.



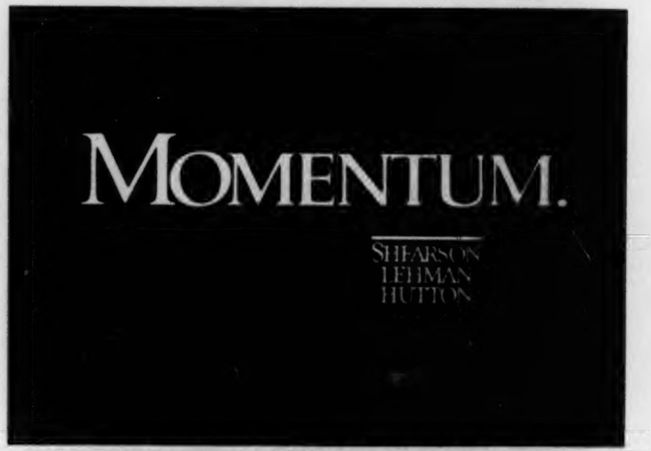
A heart attack doesn't care whether you won at Wimbledon or lost in your own backyard.
BUFFERIN

You can't beat a testimonial when it comes on the heels of a study that shows aspirin may help prevent heart attacks. But credit Laurence, Charles, Free & Lawson, New York, for not being too heavy-handed. Instead, the Ashe quote delivers the story. Art director: Steve Pashkoff; copywriter: Dan Franklin.



WHITNEY DID IT AGAIN.
diet Coke
Just For The Taste Of It.

When a company congratulates its own spokeswoman, there aren't many surprises. And there are none here. But credit Coke and Lintas:New York for moving fast and targeting the success of its young star. All Whitney would have to do is show up at the American Music Awards and the copy would have worked. Executive creative director: Don Gill; art director: Michelina Pagano; copywriters: Peter Kellogg, Jordan Allen.



MOMENTUM.
SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON

One company has gotten a lot of mileage out of a trotting bull, but Shearson Lehman is showing what can be done with just words. In this case, one word that says it all after it gobbled up E.F. Hutton. Despite the new edition, credit McCann-Erickson USA, New York, for keeping it seamless. Creative directors: Bruce Nelson, John Nieman; assistant creative director/copywriter: David Liemer; senior art director: Marc Eisenoff.

Best of Press selections are made by a committee of three: Hank Simons, VP-creative director, Newspaper Advertising Bureau, New York; James Duneway, VP-information, Newspaper Advertising Bureau; and Patrick Reilly, Advertising Age newspaper industry reporter. National System Inc., St. Louis, provides tearsheets to the Newspaper Advertising Bureau for much of this work. Agencies, clients and newspapers are invited to submit ads for review. Submissions should be sent to Mr. Reilly in AA's New York bureau.

Newspaper ad spending up for holidays

NEW YORK—Concerns about decreased consumer spending after the Oct. 19 Wall Street plunge encouraged department stores and general merchandise stores to step up their usual holiday ad blitzes.

In the newspapers measured for the ADVERTISING AGE Flash Report, the department stores and general merchandise stores advertising categories posted $6.6 million and $10.7 million gains, respectively, in December 1987, compared with one year earlier.

General merchandise had the biggest year-to-year dollar gain of any of the 16 categories tracked for the December report by Media Records.

The amusements advertising category continued a surge that began last summer, largely because of the sustained box office sales boom for Hollywood moviemakers. Amusements ads posted a $7.2 million gain, or a 20.5% increase. That follows dollar increases in October of $8.1 million and in November of $8.4 million.

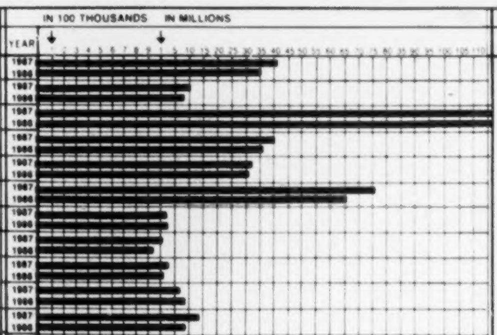
In general, newspaper ad spending surged in December. Only five of the 16 categories were down from year-ago levels: alcoholic beverages; airlines; banks and trust companies; public service utilities and communications; and stock, bond and investment houses.

One of December's gainers, new-car advertising, has been running ahead of 1986 levels through most of '87. The new-car ad category was up to $24.9 million in December, a 14.5% increase.

Ad spending in cigarettes, a category that often ran behind 1986 spending levels last year, showed one of the largest percentage increases to $2.6 million, or a 31.6% jump. December was the third time in the last four months that cigarette spending has picked up from '86 levels. However, the December spending level was still below the $3.1 million spent in November.

The largest percentage increase came in publishing and media, where spending increased 33% to $13 million.#

FLASH REPORT: Newspaper advertising investment for December



December 1987		DOLLARS		CHANGE
CATEGORIES	YEAR	1987	1986	ACTUAL $ G OR L	% G OR L
Amusements	1987 1986	$42,506,680	$35,261,655	+7,245,025	+20.5
Computer stores & supplies	1987 1986	10,281,968	8,629,386	+1,652,582	+19.2
Department stores	1987 1986	139,425,697	132,802,960	+6,622,737	+5.0
Food stores	1987 1986	41,926,459	37,634,753	+4,291,706	+11.4
Radio, TV, phonographs, records	1987 1986	33,286,905	32,740,824	+546,081	+1.7
General merchandise stores	1987 1986	76,346,281	65,571,725	+10,774,556	+16.4
Alcoholic beverages	1987 1986	3,365,147	3,788,759	-423,612	-11.2
Cameras, photo supplies & services	1987 1986	1,118,520	950,834	+167,686	+17.6
Computers, equipment & services	1987 1986	3,671,513	2,975,833	+695,680	+23.4
Public service utilities & communications	1987 1986	7,083,363	9,013,966	-1,930,603	-21.4
Publishing & media	1987 1986	13,033,318	9,798,229	+3,235,089	+33.0
Cigarettes	1987 1986	2,580,758	1,960,942	+619,816	+31.6
Airlines	1987 1986	9,507,533	9,842,509	-334,976	-3.4
Passenger cars-new	1987 1986	24,936,257	21,769,751	+3,166,506	+14.5
Banks & trust companies	1987 1986	5,834,434	6,893,482	-1,059,048	-15.4
Stock, bond & investment houses	1987 1986	1,587,494	1,715,439	-127,945	-7.5

This Flash Report of newspaper advertiser investments, compiled for ADVERTISING AGE by Media Records, is derived from tabulations that cover 29 dailies and 22 Sunday editions in 15 cities: Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Washington and Youngstown.

Source: Media Records Inc.

Special Report

Automotive Marketing

Dan Hurley

Spinoffs lead carmakers upward

By Anita M. Busch

Following Acura's lead, Nissan and Toyota are planning to venture into the luxury car segment by introducing upscale divisions by 1990. Other import marketers are trying to upgrade their image as well.

Toyota's Lexus division, Torrance, Calif., and Nissan's Infiniti division, Carson City, Calif., are positioning themselves to compete with American Honda Motor Co.'s Acura division and domestic and European luxury lines in the 1989-1990 model years.

Other importers with image problems, including Yugo and Audi, are tackling the market with new ad campaigns designed to change consumer perception.

Yugo America, Upper Saddle River, N.J., whose $3,990 price tag and poor car performance has been cited in the press as inexpensive but cheap, will advertise the car's durability and endurance. Audi of America is battling to regain consumer confidence after a substantial 1987 U.S. sales decline. The Troy, Mich.-based company introduced its 80/90 series to the U.S. market for model year 1988.

Meanwhile, the Big Three domestic carmakers each have launched image-oriented campaigns focusing on product design, brand identification or new model introductions to win over U.S. consumers.

Ford's Lincoln-Mercury division, Dearborn, Mich., will put most of its marketing dollars behind Lincoln-branded models and the redesigned Continental.

Chrysler, Highland Park, Mich., with its newly acquired Jeep/Eagle division, wants to establish the Eagle brand as a luxury line.

Detroit-based General Motors will try to create a distinct brand identity for each of its divisions. Concept cars presented in January at the "GM Teamwork and Technology" auto show in New York along with the company's ad efforts hope to reflect that move.

1987 model year sales by car share

Source: Automotive News

The Acura gambit pays off for Honda

By Ruth Stroud

When American Honda Motor Co. first introduced the Acura in March, 1986, it was viewed as a bold but risky move.

Critics wondered if a Japanese auto company could succeed in a European-dominated luxury car market.

After nearly two years of marketing efforts, American Honda's Acura division, has become the leader in the import luxury auto market. More than 160,000 of the cars were sold in the U.S. during the Acura division's first 21 months in operation—109,470 of them last year.

That figure tops 1987 sales of key competitors, including BMW, Mercedes Benz, Volvo and Audi. Motor Trend named the Legend Coupe 1987 Import Car of the Year, and Acura ranked number one in a customer satisfaction index by J.D. Power & Associates, a Westlake Village, Calif.-based automotive researcher.

Honda's success in the luxury performance automotive segment—perceived to be one of the few growth areas in a basically flat car market—has lit a fire under its major rivals. Both Nissan and Toyota announced plans last year to introduce their own luxury car lines in the fall of 1989.

Other Japanese car companies are already pushing upscale lines. Both Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America, Fountain Valley, Calif., and Mazda Motors Corp., Irvine, Calif., introduced high-end models last fall. American Isuzu Motors, Whittier, Calif., has been studying the market as well.

Honda, while confident that its 3½ year lead on Toyota and Nissan will make the Acura a tough act to follow, isn't resting. The company's Gardena, Calif.-based Acura division will introduce two cars in the 1990 and 1991 model years, including Acura's first V-8 sedan and a mid-engine sports car.

Analysts expect Honda's Acura division to introduce two updated versions of its flagship models—the Legend sedan and coupe—in 1991 to compete against specialty coupes and smaller four-door sedans from Lexus and Infiniti.

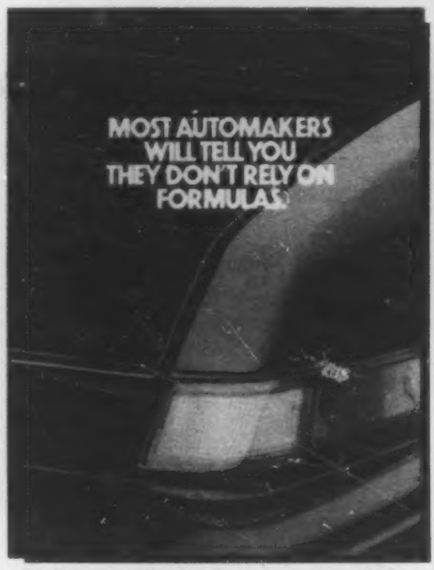
"We can hear the footsteps [of the competition] and . . . we're trying to lay as much track as we possibly can before they start running against us," says Eric Conn, manager of automobile advertising for both Acura and Honda cars.

Honda was the first Japanese automaker to open a U.S. auto plant and the first to announce last fall that it would export American-made cars overseas.

"It's our feeling we were here first, so we have the right to choose the trail we want to go down," says Mr. Conn. Honda's aim is to maintain the Acura image in its advertising "without becoming reactionary," he adds.

So far, Acura advertising has taken on European automakers rather than the Japanese. Ads announcing the introduction of the Acura Legend coupe last spring stated "the finest sports coupes no longer have to come from Europe." And, recent print and TV ads have touted the Legend Sedan as "the performance sedan that's making European automakers uncomfortable."

But American Honda insists that it isn't out to "get" the Europeans. "[The company] has always had the distinction of carving out a new niche for itself," says Ron Buckhammer, senior VP and management supervisor on the Acura account at Ketchum Advertising, Los Angeles.



Performance plus comfort equals Acura's formula for its Integra.

MAYBE THAT'S BECAUSE THEY JUST HAVEN'T FOUND THE RIGHT ONE.
ACURA

"For the time being we need to use the Europeans as a point of reference. But our intent is not to start an advertising war with [them]," Mr. Buckhammer says.

From the early decision to market Acura through a separate division and advertising agency, American Honda has sought to distinguish its upscale car line from Honda. Initially ads made little reference to the Honda connection. The cars were referred to as "Precision crafted automobiles" and, more recently, the tagline has changed to "Precision crafted performance."

Later ads have linked the performance of the vehicles with Honda's championship racing heritage. One TV spot shows a Formula One race car speeding around a track, ending with a shot of the Integra. "It's only because we can do this so well that we can do this," the announcer says. "Formula One technology—and it's street legal," the voiceover says in another spot.

Other TV spots have emphasized the Acura's press statements and awards. This year marks the first time Acura has used radio spots.

Acura: Total U.S. car sales

Acura division of American Honda Motor Co.

1986	52,869*
1987	109,470
% change	107%
Projected 1988	150,000- 160,000

*not a full year

Source: Automotive News. Projected sales from the Acura division of American Honda Motor Co.

The emphasis on performance and speed in commercials, with shots of the car cornering on race tracks and revving to top speeds within seconds, have had some minor drawbacks. One 60-year-old Californian was appalled when his insurance company refused to insure his new 1988 Acura Legend sedan because they considered it a high-performance vehicle. Other insurance companies agreed to insure the car, but only with expensive premiums.

"[It's] smarter to advertise the overall performance and feel of an interesting car than to talk about flat-out speed because that does attract the attention of insurance companies," says Mr. Buckhammer.

So far, Honda's ad strategy has paid off in sales. With less than half the dealers of each of its major competitors last year, Acura became the best-selling import in the U.S. luxury market. In 1987, total U.S. sales were up 52% from the previous year, from 52,869 in 1986 to 109,470 in 1987. The company is projecting sales of 150,000 to 160,000 this year and about 300,000 by 1990, according to Mr. Conn.

Whether that goal proves too ambitious depends how fast the luxury car market continues to grow. According to J.D. Power, sales of cars priced above $20,000 have nearly doubled since 1980 to about 1.2 million last year, while the overall automotive market has grown only half as fast.

Christopher Cedergren, senior automotive analyst at J.D. Power, projects the category will grow another 20%, or more than 200,000 cars by 1991.

Others in the industry are less sanguine. Carl Flesher, general manager, marketing communications for BMW of North America, Montvale, N.J., says BMW forecasts a slowdown in growth in the upscale vehicle market in the wake of Black Monday, the weak dollar and the new tax law.

"There's probably not room for everybody [in the luxury auto segment]," said George Peterson, president of AutoPacific Group, a Newport Beach, Calif. research company. However, Acura, because it introduced the first upscale Japanese import, will probably continue to do well, he says. But Nissan and Toyota, by waiting, may be introducing their upscale lines in the middle of a recession. "They're going to have to make more noise to get attention," Mr. Peterson says.

Toyota and Nissan are expected to spend at least $60 million each the first year to promote the introduction of Lexus and Infiniti. In contrast, American Honda's first year ad budget for Acura was about $20 million, not quite large enough to support the introduction of both the Legend and Integra lines, according to Mr. Peterson.

"A lot of their dealers were forced to advertise . . . probably more than they anticipated just to establish brand awareness and get the attention of the public."

The Acura ad budget increased to the mid-$40 million range in 1987 and is expected to rise above $50 million this year as the company almost doubles its dealer network to 400-plus and strives to meet sales projections. Still, Mr. Peterson says, "[The Acura division] probably could do more in terms of share of voice to make sure their cars are very solidly entrenched before the Lexus and Infiniti get here."

Acura's initial idea was to attract "move-up" Honda buyers—those ready to graduate into a more expensive model. Acura, benefiting from the falling dollar against the yen and mark, is now attracting the European import buyers, according to industry analysts. Although, the Japanese and European automakers both increased their car prices, the initial sticker price of European imports were higher. This sent more potential customers of BMW and Mercedes to Acura dealerships, industry analysts say.

Recent prices for the Legend models, the flagship of the Acura line, ranged from the mid-$21,000 range for a 4-door sedan to about $30,000 for the Legend Coupe LS. BMWs range from about $24,000 to $67,000, while Mercedes range from $30,000 to $70,000.

Competitors are quick to acknowledge the significance of Acura's presence in the luxury market and the coming of Lexus and Infiniti. "Any European manufacturer that sells cars in the $20,000-to-$40,000 range must be fully aware of what the Japanese [automakers'] plans are. If they aren't, based on what [the Japanese] have done in the past, they could pose a very grave threat," says Mr. Flesher.

Although BMW's U.S. sales were down about 10% in 1987 from the previous year, the German automaker says it isn't changing its strategies in response to Acura, according to Mr. Flesher.

The Acura's success has put European automakers on the defensive, according to Peter Serchuk, group creative director at Grey Advertising, New York, Mitsubishi's agency.

"Acura has come in and proved people will pay [more than $20,000] for a quality Japanese car if treated properly."

Ruth Stroud is AD AGE's Los Angeles-based correspondent.

Lexus learning the lexis of luxury

By Chuck Wingis

The official launch of the 1990 Lexus luxury car division of Toyota is still some 18 months away, but the pre-sell promotion has already begun. Lexus marketing executives, after studying some competitors' promotional strategies, expect to model their efforts after some of the auto industry's most successful launches. In fact, Lexus' research included talks with Acura dealers.

Chuck Wingis is an Advertising Age corporate editor.

■ Eager new Toyota division does its homework in studying other car launches

"Textbook example: Ford's Taurus and Sable launches were the best we've ever seen. The cars were sold out long before they came to market, a great pre-sell," says Janet Thompson, the division's national marketing/operations manager. Ms. Thompson is former national ad manager for Toyota pickup trucks and one-time Chrysler Corp. executive.

Prototype Lexus models will be displayed at the first of the 1989 national auto shows next January. The finalized versions of the factory production units are expected to roll into dealer showrooms in September, 1989.

This year marketing strategies for Lexus—the car that Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A, Torrance, Calif., has promised will be "a dramatically new, world-class luxury performance sedan that will establish new standards in technology and performance"—will focus on image-building and name recognition.

Toyota: Total U.S. car sales

1986	641,195
1987	630,052
% change	−2%
Projected 1988	same as 1987

Source: Automotive News. Projected 1988 sales from Toyota Motor Sales USA

According to Ms. Thompson, "We're expecting to do a tremendous pre-sell. By the time of the official launch and dealership grand openings everything with a Lexus name on it will be sold and gone. They're exclusive cars, not mass-market vehicles. Supply will be about one less than demand."

Although Lexus was formally announced late last August, Toyota had the concept of the new division at least since January, 1987, when J. Davis Illingworth, previously the company's assistant national sales manager, was named corporate manager. Before joining Toyota in 1980, Mr. Illingworth had spent ten years at Chrysler Corp.

There are currently 40 staff members for the division; the company hopes to have more than 200 people on board by the fall 1989 launch date. Upcoming hirings will include administrators for sales development and auto shows/special events.

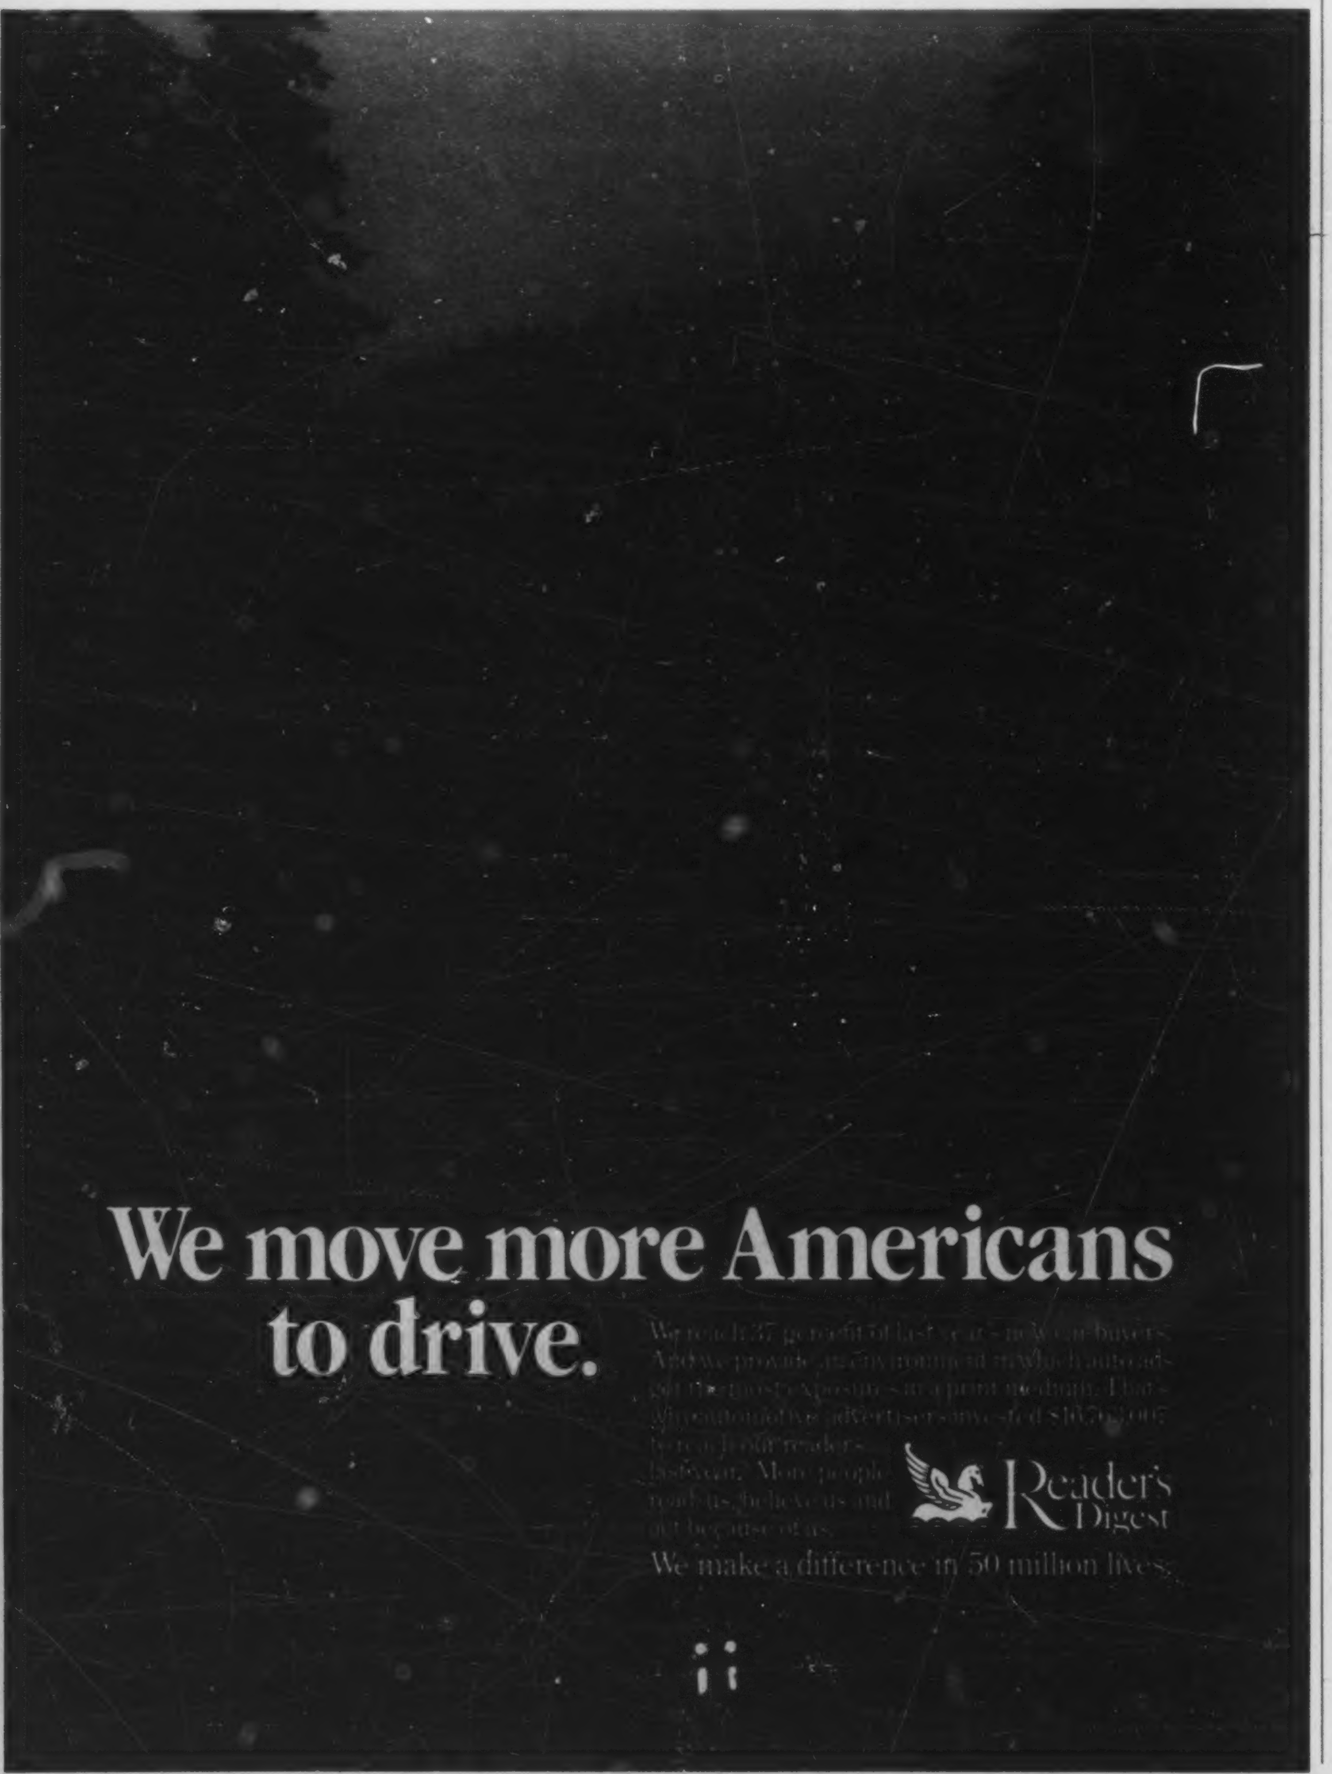
Lexus was hastened by the March, 1986, entry of American Honda Motor Co.'s luxury-car division, Acura, and by Nissan Motor Corp.'s Infiniti division, which was announced just a month ahead of Lexus.

When Toyota decided to join the other players in the luxury car segment, it moved quickly, selecting the company's Saatchi & Saatchi DFS, Torrance, Calif., as the agency for Lexus in early November.

The S&S offspring handling Lexus is known as Team One. Scott Gilbert, senior VP for Team One, had previously worked with Ms. Thompson for nearly a year executing the marketing strategy that established Toyota pickup trucks as a market leader.

The day after its selection, Team One began fine-tuning its research of the luxury car market and began creative

(Continued on Page S-10)



We move more Americans to drive.

We reach 37 percent of last year's new-car buyers. And we provide an environment in which auto ads get the most exposure in a print medium. That's why automotive advertisers invested [illegible] to reach our readers last year. More people read us, believe us and act because of us.

Reader's Digest

We make a difference in 50 million lives.

Image conscious? Here's what to b[illegible]

Practical? Get a Honda, not a Lamborghini. Fun-loving? Try a Porsche, [illegible]

Most prestigious	Most luxurious	Most reliable	Most practical	Most fun	Most sporty
1. Lamborghini	1. Mercedes	1. Mercedes	1. Honda	1. Porsche	1. Porsche
2. Porsche	2. Cadillac	2. Toyota	2. Toyota	2. Lamborghini	2. Lamborghini
3. Mercedes	3. Lincoln	3. BMW	3. Ford	3. Jeep	3. Jaguar
4. Jaguar	4. Jaguar	4. Volvo	4. Chevrolet	4. Jaguar	4. Mercedes
5. BMW	5. Lamborghini	5. Porsche	5. Nissan	5. Mercedes	5. BMW
6. Cadillac	6. BMW	6. Jaguar	6. Buick	6. BMW	6. Jeep
7. Lincoln	7. Porsche	7. Lamborghini	7. Oldsmobile	7. Nissan	7. Nissan
8. Audi	8. Audi	8. Nissan	8. Volkswagen	8. Toyota	8. Audi
9. Volvo	9. Oldsmobile	9. Honda	9. Chrysler	9. Saab	9. Toyota
10. Saab	10. Volvo	10. Oldsmobile	10. Volvo	10. Audi	10. Saab

Least prestigious	Least luxurious	Least reliable	Least practical	Least fun	Least sporty
1. Volkswagen	1. Jeep	1. Renault	1. Lamborghini	1. Lincoln	1. Lincoln
2. Jeep	2. Volkswagen	2. Jeep	2. Porsche	2. Chrysler	2. Cadillac
3. Chevrolet	3. Honda	3. Peugeot	3. Cadillac	3. Renault	3. Chrysler
4. Honda	4. Renault	4. Pontiac	4. Lincoln	4. Oldsmobile	4. Oldsmobile
5. Toyota	5. Toyota	5. Chrylser	5. Jaguar	5. Buick	5. Volkswagen
6. Ford	6. Chevrolet	6. Mercury	6. Peugeot	6. Mercury	6. Buick
7. Renault	7. Nissan	7. Audi	7. Saab	7. Cadillac	7. Mercury
8. Nissan	8. Ford	8. Volkswagen	8. Jeep	8. Peugeot	8. Renault
9. Mercury	9. Pontiac	9. Saab	9. Mercury	9. Ford	9. Ford
10. Pontiac	10. Peugeot	10. Ford	10. Audi	10. Volvo	10. Chevrolet

[illegible]

Lexus learns lexis of luxury

(Continued from Page S-6)

work on a Lexus video presentation for the 1988 auto show season.

Their study found that an estimated 29 new models would enter the market by 1992, bringing the total number of models in that category to 70 or 80.

The Team One videotape debuted at the Greater Los Angeles Auto Show in January. No Lexus product was shown but the video presentation helped trigger 5,000 consumer inquiries from potential buyers. Repeat performances in Chicago, Atlanta and New York auto shows were expected to boost the total response to more than 20,000 names, leads Team One will follow up with a direct-mail campaign.

Full-page ads that ran last summer in Automotive News and Ward's Auto Dealer, have generated more than 1,000 inquiries and 400 applications (as of January) from potential Lexus dealers, according to the company.

The print ad reads, "Lexus is looking for the finest dealers to sell the world's finest motor cars," and carries the names and addresses of the division's area marketing representatives. Besides the auto shows, this one ad represents the only real advertising Lexus has done to date.

The ante for acquiring a dealership is $3 million to $6 million, depending on market location. Both Toyota and non-Toyota dealers are being considered as Lexus dealers. They will be judged on their customer satisfaction records, financial soundness and business know-how.

About 100 dealers will be in place at launch time; the first dealers will be announced in late March or early April. Dealers will be concentrated in the top 50 U.S. luxury car markets.

A public relations effort is also polishing the Lexus image. The liaison between Lexus management and press is Kurt von Zumwalt, public relations manager, a 14-year veteran of the Toyota Motor Sales organization.

Phase one of the promotional effort began in January with the unveiling of the Lexus logo at the Los Angeles Auto Show. Known as the gold "L" design, the logo was the product of three design and advertising agencies over a six-month period.

The new logo was tested with Toyota employees and focus groups made up of luxury car owners. Nearly 75% of the test groups rated the gold "L" as their first or second choice among the eight designs tested. Gold will be the primary color for Lexus logo applications.

LEXUS IS LOOKING FOR THE FINEST DEALERS TO SELL THE WORLD'S FINEST MOTOR CARS.

Trade ads last summer drew more than 1,000 inquiries to become one of the estimated 100 Lexus dealers.

In January, Toyota also released an artist's rendering of the Lexus sedan, which will be one of the two 1990 models.

Both models are Japanese designed and built. Auto shows scheduled for the 1989 season will feature actual prototypes of the Lexus models. The division's primary market will be the U.S., although the line will eventually be sold in other major markets throughout the world.

The flagship model, priced from $30,000 to $35,000, will be a 4-door, luxury sedan, with a V8 engine and equipped with state-of-the-art electronics. The sedan will compete in the market now dominated by European nameplates—Mercedes-Benz, BMW, Jaguar, Volvo and Audi—but the majority of buyers are expected to be baby boomers, many of them Toyota

(Continued on Page S-14)

After 50 I'll take all the options.
Charmatz

97% of our readers own at least 1 car, with 30% preferring standard or luxury models.

50 plus The first-class segment of the fastest-growing market.

850 THIRD AVE • NEW YORK, NY 10022 • (212) 715-2781

THE SAN FRANCISCO AUTOMOTIVE MARKET

A A 288

Statistics never looked so good!

Our eye-catching stats out-perform even our famous good looks!

We rank number one among the country's top ten markets in per capita effective buying income. We're the nation's fifth largest market in total households. And one media buy alone, The Chronicle and The Examiner, reaches over 1.4 million adult readers throughout the entire Bay Area — with just one issue.

Source: Scarborough San Francisco Market Study, 1987, 1-issue reach.
Sales & Marketing Management, Survey Buying Power, 1987

Take a close look at our good looking numbers.

Send us this ad along with your business card. We'll send you our most recent Scarborough San Francisco Market Book. Check the categories you're interested in:
☐ The San Francisco ADI ☐ Financial ☐ Auto General
☐ Auto Retail ☐ Travel ☐ Food/Liquor ☐ Shopping Centers.

Mail to: Marketing Communications
The San Francisco Newspaper Agency
925 Mission Street, San Francisco, CA 94103.

SAN FRANCISCO NEWSPAPER AGENCY
AGENT OF
San Francisco Chronicle
San Francisco Examiner

Lexus learns lexis of luxury

(Continued from Page S-10)

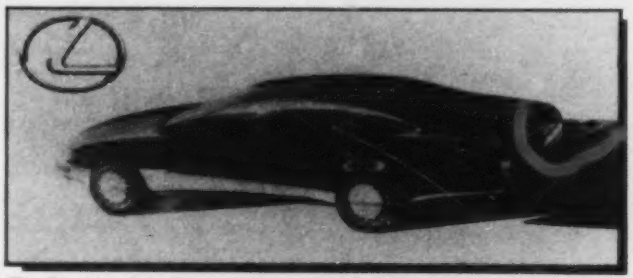
owners looking to move upscale.

A second Lexus model, a 4-door sedan powered by a V6 engine, will carry a price tag of about $20,000. The sedan will compete with selected European models as well as the Acura Legend and the Sterling. A sport coupe will be added to the line in 1991.

Toyota's Lexus division and Nissan's Infiniti division each will have three basic model lines by 1991 to compete in the upper-$20,000 to mid-$30,000 range.

Infiniti's 1990 V8-powered flagship sedan and Lexus' V8 sedan are expected to try to create a new niche between the big American luxury cars and European cars, such as Mercedes-Benz, Volvo and BMW's 5 and 7 series.

Lexus executives see the Acura Legend, which sells in the $20,000- to-$25,000 range, as being more volume-oriented than Lexus models. And, priced at $30,000-plus, the Lexus V8 comes to market at a higher price level than the Acura. "Our $20,000 near-luxury Cressida is more in the range of the Acura and is a nearer competitor," says Ms. Thompson. "With Lexus we're coming in with an exclusive, true luxury car, 'leap-frogging' the Acura, which is more of a mass-market product . . ."



The flagship of the Lexus division, seen in this rendering, will be priced from $30,000 to $35,000.

Total sales of the Acura Legend and Integra in 1987 were 109,470 units.

Though the Lexus executives wouldn't discuss advertising budgets, they did say they expect to spend heavily—possibly more than the competition—in order to carve a niche in the crowded, luxury segment. Spot TV, radio, auto buff magazines and selected consumer publications will part of the media mix.

The luxury market is a high stakes game, says Ms. Thompson. "A $50 million, $60 million budget . . . BMW is up to $75 million now . . . and that's just in basic media spending. They can see us coming and they're trying to solidify their markets as much as they can."

While Acura reported total sales gains in 1987, other importers in the luxury category did not.

The Lexus sales forecast for the first 4 months, is 16,000 units. Tentative sales target for calendar 1990, its first complete year, is 60,000 units, rising to a goal of 100,000 units in its fifth year.

> "We're expecting to do a tremendous pre-sell. They're exclusive cars, not mass-market vehicles. Supply will be about one less than demand."
>
> Janet Thompson
> Lexus

"You lose exclusivity when you aim for the mass market and a 600,000-unit sales goal," says Mr. Illingworth.

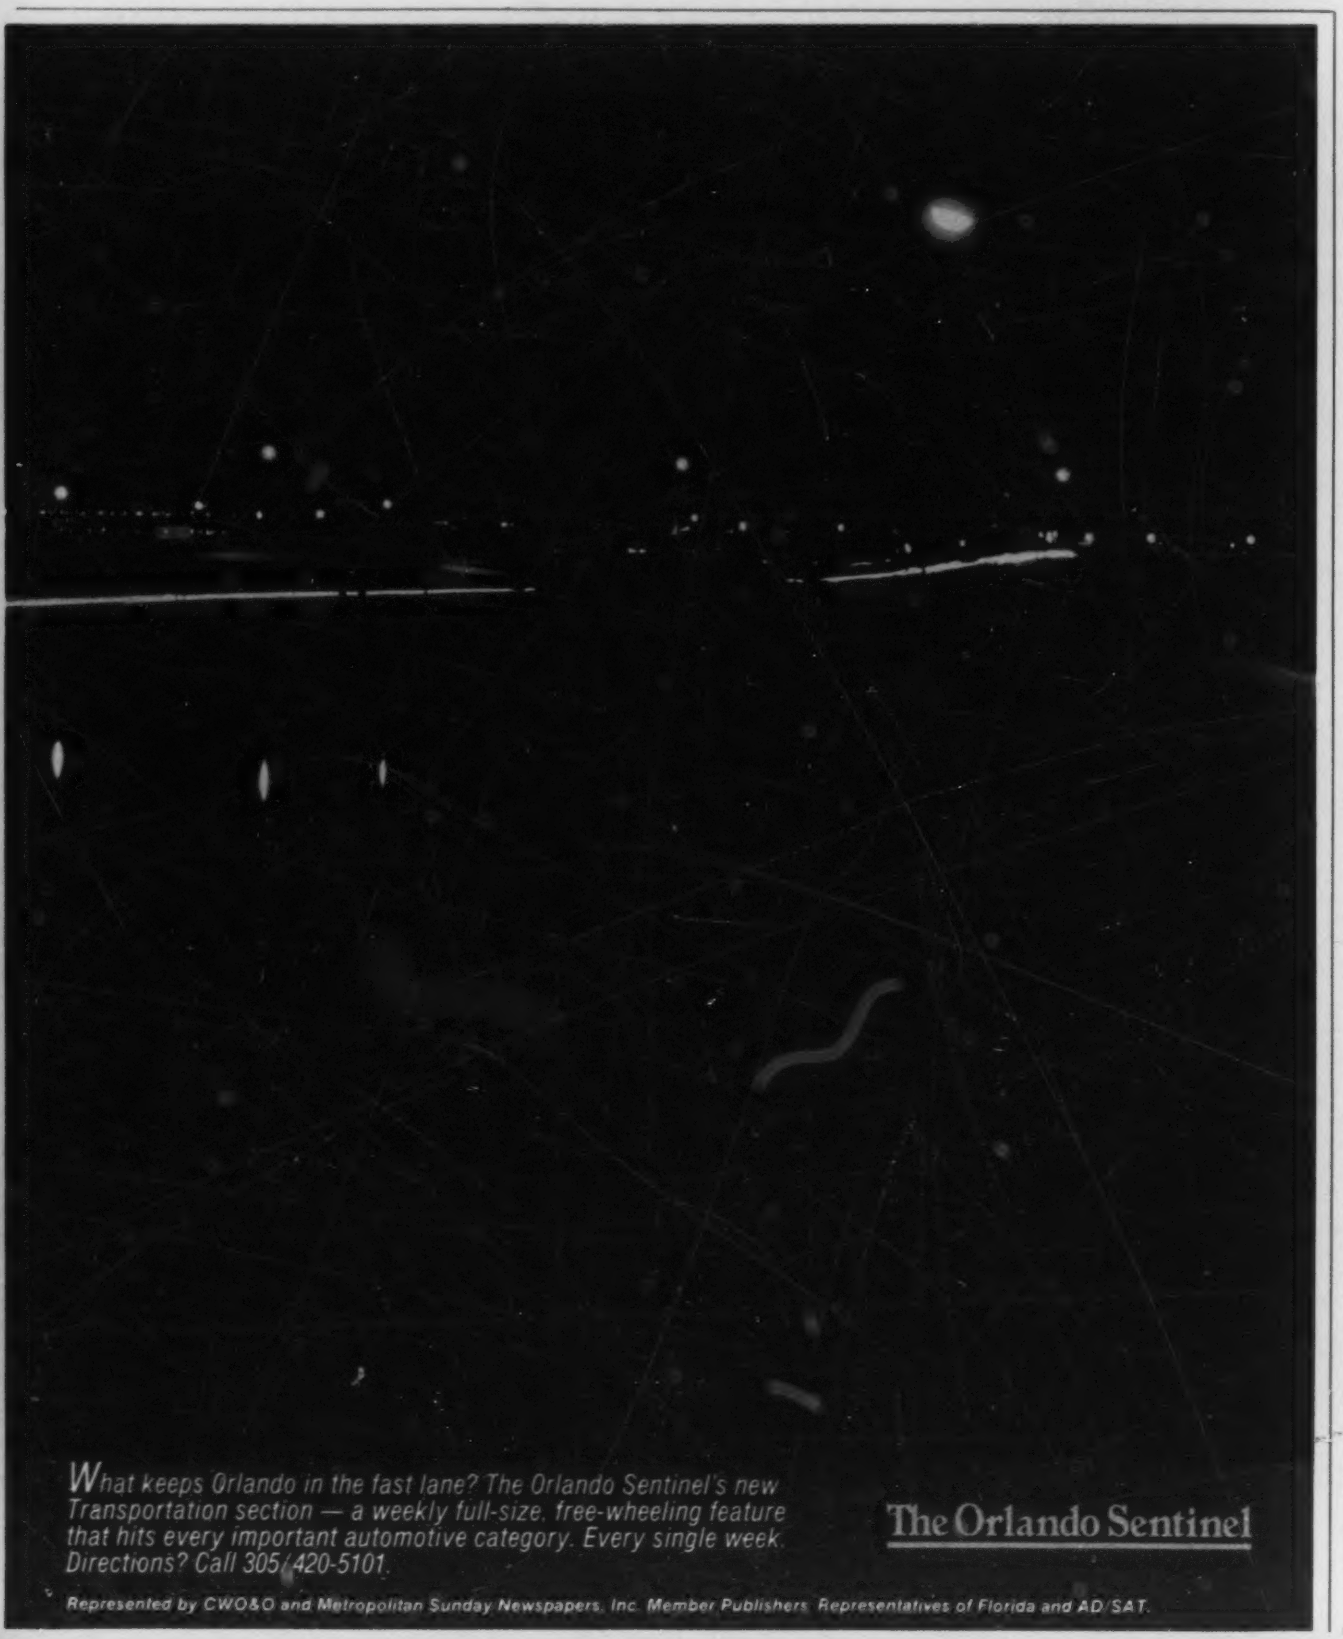
Last fall, at the start of the 1988 model year, Toyota adopted a three-year/36,000 comprehensive car warranty, same as that for Honda's Acura line and some European manufacturers. The same type of warranty is expected to extend to Lexus cars, although Toyota can be expected to tout product quality, not the new warranty.

The launch is proceeding on schedule, however, there are still advertising and marketing questions to be answered, such as sports sponsorship and the use of celebrity spokesmen. The Lexus marketers view sports, both local and national events, as an important part of the luxury-car promotion effort.

"We're still six months away from making a decision in this area. We think the customer we're trying to reach is very focused, so our attention needs to be equally focused on specific media offerings that appeal to . . . the customer's interest." Possible areas may include college basketball and cultural events programming, says Mr. Illingworth.

"Our preliminary research indicates that maybe a celebrity spokesman wouldn't work for us, but we're certainly not going to overrule that possibility," he says.

"We've only begun to work on our creative and we're not going to eliminate any approach too early in the game."



What keeps Orlando in the fast lane? The Orlando Sentinel's new Transportation section — a weekly full-size. free-wheeling feature that hits every important automotive category. Every single week. Directions? Call 305/420-5101.

The Orlando Sentinel

Represented by CWO&O and Metropolitan Sunday Newspapers, Inc. Member Publishers Representatives of Florida and AD/SAT.

Infiniti eyes young, affluent crowd

By Sheryl Harris

A competitor's success and Nissan Motor Corp's own research are inspiring yet another grab for a share of the upscale car market.

Ready for launch in the fall of 1989, Nissan's Infiniti division will splash onto the auto scene with an ad budget "above and beyond what Acura spent," according to William Bruce, general manager of the Infiniti division.

Acura's first year budget was about $20 million and in 1987 has increased to the mid-$40 million range.

Executives at the Carson, Calif.-based Infiniti division contend that studies conducted the last two years, coupled with lessons learned from Honda's 2-year-old Acura division indicates that yuppies acquainted with Japanese cars are ready to graduate into a luxury Japanese car comparable to that of a Mercedes-Benz or BMW.

Mr. Bruce says that more than a year's worth of research has helped Nissan target potential upscale customers in the 1990s. "They want what we call the Total Ownership Experience," says Mr. Bruce. "It is a triangle of the product, the purchase experience and the ownership experience."

"The Infiniti division buyer will be younger than those of some other luxury divisions, their income and education level will be higher and many will have moved up recently into the luxury category," predicts Mr. Bruce.

The division's executives believe potential Infiniti customers expect the product to be comparable to any luxury car available in terms of design, function and price.

■ Nissan unit expects to sell to buyers wanting the Total Ownership Experience

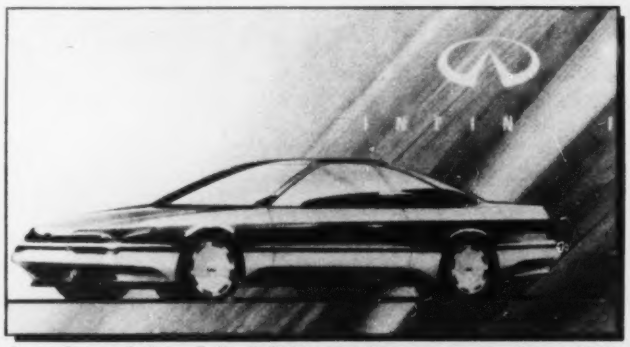
Mr. Bruce says the purchasing experience for Infiniti must be positive. "The programs offered have to be pleasant, friendly, professional and offered on a one-on-one basis."

Also, he says, "Once you buy the car, you don't want to wait in lines for service. You want the entire operation to be [convenient]."



An artist rendering of the Infiniti specialty sport coupe shows off its aerodynamic look. The car will be powered by a race-tested V-6.

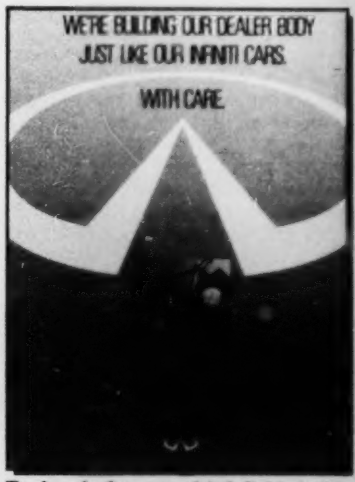
He says the division will employ knowledgeable service representatives who will be able to discuss the needs of the car with the customer and provide good service, communication and follow-through.

"The first manufacturer to do that on a nationwide basis is going to be a big winner," he says.

Infiniti franchise dealers are required to have a full-service, stand-alone facility designed for the needs of the buyer. "We want to be small," Mr. Bruce says. "We are accepting 75 franchises the first year and maybe 300 for the whole division. We believe we can provide better focus and offer unique services if we stay small."

The company plans to announce their dealerships shortly after the National Automobile Dealers Association meeting earlier this month.

The Infiniti symbol was created by Lippincott Margulies, New York. According to company sources, the mathematical symbol was too generic, so Infiniti chose one that created a "limitless and boundless image." The two sides of a cirle converge and turns inside itself forming an apex, which Infiniti sources say represent a road without end. The Infiniti name was chosen "because it was conceptually consistent with the Japanese heritage." An "i" rather than a "y" is used for product distinction.



WE'RE BUILDING OUR DEALER BODY
JUST LIKE OUR INFINITI CARS.
WITH CARE.
Trade ads for potential Infiniti dealers were meant to be selective.

Mr. Bruce predicts the luxury market will experience "rather dramatic growth well into the 1990s—one of the most rapid growths in the automotive industry. The functional luxury car sales will approach 500,000 in the early '90s. It is an arena that Nissan certainly wants to be in.

"The European luxury cars are more functional luxury, and domestic luxury cars are what we term traditional luxury. We target to the functional luxury buyer."

Infiniti will offer two products in the first year of operation: a 2-door specialty sport coupe and a 4-door sedan.

Mr. Bruce says that Infiniti will differ from the Honda's upscale Acura line "not so much in terms of strategy as in product. In terms of size and functional characteristics, our cars are going to be differentiated. Our 4-door luxury sedan is going to be bigger than what Acura has now, more powerful," he says. "Our product differentiation will be the most distinguishable, along with our focus, the small number of dealers and attention to the Total Ownership Experience."

Infiniti executives haven't decided whether or not they will carry "Total Ownership" into their advertising. The search for an ad agency to handle the Infiniti account is scheduled to begin this spring. "We'd like [the agency] to be aboard by summer to give time to work out final strategies before the fall '89 introduction," says Mr. Bruce. "We believe they must be a full-service agency. The Infiniti division is important enough and the budget will demand that. It must be dedicated to Infiniti division as a major part of their account."

Sheryl Harris is a free-lance writer based in Agoura Hills, Calif.

Nissan builds on 'human race' bid

By Sheryl Harris

Nissan's search for corporate identity began in when research done in 1986-1987 showed the company's image needed strengthening.

However, the company says its research of success of the ongoing "Built for the human race" ad campaign—which features designers and engineers discussing car design—is encouraging, despite criticism. "Initial research confirms we are on the right track," says Joe Opre, director of advertising, Nissan Motor Corp., Carson, Calif.

He says that the "Human Race" campaign, which broke in October, has high recall by consumers. According to the study, after four weeks on the air, 75% of the people polled recalled the company's TV spots, 75% believed the spots are unique in the automotive business, 71% said they liked it, and 64% said the spots increased their interest in Nissan and they would consider buying a Nissan. "In exit interviews, many could repeat or describe the commercial in detail. It is getting noticed and watched," says Mr. Opre.

"The overall essence [of the 'Human race' campaign] is to really establish a foundation for an image for Nissan that we can develop and begin to manifest as we introduce new models in '89," says Tom Patty, VP and executive director, Chiat/Day, Los Angeles. "We are attempting to differentiate Nissan on a simple basis: Nissan is different from other manufacturers because of human engineering . . . There are actually designers just like the ones in the ads at Nissan Design Institute in La Jolla that do exactly that," he says.

The campaign was preceded by a number of changes in 1987. "The name is Nissan" theme was altered mid-year by adding, "We make you feel like driving." Then, in August, William Esty Co., New York, was fired from the $150 million account and Chiat/Day was selected as Nissan's new agency. A flurry of redesigned vehicles were introduced in 1987, and the company's positioning took a harder product-oriented approach, and then finally a non-product corporate image-building focus.

Nissan: Total U.S. car sales

1986	546,896
1987	529,154
% change	− 3%
Projected 1988	535,000

Source: Automotive News. Projected 1988 sales from Nissan Motor Corp.

"The 'Human Race' campaign is intended to evolve over the next year," says Mr. Opre. "Our intention is to create an image . . . that our cars are designed with the potential owner in mind."

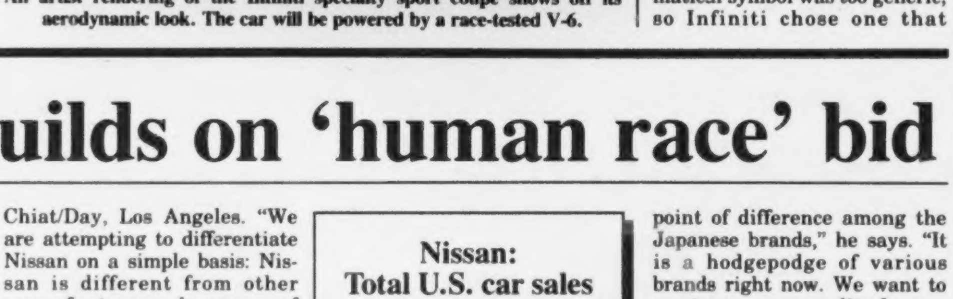
"We also want to create a point of difference among the Japanese brands," he says. "It is a hodgepodge of various brands right now. We want to create some personality for ourselves."

Mr. Opre says that part of the reason the TV spots were so successful was because of their presentation. "Phase I viewers didn't necessarily have an awareness of a specific model or even that [the spot] was an ad until the end.

"The October-December Phase I television spots were more generic, more philosophical," he says. "The focus was less product-specific but with more Nissan brand emphasis."

Phase II of the campaign launched in January and will run through May. Radio, TV and print ads emphasize pri-

(Continued on Page S-18)



Nissan builds cars and trucks for the most important race of all.
The Human Race.
Long copy print ads continue the "Human Race" campaign emphasis on function.

Yugo warranty aimed at skittish buyers

By Tim Harris

The Yugo, once described by Consumer Reports as difficult to recommend at any price, addresses reliability concerns in advertising its 1988 models. "We're shifting emphasis from pricing to features and benefits," says William Prior, president of Yugo America, Upper Saddle River, N.J.

"We want consumers to say, 'Hey, we appreciate [the fact] this car is a good value.' "

Yugo America executives say their car has a pricing, not a value problem.

"The consumer's perception of value is [the car's] features, plus its reliability, divided by its price. In the early days, we put so much attention on price to launch the brand that we didn't tell the other side of the story," says Paul Lambert, president of Yugo's agency, Lambert Dale Advertising, New York.

The centerpiece for Yugo America's 1988 marketing and advertising efforts is a comprehensive warranty plan for all of its 1988 models. "During the first 12,000 miles or first year of ownership," says Mr. Prior, "a Yugo owner won't have to pay for any parts or servicing. If you need a little oil or some fluids checked, go to the dealer. He'll do the work at his own expense."

> "If the driver hits a pothole, we still pay. We're wrapping our customer in a peace of mind package."
>
> William Prior
> Yugo America

Under this first-year or 12,000-mile warranty plan, Yugo owners will not pay for parts or labor costs for wear-items, such as clutches or wiper blades, or for adjustment-items, such as wheel balancing. "If the driver hits a pothole, . . . we still pay," Mr. Prior says.

Yugo: Total U.S. car sales

1986	35,959
1987	48,812
% change	36%
Projected 1988	70,000

Source: Automotive News. Projected 1988 sales from Yugo America.

The warranty also covers parts and labor costs on the engine and transmission for four years or 40,000 miles. "We're wrapping our customer in a peace of mind package," he adds.

This warranty confronts Yugo's inexpensive-but-cheap image. This image, both the cause and bane of Yugo sales in America, has not prevented Yugo from leading its particular market niche. "We sell 60% of the new cars with a transaction price under $6,000" says Mr. Prior.

At the same time, Yugo is not considered a tough competitor in the broader, entry-level market—the segment that includes all cars with a base price, not a transaction price, under $6,000.

Industry analysts credit Yugo with redefining this entry-level niche by creating the mini-compact segment. This occurred in mid-1985, when Yugo America announced a $3,990 base price for its GV, the only car it sold. Since then, Hyundai, Ford, Volkswagen, Subaru and Mitsubishi and others have produced cars for this market segment.

"Other low-price cars have a reputation for higher quality, and people choose these cars even though the GV's base price is $1,000 less," says Christopher Cedergren, a senior automotive analyst with J.D. Power & Associates, Westlake Village, Calif.

One of Yugo America's new models to debut this year is the GVC convertible, which will be priced under $10,000.

As a result, Yugo sales have been consistently disappointing. In 1986 and 1987, sales were 35,959 and 48,812 respectively.

During the American debut of the GV, in August, 1985—the GV was available in Europe at least four years before the U.S. introduction—the company had predicted 200,000 in eventual annual sales.

Yugo America's advertising and marketing goal for its 1988 models is to change the potential customer's perception of the car.

"We don't necessarily want people to think it's the best car," says Mr. Prior. "But we want people to think it's the best choice."

The company has doubled its marketing budget from 1987 to $48 million, with the "vast majority" being used for advertising, according to a company spokesman. Last year, the marketing budget was $26 million and $22 million went to advertising, according to the company.

"Price will still be our calling card," explains Mr. Lambert. "But we're also going to emphasize the toughness and reliability of the car."

To deliver this message, Lambert Dale has developed five new 30-second Yugo TV spots. The tagline for the ads is "The toughest, most dependable cars a little money can buy."

The company broke these commercials in January on such prime-time TV shows as "The Cosby Show," "Knots Landing," "Simon and Simon" and "The CBS Evening News."

The spots try to establish that the Yugo is tough and reliable. To make this point, Yugo America brandishes the GV's solid performance in several automobile endurance races.

Yugo now offers three models, the GV, GVL and GVX. One 30-second TV spot show the three models zooming

Timothy Harris is a New York-based free-lance writer.

Buffalo's a market with drive and ambition — a market that's healthy, hungry and upwardly mobile. It's a market that's "on the go!"

If you haven't considered Buffalo and The Buffalo News — you're missing the route to almost 1.3 million adults and one of the best advertising buys in America.

The Buffalo News offers —
- A circulation area that's highly concentrated — every reader is close enough to be a potential consumer
- A 50% news hole that gives the reader more news for their money.
- Advertising CPMs that are below average for markets this size
- Highest PMA coverage in the nation both daily and Sunday.

New York State's [illegible] largest market is on the go and too big to miss! Call Hugh G. Monaghan at (716) 849-3422 for more information about The Buffalo News.

ON THE GO BUFFALO

THE BUFFALO NEWS
One News Plaza, P.O. Box 100, Buffalo, New York 14240

Nissan builds on 'race' bid

(Continued from Page S-16)

mary vehicle attributes: performance, innovation and technology.

The performance spot features the 300-ZX and Maxima. The Pulsar NX—advertised as the first real modular car—is spotlighted in the innovation spot. And, Maxima's sonar suspension system illustrates Nissan's technical detail spot.

An important part of Phase II is the addition of product-oriented multi-page magazine inserts, says Mr. Patty.

The 12 and 20-page color inserts featuring Nissan's 1988 lineup will appear nationally this month in Automotive News, Cycle World, Four-Wheeler, Four Wheel & Off Road, Newsweek, People and Rolling Stone.

The inserts will continue the human-engineering theme and show various models from the Nissan lineup. "The campaign was designed to handle image building in broadcast media and use print media to handle product coverage. All print coverage is very product focused," he says.

Phase III of the "Human race" campaign is scheduled for May, June and July. TV spots and print ads will be product oriented and feature individual models.

Other marketing efforts to build consumer awareness, corporate image and brand and product knowledge "will be a gradual evolution," says Mr. Opre. "There are millions of along on rugged, desert terrain, while the voiceover explains the company's new comprehensive warranty plan. The tagline also is "The toughest, most dependable cars a little money can buy."

The company will introduce the GVC, a convertible, and a sporty model of the GV, the GVLS, later this year.

"The One-Lap of America Race is our [country's] toughest road rally," says Mr. Lambert. "It's 8,000 miles in 22 states and Yugo placed third [in 1987]."

The car also performed well in recent One-Lap Florida and One-Lap Michigan rallies, he says. Another spot for the GV, GVL and GVX, which broke this month, simulates the One Lap of America race.

These commercials are a departure from past Yugo America advertising strategies. Ads for Yugo's 1987 GV had the tagline: "Buy yourself a little freedom. Buy yourself a Yugo." With the new executions, says Mr. Lambert, "We were trying to give a little personality to the brand."

The emphasis on toughness and reliability is possible because of changes in Yugo's manufacturing and engineering. Since 1986, the company reportedly has made 230 changes that improve the Yugo's styling, comfort and reliability.

"They're doing whatever it takes in their plant in Yugoslavia to give credibility to their claims of improved durability and reliability," says Mr. Cedergren.

Yugo America executives believe the GV's enhanced toughness will broaden the car's appeal. Currently, the car usually attracts first-time buyers, who often lack the cash or credit for a more expensive auto. Blue-collar workers of all ages are also buyers. Overall, women make up 56% of Yugo buyers, according to the company.

"With these ads and our emphasis on reliability," explains Mr. Prior, "we're trying to expand the types of people who will put the Yugo on their shopping list. These ads should be market expanding and not cannibalize our existing market base."

Auto reviews criticizing the car and public skepticism contributed to the brand's disappointing start in the U.S. "Right now, purchasing a Yugo is not perceived as a smart thing to do," says Mr. Prior.

Attitudes may be changing, however. "We don't have any tracking study telling how consumer perception of the Yugo is changing," says Mr. Cedergren. "But we have anecdotal information indicating the public thinks quality is up."

> "The One-Lap of America Race is our [country's] toughest road rally and Yugo placed third [in 1987]."
>
> Paul Lambert, Lambert Dale Advertising

Even so, Yugo America has to wage the battle for product credibility in its dealers' showrooms. To do so, Yugo America needs dealers who are committed to selling the cars. Currently, less than 10 of the company's 324 dealers sell Yugos exclusively. Some dealers reportedly steer buyers to their other car lines.

To counter this problem, Yugo America is encouraging its dealers to assign special salespeople, technicians and showroom space to its cars.

Should this heightened dealer and service commitment take hold, the company then wants to broaden its customer base by positioning itself as a supplier that works exclusively in the entry-level market. "Yugo America now has a full line of cars," says Mr. Lambert. "There are five models available that range in price from $4,190 to $5,900. No other manufacturer supplies only this market. Hyundai has only one car at $5,200. All their other cars are between $8,000 and $10,000."

"There will always be demand for the Yugo," says Mr. Cedergren. "Here, the most important thing is price; the GV base price is still only about $4,190."

"What we're saying about quality and value has to go past the TV set and into the showroom and to the psychology of the dealer and mechanic," says Mr. Prior. "What we need is marketing with a capital M." ■ possible permutations. The strategy will remain the same although its execution may change," he says.

---

"It is a competitive market and there are incentive programs and manufacturers with high inventory. The consumer is in control," says Mr. Patty.

"In a competitive market you have to get smarter than the competition. One way to do that is design and build a differentiated product . . . so [consumers] want your product specifically," he adds.

"We are building a foundation for that."

Nissan's share of domestic sales was 5% in 1986. It retained its 5% share during 1987, in a total sales market that was down 6.04% from last year. The company expects its share to increase to 6.3% for 1988. ■

Presenting a market in Michigan where money is well spent.

If you're shopping around for retail sales, don't look any further than Booth, Michigan. We're America's 15th largest market in retail sales. And Detroit papers only reach 11% of this large market. A market whose retail sales have increased 65% more than Detroit's in the last 5 years. We've got top-of-the-line numbers in other markets, too. We're the 16th largest market in automotive sales. We're ranked 13th in furniture and appliance sales, and are number 18 in food sales. And if you're after a great bargain, you don't have to shop around. You get 8 newspapers at a 15% discount with just one call. One order. One bill. To reach the best market to spend your money in, simply call Booth at (313) 540-5600. Represented nationally by Newhouse Newspapers.

booth newspapers

Ann Arbor News • Bay City Times • Flint Journal • Grand Rapids Press • Jackson Citizen Patriot • Kalamazoo Gazette • Muskegon Chronicle • Saginaw News

Source: Survey of Buying Power 7/86. Circulation 86-87.

Reborn Audi rekindles youth

By Sandra Lee Breisch

Audi of America is entering 1988 with a substantial 1987 U.S. car sales decline brought about, in part, by lingering image problems from the 5000S alleged unintended acceleration. The company is depending on an estimated $40 million marketing budget—the largest part of which is being spent on "image" advertising spots for the 80/90 sports sedan—to regain U.S. sales and win back consumer confidence.

"The sports sedan market is a new market for us. We are certainly concentrating on it because it has been so successful in Europe and we are hoping to make it successful [in the U.S.]," says Tony Kirton, marketing director of Troy, Mich.-based Audi. The prices of the 80/90s range between $18,000 and $27,700.

Says Christian Von Glasow, senior VP, management supervisor at DDB Needham Worldwide, Detroit, who handles the account, "Part of the strategy is to put all the thrust behind the new cars . . ." According to Fred Zosel, public relations manager, Audi has not increased its total media budget from 1987.

Audi: Total U.S. car sales

1986	59,795
1987	41,322
% change	– 31%
Projected 1988	40,000

Source: Automotive News. Projected 1988 sales from Audi of America

While DDB's Troy-based office is handling creative on dealer co-op ads and services the account, its Chicago office is handling the creative. Audi's latest marketing efforts, which broke in November, include print and TV spots that take a soft focus and reminisce on childhood days. Pedal cars, sleds, paper airplanes and bicycles with training wheels are used in the spots to elicit emotional responses.

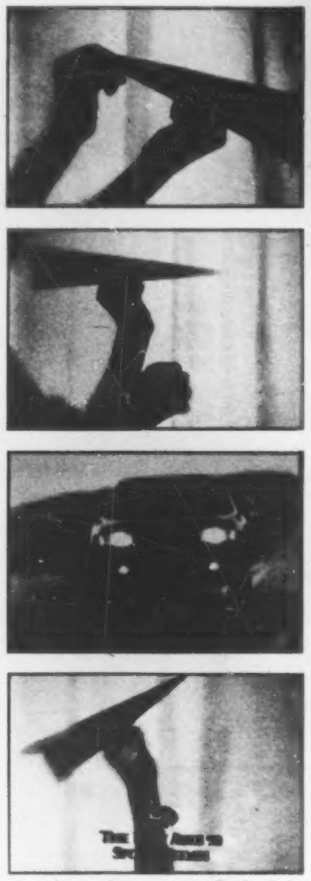
For example, in one of the four TV spots, the camera opens on a young boy in a pedal car with voice-over, "Remember what it was like to drive a car by the seat of your pants? Hair flying. Heart pounding. Pulse racing. You flew. Limitations were exceeded. Expectations surpassed. You and your car were one . . ."

Bill Klimas, DDB senior VP, group creative director and copywriter, says, "What I tried to do in these spots was tap into the feeling all of us experienced when we were kids. There was a certain pleasure and joy that came with riding a bike. A sense of freedom that was experienced when you raced down a hill in a little pedal car. This was our first taste of being in control, of being able to transport ourselves from one place to another. And have fun doing it. The promise of these commercials is that you can recapture those forgotten feelings in an Audi . . ."

Dick James Productions, Los Angeles, took about a week to produce each spot with music created by Steve Samler in Chicago. Costs for the spots were unavailable.

Print ads appear nationally in newsweeklies, buff books such as Car & Road and magazines such as Gourmet, Town & Country and Smithsonian.

Four different radio spots are playing in "snow-markets" such as Chicago, Denver, Detroit and New York. According to Mr. Zosel, the radio spots differ from the TV spots in that they run only in "snow-markets" and were designed to feature certain qualities of the Audi models.



Aerodynamics are emphasized in one nostalgia spot, which features a boy making a paper airplane.

A child's excitement behind the wheel of a pedal car is used to capture the feeling of driving an Audi.

For example, one radio spot begins with a travel advisory, "You wouldn't need a snowstorm to appreciate an Audi Quattro, but if you have one so much the better . . . Because the engine power is distributed to all four wheels instead of two, traction is increased and slippage decreased . . . When you have the optimum stopping power of an anti-lock braking system, the combination adds up to one of the most secure mobility systems going . . ."

Direct mailings for the Audi 80/90 series were sent to potential customers, and the company sent a videocassette and product information about the series to prospective buyers who responded to the first mailing.

Sandra Lee Breisch is a Chicago-based free-lance writer.

In The Columbus MSA VOLUME DISCOUNTS ARE EQUAL — and no restrictions!

LOCAL VOLUME DISCOUNTS
NATIONAL VOLUME DISCOUNTS

Now national advertisers buy The Columbus Dispatch with the same range of volume discounts as local advertisers and there are no restrictions!

You can dominate the almost $16 BILLION EFFECTIVE BUYING POWER IN THE COLUMBUS MSA easier than ever. The Dispatch delivers 55% of the nearly one million MSA adults daily, plus a whopping 73% Sunday.

For a new Rate Book, call National Advertising Manager Leonard Zane at (614) 461-5183. In Ohio, call toll-free: 1-800-282-0263.

The Columbus Dispatch
Morning & Sunday

Represented nationally by
Cresmer, Woodward, O'Mara & Ormsbee, Inc.

SUNDAY AD SAT

Source: Scarborough's 1987 Newspaper Audience Ratings Study

AMERICA. ALWAYS IN STYLE.

Our 500,000 readers give brilliant futures to legacies from the past.

"AMERICA'S SHOWCASE OF THE RESTORATION ARTS"

Call Missy Browne (202) 673-4065

Originally debuting in Europe a year and a half ago, the 80/90 series outsold both its competitors—the BMW-Three-series and the Mercedes 190 series. According to Audi, sales figures in West Germany through September 1987 were as follows: Audi 80, 110,000; Audi 90, 6,800; BMW Three-series, 75,200; Mercedes 190 series, 88,000.

The Audi 80 is the successor to the 4000 series. The Audi 90 is a new series and reports describe both 80/90 lines as shortened versions of the 5000. Both series have been introduced in the U.S. as 1988 models and come in four versions—all four-door sedans. They are: the front-wheel-drive Audi 80 and the all-wheel-drive 80 Quattro, which replaces the Audi 4000 series, and the FWD Audi 90 and AWD 90 Quattro.

Anti-lock braking systems are standard on all models except the 80 Quattro. The 80 and 90 badging are European, and gradually all Audi series will convert to the European nomenclature. In 1989, the 5000 series will be known as the 100/200.

Audi hopes to attract repeat customers and compete for the European high-group, according to Fred Zosel, Audi pr manager. These include the BMW-3 series, Mercedes 190 series, Merkur Scorpio, Saab, Volvo, Sterling and Acura buyer. Audi's target market for the 80/90 series are consumers with an annual income of $60,000, with an even mix of male and females aged 29-49, 70%-80% of which are college graduates.

Mr. Von Glasow says Chicago, Denver and New York are big-selling Audi markets.

Though total sales predictions for the 80/90 series in the U.S. market are 28,000 units, published reports indicate that U.S. deliveries from the West German automaker Volkswagen AG, have dropped 29% to 42,400 units.

Total U.S. sales for November-December for the 80/90 were at 1,317, according to the company. From December through February, Audi offered a dealer incentive program of 6.9% financing.

Company spokesmen declined giving any specific numbers of production on Audi's 80/90 series as well as the Audi 5000, but admitted all were "definitely lower" this year.

Though all advertising for the Audi 5000 has been put in neutral at this time, Audi plans to reintroduce a facelifted 5000 in July, says Mr. Kirton.

"We'll probably come back with some 5000 advertising pretty soon—it's a volume car for us. We hope that the 5000 will eventually come back . . ." After allegations of unintended acceleration, 1987 sales for the 5000s were 26,000, down from 40,000 in 1986.

Although Mr. Von Glasow admits "Image advertising by its very nature takes longer, . . ." he is confident that Audi will make a comeback in the U.S. market.

Durable Volvo adds another tier

By Len Strazewski

With a two-tier marketing campaign and an increased national advertising budget, Volvo North America Corp. wants to make more of an impression on its U.S. audience.

Volvo, the largest European automobile importer behind Volkswagen AG, is reshaping its advertising into separate national and local tiers using two different sets of TV spots and print ads, all created by its agency of more than 20 years, Scali, McCabe, Sloves, New York.

The importer is increasing its national advertising budget by an undisclosed amount to increase consumer impressions by 21%, according to Gerry Dudzik, national advertising manager of the Rockleigh, N.J.-based company.

Each of the company's three 30-second TV spots, which ran nationally from Jan. 18 to Feb. 15, represented different aspects of the Volvo image, says John Slaven, senior VP and management supervisor of the Volvo account at Scali.

One spot, "Heavy Traffic," emphasizing construction and durability, shows a truck trailer being placed on top of a Volvo. The announcer asks, "How well does your car stand up to heavy traffic?"

"The spot is rather typical of the work we've been doing for Volvo over the years, emphasizing a traditional message of durability and sound construction," Mr. Slaven says.

In a second spot, "Kalimar," the agency expands the image of fine construction with a look

(Continued on Page S-22)

Volvo:
Total U.S. car sales

1986	113,267
1987	106,539
% change	– 6%
Projected 1988	same as 1987

Source: Automotive News. Projected 1988 sales from Volvo North America Corp.

Len Strazewski, a Chicago free-lancer, is a frequent contributor to Special Report.

Performance. Customers desire it in the cars you sell. You demand it from the media selling them.

In Tampa Bay, only one medium offers you peak performance — the St. Petersburg Times. Your ad goes from 0 to 693,000 daily adult readers in a heartbeat. On Sunday, you'll top 775,000 adults. Easily, the metro area's largest audience turns to the Times.

It's a hard-driving audience, too. More college educated adults, more chief wage earners, more top income households and more of the buying prospects you want to reach.

And, whether you advertise daily or Sunday, the Times drives your message home to more car owners and new car buyers than the area's other newspaper, the Tampa Tribune.

	Number in Metro Area	Daily Times Readers	Daily Tribune Readers
Total Adults	1,510,100	44%	32%
Households With Cars	1,401,900	44%	33%
New Car Buyers	701,100	51%	35%

So, if you sell cars — or anything for people who drive them — park it in our market and spark sales with the Times. Because in Tampa Bay, there's only one performance leader.

Source: The 1987 Scarborough Report.

AD SAT.
Automotive Advertising 813/893-8443
Represented nationally by CWO&O

Tampa Bay's LARGEST AUTO MARKET Isn't In Tampa

St. Petersburg Times
Tampa Bay's Largest Newspaper

Subaru finds 10,000 reasons to compete

By Tim Harris

Subaru has decided on a two-tier marketing strategy this year, advertising cars below $10,000 as inexpensive, and those above $10,000 as upscale.

The company will spend an estimated $60 million during its fiscal year marketing and advertising its full line of cars. David Sippel, VP-marketing for the Cherry Hill, N.J.-based company, says the marketing budget will be higher than the previous year. "We plan to spend about 30% of the [advertising] budget on print and 70% on broadcasting."

Lee Garfinkel, senior VP and creative director at Subaru's agency, Levine, Huntley, Schmidt and Beaver, New York, says, "The cars are still reliable and durable. But it doesn't make sense to say that a car over $10,000 is inexpensive." So, the company is using its familiar tagline, "Inexpensive and built to stay that way," only in ads for cars priced under $10,000. Ads for models over $10,000 will have the tagline, "We built our reputation by building a better car."

About 50% of Subaru sales are four-wheel-drive cars. Durability and reliability are central to Subaru's image. "Basically, Subaru has a strong image in the market," says Christopher Cedergren, a senior automotive analyst at J.D. Power & Associates, Westlake Village, Calif. "But when they tried to move upscale, their image became convoluted. There are so many new players in that marketplace.

"Subaru's prices were going higher than its image would support. We view that plan to shift the sales mix to less expensive cars as a very positive step," he adds.

According to J.D. Power's 1987 Customer Satisfaction Index, the Subaru station wagon was rated sixth by Americans. The index is a blend of owner opinions on the technical quality of their cars and their dealers' service.

In part, the company's successful, and award-winning, TV spots have produced the strong core-image for Subaru cars. "We've tried to avoid pretty-car-on-the-road-with announcer-copy ads," says Mr. Garfinkel. "Instead, we've tried to do very human-approach ads. So far, this has helped our ads stand out from the crowd."

Subaru: Total U.S. car sales

1986	179,100
1987	175,864
% change	−2%
Projected 1988	same as 1987

Source: Automotive News. Projected 1988 sales from Subaru of America.

This so-called human approach advertising features Subarus in real-life situations. The Subaru Justy "ad shows the car's technology, but in human terms," says Mr. Garfinkel. "A girl calls up her boyfriend and says that her parents just went out for the evening. So he gets in his Subaru Justy and drives over horrible terrain and through terrible weather to get to her house."

This spot ends with the girl and her father answering the door. "Her parents went out but came back because they didn't have a Subaru," says Mr. Garfinkel. The music is "When a Man Loves a Woman."

A TV spot for the company's station wagon features a suburban housewife toting children around and running errands. The music over is "Rawhide." The Subaru station wagon's base price is $10,000.

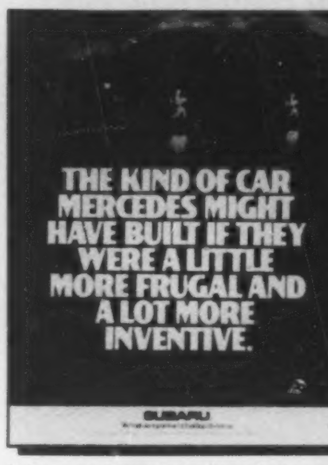
"We showed something like 57 activities in a 30-second spot," says Allan Chalfin, senior VP and creative director at LHS&B. He says the ad shows how a typical suburban housewife uses the car.

Another spot, which features the company's under-$10,000 DL series, captures identical incidents in a drive-in occurring 20 years apart. The music over is "Remember Then."

The spot begins in b&w with an announcer asking, "Do you remember when a drive-in movie was a dollar and a hot dog 10¢ and cars cost less than $10,000?" This scene repeats itself in a contemporary setting with the announcer listing current prices of movies and hot dogs. The spot ends with voiceover, "Subaru has a full line of cars under $10,000 . . ." and the camera pans the lot filled with Subaru DLs.

According to Mr. Sippel, the "Remember Then" spot presents an important competitive advantage of Subaru. "The ad talks of a full line of cars under $10,000. We don't have just one inexpensive car. This is significant for us relative to our two-tier strategy."

For the XT6, Subaru's up-



THE KIND OF CAR MERCEDES MIGHT HAVE BUILT IF THEY WERE A LITTLE MORE FRUGAL AND A LOT MORE INVENTIVE.
SUBARU

Subaru continues to tout product superiority at a surprising price.

Volvo tier

(Continued from Page S-21)

at the Volvo manufacturing and design facility in Kalimar, Sweden. Featuring craftsmen at work both inside the plant and in the village, the spot targets an upscale market by portraying European craftsmanship as artful, dedicated and superior. According to this spot a town where "precision is a way of life . . . is the only place in the world where [the Volvo 760] could be built."

In a third spot, "Radar Gun," Volvo takes a direct shot at Porsche by having a radar gun operator time a race between a Porsche 944 and a Volvo 740 Turbo Wagon. It's a tie. The voiceover is "To you they're two completely different cars . . . but to a radar gun, they look exactly alike."

"People don't think of Volvo as a performance automobile. While we are not trying to portray the Volvo as a racing car, we are demonstrating that performance is not a neglected issue and that it is on a par with many other expensive imports," Mr. Slaven says.

"The imported auto segment is becoming more and more competitive," explains Mr. Slaven. "And 1988 is going to be a very confusing car year. That's why we have decided to emphasize the traditional messages early in the year and maintain some flexibility for later in the year."

One reason for Volvo's increased spending and a more stratified advertising plan is sales. Over the past 10 years, Volvo has more than doubled its share to about 1% of the U.S. auto market, but from 1986 to 1987 sales slipped from 111,086 cars to 105,087, according to the company.

Volvo executives would not make specific projections for 1988, but say the company does not expect substantial sales increases.

To sell new cars in a competitive market a company needs more than a national adverting campaign—it takes strong, synergistic local advertising and strong sales promotion, says Mr. Dudzik.

Volvo created its second tier of advertising primarily for dealer associations needing to eliminate the high spot production budgets that can stymie local ad spending.

"By taking the two-tiered approach, we are able to offer our dealers commercials that maintain the high standards of quality demonstrated by our agency over the last 20 years and that will reflect favorably on the Volvo image overall," says Mr. Dudzik. "Although this is a fundamental shift in our strategy, we believe that the local or decentralized campaign will be complementary with our present and previous national campaigns."

HOW WELL DOES YOUR CAR STAND UP TO HEAVY TRAFFIC?

Volvo North America proves its cars can carry their weight in today's car market.

The local tier of advertising will include a broader array of about 12 TV spots, including the national spots and derivatives, according to Mr. Slaven. The agency will also produce about 12 radio spots that will also be available as part of the Volvo co-op advertising program.

"The national spots are traditional; primarily image advertising emphasizing performance, luxury and Volvo's position among its competition," Mr. Dudzik says. "The dealer spots are more specifically a 'call to action,' closer to what a dealer would consider more appropriate."

More than 50% of Volvo's total advertising budget will be used in the local tier. The national budget will be split three ways: 50% broadcast 40% print and 10% other (outdoor, sales promotion and possibly some radio). According to Mr. Dudzik, 1988 marks the first major scheduled prime-time network

HOLE-IN-ONE INSURANCE

The National Hole-In-One Association knows how to capture valuable exposure and awareness for your dealership! With hole-in-one prize insurance (premiums as low as $225) you can offer everything from a new car to up to one million dollars in cash! Your golfers have a great time, and if someone makes an ace, we pay the claim.

Call us today for a fast, free no obligation quote and learn how the National Hole-In-One Association can help you put a car on the green!

800-527-6944

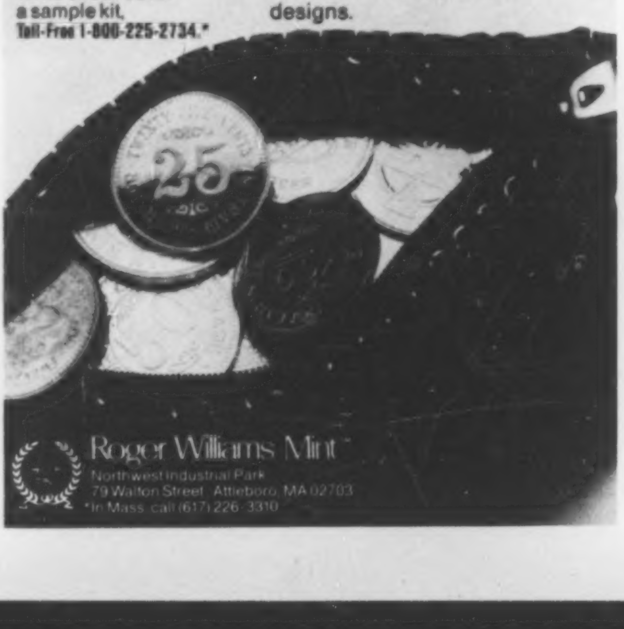
NATIONAL HOLE-IN-ONE ASSOCIATION

Redeemable like money with lots of pizzazz!

There's something about a token that makes it look like money, feel like money, even more so than a coupon. Roger Williams Mint supplies tokens quickly — as few as 1,000, as many as a million for all types of promotions. We offer both stock and custom designs. Free design service available.

Same day shipment on stock items, 3-4 weeks on custom designs.

Write or call us for a sample kit, Toll-Free 1-800-225-2734.*



Roger Williams Mint™
Northwest Industrial Park
79 Walton Street · Attleboro, MA 02703
*In Mass. call (617) 226-3310

scale, sporty entry with a base price of $15,780, the company uses comparative print ads and upbeat TV spots. Copy for print ads compare the XT6 with Mercedes: "The kind of car Mercedes might have built if they were a little more frugal and a lot more inventive."

One TV spot, "La Bamba," shows a man who has just left his car with his family. While he's gone, someone in the family drives the XT6; music-over is "La Bamba." When he returns, he notices someone has driven his car, but is not sure who it was. His grandmother is on the porch humming "La Bamba."

Mr. Sippel says the company will do heavy advertising during the 1988 National Football League season and network news programming. The company also says they will advertise during the Olympics, touting that Subaru is the official car of the 1988 U.S. ski team.

Subaru executives believe the company is back on track this year after experiencing slagging U.S. sales and financial woes partly linked to the rising yen that raised the cost of their U.S. vehicles.

And, according to Stanley Lanzet, a first VP of research at Drexel Burnham Lambert, New York, "[Subaru management] tried to force their top line of cars into a market that is intensely competitive. And when they didn't sell, they were too stubborn to cut back on cars from Japan."

According to Mr. Sippel, "We had a poor selling mix. Our cars costing more than $10,000 were way past 60% of deliveries. And when the market turned, we had to advertise and incentivize our way out of high-line cars."

Industry analysts say incentives averaged between $800 and $1,500 on most Subaru vehicles larger than subcompacts. Overall, the incentives cost the company about $75 million.

With this two-tier marketing strategy, Subaru is placing more emphasis on attracting the first-time buyer. "When we brought in the Justy in 1987, our line of cars really took off with first-time and price-sensitive buyers. And with our new sales mix, we're moving even more this year to the first-time buyer."

For the model year, Subaru expects to sell an estimated 80,000 cars in the under-$10,000 price tier and 100,000 in the over-$10,000 range. At the start of the company's 1987 fiscal year, industry sources say only 20% of Subaru's cars fit in this category.

Some industry analysts say a favorable image may still not be sufficient. "They make statements to the effect that they got religion last year," says Mr. Lanzet. "And right now, inventory is in good shape. But they're in the process of taking more [deliveries] again.'

Industry analysts believe Subaru could better use its strong image to preserve margins, not increase volume. "They have to be disciplined and hold down imports from Japan," Mr. Lanzet says. "If they sell their cars without incentives, they will be a very profitable company."

Despite criticism, executives at Subaru of America are happy with their advertising strategy and the image their ads create for their cars. "No way we'd change," says Mr. Sippel.

TV buy for the company. And Volvo will be using prime-time network TV to compete more directly with other automakers, he says.

Volvo will continue to buy spot TV and cable.

Mr. Slaven says he expects Volvo to approve additional spots later in the year which may target specific developments.

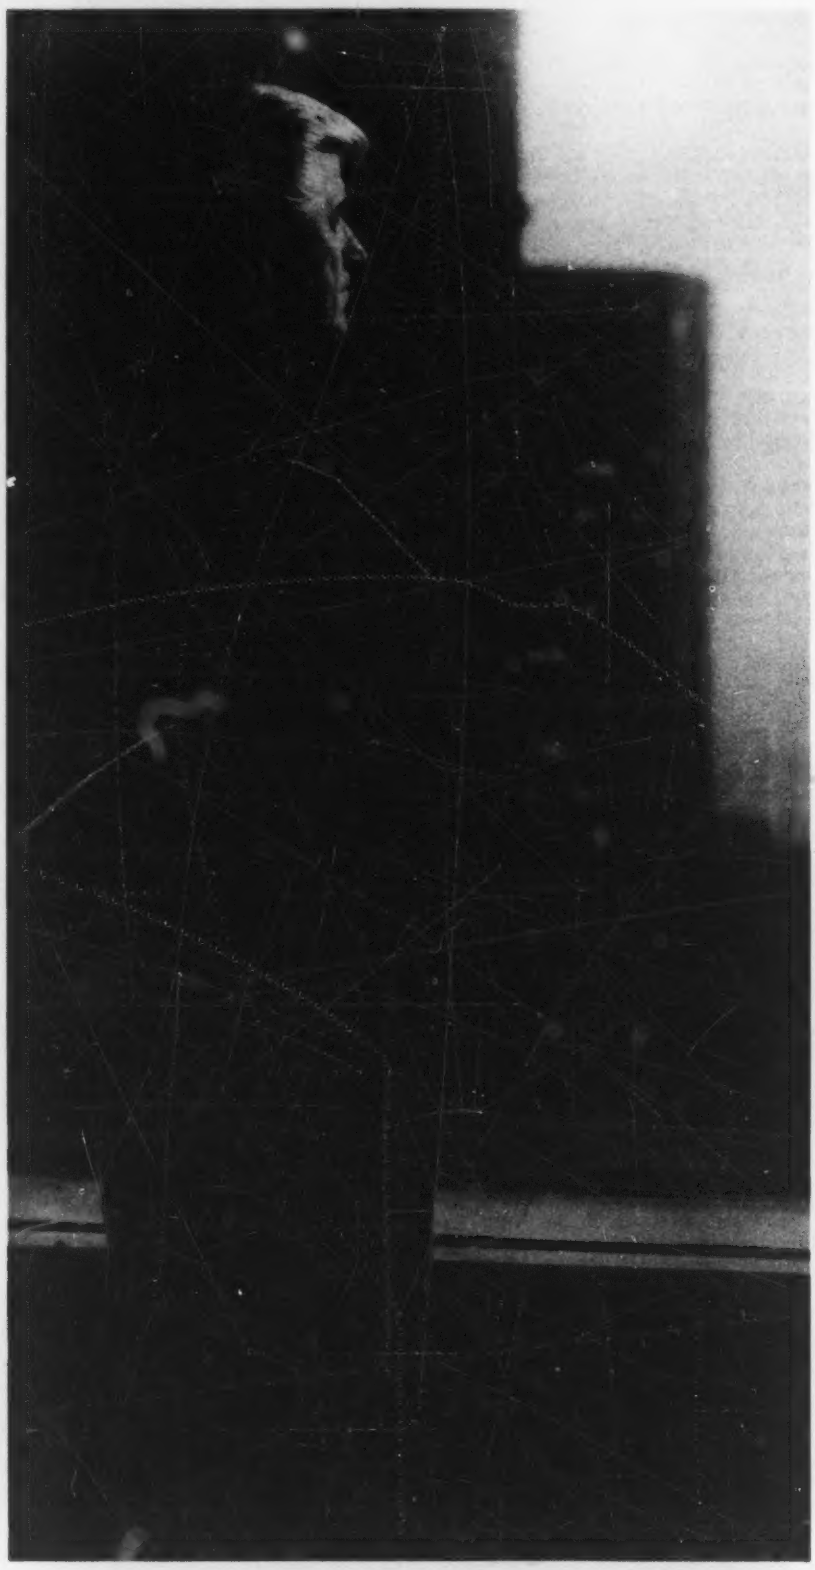
The later spots are also expected to include the fall 1988 release of the Volvo 480 for the 1989 model year.

Originally, the 480 was scheduled for introduction in 1987, but the U.S. debut has been repeatedly delayed. The 480, Volvo's mid-price entry, will have a sticker price of about $12,000, according to the company. However, recent reports cite the 480 at an estimated price of $15,000.

The current print campaign, which uses stills from TV spots, is being placed primarily in national magazines including newsweeklies such as Time, Newsweek and U.S. News & World Report and in general-interest publications. Some magazine ads now feature the 780, and late in 1988 may feature the new 480.

The company also will continue to sponsor tennis tournaments at the professional and collegiate levels and plans to sponsor the World Equestrian Games in Stockholm in 1990.

"The major difference between the 1988 campaign and previous campaigns is flexibility," says Mr. Slaven. ". . . We will try to balance the long-term image development needs with the short-term need to attract attention to the dealerships."



Only a few people can help a drug addict. Unfortunately, you're one of them.

If a drug user works for you, you don't have an alternative.

You're involved. And that's hard.

Because what truly helps an addict isn't sympathy. You have to be firm. And tough. And give him a choice that may seem heartless.

Get well. Or get out.

By confronting the addict, you force him to confront his own problem. And make a decision. It won't be easy. But there's a very good chance he'll agree to start treatment.

Meanwhile, there's help for you. 1-800-843-4971 is the National Institute on Drug Abuse helpline for managers and CEOs. Call weekdays from 9:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Eastern Time. They'll refer you to professionals who can help your company set up drug education, employee assistance, and treatment programs.

But they can't do it until you call. And take the role you're meant to play in all this. The boss.

Partnership for a Drug-Free America

Wary Big 3 hope to solve identity crisis

A major acquisition, design changes, technological innovations and carefully crafted brand identification all are helping Chrysler Corp., General Motors and Ford Motor Co. fight for their home turf market shares.

Chrysler: Total U.S. car sales

1986	1,385,991
1987	1,096,385
% change	−21%
Projected 1988	1,187,500

Source: Automotive News. Projected 1988 sales from Chrysler Corp.

Chrysler set to soar

Chrysler Corp. is now poised to carve out a bigger share of upscale segments with its August acquisition of Southfield, Mich.-based American Motors Corp. Highland Park, Mich.-based Chrysler now has the high-demographic Jeep buyer base, plus car models brought under the new Eagle standard.

Other nameplates continue the process. Last year, Chrysler rolled out an all-new New Yorker to go after the traditional luxury market and introduced a LeBaron coupe and convertible to compete with mid-size specialty cars.

In June, Chrysler will introduce a two-seater convertible designed and built in a co-effort with its Italian partner, Maserati. The car, to be known as the TC, will sell for an estimated $30,000. Chrysler owns a minority stake in Maserati, and last year bought another Italian upscale maker, Lamborghini.

The company hopes the TC will have a halo effect that upgrades the image of Chrysler's entire line. The TC is expected to compete with the Cadillac Allante, Mercedes-Benz 560 and the Jaguar XJS. According to the company, the TC will be offered at a considerably lower price.

The upscale drive is taking place within an overall marketing scheme that assigns specific brand images to each car line.

For example, Plymouth targets the low-price, conservative end of the market by projecting a family-car image, and Dodge targets the low-price, sporty auto market by emphasizing the car's performance.

SPREAD YOUR WINGS.
770

Chrysler debuts Premier by urging buyers to "spread your wings."

Chrysler seeks buyers in the traditional, conservative, upscale market by emphasizing luxury, while the new Eagle brand is trying to establish itself in the upscale segment by focusing on European style.

With a $20 million ad budget, the new Jeep-Eagle division was launched in late December with a campaign code named "The Big Bang." The campaign, created by William Esty Co., Southfield, Mich., introduced the new Premier sedan and announced that Chrysler was "spreading its wings" with the Jeep-Eagle division.

Ralph Sarotte, Eagle brand marketing manager, affirms that the Jeep-Eagle division plays a key role in Chrysler's upscale marketing strategies.

"The Eagle Premier offers the same type of European styling that's available on the Mercedes-Benz, BMW and Volvo, yet without the steep price," says Mr. Sarotte. Launch advertising calls the Premier "an American car with European sophistication and handling."

The Jeep-Eagle divisional theme line, "Expect the best," also reinforces upscale aspirations.

Chrysler hopes the new Premier will attract the same affluent buyers that have made its Jeep brand so successful. Median age for the targeted Premier buyer is about 42 years old, with an estimated earning capacity near $55,000, according to the company.

By relaunching the Renault Medallion under the Eagle emblem, the division also hopes to capture generally brand-oriented, first-time buyers. The compact Medallion is slated to debut in May.

A four-door sedan version of the Japanese-built Mitsubishi Mirage, a third Eagle model, is scheduled for launch in July. By 1990, Eagle will get a four-wheel-drive sports coupe that will be built by Diamond-Star, the joint venture assembly plant between Chrysler and Mitsubishi.

Demographics for Jeep's Wagoneer and Grand Wagoneer models are the highest for any domestically produced vehicle in the U.S., capturing a median age bracket of 45-years-old, coupled with household income near $90,000.

Chrysler officials found that Jeep buyers also owned a high-priced European sedan, a discovery that aided the decision on how to position the Eagle brand.

Demographically, Chrysler has had a lot of success with its New Yorker models by targeting a mature market, typically ranging from 49-56 years-old, with an average income of at least $40,000-$50,000.

Chrysler will maintain its conservative luxury position with its new Fifth Avenue and Imperial luxury sedans, expected for model year 1990.

Both the Chrysler corporate and Chrysler-Plymouth division advertising are handled by Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Birmingham, Mich.

Dodge division is trying to extend its reputation as a maker of youthful, performance-oriented vehicles to attract a larger percentage of buyers interested in expressive, responsive, yet affordable cars. For the past three years, the Daytona has been Dodge's image leader.

Dodge opened its 1988 TV campaign using the trendy black-and-white format, in an attempt to break through ad clutter. BBDO Worldwide, Southfield, Mich., handles.

Although the accompanying theme, "It's gotta be a Dodge," is expected to be retained, future use of the b&w footage format has not yet been determined.

—Dee Ann Maki

GM sharpens its look

General Motors is hoping to boost its image by staking a new claim to leadership in technological innovation and demonstrate that its new products have a distinct brand identity.

General Motors: Total U.S. car sales

1986	4,693,161
1987	3,728,313
% change	−21%
Projected 1988	4,379,000

Source: Automotive News. Projected 1988 sales from General Motors.

In January, the Detroit-based automaker presented its collection of futuristic vehicles in New York at a show the company tagged "GM Teamwork and Technology for Today and Tomorrow." But, even before the show, GM knew that it was in a brass-knuckle brawl for market share and that its image needed improving.

GM enters 1988 with a 5% loss of market share and trailed Dearborn, Mich.-based Ford Motor Co. in earnings for the second straight year.

To address these problems GM is using comparative advertising for both its Cadillac and Chevrolet divisions. "Comparative advertising isn't necessarily a bad strategy, considering GM's current situation," said Thomas O'Grady, president of Integrated Automotive Resources, Wayne, Pa., a marketing-research company.

WANTED:
National Advertisers
for unique publication reaching
3 million TV homes monthly
Serious inquiries only
Contact: Steve Goldmintz 516 665 8800
Premium Channels Publishing Company Inc

Who pulls the out of the hat for Porsche?

BANNERS
BANNERS BANNERS BANNERS BANNERS
BANNERS
A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER!
All New Heat-Sealed Polyethylene Banners For Indoor or Outdoor Use
*Patent Pending
- Unique "Banner Bukel"* design
- Made stronger to last longer
- Eliminates perforated sewing
- Less stress – fewer rips and tears
- Web-fed screen printing
- Exciting four color process up to 10' long
- Small or large quantities available
CALL OR WRITE FOR OUR FREE BROCHURE NOW !
SPP
Sales Promotion Printing Inc.
6555 Carnegie Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio 44103
(216) 361-2600

"GM's customers are clearly looking at the competition, mainly Ford. GM is making the point that its products do have some advantages."

To counter the impression that Cadillac models are sluggish compared with their European and domestic competitors, the Detroit-based division, once the gold standard for cars, launched a series of comparative ads in the 1988 model year via its ad agency, D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

The first ad says that in accleration and other tests conducted by the United States Auto Club, the Cadillac Eldorado, Seville and De Ville equipped with a V-8 outperformed certain models from BMW, Jaguar, Lincoln, Mercedes-Benz and Volvo.

A follow-up ad specifically targets Ford's new Lincoln Continental. And within weeks of the Continental's Dec. 26, 1987 launch, Cadillac's ads were touting USAC results on comparative tests with that car.

GM's Chevrolet division also uses comparative ads with a print and TV campaign that broke last fall. The ad compares its new full-size pickup to its Ford competitor. Lintas: Campbell-Ewald, Warren, Mich., handles the Chevrolet account.

In both TV and print, the two trucks are shown standing vertically on their tailgates. Attributes of the "advanced new Chevy" are contrasted with few changes on the "old new Ford." In the TV spot, the Ford topples over.

GM also created a $4 million print campaign to spread the word of its "Teamwork and Technology" show. The campaign, via N W Ayer, broke Feb. 8.

An eight-page insert, like the show, features 1988 models as well as future prototypes from each division.

It also uses the GM corporate theme line, "The vision is paying off," itself a combative rebuttal to critics who say Chairman Roger Smith's expensive obsession with high tech is part of the reason GM lost touch with the real marketplace.

The Pontiac division's success along with ad campaign "We build excitement," has led GM's other divisions to seek their own identities. Concept cars, shown in New York and in the ad insert, are supposed to reflect that drive.

At the show, Cadillac presented the Voyage—an aerodynamic, four-door sedan, designed to hold a V-12 engine—amid hints that an early 1990 production Cadillac model will be based on it.

Buick is trying to restore its image as the premium American car and to evoke a contemporary image of its 1967 and 1979 Riviera models with its Lucerne, a front-wheel-drive coupe, which was presented at the show.

Oldsmobile wants to present its products as contemporary family cars, marked by originality and uncluttered functionality.

In New York, Oldsmobile displayed the Aerotech, which last August established two speed records in runs topping 250mph. The car was conceived to evaluate high-performance versions of the Quad 4 engine GM began offering this model year, starting with the Oldsmobile Cutlass Calais.

Chevrolet's goal is to justify its theme line as the "Heartbeat of America" by offering upmarket features at entry-level prices. The division's concept car, Venture, is a four-passenger car combining features of a sport coupe with utility of a family sedan.

Pontiac's concept car, Banshee, is being touted as a prototype for early 1990s replacement of the Firebird.

All divisional identities are being mapped against a new, customer-defined segmentation scheme to determine each division's direction and its competition.

The plan identifies distinct types of customers within each segment. Each division, with a refined identity, should be able to go after specific customer groups within the segments in which it competes.

—Raymond Serafin

Ford shaping up

While Ford Motor Co.'s Lincoln-Mercury and Ford divisions aren't completely foresaking people and lifestyle-oriented messages, they are focusing more on describing tangible consumer benefits and positioning their models as leaders in product design.

Ford: Total U.S. car sales

1986	2,080,822
1987	2,060,834
% change	– 1%
Projected 1988	2,170,000

Source: Automotive News. Projected 1988 sales from Ford Motor Co.

The theme line for L-M's upscale Lincoln-branded models is "What a luxury car should be," and the theme for Mercury, Ford's near-luxury brand is "The shape you want to be in." Young & Rubicam, Detroit, handles L-M.

For the 1988 model year Ford division launched an umbrella, image-oriented campaign that broke last fall, which positions Ford as "the one car company that's winning the world over." The campaign, via J. Walter Thompson USA, Detroit, focuses on design and other areas where Ford has made market gains, including its new position as the top-selling brand (cars and trucks combined) in the U.S.

A print ad for Taurus—Ford's aerodynamic, radically designed mid-size car that has hurt GM's market share in that segment—talks about the model's awards, design, engineering and warranty under the headline, "Advanced design. Designed to reward you."

"We're focusing on the shape of our cars and gaining a foothold with the public before either of the other [domestic automakers] attempts to dislodge us," says Sheldon Wardwell, L-M advertising manager.

Important to L-M's strategy is the new front-wheel-drive Lincoln Continental, which debuted Dec. 26. Lincoln-branded models are getting 25% of L-M's 1988 ad budget, Mr. Wardwell says, and Continental accounts for 19% of L-M's total ad budget.

ADVERTISING AGE estimates L-M 1988 spending at $125 million.

That leaves only 6% of the budget to advertise the Mark VII, the Lincoln Town Car—L-M's top-selling car with 1987 sales of about 133,000 units—and the Lincoln brand.

"Continental is getting a much larger share of our budget because it's a totally redesigned car that's appealing to a different, younger buyer," Mr. Wardwell says.

"I consider Continental a [futuristic] car for Lincoln because it's definitely the direction we're taking the whole brand," he says.

Print ads position Continental as "the most advanced luxury car" while TV spots describe it as "one of evolution's greatest triumphs."

L-M, which projects first-year Continental sales of 30,000 units, has sold out its production through early May, Mr. Wardwell says.

This year L-M also plans to step up efforts to establish awareness of Merkur, the brand name for its two upscale German imports, the luxury sedan Scorpio and the sporty XR4Ti.

Merkur hopes to attract European import-intenders to Lincoln-Mercury dealerships, but so far L-M has had trouble creating awareness for the three-year-old brand.

L-M will focus on the models' names in two TV spots that will break this spring. Both spots, which include former Grand Prix world champion driver Jackie Stewart as ad spokesman, position the models as "everything a European luxury car is and has offered in the past, but with a surprising level of interior comfort," Mr. Wardwell says.

This spring Ford will add to its lineup the Mazda-built Probe, a sporty subcompact. Mercury will launch in late 1988 or early 1989 the new Capri, a two-passenger roadster designed in Italy and built in Australia.

Mr. Wardwell describes the market positioning of Ford and Mercury brands in terms of a triangle with luxury cars at the apex, midstatus cars in the middle and the entry level segment at the triangle's base.

Mercury is at the top of the midstatus level, and Ford is at the top of the entry level segment, according to Mr. Wardwell.

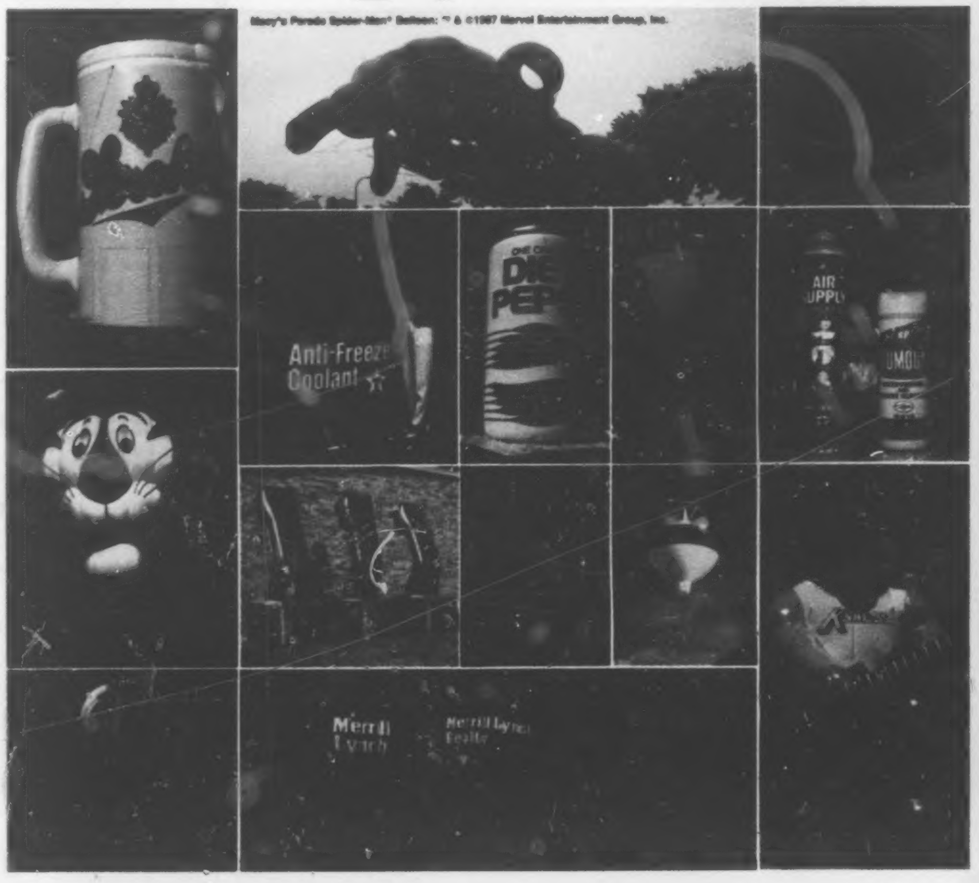
The long-running Ford theme line, "Have you driven a Ford . . . lately?" is now in its seventh year, and initially was a major part of the division's new emphasis on quality, says John Vanderzee, Ford advertising manager.

"We wanted people who had been disenchanted with Ford in the late 1970s to take a new look," he says.

"Now it says that we're a modern, high-technology, design leadership automobile company, and if you haven't driven us lately, you're missing something."

—Patricia Strnad

Blow up your ideas.



Macy's Parade Spider-Man® Balloon: ™ & ©1987 Marvel Entertainment Group, Inc.
Anti-Freeze Coolant
DIET PEPSI
AIR SUPPLY
Merrill Lynch
Merrill Lynch Realty

Whether the assignment is commanding buyer attention at the point of purchase, influencing important prospects at key trade shows or creating a presence at a major sporting event, Aerostar professionals can help you accomplish your objectives.

When it comes to the extraordinary, we are privileged to work with designs and models created by Macy*s Parade, constructing giants that float down Broadway on Thanksgiving Day. This willingness to meet imaginative challenges carries Aerostar into the future.

Call or write for details now.

AEROSTAR™
INTERNATIONAL, INC.
"Ballooning's Leader Since 1960"

A Subsidiary of RAVEN® industries, inc.

1813 "E" Ave. • P.O. Box 5057
Sioux Falls, SD 57117-5057 • (605) 331-3500

Consumer Magazine Ad Linage

Advertising pages for U.S., Canadian and foreign consumer publications

FEBRUARY

Auto/cycle/rec. vehicles

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
ATV Sports	—	—	—	—
Autoweek (52X)	175.0	115.5	296.0	227.5
Car & Driver	104.4	64.9	182.6	148.4
Car Collector & Car Classics	17.7	15.8	37.1	31.9
Car Craft	65.2	63.3	115.7	113.1
Circle Track	102.8	56.6	150.4	100.7
Cycle World	38.8	46.8	62.0	71.9
Dirt Rider	28.6	30.7	56.6	62.8
Dune Buggies & Hot VWs	66.1	69.6	133.9	146.6
Family Motor Coaching	158.0	135.4	354.5	303.4
4 Wheel & Off-Road	64.1	66.7	127.3	126.7
Four Wheeler	79.0	92.0	150.0	153.0
Hot Rod	63.0	61.8	156.8	105.3
Motorcyclist	37.1	32.2	52.8	46.4
Motor Trend	96.4	50.5	142.3	104.5
Motorhome	81.8	75.8	163.4	152.1
Rider	35.4	35.7	56.5	61.5
Road & Track	108.8	87.7	209.2	161.3
Trailblazer	46.3	37.0	82.5	72.0
Trailer Life	80.5	87.3	165.4	174.7
Total Group	1,449.0	1,225.3	2,695.0	2,363.7
% change		18.3%		14.0%

General

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
American Health (10X)	—	—	69.5	64.2
American Heritage (8X)	35.7	25.9	35.7	25.9
American West (6X)	33.0	29.2	33.0	29.2
The Atlantic A.	41.0	30.4	100.7	58.0
Bon Appetit A.	69.6	86.8	136.1	144.3
Cable Guide	22.0	19.5	45.0	45.9
Changing Times	57.6	58.0	110.3	123.9
Conde Nast's Traveler	47.3	—	81.9	—
Connoisseur	59.0	69.3	109.3	107.1
Consumers Digest (6X)	—	—	17.5	27.5
Ebony	129.5	107.7	199.8	179.5
Fifty Plus	—	—	—	—
Food & Wine	53.6	55.8	90.6	89.9
Games (6X)	14.6	17.9	26.4	31.4
Golden Years	48.8	32.4	86.2	57.3
Gourmet	97.0	91.7	166.3	148.3
Harper's A.	29.4	27.0	56.6	56.0
Harrowsmith (6X)	—	—	65.0	54.4
Let's Live	49.0	44.0	97.0	89.0
Life	32.3	35.9	81.8	88.4
Mature Outlook	—	—	32.5	46.3
Modern Maturity (6X)	40.6	50.6	40.6	50.6
Money	103.4	130.1	207.6	220.9
Money Maker	8.0	—	8.0	—
Mother Jones (9X)	18.0	18.4	32.3	37.2
National Geographic	40.7	18.6	50.0	30.6
National Geographic Traveler(4X)	—	—	—	—
Natural History	41.8	41.1	75.2	81.2
Prevention	68.8	75.1	118.9	141.6
Psychology Today	32.9	31.6	63.4	63.6
Reader's Digest A.	107.7	77.2	175.1	142.8
Saturday Evening Post (9X)	—	—	39.0	43.9
Smithsonian	106.7	71.9	190.8	131.8
Sylvia Porter's Personal Finance (10X)	—	—	54.5	67.3
Town & Country	140.4	108.3	238.2	190.4
Travel-Holiday	56.3	55.4	102.0	94.7
Travel & Leisure	106.9	73.5	174.7	137.4
Vanity Fair	72.4	43.6	105.4	68.1
Writer's Digest	27.0	24.2	53.4	51.1
Yankee	99.8	74.1	169.2	144.8
Total Group	1,890.8	1,625.1	3,539.5	3,164.4
% change		16.3%		11.9%

Home

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
Americana (6X)	—	—	16.7	14.6
Architectural Digest A.	166.5	87.4	246.4	167.2
Better Homes & Gardens	102.5	94.0	177.7	146.3
Colonial Homes (6X)	67.2	67.0	42.7	44.0
Columbus Monthly-Homes (4X)	—	—	30.2	22.6
Country Home (6X)	—	—	41.9	36.2
Country Living	82.0	83.6	138.2	142.1
Family Handyman (10X) A.	40.2	48.5	88.6	87.2
Flower & Garden (6X)	54.4	51.8	54.4	51.8
Home	61.7	69.5	105.7	102.7
Home Mechanics	—	—	—	—
The Homeowner (10X)	—	—	43.6	40.5
Horticulture	46.7	35.3	95.5	75.7
House Beautiful	70.2	56.2	108.6	99.2
House & Garden	71.4	86.1	130.7	137.9
Houston Home & Garden	71.6	77.6	111.8	119.9
Metropolis	—	—	55.9	63.9
Metropolitan Home	84.7	60.9	135.0	94.7
1,001 Home Ideas	50.8	45.3	97.2	81.7
Organic Gardening	74.7	71.9	132.9	127.7
Phoenix Home/Garden	94.0	86.0	164.8	145.8
Practical Homeowner	63.8	74.4	107.7	113.3
San Diego Home/Garden	72.7	68.5	125.0	129.0
South Florida Home/Garden	50.0	35.9	93.0	71.6
Southern Accents (6X)	—	—	82.3	84.1
Southern Living	101.5	103.2	169.3	176.3
Sunset Magazine A.	125.0	107.0	210.2	168.6
Workbench (6X)	—	—	48.4	49.4
Total Group	1,551.4	1,410.0	2,854.2	2,593.7
% change		10.0%		10.0%

In-flight & other passenger

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
Aboard Group (7X)	—	—	28.0	27.8
Alaska Airlines	54.9	55.8	109.6	107.9
America West Airlines	59.2	43.5	120.7	86.1
American Way (24X)	124.2	92.9	251.6	172.1
Brighton Inflight Group:
Hawaiian Air (6X)	—	—	—	—
East/West Network:
Continental	59.7	—	111.7	—
Eastern Review	52.5	72.2	113.7	150.0
Northwest	37.2	44.5	80.4	83.5
Pan Am Clipper	39.7	36.0	83.0	79.2
Spirit	70.3	52.7	130.0	110.0
TWA Ambassador	53.8	43.5	104.8	86.0
Vis 'A Vis	56.0	61.2	96.7	114.4
Halsey Publication:
Delta Sky	—	—	—	—
Pace Communications:
Piedmont Airlines Pace	90.5	95.1	163.8	168.5
US Air	68.7	36.2	125.2	77.7
Spirit of Aloha (6X)	20.9	34.0	41.7	68.0
Total Group	787.5	667.6	1,560.9	1,331.2
% change		18.0%		17.3%

Men's

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
Esquire A.	73.9	61.3	121.2	105.7
Firehouse Magazine	28.8	29.8	66.8	76.8
Gentlemen's Quarterly A.	127.6	115.6	211.9	170.4
M Magazine	83.5	89.9	127.1	125.2
Muscle & Fitness	117.8	105.8	238.3	220.5
Penthouse A.	35.6	33.0	91.5	77.4
Playboy A.	44.5	32.1	97.5	92.7
Salute (10X)	27.4	—	27.4	—
Total Group	539.2	467.6	981.7	868.7
% change		15.3%		13.0%

Metropolitan

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
Aloha (6X)	—	—	18.8	27.9
Atlanta	61.4	53.9	112.5	105.8
Baltimore	68.3	77.7	119.7	135.1
Boston	144.0	143.1	270.7	277.1
California	50.0	60.4	112.1	97.6
Chicago	89.8	83.2	195.7	154.2
Chicago's North Shore	79.1	62.5	172.4	141.3
Cincinnati	41.6	38.6	89.3	83.9
Cleveland	49.9	49.6	102.9	102.0
Coast (39X)	51.7	61.2	103.4	121.2
Columbus Monthly	43.4	44.8	113.3	105.1
Connecticut	99.1	92.5	174.1	175.7
D/Magazine, Dallas/Ft. Worth	93.1	116.8	165.0	207.4
Denver	34.5	34.7	62.7	56.2
Detroit Monthly	66.0	51.2	117.5	147.1
Grand Rapids	33.3	34.7	60.9	64.4
Gulfshore Life (10X)	113.0	105.0	199.0	191.0
Honolulu	57.2	50.8	112.6	107.0
Louisiana Life (6X)	—	—	24.2	29.8
Madison	40.5	68.0	71.0	122.0
Memphis	71.0	67.0	145.0	148.0
Mid Atlantic Country	—	—	—	—
Milwaukee	46.3	53.8	93.8	85.8
Minneapolis/St. Paul	75.6	81.0	143.6	142.4
Nashville	37.0	59.0	81.0	103.0
New England Monthly	35.5	32.4	82.0	64.0
New Jersey Monthly	84.6	86.0	154.8	156.2
New Mexico	—	—	—	—
Ohio	37.8	39.6	92.9	107.4
Oregon (6X)	—	—	—	—
Orlando	81.3	78.9	173.4	163.8
Palm Beach Life	104.1	110.3	189.8	201.9
Palm Springs Life	—	—	—	—
Philadelphia	114.8	108.1	237.4	231.7
Phoenix	55.2	71.9	118.3	147.0
Pittsburgh	68.8	60.6	118.1	110.7
St. Louis	—	—	—	—
San Diego	117.3	135.3	294.2	245.8
San Francisco Focus	87.0	93.2	141.7	150.5
South Florida Magazine	74.9	46.2	156.8	100.1
Texas Monthly	102.0	64.0	155.1	142.1
Twin Cities	51.6	41.9	116.6	76.5
The Virginian (6X)	—	—	60.5	52.1
Washington (7X)	—	—	47.4	40.0
The Washingtonian	149.4	154.5	263.0	272.2
Total Group	2,610.1	2,612.3	5,263.1	5,193.0
% change		-0.1%		1.3%

Music/entertainment

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
Audio	85.5	62.4	195.4	160.8
Dance Magazine	59.6	55.8	115.4	113.6
Playbill	48.8	41.8	84.2	75.4
Stereo Review	96.5	99.2	198.3	197.7
Video Magazine	—	—	—	—
Total Group	290.4	259.2	593.2	547.5
% change		12.0%		8.3%

National Sunday magazines

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
Parade (52X)	50.4	53.6	108.8	102.2
Total Group	50.4	53.6	108.8	10[illegible].2
% change		-5.9%		[illegible]%

Outdoor & sport

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
Alaska	46.6	40.0	78.7	63.8
The American Handgunner (6X)	—	—	49.0	41.0
American Hunter	19.5	16.4	37.1	37.3
American Rifleman	20.0	19.0	44.7	47.6
Backpacker (6X)	—	—	34.5	27.0
Bass Master (10X) A.	111.0	95.4	193.9	162.4
Bicycling (9X)	—	—	85.6	69.6
Ducks Unlimited (6X)	—	—	22.6	18.3
Field & Stream	90.2	84.3	145.9	159.8
Fins & Feathers A.	—	—	—	—
Fishing World (6X)	—	—	43.0	33.1
Florida Sportsman	200.1	163.0	333.8	312.6
Golf Digest	128.4	103.6	215.0	204.2
Golf Magazine	144.9	121.8	295.2	240.0
Gun Dog (6X)	—	—	27.2	31.0
Guns	32.2	26.9	65.2	55.9
Guns & Ammo	63.4	39.8	102.5	74.7
In-Fisherman (6X)	162.8	145.0	162.8	145.0
Outdoor Life	98.5	91.5	154.1	161.9
Outside Magazine	—	—	—	—
Petersen's Hunting	67.0	36.6	103.4	74.8
Runner's World (12X)	33.7	27.0	69.5	49.1
Salt Water Sportsman	120.0	104.9	320.3	288.4
Sierra (6X)	34.5	39.4	34.5	39.4
Shooting Times	63.5	43.7	89.5	78.3
Ski (8X) A.	102.8	78.8	207.3	162.2
Skiing (7X) A.	68.8	55.6	181.8	150.5
Skin Diver	113.5	104.3	204.6	203.4
Southern Outdoors (9X)	96.5	51.3	141.1	97.4
Southern Saltwater(8X)	41.4	32.5	80.8	32.5
Sport	33.2	32.3	69.2	64.3
Sports Afield	102.6	92.8	145.4	224.4
Tennis	50.1	63.3	91.7	107.8
Waterski (8X)	—	—	49.5	43.0
Western Outdoors (10X)	64.7	57.4	102.3	87.4
Wildfowl (6X)	14.8	8.9	14.8	8.9
Wing & Shot (6X)	—	—	15.5	11.9
World Tennis	51.6	21.0	71.3	34.8
Total Group	2,176.2	1,796.4	4,083.3	3,641.2
% change		21.1%		12.1%

Photography

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
American Photographer	24.6	33.3	62.6	58.3
Petersen's Photographic	19.7	24.1	43.4	46.1
Popular Photography	73.0	64.8	154.1	132.8
Total Group	117.3	122.3	260.1	237.2
% change		-4.0%		9.6%

Science/electronic /mechanic

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
Discover	38.4	44.9	77.5	92.8
Family & Home Office Computing	42.7	51.9	89.5	107.0
Omni	51.0	57.8	104.9	105.3
Personal Computing	260.1	124.4	479.6	251.8
Popular Mechanics	74.9	90.5	133.8	164.2
Popular Science	79.5	75.6	139.3	134.7
Scientific American	56.1	41.4	74.4	71.7
Spectrum	59.0	74.0	145.8	149.3
Total Group	661.5	560.4	1,244.9	1,076.8
% change		18.0%		15.6%

Woman/fashion/service

	Current month 1988	1987	Year-to-date 1988	1987
Bride's Magazine (6X) A.	703.6	581.9	703.6	581.9
Cosmopolitan A.	185.7	190.4	327.7	343.3
Elle Magazine	142.6	162.5	212.0	227.0
Essence	79.2	75.1	137.2	130.5
Family Circle (17X) A.	188.7	87.9	244.8	162.1
Glamour	154.7	160.3	246.5	279.7
Good Housekeeping A.	142.6	125.0	209.1	208.9
Harper's Bazaar	111.2	120.3	172.9	189.7
Health	60.6	45.0	87.7	79.0
Ladies' Home Journal	114.6	102.0	189.1	167.2
Mademoiselle	111.4	108.4	173.4	185.8
McCall's	87.5	119.2	142.8	174.1
Military Lifestyle	50.3	50.1	83.9	94.4
Modern Bride (6X)	555.7	575.0	555.7	575.0
Ms.	30.3	28.5	63.3	76.2
New Woman	85.1	75.0	142.2	131.9
Parents Magazine A.	99.1	89.6	179.7	153.4
Redbook	84.5	95.0	157.4	168.0
Savvy	44.9	41.5	84.5	73.9
Self	102.3	96.6	153.9	154.0
Seventeen	67.7	86.3	111.4	161.6
Shape	62.2	68.3	118.1	119.8
Soap Opera Digest (26X)	—	—	—	—
Teen Magazine	34.9	49.0	67.0	81.7
True Story A.	52.8	55.9	92.2	90.3
Vogue	29.3	30.2	132.9	148.7
Woman (10X)	39.3	30.0	39.3	30.0
Weight Watchers	52.2	31.5	81.7	65.8
Woman's Day (16X) A.	93.8	117.8	180.3	210.9
Workbasket	32.9	37.4	58.4	65.1
Working Mother	78.7	70.8	133.0	134.2
Working Woman	92.3	74.0	159.4	156.3
Total Group	3,770.5	3,580.4	5,441.0	5,420.4
% change		5.3%		0.4%

AD AGE regrets the inconvenience it may have caused its readers by reducing the consumer linage report in this issue to a single page. Space requirements forced the move.

Consumer linage also will not appear in March, but not from lack of space. Editors are switching to a new monitoring system that will help the reader track ad trends. Under the system, current-month reports will be presented in the succeeding month.

Monthly data will continue to be collected from participating magazines through the mailer cards, but data will be manipulated into charts pointing out monthly and year-to-date ad movements and prior-year comparisons of magazine categories. The AD AG Index monitoring leading magazine categories will be introduced and a writeup will accompany the linage report identifying leading magazines.

(X) Represents the number of times published each year; publications are monthly unless otherwise specified.

A. Sectional linage included but prorated to circulation of regional editions. B. Sectional linage included but not prorated to circulation of regional editions. C. Combined unduplicated regional ads.

All figures represented in this chart are supplied by the magazines. ADVERTISING AGE makes no attempt to verify them and, therefore, is not responsible for inconsistencies or errors.

*3-DIGIT 200
0201909649 AV00 8810 COMP LW2
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

NEWSPA

©Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

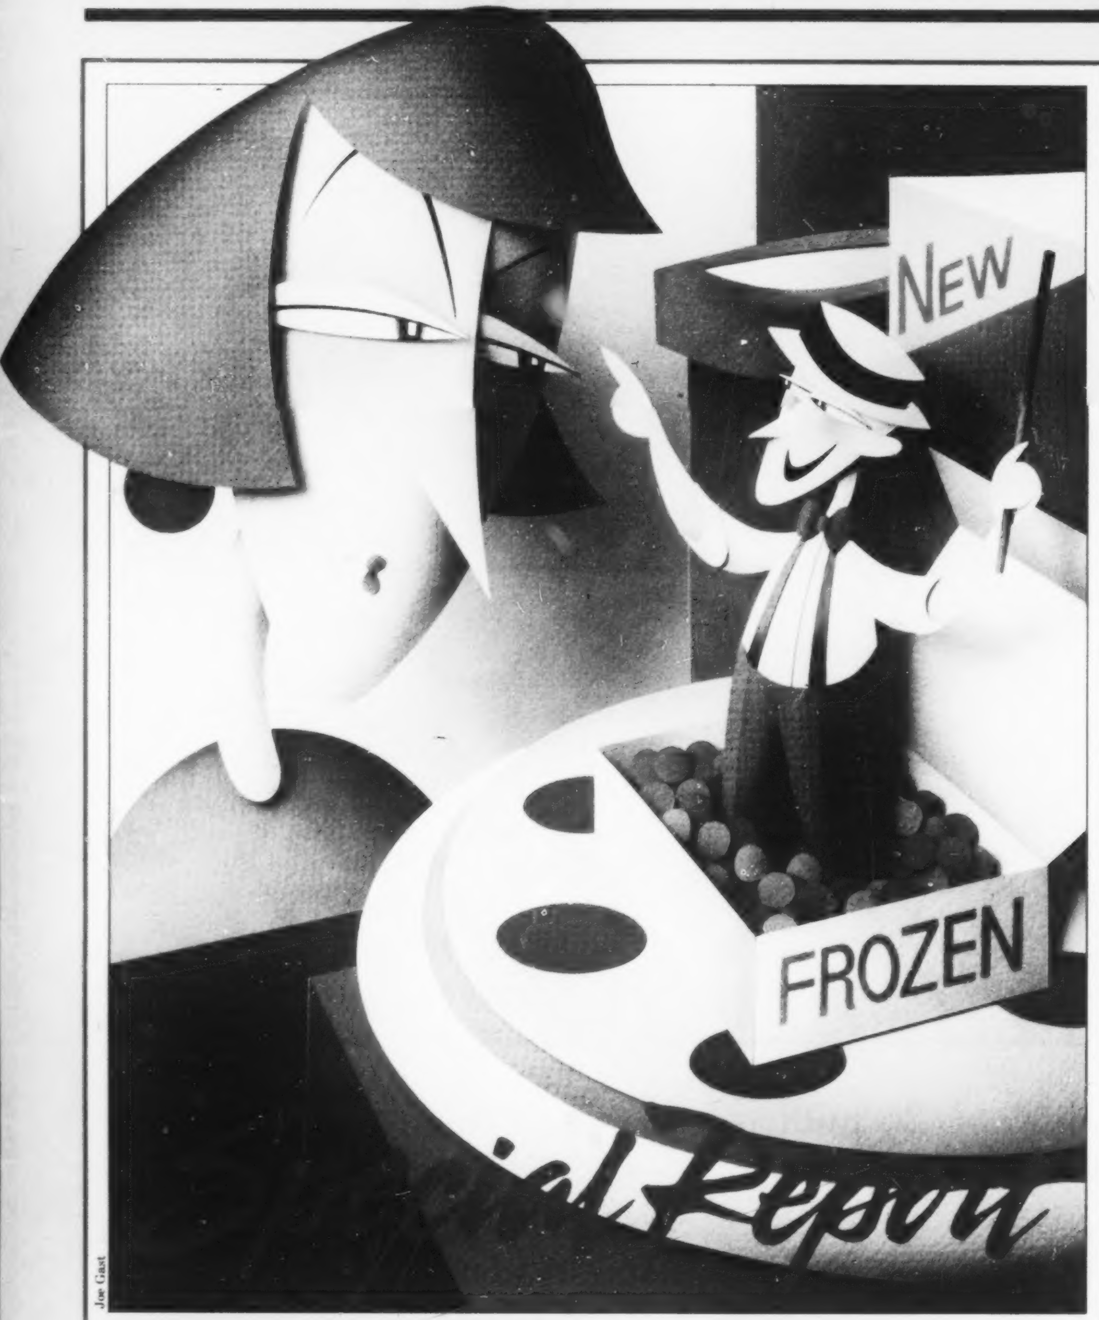
$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

March 7, 1988

C2710-1
3/4/88

Advertising Age

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.



Marketing to Women

Page S-1

Pillsbury: Where the doughboy went wrong

—Page 1

A not-super Tuesday for Bob Dole's ad strategy

—Page 1

Faberge's new-product blitz sets strategy

—Page 6

Good news: Man of Steel flying high even at 50

—Page 74

BEST AVAILABLE COPY

Does this guy look 50? See P. 74

March 7, 1988

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing

What's behind Pillsbury woes

By SCOTT HUME
and JULIE LIESSE ERICKSON

John M. Stafford took the fall last week for failing to solve Pillsbury Co.'s myriad marketing problems.

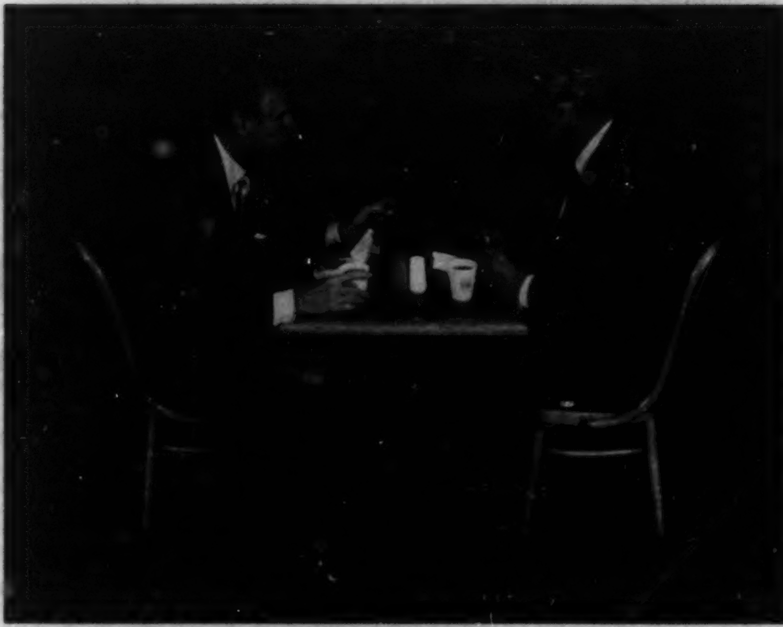
But the company's problems go deeper —and back further—than two years of disappointing sales and profits for the Restaurants Group.

William Spoor, the former chairman-ceo who temporarily replaces Mr. Stafford as chairman-president-ceo of the $6 billion food and restaurant company, bears a major responsibility for creating many of those problems, industry observers say.

The problems include: a rash of executive departures, a half-dozen short-lived ad campaigns, a host of failed or undersupported new-product introductions, a dearth of in-store promotional marketing and a consistent lack of focus.

Although attention has focused on the Restaurants Group's problems with Burger King Corp.—and there's little question the wheels came off the No. 2 burger chain's marketing—the Foods Group, too, has lost key executives and had its share of marketing blunders while still managing to post profits that have satisfied Wall Street.

Pillsbury in the past two years has lost far more share points in the microwave popcorn market than BK has in the fast-food arena, for example.



Steve Woit/Picture Group

John Stafford (l.) shares a Burger King lunch with William Spoor, whom he succeeded as Pillsbury's chairman until Mr. Stafford was replaced by Mr. Spoor last week.

Pillsbury had pinned much of its food division's hopes on microwave technology. Despite generally being first in the market, however, Pillsbury hasn't been able to maintain its lead in microwaveable products.

First on the market with microwave popcorn, the company now is a distant third in the $300 million market, behind Beatrice Cos.' Orville Redenbacher's la and General Mills' Pop Secret.

What's in the future for Pillsbury—P.

One reason for that is Pillsbury let a l executive on microwave products leave start a third competitor that has done well in the market.

More important, however, is the fact that the company allowed ad support for popcorn to dwindle drastically; Beatrice and General Mills are outspending Pillsbury 3-to-1.

Another seemingly unnecessary marketing fiasco occurred in frozen pizza, where Pillsbury held a major position with Totino's.

When Pillsbury acquired Jeno's in 1985,

(Continued on Page 78)

Last Minute News

Dole spot lashes out at Bush

WASHINGTON—Sen. Bob Dole (R., Kan.) late last week unleashed a negative TV spot on Vice President George Bush's role in the Iran-contra affair. The 30-second spot, from Murphy & Castellanos, Alexandria, Va., was slated for five or six major markets (see related story below).

ABC-TV drops $75M on Olympics

NEW YORK—ABC-TV lost $75 million on its Winter Olympics telecast, or double the original estimates, network sources say. However, Capital Cities/-ABC's overall losses were about $35 million to $40 million because of ad sales by its eight owned-and-operated TV stations, sources said. Separately, negotiations on the 1992 Winter Olympics in Albertville, France, are ex-

(Continued on Page 8)

Inside Campaign '88

How Dole killed election hopes

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

Sen. Bob Dole's chances of winning the Republican presidential nomination are dead, says his former media adviser.

They were killed last month in Boston by a negative TV spot from Vice President George Bush that the Dole campaign declined to answer, said Don Ringe, former top adman for the Kansas senator.

The attack spot from Vice President Bush ran on Feb. 11, only days before the crucial Feb. 16 New Hampshire primary. That primary, coming after Sen. Dole's strong showing in the Iowa caucuses on Feb. 8, was a momentum-stopper for the Dole campaign, Mr. Ringe said.

Brady's Super Tuesday—P. 76

The spot accused Sen. Dole of straddling the fence on whether he would reject a tax increase.

The vice president, who was

(Continued on Page 76)

GM's Saturn breaks mold

UAW helps select ad agency

By RAYMOND SERAFIN

TROY, MICH.—In what may be an unprecedented move, a United Auto Workers official will help select an ad agency for the $70 million-to-$80 million General Motors Corp. Saturn account.

The arrangement, which is unique at least to the automotive industry, reflects Saturn's attempt to forge new labor-management relations. The UAW official is a member of Saturn's internal Strategic Action Council, a high-level committee dealing with strategic direction. The official hasn't been identified.

The UAW is being included because "they're a stakeholder in the whole process," said Thomas Shaver, 47, director of marketing services for Saturn Corp., in an exclusive interview with ADVERTISING AGE.

"They're part of our business teams, they're with us at our staff meetings," he said of the UAW. A tour of Saturn headquarters would turn up union representatives commonly working next to company executives, he said.

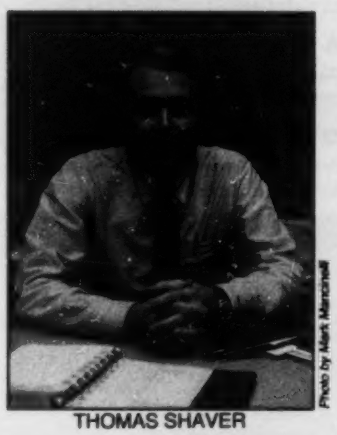


Photo by Mark Marcinek

THOMAS SHAVER

The innovative contract signed in 1985 by Saturn and the UAW eliminated nearly all the rigid job classifications traditional to manufacturing. Workers in return get lifetime job guarantees (under most circumstances) and a bigger say in the organization.

A UAW spokesman said union members were part of the committee that designed the assembly plant being built in Spring Hill, Tenn. "The contract is a brand new concept that calls for total integration of UAW and management," the spokesman said.

Mr. Shaver declined to comment on whether a union representative will continue to have involvement with Saturn's ad agency after a selection is made. But he said there will be a more "streamlined process" for working with the agency, compared to the selection procedure.

"We're not setting up something where 10 million people are writing copy," he said.

In a wide-ranging interview, Mr. Shaver also revealed that a car dealer will join the UAW in

(Continued on Page 78)

Coffee price war brews

P&G tests low-cost 'fast roast'

By LAURIE FREEMAN and JUDANN DAGNOLI

Procter & Gamble Co. is embarking on an adventurous new strategy for Folgers that could re-ignite coffee price wars.

In Western markets beginning today, P&G is replacing 16-ounce regular Folgers coffee with a 13-ounce "fast roast" Folgers.

The introduction won't affect the Western markets' test of Folgers Gourmet Supreme, a premium-price Colombian blend.

The new lines could indicate that P&G is moving away from midprice coffees to concentrate on the high and low ends.

The new Folgers is made by roasting coffee beans "faster and hotter" so they "puff more," said a P&G spokeswoman. The process allows more flavor to be extracted from each bean. As a result, P&G can use fewer green coffee beans and reduce the list price by 20¢ per can.

The cost savings are derived from "green coffee costs only, because the cost [to P&G] to manufacture, package and deliver Folgers remains the same," the spokeswoman said.

The new process results in 13 ounces of fast-roast Folgers being equal in volume to the 16-ounce size. The technology has been used by the company in its decaffeinated variety since 1983, the spokeswoman said.

The P&G threat may be a factor in General Foods Corp.'s decision to re-institute Maxwell House advertising (AA, Feb. 22).

The new lower-price product from No. 2 P&G comes at a time when GF, the leading coffee marketer, has had to raise prices to take pressure off the company's slimmer margins on Maxwell House. GF has about 37.8% of the $4.8 billion coffee market while Folgers has about 27.5%.

P&G maintains the new Folgers isn't a high-yield coffee; it will continue to sell Folgers Special Roast Flakes, a high-yield coffee. But one California retailer contended P&G is "downsizing a pound to 13 ounces and producing another high-yield coffee" and only taking 20¢ off the price.

He said P&G's move will force competitors to follow suit or "discredit" P&G.

The premium-price Folgers Gourmet Supreme is testing in Denver; Phoenix, Ariz.; and Salt Lake City (AA, April 13). Handled by Wells, Rich, Greene, New York, the brand is targeted at GF's Yuban and supported with a lavish campaign that cost a reported $1 million to produce. Print, radio and spot TV are being used.

Two 60-second commercials are takeoffs on adventure films in which a swashbuckling character named Alex relates the tale of his dangerous and involved search for "the supreme coffee bean."

The fast-action footage has Alex caught in rock slides and crashing over waterfalls as he struggles to reach the summit of a craggy mountain peak. At the top is the signature black can of Gourmet Supreme.

P&G said it won't advertise the new 13-ounce Folgers because there's no change in the regular product's packaging, labeling or flavor. The national Folgers campaign uses a "Waking up" theme, created by N W Ayer.

The new Folgers also will be sold in 26-ounce packages and will be distributed in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington.#

Highlights

EWS

4 Avis trying harder than ever
Avis kicks off its first ad campaign since being sold to its employees last year.

6 Faberge dresses up marketing
Faberge USA will unveil its revamped marketing strategy, supported by a $40 million ad budget.

24 Dishing up conflicts
Food marketers are creating new agency conflict problems as they branch out into new food areas.

29 Consumer promotions gear up
The forecasted shift of marketing dollars to consumer promotions from trade promotions appears to have begun.

32 First Nationwide banks on service
First Nationwide Bank is creating a national chain with a hometown feel.

54 Blockbuster plots expansion
Blockbuster Entertainment Corp. plans to make the chain the industry's largest.

64 K-C boosts spending
Kimberly-Clark Corp. is increasing its ad and promotional spending by about 14% this year.

70 Public backs Detroit JOA
Hometown pressure could influence the U.S. attorney general's decision on a joint operating agreement for Detroit's dailies.

71 British Airways global ads fly
British Airways' revamped business-class service is booming, thanks to a global ad campaign.

80 When ads poke fun at ads
Critics believe the trend toward "parody advertising" isn't the best way to sell products.

INTERNATIONAL

47 P&G scrubs brand loyalty
In West Germany, Procter & Gamble Co. is trying to transfer market share and brand loyalty from its top-selling denture cleanser to a new brand name.

AD REVIEW: K mart spots get green light. Page 80.

David Mahoney's "Confessions." Page 36.

Departments

Brady	50
Brady's Bunch	74
Christopher	49
Classifieds	67
Currents	42
Direct Marketing	28
Editorials	16
For the Record	73
Forum	18
Garfield	49
Global Gallery	46
Letters	20
McKinney	52
MediaWorks	66
Newhoff	52
Newspaper Figures	44
Observing	49
People	61
PeopleWorks	60
Photo Review	56
Public Relations Beat	34
Stroock	52
The Next Trend	50

Vol. 59, No. 10—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4906).

Feds tell states to back off on ad restrictions

By JENNIFER LAWRENCE

The U.S. Department of Transportation, in its strongest move yet to curb state regulation of national advertising, is threatening to go to court to block enforcement of state airline ad guidelines.

If successful, the DOT suit would undercut a plan by the National Association of Attorneys General to regulate airline advertising as well as threaten other future NAAG ad proposals.

The move comes just as NAAG holds a crucial meeting in Washington this weekend, where it will consider proposals to regulate rental car, airline and possibly other ads.

B. Wayne Vance, DOT general counsel, last week sent a letter to seven state attorneys general claiming that states are pre-empted by the federal government from regulating air-fare price advertising that encourages price competition.

Mr. Vance closed his letter with "I am asking you and the other attorneys general not to take further action in this matter that could lead to our being opposing litigants rather than partners without thorough discussion at both state and federal levels. . . .

"If threats to enforce the particular sections of the guidelines continue, we will be forced to consider taking formal legal action to prevent their enforcement."

Mr. Vance offered to attend this weekend's NAAG meeting in Washington or meet with the state officials before then.

The DOT letter objects to regulation of round-trip-fare ad requirements and the required inclusion of surcharges in the advertised fare.

"If the DOT doesn't want to protect consumers, they should keep their mouth shut and let other people do it," said Stephen Gardner, assistant Texas attorney general. "The federal agencies are continuing on their course of being lackeys to the airline industry."

In other developments:

- The state attorneys general are expected to endorse a three-month study of the car-rental industry and its ad practices, sources say. This study could produce a set of national car rental ad guidelines.
- The New York and Texas state attorneys general have sent letters to Sterling Drug's Glenbrook Laboratories and to SmithKline Consumer Products seeking discussions about ads for Sterling's Bayer aspirin and SmithKline's Ecotrin. The attorneys general say the ads may violate state consumer protection laws.

State officials fear the ads don't clearly differentiate between using aspirin for first or second heart attacks and also don't fully explain the risks and side effects.

They also charge that although the Food & Drug Administration approved "professional labeling" for doctors to recommend aspirin to reduce second heart attack risks, no one has specifically approved advertising these claims to consumers.

> "The federal agencies are continuing on their course of being lackeys to the airline industry."
>
> —Texas assistant attorney general

- With battles likely over the airline guidelines, the Council of Better Business Bureaus last week urged the states to shift gears and work through the advertising industry's self-regulation process.

CBBB President James McIlhenny "encouraged" the state officials to work through CBBB's National Advertising Division, which reviews complaints about national advertising and has handled more than a dozen cases involving airline ads.

The CBBB offer was endorsed by the Association of National Advertisers, the American Association of Advertising Agencies and the American Advertising Federation, which co-sponsor the NAD program.

Four A's President Leonard S. Matthews attacked the NAAG airline guides as "impractical and costly," unconstitutional and potentially "a real disservice to the American consumer."#

Contributing to this story: Patricia Winters in New York and Steven W. Colford and Laurie Freeman in Washington.

Newspaper Advertising Inches; December 1987 vs. December 1986 (Standard Advertising Units in the Media Records Conversion System)

AKRON, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Beacon Journal (M)	114,757	——	106,490	——
Beacon Journal (S)	73,349	——	75,783	——
Grand Total	188,106	——	182,273	——

NOTE: Beacon Journal changed from evening to morning publication effective July 13, 1987.

ALLENTOWN, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Call (M)	178,511	——	172,944	——
Call (S)	92,128	——	92,859	——
Grand Total	270,639	——	265,803	——

NOTE: Part run figures not available.

ASBURY PARK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Press (E)	175,214	51,350	192,681	20,254
Press (S)	137,341	20,317	135,838	17,054
Grand Total	312,555	71,667	328,519	37,308

ATLANTA, GA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Constitution (M)	183,931	89,256	189,532	95,661
Journal (E)	188,338	97,210	198,213	103,837
Journal & Constitution (S)	95,133	105,038	103,671	83,466
Journal & Constitution (Sat)	44,063	——	42,579	——
Grand Total	511,465	291,504	533,995	282,964

NOTE: Constitution Morning and Journal Evening published five days a week only.

BALTIMORE, MD

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Sun (M)	146,783	27,244	161,008	8,856
Sun (E)	121,485	25,755	126,790	8,650
Sun (S)	138,512	55,844	133,682	52,736
Grand Total	406,780	108,843	421,480	70,242

BERGEN COUNTY, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Record (E)	164,770	44,404	174,623	29,599
Record (S)	150,292	55,312	143,623	40,060
Grand Total	315,062	99,716	318,246	69,659

BOSTON, MA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Herald (M)	83,896	——	97,692	821
Herald (S)	25,427	54,640	23,717	38,042
Globe (M)	161,990	15,659	155,961	15,736
Globe (S)	157,761	44,062	154,518	33,880
Grand Total	429,074	114,361	431,888	88,479

BUFFALO, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (AD)	106,005	46,406	118,910	35,813
News (S)	44,197	52,446	68,026	24,252
Grand Total	150,202	98,852	186,936	60,065

CAMDEN, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Courier-Post (E)	129,353	26,260	127,534	17,535
Courier-Post (S)	68,575	27,800	57,024	20,012
Grand Total	197,928	54,060	184,558	37,547

CHARLOTTE, NC

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Observer (M)	146,956	——	148,849	——
Observer (S)	64,267	——	64,023	——
Grand Total	211,223	——	212,872	——

NOTE: Part run figures not available.

CHICAGO, IL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
*Tribune (M)	197,485	353,537	192,598	376,369
*Tribune (S)	161,588	138,721	145,785	124,673
Sun-Times (M)	146,866	78,907	142,767	88,660
Sun-Times (S)	66,004	65,124	55,111	42,529
Grand Total	571,943	637,289	536,261	632,231

NOTE: Tribune figures supplied by publisher to Media Records. 1987 figures represent advertising for 11/23/87 - 12/27/87.

CINCINNATI, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Enquirer (M)	182,018	18,575	188,656	18,169
Enquirer (S)	145,636	14,596	148,097	13,914
Post (E)	104,115	31,954	103,197	33,955
Grand Total	431,769	65,125	439,950	66,038

CLEVELAND, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Plain Dealer (M)	158,596	32,128	157,259	29,344
Plain Dealer (S)	108,557	9,796	104,558	10,517
Grand Total	267,153	41,924	261,817	39,861

DALLAS, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (M)	292,634	20,094	317,029	11,704
News (S)	162,834	29,340	146,782	18,979
Times-Herald (AD)	223,509	25,362	238,297	31,436
Times-Herald (S)	115,731	40,515	115,101	24,884
Grand Total	794,708	115,311	817,209	87,003

DENVER, CO

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Rocky Mt. News (M)	267,263	36,176	294,682	6,084
Rocky Mt. News (S)	84,012	34,898	104,030	131
Post (M)	174,911	49,264	200,575	18,731
Post (S)	83,187	46,819	108,528	3,550
Grand Total	609,373	166,157	707,815	28,496

DETROIT, MI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Free Press (M)	116,067	77,120	108,611	85,754
Free Press (S)	45,631	53,104	46,646	50,886
News (AD)	177,750	60,108	158,068	67,426
News (S)	87,806	48,644	86,154	44,931
Grand Total	427,254	238,976	399,479	228,987

ESCONDIDO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times-Advocate (E)	119,972	5,903	119,636	8,019
Times-Advocate (S)	58,071	130	43,258	34
Grand Total	178,043	6,033	162,894	8,053

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News & Sun-Sentinel (S)	107,300	——	115,531	——
Sun-Sentinel (M)	264,083	——	296,018	——
Grand Total	371,383	——	411,549	——

NOTE: Part run figures not available. Morning figures include the Saturday Edition.

FORT WAYNE, IN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Journal Gazette (M)	101,814	——	97,724	——
Journal Gazette (S)	73,646	——	69,810	——
News Sentinel (E)	98,295	——	107,317	——
Grand Total	273,755	——	274,851	——

NOTE: Part run figures not available.

GREENWICH/STAMFORD, CT

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Time (E)	73,994	16,604	78,834	1,501
Time (S)	61,187	8,871	64,299	718
Advocate (E)	106,497	23,374	101,936	20,713
Advocate (S)	62,542	13,261	64,008	4,768
Grand Total	304,220	62,110	309,077	27,700

HARTFORD, CT

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Courant (M)	167,831	46,160	166,885	31,040
Courant (S)	81,538	141,707	75,918	135,147
Grand Total	249,369	187,867	242,803	166,187

HONOLULU, HI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Advertiser (M)	150,532	——	143,457	——
Star-Bulletin (E)	139,271	——	139,464	——
Star-Bulletin & Advertiser (S)	91,392	——	89,327	——
Grand Total	381,195	——	372,248	——

HOUSTON, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Chronicle (AD)	240,544	43,006	231,515	46,333
Chronicle (S)	112,638	45,037	98,579	43,831
Post (M)	164,206	38,534	161,176	49,477
Post (S)	75,293	42,110	72,877	35,794
Grand Total	592,681	168,687	564,147	175,435

LONG BEACH, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Press Telegram (M)	136,113	51,419	115,376	61,985
Press Telegram (S)	64,484	15,239	68,291	2,098
Grand Total	200,597	66,658	183,667	64,083

LONG ISLAND, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Newsday (E)	100,195	140,414	125,931	113,313
Newsday (S)	65,496	135,430	89,395	98,887
Grand Total	165,691	275,844	215,326	212,200

LOS ANGELES, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times (M)	348,811	276,947	356,098	285,295
Times (S)	173,120	93,920	164,033	81,924
Herald-Examiner (M)	70,294	17,319	75,893	11,603
Herald-Examiner (S)	24,805	14,289	16,296	11,006
Grand Total	617,030	402,475	612,320	389,828

LOS ANGELES/SAN FERNANDO VALLEY, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
News (M)	204,322	50,882	199,469	56,736
News (S)	86,333	11,007	83,252	681
Grand Total	290,655	61,889	282,721	57,417

LOS ANGELES/TORRANCE, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Breeze (E & S)	254,088	——	241,509	——
Grand Total	254,088	——	241,509	——

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

MEMPHIS, TN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Commercial Appeal (M)	132,625	32,999	160,155	115,225
Commercial Appeal (S)	53,547	——	100,243	9,520
Grand Total	186,172	32,999	260,398	127,745

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

MIAMI, FL

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Herald (M)	195,886	——	192,594	——
Herald (S)	94,479	——	97,967	——
News (E)	61,895	——	62,435	——
Grand Total	352,260	——	352,996	——

NOTE: Part run figures not available.

MINNEAPOLIS, MN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Star Tribune (AD)	128,249	44,992	140,995	25,474
Star Tribune (S)	125,771	385	123,051	1,867
Star Tribune (Sat)	26,046	——	22,058	——
Grand Total	280,066	45,377	286,104	27,341

NASHVILLE, TN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Banner (E)	130,661	——	128,900	——
Tennessean (M)	130,688	——	127,975	——
Tennessean (S)	99,631	——	92,696	——
Grand Total	360,980	——	349,571	——

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

NEW BRUNSWICK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Home News (E)	98,701	6,527	97,015	1,966
Home News (S)	85,655	8,876	80,438	5,114
Grand Total	184,356	15,403	177,453	7,080

NEW YORK, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Times (M)	187,778	19,007	196,185	17,548
Times (S)	160,841	110,954	164,747	102,493
News (M)	76,376	94,207	61,192	104,360
News (S)	36,203	102,846	35,223	94,909
Post (AD)	72,291	665	63,972	1,358
Grand Total	533,489	327,679	521,319	320,668

NEWARK, NJ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Star Ledger (M)	214,578	9,172	215,334	8,064
Star Ledger (S)	182,299	33,907	162,071	32,335
Grand Total	396,877	43,079	377,405	40,399

OAKLAND, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Tribune (M)	97,274	117,972	102,156	102,730
Tribune (S)	31,774	62,626	33,051	45,338
Grand Total	129,048	180,598	135,207	148,068

OCEANSIDE, CA
SAN DIEGO COASTAL NORTH COUNTY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Blade-Tribune (E)	130,241	6,952	118,373	9,031
Blade-Tribune (S)	62,474	1,040	38,528	——
Grand Total	192,715	7,992	156,901	9,031

NOTE: Blade-Tribune Evening published five days a week only.

ORANGE COUNTY, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Register (AD)	328,130	102,388	321,953	113,383
Register (S)	122,850	31,253	129,942	5,578
Grand Total	450,980	133,641	451,895	118,961

PHILADELPHIA, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Inquirer (M)	162,653	34,085	183,322	38,033
Inquirer (S)	124,133	66,358	116,370	73,764
News (E)	[illegible]922	——	89,301	14,847
Grand Total	385,708	100,443	388,993	126,644

PHOENIX, AZ

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Arizona Republic (M)	326,521	28,347	339,584	27,390
Arizona Republic (S)	190,499	——	190,818	——
Gazette (E)	307,881	28,601	324,766	27,528
Grand Total	824,901	56,948	855,168	54,918

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

PROVIDENCE, RI

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Journal (M)	156,442	193,328	152,607	120,105
Journal (S)	151,689	122,358	152,699	95,184
Grand Total	308,131	315,686	305,306	215,289

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

ST. LOUIS, MO

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Post Dispatch (M)	81,863	35,341	128,152	38,364
Post Dispatch (S)	173,881	689	169,655	951
Grand Total	305,166	36,030	297,807	39,315

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

ST. PAUL, MN

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Pioneer Press Dispatch (AD)	105,488	——	113,124	——
Pioneer Press Dispatch (S)	106,677	——	97,390	——
Grand Total	212,165	——	210,514	——

NOTE: Part run figures not available.

SAN ANTONIO, TX

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Express-News (AD)	135,993	36,648	144,468	45,686
Express-News (S)	73,691	41,045	78,835	36,452
Express-News (Sat)	29,981	——	30,392	——
Light (AD)	138,065	17,783	161,179	20,911
Light (S)	92,481	15,188	95,664	11,915
Light (Sat)	20,014	772	24,391	1,415
Grand Total	490,235	111,426	534,929	126,389

NOTE: Express-News All Day and Light All Day published five days a week only.

SAN DIEGO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Union (M)	261,762	42,887	240,330	50,692
Union (S)	126,439	1,201	116,851	——
Tribune (E)	266,972	45,152	249,418	50,409
Grand Total	655,173	89,240	606,599	101,101

SAN FRANCISCO, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Chronicle (M)	141,878	97,892	140,884	115,844
Examiner (E)	138,437	97,674	——	——
Examiner & Chronicle (S)	67,958	45,911	63,958	44,136
Grand Total	348,273	241,477	204,842	159,980

NOTE: 1986 Examiner Evening figures not available.

SAN JOSE, CA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Mercury News (AD)	316,076	26,090	302,344	21,847
Mercury News (S)	155,112	——	141,023	——
Grand Total	471,188	26,090	443,367	21,847

STATE COLLEGE, PA

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Centre Times (E)	86,526	6,505	92,362	5,962
Centre Times (S)	46,384	3,728	41,667	768
Grand Total	132,910	10,233	134,029	6,730

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

TOLEDO, OH

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Blade (E)	138,246	——	144,328	——
Blade (S)	108,080	——	98,665	——
Grand Total	246,326	——	242,993	——

NOTE: Figures supplied by publisher to Media Records.

WASHINGTON, DC

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Post (M)	271,853	59,192	280,371	49,689
Post (S)	133,533	56,426	126,761	60,226
Grand Total	405,386	115,618	407,132	109,915

WASHINGTON, DC SUBURBAN GROUP

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Montgomery Journal (M)	62,790	——	60,923	270
Fairfax Journal (M)	71,458	1,676	75,018	270
Grand Total	134,248	1,676	135,941	540

NOTE: Montgomery Journal Morning and Fairfax Journal Morning published five days a week only.

WESTCHESTER ROCKLAND, NY

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Reporter Dispatch (E)	115,136	13,459	105,287	24,077
Reporter Dispatch (S)	97,783	18,636	70,272	35,579
Grand Total	212,919	32,095	175,559	59,656

WICHITA, KS

	1987 Full Run	1987 Part Run	1986 Full Run	1986 Part Run
Eagle-Beacon (M)	128,147	——	138,147	——
Eagle-Beacon (S)	84,162	——	75,938	——
Grand Total	212,309	——	214,085	——

NOTE: Part run figures not available.

Source: Media Records

This data has been provided by Media Records for exclusive publication in Advertising Age and may not be reprinted or published in any form without explicit permission from Media Records. All newspapers represented are subscribers to Media Records. For those newspapers that subscribe to Media Records National Advertising Reporting Service, Total Advertising data shown has been supplied by the publisher to Media Records and included in this compilation. All publisher supplied figures are converted to MRCS/SAU inches by Media Records. These newspapers are indicated with an asterisk (*).

REPORTING METHODOLOGY

Media Records continues to measure in linage but due to the introduction of the SAU 6 column format Media Records has designed and developed a methodology with the approval of our subscribers, the INAME Measurements Committee, The ANPA/NAB Working Committee, The AAAA Newspaper Committee, and other industry groups.

The approved methodology is titled The Media Records Conversion System (MRCS) and is based upon the printed page area of each product of the newspaper and is a five step approach as follows:

1. Measure Printed Page.....
   Width and Depth in Inches.
2. Determine Square Inches of Page.....
   Multiply Width by Depth Inches.
3. Determine the Number of SAU Inches of Page.....
   Divide the Square Inches by 2.0625 (SAU Inches).
4. Measure the Total Lines of the Page.....
   Multiply Column Depth Agate Lines by the Number of Columns on the Page.
5. Determine the Factor for Converting Measured Lines to Reported SAU Inches.....
   Divide the Total Lines of Page by the Number of MRCS/SAU Inches of the Page.

SAU® is the registered trademark of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Service magazines adapt to market

By Patrick Reilly

In the early 1980s, working woman was all important. Her power, influence and sheer numbers grew rapidly.

The growth of women in the office, the dropping birth rate and the decline of mothers at home led magazine industry pundits to predict the demise of at least one, possibly two, of the women's service magazines.

The experts were sure that for the Seven Sisters—Better Homes & Gardens, Family Circle, Good Housekeeping, Ladies' Home Journal, McCall's, Redbook and Woman's Day—a time of reckoning was coming.

However, the experts were wrong.

"When I came here in 1981, people said, 'Congratulations, you've just been made captain of the Titanic,' " says Myrna Blyth, editor in chief, Ladies' Home Journal. "People thought women wouldn't be reading the service magazines in five years. But today [stories about] work and opportunity are still important, and interest in the home and family endures. It's possible to be interested in both."

Although greater attention is being directed toward the home in the late 1980s, the Seven Sisters are not returning to the old ways, and more than ever they reflect women's dual interests.

"The overall direction of society has shifted homeward," says Del Rusher, publisher, Better Homes & Gardens. "We are well past discussion of whether the family is dead."

Though the seven titles haven't acted as one, the number of service articles overall has increased—and the length is shorter, stories on pressing social issues appear regularly, coverlines are positive rather than negative, and the journalistic level is improved.

In advertising, "Automotive is much stronger because it reflects the increased role of women in buying decisions," says Mr. Rusher. Consumer electronics products also show an increase of 30%, from 15 pages in 1987 to an estimated 20 or more in 1988.

Better Homes and Gardens
Grandparents
Family Circle Great Ideas
FITNESS
Victoria
A Timeless Point of View
Woman's Day introduces...
New Family

Service magazine spinoffs include BH&G's Grandparents, Family Circle's Fitness, Good Housekeeping's Victoria and Woman's Day's New Family.

Most of the advertising new to this group is in the consumer electronics and automotive categories. "Detroit has awakened to the fact that women are a force in primary purchases . . . Detroit is now looking at the bulk of America and we sit dead center on it," says Charles Townsend, senior VP-publisher of Family Circle.

Advertising for the first quarter of 1988, showing a positive start for almost the entire field, is running more then 2% better than the first quarter in 1987.

Speaking of her own magazine, Ms. Blyth, echoed the opinions of several editors in the field. "We don't reach to the lowest common denominator; we are doing what marketers do, that is not to be ordinary, but rather look at the best. It's a newsy magazine, more journalistic."

At the same time, service magazine publishers find that, faced with a finite number of readers, a surefire way of increasing circulation is to spin off a title from the strength of the seven titles.

Spinoffs are part of the service field history—Country Living from Good Housekeeping in 1978. According to Dale Lang, publisher of McCall's, all of the women's service publications will spin out vertical titles in 1988: this month McCall's will introduce America Entertains, with 1 million circulation; Good Housekeeping's Victoria, a 500,000-circulation home magazine, begins quarterly publication in March; this month, Family Circle will introduce Fitness, a 400,000-circulation, twice-yearly magazine from its "Family Circle Great Ideas" series; Better Homes & Gardens launched Grandparents in March 1987, and in June, Woman's Day will begin an insert called "New Family," that eventually will stand alone.

"On spinouts, the key is creating a magazine that appeals to your audience without cannibalizing your readers," says John Mack Carter, editor in chief, Good Housekeeping. Each of the magazines has a strong base to work from; Redbook, the smallest, had an average paid circulation in 1987 of more than 3.9 million.

The Seven Sisters are indeed a powerful club. Six of the seven titles are listed in the top 20 magazines in terms of advertising revenue in 1987; Better Homes & Gardens' $142 million is the highest, placing it seventh in the top 20.

Powerful, yes. Invincible, no. In 1987, while some magazines showed gains in subscriptions, others registered serious drops in newsstand sales. The group lost more than 350 ad pages, or about 3%.

Although circulation has been trending slightly downward, according to Mr. Carter, as a category that represents the largest number of readers of any group of magazines, the Seven Sisters combined circulation reached 38.3 million in 1987.

As the jockeying continues, the magazines work harder at making their products stand out.

"This is the most competitive marketplace I have ever been in and it won't be easing up at all," says Mr. Townsend.

Intramural sniping is clearly evident on the crucial question of how to balance service articles with hard-edged journalism. Some in the group have clung to the service-articles-only formula, while others have tried to combine stories of wider social importance with the recipes and crafts.

Ellen Levine, editor of Woman's Day, has opted for mixing real life with home life.

"We run issues where an article on cleaning your house faster and one on book censorship both score a 60% in readership interest," says Mrs. Levine. "Women have added items to their interest list, not subtracted."

Woman's Day now carries fewer articles on crafts, while McCall's, known for its celebrity covers, has dropped crafts altogether.

Women still want service information, and "to get readers in mass numbers, you have to have service articles," says Mr. Lang. But above the McCall's nameplate go coverlines such as "AIDS: What Women Need To Know," and "Death: What Survivors Experience."

"We make sure there is an issue in every issue," Mr. Lang says.

Others hold as close [illegible] possible to the service-only formula.

"We are comfortable with the intention of others pulling away from the field. I want to be dead center when every one else is gone," says Family Circle's Mr. Townsend. "That doesn't mean you can't have a contemporary forum of issues facing women today, but it has to come from the service side. Not the sensational side."

"Dealing with sensational topics is not what we do," says Mr. Carter. "Our foremost responsibility is the service pages. The heavier issues in other magazines in the field

(Continued on Page S-10)

Multiply your dollar by 150,000.

Reach 150,000 professional women who've all graduated from universities. They're 35-60 years old and live in every congressional district in the United States. They travel frequently, read profusely, and are leaders in their communities. And they all read Graduate Woman, our bimonthly everymember publication.

Contact: Graduate Woman Advertising
American Association of University Women
2401 Virginia Avenue, N.W.
Washington, DC 20037 (202) 785-7723

American Association of University Women

MARKETING TO WOMEN

Lifestyle information about women in America is published monthly, exclusively in MARKETING TO WOMEN. Regular columns include:

- About Women
- Bank Accounts
- What Women Think
- Trends
- Recreation
- Women Working
- Healthcare
- Social Changes
- Special Markets
- Houselife
- What Women Want
- Point of Purchase
- Ad Language
- Gender Expenditures
- Bookcases

To obtain your free sample issue simply call or write Kathryn Kurtz, Publisher, MARKETING TO WOMEN, P.O. Box 834, Oneonta, NY 13820 (607)432-9066

Radio's strength loud and clear

By Amy Zipkin

The attraction of radio to women, who give radio the greatest share of their media time, is creating a stir in the industry.

Working women spend an average of just under three hours a day listening to the radio, 63% have a radio available at work, and 85% are reached by radio in an average workday, according to "Radio Facts," compiled by the Radio Advertising Bureau, N.Y.

Advertisers, such as automotive companies, absolutely recognize the need to address working women, says Nan Heller, VP-director of sales, Western region, Westwood One Co., Culver City, Cal.

Advertisers are also reevaluating when they target women, says Ms. Heller.

Because RAB research shows more than half of the major purchases made by working women come within one hour of listening time, package goods companies are changing schedules to reach working women closer to the time of purchase, she says.

Looking for a novel way to present "yet another" rebate program, Miller Meester Advertising/DBK&O, Minneapolis, created a humorous spot for New York-based Farberware's stainless steel cookware sets.

"We felt the spot [radio] would have more impact and allow us to capitalize on the impulse nature of the medium," says Michelle Hall, senior account exec.

The rebate program drew more than 50,000 qualified responses, which more than doubled projected figures.

Another marketer has found a spot on its own syndicated show.

L'eggs Products, Winston-Salem, N.C., a division of Sara Lee Hosiery Group, is sponsoring "Women On the Move," a program created and produced by REMN Communications, New York, which specializes in short-format syndication.

The 90-second program, preceded by a 30-second spot, debuted in August with news and information for women on the job and at home.

"The program format gives us an element of being different; it's a more interesting environment to be presented in," says Suzanne Clark, director of markets at L'eggs.

Radio stations also have begun to show up at the workplace.

Several years ago, Walter Sabo, president of W.R. Sabo, New York, a management consultancy for RKO-owned radio stations in Boston, noticed that traditional remotes from shopping malls were completely missing working women.

Now, WROR-FM, Boston, stages radio remotes two-to-three times a week, live from local companies.

Setting up in a cafeteria or lobby, the adult contemporary station broadcasts a 3½-to-4-hour program from area companies. "The programs are tremendous morale builders," says Lorna Ozmon, the station's program director. The companies consider the broadcasts a program-length commercial, she says.

Even traditional on-air promotions are geared to working women. The $2,000 normally spent by the station for a holiday promotion in 1987 became a Christmas shopping spree complete with personal shopper to buy, wrap and even return the gifts, if necessary.

Amy Zipkin is a free-lance writer who is based in Westport, Conn.

RESEARCH SPECIALISTS IN THE FEMALE MARKETPLACE!

ON . . .
- Products
- Services
- Communications

AMONG . . .
- Professionals
- HOH/Mothers
- Seniors
- Teenagers
- Children

(313) 855-7810
TRENDFACTS

(313) 855-7812
PLAYLAB

Dana Blackwell, Exec. V.P.
Donna Taglione, Dir. Rsch.
Jenny Van Dusen, Rsch. Mgr.
Sherrey Schatmeyer, Fld. Dir.

Magazines

(Continued from Page S-6)

has focused attention on what we do best, which is service. I don't want to be all things to all people."

Along with the varying editorial content, the service magazines definitely present different covers.

"Creativity [in covers]; there is more of a difference in the Seven Sisters in the last two years than there has ever been," says Mr. Townsend.

McCall's and Ladies' Home Journal rely strongly on the celebrity cover. Ladies' Home Journal started using celebrities on the cover in the 1960s, says Ms. Blyth. "Celebrities on the cover today gives an advantage. This is a celebrity age."

Others continue with traditional photographs of cozy homes scenes but vary the number and size of cover lines.

McCall's is credited with creating the "smorgasbord" covers—full of photos and headlines. "Lang has taken McCall's out of the service field in terms of its covers. It reads like a tabloid," says Mr. Townsend. "That's not a discredit because it sells at supermarkets."

With intense competition in the supermarket checkout racks, there's little room for clean, open covers.

"Our art directors yearn to do the big beautiful covers," says Mr. Carter. "But that won't happen because we don't want to give up the 10,000 readers who saw the cover line on AIDS and bought the magazine."

Seven Sisters' ad pages display sharp changes

January-December 1987

Publication	1987 pages	% change from 1986	1987 dollars	% change from 1986
Better Homes & Gardens	1,434.48	6.5	$142,170,974	9.5
Family Circle	1,650.16	−7.9	123,975,448	−12.5
Good Housekeeping	1,706.50	−13.3	132,465,976	−8.6
Ladies' Home Journal	1,286.75	−3.8	76,725,281	−0.5
McCall's	1,146.19	−0.3	67,717,134	1.0
Redbook	1,223.78	3.8	64,870,739	9.6
Woman's Day	1,695.82	−1.5	115,471,862	−6.5

Affiliated advertising is included in totals.
Source: Publishers Information Bureau. Figures compiled and tabulated by Leading National Advertisers.

Signs point to outdoors

(Continued from Page S-2)

in San Diego from September 1986 through August 1987 and included TV, radio, newspaper, magazine, and point of sale, as well as outdoor, says Cal Crandall, fluid milk program director in the board's San Francisco office.

The Vital 15 painted bulletins and 30-sheet billboards, designed by McCann-Erickson in San Francisco, showed a woman looking at the product. The creative was done by hand tinting a black-and-white photograph, giving the art a soft, feminine look. Other media continued the "special milk for women" theme. Even the Vital 15 carton looked feminine, featuring a pair of women's glasses and a yellow rose.

It was a consistent strategy and it backfired. Early feedback showed that the perception of a "women-only" milk alienated men, says Mr. Crandall. The Milk Advisory Board changed to overall market positioning in its early 1987 radio and print ad—outdoor remained unchanged and ran through February 1987.

In spite of the positioning problems, Vital 15 cornered a 1% share of the San Diego milk market, which is comparable to the initial performance of lowfat milk, Mr. Crandall says. It scored several other points as well: During the test year there was a 5.3% net growth in San Diego's total milk sales. Several dairies have introduced identical products under their own names southern California, so calcium-added milks now have a 95% market share in distribution.

Lifestyle ads

(Continued from Page S-8)

tained a glossary of financial terms. "It went over very well," she says.

Ms. Hargrave's research found that, "women like to see successful role models in ads," but are annoyed by "women only" tactics that seem to single them out for special-but-not-equal treatment. The one exception to that rule, she says, is affinity marketing, where the product is marketed under the auspices of an existing women's special-interest group.

The Travelers, Farmington, Conn., targeted members of the National Association of Female Executives via a direct-mail package for auto and homeowners insurance.

Although the product and copy were unchanged from a generic campaign, the package design followed the graphic style of all association communications.

The nationally promoted product was crippled by differing state insurance regulation, says Ms. Williams. "The product was not competitively priced and that minimized the response."

A few banks have capitalized on their existing relationships with female customers to create their own affinity groups.

Farmers Bank & Trust Co., Georgetown, Ky., won an award in 1986 from the Bank Marketing Association for direct mailings that launched a women's travel club.

Walker Hatton, VP-marketing at Farmers, reports that with a $10,000 minimum deposit required, the program has attracted $5 million in deposits in 18 months.

Associate editor Pat Gray Thomas coordinated this report on Marketing to Women.

Coming

Next week ADVERTISING AGE's Special Report will focus on Sports Marketing.

CAREER WOMEN
NETWORKING —The business women's leadership media

The top of the pyramid is now within your reach with a network of leading magazines published by top professional women's groups.

Motivation rather than reach, is the key to our advertising, supplemented by marketing and merchandising programs.

Entrepreneurs and business women — the most elusive of all audiences is now ours . . . and can by yours, too.

Find out more about our special niche-marketing and how we can make it work effectively for you.

Please call any of our offices:

New York (212) 695-3000
Detroit (313) 332-9200
Los Angeles (213) 376-1676
Minneapolis (612) 926-2624

NEWSPAPER

5-DIGIT 200
020190949 AA00 8811 COMP F32
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

C 2710-1
3/16/88

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Com

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

March 14, 1988

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

swissair +
The civilized way to the world.

Hums with efficiency

Swissair breaks an unusual TV campaign today using nature instead of airplanes to illustrate its service. One spot in the $3 million effort, via Doyle Graf Mabley, shows a hummingbird hovering over a flower. The voice-over makes the point that some hubs such as Geneva and Zurich are "naturally" efficient.

Last Minute News

Sony plans small CD player

PARK RIDGE, N.J.—Sony this week will announce plans for an ultracompact, 14-ounce Pocket Discman that plays new 3-inch and standard 5-inch compact discs (AA, Jan. 11). McCann-Erickson, New York, handles Sony.

Scott names five finalists

PHILADELPHIA—Scott Paper has narrowed the review of its $6 million account. Finalists are Ally & Gargano, the Bloom Agency and Warwick Ad-

(Continued on Page 8)

Campbell stirs shops

Creative needs more meat

By JUDANN DAGNOLI

Troubled by creative inconsistency with its agencies, Campbell Soup Co. is looking for change, and the possibilities range from a fee/incentive compensation system to such hard-line action as moving business.

If there's to be any account shuffling, the big winner is likely to be W.B. Doner & Co., which Herb Baum, Campbell USA president, characterized as the company's "high-flier."

The loser, insiders predict, could be Backer Spielvogel Bates.

Mr. Baum said that after pushing agencies for better creative for two years, "there's still lots of room for improvement."

Another Campbell insider put it more succinctly: "Generally, we're spending a lot and not getting very good work."

Campbell USA spends $235 million annually on advertising.

Mr. Baum said the marketer is scrutinizing more closely the work of its ad shops but that Campbell isn't planning any shake-ups now.

But another company source said that although Mr. Baum is reluctant to pink-slip agencies, it's possible some account shuffling could occur after the company's new fiscal year starts Aug. 1.

H. Baum

Campbell's main agencies are Backer, BBDO Worldwide, DDB Needham Worldwide, FCB/Leber Katz Partners and Ogilvy & Mather, New York, as well as Southfield, Mich.-based Doner and Hal Riney & Partners, San Francisco.

In 1986, Mr. Baum added Saatchi & Saatchi Co., London, to the roster for V-8 vegetable juice because he couldn't find acceptable creative in the U.S. (AA, Aug. 6, 1986).

The company will take a "hard look" at all its agencies' work in May, when the shops meet with Campbell to plan 1989 marketing strategies, Mr. Baum said. Campbell will be ready to seriously evaluate in June. Campbell is seeking "more risk-taking in execution," Mr. Baum said.

But he admitted the company also can be blamed, noting, "When there is less risk-taking, it is always the client's fault."

Company sources said there has been tension between Backer and Campbell, though Mr. Baum said, "From my point of view, they are not in trouble."

Matters came to a head after an annual review of advertising conducted by a group of top-level executives, including Mr. Baum, company President-CEO Gordon McGovern and CSC Advertising President Paul Mulcahy. CSC is Campbell's in-house agency,

(Continued on Page 84)

Who's the biggest

Rank	Agency	Gross Income 1987	Gross Income 1986	Billings Rank	Billings 1987
1	Young & Rubicam	$735	$628	(1)	$4,906
2	Saatchi & Saatchi Advertising	694	610	(2)	4,609
3	BBDO Worldwide	537	445	(3)	3,664
4	Ogilvy & Mather Worldwide	529	460	(4)	3,663
5	McCann-Erickson Worldwide	513	428	(5)	3,418
6	Backer Spielvogel Bates Worldwide	499	371	(6)	3,330
7	J. Walter Thompson Co.	483	471	(7)	3,222
8	Lintas:Worldwide	418	325	(8)	2,787
9	D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles	371	334	(10)	2,494
10	Leo Burnett Co.	369	305	(12)	2,462

Notes: Dollars are in millions. U.S.-based agencies are ranked by worldwide gross income and billings. DDB Needham Worldwide is ranked ninth by billings. Source: Agency reports.

Regional ad power

Rank	City	Billings
1	New York	$19,716.9
2	Chicago	5,145.5
3	Los Angeles	2,815.6
4	Detroit	2,619.5
5	San Francisco	1,307.1
6	Dallas	897.6
7	Boston	859.3
8	Minneapolis	815.4
9	Philadelphia	743.4
10	Cleveland	595.3

Notes: Dollars are in millions. Source: Billings reports on more than 800 U.S. offices from a survey of 500 agencies.

Y&R biggest agency in '87

By R. CRAIG ENDICOTT

Young & Rubicam was the biggest U.S.-based agency in the world in 1987, ADVERTISING AGE's latest survey shows.

Y&R's worldwide totals were led by a 29.4% growth in foreign billings, far outdistancing a 7.7% improvement in domestic billings.

But Saatchi & Saatchi Advertising is steadily closing the gap. In 1986, Y&R's worldwide gross income was $628 million, compared with Saatchi's $490.5 million (the 1986 Saatchi numbers in the chart are restated to reflect mergers and acquisitions). Now the difference is $735 million vs. $694 million.

That agency's London parent, Saatchi & Saatchi Co., had gross income of $1.33 billion on billings of $9.02 billion, making it No. 1 among industry holding companies. Interpublic Group of Cos. was No. 2.

Overall, worldwide gross income rose 13.7% to $9.5 billion and billings grew 13.5% to $64.8 billion in 1987 for the AA list of top 500 agencies.

New York continued to dominate the regional markets, growing 7.0% in U.S. billings and accounting for 45.9% of all U.S. billings of the 500. Dallas and San Francisco tied for the smallest increase in billings among the top 10 with 2% growth each. Cleveland was the only new entry in the top 10, replacing Atlanta as No. 10.

A complete ranking of the AA 500 by gross income, agency accounts gained and lost and top executives will be published March 30 in the 44th annual Agency Income Report.#

Call it Addy-gate: Agency caught in awards scam

By SCOTT HUME

The Milwaukee ad community has been rocked by an Addy Award scandal that has all the elements of a Robert Ludlum spy novel.

The plot includes anonymous letters impugning an agency's ethics, a mysterious client and questions about pressures on all agencies to go to great lengths to win creative awards.

Ludlum or no, the American Advertising Federation has read enough.

The AAF will tighten entry guidelines for its Addy Awards competition next year to ensure that advertising submitted has been created for an actual client

(Continued on Page 84)

Inside:

Agency-client marriages that last. P. 3
AD AGE picks best TV spots. P. 26
'Folio' hopping mad at MPA. P. 80

Mega-shops set global media test

By JON LAFAYETTE and LAUREL WENTZ

When agency megamergers swept the industry two years ago, clients were promised benefits, particularly on the media side. That proposition is about to get its big test.

In country after country outside the U.S., the "big bang" agency holding companies are combining previously separate agency media-buying operations into one. Spurred by competition from independent media-buying companies and by the need to help shape a changing media scene in Europe, the holding companies are trying to take advantage of economies the megamerged agencies promised clients.

If it works, the practice is likely to reach the U.S.

Next month Omnicom Group plans to announce formation of new media-buying companies in Europe. The plan for the first time would combine BBDO Worldwide and DDB Needham Worldwide's media operations. The group's agencies already jointly negotiate media contracts in Australia.

Saatchi & Saatchi Co. is doing a feasibility study on the subject, and Interpublic Group of Cos., which has assiduously kept its agencies separate, is already sharing media buying in Australia, Belgium and France.

Thinking along the same lines, London-based WCRS Group this month negotiated an agreement to buy a 50% stake in SGGMD, Europe's largest independent media-buying company with operations in Belgium, Italy, Spain, the U.K. and West Germany.

> "It's inevitable. It's not going to happen with a big bang. It'll happen market by market, agency group by agency group."
> —Allen Rosenshine

Saatchi was close to buying into SGGMD last year, but the deal collapsed when Saatchi insisted on controlling interest.

"It's inevitable," said Omnicom CEO Allen Rosenshine at a conference last week. "It's not going to happen with a big bang. It'll happen market by market, agency group by agency group."

John Perriss, worldwide media director of Saatchi & Saatchi, said the company is studying the feasibility of combining media buying of its two worldwide networks—Saatchi & Saatchi Advertising Worldwide and Backer Spielvogel Bates Worldwide. That would be on a market-by-market basis, he said.

S&S has $6 billion in worldwide billings.

Such consolidations in the U.S. have been viewed with much skepticism. But sources said Saatchi is compiling information for a possible move in the U.S.

The hectic consolidation pace worldwide has been driven by several factors, including agency streamlining. But the biggest reason for the moves appears to be that media, especially TV, have grown rapidly in Europe, and agencies are faced with many buying options.

Restrictions in Europe are being lifted on commercial television, and agencies face stiff competition from independent media-buying companies that control large proportions of total media spending and charge commissions of 3% or less.

In France, these independents control up to half of ad spending. In Germany, they control about 20%.

Agencies say their new plans work this way: A central media-buying service executes buys from different agencies, which call in their orders.

These orders, the sources say, are

(Continued on Page 84)

Highlights

NEWS

22 Insurance slows sports-car sales
Escalating car insurance premiums are posing a marketing problem for sports cars.

24 Tambrands eyes overseas growth
Tambrands wants to make a name for itself in countries that have never heard of tampons.

35 A-B water efforts dry up
Anheuser-Busch's reach exceeded its grasp in its attempt to move into the bottled-water business.

38 States grab for foreign tourists
Three more states are following New England's lead with efforts to lure foreign tourists.

41 Brown shop looks to Marines
Earle Palmer Brown is preparing to attack JWT's hold on the Marine Corps' $17.7 million account.

55 Paying attention to 'Details'
Details, the chronicler of hip fashion and nightlife, is already benefiting from being part of the family of S.I. Newhouse's Advance Publications.

66 Boston TV in flux
Ownership conflicts are jeopardizing WFXT-TV, Rupert Murdoch's Fox affiliate in Boston.

78 Magazine rolls out posters
Working Mother will launch a poster for daycare centers, with Sears as its first advertiser.

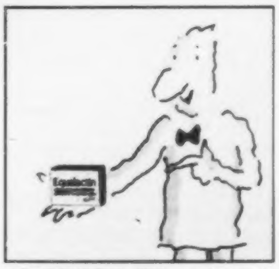
79 Killian caps Coors' goals
Adolph Coors Co. already has achieved its 1988 brand-expansion goal with Killian's Irish Red ale.

80 MPA show hits snags
The MPA's first trade show has raised questions of how well it represents its members.

INTERNATIONAL

62 Bald spots get go-ahead
Upjohn Co. breaks spots for its balding remedy in Canada without mentioning the brand.

63 The Pepsi challenge
PepsiCo is ready to challenge Coca-Cola Co.'s dominance of Spain's cola market.



AD REVIEW: TV spots getting better. P. 86.

SPECIAL REPORT: Sports Marketing starts after P. 56.

Departments

AdWhirl 79
Brady 58
Brady's Bunch 60
Contract Sports 36
Classifieds 75
Direct Marketing 46
Editorials 14
For the Record 81
Forum 16
Global Gallery 64
Letters 18
MediaWorks 70
Parting Shot 60
People 73
PeopleWorks 72
Photo Review 68
Slices 60
Stock Report 82
The Next Trend 58
Words 60

Vol. 59, No. 11—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS* Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908)

Won't fight NAAG guides

Car rental ad split

By STEVEN W. COLFORD and JENNIFER LAWRENCE

In a surprise move, major car rental companies are breaking ranks with ad industry groups by supporting state regulation of car-rental ads.

John Britton, manager-public relations at Avis, said the company supports state regulatory action and could accept national ad guidelines comparable to airline rules implemented by the National Association of Attorneys General.

At Budget Rent a Car, the attitude is the same. "We want to see [the industry's] advertising as accurate and fair as possible for the consumer and the companies so we can compete on an equal level," said Allyson Zedler, Budget's press liaison.

Spokesmen for Alamo Rent-A-Car and Hertz Corp. said their companies have no objections to state policing of rental car ads.

The car rental companies' stand "amazed" DeWitt Helm Jr., president of the Association of National Advertisers.

"It's fine for them to say they favor truthful advertising . . . but I'm not sure all those folks realize what's going on," he said. "We will oppose any attorney general guidelines, whether for airlines, foods, drugs or anything."

The American Association of Advertising Agencies and the American Advertising Federation also oppose state guidelines for national advertising.

Critics contend some rental car ads promote deceptively low prices that don't include extra charges the consumer must pay, or don't disclose restrictions that limit the availability of the featured price.

NAAG is expected to form a task force to write car rental ad guidelines at its meeting in Washington this week (see related stories on Page 12).

Separately, state officials, stung by renewed criticism of their airline ad guidelines by the U.S. Department of Transportation, rejected DOT claims that federal law preempts the states' guidelines.

In a letter to DOT, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox tartly observed, "The real problem here is that the department, instead of acting to protect consumers, has instead chosen inaction."

NAAG, however, is expected to "clarify" some of the most controversial sections of the airline ad guides at this week's meeting.

One clarification would permit required disclosures in TV commercials to be made in video supers, instead of orally, provided the supers are "clear and conspicuous."#

Eddie 'The Eagle' finds fame fleeting

By TIM HARPER

LONDON—Eddie "The Eagle" Edwards' 15 minutes of fame may have ticked away.

E. Edwards

Mr. Edwards, the myopic British ski jumper who was the media darling of the 1988 Winter Olympics, is finding it more difficult to land commercial endorsement contracts than it was to touch down safely from the 90-meter jump in Calgary.

In fact, a month after the first TV and newspaper profiles began characterizing Mr. Edwards as the hapless loser with the true Olympic amateur spirit, he still has no endorsements or contracts.

"None whatsoever," said Simon Platz, the agent who signed Mr. Edwards to handle the torrent of offers he was supposedly going to get.

The flood of publicity announcing the ski jumper would endorse Hamlet cigars, whose TV spots show luckless losers, torpedoed that deal.

So far, there's been only one small offer, and clean-living Mr. Edwards rejected it. It was from Vladivar vodka, whose symbol is an eagle. The company wanted him to pose for a calendar photo; no magazine spreads, no TV commercials.

Mr. Platz admitted his only hope was that the demand for Mr. Edwards would grow "as he gets better" at ski jumping. But as anyone who saw "The Eagle's" short, wobbly landings in Calgary can testify, that may be a long wait.#

NCAA, Coke cry foul

Non-sponsor Seven-Up ties into tournament

SCORE BIG
THIS APRIL 4TH.
PLAY THE 7UP COLLEGE
BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP CHALLENGE

Seven-Up Co. is pushing its college basketball promotion in several national magazines.

By PATRICK McGEEHAN

The National Collegiate Athletic Association and Coca-Cola Co. are looking to block a national promotion from Seven-Up Co. tied to the upcoming NCAA basketball tournament.

Seven-Up, which isn't one of the NCAA's eight designated corporate sponsors, this month broke print and TV advertising for the "7UP College Basketball Championship Challenge."

Grand-prize winners of the sweepstakes promotion will be decided by the score of the NCAA tourney's championship game April 4.

Print ads for the promotion carry the headline "Score big this April 4" but make no reference to the NCAA, other than a disclaimer stating the promotion "is not sponsored by nor associated in any way with the . . . NCAA and its NCAA registered trademarks."

Dave Cawood, NCAA assistant executive director, said he referred the matter to the NCAA's legal counsel after seeing an ad for the promotion.

"That promotion is not anything that has been presented to us, and it has not been approved. That looks like another step toward ambush marketing," Mr. Cawood said, referring to the practice of unofficially tying into an event after a competitor has bought exclusive sponsorship rights.

Examples of ambush marketing surfaced during the recent Winter Olympics when some marketers launched advertising that was loosely tied to the Games without paying hefty sponsorship fees.

Coca-Cola is the NCAA's official soft-drink sponsor, and the marketing giant has assigned attorneys to investigate the legality of Seven-Up's promotion, said Jack Carlin, project manager in Coca-Cola's prestige accounts department.

Sponsors pay the NCAA about $500,000 for use of its trademarks and ads on network radio broadcasts of the tournament and in tournament programs.

The only official sponsors running promotions tied to the NCAA tourney are Pizza Hut and Gillette Co., Mr. Cawood said.

Pizza Hut planned to distribute commemorative NCAA tournament cups to most of its restaurants.

Gillette planned a national free standing insert in March 13 newspa-

(Continued on Page 86)

World News Roundup

LONDON—Benckiser Group moved its $5 million-plus U.K. account to Slaymaker, Kelly & White/BJK&E from Ayer/Barker. Other BJK&E overseas agencies also have won smaller Benckiser assignments from Ayer affiliates in Italy and New Zealand.

PARIS—Canal Plus, France's subscriber TV station, reportedly is talking to the Bundespost, the West German postal authority, and the Beta Taurus group about launching a similar cable TV service in that country.

JAKARTA—TV advertising will start with a five-month trial in mid-October on Indonesia's private TV channel. A formal launch is expected later. Free commercial time will be given during the trial.

BONN, WEST GERMANY—Publicis grabbed the estimated $4 million account for the German Tax Reform. Four other agencies pitched.

MADRID—RTVE, Spain's public broadcasting corporation, is readying a piece of legislation that will allow commercial sponsorship of TV

(Continued on Page 63)

Frozen novelties plan new-products blizzard

By MARCY MAGIERA
and JULIE LIESSE ERICKSON

Delighting in three straight years of 15% sales growth, frozen novelty marketers aren't about to let up. This spring they'll stock supermarket freezer cases with new products from dietetic to decadent.

Major competitors including Carnation Co., Dole Food Co. and Eskimo Pie Corp. will introduce their first low-calorie, NutraSweet-sweetened novelties.

Others, like Mars Inc.'s DoveBar International and Pillsbury Co.'s Haagen-Dazs, will continue to pour on the chocolate or, and in the case of Steve's Homemade Ice Cream Inc., the hot fudge.

Find/SVP, a market research company, predicts the hot market for frozen treats will grow 16% this year to $2.7 billion. That growth rate will "continue right through the end of the decade," said Howard Waxman, editor of Find/SVP's Ice Cream Reporter. Sales are expected to hit $4.3 billion by 1991.

Lipton to roll out new fruit juice "slush"—P. 85

But the plethora of new products means more head-

(Continued on Page 85)

Politicos resort to 'ambush' ads on TV

By STEVEN W. COLFORD

Some wildly successful "ambush" commercials are being credited with cutting short an expected media-buying bonanza in the run-up to Super Tuesday.

Ambush spots are last-minute purchases of TV time to attack an opponent's presidential candidacy, leaving no time for a response.

★★★★ Campaign 88

Last-minute ambush spots by Vice President George Bush in New Hampshire and Rep. Richard Gephardt (D., Mo.) in South Dakota are widely credited with helping those candidates win important victories in those states.

"The political tactics of 1988 have become waiting to make your buys and taking your chances late because of what happened in South Dakota and New Hampshire," said Dan Payne, chief media adviser to Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

"It's become like poker; you wait for the other guy to show his hand—don't spend too much too soon—because you're conscious of last-minute attack ads."

On Super Tuesday, the 20-state primary

(Continued on Page 82)

Matches made in heaven

Some agencies, clients stay wed for decades

By JENNIFER PENDLETON

In the mid-1970s, Mattel teetered near bankruptcy. Unable to pay its advertising bills from TV stations and magazines, longtime Mattel agency Ogilvy & Mather took the unusual step of handling those obligations for its client.

O&M had little hope of getting its money back any time soon, but the agency decided to play the odds, believing the toy marketer would eventually make good its debts and that the relationship would endure.

The gamble paid off.

Mattel is still around and it's still with Ogilvy & Mather after 33 years.

Executives at O&M in New York confirmed the story, relayed by a former executive with the agency, though they declined to discuss it further. But such tales often are associated with long-term agency/client relationships.

"There are probably stories like that one connected with every agency/client relationship of considerable length," said the former O&M executive. "Situations like that go a long way to cement a relationship."

Despite relentless change in the marketplace and, in some cases, dramatic corporate management upheaval, many agency/client relationships have endured. They've continued through a period in business history when trust between companies and agencies, in general, has deteriorated—a development many people attribute to the wave of takeovers and mergers.

Illustration by Brian Berley

Generally speaking, when a company signs a contract with an ad agency, it's like a wedding. Flush with expectations, both parties hope their marriage will last forever. It often doesn't.

The American Association of Advertising Agencies says the average length of an agency/client relationship is 7.2 years. Headlines concerning the breakups of advertisers and the agencies that serve them are a staple of the business media.

But, remarkably, some relationships actually do last—in many cases a long time.

Unilever has had an uninterrupted union with J. Walter Thompson Co. for 85 years. AT&T has worked with N W Ayer for 80 years, the first 75 without a written contract. Sunkist Growers, the marketing cooperative that first brought a brand name to grocery produce departments, has been with Foote, Cone & Belding (and forerunner Lord & Thomas) for a similar eight-decade stretch.

(Like FCB, many of the

(Continued on Page 74)

PLAY BALL!

With opening day three weeks away, ADVERTISING AGE contacted the Major League Baseball teams and asked them to unveil their marketing line-ups.

Stats were current in early February.

DETROIT TIGERS
1987 Record: 98-64
Theme: The baddest cats in town
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: Baker, Abbs, Cunningham & Klepinger
Media: print; minor TV, radio
Sponsors: still negotiating at press time
Stadium capacity: 52,806
Season tickets sold: 10,000

TORONTO BLUE JAYS
1987 Record: 96-66
Theme: Join the Jays
Budget: $1.1 million
Agency: J. Walter Thompson Co.
Media: TV, newspaper
Sponsors: American Home Products Corp. (Chef Boy-ar-dee), Binney & Smith (Crayola), Bittner's, Continental Baking Co. (Hostess), Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Coca-Cola Co., John Labatt Breweries of Canada, Mr. Submarine, Panasonic, Quaker Oats Co., Super Dominion, Toronto Sun
Stadium capacity: 44,000
Season tickets sold: 15,000

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS
1987 Record: 95-67
Theme: Spirit of St. Louis
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: Koplar Creative
Media: TV, radio, outdoor, newspaper
Sponsors: Anheuser-Busch Cos., Hardee's Food Systems, Heartland Dairies, KMOX-AM, Lever Bros. Co. (Surf), Pasta House restaurants, Quaker Oats Co. (Gatorade), Six Flags Corp., Sporting News, St. Louis Post-Dispatch
Stadium capacity: 54,000
Season tickets sold: 18,000

NEW YORK METS
1987 Record: 92-70
Theme: Let's go for it again
Budget: $500,000
Agency: Della Femina, Travisano & Partners, NY
Media: transit, newspaper, radio
Sponsors: Anheuser-Busch Cos., Charles Chips, Manufacturers Hanover Trust, Metropolitan Life Insurance, New York Daily News, Newsday, Quaker Oats Co. (Gatorade), Royal Crown Cola Co. (RC Cola)
Stadium capacity: 52,000
Season tickets sold: 22,000

MILWAUKEE BREWERS
1987 Record: 91-70
Theme: Be a believer: Join the team in the stands
Budget: $200,000
Agency: in-house
Media: print, radio
Sponsors: Burger King Corp., G. Heileman Brewing Co. (Old Style), General Foods Corp. (Kool-Aid), Haircuts, Hardee's Food Systems, Henri's Food Products Co., Miller Brewing Co. (Lite), Pepsi-Cola Co., Stadia Athletic Shoes
Stadium capacity: 53,000
Season tickets sold: 4,100

MONTREAL EXPOS
1987 Record: 91-71
Theme: Come see the Expos, you're in for a good time
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: Publicite Martin
Media: TV, newspaper, magazine, radio
Sponsers: American Home Products Corp. (Chef Boy-ar-dee), Binney & Smith (Crayola), Coca-Cola Co., Continental Baking Co. (Hostess), CKAC-AM, Eastman Kodak Co., Kentucky Fried Chicken, Petro-Canada, Joseph E. Seagram & Sons (Seagram's Coolers)
Stadium capacity: 59,119
Season tickets sold: 8,000

SAN FRANCISCO GIANTS
1987 Record: 90-72
Theme: Hmmm, baby, let's do it again
Budget: $650,000
Agency: John Crawford Creative; Freeman Marketing; Barrington Media Services
Media: radio
Sponsors: American Airlines, Anheuser-Busch, Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream, Chevron, Goodyear Tire & Rubber, Miller Brewing, Northern California Pontiac Dealers, Procter & Gamble (Peptol-Bismol), Ralston Purina (Purina Dog Chow), Sunkist Growers, United Airlines, USAir Group
Stadium capacity: 58,000
Season tickets sold: 12,300

NEW YORK YANKEES
1987 Record: 89-73
Theme: The power and the pride. The 1988 Yankees
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: in-house
Media: TV, radio, outdoor
Sponsors: Citibank, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Kinney Shoe Corp., Pepsi-Cola Co.
Stadium capacity: 55,000
Season tickets sold: not disclosed

MINNESOTA TWINS
1987 Record: 85-77
Theme: The rally continues
Budget: $750,000
Agency: Mona, Meyer & McGrath Public Relations; Campbell-Mithun
Media: TV, radio, transit; minor newspaper, magazine
Sponsors: American Dairy Association, Ashland Oil (SuperAmerica division), Coca-Cola Co., General Mills, G. Heileman Brewing Co., International Dairy Queen, Jostens, Lever Bros. Co. (Surf), McDonald's Corp., Miller Brewing Co., National Kidney Foundation, Schweigert Meats, Scott Paper Co.
Stadium capacity: 55,244
Season tickets sold: 8,000

CINCINNATI REDS
1987 Record: 84-78
Theme: Reaching for the top
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: in-house
Media: TV, radio, newspaper
Sponsors: Biggs Grocery Co., Borden Inc., Frisch's Restaurants (Big Boy), General Foods Corp. (Maxwell House), Haircuts Inc., Hudepohl/Schoenling Brewery, Kahn's Meats, Kroger Grocery Co., Lever Brothers Co. (Surf), Procter & Gamble Co. (Oxydol), Quaker Oats Co. (Gatorade), Snapper Power Equipment
Stadium capacity: 55,000
Season tickets sold: 15,000

KANSAS CITY ROYALS
1987 Record: 83-79
Theme: Royals baseball: A major league attraction
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: in-house
Media: TV, radio, print, outdoor
Sponsors: Coca-Cola Co., H.D. Lee Co., International Dairy Queen, Jones Store Co., Lever Bros. Co. (Surf), Miller Brewing Co., Quaker Oats Co. (Gatorade), U.S. Forest Service, WDAF-TV
Stadium capacity: 42,500
Season tickets sold: 14,000

OAKLAND ATHLETICS
1987 Record: 81-81
Theme: A's baseball land: A different kind of place
Budget: $600,000
Agency: in-house
Media: TV, print, outdoor, radio
Sponsors: Alameda Group of Newspapers, Anheuser-Busch, Baskin-Robbins, Binney & Smith (Crayola), California Egg Commission, Coca-Cola Co., Lever Bros. (Surf), Thomas J. Lipton, Lucky, Mothers Cookies, Quaker Oats (Gatorade), RJR Nabisco, Safeway, San Jose Mercury News, Sports Specialties, Unocal, U.S. Forest Service, Wells Fargo Bank
Stadium capacity: 48,219
Season tickets sold: 5,200

PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES
1987 Record: 80-82
Theme: Get the feeling
Budget: $400,000
Agency: in-house
Media: TV, radio, outdoor
Sponsors: Anheuser-Busch Cos., Bell of Pennsylvania (Yellow Pages), Blue Cross & Blue Shield Associations, Coca-Cola Co., Dodge Dealers Association, Donnelley Directory, Herr's Potato Chips, MAB Paints, Mellon Bank, Merit Oil Co., Mr. Goodbuys, Quaker Oats Co. (Gatorade), Showboat Casino, Tasty Baking Co. (Tastykake)
Stadium capacity: 64,500
Season tickets sold: 15,000

PITTSBURGH PIRATES
1987 Record: 80-82
Theme: Hardball '88: It's waiting for you
Budget: $300,000
Agency: Ketchum Communications
Media: TV, radio, outdoor
Sponsors: Burger King Corp., Campbell Soup Co., Coca-Cola Co., Giant Food, Hills Department Store, J.C. Penney Co., Long John Silver's, MAC, Wendy's International
Stadium capacity: 58,000
Season tickets sold: 9,000

BOSTON RED SOX
1987 Record: 78-84
Theme: The fun has just begun
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: Fenway Advertising
Media: TV, newspaper, radio, cable, magazine
Sponsors: Anderson Little, Beatrice Cos. (Tropicana), Coca-Cola Co., Gillette Co., Lever Bros. Co. (Surf), Miller Brewing Co., Philip Morris Cos. (Marlboro), Polaroid Corp., Sharp Electronics Corp., Thom McAn Shoe Co.
Stadium capacity: 33,565
Season tickets sold: 15,000

SEATTLE MARINERS
1987 Record: 78-84
Theme: Playing for keeps
Budget: $650,000
Agency: Ehrig & Associates
Media: radio, transit; minor TV, print
Sponsors: Campbell Soup, Coors, Crescent Foods, Holland America Lines, KIRO-AM, Lever Bros., Miller Brewing, Mother's Cookies, Nalley's Fine Foods, Northwest Bell, Ortho Products, Oscar Mayer, Pacific First Federal, Pacific Rainier Bank, Safeco Insurance, Seafirst Bank, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Seattle Times, Tillamook Cheese, Thriftway, Unocal, U.S. Forest Service, Washington Natural Gas.
Stadium capacity: 59,438
Season tickets sold: 4,200

CHICAGO WHITE SOX
1987 Record: 77-85
Theme: Anything can happen
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: Weber, Cohn & Reilly; San Jose & Associates (Hispanic)
Media: TV, radio, newspaper, outdoor Sponsors: Ask Mr. Foster, Burger King, Classic Sounds & Video, Coca-Cola Co., Drumstick Co., Eastman Kodak, G. Heileman Brewing, Henry Kay Jewelers, J.C. Penney, Lever Bros., MCI Communications, Miller Brewing, Polaroid, Quaker Oats Co., Snapper Power Equip., Speedway Gasoline, Sportsvision, Sun-Times, Tribune
Stadium capacity: 43,931
Season tickets sold: 6,300

CHICAGO CUBS
1987 Record: 76-85
Theme: Cubs baseball: Experience something special
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: J. Herman Sitrick Co. (media buyer)
Media: TV, radio, newspaper
Sponsors: AAA Chicago Motor Club, Beatrice, David Berg Hot Dogs, Burger King, Chernin's Shoes, Dairy Queen, Bob Evans Restaurants, Kodak, Fannie Mae Candy, G. Heileman Brewing, Kellogg Co., Marathon Oil, Miller, Pepsi-Cola Co., Polaroid, Quaker, Toyota, Tribune, True Value, Unocal, Venture Foods, Wyler Foods
Stadium capacity: 37,700
Season tickets sold: 13,200

HOUSTON ASTROS
1987 Record: 76-86
Theme: Let's make some noise
Budget: $1 million
Agency: in-house; Fogarty & Klein
Media: radio, newspaper; minor TV
Sponsors: Anheuser-Busch Cos., Coca-Cola Co., Kroger Co., M&M/Mars, Stop-N-Go Foods
Stadium capacity: 45,000
Season tickets sold: 8,190

CALIFORNIA ANGELS
1987 Record: 75-87
Theme: Good vibrations
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: Equils Advertising
Media: TV, radio, newspaper; minor magazine, direct mail
Sponsers: ARA Leisure Services, California Egg Commission, Carnation Co. (dairies), KNBC-AM, KTLA-TV, Merrill Lynch, Oscar Mayer Food Corp., Polaroid Corp., Quaker Oats Co. (Gatorade), Sheraton Corp., Sitmar Cruise Lines, Thrifty Drug Stores
Stadium capacity: 64,573
Season tickets sold: 18,500

TEXAS RANGERS
1987 Record: 75-67
Theme: No official theme
Budget: not disclosed
Agency: in-house
Media: Newspaper, radio, outdoor
Sponsors: Affiliated Food Stores, Anheuser-Busch Cos., Budget Rent-A-Car Corp., Coca-Cola Co., Decker Foods, Dr Pepper, GTE Corp., HSE, Miller Brewing Co. (Lite), Quaker Oats Co. (Gatorade), True Value Hardware Stores, Winn-Dixie Stores
Stadium capacity: 43,506
Season tickets sold: 8,000

LOS ANGELES DODGERS
1987 Record: 73-89
Theme: Dodger baseball: The best buy in town
Budget: $1 million
Agency: in-house
Media: TV, radio, newspaper
Sponsors: Anheuser-Busch Cos., Clougherty Packing Co. (Farmer John), Coca-Cola Co., Nissan Motor Corp., Unocal Corp.
Stadium capacity: 56,000
Season tickets sold: 27,000

ATLANTA BRAVES
1987 Record: 69-92
Theme: One crazy summer
Budget: $750,000
Agency: RET Advertising
Media: telemarketing
Sponsors: Amoco Oil Co., Anheuser-Busch Cos., C&S, Coca-Cola Co., Delta Air Lines, Goody's Headache Powders, Oscar Mayer Food Corp., Sherwin-Williams Co.
Stadium capacity: 54,001
Season tickets sold: 8,000

BALTIMORE ORIOLES
1987 Record: 67-95
Theme: Orioles '88: You gotta be there
Budget: $500,000
Agency: VanSant Dugdale
Media: TV, radio, direct mail
Sponsors: Anheuser-Busch Cos., Baltimore Sun, Burger King Corp., Care First, Coca-Cola Co., Esskey (hot dogs), French Bray, Frito-Lay (Lay's, Ruffles), Home Team Sports, Lever Brothers Co. (Surf), Quaker Oats Co. (Gatorade), Toyota Motor Sales Corp., WBAL-AM, WMAR-TV
Stadium capacity: 54,002
Season tickets sold: 12,000

SAN DIEGO PADRES
1987 Record: 65-97
Theme: A season of celebration
Budget: $650,000
Agency: Franklin & Associates
Media: TV, radio, newspaper, magazine
Sponsors: Anheuser-Busch Cos., Chevron Corp., Clougherty Packing Co. (Farmer John), Coca-Cola Co., Continental Baking Co. (Wonder Bread), Food Basket, Foodmaker Inc. (Jack In The Box), Great American Savings Bank, Home Federal Savings & Loan, Mitsubishi (TV), NEC Electronics Inc., Philip Morris Cos. (Marlboro), Swiss Dairies, Unocal Corp., Video Library
Stadium capacity: 58,500
Season tickets sold: 11,800

CLEVELAND INDIANS
1987 Record: 61-101
Theme: Indians baseball: It's better to be there
Budget: $600,000
Agency: in-house; Marcus Advertising
Media: radio; minor TV, print
Sponsors: Marathon Oil Co., Miller Brewing Co., Pizza Hut, Security Federal Savings & Loan Co.
Stadium capacity: 75,139
Season tickets sold: not disclosed

OTHER SEASON HIGHLIGHTS

■ Major League Baseball 1988 sponsors—not listed above—are Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U.S., Fuji Photo Film USA, General Motors Corp. Chevrolet division, IBM Corp., Leaf Inc., Rawlings Sporting Goods and USA Today. A deal with Walt Disney Productions was imminent at press time.

■ The Angels, A's, Astros, Cubs, Dodgers, Giants, Mets, White Sox and possibly the Yankees will feature Hispanic promotions and/or Spanish-language broadcasts. The Dodgers and A's are promoting in their local Asian communities. The Expos are broadcasting in French.

Why some ad partnerships last

(Continued from Page 3)

longest relationships go back to predecessor shops or agencies absorbed in mergers. Mattel's 33 years with O&M began with Los Angeles agency Carson/Roberts, which Ogilvy bought in 1968.)

"Almost without exception, the big agencies have built their businesses on the long-term core clients," explained Roy Bostock, president of D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles' domestic operations.

One long association ended this month, as Scott Paper Co. dropped JWT after 61 years because its marketing strategy no longer includes much media advertising. But ADVERTISING AGE estimates there are as many as 60 relationships between advertiser and agency in the U.S. that have lasted more than 30 years. What makes these unions different?

Common threads emerged from interviews with numerous executives from major advertisers and agencies.

Which marketers are faithful?

Predictably, such long-lasting relationships occur most often among large consumer-products companies, particularly those in the upper ranks of the 100 Leading National Advertisers. Those with the most stable agency rosters are marketers of package goods—such as food, household and personal-care products—and automobiles.

Companies in which marketing is a primary emphasis seem to enter into agency relationships with a stronger level of commitment than others. It's the difference between a couple getting married on a whim at a Las Vegas wedding chapel and a long-contemplated church wedding.

"We go into agency relationships with the expectation and hope it will be long term. As long as something doesn't happen to dislodge confidence, we expect it to last," said Kim Armstrong, director of consumer advertising at AT&T Communications. Ayer has managed to retain its business despite a tough agency review in the late 1960s, and recently it has had to grapple with the challenges of divestiture.

Perennial U.S. ad-spending leader Procter & Gamble Co. has several long-term agency relationships: 67 years with Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton and 47 years with DMB&B, to name two. "There has to be a willingness by both parties to make it work. It's like a marriage," said Edward Wax, president-ceo, Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton.

Analogies to marriage and family abound when discussing agency/client relationships. Said Steve Dammers, senior VP-management supervisor on the Fruit of the Loom account at Grey Advertising: "We have a sense of partnership. Like any good partnership or marriage, we have to be adaptable. We've had to change over time."

Fruit of the Loom and Grey have been together 37 years.

Executives sound like Leo Buscaglia on the sociology of love when queried on this subject. Conversations move to talk of trust, the dynamics of partnership and sustaining interest in each other throughout the years.

Levi Strauss & Co. has worked with FCB for 57 years, through periods of profit declines and dramatic shifts from private to public to private status.

"When you've been involved with each other that long, it goes beyond the big-client thing," said Steve Goldstein, director of consumer marketing at the San Francisco jeans marketer. "It almost becomes a family. When FCB goes out of its way for us, and vice versa, it's done out of a sense of loyalty and history."

Those comments have the ring of a press release, but Levi executives insist it's not just hype. "Pick a married couple and ask them why they've stayed together, and they're going to get into the syrup real quick. But that's the facts," Mr. Goldstein said.

Management stability is key

Such long-term relationships occur with greater frequency among companies and agencies with stable management. For example, still in San Francisco, McCann-Erickson Exec VP-General Manager Jack Tormey has worked continuously on Del Monte Corp.—a 70-year McCann client—since he arrived at the agency in 1964.

Before Mr. Tormey's involvement, Moore Achenbaum worked as an account director on Del Monte from 1917 to 1947, and Fred McCray was on the account for a 26-year stretch, from 1921 to 1947. Del Monte President Ewan Macdonald was a management supervisor on the company's business at McCann before moving over to the client as senior VP-marketing.

On the P&G business at DMB&B, there has been a direct line of succession to the top. Onetime chairman (of the former Benton & Bowles) Atherton Hobler started at the agency on P&G. He was followed by Bob Lusk and Victor Bloede, both of whom eventually held the title of chairman.

John S. Bowen, currently the agency's chairman-ceo, began his career at the agency as an account exec on P&G in 1959. Before starting in the agency business, he worked as a salesman at P&G.

At Leo Burnett Co., consistency is as pervasive as the "Reach for the stars" motto. Essentially conservative, the agency has chosen to grow by servicing a limited number of big-spending clients rather than constantly pursuing new business.

At least half its clients have been on the roster 20 years or more. Similarly, many of the ad concepts it created—Tony the Tiger and Snap, Crackle & Pop for Kellogg Co. and the Marlboro Man for Philip Morris Cos.—have lasted decades.

Talk of familylike relationships is sometimes more than just talk. Peter Husting, Burnett exec VP-director of human resources, international, spent 24 years on the P&G business, and his father, Charles O. Husting, served as an account supervisor on P&G until his death in 1957.

At Sunkist, which has had an 80-year term with FCB, it's a similar story. Sunkist was the first account that FCB Chairman-CEO Norman Brown worked on when he joined the agency. Not insignificant is that Russell Hanlin, now Sunkist president-ceo, was international advertising manager at the time. As both executives have moved up the ladder, they kept up close ties.

Longest-lasting marriages

Company	Agency	Years together
Unilever	J. Walter Thompson Co.	85
AT&T	N W Ayer	80
Sunkist Growers	Foote, Cone & Belding	80
Exxon Co.	McCann-Erickson	77
Hammermill Paper	BBDO Worldwide	75
Anheuser-Busch	D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles	72

Source: Advertising Age.

There are other long-term employees on both sides. Sunkist Marketing Services Director Ray Cole worked on the account at FCB in the 1960s and early 1970s before joining the produce-marketing cooperative. Lou Scott, a former chairman of the executive committee of FCB, early in his career had stints as both a copywriter and account exec on Sunkist.

During the time of his involvement on the business, Mr. Scott took the unusual step of actually becoming a citrus grower himself—and a member of the co-op. Now retired, Mr. Scott also sold the 155-acre farm in Lindsay, Calif. "It proved a good investment," he said.

Stability in Motown

Nowhere are long-term relationships more the norm than in Detroit. With few exceptions, all the major U.S. automakers have been with their agencies for decades: Chevrolet at Lintas:Campbell-Ewald for 67 years; Pontiac with DMB&B for 53 years; Oldsmobile with Burnett for 53 years; Cadillac with DMB&B for 52 years; Ford with J. Walter Thompson Co. for 44 years; and Buick with McCann for 30 years.

Executives who work at the agencies that serve these mammoth auto accounts insist they stay put because of the complexity of the business.

In addition to devising strategy and creating ads, an agency serving an auto account must develop programs for a vast network of dealers, involving collateral and catalogs, plus manage trade shows. "We make ourselves indispensable," said Ron Monchak, managing director at DMB&B in Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Richard O'Connor, chairman of Lintas:Campbell-Ewald, said, "Agencies with automotive clients do a lot more than agencies in the package-goods business. There are so many [people] dedicated to the business we feel part of a family. It's hard to tell where the company and the agency leave off."

It was hard at one time to distinguish Campbell-Ewald from Chevy, because its offices were in the General Motors building. Now the agency is across the street.

Although agency executives in Detroit stress the value of long relationships, cynics say that reflects the "don't rock the boat" attitude that characterizes business in the Motor City. Inertia, they say, is a big factor.

"Auto companies are more change-resistant than other companies," admitted Jay Qualman, Buick's general director of advertising.

Almost without exception, advertisers that have kept long relationships with their agencies emphasize that they trust their agencies. This is no small matter in today's environment, in which ad agencies are increasingly looked upon as suppliers rather than business partners.

One way to build trust: The agency must keep its mouth shut.

"We put a high dividend on confidentiality," said Bruce Wilson, director of marketing communications and support services for U.S. and Canadian consumer products at Eastman Kodak Co. "Our guys [at JWT] don't talk. You don't hear about new products in the press before they're introduced."

Kodak has had a non-stop 56-year relationship with JWT.

Despite JWT's and Kodak's sizes, Mr. Wilson maintained the ad business is "still a very small business. . . . You don't have an assembly line of 10,000 doing the work. At best, there are a dozen key people at the agency and six to eight at the company."

Because of that, Mr. Wilson said, "You develop a sense of teamwork."

Some suggest that companies, particularly those that have made capricious account changes in the past, are starting to realize that switching agencies isn't always the right answer to their problems. Sometimes, it's better to stick it out and solve whatever problems exist.

"So many companies seem to jump around from one agency to another," said Ralph Nunn, a recently retired VP-marketing at Maytag Co. "We've never seen any reason to do that. It's very disruptive." Maytag has been with Burnett for 33 years.#

WILL JORDAN AS GENERAL PATTON

"STIMULATING! . . REALLY WOKE THEM UP . . CAN'T TELL YOU HOW MUCH ENJOYED YOUR APPEARANCE . . A MEMORABLE EVENT"

NYMRAD

NY MKTG RADIO B'CAST ASSOC.
SALES SEMINAR NY HYATT
For Info Contact Will Jordan
212-265-1652

Who pulls the out of the hat for Coca-Cola?

See Pages 39-40

MICRO-MARKETING
NATIONALLY VIA
SHOPPING MALLS

Since 1975, Shopping Center Network has successfully promoted publicity and sampling demonstration programs in major Malls throughout the country for America's leading corporations such as General Foods, Clairol, RCA, Chevrolet, General Electric, Fisher-Price, and others.

We utilize the Mall's high traffic Center Court Area to demonstrate, sample, research and test consumer products.

Call or write today.

Shopping Center Network
Shopping Center Network
Shopping Center Network

3/24/88 C2710-1

NEWSPAPER

*3-DIGIT 200
0201909049 AA00 8812 COMP C32
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

March 21, 1988

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Breakaway! LGFE execs leave WPP

By JON LAFAYETTE
and GARY LEVIN

NEW YORK—Six top executives of Lord, Geller, Federico, Einstein resigned en masse from the WPP Group unit to start a new agency partially bankrolled by Young & Rubicam.

R. Lord

A. Einstein

The new agency, Lord, Einstein, O'Neill & Partners, opens its doors with no clients—although that's not expected to last long.

The defections are a blow to WPP, which had been trying to incorporate LGFE into a second worldwide agency network (AA, Dec. 21, et seq.). Unlike WPP's flagship agency, J. Walter Thompson Co., Lord Geller was considered to be better managed, with higher profit margins.

"It's clearly a big blemish on [WPP's] record," said Greg Ostroff, analyst at Goldman, Sachs & Co. "To date, the acquisition trail has been very successful. But this kind of says that 'friendly takeovers don't work.' "

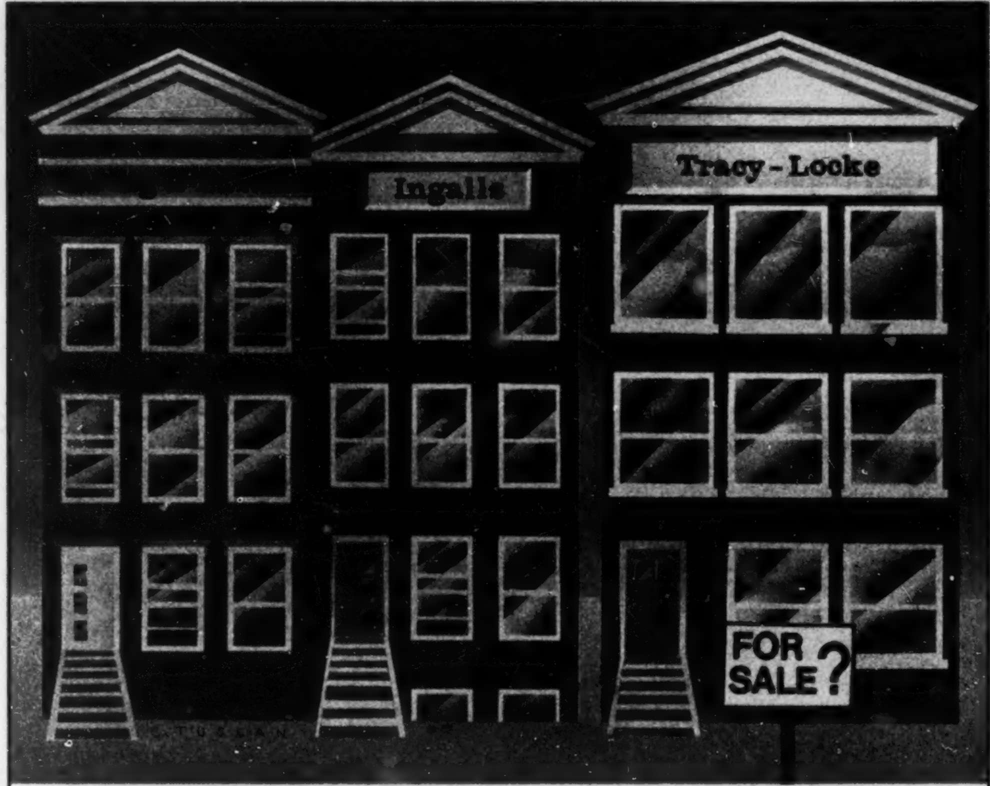
The six executives leaving are Richard Lord, chairman-ceo; Arthur Einstein Jr., president; Kevin O'Neill, exec VP-creative director; Edward Yaconetti, vice chairman; C. Ray Freeman; exec VP-general manager; and Lewis Eichenholtz, senior VP-chief financial officer and director of agency operations.

Lord Geller, a $245 million agency, was picked up by WPP last June with the takeover of JWT Group. JWT Group bought the shop in 1974.

Mr. Einstein said he and his partners sent resignation letters to WPP Group Chairman Martin Sorrell early March 18.

"I don't think he was surprised," Mr. Einstein said. "It was clear to him for a time it was going to happen."

(Continued on Page 84)



Omnicom probes new agency moves

By GARY LEVIN

NEW YORK—Omnicom Group may consider selling three of its smaller general agencies as part of a long-term strategy for its Diversified Agency Services unit.

Allen Rosenshine, president-ceo of the holding company for BBDO Worldwide, DDB Needham Worldwide and DAS, a grab bag of agencies making up Omnicom's third leg, said he had no immediate plans to sell the three but acknowledged that conflicts with BBDO and DDB Needham have stifled some of the smaller agencies' growth.

The three agencies are Ingalls, Quinn & Johnson, Boston; Tracy-Locke, Dallas; and Waring & LaRosa, New York. Together, they represent roughly $500 million in annual billings, or nearly a third of DAS' total volume of $1.7 billion.

The remainder comes from specialty agencies in direct marketing, healthcare, public relations and other areas.

"There are situations where DAS agencies are unable to accept and pitch business, and that must be considered in terms of their long-term future," Mr. Rosenshine said.

For example, DDB Needham's Anheuser-Busch business precludes any Omnicom shop from pitching for a rival beer account, while BBDO's Pepsi-Cola Co. account prevents a related shop from going after any soft drink.

The agencies "can be rationalized but not necessarily as a general-agency alternative," Mr. Ros-

(Continued on Page 82)

Last Minute News

BK gets new marketing chief

MIAMI—Burger King Exec VP-Marketing R.J. Trutz, who oversaw last year's selection of N W Ayer to succeed J. Walter Thompson USA as national agency, has stepped down "to pursue other opportunities in the BK system." Succeeding him is Anthony Lavely, 45, formerly president of Pillsbury's Quik Wok chain.

Seagram picks 3 new spokesmen

NEW YORK—Jos. E. Seagram & Sons has signed three new celebrities to replace "Moonlighting" actor Bruce Willis in a $30 million-plus ad campaign for Seagram coolers. Sources said Seagram signed Woody Harrelson, the bartender on the NBC comedy "Cheers"; actor-comedian Steve Guttenberg of "Police Academy" and "Three Men & a Baby"; and actress Anne Archer, who played the wife in "Fatal Attraction." Mr. Willis, said to have been paid $4 million during two years, is credited with helping build Sea-

(Continued on Page 8)

Inside:

Jimmy Connors wins—in ads. P. 12
Thus spake Maurice Saatchi. P. 18
Getting to know J.D. Power. P. 24
Eleanor: Not just Mondale's kid. P. 72

D'Arcy gets GF plum

By VERNE GAY

General Foods Corp. has consolidated its entire $250 million network TV buying assignment at D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles in one of the largest media-buying shake-ups of recent years.

The big loser is Young & Rubicam, which for more than 25 years has handled GF's network TV buying of daytime programming.

Although GF's daytime budget has shrunk considerably in recent years, the switch adds another $35 million to $50 million in net spending at New York-based DMB&B.

However, one source said the budget wasn't even $30 million and that it had declined by more than $70 million within the past 10 years.

DMB&B already handles network prime time, fringe and syndication buying for GF.

The shift diminishes Y&R's claim as the pre-eminent buyer of daytime network TV. In past years, Y&R has purchased as much as 25% of all commercial time on the Big 3 nets' daytime schedules.

The agency's other huge daytime client is Johnson & Johnson.

The move also consolidates DMB&B's position as one of the biggest buyers of network TV. Leo

(Continued on Page 84)

BEST AVAILABLE COPY

Direct mailers wage postal-rate war

By JANET MEYERS

WASHINGTON—Direct marketers, outraged by hefty postal rate hikes expected next month, are waging a revolt against the national postal system.

The Third Class Mail Association is leading the way. Last week it petitioned Postmaster General Anthony Frank to allow private carriers to deliver advertising mail.

Legally, only the U.S. Postal Service is allowed to deliver addressed letter mail.

Also, the Direct Marketing Association decided at its spring conference here last week to create a special task force to investigate alternate delivery methods.

"Uppermost in our minds are the new postal rates," said Jonah Gitlitz, DMA president, in his opening remarks at the conference.

"I want to remind the postal service that, for a sanctioned monopoly, we expect it to operate efficiently and effectively," he said, "and if not, we must be given the opportunity to use alternative sources."

The DMA committee intends to test the limits of the USPS delivery monopoly, Mr. Gitlitz said.

Adding further pressure to the USPS was a report released late last week by a presidential commission on privatization.

The presidential commission proposed repealing the laws that make the USPS a monopoly.

Direct mailers are boiling because, starting next month, they will have to pay an average of 25% more for mail delivery (AA, March 14).

On March 22, the USPS board of governors is slated to review the rates proposed by the Postal Rate Commission and recommend an implementation date.

That date may be as early as April 3, rather than April 17, as mailers had originally anticipated.

The mailers have already complained vigorously against the earlier date.

Postmaster Frank backs the earlier date, sources said, because he feels the USPS needs the extra revenue.

Many mailers had campaigns planned for early April, believing they would be able to get in under the wire before new rates took effect.

Tim Mabee, VP-marketing for Neiman-Marcus Co., noted that sales of upscale catalogs declined in 1987 and said the higher postal rates will put more pressure on sales and profits.

Another third-class mailer, Lillian Vernon, will insert its catalog into the Sunday, March 27, edition of The New York Times, said David Hochberg, VP-public affairs for the catalog retailer. To increase profits, Lillian Vernon will also include higher-price merchandise in its catalog, he said.

In its letter to Mr. Frank, the TCMA noted: "There is every reason to expect that the increases we've been assigned are only the first of additional [perhaps even more severe] increases designed, in part, to achieve a social balance."

The TCMA intimated that the USPS is jacking up third-class rates because it's primarily advertising material and, because third-class volume has grown faster than other classes, the USPS is trying to avert an image of being an advertising deliverer.

A spokesman for the USPS said Mr. Frank will review the letter.#

Highlights

NEWS

4 Celebrity potential
Consumer marketers are cashing in on many of the same celebrity endorsers as their rivals.

10 CBS fashions marketing plan
CBS-TV is planning a marketing program to pull more advertisers into network TV.

12 Connors nets contracts
Jimmy Connors, once the bad boy of professional tennis, is fielding endorsements from major advertisers.

26 Sales promos score
Sales-promotion campaigns start collecting 1987 "Reggie" awards.

28 Capitalists peek behind Iron Curtain
Western marketers are queuing up for a chance to sell their wares in the Soviet Union.

37 Kelly hopefuls on guard
The 25 semifinalists for the 1987 Kelly Award appear in a four-page portfolio.

59 One Lap revs up
The Cannonball One Lap, a whacky amateur auto race, is turning into a marketing bonanza.

66 Mutual funds slice spending
Mutual funds, still reeling from the aftereffects of the October 19 stock market dive, are tightening ad budgets in a reaction to slow sales.

68 There's more fun at 21
Last year, Rolling Stone made turning 20 fun and profitable. At 21, the party continues.

80 Life's not always a beach
Brown-Forman Co. plans to shake the sand from California Cooler's fun-in-the-sun ad campaign.

INTERNATIONAL

54 The rebel beer
Carlsberg beer, backed by an aggressive, status-conscious ad campaign in Manila, has broken the virtual monopoly of San Miguel, which for decades has been the local favorite.

AD REVIEW: Wrigley gum tries to be cool, fails. P. 86.

SPECIAL REPORT: Marketing to Affluents follows P. 44.

Departments

AdWhirl 79
Auto Motives 30
Brady 46
Brady's Bunch 80
Calendar 56
Christopher 48
Classifieds 75
Currents 50
Direct Marketing 56
Editorials 16
For the Record 81
Forum 18
Garfield 48
Letters 20
MediaWorks 64
People 73
PeopleWorks 72
Photo Review 62
Research Beat 32
Stock Report 82
The Next Trend 46
Trademarks 48

Vol. 59, No. 12—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908).

Pasta sauce rivals stirring

By JUDANN DAGNOLI
and GARY LEVIN

Chesebrough-Pond's Ragu spaghetti sauce is returning a competitor's fire with new advertising and possibly line extensions.

The moves are in response to a direct attack from Campbell Soup Co.'s Prego, the No. 2 brand. Prego is for the first time naming Ragu as the "leading national competitor" in comparative ads (AA, March 14) via FCB/Leber Katz Partners, New York.

Ragu's new campaign will be ladled out next month, while speculation grows that Chesebrough may extend the Ragu name into other product categories.

Agency executives said last week that Chesebrough parent Unilever is lining up one of its core agencies to take on some major new assignment. That could include, they said, extensions of Ragu into new categories such as frozen entrees.

For now, sources contended, Unilever intends to leave the $20 million Ragu account at Waring & LaRosa, though it might move some smaller brands, such as Adolph's meat tenderizer or Pizza Quick instant pizza sauce.

Citing Unilever's intention to become a bigger force in food, they said the game plan is to assign a small brand to a core agency in preparation for bigger food assignments.

In addition to Ragu, Unilever is a factor in the food arena through the foods division of Lever Bros. and its Thomas J. Lipton Inc. subsidiary, which in turn owns Lawry's Foods.

Unilever's major agencies in the U.S. (sharing Chesebrough-Pond's and Lever Bros. business) are BBDO Worldwide, Lintas:New York, McCann-Erickson, Ogilvy & Mather and J. Walter Thompson USA. Lipton agencies are believed to be excluded from the search.

Chesebrough executives declined to comment about its parent's plans.

Ragu, whose long-running ad theme is "That's Italian," has held its own despite major inroads made by Prego since its 1980 introduction. Ragu's market share slipped to 53% from a high of 60%-plus, but Prego itself has dropped from almost 30% in 1986 to the low 20s last year.

"Two years ago we were very close [to toppling Ragu's leadership]," said Don Lowry, Prego marketing manager. But then Campbell made a marketing mistake.

"We shifted emphasis off the base brand to launch line extensions," Mr. Lowry said. "We took our eye off the ball." Campbell has since slimmed down the line, axing extensions such as Prego Al Fresco.#

Mattel hopes for help from Barbie's friends

JUDITH GRAHAM

On the eve of her 30th birthday, Barbie, the world's most popular doll, has more than her share of grown-up responsibilities.

Mattel is counting on Barbie and her black and hispanic counterparts to help nurse the company back to financial health.

To boost sales to ethnic groups, Mattel is giving black Barbie dolls their own identities with names like Becky, Belinda, Christie and Steven. Teresa, the first hispanic doll with her own name, is entering the scene. There also will be Miko, a Eurasian doll.

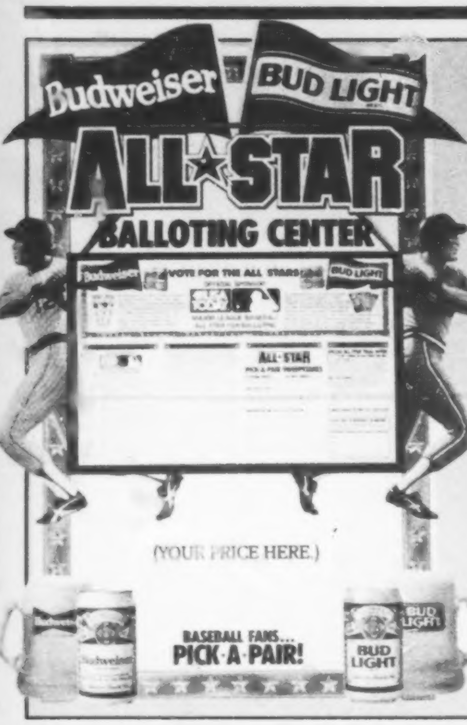
Also, the dolls' expressions will change. The pouts on the black dolls are being replaced with wide grins, and smiles for hispanic dolls will follow soon.

Barbie has had ethnic friends for two decades. In the mid-1960s, after her first black friend, Christie, was introduced, several black dolls had their own names. But in the early 1970s, Mattel changed its strategy and decided to call all dolls Barbie. That name has stuck since, even though the ethnic dolls have darker skins and distinct ethnic features.

The changes in ethnic Barbies result from a study of consumer buying patterns. Mattel found black mothers choose white doll friends for their black Barbies, while white mothers rarely choose black or hispanic doll friends for their white Barbies.

The reason this happened, the study showed, was that the black and hispanic dolls didn't have their

(Continued on Page 84)



Bud on All-Star team

Brewer ties in with 'USA Today'

By IRA TEINOWITZ

It may only be spring training for Major League Baseball, but for Anheuser-Busch it's the All-Star break.

In an unusual "sublicensing" agreement, the nation's leading brewer will tie in with USA Today for its annual promotion centered around Major League Baseball's All-Star team.

A-B will distribute ballots in grocery and liquor stores under an arrangement with Gannett Co.'s national newspaper, which last year bought exclusive U.S. balloting rights.

The new agreement breaks recent baseball tradition, which says that only the game's corporate sponsors are involved in the balloting. A-B won't be an official corporate sponsor of Major League Baseball, but it will pay an undisclosed fee to both USA Today and MLB for its involvement.

MLB thus gains added exposure for its All-Star ballots through A-B's heavy in-store presence without actually reversing Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's past reluctance to enlist brewers as official sponsors.

A-B, the nation's largest brewer, says ad spending for the multimillion-dollar promotion will be "unprecedented." The seven-week media blitz, kicking off May 9, includes local and network TV, radio and a print mix of Playboy, Rolling Stone, Sports Illustrated, TV Guide and USA Today. All ads mention USA Today.

An expanded version of A-B's traditional spring "Pick-A-Pair" promotion for its Budweiser and Bud Light brands will include a sweepstakes tied to the All-Star balloting.

D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, St. Louis, which handles the $100 million Budweiser account, is agency for the "Pick-A-Pair" promotion. DDB Needham Worldwide, Chicago, handles Bud Light's $64 million account.

USA Today stands to gain subscriptions and increased visibility from the A-B deal.

Fans who fill out the ballots to pick players for the July 12 All-Star game in Cincinnati will be offered discounts on USA Today. They also can answer trivia questions leading to prizes; the answers will be in USA Today during the balloting.

A year ago, USA Today paid $3 million to become one of a half-dozen corporate sponsors of MLB and for three-year rights to

(Continued on Page 83)

Anheuser-Busch is telling retailers its "Pick-A-Pair" All-Star effort will be its biggest-ever spring promotion.

World News Roundup

SYDNEY—J. Walter Thompson Australia was offered $13 million for its office building here through a local property developer as part of WPP Group's plan to sell off real estate. Sources say WPP also is negotiating the sale of its Tokyo office building for $125 million.

SANTIAGO—PepsiCo will return to Chile after an absence of two years. Embotelladora Chile will be the bottler. J. Walter Thompson Chilena will handle the $3 million relaunch, set for later this year.

ZWIJNDRECHT, NETHERLANDS—Chiquita Brands, subsidiary of United Brands Co., moved its $6.2 million European account to GGK from Young & Rubicam.

MADRID—Comercial Saimaza, General Foods' Spanish subsidiary, moved its $3.5 million Saimaza roast coffee and Tang powdered drink account to Young & Rubicam Espana from Danis, Benton & Bowles.

LONDON—Mars Inc. picked Grey Ltd. to handle the $2.5 million launch in April of Balisto, a chocolate-covered wheatmeal cookie.

RIO DE JANEIRO—Embratur, Brazil's tourism board, plans a U.S. campaign to improve the image of this city, recently hard hit by flood-

(Continued on Page 55)

Pricey European cars skid in strong market

By RAYMOND SERAFIN

These are low times for high-price European cars.

Despite robust gains by the rest of the automobile industry, sales of upscale European cars have plummeted in 1988, continuing a trend that started Oct. 19, the day the stock market plunged.

Stock market turbulence, foreign currency fluctuations and several other factors have put the brakes on the decadelong expansion of BMW, Mercedes-Benz, Volvo and other expensive European car marketers.

Shifts in currency exchange rates have caused sticker shock, with prices for some European models climbing more than 30% since fall of 1985.

New tax regulations also have discouraged sales of high-price cars because depreciation allowances and write-offs for sales taxes and interest have been changed or eliminated.

Competition from Japanese importers and U.S.-based companies is another factor cutting into the Europeans' previously uncontested domain.

Mike Jackling, exec VP at BMW of North America, estimates the tax law changes increased costs of luxury European cars 5% to 10%.

Another, temporary, factor is taxpayers' uncertainty about how they'll fare under the new tax laws, said Thomas O'Grady, president of Integrated Automotive Resources. "They're at least waiting until after they prepare their tax returns," he said.

The slump is forcing the European importers to try new strategies such as cut-rate financing and resale value guarantees. It also has raised doubts about the viability of some of the weaker franchises, and has spurred speculation that some agencies could be in danger of losing their accounts.

"Oct. 19 was a bizarre economic

(Continued on Page 86)

Nielsen OKs people-meter probe by nets

By VERNE GAY

NEW YORK—A.C. Nielsen Co. has agreed to go along with the Big 3 TV networks in an extensive investigation of its people-meter ratings system.

Nielsen said it will provide a wide range of data necessary for the networks to carry out their planned review of meter techniques.

The review, funded by the networks, is expected to study sample turnover, editing procedures, sample composition, panel behavior, technical concerns and many other aspects that have been hotly debated since the people meter made its debut last fall.

It remains unclear whether the investigation will lead to any substantive changes in Nielsen's procedures. The ratings company has steadfastly stood by its ratings techniques.

It's also unclear what role Dun & Bradstreet Corp., Nielsen's parent, will play. Publicity-shy D&B has remained conspicuously silent during the people-meter controversy. Some sources speculate D&B, by far the largest producer of business information in the world, doesn't want its reputation impugned by the people-meter controversy.

If the investigation determines that Nielsen has somehow been derelict in its procedures, D&B may force its unit to change its methods.

The networks also will focus on the people-meter methods of Nielsen rival AGB Television

(Continued on Page 83)

Downy's spokesbaby will vie with the Snuggle teddy bear for the hearts of fabric softener users. And soon they'll have to fight off Dial.

Softener battle to stiffen

By LAURIE FREEMAN and WAYNE WALLEY

Dial Corp. is one step closer to marketing a new fabric softener it says includes a technological advance that supersedes the products marketed by Procter & Gamble Co. and Lever Bros.

But P&G and Lever aren't about to yield their hard-won market shares in the $757 million category.

P&G this week breaks its first ad campaign for Downy Dryer Sheets (AA, Feb. 1), the first extension of the leading liquid softener, while Lever is backing the current national launch of a new "cuddle-fresh" scented Snuggle with a print and TV campaign featuring the Snuggle teddy bear.

"Neither P&G nor Lever will take kindly to a third major competitor," said Joseph Kozloff, VP at Drexel Burnham Lambert. "Procter and Lever have been fighting a long, hard battle with each other in fabric softeners, and they're not about to give up easily. Dial's going to have a major fight on its hands."

Dial last week picked Tracy-Locke to handle advertising for the as-yet-unnamed fabric softener. Observers believe part of Dial's assignment for the Dallas agency is to determine how difficult it will be for Dial to show it has something new and different.

A key issue is whether the new product should be positioned as a replacement for one of Dial's existing products or should stand on its own, with a new name, identity and packaging.

The company already markets Sta Puf fabric softener and Toss 'N

(Continued on Page 82)

Designer furniture sellers sitting pretty

By Janice Steinberg

A few years ago, the director of a San Diego modern art museum complained that he had to make a trip to Italy to find the high-styled furniture he wanted for his office. Today, he could probably stay home.

In more than a dozen cities, pioneering retailers are bringing to the public high-design furniture—items that were either unavailable in the U.S. or limited to designer showrooms. They say that the public is happy to spend the money to get good design.

"People really tend to gravitate to good design when they can see it," says Richard Gorman, president of Manifesto in Chicago. "If you have two different pieces sitting there, it's interesting that there is a natural tendency toward the one that's better designed."

Manifesto, which opened in July 1986, did better than $600,000 in sales during its first year and reports an average 200% sales increase, on a month-to-month basis, over the same period a year earlier. The store specializes in high-ticket reproductions of classic designs, such as a $1,500 Frank Lloyd Wright chair.

"Sales have increased 10% to 20% every year for the last five years," says Barry Bursak, president of City, a Chicago store in which virtually all of the products—furniture, lighting, home accessories and clothing—are black or gray, reflecting Mr. Bursak's devotion to a minimalist Bauhaus style. City started in a 13,000-square-foot space five years ago, and in October 1987, moved to a new location approximately double that size.

Revenues have grown 100% annually since Arkitektura Showrooms opened in Birmingham, Mich., two years ago, says Andrew Fisher, president-ceo.

"We've gone from having nine people a week in the showroom to about 140 a week," he says.

Co-owned by Mr. Fisher and Ron ~~Swanson, the~~ grandson of noted designer Eliel Saarinen, Arkitektura carries reproductions of classic furniture designed by Eliel and Eero Saarinen, Mies van der Rohe, C.R. Mackintosh, Le Corbusier, Eileen Gray and other 20th century masters.

The Saarinen furniture is manufactured at Arkitektura Inc., a separate entity.

The high-design furniture stores essentially occupy two categories. There are those such as Arkitektura, which sell reproductions of classic designs, and those such as Luminaire and City, which specialize in current European imports, primarily Italian products from Zanotta, Cassina, Driade, Fontana Arte, Cappellini and other furniture companies.

The prices represent major savings over buying through designer showrooms, says Janet Sawyer, owner of Metropolis in Minneapolis.

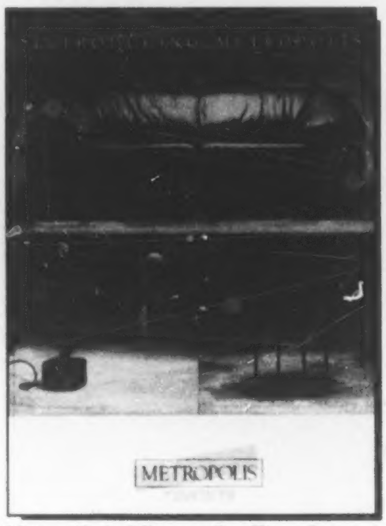
For example, she sells $5,000 sofas that she says are of equal quality and design integrity to sofas costing $15,000 through New York showrooms.

Still, designer furniture stores are no bargain hunter's haven. Typical wares at San Diego's Inside include an $11,400 Paolo Degenello sofa, a $3,500 Zanotta sofa, a $2,950 beola-stone Zanotta table, and a variety of lighting fixtures with a general price range of $100 to $400.

"It's very expensive stuff," says Inside owner Michael Dunsford. "For people who live by budgets, it's hard to say, 'Why don't I buy this $450 desk lamp as opposed to this $69 ginger jar lamp?' " He says most of his customers are upper-income professionals who live in the posh San Diego County communities of La Jolla and Del Mar.

Nasir Kassamali, who opened Luminaire—generally recognized as the first of the retail design stores—in Miami in 1974, surveys and maintains a database on his clients. He says Luminaire customers tend to be 29-52 years old, have two children and own homes with a median price of $160,000. Seventy-eight percent drive imported cars and 42% have traveled abroad.

Although Mr. Kassamali declined to give sales figures, business was good enough that within two years he went from his initial 384-square-foot space to a 4,000-square-foot store.



Metropolis in Minneapolis offers what was once only available through designer showrooms or in Italy.

Luminaire is now a two-store, 20,000-square-foot business with a 16,000-customer mailing list.

Several high-design furniture retailers say their range of customers has surprised them.

"Our clientele is outrageous to me," says Ms. Sawyer. "I had thought before we started [in late 1985] that our clientele would be 30-45, yuppie, straight couples, gay couples, dual-income families. . .

"But our client is also an architecture student who is convinced that he needs a designer lamp or chair. We sold our most outrageous lighting system to a retired farm couple from southern Minnesota."

"We have a lot of males, which surprises me," says Manifesto's Mr. Gorman. "I thought women would be more of the purchasers of furniture, but it's at least 50% men."

Eighty percent of Manifesto's sales are to people 50 and above, says Mr. Gorman.

"But we do have many people come in who just want to own a piece of Wright or touch some of the architects. They'll spend the money, but I know it's more difficult for some than others," he says.

High-design furniture retailers use a variety of marketing strategies to reach their heterogenous public.

Total affluent household expenditures in past year*
(in $ billions)

Home furnishings	$43.7
Women's apparel	18.0
Home improvement materials	15.5
Men's apparel	13.1
Entertainment appliances	12.6
Jewelry	10.3
Household appliances	7.8
Artwork and collectibles	7.0
Children's apparel	3.7
Personal computers	3.7
Cosmetics and fragrances	3.0
Watches	2.7
Athletic equipment	2.5
Photographic equipment	2.3
Books	2.3

*Household incomes of $50,000 or more

Source: Mendelsohn Media Research, 1987

Arkitektura, Manifesto, Metropolis and Inside advertise in local magazines. Arkitektura and Manifesto spend $20,000 to $25,000 on advertising yearly, say Messrs. Fisher and Gorman, respectively.

Mr. Bursak advertises nationally and internationally—in Interview and Manipulator magazines—rather than locally.

"We never positioned ourselves as a local Chicago business," he says. "From the start we positioned City as an international-style store and we do a substantial amount of our business with people who are traveling through Chicago."

Luminaire's Mr. Kassamali does no traditional advertising, relying instead on mailings to his 16,000-customer list once or twice a year—"educational pieces that inform the public of new happenings on the European scene or the Japanese scene or even the American scene," he says.

Direct mail is used by a number of high-design retailers.

"Direct mail is by far our best source," says Ms. Sawyer, although she says it's difficult to expand her list beyond walk-in traffic.

"You can get an American Express list broken down by almost every darn thing in the world but not by an interest in design. It's one person out of 100 all over the place, so how do you narrow it down?" she says.

Arkitektura spends $10,000 to $15,000 on direct mail annually, Mr. Fisher says. Direct mail also is used by Manifesto and Inside.

Where to advertise isn't even an issue for many high-design furniture stores, however. Four of the nine retailers interviewed do very little or no advertising at all.

"Free publicity has been our best advertising," says Norman Matos, manager of Giles & Lewis in New York. "Every two weeks another magazine has called. Giles & Lewis has been mentioned in several design books and in Architectural Digest, House & Garden, Metropolitan Home and Town & County."

Opened in December 1986, Giles & Lewis did $1.8 million of business in its first year with minimal advertising, he says.

"We've been growing at an annual rate of 20% to 30% [for five years] and have not had to advertise," says Chuck Pischke, outside sales manager at Current in Seattle.

Like Giles & Lewis, Current is regularly written up in national magazines. Mr. Pischke says that another advantage is Current's Seattle location. Because there is no competition for miles, Current can carry a comprehensive collection of imported lines and has customers nationwide.

"We call it alternative advertising," Dan Friedlander, owner of Limn in San Francisco, says about his store's combination of educational and art projects.

Limn has sponsored four shows at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, brought lecturers to the store and developed an in-store exhibition program that includes paintings, drawings, photography, sculpture and new products.

Since 1987, Limn has also held an annual International Workspace Design Competition in which entrants present a solution to a particular design question for a $5,000 prize. Last year's competition dealt with designing a workspace for young adults. It was mentioned in more than 30 international magazines and generated 3,000 requests for entry forms and 80 entries. This year's challenge is to design a more joyous workspace.

"I'm not sure these things have helped us short-term, but they've probably helped position us long-term in certain people's eyes around the world," says Mr. Friedlander.

In spite of the success of the handful of retailers selling high-design furniture, don't expect to see an Arkitektura springing up tomorrow in every upscale shopping mall. Two retailers say they have already turned down proposals to expand.

"I was approached by a major American retail chain about a year and a half ago to come up with something that looked like City, that they could plug into 200 mall locations," says Mr. Bursak.

"They didn't want City, they wanted a watered-down version of City. They wanted something that gave people the impression of style and value, but that sold cheap junk," he says.

Giles & Lewis was approached about opening in three malls, in Stamford, Conn., Short Hills, N.J., and San Francisco, says owner Giles Forman. But he lacked the necessary time and money because the store was moving into a much larger space at the time.

Mr. Forman does see a future in which there might be a chain of Giles & Lewis stores, but they would have to be almost autonomous, he says. "There might be a very wide selection of materials and products carried in the various stores. They should not be identical."

Many of the high-design retailers feel as strongly—if not more so—about their role in promoting good design as they do about making a profit.

"I'm not in this business for the sake of selling stuff," says Mr. Kassamali. "It's a lifelong dream come true."

"My main interest is educational," says Mr. Dunsford, who previously worked in the education program at the La Jolla Museum of Contemporary Art.

"The education part is just getting people to look at stuff—to look at a sofa like this [Paolo Degenello] and think that it might be possible to live with it."

Janice Steinberg, a San Diego-based free-lance writer, is a frequent contributor to Special Report.

$2,300 scotch sets tone for Glenfiddich

By Lori Kesler

If you are defined by what you own, then keeping a Stag's Head decanter of 25-year-old Glenfiddich single-malt Scotch whisky around the house should propel you into the stratosphere of chic.

Glenfiddich's finest, said to be the world's most expensive bottle of scotch, comes in a handcut Edinburgh crystal decanter topped by a solid sterling silver stag's-head stopper. It's packed in an inlaid walnut chest with green velvet lining. A certificate of authenticity accompanying each bottle bears the signature of the great-grandson of William Grant, founder of the century-old distillery in Dufftown, Scotland.

The Stag's Head decanter of scotch costs $2,300—about the same price as 175 bottles of ordinary scotch.

Of course you can buy a bottle of 10-year-old Glenfiddich single-malt Scotch whisky at your neighborhood liquor store for just over $20. It's probably almost the same, except that the Stag's Head limited-edition product has aged for a quarter of a century in a wooden cask stashed in a secret cave somewhere in the Scottish Highlands. Even without the fancy decanter, the 25-year-old stuff would cost well over $1,000.

Edison, N.J.-based William Grant & Sons, which imports Glenfiddich for U.S. distribution, sells about 40 Stag's Head decanters each year. Officials admit there's not a particularly big market for a distilled spirit that costs more than a Caribbean cruise. And that's just as well, because there's also not a very big supply. The distillery makes only a small quantity available for sale each year.

But Michael Luftglass, William Grant & Sons' marketing VP, says the 25-year-old Stag's Head product is important to Glenfiddich's broader marketing strategy because it casts a "halo effect" over the brand as a whole. "It helps position the Glenfiddich brand as a very high-quality product," he says.

In fact, the Stag's Head ads, which appear before Christmas and Father's Day in upscale publications, can cut through a lot of advertising clutter because the "outlandish price and the unusual packaging" attract reader interest, he says.

"Obviously, Glenfiddich never sells enough Stag's Head decanters to warrant the advertising for them," says Steve Friedman, VP-management supervisor at Chiat/Day, New York, the brand's agency. But after seeing those ads, "people will associate the $21 bottle with status and prestige."

Advertising the $2,300 bottle—for a limited market—helps position the $21 bottle as a status product.

Glenfiddich, the best-selling single-malt scotch worldwide, is No. 2 in the U.S., where House of Seagram's Glenlivit leads the category by a wide margin.

Glenfiddich, which boosted ad spending 50% during the past few years, currently advertises in men's fashion magazines, select business publications, the Sunday magazines of the Los Angeles Times and The New York Times, and local magazines in key markets.

At the moment, Glenfiddich is trying to stay ahead of newcomers to the category while closing the gap on Glenlivit. It appears to be succeeding.

Frank Walters, director-research of New York-based M. Shanken Communications, says Glenfiddich sold an estimated 58,000 cases in 1987, up 29% from 1986. Meanwhile, Glenlivit sold an estimated 120,000 cases in 1987 for a 9% gain on the previous year.

Mr. Walters says both of the leading single-malt scotches are priced as "super-superpremiums," about 40% higher than superpremium blended scotches such as House of Seagram's Chivas Regal and Distillers Somerset Group's Johnny Walker Black. He says single-malts comprise a small but growing category whose leaders are clearly aiming for the upscale market.

Indeed, Mr. Luftglass says one reason Glenfiddich is beating the odds in the generally depressed liquor industry is because the company understands Americans' "aspirational" buying behavior.

"People want to buy what they think is best," he says, "and until recently, they perceived that the best scotches were the deluxe blends such as Chivas Regal and Johnny Walker Black." Now he says single-malt scotches are gaining favor because of their distinctive character and smooth taste.

"Our strategy is to create a new gold standard for scotch," says Mr. Friedman. "We're targeting people who drink scotch and use premium products. We think, frankly, we can get the Dewar's customer to move up to Glenfiddich when he aspires to the best. Our goal is to make him jump right over Chivas."

Mr. Luftglass says the typical Glenfiddich customer is a male, 35 or older, who lives in a major urban center on the East or West Coast. He's inclined to drive a foreign car, drink imported bottled water, wear fine ties and fashionable wristwatches and purchase premium products in all categories.

The $2,300 decanter is purchased by "that very rare individual who really has everything in life," says Mr. Luftglass. He describes the Stag's Head customer as "an outspoken person who likes to send strong signals about his or her position in the world." He says the company counts many of the rich and famous among its clients.

Mr. Luftglass says the future of the distilled spirits industry belongs to high-end brands, and Glenfiddich is well-positioned to take advantage of that trend. "People today are drinking less," says Mr. Friedman, "but when they do drink, they want the best."

Lori Kesler, an ADVERTISING AGE correspondent based in St. Louis, is a frequent contributor to Special Report.

Countries affluent consumers associate with luxury products*

Country	Percent
France	52.9
USA	49.5
Italy	43.4
Germany	31.5
Great Britain	22.0
Japan	16.3
Sweden	14.8
Belgium	11.3
Spain	9.3
Denmark	9.1
Norway	3.8

*Respondents with a household income of $75,000 or more

Source: Starch INRA Hooper, 1987.

Parker rebuilds a quality image

By Lori Kesler

If George Parker were alive today, he'd probably approve of his company's newest fountain pen. It is, after all, a re-creation of the original 1921 Parker Duofold.

But the Parker Duofold Centennial costs a little more this time around. The 18-carat gold-nib fountain pen, which mates traditional '20s styling with modern engineering design, retails for $275; the matching ball pen costs $125. In 1921, the fountain pen retailed for $7.

Parker Pen USA Ltd., Janesville, Wis., reintroduced the Duofold classic to celebrate the company's 100th anniversary. But bringing back this pen symbolizes something even more significant. It marks the company's return to its roots as a purveyor of quality writing instruments.

Mr. Parker never tried to produce the cheapest pens on the market. In fact, the company's founder liked the idea of giving customers a good reason to spend a little more money. "Make something better," he said, "and people will buy it."

For the next 90-odd years, his philosophy guided the company's expansion in Europe and the Far East, and Parker pens became the best-selling brand worldwide. But in the U.S., "we lost our way a bit," says Robert Walker, the company's director of marketing.

While Parker never abandoned its high-end position in foreign markets, it started concentrating on low-price mass-distribution products in the U.S.—and got itself into big trouble.

"Parker was making $1.98 pens and suffering from the diffusion of its image," says Eugene Rohlman, marketing communications manager. Meanwhile, U.S. competitors jumped in to fill the vacuum created when Parker vacated the $10-and-up market.

Ads that broke late last year compared the Duofold's craftsmanship to that of an antique automobile.

In 1985, the company made money in Europe and Asia, but domestic operations lost $22 million. A group of British investors bought the pen company for about $100 million in February 1986, and the U.S. division was given a year to fix its operation or close.

"They fixed it," says Jacques Margry, ceo of Parker Pen Ltd., Newhaven, East Sussex, England.

The company decided to rebuild the brand in the U.S. by re-establishing its high-end reputation. U.S. dollar sales increased 28% during the last two years, far outpacing the total industry's 5% annual growth rate, and Parker's luxury pen sales in the U.S. rose 40% while fountain pen unit sales more than doubled.

Sales worldwide grew from $165 million at the time of the buyout to $226 million for the fiscal year ended Feb. 29, 1988.

"To support our strong move upmarket, Parker invested $3.7 million in U.S. advertising of prestige products in upscale magazines in the past two years," says Peter Bentley, VP, North American Operations.

He says the thrust of that advertising was "to communicate to the consumer that every Parker writing instrument is the product of skilled craftsmanship, exquisite design and a relentless pursuit of quality."

Parker USA will spend $2.6 million on advertising during 1988 to support its upscale image. It will promote the Duofold Centennial throughout the year with ads in Fortune, Gentlemen's Quarterly, Gourmet, House & Garden, Life, Newsweek, People, Sports Illustrated and regional publications in several urban markets.

Although Parker still makes plenty of pens that sell for $4 to $10, its current advertising always features pens priced above $50. That's not to say Parker is abandoning its lower-price pens. Instead, officials say promoting the top-of-the-line products establishes a reputation for quality that "trickles down" to all price levels.

"Even with the Duofold as the flagship of our advertising," says Bill Tucker, president of New York-based Lowe Tucker Metcalf, Parker's agency, "we expect to sell as many low-end pens as before. We're simply communicating that Parker is a well-made product and a good value in any price range."

However, Mr. Walker believes most of the industry's future growth will come at the higher price points, with a resurgence of interest in fountain pens fueling much of that growth.

Not everyone will plunk down $275 for a fountain pen, but Mr. Walker says the Duofold definitely appeals to the well-heeled business professional who tends to buy things "with solid intrinsic values" rather than the momentary appeal of the latest fad.

Mr. Tucker expects the upscale pen category to heat up during the next few years. He says a major competitor recently hired its first outside agency, and some other companies seem to be taking a more aggressive marketing stance as well.

"Parker may have awakened some sleeping giants," he says. "Things could get interesting in this category."

Liquor's hangover continues

Industry sales fall; liqueurs up

By JOHN C. MAXWELL Jr.

The liquor industry witnessed another sales decline in 1987. However, as in 1986, there were degrees of growth and declines within different liquor segments.

The outlook for 1988 is another year of slight volume decline in spirits, with the exception of vodka and brandy imports.

The sale of specialty liqueurs and imported vodkas continued to grow. Tequila had impressive growth again in 1987, largely because of Heublein's Jose Cuervo, which was up 14.9% in unit volume. This increase is probably related to the popularity of Mexican food and drinks (witness the amazing success of Corona and Sol in the imported beer market).

Imported vodka continues to outperform nearly all other segments, particularly Absolut, up 27.3%.

Whiskey sales decreased again as bonds, blends, Canadians, scotch and straights all showed declines.

Of the top 10 liquor brands, only three showed volume declines, compared with the previous year when nine had declines. Bacardi remained No. 1 and had a 3.2% volume increase.

Reordering of the top 10 was minimal, with Jim Beam moving to the No. 5 spot with a 0.3% volume increase. Canadian Mist was bumped to the No. 6 spot with a 7.3% volume increase. Twelve of the leading 33 brands that sold more than 1 million cases last year showed volume gains.

Last year's newcomer, Paddington Corp.'s Absolut vodka, moved from No. 35 to No. 21. Another share increase was seen by Jose Cuervo, which rose to 19th from 25th. This year there were no newcomers to the top-brands list.

Of particular notice is the continuing story of James B. Beam Distilling Co.'s (American Brands) Dekuyper Peachtree schnapps. It was introduced in 1984 and within a year sold 1.5 million cases, making Dekuyper the 24th best-selling liquor product in the U.S. Last year the number almost doubled. This year it's believed that the peach schnapps' sales will account for about 2.4 million cases, which is roughly two-thirds of Dekuyper's sales. (Since Beam doesn't break out Dekuyper's sales by flavors, the line isn't included in the accompanying list of top-selling brands.)

The outlook for 1988 is another year of slight volume decline in spirits, with the exception of vodka and brandy imports.

Though Dekuyper showed about an 8% drop, due mainly to fluctuating sales of various flavors, the line kept its position for the third consecutive year as No. 1 in cordials.

The extraordinary past growth in this area seems to illustrate a new drink trend that shows great potential. With more than 60 varieties available, peach being the most popular, schnapps drinkers have a tremendous selection from which to choose. Furthermore, the low alcohol content appeals to those who are health-conscious, young and female.

This type of drink not only has more of the aspects that attracted consumers to wine coolers but can appeal to an even greater audience on the basis of its tremendous variety and versatility.

The cordial/liqueur segment is expected to stay relatively stable due in part to consumers' changing tastes and interests.

The continued growth of imported vodka was shown by Absolut's 27.3% increase as well as Stolichnaya, up 10.3%, and Finlandia, up 7.1%. Recognizing this increasing market, Glenmore Distilleries Co. recently began marketing Elduris Icelandic vodka at the superpremium price of $12 to $14, which will pit it against Absolut and Stolichnaya.

It appears that drinking vodka on the rocks is becoming more of a status symbol, explaining the demand for higher quality imports. This growth doesn't seem to have reached its potential and appears to be occurring at the expense of the domestic vodkas and possibly scotch.

In the marketing area, Glenmore changed its Mr. Boston line to just plain Boston to try to liven up the old-fashioned line of liqueurs and other distilled spirits and increase consumer awareness.

The liquor industry in 1987, as it did in 1986, experienced an implosion of buyouts. In April, Beam (American Brands) agreed to buy National Distillers for $545 million. Guinness PLC bought Schenley Industries for $480 million, giving Guinness greater control over the marketing of its brands in the U.S., most notably Dewar's White Label. Furthermore, Paddington became part of the IDV Grand Metropolitan family. Paddington joins Heublein, which was bought by Grand Metropolitan earlier this year. Just recently, Kobrand Corp. lost the U.S. rights to market Beefeater gin. James Burrough PLC, Beefeater's new parent, moved importing and marketing rights of all of its brands from Kobrand to Buckingham Wile Co. For Kobrand the loss of Beefeater represents about 75% of its annual revenues.

More mergers and acquisitions are likely in 1988. As well-known brands continue taking market share away from the competition, they will continue to evaluate further industry purchases. The ongoing currency fluctuations will continue to play an important role as more and more companies pursue a global strategy.#

Mr. Maxwell is with Wheat First Securities, Richmond, Va.

Top-selling liquor brands

Brands selling more than 1 million cases. Source: John C. Maxwell Jr., Richmond, Va.

Rank				Nine-liter cases (000)
'87	'86	Brand	Company	1987	1986	Chg
1	1	Bacardi	Bacardi Corp.	8,179	7,927	3.2%
2	2	Smirnoff	Heublein (GM)	7,690	7,662	0.4%
3	3	7 Crown	Seagram Co.	4,485	4,600	(2.5%)
4	4	Popov	Heublein (GM)	4,050	4,183	3.2%
5	6	Jim Beam	James Beam (AB)	3,740	3,730	0.3%
6	5	Canadian Mist	Brown-Forman	3,700	3,990	(7.3%)
7	7	V.O.	Seagram Co.	3,455	3,455	0.0%
8	9	Jack Daniels	Brown-Forman	3,197	3,197	0.0%
9	10	Canadian Club	Walker (HWR)	3,100	3,050	1.6%
10	11	Seagram's gin	Seagram Co. Ltd	3,065	3,065	0.0%
11	13	Gordon's gin	Schenley (G)	2,455	2,455	0.0%
12	14	Dewar's	Schenley (G)	2,370	2,370	0.0%
13	8	Windsor Supreme	James Beam (AB)	2,210	2,210	0.0%
14	19	Gordon's vodka	Schenley (G)	2,170	2,020	7.4%
15	18	Black Velvet	Heublein (GM)	2,075	2,082	(3.0%)
16	17	J&B Rare	Paddington (GM)	1,995	2,100	(5.0%)
17	15	Kamchatka	James Beam (AB)	1,840	1,795	2.5%
18	21	Kahlua	Walker (HWR)	1,750	1,750	0.0%
19	25	Jose Cuervo	Heublein (GM)	1,590	1,384	14.9%
20	23	Ancient Age	Ancient Age	1,475	1,600	(7.8%)
21	35	Absolut	Paddington (GM)	1,400	1,100	27.3%
22	24	Early Times	Brown-Forman	1,393	1,551	(10.2%)
23	27	Tanqueray	Somerset Group	1,375	1,310	5.0%
24	16	Gilbey's gin	James Beam (AB)	1,365	1,319	3.5%
25	26	Johnnie Walker Red	Somerset Group	1,320	1,375	(4.0%)
26	20	Gilbey's vodka	James Beam (AB)	1,282	1,282	0.0%
27	29	Southern Comfort	Brown-Forman	1,250	1,250	0.0%
28	28	Crown Royal	Seagram Co.	1,185	1,280	(7.4%)
29	31	Beefeater	Kobrand	1,143	1,110	3.0%
30	32	Kessler	Seagram Co.	1,075	1,100	(2.3%)
31	32	Lord Calvert	Seagram Co.	1,050	1,100	(4.5%)
32	35	Ten High	Walker (HWR)	1,025	1,000	2.5%
33	30	Cutty Sark	Buckingham (WB)	1,015	1,140	(11.0%)

Key to parent corporations: (AB) American Brands, (G) Glenmore, (GM) Grand Metropolitan, (HWR) Hiram Walker Resources and (WB) Whitbread.

alynn NECKWEAR
108 DOGWOOD CT.
STAMFORD, CT 06903

Silk Ties & Scarves Designed With Your Client's Logo Are Inexpensive, Lasting Investments In Corporate Image.

	min.	each
Handmade Ties	150	$15
Scarves	100	$15

Other fabrics avail. Color Catalog
(203) 322-5160 (800) 252-5966

DBS lures media heavyweights

(Continued from Page 57)

much of Western Europe. But the service is being developed for the U.K. market to target British advertisers, as well as avoid language problems and the need to negotiate multicountry performing rights payments. It also wants to ensure local availability of satellite dishes.

Mr. Bell said BSB has $180 million to spend on the first year's programming, which will fill four program services on three of its four channels.

Advertising will be accepted on three channels: Galaxy, a general-entertainment channel; Now, a news and live-events channel; and a children's and family-oriented channel. Screen, the fourth channel, will offer pay-per-view movies, so there will be no programming costs or advertising.

BSB's business plan calls for 400,000 subscribers the first year, 6 million after five years and 10 million in a decade.

One of BSB's rivals is Television Broadcasting Co., owned by Saatchi & Saatchi, the Dixon appliance chain and three U.K. TV companies. The group now is looking for a channel on another direct broadcast satellite.

TBC lost out partly because the British government didn't approve of an ad agency being included, sources say, and because TBC insisted on an entirely advertising-financed service without a pay TV channel.

Rod Allen, controller of corporate development at TBC member London Weekend Television, said TBC is negotiating an English-language channel on Astra, a Luxembourg-based satellite project now scheduled to launch in October.

Unlike other DBS ventures, Astra will launch a medium-power satellite that requires a dish of up to 24 inches but can accommodate 16 channels and cover most of Europe. Astra's strategy is to sign up both U.K.-oriented channels like TBC and would-be pan-European satellite channels frustrated by the limits of cable TV.

Rupert Murdoch plans to take up to three of Astra's 16 channels and is considering launching a pan-European satellite news channel and forming a European sports channel called Eurosport. He would also move Sky Channel, a general-entertainment channel, to Astra.

Astra already is lobbying manufacturers to start producing $500 satellite dishes and started an information campaign last month for retailers with the theme "Entertainment from the skies. Coming soon."

Manufacturers interested in producing Astra dishes include NEC, N.V. Philips, Sony and Thomson, said Astra Marketing Director Carlo Rock.#

ANY GOOD JUDGE OF ADVERTISING WILL TEAR THIS AD APART.

It's the easiest way to reserve seats to see comedian Jay Leno host the Advertising Age Awards Dinner Tuesday, April 26, 1988 at the Chicago Hilton and Towers. Benefitting the Museum of Broadcast Communications. Reception 5:30. Dinner 6:30. Show 8:00-10:00. Black-tie optional. For information: (312) 649-5205.

☐ My guests and I wish to attend the special VIP reception with Jay Leno, dinner and the awards show. Please reserve ____ table(s) of ten at $2250, or ____ ticket(s) at $225.

☐ My guests and I do not wish to attend the special VIP reception with Jay Leno. Instead we wish to attend the general cocktail party, dinner and the awards show. Please reserve ____ table(s) of ten at $1750, or ____ ticket(s) at $175.

Name
Title
Agency or Company
Address
Phone
Enclosed is my check for $

Please make check out to Advertising Age Awards Dinner and mail to: Advertising Age Awards Dinner, Attn: Reservations, 740 N. Rush St., Chicago, IL 60611. Contributions are tax deductible to the extent allowed by law. Reservations deadline: April 21, 1988. Reservations received after April 14 will be held at the door.

Rodale, Lipton join forces

EMMAUS, PA.—Rodale Press has signed a contract with Thomas J. Lipton Inc. to produce a magazine series.

The magazine will be aimed at working parents of "latchkey" children, who are alone at home after school.

The magazine will be called Kidsmarts. It will be distributed through direct-response coupons on Lipton ads in major magazines.#

By Bob Garfield

Ad Review

Wrigley spot is like way off base, man

(Rating: ★ ½)

Imagine this: The kids are down in the basement listening to records, dancing and whatever. It's a cellar full of 15-year-olds and down the steps comes Dad. He's wearing a Spuds MacKenzie T-shirt, untied Air Jordans and jams.

The stereo is blaring with the latest from The Cure. Dad starts snapping his fingers to it, beatnik style. Then he screams to his daughter, "Dig it, Jennifer. This is like totally rad!"

Little Jennifer just wants to die, right there next to the pingpong table, and can you blame her? Is there anything quite as horrifying as an adult straining to communicate with teenagers on their level?

There is not. Dad may be sweetly trying to relate to Jennifer, but he's only shaming her—and maybe worse.

Maybe her humiliation turns to loathing, of her father, of herself and of her miserable adolescent lot in life. Maybe Jennifer decides at that very minute to Just Say Yes.

Let's hope not. Instead, let's think about chewing gum. Not long ago, in Chicago, some advertising and marketing executives sat plotting how to pitch their brand of chewing gum to kids.

The client was Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co., the ad agency was BBDO and the product was Wrigley Spearmint gum. Now, I wasn't at this meeting, but I have a notion as to what went on. The executives, to paraphrase Holden Caulfield, started relating like mad.

"We have to talk to the kids."

"Right, we have to speak to them. On their level."

"In terms they can understand. What do the young kids think about these days?"

"Sex. [laughter] Ha, ha, ha. But we can't do a commercial about young people teasing one another with sex."

"No that would be out of the question. Doublemint does that."

"Well, my youngster's into computers. Isn't that how they put it—'into'?"

"10-4, good buddy. Hackers are in the groove, like in that movie 'War Games.' Maybe we could do a commercial involving computers."

Like many a U.S. teen-ager, this young man likes his personal computer. He also likes his Wrigley's Spearmint gum—but what does one have to do with the other?

And a concept was born—to the chagrin, no doubt, of every fine young person in America. The new Wrigley's Spearmint campaign does for chewing gum what Dad did for Jennifer, and the results are just as embarrassing.

A commercial apparently designed to appeal to a youthful audience is so laughably, clumsily, grown-uply unhip that it's likely to send teen-agers scrambling wildly for Bubblicious.

The spot shows a good-looking, beach-boy type kid in a nice button-down shirt, seated at his home computer. As the commercial begins, he has decided to have a stick of gum.

"Time to relax," he says. "Definitely time for some Wrigley's Spearmint gum!"

As you know, chewing-gum advertising is a separate reality. It occurs in a parallel universe where people publicly disclose their intention to chew, display gum packs impossibly between thumb and forefinger and insert the gum so deliberately that it never even touches their lips.

Then they raise their eyebrows and cock their head funny, as if they'd never before encountered the chewing-gum experience.

So convention has prepared us to accept a teen-ager talking to himself about gum consumption. It does not, however, prepare us for what follows. See, the computer talks back.

"Wrigley's Spearmint?" its says, while simultaneously transcribing the words on the monitor. "What is 'Wrigley's Spearmint'?"

And thus the commercial proceeds, a boy and his computer talking about chewing gum. A foolish premise, poorly executed.

There is, of course, nothing wrong with seizing upon a bona fide cultural trend for use in advertising. And the computer revolution is certainly a bona fide trend. Indeed, Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. (via J. Walter Thompson USA, Chicago) has seized on it quite smartly, by simply using an on-screen personal computer to list the routine product-superiority claims real-life agents have been boring you with for years. Forget garbage in/-garbage out; the computer lends authority to the claims.

The Wrigley's computer, on the other hand, is just a stupid cliche. It trades not on the growing ubiquity of home computers but on a quickly fading gee-whiz quality—and even that isn't capitalized on, because the technical aspects of the spot are so dated.

For instance, the on-screen display is done in a typeface you see on checks and deposit slips. Yes, that typeface is nominally computer-related, but it has nothing to do with screen displays.

What we have here is a visual malapropism. What we have here is a Spuds MacKenzie T-shirt on a 47-year-old man.#

The rating system uses four stars to represent excellent, three for notable, two for mediocre and one for pathetic.

European cars

(Continued from Page 3)

event that affected the one segment that has been isolated from any downturns for more than a decade," said Raymond Ketchledge, president of Austin Rover Cars of North America, which markets the British-built Sterling.

"The market crash probably made buyers more sensitive to the price increases," said Anthony Kirton, director-marketing for Volkswagen of America's Audi of America subsidiary.

The auto industry as a whole has defied predictions that the market dive would cripple it. Overall sales for cars and light-duty trucks were up more than 17% to 2.38 million for the first two months of 1988 compared with a year earlier, according to Automotive News figures.

During the same two months, almost every upscale European nameplate suffered decreased sales.

Volvo dropped 26.9% to 15,830 cars sold; Mercedes-Benz fell 17.5% to 11,699; BMW declined 10.5% to 10,359; Saab sagged 16.6% to 5,795; Audi was off 15.1% to 3,431; Porsche plunged 26.4% to 2,554; Alfa Romeo was down 30.5% to 763; and Peugeot plummeted 56.1% to 684.

The gainers were scarce. Jaguar improved 1.8% to 2,568 and low-volume marketer Maserati was up 16% to 145. Sterling sales were up 103% to 2,117, but that brand wasn't introduced until February 1987.

BMW's Mr. Jackling said luxury performance cars hit their peak with sales of 1.38 million in 1986, fell 13% in 1987 and are expected to drop 8.3% to about 1.1 million this year.

He expects a recovery in the 1990s. "The demographics are shifting unerringly in favor of the luxury market," he said, referring to baby-boomers reaching peak earning years.

But by then, there will be more competition than ever. American Honda Motor Co.'s Acura Legend line is building momentum, showing a 118% sales increase in the first two months of the year. Toyota Motor Sales USA and Nissan Motor Corp. USA will join the fray with their new upscale divisions in late 1989.

Ford Motor Co.'s Lincoln Continental and Chrysler Corp.'s Eagle Premier are bidding to compete with the lower-price upscale Europeans. Both were introduced in December.

Also, Ford has its imported-from-Germany Merkur line, and Chrysler is getting ready to launch a two-seater coupe made by Maserati.

The heated competition is producing new strategies, such as Volvo Cars of North America offering 10-year car loans through Chase Manhattan Bank (AA, Feb. 1).

The Volvo plan is aimed not only at attracting new buyers but also at encouraging buyers to move up to the more expensive models in the lineup.

Most of the upscale Europeans are offering incentives to their dealers and occasionally are offering direct consumer incentives on a strategic basis.

Soaring European car prices

	% price increase
Mercedes-Benz 560 SEC coupe 1986 model year beginning price: $58,700 Current price: $77,065 (effective April 18)	31.3%
BMW 325 two-door sedan 1986 model year beginning price: $19,560 Current price: $24,350	24.5%
Volvo 740 turbo sedan 1986 model year beginning price: $20,220 Current price: $24,525	21.3%
Porsche 944 turbo 1986 model year beginning price: $29,500 Current price: $39,765	34.8%

Sources: Automotive News and auto marketers.

Peugeot Motors of America is offering $3,000 bonus trade-in allowances toward a new 505 sedan or station wagon to shore up lackluster sales until the French importer launches its new 405 models this summer.

BMW is offering 6.9% financing on its 5-series cars to clear inventory before introducing a replacement later this year. The company also is introducing more $50,000-plus models, with the richer mix making up for declining volume.

Audi is guaranteeing the resale value of all its 1988 models. A new ad campaign, breaking in April, will "address more directly the issues of quality and safety," Mr. Kirton said.

The carmaker's sales slump began in November 1986 when CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" aired a segment on alleged problems of sudden acceleration in model 5000 sedans with automatic transmissions.

Mr. Kirton said Audi had no plans to drop DDB Needham Worldwide, Chicago and Troy, Mich., which also handles Volkswagen brand advertising in the U.S.

But that hasn't deterred industry speculation that Audi's new chief, Volkswagen VP Richard Mugg, might cast the agency as scapegoat to give disgruntled dealers the impression he's shaking up things.

Maserati Automobiles changed agencies last week, naming the Martin Agency, Richmond, Va., to replace Mullen Advertising, South Hamilton, Mass., on its $2 million-plus account. Martin's first Maserati work will break in June magazines.

Mr. Jackling of BMW said technological distinctions between cars are being blurred. "Quality-of-ownership" factors, such as post-purchase service, will become increasingly important in determining winners and losers, he said.

"If the segment goes down, it will not go down equally for everybody," Mr. Jackling predicted.#

Index to Advertisers

AD/SAT, Inc.	67
Advertising Age	52/53,56,57,60E,71,74
Aladdin Litho	59
Alynn Neckwear	74
American Bar Association Journal	60W
American Slide-Chart	4
Association of National Advertisers Inc.	66
Balan Printing, Inc.	60E
Barron's	S-3
Beemak Plastics	56
Bergen Record	30
Buffalo News	68
Ceppos Consultants	26
Colonial Homes	31
Cooking Light	19
Crain Books	69
Crain's Detroit Business	51
Cycle-Sat	58/59
Directory Technologies, Inc.	32
Donnelley Marketing	13,14/15
Eastern Marketing Golf Association	60E
El Miami Herald	S-4
Fairfield County Quality Dailies	S-10
Fortune	25
Game Show Placement, Ltd.	28
Gentlemen's Quarterly	41
George Rice & Sons	S-5/S-6,70
Hearst Corporation	11
IAA World Congress	45
Insight Magazine	S-9
Jagoda Associates, Don	68
John Noble Advertising, Inc.	63
Jordan, Will	70
Kane, Bortree & Associates, Inc.	83
Leading National Advertisers	49
Lears	S-13
Los Angeles Times	47
Marden-Kane, Inc.	56
McGraw-Hill	12
Microbase Software, Inc.	20
Modern Maturity	17
Motor Boating & Sailing	88
Name Works, The	32
National Geographic Society	9,33-36
National Law Journal, The	S-8
New York Times	22/23
Newport Concepts, Inc.	60W
One-On-One Marketing	26
Orange County Register Metrogroup, The	28,66
Penton	44
Performance Marketing	28
Playboy	21
Premium Channels Publishing Company Inc.	S-10
Reader's Digest	54/55
Road & Track	39
San Francisco Newspaper Agency	S-2
Sassy Magazine	65
Schoenfeld, Chapman & Pearl Inc.	4
Shape Magazine	10
Spectrum	43
Symphony Network, The	S-8
TV Guide	87
Tucker, Inc., Larry	26,56
University Microfilms International	28
W Magazine	S-11
Walker Research, Inc.	32
Wall Street Journal	5,6/7
Whittle Communications	27,29
Yellow Pages Hotline	66
Young & Rubicam	85

NEWSPAPER

3/30/88

C 2710-1

© Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications Inc. All rights reserved.

$2.00 a copy; $64 a year

March 28, 1988

*3-DIGIT 200
0201909649 AA00 8813 COMP 122
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing. In Two Sections. Section 1.

Sorrell-Lord battle may push IBM out

By JON LAFAYETTE

NEW YORK—In this fight, there are no winners.

As Martin Sorrell and Richard Lord prepare to do battle in court today, the smart money is betting that the prize $125 million IBM Corp. account probably won't end up in either camp.

The reason is a scorched-earth policy being followed by both WPP Group's group chief executive and the former chairman of Lord, Geller, Federico, Einstein that threatens to destroy the environment to such an extent that conservative IBM ends up walking away from any agency associated with them.

Knowledgeable sources here believe IBM eventually will leave LGFE and also spurn the newly formed breakaway shop, Lord, Einstein, O'Neill & Partners, backed by Young & Rubicam.

This speculation is rampant despite the fact that IBM, comprising as much as 60% of LGFE's total billings, said late last week that its account isn't up for review. But, an IBM spokesman said, the company won't speculate on the future.

Where could IBM go if these forecasts become a reality? It could turn to Saatchi & Saatchi Advertising or DDB Needham Worldwide, each already handling pieces of the computer marketer's business in various parts of the world.

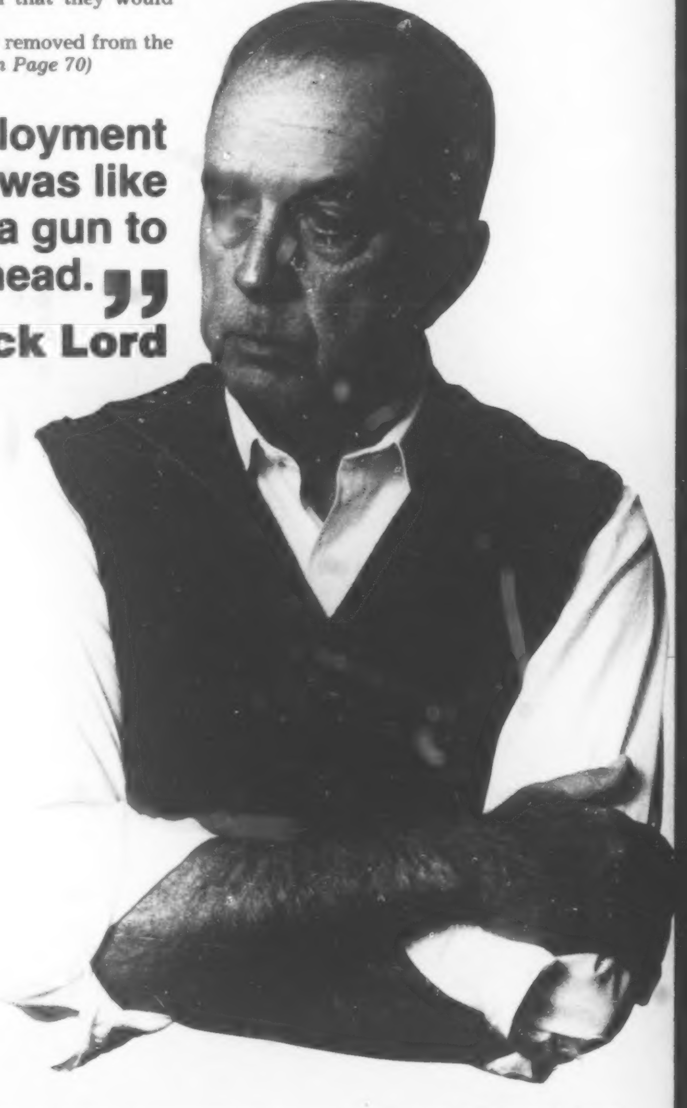
Executives at both agencies expressed hope that IBM would review its business and that they would be included.

DDB Needham was removed from the

(Continued on Page 70)

“(The employment contract) was like he put a gun to our head.”

Dick Lord



“I hate failure and I don't want to fail now.”

Martin Sorrell

Inside:
Sorrell takes heat for LGFE problems. P. 2
What WPP says, and Y&R's answer. P. 72-73
More on breakaway: P. 2, 69, 70, 72, 73, 74

Last Minute News

Coleco consolidates account

WEST HARTFORD, CONN.—Coleco has consolidated its $45 million account at Scott Lancaster Mills Atha, Los Angeles, dropping Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York. BJK&E had handled about 60% of the business, including the Selchow & Righter division and Cabbage Patch Kids.

O&M takes Kelly honor

NEW YORK—Ogilvy & Mather last week won the Magazine Publishers of America's 1987 Stephen E. Kelly print advertising award. O&M

(Continued on Page 8)

AGENCY BREAKAWAY

Admen blame Sorrell's style

By SCOTT HUME
and JON LAFAYETTE

Chief executives at major agencies nationwide say they've seen nothing like it before.

By that they mean not only the continuing drama that has followed WPP Group's unfriendly takeover of JWT Group, which escalated into the recent defections from Lord, Geller, Federico, Einstein, but also the apparent lack of management skills exhibited by WPP Group Chief Executive Martin Sorrell in dealing with the acquired people and businesses.

An ADVERTISING AGE spot check of agency executives shows that, from their experiences in acquiring ad agencies, they believe Mr. Sorrell has gone about the task all wrong and that he has consistently shot himself in both feet.

The sensitivity to the nature of the people who build ad agencies appears to have been missing. The vital communication between parties seems to have broken down, if it ever was established from the start.

For those and other reasons, these executives evidenced little fear that their own organizations might now be prey to similar mass defections from subsidiary agencies.

"I think people who are experienced in acquisitions understand that you can buy a business, but you can't buy employees' loyalty," said Abbott Jones, president of Foote, Cone & Belding Communications, Chicago.

Gaining that loyalty from the principals and employees of acquired companies, and "doing so on a person-to-person basis," has to follow an acquisition, he said.

> "You can't buy employees' loyalty."

That doesn't appear to have happened with Mr. Sorrell and the top executives at LGFE.

"We've been through enough [agency acquisitions] to know when they're right and when they're not," Mr. Jones said. "The Saatchis have done some good and successful deals with a willingness to talk through potential problems. The key, and I think WCRS has shown in its acquisitions that it understands it, is to understand what a strong desire for autonomy agency people have.

"If you take managers for granted, you're going to be disappointed, and you're going to end up paying again sooner or later."

Like other top agency executives, Phil Geier, chairman-ceo of Interpublic Group of Cos., New York, said he isn't worried that the seeds of revolt similar to the Lord Geller example exist in the Interpublic empire.

"We believe we have incentives in place, a way for my people to make reasonably good money if they perform," Mr. Geier said.'

Despite his recent admission that conflicts with BBDO Worldwide and DDB Needham Worldwide may have stifled the growth of some of the smaller agencies within Omnicom Group (AA, March 21), President-CEO Allen Rosenshine said "the problem Martin Sorrell is having with Lord Geller is the kind of problem I hope I do not have," and he sees no likelihood of it becoming his problem.

"I'm personally not alarmed. We maintain open and frank discussions when Omnicom companies have problems of this nature," Mr.

(Continued on Page 73)

Highlights

NEWS

4 Sears name takes back seat
To woo more upscale customers, Sears, Roebuck & Co. may drop its name from several new ventures.

6 Dems challenge FTC
Democrats are preparing to battle over the Reagan administration's record in advertising regulation.

12 Just what the doctor ordered
Food marketers are finding that the way to a consumer's heart may be through a doctor's recommendation.

24 New industry hot spot
Research departments are coming of age with expanded, more creative roles in agencies.

28 Popeyes pecking away
Popeyes Famous Fried Chicken hopes to ruffle the feathers of its nearest competitor.

30 Now that's Italian
Sanwa Foods is turning Italian with a line of Prestissimo instant meals.

48 Retailers boost Philly
Top-notch retailers are strengthening Philadelphia's reputation as an attractive retailing center.

59 K mart, Wendy's drop test
While Sears and McDonald's hook up, K mart is quietly bowing out of joint eatery with Wendy's.

67 Dole ahead of the PACs
Sen. Robert Dole is leading his rivals with major consumer-goods marketers.

68 Della Femina snares Belding prize
Della Femina, Travisano & Partners outruns Chiat/Day for the Belding Awards grand prize.

INTERNATIONAL

33 Foreign spending zooms
Despite reverberations from last fall's global stock market dive, foreign ad spending growth will continue to outpace U.S. growth in 1988, according to industry analysts and ad executives.

CERVEZA DE BARRIL
CON ALGO EXTRA.

PERSPECTIVAS: Coors breaks new campaign. P. 52.

SPECIAL REPORT: Toiletries and beauty aids marketing starts after P. 40.

Departments

Beyond Advertising 46
Brady 42
Brady's Bunch 68
Calendar 62
Classifieds 63
Editorials 16
For the Record 69
Forum 18
Garfield 44
Global Gallery 36
Letters 20
MediaWorks 56
Newhoff 46
Observing 46
People 61
PeopleWorks 60
Photo Review 54
Slices 44
The Next Trend 42
Words 44

Vol. 59, No. 13—ADVERTISING AGE (ISSN 0001-8899) is published weekly except semiweekly the fourth week in March and the fourth week in September at 740 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611-2590. Second-class postage paid at Chicago and additional mailing offices. Send address changes to ADVERTISING AGE, Circulation Department, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207. $2.00 a copy, $64 a year, $109 two years. Add $104 per year for air delivery to Europe & Middle East. Add $49 for surface mail to all other foreign countries. WILLIAM STRONG, VP-circulation; JOHN HUFFMAN, fulfillment director; DAVE KELLEY, circulation manager. Four weeks' notice required for change of address. Address all subscription correspondence to Circulation Department, Advertising Age, 965 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Mich. 48207 1-800-992-9970. Microfilm copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48103. Microfiche copies are available from Bell & Howell, Micro Photo Division, Old Mansfield Rd., Wooster, O. 44691. AD AGE is available for electronic retrieval on the NEXIS® Service, Mead Data Central, Inc., P.O. Box 933, Dayton, O. 45402 (800 227-4908).

Lessons from Duane Jones

By FRED DANZIG

"We've got an office, a telephone and no clients."

A variation on this theme, usually composed by attorneys to protect clients from litigation after they've opened a breakaway agency, turned up the other day when Dick Lord, Arthur Einstein, Kevin O'Neill and other associates left Lord, Geller, Federico, Einstein to start a new agency, Lord, Einstein, O'Neill & Partners.

Yankelovich battle rages—P. 69

The phrase became part of "Agencyspeak" in 1952, after Duane Jones won his "account piracy" case against former executives. Until then, agency spinoffs were part of the landscape. Back in 1940, Ted Bates could leave Benton & Bowles with two B&B accounts, Colgate-Palmolive Co. and Continental Baking Co., and suffer no legal repercussions.

But agency owner Duane Jones behaved differently. An alcoholic, he might have been considered easy pickings. Yet when a cadre of his executives left Duane Jones Co. with his accounts and opened a new agency—Scheideler, Beck & Werner—he fought back, saying, "You can't take a drunk out, get him inebriated and then pick his pocket."

He filed a conspiracy-to-ruin suit against his former employees and, in so doing, changed the way breakaways were choreographed. The case didn't stop them, just changed the rules.

Following a jury trial, Mr. Jones won. Although he sued for $4.5 million and was awarded $300,000, he felt vindicated.

His landmark case taught people that they had to be extremely careful about how they planned their breakaways. No paper trail. Never talk about it in the office during working hours. Don't use the com-

(Continued on Page 73)

Important impact expected

Top law firms join struggle

By IRA TEINOWITZ

WPP Group's legal wrangling with the Lord, Geller, Federico, Einstein defectors will pit one of the nation's toughest takeover law firms against one of New York's leading advertising law firms.

At the center are two key issues: the status of employment restrictions and whether the six executives who left breached their responsibilities and hindered Lord Geller before leaving.

Lawyers familiar with the issues say it will have important ramifications. A 1953 decision by a New York state appellate court against nine agency officials who left the old Duane Jones Co. agency is still cited even in non-advertising cases when management people leave a company.

"It is going to be fun to watch," said Steven Brill, editor of American Lawyer and Manhattan Lawyer.

Lord Geller and the Owl Group (the corporation WPP set up in the U.S. last year to acquire JWT Group) are being represented by Davis & Gilbert. The small firm often represents ad agencies, but more often on contract and copyright issues, according to some lawyers familiar with the firm.

Excerpts of WPP lawsuit and reprint of alleged memo—P. 72

Representing breakaway agency Lord, Einstein, O'Neill & Partners is Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom, New York's largest law firm and one widely known for its work

(Continued on Page 69)

Olympics win in ad recall

Political advertising also draws attention

By SCOTT HUME

Apple, Coors, E&J Gallo, K mart and Toyota had something in common last month.

They were among the many advertisers whose messages got lower unaided recall than did political advertising, which ranked 10th in last month's adWatch survey of advertising awareness.

Not surprisingly, political advertising got its best recall in south central states, which were deluged with images of smiling politicians before the Super Tuesday primaries March 8.

It's also not surprising that some of the other best-recalled advertisers in February were among the sponsors of ABC-TV's coverage of the Winter Olympics.

Coca-Cola Co., the sole soft-drink sponsor during the broadcasts, was last month's best-recalled advertiser. Olympics-themed advertising from McCann-Erickson and Lintas:New York put the company on top of the pile for the first time since June.

Also during the Games, DDB Needham Worldwide, Chicago, had people wondering, "How'd they do that?" when it put Spuds MacKenzie on skis in one of its Olympics spots for Bud Light.

Anheuser-Busch's Budweiser/Bud Light tandem kept its No. 4 spot among the best-recalled ads.

Miller Brewing Co., the official sponsor not of the Games but of the U.S. Olympic Training Center, saw its unaided recall drop a bit, falling from seventh in January to ninth in February.

While Olympics sponsors Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp.—which together spent about $50 million during the Games (AA, Jan. 18)—both made last month's top 10, non-sponsor Chevrolet's "Heartbeat of America" campaign still placed ahead of both.

And Pepsi-Cola Co. didn't advertise on the Olympics but still managed to climb a notch to No. 5.

The California Raisin Advisory Board's dancing raisins held onto the No. 2 spot in unaided recall without the expense of Olympic sponsorship.

McDonald's Corp. was an Olympic sponsor, yet it suffered the largest decline among advertisers represented in the top 10 in January and February, dropping from No. 1 to No. 6.

Was it the result of "ambush marketing" by Wendy's International, which was a broadcast sponsor but not an official sponsor of the Games?

Wendy's didn't crack the top 10 in recall, but it came close, tying for 12th.

Recall of Wendy's advertising also perked up a bit when respondents were asked to recall the first fast-food advertising that came to mind. McDonald's, of course, was No. 1 with 43.5% of first mentions (vs. 44.3% in January); Burger King Corp. got 13.3% (vs. 12.8%); and Wendy's was third with 9% (up from 6.3% the previous month).

In the wine category, responses showed there's life left in Gallo's Frank Bartles and Ed Jaymes—and Hal Riney & Partners' creative. The addition of new flavors and advertising nearly doubled Bartles & Jaymes Premium Wine Cooler's share of first mentions in the category. The two gents came to mind first for 10.5% of the sample, vs. 5.4% in January.

That was almost good enough to surpass E&J Gallo Winery's wines, which placed No. 1 with 11.1% of first mentions. Banfi Vintners' Riunite was third with 5.8%.

AdWatch is a joint project of Advertising Age and SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb. Advertising awareness is measured by asking a nationally projectable sample to name the first advertising that comes to mind from all seen, heard or read in the previous 30 days.

In February, 1,000 adults were polled by telephone.#

For more information or data, contact SRI Research Center, 301 S. 68th St., Lincoln, Neb. 68506. Phone: (402) 489-0351.

AdWatch survey of advertising awareness Top 10 in February

One thousand people were asked: Of all the advertising you have seen, heard or read in the past 30 days, which advertisement first comes to mind? Source: SRI Research Center, Lincoln, Neb.

Rank 2/88	1/88	Advertiser	Agency
1	7*	Coca-Cola	McCann-Erickson
2	2	California raisins	Foote, Cone & Belding
3	5*	Chevrolet	Lintas:Campbell-Ewald
4	4	Budweiser/Bud Light	D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles/DDB Needham
5	5*	Pepsi-Cola	BBDO Worldwide
6	1	McDonald's	Leo Burnett USA
7	10	Chrysler	Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt
8	3	Ford	J. Walter Thompson USA
9	7*	Miller/Miller Lite	J. Walter Thompson USA/Backer Spielvogel Bates
10	—	Political ads	Various

* indicates a tie

New ventures could use other names

Sears may go incognito

By KATE FITZGERALD

As part of its continuing effort to woo more upscale customers, Sears, Roebuck & Co. may drop its name from several new ventures.

Sears is considering downplaying or omitting its name in some soft-goods areas, say sources close to the company, and may do the same thing in developing standalone stores that sell specialty apparel or other merchandise.

While the Sears name remains a strong force in selling hard goods, the company has learned its name is a turnoff on apparel catalogs aimed at higher-income customers. As a result, these sources say, Sears is looking at going incognito in some new catalogs.

Sears would be following a trend other retailers have pursued successfully. So far, Sears has been slow to adopt this strategy. It has already launched two new catalogs targeting specific audiences; both include the Sears name. "Changes" is a sportswear catalog for women, and "American Tradition" is aimed at young men.

A Sears spokesman declined to elaborate on plans for targeted catalogs or to say whether the Sears name will be included on them.

But more breaks with tradition lurk ahead, observers say, as Sears follows through with its vow to overhaul its underperforming merchandise group (AA, March 14).

Last week, Sears finalized its merger with Western Auto Supply Co. to beef up its earnings in one of its healthiest hard-goods categories—auto service centers.

With the combination of Sears' 800 automotive centers, Western Auto's 278 company-owned parts stores and its 1,570 franchised outlets, Sears ranks second in the rapidly consolidating auto parts industry, said John Wirebach, news editor at Automotive Marketing.

Western Auto will continue to operate under its own name, as have two other Sears acquisitions: Pinstripes Petites and Eye Care Centers of America.

Sears' new merchandising strategy will be implemented by Matthew Howard, 47, who was named exec VP-merchandising, succeeding Joseph H. Batogowski, 48, who abruptly resigned March 18. He had been VP-home appliances and home entertainment.

Sears also appointed Jane Johnson Thompson, formerly a partner with McKinsey & Co., Chicago, VP-strategic planning in the specialty merchandising division, a newly created post.

Sears spokesmen said the company's joint marketing plans with Walt Disney Co. and McDonald's Corp. will continue as scheduled; Mr. Batogowski is credited with bringing about those deals.

However, some of the developments Mr. Batogowski earlier had discussed, including a Disney merchandise catalog and Disney boutiques within Sears stores, have been shelved for now, said Jim Podany, director of marketing communications.#

WHO PUT A CHERRY IN 7 UP?

The same techniques that helped develop new Cherry 7 UP created the Magic Mushroom for Airwick, Bacardi's Frozen Mixers, Glass Works for S.O.S, Sunkist Vitamin C Tablets, put Baking Soda in more than 30 million refrigerators...can spell success for you.

Why is 70% of all our business repeat business?

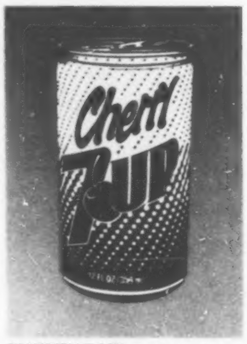
- Our success rate;
- We're sensitive to your needs.



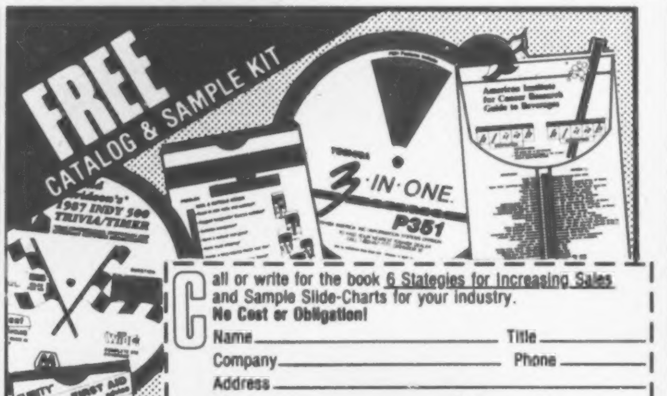
CHERRY 7 UP: The first soft drink of its kind...lets the real cherry come through.

We offer three different new product or re-staging programs. One is ideal for your needs.

To find out more, call or write Sonia Kallen (914) 631-8800. 55 South Broadway, Tarrytown, NY 10591.

Schoenfeld, Chapman & Pearl Inc.

New Products/Brand Leveraging Consultants



Call or write for the book 6 Stategies for Increasing Sales and Sample Slide-Charts for your industry.
No Cost or Obligation!
Name ______ Title ______
Company ______ Phone ______
Address ______
City ______ State ____ Zip ______

312/665-3333
800/323-4433
(outside IL)

AMERICAN Slide-Chart

P.O. Box 111
Wheaton, IL 60189

Advertising Age
U.S. ADVERTISING AGENCY PROFILES
1988 Edition

Keep your eyes open for Ad Age's Agency Income Report March 30.

Strong spending

Foreign ad budgets again beat U.S.

An Advertising Age roundup

Despite reverberations from last fall's global stock market dive, foreign ad spending growth will continue to outpace U.S. growth in 1988, say industry analysts and ad executives.

The plunge seems to have left ad budgets in Canada and Western Europe unscathed, though spending in Australia is stagnating. High inflation and domestic problems in Israel, Latin America and South Africa will prevent 1988 from being a banner year, according to ADVERTISING AGE's latest twice-yearly survey.

"I don't think Europe or Asia was as devastated by the stock market plunge as we were," said John Eger, president, Worldwide Media Group, a New York-based consultancy.

Because the crash created "psychological uncertainty," U.S. ad budgets will be sluggish, said Robert Coen, senior VP-director of forecasting, McCann-Erickson. Domestically, positive factors will be the upcoming elections and the Olympics, he said.

In 1988, Mr. Coen expects foreign spending to hit $103.7 billion, a 12% increase over 1987. Domestically, he predicts a 9% increase to $119.7 billion. Ad spending worldwide will be at $223.4 billion, a 10% increase, he said.

However, Mr. Coen bases his figures in dollars and includes inflation, while AA's survey is based in local currency and filters out inflation; therefore, percentage increases or decreases rather than revenue figures are used.

"Internationally, we're looking at a very good year," said Murray Smith, president-international, Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt. "I don't see any signs of slippage anywhere except maybe in Mexico."

Western Europe

Most executives cite the growing privatization of TV as a major factor in Western European growth.

"There will be increased experimentation with private TV channels, and nations are opening up state-run channels," Mr. Eger said.

Mr. Smith agreed: "Markets where we'll see tremendous growth are Italy because of commercial TV and Spain and Portugal due to privatization."

Ad spending in Italy jumped 17% last year, and advertisers project a similar increase for 1988. Ugo Castellano, chairman, Young & Rubicam Italia, Milan, attributes last year's increase to continued developments in commercial TV and the comeback of the press with the launch of more than 70 magazines in the past two years.

In reaction to the recent stock market crisis, ad industry sources in Italy predict a 40%-to-50% increase in financial advertising for 1988. "The financial sector must counteract the effects of the negative trend, reassure the investor turned cautious," Mr. Castellano said.

Last year will go down as a record year in the history of Spanish advertising, which saw spectacular growth of 24.9%, though slightly less than the 32% increase predicted. Antonio Jordan, president of the Spanish Associatio Advertising Agencies, Madrid, expects a 15%-to-20% increase in ad spending this year, while Tiempo/BBDO CEO Xavier Oliver predicts a more conservative 12% growth rate.

Banks and insurance companies were very active in Spain last year, advertising many new financial products even after "Black Monday," Oct. 19.

Advertising investment in France last year showed a 10% real increase. Forecasters expect another 10% increase in 1988. With elections coming in April, candidates are expected to spend as much as $85 million.

While expenditures are expected to rise in the U.K. this year, agencies and advertisers expect a slower rate of growth than in 1987. Forecasters say total ad spending will rise 5%, compared with an 8% increase in 1987.

"We are entering a period of steady decline, with the 1989 rise in spending likely to be even lower than this year's," said Mike Waterson, research director of the Advertising Association, London.

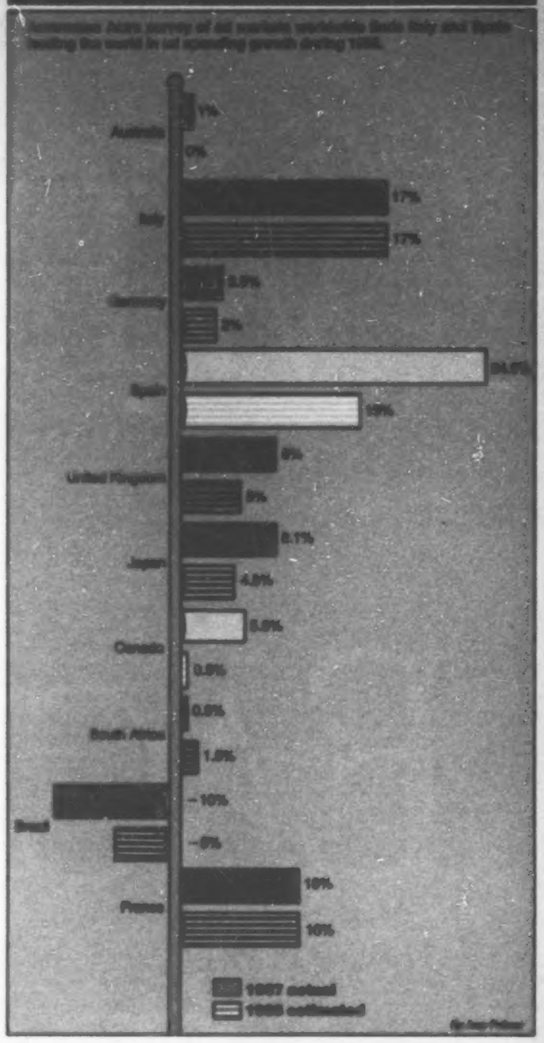
In West Germany, ad agencies look back at a relatively good year. Volker Nickel, ZAW-German Advertising Association, Bonn, said the 1987 increase is believed to be 3.5% in real terms, while the increase for this year is projected to be 3%.

Latin and South America

A question mark hangs over the market in Mexico this year as the government struggles to rein in inflation, which hit 159% last year and could rage at 150% this year. With wage and price controls in place, most advertising executives see a decline in real terms although no one is willing to put a num-

(Continued on Page 57)

Worldwide ad spending growth



Bic fires up pocket perfume market

By ANIKA MICHALOWSKI

PARIS—Bic Corp. is entering a whole new field by adding perfume to its line of convenient pocket items.

The company that sells disposable cigarette lighters, pens and razors is launching Parfum Bic No. 1, a low-price fragrance packaged like a cigarette lighter, in Europe and possibly the U.S.

Bic is entering the mass perfume market because "it's a completely virgin sector and has not been pre-empted by any major companies," a spokeswoman said. She noted that Bic can offer "top quality at competitive prices."

The company believes the portable perfume can take advantage of Bic's expertise in portability and disposability of products available at mass-market outlets.

Advertising for the perfume will break in France and Italy next month. The product will be introduced in other European markets and the U.S. if the first two launches succeed, Bic executives said.

Parfum Bic No. 1 is not only a first for Bic but for France. It's also the country's first perfume for the mass market, which is dominated by eau de toilette brands such as L'Oreal's Eau Jeune and Unilever subsidiary Francaise Soins et Parfums' Darling. It's not known whether either of these major marketers will jump into this new segment.

Priced at $3.50 for 7.5 milliliters, Bic perfume is aimed at young, active people who will find it easy to buy and conveniently small to carry. Taking advantage of Bic's well-developed distribution system, the perfume will be sold in convenience stores, drugstores and supermarkets.

The perfume comes in four fragrances: Parfum Bic Jour No. 1, a fruity and flowery fragrance, and Parfum Bic Nuit No. 1, a stronger, more Oriental scent, both for women; Parfum Bic Homme No. 1, made of wood essences, musk and fern, for men; and Parfum Bic Sport No. 1 for both men and women in a sporty, woody fragrance.

Bic wouldn't disclose spending levels, but its commitment to the category is indicated by the investment Bic has made in purchasing factories in France to make the perfume and the dispensers. Bic also went to Firmenich, the fragrance supplier, to create the perfume.

Young & Rubicam here created an animated TV spot emphasizing low price. The spot will break on all six French channels April 1. Bic will tailor marketing to each country.

Jean-Claude Passerin D'Entreves, chairman-ceo of Bic Italy, Milan, said, "In our campaign here we insist on the convenience and the practicability of the Parfum Bic. We don't mention the price too much as the French campaign does."

The new product sells at about 10% the price of other perfumes.

The $2.4 million Italian campaign, via MVC, breaks April 17. The Italian Parfum Bic No. 1 will be aimed at a broader age span than the 13-to-20-year-old consumer targeted in France.#

World News Roundup

(Continued from Page 3)

photography into its major Australian and U.K. newspapers after the purchase last month of a $580 million 39 Newsman offset printing press.

MADRID—The Spanish Ministry of Agriculture awarded its $3.1 million campaign to promote Spanish-made food products to Contrapunto for the third consecutive year.

GOUDA, NETHERLANDS—Austin Rover moved its $3 million car account to Dorland Advertising, Amsterdam, from Ara/BBDO, Rotterdam, as part of its European agency realignment.

MONTREAL—Hitachi Canada moved its $1.6 million account to Prism Communications from Backer Spielvogel Bates.

LONDON—Wella Great Britain introduced Shock Waves Headstrong shampoo, formulated to work on hard-to-remove hair styling gels, with a $1.3 million campaign by Butterfield Day Devito Hockney.

SINGAPORE—The Far Eastern Economic Review received government permission to distribute 1,000 advertising-free copies here. The government cut the weekly's distribution to 500 from nearly 10,000 for what it termed meddling in internal affairs (AA, Feb. 15).

Bozell rises in East

By MAGGIE FOX

HONG KONG—In half a year, Brian Tucker and Michael Holt have doubled Bozell, Jacobs, Kenyon & Eckhardt's staff to 45 and doubled its business to $15 million here.

The two former Foote, Cone & Belding executives—Mr. Tucker was managing director and Mr. Holt was creative director of that agency's office—left to take equity in BJK&E. Competitors predicted staffers and accounts would follow, and they were right.

Now holding the same titles at BJK&E, Messrs. Tucker and Holt, who replaced Joe Wang and Richard Lamb, deny they have raided FCB. The duo and their former employer are careful to speak kindly of each other.

But since their move in August, BJK&E has picked up Hong Kong Electric, Overseas Trust Bank and Sunkist, worth a combined $6 million in billings, from FCB.

Further, the two hired FCB Vice Chairman Karen Loh for the same position at BJK&E, a new post. BJK&E Executive Creative Director Paul Wong and Director of Account Services Gary Tse had been FCB's creative director and senior account director, respectively.

Other agencies have suffered at the hands of the new agency team, too. The $1.5 million Toyota account, as well as the Far Eastern Economic Review and KPS video accounts, moved to BJK&E from Leo Burnett Ltd. and Texas Instruments from McCann-Erickson. Amway, Crown Motors, Eastern Zone Industrial Co., New World International Hotels and two local realty companies also have moved over from various shops.

The new accounts should move BJK&E from No. 15 to about No. 9. Only three accounts, worth $640,000, have left during the same time, Mr. Tucker said.

"We were able to respond to a lot of advertisers who wanted to review their agencies," Mr. Tucker said. "[We] did things backwards and hired a lot of staff upfront."

What attracted the talent, Messrs. Tucker and Holt said, was money and their management style.

"We are a perfect fit," Mr. Holt said. There's what the two call a "seamlessness" at the agency, where all staffers work together on projects. When agencies become departmentalized, staff members lose touch, they said.#

Special Report

Toiletries & Beauty Aids

Fighting for survival in scents game

By Donna R. Italiano

Speaking at a recent Fashion Group meeting in New York, Leonard Lauder, president and ceo of Estee Lauder Inc., recalled the days when the $17 billion cosmetics business was a cottage industry. He told the attendant fashion and beauty industry executives, "We used to meet in the Oak Room at the Plaza for our weekly luncheon and discuss restraint of trade, price, fixturing . . . The FDA was something one thought about in their alphabet soup. It was a very simple industry."

Not anymore. Mergers and acquisitions continue, and successful product launches are no longer made of pie-in-the sky dreams. Mr. Lauder said slow population growth was a factor in the industry's stagnant unit growth. "That means if I want to increase my business, the only way I can do it is for me to take it away from you . . . this leads to the great new pie-cutting contest . . ."

Top fragrance brands in 1987

(U.S. wholesale figures, $ million)

Giorgio (women)	$55
Obsession	40
White Linen	40-42
Opium	38
Oscar de la Renta	34
Youth Dew	34
Passion	30

Source: Prudential-Bache Securities

Yet, purveyors of hope in a jar continue to introduce more new products.

Consider the fragrance category: Last Christmas it enjoyed double-digit sales increases. Heavy fourth quarter spending by the big guns in fragrance marketing, coupled with aggressive in-store activity, helped retailers realize these gains.

Then there's the rest of the year: The fragrance industry is plagued by shrinking margins, sluggish growth and costly battles for market share.

Industry statistics bear this out. According to figures released by Kline & Co., a Fairfield, N.J.-based research company, estimated annual unit growth of total U.S. women's fragrance sales rose slightly more than 1% last

(Continued on Page S-2)

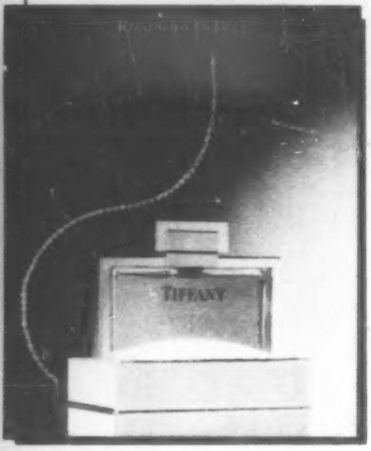
Donna R. Italiano is a New York-based free lance writer and marketing consultant to the beauty industry.

Survival in scents game

(Continued from Page S-1)

year. At best, the category had an estimated 4% to 5% dollar increase in 1987, reaching $2 billion in manufacturer dollars, according to Natalie Salek, a senior consultant at Kline.

Retail figures for 1986 fragrance sales published in Beauty Age magazine's Summer '87 Consumer Expenditure study don't paint a much brighter picture. According to the study, women's fragrance sales reached $3 billion, a mere 0.7% increase from the previous year. Factor in inflation and it was a no-growth year.



Tiffany's elegance and simplicity are evident, as is the omnipresent Blue Box used in the company's other advertising.

According to Annette Green, executive director of the New York-based Fragrance Foundation, at least 20 new scents are expected this year to join the nearly 425 fragrances now in U.S. distribution.

Statistics released by Marketing Intelligence Service, a new-product tracking company in Naples, N.Y., show that 90 new fragrances, including line extensions available through all trade classes, were introduced in 1987, a 20% increase from 1986.

As for 1988, Arie Kopelman, vice chairman and chief operating officer of New York-based Chanel, says, "Competition will intensify. New brands are coming into the market and it is becoming a giant share game." To compete "you have to win early and keep the momentum going," says Mr. Kopelman, whose company is enjoying a resurgence in sales of classic favorites and Coco, which bowed in 1985.

Robin Burns, president of Calvin Klein Cosmetics, marketer of the successful Obsession fragrance, is frank about the odds of survival: "The industry continues to launch new fragrances and approximately 80% of them fail."

Heavy ad spending by major players like Estee Lauder, Cosmair, Revlon, Avon, Calvin Klein, Elizabeth Arden and others, has set a precedent hard to break for those wanting to launch a scent. (The first four control 65% of department-store beauty business.)

"It has become the era of the super launch," says Mr. Lauder. "We all heard that Calvin Klein spent $17 million launching Obsession. We have seen Giorgio do $100 million [in sales] in two to three years . . . There is no time anymore to see if something is going to get consumer acceptance and then build it up and fine-tune it. You either make it or you don't."

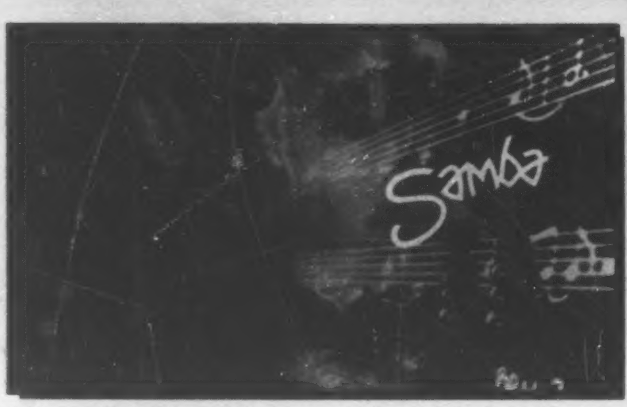
"The stakes are high and will remain high," agrees Ray Baliatico, president of Prince Matchabelli, a division of Greenwich, Conn.-based Chesebrough-Pond's, which launched a $10 million ad/promotion campaign for Elizabeth Taylor's Passion last year. "We will continue to spend to grow the brand," he says. Sales of the fragrance rocketed to $35 million just three months following the launch.

Mr. Baliatico says Passion for Men will debut in spring 1989.

While some industry executives believe the industry will begin to see more balanced spending toward the end of 1988, others think the major players will go all out to match expenditures of previous years. In 1986 alone, $116 million was spent to advertise women's fragrances, according to Leading National Advertisers, New York.

Calvin Klein Cosmetics has scheduled the launch of Eternity to ship to retailers this summer. Ms. Burns won't divulge figures, but sources close to the industry expect spending on Eternity to be close to the $17 million spent launcing Obsession.

"The biggest division in the fragrance category is not the major marketers but the all-other fragrances," says Alexander Koswick, a senior industry consultant. Collectively, he says, this category of brands—smaller individually but a strong market presence as a group—"is proving to be a pretty powerful force in the business." Based on many of the launches slated for 1988—including Carolina Herrara's signature scent, Claude Montana, Gem, Baryshnikov—and last quarter 1987 entries including Animale, Ombre Bleue, Bijan and Samba—the newness in marketing approaches continues to come from this segment of the business.



Perfumers Workshop extends the musical flavor of Samba print ads by also using radio spots.

Gem's print ad uses Lara Naszinski breaking into a museum case for the fragrance.

Ms. Burns maintains that five or six years ago the industry began to see more entrepreneurs re-entering the fragrance industry. "They broke the rules and they broke the jaded sameness," she says.

Some of these new players now entering the market have to map out a survival strategy. "Today, there's no question that stores are demanding more because of the grand spendarama of the big companies and, as a result, many of the smaller marketers cannot effectively compete," says Mr. Koswick.

"But big spending does not guarantee a success. The spendarama is going to get the fragrance marketer in the department store but not going to get him to move goods across the counter."

He strongly advises small companies to forgo the national route in favor of a regional approach. "It takes longer, it takes more patience. But it's the most effective way to be heard through the advertising clutter and stretch your ad dollars."

Many more smaller fragrance companies are opting for a more limited rollout, coupling it with innovative ad campaigns and aggressive in-store activity.

For example, Van Cleef & Arpels' Gem debuted in New York's Bergdorf Goodman in early March. "A selective rollout to six or seven accounts to maximize the build is slated in 1989," says Barbara Gyde, senior VP-marketing of Sanofi Products, the U.S. distributor of Van Cleef & Arpels fragrances.

"Advertising will be equal to 25% of the first year's sales goal," she says. A print ad featuring European ingenue Lara Naszinski breaking into a museum case to seize a bottle of Gem ran in March issues of leading fashion publications and will be featured in future issues of Connoisseur, Harper's Bazaar, House & Garden, Town & Country, Vogue and city and regional publications including New York magazine. Nearly eight million samplers will be distributed during the launch and a direct-response program will complement advertising and sampling.

Donald Bachner, president of Perfumers Workshop, New York, is betting that "extra effective key elements" will make the difference for Samba, introduced in fourth quarter 1987.

Radio advertising, which Mr. Bachner feels the industry underuses, has played a role in Samba's introduction. For the initial rollout in 117 stores, including the Los Angeles, El Paso and New York markets, a catchy in-store video picturing exotic Brazilian samba dancers reinforced the radio message. Samba dancing troupes and sampling by fashion models complete the mood. Print ads will break in July, coinciding with the scent's expansion to 250 more stores this summer.

New York retailer Tiffany & Co. is banking on the return to traditional values, strong name recognition and resurgence in classical tastes to provide impetus for its new Tiffany scent.

Niche marketing is what Tiffany's launch is all about. The company expanded its distribution in eight Tiffany boutiques to six upscale retailers—Nordstrom's, Saks Fifth Avenue, I. Magnin, Neiman-Marcus, M.M.

(Continued on Page S-4)

Price no barrier in fighting age

Well-off older folks (WOOFs) are growing as a major segment of the U.S. population as the graying of America goes on. And those growing numbers are having some impact on the beauty industry: "We are seeing more attractive aging," says Leonard Lauder, president and ceo of Estee Lauder Inc., New York.

According to Natalie Salek, senior consultant at Fairfield, N.J.-based Kline & Co., treatment is one category that exhibits great growth potential in the next five years. "Moisturizers [including single items] showed the most dramatic growth in the $2 billion-plus category."

Figures published in Beauty Age magazine's Summer 1987 Consumer Expenditure Study show skincare sales reached $2.7 billion; the category showed no real growth overall, but the $543 million face lotion/moisturizer segment shot up 5.6%. Ms. Salek predicts the industry can expect close to double-digit growth this year "despite FDA's scrutiny of anti-aging products."

Barbara Landry, an analyst at Morgan Stanley, New York, attributes the growth potential to increasingly better products backed by improved research and development. "The positive side to all this consolidation in the industry is that the big guys offer technological advancements made possible from someone gobbling someone else."

Closer scrutiny of treatment products by the Food & Drug Administration has prompted it to issue stern letters to marketers. Concern has escalated over the thin line that now separates medical from cosmetics claims. In defending their new entries, beauty marketers maintain they are closely adhering to product safety and efficacy standards with greater emphasis on scientific research and product development.

Industry executives would like to see the FDA revise the current regulations. "They were written when the industry knew a lot less about products and ingredients," says James Preston, president and ceo, Beauty Group division of Avon Products, New York.

Last year marked the dramatic shift by many marketers from regimens-only to scientifically advanced single-items supported by heavy national advertising, in-store collateral and attractive packaging. Well-positioned products that can stand alone at retail are gaining favor. When Estee Lauder shipped Eyzone Repair Gel to retailers last year, buyers reported they couldn't keep the single stockkeeping unit in stock.

Christian Dior's Capture, launched last spring, carries a hefty price tag of $65 for its Complexe Liposomes/Anti-Aging Complex. Despite the price, buyers report little resistance at retail.

As always, what is new and exciting in the industry is what the consumer demands. Revlon's Ultima II division began selling its Photoaging Shield last December at Bloomingdale's and expanded to 2,000 doors earlier this year.

Tabor W. Butler, VP-marketing/Ultima II, says this product "deals with prevention whereas other treatment items are focusing on repair and correction." Revlon's new product "helps prevent the most deplorable signs of aging—deep wrinkles, leathery skin and age spots." Support for the new entry includes "compelling print advertising in women's service magazines," Mr. Butler says.

The next step in anti-aging products apparently are color cosmetics that promote the benefits of anti-aging. Whatever shape these products take, industry executives agree women will pay the price to retain their youth.

—Donna R. Italiano

Avon answers calling to higher scent lines

By Roberta Reynes

Avon Products crossed a marketing Rubicon last year, adventuring beyond staid Main Street USA and onto flashy Fifth Avenue.

Almost overnight, Avon became a major factor in the $2 billion retail market for upscale fragrances, industry sources say. Avon is best known for scents and cosmetics marketed door to door.

It signaled its expansion last spring with the retail launch of the Catherine Deneuve fragrance and the acquisition of Giorgio Inc. A few months later, it acquired Parfums Stern, marketer of Perry Ellis for men and Oscar de la Renta, Ruffles and Valentino fragrances for women.

The logic of Avon's move to designer fragrances marketed through department stores isn't hard to follow. Fewer and fewer women are home to answer the Avon lady's ring, and working women have more disposable income than ever. As James Preston, president and ceo of Avon's Beauty Group, points out, "Where else can you find

(Continued on Page S-6)

Roberta Reynes is a New York-based free lance writer.

Scents game

(Continued from Page S-2)

Cohn's and Swanson's—which will showcase the scent exclusively. The fragrance retails for $200 an ounce.

Distribution of scented white bows, sampling, Tiffany's Rhapsody in Blue advertising bearing the company's distinctive blue box with big white ribbon, and exclusive society breakfasts will help Tiffany maintain its exclusive image, says Sue Phillips, VP-director of fragrance.

Can more selective, esoteric fragrances expect to stay in the running as the battle of fragrance market share rages? "Anybody competing with the big guys can expect to get trampled into the ground," says William Shnipper, president of Classic Fragrances, which markets Mila Schon and Jacques Couturier lines. "But if you set your own goals, you can expect to see steady growth each year," he says. "Specialty stores and perfumeries looking for more eclectic offerings opt for lesser-distributed brands." However, he says, marketers have to be prepared to work with these retailers.

"Many of these outlets are not fragrance outlets. They don't have time to create a business." Mr. Shnipper relies on an enormous amount of sampling and high value gift-with-purchase offerings to make the difference.

Dorothy Foster, senior buyer-cosmetics for J.C. Penney Co., New York, is pulling out all stops to reach "the whole cadre of customers who are buying fragrance as a fashion statement" with aggressive activity at point-of-sale.

She believes there is a whole other range of products on the market that may be ready to ignite this year. "There's a real market for environmental fragrances. Lines like Claire Burke and Ben Rickert, make a total statement and have a real message. Christmas Memories, Once Upon a Christmas, Peaches and Dreams, Summer Morning—many of these scents touch a chord in people. They evoke a warm, loving feeling," she says.

Ms. Green agrees. "People are going to stay home more. I think now environmental fragrances are really going to take off. It is happening."

No doubt, as the large fragrance companies grow via the merger and acquisition game in the beauty business, the small entrepreneurs who lost control back in the 1960s have the opportunity to make a showing again if their ideas are fresh, new and exciting and if they are willing to take risks. It is the medium-size companies that will feel the pinch as the industry goes through yet another set of growing pains.

Executives such as Ms. Foster are confident the industry will witness an increase in entrepreneurs with a point of difference. "In six months to a year down the road," she says, "we will see a rise in smaller entrepreneurs with a special niche or reason for being."

SHAPE MAGAZINE HAS SOME GREAT FIGURES

- Like the fact we're embarking upon our seventh year of publication. SHAPE's circulation has been increasing by at least 10% every year.
- That we're now at a 700,000 rate base — all fully paid and ABC audited. SHAPE's a newsstand magazine and doesn't believe in obtaining cut-rate subscribers.
- Our readers have the highest usage figures of shampoos, creme rinses, deodorants and activewear — than the readers of any woman's magazine. And with a median household income of over $34,000, the SHAPE woman also has the money to buy quality — and quantities.
- Intense reader involvement. Our powerful scientific editorial environment has given SHAPE an outstanding 8 days of mean reading time per issue — triple that of any other woman's magazine.
- Pretty nice figures indeed — but you should see the figures we're helping our readers build.

SOURCE: 1987 SMRB

3[illegible]0 N. [illegible]ichigan Ave., 21st Floor, Chic[illegible]
(312) 641-6601

118 Madison Avenue, New York, NY [illegible]
(212) 696-9272

[illegible] Street, Woodland Hills, [illegible] 91367
(818) 715-0630

Avon answers calling

(Continued from Page S-4)

pretax margins in the 13%-to-16% range and return on equity in the high 20s?"

But the challenges are formidable. First, Avon's new competitors are firmly entrenched. The Giorgio and Oscar de la Renta fragrances shared the top rankings list with Estee Lauder and Calvin Klein brands. In contrast to Avon, both are old hands at this fad-driven, trendy business.

Second, with the exception of an occasional hot number like Elizabeth Taylor's Passion, designer fragrances have had flat sales in recent years. Avon's brands are putting in a mixed showing, say analysts. Giorgio's rise was meteoric in the 1984-85 period. But sales have stalled now. Perry Ellis for men is doing very well, but Ellis for women is flat, analysts say.

Third, the style of promotion and advertising in upscale designer brands is very different from Avon's usual efforts. Mystery and fantasy are at a high pitch, and so is the spending.

Not that Avon is starting over. It already spends about $25 million a year to promote its traditional lines, up from a mere $3 million to $5 million early in the decade. And Deneuve, which was introduced through direct response marketing before going retail, won the Fragrance Foundation's "Most Successful Launch" award last year.

Still, the foray into "designer" advertising for Deneuve didn't get high marks from all. Lynne Hyman, a VP and analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities in New York, says, "The intent is apparently to show Catherine Deneuve as a human being rather than a sex goddess. But she did better as a sex goddess."

The ads in question show the regal French beauty with lipstick on the end of her nose and wearing a drawn-on mustache.

Finally, Avon faces the task of assimilating Giorgio and Stern without stifling the brands' flexibility and creativity. The acquisitions have combined yearly sales in the $300 million range. In contrast, Avon had sales of $2.88 billion in 1986.

"It's going to be a balancing act," observes Allan G. Mottus, a cosmetics consultant in New York who puts out a health and beauty aids newsletter, The Informationist. "Avon will be dealing with some of the biggest egos in the business. And these are two family-run companies without sophistication in financial matters or planning cycles. In contrast, Avon is run in the General Electric-style strategic planning mode. The say they don't want to 'Avon-ize' the acquisitions. But it's a challenge to leave them on the outside but still bring about changes."

Avon is undaunted. Mr. Preston says, "Sales, marketing and retail business know-how are centered in Michael Stern [chairman of Parfums Stern] and Michael Gould [president of Giorgio] and their organizations. We don't propose to tell them how to run their businesses."

What Avon will do is provide big-company support services. "A small company can't afford a research and development organization," Mr. Preston says. "In contrast, we have one of the finest R&D eforts, and an incredible track record in product development. Our R&D people can develop new products to the specifications of their marketing management.

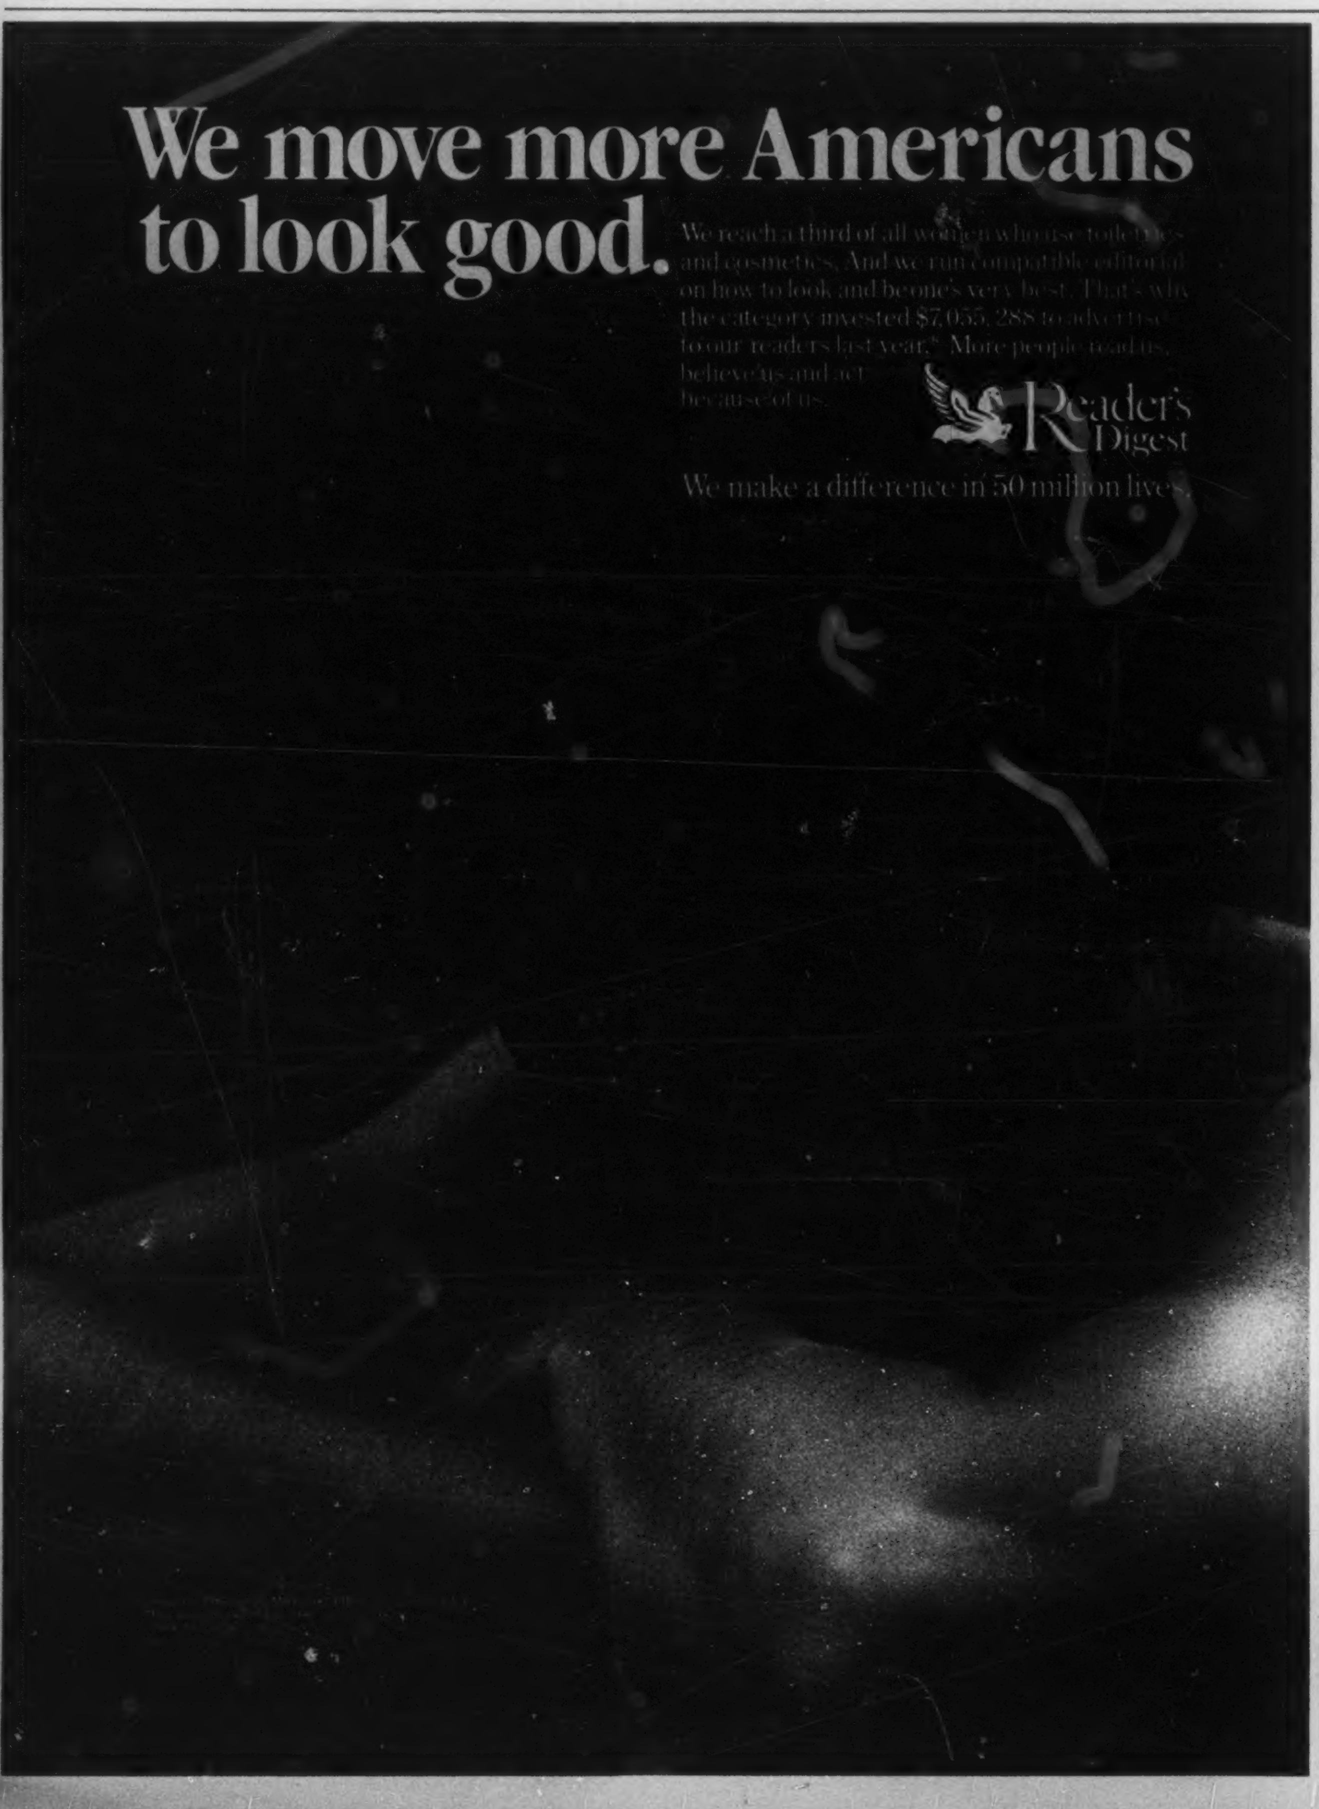
"Similarly, we can make our market research capabilities available to Giorgio and Stern. Neither has internal market research.

"Thirdly," Mr. Preston continues, "we believe strongly in strategic planning: How are you going to allocate resources, and why? We can impart the strategic planning skill to them. But they will be the ones using it, not Avon."

Whatever Avon does, it can't stand still. "Giorgio is undermarketed," says Mr. Mottus. "It needs to be taken from a fragrance to a lifestyle brand." Andrew Shore, a Shearson Lehman Hutton analyst, agrees. "Giorgio has been losing counter space." He feels it is imperative that Avon create line extensions with the Giorgio name "as quickly as possible . . . either a cosmetic line or a suncare line."

Although Avon has been reluctant to unveil its blueprints, a Giorgio of Beverly Hills suncare line is due in April.

Despite the significance of Avon's marketing challenges, many feel it has gotten off on the right foot. Mr. Mottus says, "I'd rather have the two brands they bought than Arden's problems, or some of the other problems Revlon bought. There is much greater viability in the size and strength of these brands than in an Arden, Lagerfeld or Chloe."



We move more Americans to look good.
We reach a third of all women who use toiletries and cosmetics. And we run compatible editorial on how to look and be one's very best. That's why the category invested $7,055,288 to advertise to our readers last year.* More people read us, believe us and act because of us.
Reader's Digest
We make a difference in 50 million lives.

Caesars out to conquer the high-price category

By Ruth Stroud

Can a top casino-resort operator become a high roller in the fragrance business?

Caesars World is gambling that its new line of fragrances for men and women will join the ranks of high-priced leaders like Oscar, Obsession and Giorgio. Caesars Woman and Caesars Man were introduced last December at a celebrity party at the Los Angeles-based company's showy Roman-style Caesars Palace in Las Vegas.

> The Caesars link offers instant recognition, but "I don't think anyone wants to wear a hotel."
> Consultant David Horner

The first casino hotel fragrance was developed under the auspices of the company's licensing subsidiary, Caesars World Merchandising.

Ruth Stroud is a correspondent in Advertising Age's Los Angeles bureau.

The original intent was to sell the eight-item line, at least for the first nine months, through Caesars Exclusively, retail stores in Caesars World's seven resorts and through direct mail. But strong demand has accelerated the rollout.

Caesars World this month introduces the scents in all 43 of Carter Hawley Hale's Southern California-based Broadway stores and about 20 of Federated's Lazarus stores in the Midwest. Both chains will be exclusive carriers of the line within their trading area for about a year to 18 months.

Similar agreements with retailers in New York, New England, the Southeast and most other key markets around the country are planned, according to Philip Sobel, president of Caesars World Merchandising.

The company intends to introduce the Caesars line in most major markets in August or September. A total of 500 outlets are expected to carry the scent by yearend. Advertising is handled by Grey Advertising, Los Angeles, the agency for Caesars resorts.

■ The team behind Giorgio hopes to translate the glory of Rome into modern-day dollars

The marketers and retailers behind the Caesars fragrance launch are already talking about pushing this still unknown scent into the top three or four in its category within two to three years. If they achieve this, it wouldn't be the first time for Jim Roth and David Horner, Caesars' chief consultants on the project.

The two engineered the development, promotion and marketing of Giorgio, Beverly Hills, although most of the credit for the $150-an-ounce fragrance's success (it rang up sales of more than $100 million and became the No. 1 scent in its channel of distribution within four years) went to Fred and Gale Hayman, founders of the Giorgio boutique in Beverly Hills and majority owners of Giorgio Inc., which has been sold to Avon Products.

Messrs. Roth and Horner, principals of Beverly Hills consultancy Roth/Horner & Associates, have as their exclusive project the Caesars fragrance launch. They say Caesars' marketing strategy is different in many ways from Giorgio's, particularly in its ambitious goals for expansion.

"We're going to go broader much quicker with this," says Mr. Roth.

Giorgio sold $1 million in fewer than 20 stores during its first year and even when sales surpassed $100 million, was available in about 300 outlets. Caesars, on the other hand, may be sold in as many as 1,000 department stores and specialty retailers within three years, Mr. Horner says. International distribution also will begin much sooner for Caesars than it did for Giorgio.

The Caesars fragrance packaging, scent and especially image also are different from Giorgio. The association with Caesars World will give the line instant name recognition, but the aim isn't to sell a fragrance of chance or "lady luck."

"I don't think anyone wants to wear a hotel," Mr. Horner observes wryly.

The goal, says Mr. Sobel, is to market the "opulence, beauty and extravagant sensuousness" of ancient Rome, not Caesars Palace, Las Vegas.

The connection with Caesars properties is a positive, Mr. Sobel says. One of the greatest battles in the fragrance business is establishing identity. Caesars is already known worldwide, not only for its hotels and casinos, but for broadcasts of sports events.

CAESARS
WOMAN
CAESARS
MAN

Even the tagline in initial point-of-purchase advertising and direct mail pieces is the same used for the resorts: "Relive the legend." Additional slogans, "Abandon the ordinary" for the woman's fragrance and "To wear it is to conquer" for the men's, headline pictures of toga-clad or half-nude young male and female models.

Co-op print ads will break in local papers in the next few months introducing the fragrance in Southern California and in certain Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia markets. A promotional blitz is scheduled in May to tout Caesars as the official fragrance of the Kentucky Derby. Spot TV and national print breaks this fall in major markets.

Despite the extensive ad plans, Caesars plans to be "downright stingy" when it comes to big media expenditures, Mr. Horner says. The company doesn't need to spend $10 million to $12 million in national media to achieve its goals, he believes.

"We did not one second of TV advertising and virtually no co-op advertising [for Giorgio] and we had the largest selling fragrance [in its segment] in the U.S.," boasts Mr. Roth. This success was achieved through what may have been the fragrance industry's most extensive sampling program. "We put 100 million pieces of scented material into magazines, department stores catalogs and other vehicles," Mr. Roth explains. The effort cost about $4 million, with another $1.3 million spent on media.

In-store promotion and sampling will continue to be a major part of the program for the Caesars line as well. With lower media expenditures, the intention is to be profitable from the first year, a feat which few fragrances have achieved.

Elaborate in-store promotions, complete with chariots, Roman warriors and Caesar/Cleopatra look-alikes, will herald the store launch of the fragrance. The idea is to "go one-on-one" with the consumer rather than aiming for everyone, Mr. Roth says.

Caesars' plan to conquer American cosmetic counters is credible, say industry watchers.

"In this day and age, it's possible to become a top-selling fragrance in two or three years . . . if you have a great product," says Steve Ginsberg, Los Angeles bureau chief of Women's Wear Daily.

The Caesars name raises some doubts in at least one analyst's mind, however. "Giorgio had an upscale Beverly Hills image," notes Diana Temple, VP-stock research at Salomon Brothers, New York. "I wonder if [Caesars] image is strong enough to justify the price."

The floral, spicy Caesars Woman, created by Giorgio developer Florasynth, sells for $160 per ounce, $42.50 for a 3.3-ounce cologne spray. A four-ounce spray bottle of the men's cologne sells for $32.50.

Competition from well-financed fragrance marketers promises to be very hot this year, Ms. Temple adds. Both Calvin Klein and Estee Lauder are introducing new fragrances, she says.

That doesn't dampen the hopes of H. Michael Hecht, chairman-ceo of The Broadway in Los Angeles. He fully expects the Caesars line to be among the chain's top three fragrances by 1989. The "aura and mystique" of Caesars resorts, well-known to Southern Californians, will convince customers to "take a chance," Mr. Hecht believes.

Get the complete retail picture with Progressive Grocer's TRADE DIMENSIONS library of directories.

Marketing Guidebook
Market Scope
Directory of Convenience Stores
Directory of Mass Merchandisers
Retail Tenant Directory

The book of supermarket distribution facts.

The supermarket share guide to syndicated markets.

The book of C-store market facts.

The guide to retail mass merchandisers.

The prospecting guide to retail tenants.

Progressive Grocer's
TRADE DIMENSIONS

For immediate service, call (203) 977-2814
Four Stamford Forum Stamford, CT 06901

LICENSING

Let us show you how our dynamic packaged goods approach to licensing can significantly impact your bottom line.

Ceppos Consultants
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

Once industry darling, Clarion gets makeover

■ End of '88 to answer questions as legal woes and higher expectations haunt Noxell line

By Pat Sloan

Its detractors say consumers have not heard the call to Clarion too clearly; fans say otherwise, pointing to a respectable $46 million in sales. By yearend it should be obvious who's right.

This fall, an ad campaign from Clarion's new agency, Leo Burnett USA, Chicago, should be well in place along with a complementary skincare line, a souped-up program for the Clarion in-store color-analysis computer and refinements in Clarion's color selection.

By then the line also will be 2 years old. Whether it's going to catch on should be easier to judge as should the possible outcome of a significant legal dispute with Clarins USA (AA, Feb. 29 et seq).

Opinion wasn't always so divided about the cosmetics brand the Noxell Corp. introduced in fall 1986. Within three months of launch, Clarion had chalked up $25 million in sales. Wall Street gleefully predicted sales of as much as $70 million for 1987.

Instead, Clarion sales slowed to $9 million during fourth quarter 1987, down from an estimated quarterly average of $12 million, according to Shearson Lehman Hutton's Andrew Shore, who now estimates Clarion will hit $55 million in sales this year.

Clarion's problems aren't only fiscal. Beyond the balance sheet, it faces possible legal action from Clarins USA, which has filed a complaint with the Trademark Trial & Appeal Board in Washington charging trademark confusion.

So far no lawsuit has been filed by Clarins in federal court. But that could change when Clarion goes into skincare, Clarins' specialty. Clarins USA President Joseph Horowitz says, "We are opposing their trademark registration. There is clear confusion. Customers are coming into department stores asking our saleswomen for Clarion lipstick. We don't even make lipstick."

Added Clarins attorney Susan Douglass, "We have proceedings going on all over the world. We've stopped them in other countries where they've tried to register their trademark. They've made a mistake and because of all the money they've spent they don't want to admit it." A Noxell spokesman acknowledges discussion between the two companies but would not comment further.

The company has been just as quiet about other matters. Despite the shortfall in sales—widely believed to have sparked the January creative review that led to Burnett's succeeding 41-year Noxell agency Lintas:Worldwide on Clarion—Noxell has never acknowledged any problems with the brand. In fact, sources say, Noxell considers the shortfall Wall Street's problem, not Clarion's. One source close to the company says Noxell feels "that some analysts, in hindsight, had really unrealistic expectations for the brand."

Noxell steadfastly has denied the agency review stemmed from any difficulties, explaining the search for new creative instead was to "explore Clarion's full growth potential" (AA, Jan. 11).

While Noxell will not elaborate, one source explains, "The company's feeling is the brand is doing very well. It has a 6.9% dollar share in liquid makeup in chain drugstores and a 4.5% overall share. Lintas could have kept the business but Noxell thinks Burnett found something that will take the brands to bigger heights."

A hit with retailers, the Clarion Color System computer can add programs, such as speaking Spanish to Hispanic consumers.

Still, Noxell observers have a hard time viewing such assessments without skepticism, reasoning if something needs fixing it must be broken. "Clarion needs to be more clearly positioned in the marketplace," says Brenda Lee Landry of Morgan Stanley, New York. "Management must work on solving Clarion's image problem and evening out its retail distribution. We continue to think that the company's advertising should be more pointedly hypoallergenic, i.e., a more precise message like Lauder's medicinally oriented campaign for Clinique."

Sources at Burnett say a new campaign has not been executed yet. But other agency executives have indicated that Noxell is calling for a more focused brand image.

A diluted product message straddling both a hypoallergenic and fashion positioning is generally believed by market observers to have contributed to Clarion's shortfall in sales. "The question now is can Clarion figure out what it wants to be: hypoallergenic for sensitive skin or a fashion line?" says industry consultant Allan Mottus. He suggests a different solution than Ms. Landry. "Right now, the hypoallergenic market is getting cluttered," he notes. "There's Lournay from Colgate in skincare. Then in cosmetics there's Aziza, Almay, Physicians Formula and ancillary brands such as Revlon's New Complexion, Maybelline's Ultra Pure and even Noxell's own extension of its flagship brand Cover Girl with the Extremely Gentle spinoff.

"Clarion has a lot of opportunity on the color side. Cover Girl does not have a fashion image. That is not its reason for being, [which is] an all-American clean, clear look. That leaves Clarion room to be a fashion line," he says.

It's even possible that Noxell's flanking of Cover Girl with Extremely Gentle may have contributed to Clarion's shortfall. During 1987, Extremely Gentle pulled in $7 million in sales. Notes Tom Virtue, president of Roure Bertrand Du-Pont, a fragrance and flavor supplier, "It's a merry-go-round on the same dollar. Color each day is chewed up a little more by Maybelline and Cover Girl."

Noxell may have already begun to find Clarion a fashion niche. Noxell is broadening Clarion's color range, a possible indication it has decided to shoot for a fashion position after all. Slow-selling dark color shades have been phased out and four eyeshadows are being added as were new nail enamels last year.

"Things have smoothed out," says Gary Crawford, director of cosmetics and H&BA operations for Houston-based retailer Randall's. "Shade breaks will change now and will be ongoing with the seasons and fashion.

"At first, their reps weren't experienced at handling a fashion line. They were out of stocks in some stores; in others they were oversold," Mr. Crawford notes. "But I applaud their efforts."

This retailer is particularly enthused about the Clarion computer. While the computer created by New York-based Intermark originally acted as a basic guide to introduce consumers to the line, it has the capability of adding on more advanced programs. For instance, in areas with a high number of Spanish-speaking consumers, the computer will be bilingual in the manner of many bank automatic teller machines. In Canada, the Clarion computer will speak French in addition to English.

Its program also will be expanded to incorporate the skincare introduction and may eventually have other uses, too. Sources say the computer could easily be adapted to distribute coupons, or even show consumers how to apply makeup.

Michael Wahl, chairman-ceo of the Howard Marlboro Group, Intermark's parent company,

(Continued on Page S-14)

We're your ~~in~~ any-store research specialists.

When your testing or information gathering needs include more than just supermarket outlets, call us. We've worked every imaginable kind of retail store with hundreds of projects. And because we understand the trade issues, we can provide the proper test design and report the data in the most actionable format.

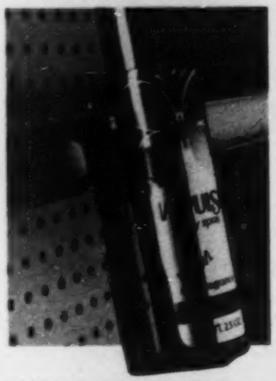
So, when your product needs multi-outlet attention, call us.

MARKET DECISIONS

Retail testing and tracking specialists

8280 Montgomery Road
Cincinnati, OH 45236
(513) 891-8000

707 Skokie Blvd.
Suite 600
Chicago, IL 60062
(312) 295-4343



INCREASE IMPULSE SALES

SHELF EXTENDER CLIP provides recognition for new products and produces dramatic sales increases. Snaps securely into price rail for visible, up-front placement.

Fasteners For Retail
1-800-422-2547
In Ohio 216-473-6810 FAX 216-473-6180
261 Alpha Park, Cleveland, OH 44143

Upscale tactics honed for mass market

By Faye Brookman

To put a jolt in lackluster sales, mass-market cosmetics companies continue to use coupons and sweepstakes promotions. But they also are emulating strategies more common to tony department stores.

That doesn't mean elegantly dressed women will be spritzing K mart shoppers with the latest scent, but it does suggest a new sophistication has come to marketing cosmetics and fragrances in food, drug and discount stores.

The industry can use the added excitement, observes Michael Wahl, chairman-ceo of Howard Marlboro Group, a New York-based sales-promotion company.

"What has happened in mass outlets is the fun has been taken out of shopping," he says. "It's fun to shop Bloomies and get all those samples . . . but [today] women are caught in a time crunch and have to shop for cosmetics on food store or drugstore visits. The trick is to bring the department store to the mass outlet."

During the past 10 years women have been shopping more and more in convenient food, drug and discount stores. Department stores still control 43% of the estimated $7.5 billion spent on all cosmetics and fragrances in 1987, but that share has dwindled; drugstores now snare 37%; food stores, 7%; and discounters, 13%, according to industry sources.

Breaking out the mass sales volume alone, A.C. Nielsen Co. figures reveal food stores are growing the fastest. Food stores' share jumped from 13% in 1986 to 18.7% last year; drugstores climbed slightly to 60.1%; discounters' share dipped from 24.4% to 21.2%.

As shoppers have become accustomed to buying blush with bagels, they also have become more discerning, says Carol Brennan, director of marketing/women's fragrances at Jovan, a division of Beecham Cosmetics, Chicago.

Fort Lee, N.J.-based Point of Purchase Institute research reveals more than 80% of shopping decisions are made in the store. Thus, in-store promotions are becoming a bigger factor in cosmetics purchasing.

Steven F. Costa, VP-marketing for Revlon Beauty Group, New York, says Revlon is becoming more aggressive with its promotions. "We are spending more because we feel it is important and it keeps Revlon exciting." Revlon Group's upcoming promotional tie-in with the Academy Awards includes a chance to win a trip to Hollywood and selection as one of Revlon's unforgettable faces.

The Academy Awards promotion also involves gift-with-purchase deals. The advent of the G-W-P in the mass market is important because mass retailers long have tried to find a method to give shoppers free gifts without adding sales help. They also perceive shrink-wrapping as having a poor image. Revlon's solution was to design a clip that attached the gift to the product.

■ Drug, other stores put fun into cosmetics shopping via in-pack samples, gifts

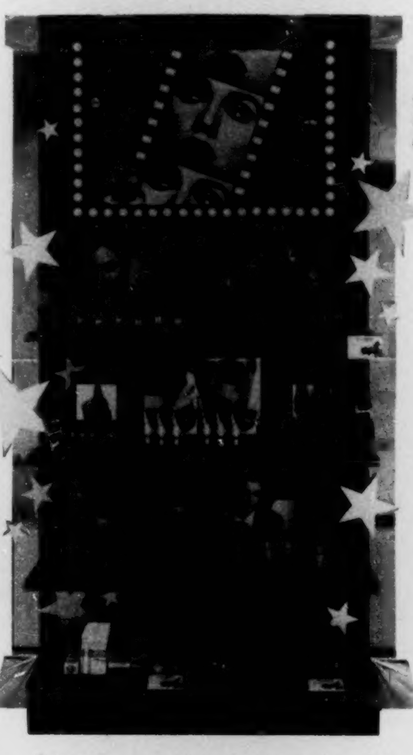
L'Oreal, the mass-market division of Cosmair Inc., New York, also has plans for G-W-P promotions. L'Oreal's Lash Out Mascara features a free in-pack sample of Adieu Refreshing Eye Makeup Remover. Jovan is including free soap and bubble bath with its new Florals scents in a gift set presentation. Jovan also is planning a back-to-school calendar consumers can receive free by mailing in a proof-of-purchase.

Ironically, G-W-Ps are catching on in drug, food and discount stores just as the strategy is fading in department stores. "It is old hat in the department store—people can only use so many unbrellas," says consultant Allan Mottus. "Offering product is a smart way to go since it promotes future sales."

Says Mr. Costa, "Consumers want value and [G-W-Ps are] a good deal for them. We also hope it will encourage them to buy the product the next time."

Another tactic borrowed from department stores is the use of scent and color samplers. Revlon is including color strips in its Celebrity Weekend booklet available in stores during the Academy Awards promotion. The strips—bulk cosmetics pressed onto paper for sampling colors—will be used to promote Revlon lipsticks, blush and eye shadow.

Jovan is taking the ubiquitous fragrance strip to a new level with its new cou-paks, two-piece promotions for Florals featuring a scented towelette on one side and a $1-off coupon on the other.



P.O.P. materials tie in Revlon Group cosmetics with next month's 60th Academy Awards.

Another important tool in the mass market is fixturing, an early success being the Beauty Boutique created by Marlboro Group for Noxell Corp. in the early 1980s. It has become an important tool in the mass market.

"The Noxell fixture got more stockkeeping units out in front of the customer, it alleviated the cluttered look in the stores and it allocated space properly to sales," explains Mr. Wahl. Noxell and Marlboro Group teamed up again last year to fill the service void in the mass market. The result was a computer that helped shoppers in their product selections. The computer was a key in the $15 million launch of Clarion, a fragrance-free, sensitivity-tested line quickly dubbed the mass-market Clinique, which also uses a computer at its department store counters.

The Clarion computer marks the first, but not last appearance of computers in chain stores. Retailers say Clairol is testing a computer for hair colors and that it will be logical for a skincare marketer to educate consumers about its products via a computer. "Skincare will work in drugstores once the manufacturers educate the consumers," says industry consultant Jeanette Solomon, a former buyer for K&B Drugs in New Orleans.

Mass retailers also are adding gloss to their image by upgrading cosmetics departments with carpeting, service and better quality merchandise, plus accepting credit cards. The efforts are paying off. In Houston, for example, a color cosmetics market leader is not a department store, but Randall's supermarket chain. Cosmetics sales are up at New Orleans-based Schwegman's supermarket chain, now that credit cards are accepted.

"The retailing sectors continue to blur," concludes Peter Scott, corporate VP-marketing/men's fragrance, Beecham Cosmetics. "The mass channels are looking more like department stores. It is all changing." ■

Faye Brookman, a New York-based free lance writer, specializes in toiletries and beauty aids topics.

Clarion gets makeover

(Continued from Page S-12)

says, "We even have retailers calling who want to buy the computer themselves. Computers can create multiple purchases far and above what the normal purchase might be."

Noxell no doubt is in the market with Clarion to maximize corporate sales as much as possible, whether that be with a computer or other support such as advertising. Says Ms. Landry, "Cover Girl seems to be losing momentum."

At the same time, Cover Girl's archrival Maybelline has been steadily gaining ground with 25% of its sales generated by products introduced in the last two years, according to Salomon Brothers analyst Diana Temple.

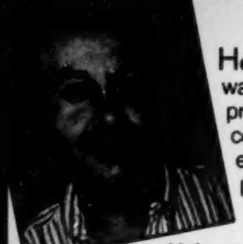
With Cover Girl accounting for well more than half of Noxell's cosmetics sales, it is important that Noxell build other strong brand franchises to lessen its dependence on a single brand.

Clarion is one option; indeed, when it was launched it was hailed by Wall Street as a logical way for Noxell to make up for any slowdown in Cover Girl sales as that brand matured.

But Noxell is expected to examine other options, including a fragrance launch under the Cooler name, skincare under the Cover Girl and Noxzema names and a major acquisition in toiletries or other personal care products.

Even a 20% sales gain this year won't put Clarion much over $55 million in sales. And 20% is what most of those recently chastened Wall Streeters are predicting now. ■

Jim Mehern Wants Fulfillment



He's got a 55,000 square foot warehouse, a staff of dedicated professionals, state of the art computerized equipment, and experience in handling fulfillment programs for some of the largest marketers in the business.

He's sent millions of Cabbage Patch Kids doll adoption papers to little boys and girls across America as well as fulfilled millions of dollars in refunds for companies such as Nabisco. He excels at direct response solicitations and multi-brand refund offers, and treats the premiums he fulfills like family members.

And he does it all at some of the most competitive rates in the business.

Find out how professionally and inexpensively Jim and his crew can handle your fulfillment needs.

Call Don Jagoda Associates today.

don jagoda associates, inc.
One Underhill Blvd., Syosset, NY 11791 • (516) 496-7300
[illegible]
Fulfillment • Sweepstakes • Games • Incentives • Premiums

RESEARCH SPECIALISTS IN THE FEMALE MARKETPLACE!

ON . . .
- Products
- Services
- Communications

AMONG . . .
- Professionals
- HOH/Mothers
- Seniors
- Teenagers
- Children

(313) 855-7810
TRENDFACTS

(313) 855-7812
PLAYLAB

Dana Blackwell, Exec. V.P.
Donna Taglione, Dir. Rsch.
Jenny Van Dusen, Rsch. Mgr.
Sherrey Schatmeyer, Fld. Dir.

3,000 years in test, line arrives in U.S.

By Laurie Werner

Readers of the Jan. 10 issue of the New York Times Magazine found a lush, 6-page ad featuring dreamy beauties resembling ancient Roman pin-up girls. It demanded attention.

Terme di Saturnia, the Italian skincare/treatment line featured in the ad, was being introduced in eight Saks Fifth Avenue department stores the next day. Making a splashy impression was definitely the intention. "We wanted a fast build in recognition, authority and credibility," says Audrey Butvay, president of Terme di Saturnia, the New York-based company that distributes the line. "We couldn't see coming in with little b&w column ads."

Her target market is not exactly optimum for another upscale treatment product line.

"With the exception of the quick-fix, problem-solving products—[Lauder's] Eyzone, [Lancome's] Niosome—the upscale skincare category growth is pretty flat," says New York-based industry consultant Alan Mottus. "The upscale price-point structure is saturated. The audience with the income to buy $75 to $100 products is pretty limited and there are quite a few brands already promising a lot of different things." (The Federal Drug Administration is also carefully watching those promises.)

Ms. Butvay, however, feels the line's pricing—just below La Prairie and just above all of the rest—and formulation are the right combination.

■ Anti-aging concoctions from Italy mix the 'best of nature and the best of science'

TERME DI SATURNIA LINEA COSMETICA

The Terme di Saturnia ad explains the history of the upscale Italian skincare/treatment line.

"This is the first premiere skincare line created in, and imported from Italy," she says. (Says Mr. Mottus skeptically, "Italy has been known for its fashion, its design, but never for skincare.") The 25 products in the line, from the Thermal-Fango therapeutic mud ($25 for 1.7 ounces), to the Thermal-Plankton Rejuvenation Mask ($70 for 4.2 ounces) have been developed from the thermal waters of Tuscany's Saturnia spa, waters that have been bubbling up healing minerals for 3,000 years. Says Ms. Butvay, "This line is based on a natural phenomenon that's been going on all those years."

Adding to the mix is state-of-the-art scientific technology, according to Ms. Butvay, as practiced by the Institute of Aesthetic Medicine at Saturnia, which develops the products and came up with the line's skin analysis concept—the Critical-Age Skin Factor—to determines the skin's oil-moisture balance. The balance is measured by a diagnostic scanner, the Critical-Age Skin Sensor, and then adjusted with basal cell serums.

The institute also developed three "unique" ingredients, according to Ms. Butvay: Bioglea, an extract of the spa's thermal plankton; NMF 2, a hydrating ingredient intended to mimic the skin's natural system of hydration; and Incellate, an intracellular serum complex.

The products are "a blend of the best of nature and the best of science," Ms. Butvay says. "We deliver what we promise—we don't say we'll do away with wrinkles, but we can reduce the depth of some lines. We have the tests to prove it. We're comfortable with our claims. We're not worried about the FDA."

She's not worried about a competitive treatment line also using the principles and thermal waters of a spa—Princess Marcella Borghese's Terme di Montecatini. "Montecatini licenses the name. The products are made in [parent company] Revlon's factory in Arizona," Ms. Butvay says.

Borghese isn't worried about the competition, either. Vickie Kent, VP-marketing for Borghese says the products are made in the Phoenix factory, but they are based on the natural ingredients imported from the Montecatini spa also in Tuscany, which has been bubbling minerals for 2,400 years. "We're able to create natural, beneficial products with the most sophisticated, highest quality control methodology," she says.

Ms. Kent says Montecatini's positioning and concept are different. "The Saturnia line is higher-priced and more complicated. They're measuring the oil-moisture balance, which changes all the time. You have to return to the counter frequently to have it re-analyzed. Ours is a simple cleanse-tone-moisturize procedure."

The Saturnia line was introduced last summer at the Doral Saturnia International Spa Resort in Miami, a sister spa of

(Continued on Page S-18)

Laurie Werner is a New York-based free lance writer.

Guys slow to get into the act

By Laurie Freeman

The men's cosmetics and skincare businesses in the U.S. have yet to live up to the billion-dollar potential touted by marketers more than four years ago.

Although women spend more than $1 billion annually on skin-treatment products, retail sales of men's skincare products last year totaled only $47 million. (This figure doesn't include men's shaving products.)

Most of the men's market purchases are still by women. One cosmetics industry analyst estimates that up to 80% of all men's toiletries are bought by wives and girlfriends.

LAUDER FOR MEN

Ads for Lauder for Men's anti-wrinkle agent claims the best offense is a good defense.

■ Men's skincare sales only $47 million, but marketers expect foreign influences to make U.S. take notice

"Men don't think of running to Saks Fifth Avenue on their lunch hour to buy skin and face cream," says Andrew Shore, an analyst with Shearson Lehman Hutton. "Men still are more apt to buy their skincare needs at the mass-merchandise and drugstore level, and that's mostly shaving products.'"

While conceding that the category has grown more slowly than expected, men's toiletries' marketers are by no means discouraged. Executives point out that European men already are big users of men-only products, and young Japanese men not only use skincare treatments, but also are experimenting with cosmetics. The most popular line in Japan is Shiseido's Gear for Men, which includes bronzers and lip pomades. Eventually, industry executives say, those grooming habits will make their way to the U.S.

Other factors the industry expects will help expand the men's market is the baby boomer's growing preoccupation with aging; changing attitudes toward fitness and exercise; and a continuing influx of women into the nation's workforce. Working women, it seems, exert more influence on their office mates' grooming habits than previously thought.

Mr. Shore contends companies haven't done anything to make the department-store environment more accessible to men.

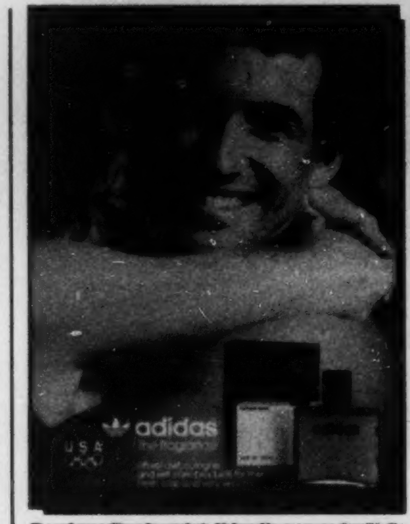
"In many ways, it's like buying a condom for the first time," he says. "Because it's behind the counter, you have to ask for it . . . and that's hard to do. But if they [men's toiletries companies] want the category to grow faster than 10% in sales annually, they're going to have to come up with persuasive advertising to make men want to buy those products."

Because women still comprise the major segment of department-store shoppers, at least one company sees nothing wrong with reaching the men they want to use their products by selling them to women. For example, the Lauder for Men line, from New York-based Estee Lauder Inc., has won about 75% of the department-store market for men's skin-treatment products by putting the men's line on the same counter as the women's line.

"Once we've gotten men hooked on the treatment line, they're customers for life, much more so than women," says Bud Taylor, VP-marketing, Lauder for Men.

Mr. Taylor says that two years ago women made 75% of the Lauder for Men purchases. Now, it's a 60/40 ratio. "I don't think it will get better than 50/50, but that's OK," he says.

The company's current print campaign features actor Bruce Boxleitner in ads promoting Anti-Wrinkle Defense Formula and Skin Comfort lotion. AC&R, New York, handles Lauder for Men advertising. Mr. Boxleitner also makes in-store appearances, primarily to sign autographs and hand out samples of products.



Beecham Products' Adidas line touts its U.S. Olympic Team connection.

Advertising men's products to women buyers is limiting the potential of the market, says Suzanne Grayson, a Santa Barbara, Calif.-based cosmetics-industry consultant. "Men are not as self-involved nor as youth-driven as women. Even in fragrance, the men's business is not developed as much.

"It's truly a Catch-22," she adds. "One company can't create a category, and if a category is not successful, other companies don't come into it."

Peter Scott, corporate VP-marketing/men's fragrance, Beecham Cosmetics, Chicago, believes the category still is undergoing "an educational process" to get men to use more than just an after-shave lotion.

"Certain brands have done it after years of trying, like Old Spice and Brut.

(Continued on Page S-18)

Data bank — Toiletries & Beauty Aids

New beauty product introductions

Category	1987	1986
Color cosmetics	221	158
Skincare	181	154
Fragrance	90	72
Bath products	52	68

Source: Beauty Age

Cosmetics & beauty aids sales (1986)

(Dollars are in thousands)

Category		Percent Change
Cosmetics	$4,900,000	+ 4.6%
Women's fragrances	$3,000,000	+ 0.7%
Women's hair products	$3,200,000	+ 4.6%
Men's toiletries	$1,300,000	+12.0%
Skincare	$2,600,000	− 1.6%
Personal hygiene	$2,400,000	+ 4.4%

Source: Beauty Age
Consumer Spending Index

Five-year projected growth of retail skin care sales

(Face, hand, body lotions and creams)

(Dollars are in thousands)

Year	Total
1988	$1,693,000
1989	1,774,000
1990	1,868,000
1991	1,979,000
1992	2,113,000

Source: Packaged Facts

Women's fragrance sales (1986)

(Dollars are in thousands)

Category		Percent change
Toilet water/ cologne	$2,100,000	+1.0
Gift sets	$ 324,300	−2.1
Scented bath prods.	$ 246,500	+1.8
Perfume	$ 217,000	+4.6
Bubble bath	$ 82,100	−8.8
Total market	$3,000,000	+0.7

Source: Beauty Age
Consumer Spending Index

Skincare sales (1986)

(Dollars are in thousands)

Category		Percent change
Face creams/cleansers	$ 555,200	− 4.1
Face lotion/ moisturizers	522,000	+ 1.6
Other (including private label)	435,200	+ 2.8
Body lotions/ emollients	397,600	− 3.5
Acne preparations	157,700	− 2.8
Suntan products	137,400	−12.7
Sunscreen blocks	112,700	+24.3
Cleansing pads	78,400	+ 9.1
Hand creams	65,800	+ 7.1
Cortisone products	45,000	− 8.8
Lip protectors	43,800	+ 4.0
Depilatories	37,200	+ 2.4
Whiteners/masks	29,700	−45.1
Wrinkle removers/ astringents	14,200	−16.9
Hair bleaches	7,100	− 6.0
Lip treatments	3,700	−46.7
Total market	$2,600,000	− 1.6

Source: Beauty Age
Consumer Spending Index

Line arrives in U.S.

(Continued from Page S-16)

the Tuscany original.

For wider distribution, Ms. Butvay and the Doral owners, Carroll Management Group, formed the Terme di Saturnia company.

"I wanted to introduce this at Saks," Ms. Butvay says, "because to me it is a tremendously important specialty store with great prestige positioning and a loyal and identifiable customer base" of 29-to-45-year-old upscale, working women who will spend a little more to look their best.

Saks was immediately open to the idea. "I thought it was an interesting, clean line," says Terry Heagerty, VP-divisional merchandise manager for cosmetics for Saks in New York.

"I always think, 'Who needs another upscale treatment line?' but there was something about the look, the concept of this one—it was different and fresh, not terribly complicated, it didn't promise miracles, but it did have ingredients that would deliver results. And the way of testing the skin was a hook," she says.

Both Ms. Heagerty and Ms. Butvay thought the proper way to launch was to roll out and build slowly. On Jan. 11 the line was introduced in three New York area stores, three Florida stores, and stores in Bala-Cynwyd, Pa., and Boston. The launch was supported with a mix of national and regional print advertising.

"Because we would be primarily on the East Coast, true national advertising would not have been cost efficient," explains Ms. Butvay. "But as our agency, New York-based Stevens-Buchsbaum, decided the New York Times Magazine was perfect because it was local but created, at the same time, a national presence.

"We also ran an ROP ad, a co-op ad with Saks, in the New York Times front news section the same day, and four-color spreads in New York magazine, Avenue magazine, and an eastern regional insert in Harper's Bazaar," she says.

"In the other markets, we ran spreads in local magazines" including Boston, Boca Raton and newspaper co-op ads with Saks in the Boston Globe, Miami Herald and Philadelphia Inquirer. In New York, ROP ads ran in the New York Times "to give specific product messages," Ms. Butvay says. The company's ad budget for the launch was $500,000, half of it for the New York Times Magazine ad.

The New York Times Magazine ad also ran an 800 number that readers could call to order a $75 introductory kit. Terme di Saturnia will not reveal the number of callers but will say that 40% of the kits that Saks ordered to satisfy the demand sold out within four weeks.

Ms. Butvay will not give out numbers, but will say that within six weeks of launch, Saks has placed its third reorder, and that first-time customers tend to buy three to four products; an average purchase is $170.

Ms. Heagerty declines to reveal numbers, but says she was sufficiently impressed with the line's success to move up her additional rollout date. "We plan to move it into eight to ten other [not yet selected] stores in May."

Again, ads in regional magazines and ROP ads in local newspapers will support that launch.

By fall, Ms. Butvay also expects to be in other stores and to have expanded through the Midwest and Texas to the West Coast. National print ads will coincide with that phase. TV also is being considered.

"We'll expand selectively. At the most, we'll be in 150 to 200 doors," says Ms. Butvay. "But within three years, we plan to be a significant, upscale, prestige brand."

Guys slow to get in the act

(Continued from Page S-16)

It's OK to say 'I splash on Jovan Musk,' those brands have been around," he says. "But with designer names that men don't feel comfortable pronouncing, it's going to take longer."

Mr. Taylor believes marketing men's products has been a "combination educational process" for both the industry and its target audience.

"We're all trying to make men aware of skincare . . . and the aging of America has helped," he says.

Beecham's year-old Adidas line, which includes shampoo, fragrance and cologne, aftershave and a muscle lotion, hopes to further the educational process by advertising heavily during the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. Both the line's namesake, the Adidas footwear and apparel line, and the fragrance/skincare line are official sponsors of the U.S. Olympic Team, giving Beecham's Adidas a natural association with the athletes.

Beecham already is running print ads with an Olympics logo and plans to launch an in-store promotion this summer. New TV spots will be on air by August, timed for the back-to-school season and the Olympics. HBM/Creamer, Boston, handles the Adidas line.

Ads in health clubs also are planned "since there we can reach men in a natural environment, where they're already using shampoo, soap and muscle relaxants," says Mr. Scott.

"We're sampling the muscle lotion at ski resorts, and the response so far has been phenomenal," he says.

Beecham's Adidas may have a slight edge over department-store skincare lines because approximately 80% of all men's skincare product purchases are made in drug stores or mass-merchandise outlets, says Mr. Shore.

"There's still room in the market to persuade blue-collar workers to use skincare products, you don't see many auto workers using the upscale men's products," he says. "Most of the men's skincare business still is in the major cities like Boston, New York and Washington. It's not happening in Albuquerque."

Tony Michaels, VP-advertising and marketing at Lancome, New York, believes men will use treatment products and some cosmetics "if no one can see it." The cosmetics company introduced this month a Fluide Auto-Bronzant quick tanning lotion, which it says is the first lotion of its kind to be marketed to men in the U.S. under the Programme Homme label. In June, the company will launch an eye balm, also under the Programme Homme name.

"We're progressing from taking care of hair with gels, mousse, thickeners, to taking care of the skin. Ten years down the road, this [industry] will explode. The 1990s will bring tremendous changes, as Americans move into taking better care of themselves," Mr. Michaels says.

He says print advertising has been "fairly effective" in helping introduce the Programme Homme men's line, which includes a gel cleanser and exfoliant and an anti-wrinkle creme. Publicis, New York, is the agency.

However, Lancome relies heavily on sampling at the counter and during sporting events to introduce men to the skincare regimen. "We've found that if we can get the product into a man's hand, he'll try it and come back to buy it," Mr. Michaels says.

One strategy to induce men to buy skincare products is to change the advertising approach. Industry analysts criticize current advertising as being too functional. It avoids the industry's main selling proposition: "Hope in a jar."

Mr. Shore believes the category in the next few years will undergo a great shift, once advertisers begin using more persuasive advertising. "Men are going to realize that there is nothing wrong in buying beauty products and taking care of themselves," he says.

Managing editor Cecelia Reed coordinated this report on Toiletries & Beauty Aids Marketing.

Coming

Next week ADVERTISING AGE's Special Report will focus on Sales Promotion. AD AGE will publish an extra issue on March 30, its annual Agency Income report.

Kit marketer hopes for bumper crop

By LENORE SKENAZY

The day after the Rev. Jimmy Swaggart confessed to all sorts of things, John David Peggs' bumper sticker read "Jimmy Swaggart, God's favorite sinner."

"People at lights would honk and ask me where I got it," said Mr. Peggs, 32, Tampa, Fla. He told them he made it with a nifty do-it-yourself Bumper Talk kit.

He generally didn't have enough time to add that he and his buddy Michael Maguire invented those nifty kits and expect them to retail for $2.79.

The idea was born last year when Mr. Peggs, a practical joker, created an original bumper sticker and affixed it to Mr. Maguire's car.

Unaware, Mr. Maguire drove to north Florida, wondering why a pickup truck seemed to be trailing him. He wondered even more when it followed him off the highway. And he had no idea what was going on when two guys got out, ambled over and asked, not real friendly-like, "Well, did you get any honks?" They pointed to the back of Mr. Maguire's car: "Honk if you hate rednecks."

Mr. Maguire didn't get mad. He didn't even get even. He simply called up Mr. Peggs and said, "Let's make a million dollars."

Mr. Peggs acquiesced, liquidated his real estate holdings and the two of them founded Stik-R-Kits, Fort Lauderdale, makers of Bumper Talk.

The kits come with one plain white bumper sticker, plenty of press-on letters and two red hearts.

"Use it to advertise your business or to support your local team," Mr. Peggs suggested. "Or just express yourself."

The buddies introduced Bumper Talk at the Tampa auto show in February and are traveling the trade show circuit in search of buyers and reps.

They've also developed Window Talk kits that look just like those yellow "Baby on board" signs, except you create your own message with stick-on letters.

Letters that allow for, say, practical joking. Which is to say that if you ever see a sign in Mr. Peggs' window reading "Honk if you kidnap babies"—don't be alarmed. It's probably just Mr. Maguire getting even.#

Foreign

(Continued from Page 33)

ber on the amount.

Ad spending in Brazil last year fell about 10%, and another 5% decline is anticipated this year in a country that continues to face skyrocketing inflation.

South Africa and Israel

The South African advertising industry had a better than expected 1987, with the first real growth—although slight at 0.5%—in four to five years, said Peter de Klerk, exec VP, Association of Advertising Agencies, Johannesburg. Even more growth—1.5%—is expected this year, industry sources said.

Israel's ad industry had a great year in 1987 with ad revenue growing 26.5%. However, a major reason for the increase was the 30% rise in the cost of ad space, said Branislau Tau, executive director, Advertisers Association of Israel, Tel Aviv. This year, spending is likely to decline 9%.

Asia/Pacific, Canada

In Japan, 1987 spending was higher than originally forecast due to unexpected growth in consumer spending in the second half. Ad expenditures increased 8.1%. Spending is projected to rise about 4.5% in 1988.

Australia barely managed 1% growth last year—only half of what was predicted, and expectations for 1988 are at best for no growth at all.

Even a big bicentennial sponsorship and ad spending spree won't compensate for the effects of the stock market plunge, which has made advertisers much more cautious.

In Canada, 1988 ad spending is expected to be stagnant. Spending will grow by 0.5% to 1% at best, most executives say.

Some say they think the market will be flat, while others such as Ron Burns, president, J. Walter Thompson Co., Toronto, remain bullish, predicting a 2%-to-3% rate of growth.#

Contributing to this report were Stephen Downer, Seymour Gottlieb, Julie Skur Hill, Des Kilalea, David Kilburn, Chris Kucway, Geoffrey Lee Martin, Michelle McCarter, Julia Michaels, Sean Milmo, Dagmar Mussey, Marina Specht, Lena Vanier and Claire Wilson.

alynn NECKWEAR
108 DOGWOOD CT.
STAMFORD, CT 06903

Silk Ties & Scarves Designed With Your Client's Logo Are Inexpensive, Lasting Investments In Corporate Image.

	min.	each
Handmade Ties	150	$15
Scarves	100	$15

Other fabrics avail. Color Catalog
(203) 322-5160 (800) 252-5966

some things get better with age

The Ad Age Creative Workshop for instance. And this year's program will be bigger and better than ever!

It's your chance to reap the rewards of all the newest techniques and latest developments in your industry. The Workshop sessions are conducted by leading advertising, marketing and media professionals, and are a great opportunity for you to learn, discover and grow.

At the Ad Age Creative Workshop, you will find sessions on today's most interesting topics, including the new alternative media, creating effective print advertising, music copyrights, Hispanic marketing, creative research techniques, sports marketing and sponsorship, the latest in sales promotion, global advertising and much much more. Plus, you'll have the chance to exchange ideas with colleagues, make valuable new contacts and rub elbows with industry leaders.

What's more, this year we're offering many exciting extras, including a fast-paced tour of New York followed by dinner on board a magnificent yacht as it cruises around New York harbor. Optional activities include tic[illegible] to one of Broadway's hottest new [illegible] and a chance to enjoy a major league baseball game.

Don't delay. This is your chance to get better with age. Ad Age that is. Call or write today for more information on this year's Advertising Age Creative Workshop.

ADVERTISING AGE
CREATIVE WORKSHOP

August 21-24, 1988
New York Hilton

Telephone: 1 (800) 233-3435 In NY call: (212) 210-0209 Telex: 25-4248 • Fax: (312) 649-5331 • Telecopier: (312) 649-5380

☑ Please send me more information on the Ad Age Creative Workshop.

Name__________
Title__________
Company__________
Address__________
City/State__________ Zip__________
Telephone__________

Send to: Advertising Age Creative Workshop
220 East 42nd Street
New York, NY 10017
(212) 210-0209

© 1988 Crain Communications, Inc.

4/4/88 C2710-1

*3-DIGIT 200
020190949 AA00 8812 COMP A*E
CONGRESSIONAL INFO SERVICE
SRI ACQUISITIONS
4520 EAST-WEST HWY #800
WASHINGTON DC 20014

This issue $3.00; $64 a year

March 30, 1988

Advertising Age

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing

U.S. ADVERTISING AGENCY PROFILES

1988 Edition

March 30, 1988 Special Issue

Advertising Age®

Crain's International Newspaper of Marketing

*Entire contents copyright 1988 by Crain Communications, Inc. All rights reserved.

U.S. ad income dips 4.6%

Returns from foreign agencies compensate for domestic declines to push worldwide gross income for the Ad Age 500 to $9.6 billion, up 10%. Non-U.S. billings for the 500 grew to 35% of worldwide billings in 1987, up from 25%. Young & Rubicam, No. 1 in worldwide income for the seventh straight year, reported that overseas' income contributed 47.5% of its worldwide income, up from 43% in the prior year.

Copyright ©1988 by Crain Communications Inc. Quotations or reproductions in whole or part without written permission is expressly prohibited.

By R. CRAIG ENDICOTT

Young & Rubicam for the seventh consecutive year led all U.S. agencies in worldwide gross income with $735.5 million in 1987. But nipping closely at its heels was Saatchi & Saatchi Advertising Worldwide, according to ADVERTISING AGE's 44th annual Agency Income Report.

Saatchi & Saatchi, reporting $693.6 million, narrowed the $137.9 million gap between Y&R and its No. 2 ranking in 1986 by more than two-thirds—a direct result of the merger of Saatchi & Saatchi Compton Worldwide and DFS Dorland Worldwide, both units of the world's largest agency mega group, Saatchi & Saatchi PLC. Prior-year figures in this report were restated to reflect current-year agency properties.

